It is not important that we hazard a guess when that peace shall dawn. "In time of war prepare for peace" may well be said. What would be more appropriate than the preparation now for a great American Choral Peace Jubilee of sacred songs? Already preparations are under way for such a peace jubilee in which no less than a million voices shall sing. The plan is not to have this jubilee in one city, as after the Civil War and after the War of 1812, for the coming of this peace will be an event without parallel in all history. Many of you will remember and others of you have read that after the Civil War a Peace Jubilee was sung in which twenty thousand voices joined. In 1814 after the treaty of Ghent with England, a peace jubilee was sung in Boston, which was the beginning of the Handel and Haydn Society, an organization similar to the Apollo Club, and one of which you have all heard.

There has been a smouldering effort throughout the country to give a great deal more importance to community music of its various kinds than has been possible heretofore in the United States. Many cities have taken up this effort, and in some a great deal of encouragement has been given to the choral societies and to the orchestra and opera, and we are well aware that in Chicago music has had as generous patronage as in any other city in the land. But those who are most familiar with the difficulties which beset the organizers of community music enterprises will tell you that a general change of thought can be brought about by the plan of holding everywhere a Choral Peace Jubilee at which the songs shall be appropriate, not to the celebration of war triumphant, but to the welcome of a Great Peace, one in which we shall all hope a new spirit of brotherhood will be shown and more of the true Christianity which is expressed in "Peace on earth, good will to men." It is a very practical fact that the peace jubilee project will serve well the plans to awaken America to more interest in good music. The results of previous jubilees serve to show that the effect will be permanent. Therefore it is evident that music throughout the nation, and the industries which depend upon music, will be galvanized into an activity never before seen in this country, by the carrying out of the peace jubilee plan.

The general committee which is now being formed will include men and women from all parts of the country and representing not only the National Federation of Music Clubs, but other great organizations, including organizations of churches of all creeds. Peace is not a sectarian matter, neither does it know any distinction of nativity. In this city, Mr. Angus S. Hibbard, former president of the Apollo Club, is actively interested, as am I. In Washington, among others, is the United States Commissioner of Education, Mr. Claxton, and also Mr. McFarland of the American Civic Association and Mrs. George B. Carpenter. Already there is representation on the committee which is being organized, from the Mothers' Congress and other organizations of women and from powerful organizations of business such as yours.

Not only the business dependent upon music will be affected, but all business. It is evident that the coming of a real peace in Europe will herald a change in thought, a change which will bring about less materialism and more idealism, and the inevitable effect of this will be to lend its good to all the people and tremendous prosperity to those industries which are peculiarly music industries. If we spend half a billion now for music, in spite of our standards, which we acknowledge to be material, then to what figure will the business run under the stimulus of the altered trend of thought.

Whatever your opinion concerning the value to business (which is not the purpose of my appearance here today), I am sure that you will heartily agree in the proposal that peace should be welcomed as we plan, by a choral jubilee. You will, every man of you, feel a personal interest in aiding such a plan, for the appropriateness of it will appeal to you at once.

So great an interest in the peace jubilee plan has been taken by the Apollo Club, of which I have the honor to be president, that it has been decided by the club to make a pilgrimage to the Expositions on the Pacific Coast this summer, in response to the invitations received. This is something of an undertaking, for the membership of the Apollo Club is so large that no less than three trains of Pullmans will be needed for the journey. It is the belief of the club that this pilgrimage will materially aid the proposal of the Choral Peace Jubilee, particularly as the club proposes to publish a book to be called "The Choral Pilgrimage," which will be to every music lover throughout the land a text-book of inspiration for the launching of choral societies and union choirs and for the drilling of this vast army of peace in the singing of sacred song.

We of the Apollo Club feel no little pride in the fact that ours is the oldest organization of its kind which has been continuously in existence, and you of the Association have reason to be proud, I assure you, of the patient, persistent study and effort of the members of our club in the singing of that class of music which gets down into the fundamental roots of things and vitally expresses the sentiment of all the world when the inevitable peace in Europe comes—may that be soon.

The Apollo Club will leave in three special trains on July 10 next, and it is planned to publish and distribute no less than fifty thousand, and perhaps many hundreds of thousands, of the book, which will serve as a permanent souvenir and reminder to all the world that from Chicago has come the trumpet call, in these days of dreadful war, to drill and prepare for the welcoming, in the only way it can be welcomed, of peace. The Apollo Club of Chicago will, we hope, give to all the world in this way a new impulse in the recognition of music and things of its kind as having a value far greater than can be ascribed to the merchandise needed for mere existence. We hope that you and all of you will help us to make "The Choral Pilgrimage," as a book of purpose, serve the purpose well.

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF MUSIC

On Saturday afternoon, February 20, a pupils' recital was given by the pupils of the Columbia School of Music, which was heard by a large and enthusiastic audience. The program was of varied character, presenting pupils from the piano, voice and violin departments, and presented in the same admirable style for which recitals at this institution are noted.

Various stages of development were displayed during the program but at all times there was shown on the part of each performer a sincerity of purpose, assurance and willingness to do and still better, to advance farther in the study which has been undertaken that a word of commendation is due to each girl which appeared. The ability of each to grasp the work at hand, well, and present it to an audience in the same manner is a tribute to the instructors responsible for the attainments of those who played or sang on this occasion.

Rutheda Pretzel, Margaret McCormick, Louise Spalding, Pauline Thompson, Katie Evans, Paula Salamon, Kathryn Kahn, Janet Walker, Katherine Burnham, Marjorie Clarke, Alice Mae Dick, and Katherine Pearson played piano solos; Florence Leavitt, Jeannette MacDowell and Gladys Norton were the singers who appeared, and Irene Baetke played two violin solos.

JENNY DUFAU MANAGEMENT

Jenny Dufau will be under the management of Maurice Fulcher, McCormick Building, for the season 1915-16.

CHILDREN PLAY BACH

A very unusual event took place at the Illinois College of Music on last Friday evening when the Junior Bach Club, membership in which is an honor conferred only on pupils who have diligence, perseverance, ambition and talent, gave a program, in which five young girls played the earlier works of Bach with splendid skill and understanding and a well chosen miscellaneous program was given to fill out a delightful hour.

The Illinois College of Music is situated in its own house and possesses many advantages unknown to most schools of the city. The neighborhood is fine, the building itself is admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is used and the pupils are a fine lot of intelligent boys and girls—difficult to equal in most localities.

Mr. C. W. Edwards has taught so long on the West Side that he is known everywhere in that part of the city and he has surrounded himself with a fine band of teachers, prominent among them being Miss Edwards, a concert pianist of high rank who also has developed into one of the best and most conscientious of teachers.

On Friday evening Beulah Bassett, Grace Behan, Helen Rusch, Bonnie Donaldson and Beatrice Dorian were introduced as being eligible for the Bach Club, through the fact of their study and attainments, and each one proved her claim by giving from two to four "Inventions," "Loure" and "Solfeggiata" of Bach. The playing was, in every case, of remarkable clarity and a mature intelligence besides disclosing good technic and fine musical feeling.

Mr. Edwards precluded this work with a talk on Bach which was well thought out and which doubtless left a permanent impression on the minds of all who heard it.

The same young ladies had each a second appearance, when light, salon music was played and the program thus provided was pleasing in itself and was as well an exposition of good piano playing of which any school might have been proud.

Two readings were given as an interlude, both well done, and violin solos were excellently negotiated by Franklin Paul and Gladys Welge, two talented young pupils of Albert Leo Preiser.

To close the evening, Mr. Edwards introduced Miss Maud Tollefson, a new teacher in the violin department of the college, who gave a sample of her abilities and style in short works of Tor Aulin and Massenet. She displayed very broad tone and a very distinct musicianship. Her taste in interpretation is admirable and her musical feeling pronounced.

Excellent accompaniments were furnished by Miss Marie Edwards, who a short time ago completed a tour as accompanist and pianist with Francis Macmillen. C. E. W.

SINAI TEMPLE

The soloist with the orchestra Sunday evening, February 21, was Miss Nellie Wulfe, violinist. The concerts at Sinai are still drawing splendid audiences, and the interest in orchestra concerts is growing in a manner that should be very gratifying to both the orchestra and management.

The overture to "Rosamunde," Schubert, and excerpts from "The Prophecy," Meyerbeer, were given splendid renditions and greeted with genuine approval by the audience. The Saint-Saens "Bacchanale" was received with great applause. "Scenes Alsaciennes," Massenet, were very well liked and rendered, the solo parts were played in a capable manner by Messrs. Schreurs and Felber. The Strauss "Waltzes" were delightful with their color and rhythms.

Miss Nellie Wulfe, pupil of Alexander Zukowsky, was a pleasant surprise. She is young in years, but it is very evident that she has studied well, and if she continues along as sane lines as her present playing indicates, she should be very successful. Miss Wulfe gave the Bruch "Concerto" in G minor, Op. 26, with a fine tone, good display of technic and ease of execution that was very surprising. Her second group comprised numbers by Schubert, Kreisler, d'Ambrosio. She gave a fine rendition of "The Bee," and the "Canzonetta" was exceptionally well done. The Kreisler number was played with an abandon that won her numberless recalls. Mr. Zukowsky has every reason to feel proud of her success.

H. W. P.

PUPIL OF THE HINSHAW CONSERVATORY APPEARS WITH BALL-MANN'S ORCHESTRA

Mr. Glen Stark, pupil of Marvin Hinshaw, appeared as principal soloist with Ballman's Orchestra and achieved an unusual success. Mr. Stark possesses a beautiful baritone voice which he uses with no little degree of art. He will go on a tour with the Hinshaw Light Opera Singers in Chautauqua during the coming summer, appearing in the "Mikado" and "Bohemian Girl."

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

26th Year

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

THE APOLLO CLUB

Monday evening, at Orchestra Hall, was gala in every respect.

There was a splendid audience, distinguished and enthusiastic. The program was distinctly novel and the musical forces employed were varied and of absolutely the highest possible quality.

Never has the Apollo Club sung with more convincing power and never have they been more warmly greeted.

The closing work was the setting of the "Forty-Seventh Psalm," by Florent Schmitt, this being the first performance of the work in the west.

With all due respect for the splendid preparation given this piece by Mr. Harrison Wild and the Club, and admitting that the public was interested in it as a novelty, it is yet the opinion of this writer that the work is utterly unworthy of the effort required to give it.

Some one said that it has a "flavor of Hebrew music." Possibly it may have, but its general effect is that of a scream from beginning to end on the part of the sopranos with an overlay of orchestral color thick, blatant and absolutely out of accord with the proper feeling for Biblical text.

FRANCES INGRAM

There may be "wonderful" harmonizations in it and "wonderful" color, but the fact remains that it is thoroughly unbeautiful and that the strain imposed upon the soprano section is distressing to listen to and must be thoroughly difficult for them to sustain.

That the work was done splendidly cannot be questioned, but that it is worth doing at all is a very open question.

Cowen's "The Veil," done at this concert for the first time in America, is quite a different story.

True, it also is very complicated and very difficult, but its complication and difficulty are those of a wonderfully clear mathematical problem, which, as it is unraveled, discloses itself to be of utter sanity and as translated by the Apollo Club to contain an abundance of beauty also.

LEONORA ALLEN

To begin with the text, by Robert Buchanan, is simply wonderful in its poetic suggestion and its sane adherence to the development of a beautiful idea.

The work as a whole is like a very intricate mosaic; full of beautiful patterns, most carefully shaded and colored and suffused always with lights and shade deftly employed.

In this mosaic the chorus has a wonderful part and in these numbers the Apollo Club rose again and again to climaxes of superlative power and wonder, while in many of the tinier bits ascribed to them there was a finish beyond compare.

The orchestra also rose to one beautiful expression after another and the music of this score flamed and paled alternately and at all times held to a charm of interpretation which was amazingly effective.

Mr. Edgar Nelson, at the organ again and again came into this wonderful play of tone and mood and always, absolutely correct in inflection and thought, while Mr. Wild, at the baton, held steadily to a reading which was all-embracing and all pervasive and which had back of it the most careful study and the most artistic impulse.

The soloists could not have been better chosen. All were from Chicago with one exception, the bass, and it is easy to think of a half dozen local artists who would have supplied his place with equal power and artistry.

Miss Leonora Allen, the young soprano who did such good work at an Apollo performance last year and who has distinguished herself repeatedly since that time, again made an excellent impression.

In the "Psalm" she treated the one solo division with great skill and accomplished with it all that any one could possibly hope from its impossible scoring.

In "The Veil" she had a much better opportunity and each solo bit assigned to her was delivered with rare intelligence and beauty.

EDGAR NELSON

Warren E. Proctor, a young Chicago singer whose rise has been a rapid one, appeared as tenor soloist and scored a complete success. Everyone was asking where this young man had kept himself hidden and everyone was predicting for him great successes in the future.

WARREN E. PROCTOR

His rendition of his one long solo was a model of elegance and in the elaborate duet with Miss Allen there was shown a display of vocal art and of artistic finish on the part of both singers which carried the number to a resounding success.

Frances Ingram, contralto, who first became known to Chicagoans through her good work as a member of the Chicago Grand Opera Company and who has made many distinguished successes since then, appeared as solo alto, singing the one big song with a wonderful dramatic power. This song describes the lament of a mother for the two children who have been taken from her and is built up amazingly like the famous "Cry of Rachel," by Salter, another song, by the way, which Miss Ingram has made peculiarly her own and which she sings with wonderful effect.

HARRISON WILD

On Monday the similar song in "The Veil" created a genuine sensation and at once placed the singer as among the best contraltos of the country. Particularly notable was the enunciation of the text.

Hazel Huntley, contralto, and Grant Kimbell, tenor, were utilized in some extremely difficult and correspondingly effective ensemble numbers and proved themselves wholly fine for the work.

Andrea Sarto sang the recitative-text assigned to bass voice with style and considerable beauty. To him fell the distinction of singing the one dull number of "The Veil," a descriptive piece of interminable length and maddeningly monotonous musical build.

C. E. W.

OUR COVER PAGE

The Music News today carries a very distinctive cover page and all its readers will be glad of the little taste thus provided of one of the charming songs by Celeste D. Heckscher, an American composer, who has risen to much distinction.

The Heckscher songs were sung by the late Lillian Nordica and are now in the repertoire of many of our most famous singers.

Mrs. Heckscher has distinguished herself by the composition of her remarkable suite, "The Dances of the Pyrenees," scored for full orchestra; by her suite for piano and violin, entitled, "To the Forest;" by her opera, "The Flight of Time," which promises to make a new standard for the progressive woman in music, and to force the world to recognize the fact that there is no sex in art or music.

Corrigan—Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano, will be soloist with the Ballmann Orchestra at Turner Hall on March 7 and on March 14 will appear again at the same place (in costume) in an act from "Martha."

Miami—At Miami, Fla., Mr. Irving Gingrich has just been appointed director of music in the First M. E. Church. On Easter he will present Caryl Florio's "The Easter King" with full orchestral accompaniment.

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, will be the soloist at the Lenten vesper service at Emmanuel Church, La Grange, on Sunday, February 28, at which time will be given Gounod's "Gallia."

COLUMBIA SCHOOL RECITAL

Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto artist-pupil of George Nelson Holt, and Mr. Arthur Oglesbee, pianist artist-pupil of Clara Osborne Reed, were presented in recital at the Columbia School Saturday evening, February 20. Mrs. Ver Haar has a contralto voice of excellent range and quality and she sings with good understanding. Her opening group comprised songs by Secchi, Leroux, Goring-Thomas, Scott and Hilton Turvey. "Lungi dal Caro bene" was given a splendid rendition. The Leroux number was sung with a fine color and flexibility of tone. "The Lullaby" was a good example of lyric singing, and the rendition of the "Prelude" left nothing to be desired. Mrs. Ver Haar in her second group gave songs by Johnson, Parkyns and Carpenter. "Songs for June," by Johnson, was a good example of breath control and legato singing. "To a Portrait" was very artistically done. Four songs by Carpenter completed the group. "May the Maiden," "The Sleep That Flits in Baby's Eyes" and "Light" were very effectively presented. Mrs. Ver Haar made all her numbers very interesting, and she should be heard more often in the concert field.

Arthur Oglesbee, pianist, strengthened the many good impressions he had made on previous occasions. He presented a Debussy "Prelude," Liszt "Soneto, del Petrarca," Chopin "Scherzo," Strauss-Schutt "Roses of the South." Mr. Oglesbee is a very serious-minded young man, with much musical talent and he should gain a fine place for himself if he continues along the same good line of study. His rendition was a splendid example of refined playing, and the tonal quality was all that it should be. The very popular "Roses of the South" was heard with much pleasure and he was accorded much sincere applause, as was Mrs. Ver Haar for her splendid singing. The school and teachers may feel justly proud of the work of the evening.

H. W. P.

Denton—Elsa Staud Denton will be soloist with the Ballmann Orchestra at Turner Hall on February 28 and again on March 14, when she will appear in "Martha" in costume.

Little Theater—The very successful "The Philanderer" has been revived and is being played this week at the Chicago Little Theater.

Gallup—Helen Gallup played accompaniments for Laura Earnist at the banquet of eighth grade teachers given at the Hotel La Salle last Friday.

Civic Music—Edna Gunnar Peterson will play at Hamilton Park and Eleanor Schieb at Holstein Park on Sunday at 3:30.

Allen—Miss Leonora Allen will sing at Sinai Temple on next Sunday evening.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
 Oratorio
 Concert
 Opera
 Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
 SOPRANO
 CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
 Voice Accompanying Coaching
 Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
 Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
 Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
 CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
 American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
 DRAMATIC SOPRANO
 609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
 Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
 DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
 PIANO INSTRUCTION
 Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
 CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
 Pianist and Teacher
 TECHNIC SPECIALIST
 Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
 CONTRALTO
 715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-
 Violinist Meyer
 Conservatory
 WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
 BARITONE
 Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
 4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
 Baritone
 TEACHER of SINGING
 American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
 Drexel
 3469)
 FINE ARTS BLDG. - FINE ARTS BLDG.
 CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - AUDITORIUM BLDG.
 WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL

LUCIA MAY SMITH
 CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
 7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
 SOPRANO
 5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
 CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
 1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHERINE D'ORSAY
 Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
 15 Auditorium - Merrick Bldg. - Phone Englewood 9748

The Elderly Person

It was at the Midway Gardens on one of the pleasant evenings last summer, and the occasion of the Lawyer's first visit to Frank Lloyd Wright's enduring monument of concrete and brick and steel. He had indulged in his usual propensity of holding in check too enthusiastic or too rash remarks of his comrade. Even in his recreations he retained his legal way of thinking and enjoyed as much tripping up the older boys of his present day with his keen "What do you mean by that?" as he had taken delight in putting his foot where a boy would be upset, when he wore jackets. He had decided that it was impossible to do two things well at the same time in spite of a mighty discussion about the subject, and so had withdrawn from the area of tables and dishes and waiters, to that quieter sphere nearer the orchestral shell and the party were awaiting the dignified arrival of Mr. Bendix along the esplanade and past the upright stands of boxed lights and wide flower bower.

As she passed by, the richness of her costume was conclusive, yet it was in the best of taste and her carriage and manner carried with them the indications that she had known such things always and was familiar with the accepted forms of culture and good form. And yet, as she reached the place where the Lawyer sat, she responded to the comment of the rather pompous man beside her: "Yep." And then it was noted that her hand was busy with a tooth-pick then in her mouth!

The Lawyer smiled sadly. "It is like a slap in the face," said he.

"But," said The Elderly Person, "it is a part of the change that is going on, and it is only old fellows, such as I, who shake their heads ominously and say that the times are out of joint, and find that many of these standards are attacked, and who have already seen any number of their most cherished memories of the things that were, crushed under the rampant rubber-tired wheels of the car of progress. Everything, from birthdays to funerals, is changed and not always for the better, my brother. Why should you be so distressed at the affected mannishness of that woman. Is her saying 'Yep' any worse than some of the other things she has learned to do? And don't men twirl tooth-picks even though they know it is bad form? Is her saying 'Yep' any more offensive than to see those younger women sitting there at the tables, and handling a stein of beer without turning a hair? When I was your age, this garden would be tabooed by 'our best people.' Ladies, I presume, were over-refined then. Certainly they were more restrained, and, if I may say so, had a sense of modesty that we thought attractive. The same good trait of sweetness and winsomeness are still in all women's souls, who have any sort of bringing up, but what we called modesty is gone."

"Very finely put," said the Lawyer, "especially that part about the rubber-tired car of progress. That exalts you to the head of the class. Of course times change and we have to learn to change with them. This is one of the times when I begin to see the veteran's light beckoning me from the distance. For I don't like it, and I shan't pretend to. It is coarse. It is not refined."

"Aha," said the Elderly Person, "you are becoming venerable. Don't you know that there are now no refined people, except those people who advertise 'Rooms for Rent,' and the people who advertise for furnished rooms?"

"Just the same," pursued the Lawyer, "the abuse of the word does not spoil its meaning or make it less valuable. There is no other trait that will take the place of refinement in women. We concede their other good points, but they do not measure up to our standards if they do not seek to free themselves from anything which coarsens them. I notice it in my family and you will see it in your second generation. The principle is as vital as right and wrong action. In all the progress upward the one controlling purpose of womankind has been to make themselves attractive, to be of finer grain, of more exacting sense of fitness, to sift and search for the essences of things and choose what will wear best. Men really want them that way. I believe with all my heart that the majority of men want a wife of that sort. It's all right for her to be a 'good fellow,' but he gets pretty tired of good fellowship and not much else, in a wife. And I maintain that modest women cannot force themselves to say, 'Yep,' and 'You bet,' and do and say some of the things we see and hear here."

"But," put in the Credit Man, "think how much more self-reliant they are. Girls can take care of themselves nowadays, just because of this freedom and the putting one side of that most excellent modesty of the days when all well-mannered young women dared scarcely speak above a whisper or to raise their eyes when addressed. Don't you think we have finer grades of womenkind because of this change? There are not so many clinging women nowadays. They don't all regard marriage as the end and aim of existence, and so they get some of the fun in things as they go along and are quite content, as well as aboundingly self-respecting."

"Sure," added the Organist, "but it is apt to tell in the long run and they are easily induced to use their freedom to delight in unconventionality. Young women in particular like extremes. If it is combs, each girl tries to get a bigger one, and to wear it in a more pronounced way. In her effort to be different, she becomes exaggerated. These narrow skirts—they are all right and quite lissome for slender women. But the plumper the woman, the tighter the skirt. And so they make themselves ridiculous and, without intending to do so, they are really immodest. Is that what you call lack of refinement?"

L. DREW MOSHER
 TENOR—Teacher of Singing
 137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

"We were talking of that the other day," said the Parson, "and my mother, to my surprise, defended the present acceptance of extreme fashions. Said it had always been so, and women couldn't help following the general trend of dictated costume, and that while there were conservatives who modified the style and made it becoming, there were plenty of the other kind who did only what they saw other women do, or what they were told to do. Then she referred to the day of the 'Jerseys.' Some of you degenerate fellows go to vaudeville, and have seen Mrs. Langtry in her maturity. But when she was very young, her beauty was so pronounced that she was included in the Prince of Wales' set in London, became the rage, and was called the 'Jersey Lilly,' Lilly being her name and the Isle of Jersey her birthplace. She affected an outer garment which was christened the 'jersey.' It was very much like the sweaters the Credit Man uses when he plays football—pulls over the head and fits snugly to the frame. It was of course of fine material like woven silk threads. Mother said that there was never a fashion which became so universal. Like wildfire it spread from palace to laundry. Plump ladies used to give the impression that they had been melted and poured into the garment—so tight and all compelling was the effect. And they always looked hot, and breathless, and uncomfortable—but confidently complacent that they were in the style."

"My grandmother wouldn't wear one," said the Organist. "She said grandmother's had rights and observed them. I don't know what she would say nowadays when there don't seem to be any grandmothers of her sort. Those of this generation are all tangoing and playing bridge for blood. The family darning which has always been a grandmotherly perquisite is done by machinery, at the laundry, and the fine art of knitting is gone. Sometimes I wonder if it is all right. I don't like to see an old lady too lively."

"Oh! boys, boys, but you are getting in deep," said the Elderly Person. "You are talking around and around in a circle, like all lost men. You may believe that you are striking a new vein of thought, but you are just where we've always been when we discuss the eternal feminine. And grandmothers are just as hard to understand as are girl babies, or sweethearts, as the Credit Man will find the day he takes the final but inevitable plunge. The continual mystery is part of the fascination and it will make him flutter around the lamp until he gets his well-seasoned bachelor wings badly singed. Then he will burn them off all together and submit to the harness. Speaking of grandmothers, in parenthesis, you need only to think back to the one who was grandmother to half of Europe—Queen Victoria, and her costumes. The pictures we have been shown of her in her royal regalia, have certainly given liberal display. For a woman who laid such stress upon conventional conduct she was about as inconsistent as they are to be found. To her last drawing-room day she affected the costume that was becoming to her in her girlhood. And she exacted the same obedience from all who sought her royal presence. To be presented at court, every woman, no matter what her age or physical appearance, must wear the prescribed very décolleté gown. It was said that she seldom heeded the name called out, or the personality offered. Her eyes sought only the details of the costume, and only those persons who offended were remembered. But she is only one of the many. Women have always done what they wanted to in costume, conversation and several other things, and been able readily to reconcile themselves to their attitude. Be sure there is some good reason for it always, even though it be not easily defined, and don't be too particular about discovering it. 'Because' is just as good as any other one. And now comes Mr. Bendix, in his grave and serious manner, quite different from the impetuous young fellow I heard play 'Walter's Prize Song' in the old Exposition building thirty years ago. And I see that quite appropriately he will open proceedings with the March from the 'Queen of Sheba.' According to Mr. Gounod's interpretation of the Biblical story, she had some designs upon the wisest man who ever lived. And by all the pomp and circumstance of this march, where she made quite a pageant of her entry, she knew the value of a good impression. My memory of the libretto is a little hazy and I don't know how Solomon came out. But, experienced as he was, she probably gave him something to think about."

"Behold! The oracle hath spoken!" drawled the Lawyer, laconically.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

"TANNHAUSER" AT FULLERTON HALL

The usual splendid audience was in attendance at Fullerton Hall on last Sunday evening, and Miss Weber certainly gave something well worth coming for. Her general remarks about Wagner were illuminative and the specific talk on "Tannhauser" was fascinating.

Miss Lucille Stevenson sang "Elizabeth's Prayer" with the most superb art. It is difficult to imagine any one doing this particular number better and the power to give such a presentation of such a song certainly ranks this singer at the very top of the profession.

Mr. Marion Green, also very much of a favorite at Fullerton Hall, was extremely well liked in "The Evening Star."

The usual quartet of players gave some unusually good instrumental numbers, the "March," the "Pilgrim's Chorus," etc., being notable, while an entirely gala feeling was given to the whole evening through the fact that Mr. Guy La Belle, pianist, had been especially engaged, and, together with Miss Weber, gave a duet reading of the famous "Overture," which further enriched by the splendid playing of Fritz Itte, violin; Carl Klammeister, 'cello, and Carl Hillman, viola, became a thing of striking beauty and power.

Mr. La Belle is a fine young musician, with splendid pianistic abilities, and in combination with Miss Weber, played the "Overture" with great effect.

C. E. W.

Mixer—Charles Mixer, violinist; Irene Cook, soprano; Laurine Beaumont, reader, and Aletto Tenold, pianist, gave a program at the Eleanor Social Center Sunday afternoon, February 21.

CHICAGO MALE QUARTET SINGS AT OAK PARK M. E. CHURCH

The congregation which assembled in Oak Park M. E. Church on Sunday afternoon, February 21, for the regular vesper service were given a rare musical treat through the singing furnished by the Chicago Male Quartet, which is made up with T. A. Fannell, tenor; John G. Hedgecoxe, tenor; Frank H. Collins, baritone, and W. O. Smith, basso, which had been engaged to join forces with the regular church quartet, composed of Adelaide Brown Tenney, soprano; Esther Muenstermann, contralto; George Lee Tenney, tenor, and Frank H. Collins, baritone, in the giving of a special praise service.

This male quartet is widely known throughout the country as one of the most efficient organizations of this type now before the public. They are winning continued success on their many tours this season and the above named church may well feel fortunate in having them in a service such as was given on last Sunday.

In a long and varied list of numbers the quartet displayed that beautifully blending of tonal quality and perfection of ensemble for which their work is noted. Hoyt's "Chant" of the Lord's Prayer was rendered with fine finish and appropriateness, and the "Evening Song," Naater, was a charming contribution to the order of service. "Beautiful Land," by Havens, brought forth some of their most beautiful singing of the afternoon. "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by Koschat, proved to be a very grateful number for the display of their attainments, as was Buck's "Lead Kindly Light," this proving to be one of their most inspiring offerings. Brahms' beautiful "Lullaby" was as delicate and caressing as could possibly be imagined, and brought forth in an excellent light that exquisite soft tone quality which comes only from four male voices. The "Four Leaf Clover," by Brownell, displayed the excellent baritone voice of Mr. Collins to good advantage in a short obligato part. The clear ringing tenor voice of Mr. Fannell, which rounds out the top of their accordant singing, was heard with telling effect in "Beautiful Isle," by Fearis, which is always welcome on any program. "Golden Bells," by Marbelle-Smith, and "Still, Still with Thee," Garrish, completed the offerings from the quartet.

Two members of the organization, however, sang solos which were a welcome addition to the list of good things. Mr. Hedgecoxe sang with good voice and a convincing amount of assurance, "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace," by Buck, and Mr. Smith, with his sturdy, resonant and deep bass voice, sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," work in good style. The church quartet sang "The Lost Sheep" by Foster as offertory music, and again four splendid voices were heard. The solo equipment of each is well known and their efficiency as a church quartet is likewise well known.

Miss Ruth Simmons was at the organ and played the most satisfactory accompaniments for the soloists and offertory anthem and played with inspiring effect an "Intermezzo" by Bird for the prelude, and closed the service with a masterful reading of the "Marche en Fete" by Clausman.

H. M. B.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR, Concerts Recital, Oratorio
Wolfson Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA
From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS
Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfson Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

ETHEL LEGINSKA, SOLOIST WITH THE NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Every variety of pianist is with us today. The streets swarm with pianists, the woods are full of them (woods in the extreme literal sense); and while the mechanical piano-player is heard the length and breadth of the land, the human article mechanical as the Angelon or Seraphon or heaven-kissing as the lark in ether, is recitalling in theater, hall or opera house. A recapitulation would make one's head swim, so the list will not be published here.

This condition of affairs conceded and the glut of pianists noted, it is still exceedingly reassuring to realize that there are a few pianists so magnetic that they draw their own audiences no matter what counter-attraction may be holding forth.

Now, Sunday afternoon, February 14, was neither a day of sunshine nor blue skies in the Union's metropolis, and John McCormack, amiable Irish tenor, was drawing a large Irish contingent to Carnegie Hall; yet Aeolian Hall seemed to be the mecca for a considerably increasing body of pilgrims.

A prima donna may vocalize or do her stunts at a concert grand. The prima donna is the thing. Therefore let me state that Ethel Leginska was the conquering lady responsible for the surging throng that stormed Aeolian's Forty-third street fortress.

If vox populi is vox dei there was ample justification on Sunday; for Ethel Leginska played as if possessed by the devil himself; and with a hair-raising verve and power; an almost infernal accuracy of tone-correctness, rhythm and balance, with not a rubato unacceptable to the gods of musical subtlety; (and be sure that to know when to make a rubato is a form of subtlety that helps to deify an artist in the hearer's mind.)

She has them all: Diamond-like brilliancy and spontaneity; the art concealing art—ingratiating, suavity, force and fire, and the self-knowledge of a close applicant to the constant and careful study of her art; who realizes that not to practice constant vigilance is to court the lingering death of the malingering.

The New York Symphony Orchestra with suave, benign Walter Damrosch wielding the baton, and Alexander Saslavsky marshaling the choirs generally, and the strings in particular, felt the inspiration of her tremendous fervor, and together with her, they attacked the by no means indifferent difficulties of Father Franz Liszt's blood-tingling "Hungarian Fantasia" and delivered their harmonic allocation with such sublimely concerted action and perfection of musical finish and execution, that the audience expended itself in thundering salvos, and the bijou-like Leginska in her black panne velvet boyish soutane, with boyish vest and collar, and boyishly-coiffured rebellious locks, simply had to come more times than this scribe can count, and bob her young head.

The program brought together a variety of compositions of the extreme Terpsichorean kinds. Bizet's "Carmen" Dances—veritable tarantula twirls and whirls—cheek by jowl with Slavonic Dances by Dvorak, and the more sedate Dances of Norwegian Grieg; Berlioz's riotous "Roman Carnival," and Chabrier's tempestuous, maddening "Rhapsody Espana."

I left before the Beethoven "Polonaise" and so missed the Percy Grainger numbers with that blond, young Australian at the piano. But to sum up in a word: Conductor, orchestra and Leginska did themselves proud.

Christine Miller in Dual Recital with George Hamlin

There seems to be no end to the pleasant surprises Christine Miller prepares for her friends and her audiences.

She diffused an exquisite aura of spring—a charm of personality the other day, when she illumined the platform of Aeolian Hall by her presence in the recital of the afternoon of February 16, vying with the brightness outside in her raiment which could not help reminding us of the regal draperies of an Oriental princess; so subtly rich was the pink of her gown in its sheathings of silver embroideries upon silver net; her charming head tipped by a dainty black hat, with black paradise plumes coquettishly nodding in the very front.

Miss Miller appeared to be in excellent mood and that's half the battle won; she tripped in so archly when the door of the wall at the back of the stage opened to let her face her public. Her personality lent itself admirably to the hour, the place and the people; and she charmed one and all by her grace, as well as the evident delight she took in sharing with her audience her art. In depicting the quasi-tragedy of the gadding ladybug whose woes were pitiful as those of Gulliver in Brobdingnag; the sweetly-flowing "Liebeslied" of Schumann, which she sang with much sentiment, and

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

the deeply emotional "Dank des Paria," by Hugo Wolf.

Miss Miller was at her very finest vocally and in the nuance of interpretation in Richard Strauss' "Mit deinen blauen Augen," and Mahler's care-free, nonchalant "Hans und Grethe" went with saucy vim and dash, bringing a small storm of hand-claps and an encore.

The contralto was delightful in her English songs, a varied group of five; one a "Nocturne," by A. Walter Kramer, dedicated to Miss Miller, who felt her composer's inspiration.

Miss Miller was heard with the tenor at the beginning of the program in two duets by Schubert; also in duets by Robert Kahn, Saint-Saens and Brahms. Miss Miller's voice is rounder and fuller, and it should not be an impossibility for her creditably to sing certain vocal compositions of more ambitious content, some of these early days.

Mr. Hamlin was heard in several groups, notably an all-Strauss group with which he appeared to find himself somewhat at odds. His voice sounded angular and "Wuellnerian" (probably he has coached with the devoted Wuellnerian accompanist von Bos, who presided at the piano a la soloist). The lack of subtlety in Bos' playing seemed reflected in Mr. Hamlin's work.

To some of us it seems a mistake to rely upon the nose as an instrument of resonance. Perhaps if Mr. Hamlin overlooked the nose (no joke intended—of course I never was more serious in my life) his struggles with his upper tones would not be so painful; his vocal apparatus might cease creating the impression of an instrument of percussion, and he would be enabled to use his voice,—not intrusively in a series of badly matched tones,—but as a medium of interpretation and expression.

However, what's the difference? The audience liked him and applauded him, and the nose is much interrogated by certain schools of singing. If you are equipped with the needful, you pay your money and take your choice.

Much to the indignation of some of Hamlin's admirers, I still maintain that Bonci is good enough for me.

The entire program of this recital appeared in the last issue of Music News.

Monster Benefit at the Hippodrome

This great auditorium on the evening of February 14 was crowded from pit to dome to hear the concert for the fund of the Police Band, so eminently well-conducted by Chester Smith, and which knows more about sound, classic music than the citizens of this borough probably suspect.

At all events the band seemed to know well the numbers on its program, and Mr. Smith, its conductor, swung his baton as one familiar with the great or small wares of the composers of past and present.

Many famous names were on that program, and much applause was bestowed. Among the artists well known in the musical world taking part were: Orville Harold, tenor; George Dostal, the tenor of the high lyric voice who made a hit with the people; Alfred Kaufman, primo basso of the Century Opera Company, who sang superbly; Lucile Orrell, the young and charming 'cellist, and Marie Narelle, who

(Continued on page 22)

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway

NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist

STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

People & Events

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

The musicians' dinner, February 11, at Elks Club was the annual "getting together" of musicians and music lovers for a merry time. Mr. Willard H. Patton is the prime mover in this, now, annual event and the great success is due to his enthusiasm and tireless energy in preparing and carrying out the program. When the two hundred and fifty guests were seated all joined in the singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," led by a double quartet and Miss Edwina Wainman at the piano, and it was a rousing opening, after which a splendid dinner was served and there was a general adjournment to the auditorium of the club where the entertainment took place. A burlesque on "The Rubaiyat" entitled "In a Cushion Garden" was very clever and exceedingly well done. Another interesting feature was the singing of the prize song based on the words of Bayard Taylor's poem "From the Desert I Come to Thee." It was sung in fine spirit by Francis Rosenthal and the name of the composer, secret up to this time, was announced in the person of Mrs. George Ransom.

Audience and actors entered into the general good fellowship and it was the kind of an event we have all too few of. Minneapolis musicians are indeed fortunate in having this annual event to look forward to.

Ninth symphony concert, Friday evening,

February 12. Cornelius Van Vliet, 'cellist, soloist. Program following:

Overture to "Euryanthe".....Weber
Symphony No. 2, "New England," in B flat minor,
Op. 33.....Edgar Stillman Kelley
Lento maestoso
Allegro appassionato
Larghetto misterioso
Andantino pastorale
Lento ma non troppo
Moderato molto
Allegro con fuoco
Concerto for Violoncello, in D minor.....Lalo
Prelude; lento-allegro maestoso
Intermezzo, andante con moto—Allegro presto
Rondo andante
Allegro vivace

The Overture to "Euryanthe," a delightful composition and from Weber's most ambitious work, has a sharp active rhythm with abrupt changes from strength and power to last minute. Many thanks are due the management for arranging to have Mr. Van Vliet play at this time and he was in excellent form, never appearing to better advantage, fully meriting the ovation tendered him, to which he responded graciously with a most exquisite "Wiegenlied," composed by Richard Czerwonky, concertmaster of the orchestra, and any amount of credit is due both composer and performer for such a perfect pleasure as this piece offered. The accompaniment of the orchestra was far above any criticism and the audience was rewarded with this work for its patience through the symphony.

MILDRED POTTER

Sunday, February 14, one of the greatest treats of the season. "Samson and Delilah" by Philharmonic Club and Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Oberhoffer's direction, with Miss Mildred Potter singing "Delilah," Dr. Edmond Kraus, "Samson," Marion Green, the "High Priest," and Francis Rosenthal, "Abimelech" and the "Old Hebrew." This masterpiece of Saint-Saens, exotic and full of a wondrous power to enthrall, was never more beautifully interpreted. The audience was spell bound from beginning to end and at every possible pause an ovation was tendered the performers and director. It was the most entirely genuine enthusiasm anyone could wish for. The chorus was in excellent form and gave its varied parts with wonderful expression, conveying to the listener the deep religious mood as well as the spirit of flowers and sparkling streams. The final climax of disaster reached in the tremendous "Ho!" when the temple collapses was a veritable shriek of terror uttered as a single gigantic voice.

Miss Potter, well known as a St. Paul girl, was the center of attraction of her many friends and although they have always been proud of her, she seemed to rise like one inspired in this performance and her glorious contralto voice, which today has no superior on the concert stage, answered every requirement of this exacting dramatic role. No scenery or costume was needed and even in the climax of the acts which usually fall far short of the play form there was superb action. Miss Potter's singing fulfilled every desire for the part and every tone of her golden voice was pure delight.

Dr. Kraus, a recent addition to Minneapolis musical circles, from Europe, was engaged to sing the role of Samson on short notice and sang it in French, although the other solo parts and choruses were sung in English. Strange as it may seem, this really enhanced the performance. Dr. Kraus is of French and Russian extraction and thoroughly dramatic. He made the character stand aloof and apart and sang it in a virile artistic manner that carried it straight to the heart. His voice and acting are excellent in every mood and he swept his auditors to a frenzy of applause.

Marion Green's resonant musical baritone fulfilled the exacting demands of the role of Dagon, the High Priest.

Francis Rosenthal, the well known St. Paul basso, made a big impression with a most artistic rendering of the two roles, Abimelech and the Old Hebrew, and the beautiful quality of his voice showed especially well in the blending with Dr. Kraus and Miss Potter at the end of the first act. It was a tremendous offering in every way and the echo of its glory should remain with us to compensate us for the time the orchestra is away on its tour.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST
Kimball Hall
Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON
JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST
81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER
Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler
Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue
ORATORIO SONG RECITAL PUPILS

NORA LORAIN OLIN VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER
MARGARET Soprano
WILLIAM Composer
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON
CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

delicacy and ending in a brilliant fortissimo. The New England Symphony appears on first hearing to be tremendously technical and very mediocre. A jumbled mess of things heard before and reassembled to their disadvantage in a long tiresome unfolding. The orchestration is too complex, most of the time to follow with interest. The third movement with the introduction of an old New England hymn being the one understandable theme and it was rather too "lamentoso." One solid hour of lament is hard on even sturdy American systems when they are out for enjoyment and the applause from the audience on this occasion was half hearted and came at the end of the symphony and savored more of admiration for the endurance of the musicians than of pleasure in the work.

A very delightful contrast was the grand Lalo Concerto which we were disappointed in not hearing some weeks ago when Mr. Van Vliet received injuries to his hand which prevented him from playing at the Sunday evening, February 14, the Arpi Male Chorus gave their second concert at the Auditorium. This is an excellent organization composed of unusual voices. Oscar Anderson, having as pure a tenor as we have ever heard, gives prominence to his section. Albert Lindquest added to the already high opinion we entertain for him. This chorus has a very efficient director in the person of Hjalmar Nilsson, under whose supervision it has risen to the front rank of Scandinavian choruses. His daughter, Christine Nilsson Clindblom, now of Chicago, acted as accompanist and also appeared to decided advantage as a soloist.

Wednesday afternoon, February 17, Mrs. J. S. Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Mitchell, gave a delightful reception at their home on Irving avenue for Victor Heinze of Chicago, recently arrived from Berlin, where Miss Mitchell was a student of the piano with him. Miss Hedwig Glomb of Pittsburgh, another pupil and a very delightful young girl, showed unusual intelligence and artistry in her playing of "Toccatina and Fugue D Minor" (Bach-Tausig), "F Minor Ballade" (Chopin), "Lindenbaum" (Schubert-Liszt), "Humoresque" (Hugo Kaun), and "Segestade" (Smetana). Mr. Heinze is to be congratulated upon the work of this very promising young student.

The Thursday Musical Club gave a program of American composers, February 18, the most entertaining feature of which was a group of Creole Songs by Clara Peterson and W. T. Francis, sung by Mrs. Ralph B. Ellis. A group of three songs by Beach, Foote and Chadwick, sung by a quartet composed of Miss Chadbourne, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. M. V. Farmer and Miss Florence Earle, was also very good and very interesting.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

BETWEEN OCTOBER 5 AND FEBRUARY 10

Jenny Dufau began her concert tour on October 5. She sang forty-two concerts between October 5 and February 10 in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Kansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Texas, Iowa, Wisconsin, New York.

Out of forty-two appearances she received eighteen return engagements. As many clubs and local managers cannot present the same artist two consecutive seasons, Miss Dufau's record can be said to be an excellent one, especially as it is her first season in concert, and we are only in February.

Her engagements of importance for the immediate future include Columbus, Ohio, in joint recital with Katherine Goodson.

Northwestern Glee Club—The Northwestern University Glee Club, under direction of Alfred G. Wathall, with Messrs. Eastwood, Riley, Moser and Barker as soloists, gave a successful concert at Warren Avenue Congregational Church last Thursday evening.

American Conservatory—Walton Pyre, the head of the dramatic department of the American Conservatory, will present his pupils in the well-known play, "The Servant in the House," Friday evening, February 26, at Kimball Hall.

LA SALLE COUNTY MUSIC TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

A banquet was given at the First M. E. Church in Ottawa, Ill., on February 15, which was attended by a great many members and was a pronounced success. The following very novel program was carried through with great success:

MENU

"The beginning is half of the whole, and we all praise a good beginning."—Plato.
Medley, a capella Chop-in Concerto (pour coup de langue) Foote
(a) Warm et tendre.
(b) Grave
(c) Delicato

Irish Pastorale, a la Root
ppp—"With Verdue Clad" High-den
"Tis but a Little Faded Flour" (Op. 299) C. Churn-ly

With Obligato

Novelettes, in double sharps, a la Sauer
Tema dolce Scarlat-ti
"Salut d'Amour" Th. Cool-ack
Suite de Pieces Mendel's-Son
Coda Vivace, a la Ruben's Stein

PROGRAM

Toastmaster, Raymond Burkholder
March Militaire Schubert
Valse de la Reine Coleridge-Taylor

La Scala Quintet

Miss Carrie Lewis, first violin
Miss Evelyn Barry, second violin
Miss Katherine Lincoln, viola
Herbert Weis, cello

Miss Mildred Keeler, pianist

Words of Welcome—Altruism in Music

Mrs. W. C. Paisley

"Gin a body greet a body."—Scotch ballad.

Student Life Abroad

Cleveland Bohnet

"My bonnie is over the ocean,

My bonnie is over the sea."

—Old Classic

A Star Rogers

"My Heart Is a Lute" Woodman

A Birthday Woodman

Miss Lena Landes

Accompanist—Miss Dorothy Mulford

The Organist and Choirmaster

Mrs. A. H. Bell

"Those evening bells,

How many a tale their music tells."

—Swedish Song.

The Mission of Music

Mrs. J. A. Curry

"As long as the heart has passions,

As long as the heart has woes."

—Longfellow.

"Gae to Sleep" Wm. Arne Fisher

"Ho, Ye Warriors on the War Path" Cadman

"The Thunderbirds Come from the Cedars" Cadman

Mrs. W. G. Foster

Accompanist—Mr. Bohnet

The Movement in Behalf of American Music and

Musicians—The Standardization of Music Teaching

Dr. John J. Hattstaedt

(President of the American Conservatory of Music,

Chicago)

"Oh, to think of it! Oh, to dream of it."—The Kerry Dance.

Mazurka Olsen

Bohemienne Coleridge-Taylor

La Scala Quintet

The Ottawa "Free Trader" had a two column review of the event from which the following is taken:

The speaker of the evening was Dr. John J. Hattstaedt, president of the American Conservatory of Music, of Chicago. He traced the development of musical taste in Chicago, which also includes the middle west, for the past forty years, calling attention to the very different receptions accorded artists today from those received by Rubinstein, Wieniawski and Von Bülow some years ago. He gave great credit for unselfish work along these lines to such men as S. G. Pratt, Emil Liebling and W. H. Sherwood, and others of their time. Of American composers he held the opinion that they are as yet in their infancy, especially in the operatic field, although a number of exceedingly creditable programs are now being given consisting of the works of American composers. But the American teachers, he said, were surely second to none to be found in Europe or elsewhere. And he spoke of the great influx of foreign musicians which must result from the war and the consequent stagnation of things musical in Europe. On the "Standardization of Music Teaching," the well known teacher believed that was a thing to be brought about by the natural course of events and education, and could not be successfully accomplished by the laws on the subject which are being proposed and even enacted in some states.

— # # # —

SIDNEY SILBER AT WAHOO

The Wahoo (Neb.) Press speaks as follows of the piano playing of Sidney Silber of the University School of Music at Lincoln:

The first artist series pianoforte recital given by Sidney Silber at the Wahoo Opera House last Tuesday evening, was a rare treat to the music-loving people of Wahoo. Despite the inclement weather, quite a fair-sized crowd attended, and all were well rewarded, Mr. Silber receiving numerous encores. The pianoforte recital was given under the direction of Mr. Matthew Lundquist of Luther College School of Music, whose tireless efforts for the uplift of young musical students in this community is well known to the people of Wahoo. (Advertisement.)

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 203

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

BARITONE
Concerts Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calomet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

TENOR
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 19)

roused the auditors to enthusiasm with her singing of "O'Donnell Aboo" and "Die Allmacht," of Schubert; this latter having the accompaniment of an organ played by Mme. Abbie S. Fridenberg.

Mrs. Heckscher's "Norse Maiden's Lament" was her encore. S. F. G.

h h h

Miss Pelton-Jones at the Harpsichord

Marie Antoinette adorned in queenly splendor with green brocaded satin gown, and jewels rare, and strings of pearls; white coiffure of puffs and curls, with a truly period hat and a basket of splendid roses, greeted a crowded audience in a hall of the Waldorf-Astoria on the afternoon of February 19, and fairly took her audience by storm, so vraisemblable was the person, and the scene—a stage converted into a boudoir, with rows of candlesticks with their burning tapers, tall palms and potted plants, and tapestries that might have hung in Trianon.

Enter one Paul Dufault—the chevalier Gluck for the nonce—who offers the gorgeous queen his latest opera score, and sings for her the aria from "Alceste," "Allez éloignez vous de moi."

Before this song the royal personage at her very full-toned harpsichord has played some numbers to perfection.

This scene was part of the second part of the program of this unique entertainment. The first part disclosed an Elizabethan environment with Miss Pelton-Jones as Queen Elizabeth, all bedight in white satin robe and gold embroideries with cap of pearls and long net veil attached. Here again Mr. Dufault completed the scene as an English court singer.

Miss Pelton-Jones played her quaint and appealing instrument tunefully and with affection. She was in spirited form and demonstrated unerringly the various moods of her varied selections.

Mr. Dufault sang pleasingly and a charming young girl, Miss Holden, danced most charmingly in the scene of Marie Antoinette and Chevalier Gluck. The program follows:

Sellinger's Round.....	William Byrde (1538)
(Oldest village dance) harmonized and arranged for Queen Elizabeth)
The King's Hunting Jigg.....	Dr. John Bull (1563)
Greensleeves.....	Old English Folk Song
	Miss Pelton-Jones
Come unto these Yellow Sands.....	Henry Purcell (1658)
Oh Willow, Willow.....
.....Melody from Thomas Dallis's Lute Book (1583)
Sigh No More, Ladies.....	Sixteenth Century Melody
	Mr. Dufault
Have You Seen but a Whyte Lillie Grow.....
	Anonymous (1614)
Air and Variations in E (Harmonious Blacksmith)
	Haendel (1685)
Theme from "Rinaldo".....	Haendel (1685)
Pastoral.....	Archangel Corelli (1653)
Gavotte in A (from "Iphigenie in Aulis").....
	Gluck (1714)
Gigue.....	Jean Baptiste Loeillet (1670)
	Miss Pelton Jones
Recitatif et Aria from "Alceste".....	Gluck (1714)
	Mr. Dufault
Pavane.....	Lully (1633)
Rigauden.....	Rameau (1683)
	Miss Holden

h h h

Mr. Burnham to Play in New York

On the afternoon of March 9, in the Princess Theater, Mr. Thuel Burnham will be heard in a benefit concert for a great and deserving cause. The assisting artists have not yet been announced; but Mr. Burnham has consented to play.

The magnetic young pianist has been touring various states in the Union, with re-engagements keeping him busy until the late spring. Mr. Burnham's recent Boston recital was a sensational success, and his future appearances are looked forward to eagerly, as he has many friends and admirers in America's city of brains as well as beans.

h h h

Concert of People's Symphony Orchestra

Carnegie Hall is the mecca of the proletariat, and Franz Arens, a cherished idol, because he puts programs of sterling worth before the classes not overburdened with coin of the realm, and makes the price of admission fit the not too expanded purse.

And soloists of the first rank are glad to give gratuitously of their art, to encourage the laboring classes in the acquisition of a taste for good music, and the opportunity of enjoying it.

The evening of February 20 proved especially interesting in the orchestral numbers and the soloists.

Miss Laeta Hartley played the divinely free, forceful, yet coy and baffling "Concerto in B Flat Major," by Tschaiakowsky, the orchestra affording the enviroing tapestry of glorious sound.

Who shall say whether any pianist has succeeded entirely in conquering this titanic concerto, demanding the power and abandon of a giant in music, comprehension and culture, with the divine afflatus of a boundless love—the flaming of an ever-new fire; the large outlook and prescience of a god?

Miss Laeta Hartley brought the love and a desire to interpret the Tschaiakowsky message to her eager audience, and the impression of her own work and that of the orchestra brought tremendous applause from the audience.

Mr. William Wade Hinshaw, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera House, made a great hit with his delivery of Hans Sachs' noble monolog from Wagner's "Meistersinger." Notwithstanding a heavy cold, Mr. Hinshaw delivered the long, difficult and taxing soliloquy with commendable courage, intrepidity and intelligent conception. "Wahn, Wahn, Ueberall Wahn" Mr. Hinshaw made the cobbler's intense thought crystal clear. He, too, was recalled several times.

The remaining numbers included Wagner's "Traeume," Carl Goldmark's "Sakuntala," an "In Memoriam" number, and Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

h h h

It is a pity that in these days of scarcity of really great artists Mr. Alfred Kaufman, a basso of parts and personality, should not be singing at the Metropolitan Opera House.

h h h

Miss Alice Verlet, charming French soprano, will give a recital in Carnegie Hall on March 4.

h h h

On the evening of March 6 Miss Ethel Leginska will be the soloist of the fifth chamber concert of the People's Orchestra. The program will also include the fine Dvorak "Quintet," Op. 81, played by the Olive Mead Quartet, with Mrs. John R. MacArthur at the piano. Mr. Frank X. Arens will deliver his fifth lecture on "Musical Form." This promises to be a notable musical function.

h h h

Mr. William Wade Hinshaw will give a recital in Carnegie Hall on the afternoon of March 4.

h h h

Orchard School—A faculty concert will be given at the Orchard School at 1533 Hyde Park boulevard, on Tuesday evening, March 2, by Olene Wallis, Zula Zeigler, Jessie Nichols-Baldwin, Jessie De Vore, Walter Brauer and Mrs. Orchard.

h h h

Hatswell-Bowman—Gladys Holmes, a pupil of Mrs. Hatswell-Bowman, sang at a "Kansas" banquet given at the Auditorium on Monday.

A FINE EASTER SONG

In His Pity He Redeemed Us ^{3 Keys--G, F, Eb} Special price 25c
(Fifty Cents)

THE FABLE---Piano solo for left hand alone. An excellent pedal piece, with beautiful melodies, outlined by a story (65c). Special price - - - - - 33c
(At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.)

By ISABEL STEWART-NORTH PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athernaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

IRVING PARK ORCHESTRA

The series of orchestra concerts in Irving Park at the Myrtle Masonic Temple is making many hearts glad with the splendid programs presented there during the season. You can hear people asking, "Are you coming next year?" "Yes—are you?" And it certainly should make those who have made these concerts possible feel that life is worth living when people take as much interest as they have in Irving Park. Mr. George Dasch and his men have presented some excellent programs, and the Philharmonic Quartet came in for a share of the good things presented. The program Friday evening, February 19, might be called popular, but it contained nothing that hasn't been accepted and the various numbers were received with great enthusiasm. The opening number of the program was the "Peet and Peasant Overture" (Suppe), and "The Dancing Doll" (Poldini) played as an encore, were greatly enjoyed. The Strauss "Blue Danube Waltz" was given a splendid presentation. The soloist of the evening was Alexander Zukowsky, violinist. Mr. Zukowsky has long since taken his place among the solo violinists of Chicago, and if one may judge from the applause accorded him on this occasion it is safe to say it is a merited one. This rendition of the Sarasate "Zigeunerweisen" was played with a great display of artistry. Mr. Zukowsky in his second group gave numbers by Kreisler, Wieniawsky and Mendelssohn. He draws a tone of great beauty from his instrument, and he plays with such ease that it is a genuine pleasure to hear him in everything he chose to present. The Bach air and the "Menuet" (Handel) for the string orchestra were very attractively done. The arrangement of the "Menuet" for orchestra was especially good. The well known melodies from "Faust" were played with a fine style and vigor that was very effective. The "Melody in F" (Rubinstein) and the overture "Orpheus" (Offenbach) were the closing numbers of the pleasant evening of music. Mr. Dasch is a conductor with a great deal of ability and he has a splendid musicianship, attractive personality and a stage presence that is very attractive. He is a force to be considered in the field of conductors.

H. W. P.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Organ recital numbers for next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Irving C. Hancock, organist and choirmaster, are as follows:

Festival March in D Major.....Henry Smart
 In Summer (Sketch).....Ch. A. Stebbins
 Toccata in F.....Ch. M. Widor
 From the Land of the Sky Blue Water.....Cadman-Eddy

Sunday afternoon, March 7, the combined choirs of Christ's Church, Woodlawn, Church of the Redeemer and Trinity Choir, all men and boys, will sing Stainer's "Crucifixion" at Trinity at 4 o'clock, Indiana avenue, South Side elevated or Cottage Grove cars to Twenty-sixth street and Michigan avenue.

NELLE DAMUTH MACDONALD

Mrs. MacDonald appeared as soloist at the Ravenswood M. E. Church on last Sunday, singing Campion's "Ninety and Nine," a work of great beauty which she has sung

Leginska PIANIST

Has been engaged for FIVE appearances as soloist with the
NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
 Walter Damrosch, Orchestra
 Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York City.

in fifteen different churches and has made very especially her own.

On February 25 she sang in duet with her husband, R. Clare MacDonald, the number being "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me" (Pontius).

On March 4 Mrs. MacDonald will appear jointly with Miss Edna Whitmore, pianist and accompanist, at a musicale at the home of Mrs. George Fupalis and on the 23rd will give a recital at the Fowler M. E. Church.

Cosmopolitan School—A pupils' recital will be given by the Cosmopolitan School of Music at Recital Hall, Auditorium building, on Saturday, February 27, at 3 o'clock.

ANNA GROFF BRYANT

The pupils of Anna Groff Bryant at the Vocal Art Institute of Lombard College are already demonstrating the excellent work of Anna Groff Bryant wherever found. The week end was given over to F. D. R. A. B. M.—O. T.—Festivities. On Saturday afternoon a dramatic recital was given by the dramatic pupils of the Vocal Art Studios. The program was Ruth Brown, "Seguidilla" from "Carmen," Bizet; Margaret McCarl, "June Morning," Willeby; "Song of the Chimes," Worrell; Agnes Chabrisson, "Carmena," Wilson. Agnes Chabrisson is one of the most promising singers enrolled especially for the light opera stage. She sang the "Carmena" in action. Song cycle "Reuben and Rachel" was interpreted by Viola Geober, soprano; Mr. Hodson, baritone, and their unique interpretation was one of the successes of the afternoon. The last number of the program was a trio, "Wanted—A Husband," by Werner, which was given in costume and action. The trio of young ladies scored one of the great successes of the afternoon.

LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY

A lecture recital will be given Saturday, February 27, at 2:30, at the Conservatory rooms. The program follows:

Descriptive Analysis
 Edgar A. Brazelton
 Allegro Appassionata Saint-Saens
 Liebestraume Liszt
 In Autumn Moszkowski
 Etude, C sharp minor.....Chopin
 Danse Negre Scott
 Patricia Abernethy
 A Child's World.....Jeanne M. Boyd
 Indoors
 The Light
 The Dark
 The Fairy Pool
 The Mystic Wood
 Maude Fenlon Bollman
 Wind from the South
 La Tarantella
 In Italy
Arthur F. Platz
 Jeanne M. Boyd, accompanist

Ellmer Zoller PIANO ACCOMPANIST
 with Mme. Gabrilowitsch—Henry Parsons—Amy Grant. HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th Street, New York City.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue
 PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11
 For Catalog Address

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthan Arendt
 2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCullough
 1st Alto—Fermelia Newby Gale
 2nd Alto—Hazel Hootley
 Director—Accompanist
 TINA MAE HAINES

Central College of Music—The following pupils of the Central College of Music of Austin gave a program on February 19: Paul Rutledge, Helen Rutledge, Frances Malgren, Wilma Busenbark, Gladys Trowbridge, Thomas Walton, Wilbur Imbs, Sally Walser, Charley Hands, Doris Sparks, Pauline Osterling, David Ratzen, Elaine Kellogg, Sarah Kitteredge, Blanche Simonsen, Gretchen Walser, Imo Johnson, Sidney Lang and Mildred Snyder.

Mayme E. BolgerACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257CAROLINE E. BUCKLEYCONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts BuildingGLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163ANNA AGNES HERBERT M. BAILEYSoprano
Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET LAWSON MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
671 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHN CONCERTSCONTRALTO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319Edith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.Doelling PianistTeacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HART PIANISTCOSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLeo Zelenka - LerandoCONCERT HARPIST Care of MUSIC NEWSDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles Olte IowaLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church 2422 S. LAWDALE AVENUECLARENCE EDDY IN JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

George Hoyt Smith wrote as follows in the Florida Times-Union about the Eddy recital at Jacksonville, Fla.:

There is something different about an organ recital which places it in a class alone among musical events. For one thing, the majority of all organ recitals must be in churches—for, to the credit of mankind be it said, the majority of grand organs are placed to aid in the praise of God. Wherever a glorious temple is raised—and it may be built by Gentile or Jew—there is certain to be installed the oldest and most wonderful of all instruments, the pipe organ, and the architectural beauty and grandeur of the building is often the mark for the beauty and wonderful possibilities of the organ therein. Another thing is that the performer at an organ recital is not often visible to many of his hearers. Even where the organs are set up in the front of the temple, or auditorium, the organist usually faces the instrument and from the view thus obtained gives no idea of the thought that is controlling a great orchestra of flutes and horns and reeds and drums and cymbals, cunningly placed and fixed to be always ready and quickly responsive.

MASTER MUSICIAN

To enjoy an organ recital it is best to be as was the splendid assemblage in the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday, with that master musician, Clarence Eddy, on the organ bench. Facing the high altar, with its white drapery and candelabra and vases of flowers and greenery, with the afternoon sun bringing into vivid realism the sacred pictures in the huge Gothic windows, probably a thousand people sat silent, attentive and interested as the varied program was given and testified in the only possible way to their appreciation—a subdued word of admiration or satisfaction at the close of some brilliant number; a period of absolute silence following a more delicate tracery. Another point that I had forgotten, which differentiates, there is the absence of that abomination known as the encore—a relic of the days of the "claque" and all that is distasteful and inartistic.

Clarence Eddy was in Jacksonville just a year ago, February 8, 1914, and recalling his program on that occasion, I feel that he paid the music lovers a great compliment by giving them an entirely new program. Not to suggest that any number given last year would not have been heard with pleasure—but because it added to the gems that memory may retain. Comparing the two recitals, yesterday's was in some ways a little more elaborate, and of the numbers too much could not be said of the wonderfully beautiful sonata by Becker (third sonata in E major, Opus 43). Calling upon the fullest resources of the grand organ in the prelude (andante maestoso), developing an exquisite melody, elaborated and decorated in the second movement (Adoration, adagio sostenuto), and demonstrating a brilliance in pedaling that was simply amazing in the finale (toccata, allegro vivo), the whole presented a truly remarkable composition and one that could be undertaken by an artist. It was heard with the closest attention and gave the fullest satisfaction. Contrasting clearly with the avalanche of melody in the third part of the sonata the "Boat Song from the River Volga," as arranged by Mr. Eddy, was particularly enjoyable. In this the echo, suggesting the song taken up by the boatmen farther up the river, was almost dramatic in effect.

Immediately following the Boat Song was the Vorspiel from Wagner's "Lohengrin," arranged also by Mr. Eddy, and proving conclusively the orchestral possibilities of the instrument. From the duet of the flutes to the entrance of the French horns, and through the massing of wind and reed and brass and percussion, the listener closing the eyes could easily believe that some splendid group of musicians was engaged upon the score. Another exquisite selection was a dainty valse tempo entitled "Nuptial Song," written by William Faulkes, which seemed to have blended all the sweet mezzo tones in the organ for a love theme. Frysinger's "Nuptial Benediction," given as a part of the number, proved pleasing. Ralph Kinder's "At Evening" and "Jubilate Amen" were greatly admired. The opening number was a prelude by Faulkes calling for masterful technic and displaying many brilliant effects, and immediately afterwards the little "Song of Sorrow" and "Will o' the Wisp," by Gordon Balch Nevin, demonstrated the compelling powers of the minor and the fantastical. There were other numbers and all gave pleasure—it was all beautiful and wonderful—and over too soon. (Advertisement.)

RUSKIN, FLA.

February, known as "Music Month" in Ruskin, is bringing to the students, residents and visitors an abundance of harmony and melody by the very best masters—music for piano, vocal, solo, duet and quartet, solos for violin and 'cello, piano and string trios and string quartets.

During the present series of concerts taking place every Wednesday and Saturday evening from February 3 to 27, one day, Saturday 6, has been designated by Ray G. Edwards, director of the festival, as "American composers day." On this date an additional program was rendered by Ruskin School of Music students in the afternoon, in addition to the more pretentious concert of the evening.

From the earlier work by Gottschalk (the first American pianist to receive recognition abroad) to compositions written in Ruskin and finished only two days before the concert, there was a wide range of musical expression. MacDowell, Nevin and Gottschalk composing for the piano; Carrie Jacobs-Bond, Kate Vannah, Johnson, MacDowell, Edwards and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach for voice; Colman, Borowski, Edwards, Allen and Straka for violin.

The evening concert opened with a string quartet by Protheroe, closing with the Redman "Quartet Creole," a characteristic composition. These quartets rank with the best works of a similar nature by foreign composers. Their performance by the Ruskin string quartet gave but a taste of what is to follow at later concerts. For example, there is the piano and string trio by Mendelssohn, in D minor, performed by the same players last month in St. Petersburg. Another trio by Cadman, an American. Then string trios and quartets by Beethoven, Haydn, Tchaikowsky, Mozart, etc., and probably most ambitious of all a performance of Haydn's "Surprise Symphony" by piano and string orchestra. From the best works on all these programs it is probable that a special program will be selected and given in Tampa, thus carrying the "music-fest" beyond the confines of Ruskin, to those music lovers in Tampa, who cannot arrange to visit the music colony. To those who can make the trip it will be worth while, and there is no admission fee this year. The days are Wednesday and Saturday.

The evening program of American compositions was as follows:

Quartet	Protheroe
Ruskin String Quartet
A Little Pink Rose	Bond
Mrs. Elizabeth Dickman
A Perfect Day	Bond
Vocal Quartet
Wandering Iceberg	MacDowell
Gondolieria	Nevin
Miss Georgadda Miller
Tarantelle	Allen
Berceuse	Straka
Ray G. Edwards
Memories	Bearsford
My Soul	Bond
Irish Love Song	Lang
Miss Evalyn Carr
Adoration ('cello)	Borowski
Olnton D. Miller
Night Wind	Edwards
Cradle Song	Vannah
Mrs. Aurora M. Edwards
Intermezzo	Von Dameck
Ruskin String Quartet
Deserted	MacDowell
Miss Georgadda Miller
Brotherhood	Miller
Ruskin Choir
Love Song	Edwards
Caprice Florida	Edwards
Ray G. Edwards
Year's at the Spring	Beech
Mrs. Aurora M. Edwards
My Jacqueminot	Johnson
Miss Georgadda Miller
Quartet Creole	Redman
Ruskin String Quartet
—Tampa Daily Times.

LA SALLE, ILLINOIS

Donald Opdycke of this city went to Princeton Sunday morning and, in the Congregational Church there, rendered Van Zant's solo, "The Pilgrim's Message," at the morning service. This is the solo which was sung with quartet yesterday afternoon at the vesper service of the La Salle Congregational Church. LaPorte Van Zant, a Chicago man, whose compositions are signed "John Howard Craig," is a highly talented musician who gives instruction every Thursday in this city. The solo, "Exultation," sung by Stanley Boughner at the Congregational vesper service yesterday, is another of his beautiful compositions.—La Salle Daily Post. (Advertisement.)

MARIE YAHN IN MILWAUKEE

Some press comments:

Mrs. Yahn, who was heard for the first time in public, sang the "Baalspriester" aria from Meyerbeer's "Prophet." The work made many demands on the artist, especially in the matter of range, in which department the singer excels. Her voice is brilliant, and is used with apparent ease, while her enunciation is letter perfect. She was sympathetically accompanied by Winogene Hewitt, and was received with much appreciation by the audience, which demanded encores.—Milwaukee Free Press, February 10, 1915.

Mrs. Marie Schorse Yahn, of Chicago, contralto, again gave Milwaukee proof of admirable training as well as of natural gifts, and was compelled to respond to encores, receiving a number of magnificent floral tributes.

Mme. Yahn sang to the well played piano accompaniment of Miss Winogene Hewitt an aria from Meyerbeer's opera, "The Prophet," and two encore numbers in lighter mood. She is richly endowed with a musical voice of wide range which she uses dramatically and with graceful ease. She has poise and she sings with authority.—Milwaukee Sentinel, February 10, 1915.

Mrs. Marie Yahn, contralto, was received with delight and received repeated encores at the conclusion of her numbers. She is gifted with a voice of much charm and unusual clearness of expression. She sang the Meyerbeer "Baalspriester" with sweet distinctness, fervor and finished art. Her lower tones were particularly beautiful and resonant. She responded graciously to two encores.—Evening Wisconsin, February 10, 1915. (Advertisement.)

THE HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUB

J. S. Fearis & Bro. report that their new book of male voice music, known as "The High School Glee Club," is having a splendid sale. This book is arranged to meet the requirements of the young man's voice and can be used by voices of very moderate range without discomfort or injury to the vocal organs.

They have received hundreds of letters like the following:

It seems to me that in this book the author has done a great deal to fill a long felt want in the high school boys' glee club work. The range of the various selections is well within the reach of the average boy of high school age.

I am finding the work with the book very successful.
R. K. KESTER,
Director of Glee Clubs, Washington High School.

Milwaukee, Wis.

All the numbers in the book are fine. Some of the best numbers are: "God of Our Fathers," "Pilot, Land de Boat," "Sailing," "Land of Greatness, Home of Glory," "Gypsy John," "Gypsy Song," and "The Monarch of the Woods." According to our musical director any one of the above songs is well worth the price of the book.

F. K. BRANNON,
Superintendent of Ashland Public Schools.
Ashland, Ill.

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN PUPILS

Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman presented Miss Nellie Cockburn and Mr. Walter Lindsey in the following song program at Mendelssohn Hall, Rockford, Ill., on February 10:

Per la gloria d'adorarvi	Bononcini
Pur dicesti o bocca bella (1667-1740)	Lotti
My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair	Haydn
.....	Miss Cockburn
Rondo Capriccioso	Mendelssohn
.....	Miss Lohmann
To My Love	Mathews
Macushla	MacMurrrough
Invictus	Huha
.....	Mr. Lindsey
The Jewel Song (from Faust)	Gounod
.....	Miss Cockburn
Sonata, first movement	Schytte
.....	Miss Johnson
In the Woods	MacDowell
Waldeinsamkeit	Reger
Will o' the Wisp	Spross
My Iddie	Thayer
Villancle	Del' Acqua
.....	Miss Cockburn

PHILADELPHIA MUSICAL ACADEMY

The following program was given February 17:

Trio—Op. 29, Piano, violin, 'cello.....A. M. Foerster
Messrs. Charles E. Knauss, Paul Meyer, Bertrand Austin

Vocal—

Women of Inzer.....Raymond Loughborough
Today and Tomorrow.....Homer Bartlett
The Moon Drops Low.....Cadman
Evelyn Estes Carbutt

Piano—

Waldeinsamkeit.....Liszt
Spanish Serenade.....Debussy
Pensee dans la Ravin.....Bawden
Mr. Clarence K. Bawden

Violin—

Othello-Fantasia.....Ernst
Mr. Paul Meyer

Trio, Serenade Pierrot et Pierrette.....C. W. Zeckwer
Declamando
Gracioso

Mr. Joseph Clarke, Miss Alma Grafe, Effie Leland Golz

'Cello—

Ballade.....Friml
Mr. Bertrand Austin

Vocal, Aria of Zerlina, from Don Juan.....Mozart
Marie Zeckwer Holt

Piano—

En Bateau.....C. W. Zeckwer
Reflets dans l'eau.....C. W. Zeckwer
Paraphrase on the Merry Pranks of Till Eulenspiegel.....C. W. Zeckwer
Mr. Camille W. Zeckwer

Quintet—Siegfried Idylle.....Wagner

Mr. Paul Meyer, Miss Alma Grafe, Mrs. Effie Leland-Golz, Messrs. Bertrand Austin, Walter Golz

Kober—Miss Georgia Kober, American pianist and president of the Sherwood Music School, has returned from her concert trip in Ohio and left this week for Aberdeen, S. Dak., where she gave a recital Monday, February 22. She will also appear in joint recital with David Duncan Duggan, Scotch tenor, at the North Shore Woman's Club, February 27.

JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON

A few of the 1914 press comments:

Miss Johnson's voice is of that round, mellow richness that belongs to the contralto, tones exquisitely modulated and exceedingly pleasing to hear. In her closing numbers she attained a climax of dramatic power.—Clinton, Ia., Herald.

With the first notes Miss Johnson convinced her audience that here was a contralto with a wonderful voice, which easily filled the big room, and her enunciation was perfect.—Shelbyville, Ill., Union.

Miss Johnson's exquisite rendition of her contralto solos displayed a cheerful and inspiring personality. She possesses a wonderfully large, rich, sympathetic voice.—Pontiac, Ill., Daily Leader.

Miss Johnson's voice is a contralto, deep, resonant, soul-stirring in quality and wonderfully sympathetic. She has the rare power of making people feel—the gift of the sincere artist who has tasted deep of life's experiences.—Streator, Ill., Independent Times.

Miss Johnson presented a program of much interest and abounding with beauty through the medium of her beautiful contralto voice, interpretative gifts and charming stage presence, each number glowed with beauty in every detail.—Streator, Ill., Free Press. (Advertisement.)

HELENA BINGHAM

The following letters regarding the new story with music by Helena Bingham, "My Baby," show appreciation of its merit as a program number.

Memphis, Tenn., February 9.

My Dear Miss Bingham:
The copy of "My Baby" came just as I was leaving Chicago for a little visit south. I am so proud and grateful for your kind thought of me and want to tell you that I never read anywhere without a request for "My Baby." It is truly a gem. With best wishes always for you

IDA MAY EVANS.

Clinton, Iowa, February 5

My Dear Miss Bingham:
I have a copy of "My Baby" and find it delightful for my work, with which I am very busy. Sincerely yours,
JEAN BABBIT.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEM MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Viola

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL

TEACHER Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL.

MUSIC AT OAK PARK CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The music at Oak Park Congregational Church on Sunday evening, February 21, under the direction of Mr. Carl D. Kinsey was fully up to the standard set and heard on several other visits to this temple of good music and good cheer.

The much admired solo quartet in which the voices of Mary Ann Kaufman, Permelia

JOHN HOWARD CRAIG

Gale, Grant Kimbell and Frank Dunford are heard, as usual took the leading part in the musical portion of the service.

That inspiring and dramatic anthem, "King All Glorious," by Barnby, offered Messrs. Kimbell and Dunford opportunity to display their solo equipment in exceptionally fine style and the other members of the quartet with the chorus choir joined in the ensemble portion of the anthem and sang with great breadth and finish.

Following prayer, the quartet offered up an appropriate response with all that delicate and charming soft singing which comes only from artists after long association in ensemble work.

Miss Kaufman, Mrs. Gale and Mr. Kimbell sang in a very effective manner "Abide with Me," by Chadwick, and Mr. Andrea Sarto, the special soloist of the evening, sang "In Thee, O God, Do I Put My Trust," by Spicker, as the offertory music.

A great amount of interest centered around the performance of Craig's anthem, "The Pilgrim's Message," which enlists the services of solo and quartet voices. This work comes from the pen of Mr. La Porte Van Sant, who uses the name of John Howard Craig in all his musical writings. Mr. Van Sant, who spent over ten years in Europe, is purely an American composer and is now one of the well known teachers of voice located in Kimball Hall. He has many compositions to his credit, both sacred and secular, which are becoming great favorites with both singers and public. "The Pilgrim's Message" is being rendered by numberless church and concert quartets with great success and the style in which Miss Kaufman presented the solo part and with Mrs. Gale, Mr. Kimbell and Mr. Dunford sang the quartet portion of the anthem, was a source of much pleasure to the audience and great satisfaction to the composer who was present. The work merits many productions in new surroundings and many repetitions in old in that it is always effective and appropriate for any service and can be had in keys suitable to the needs of any voice or quartet, also a fact worthy of mention is, "The Pilgrim's Message" can be used for solo purposes alone, the music being so arranged that the services of a quartet can easily be eliminated.

The singers who made this production possible as well as Mr. Kinsey, who played the taxing accompaniment in a masterful style, deserve much praise for their devotion to works from the American composers.

Mr. Kinsey furnished very satisfactory support to all the singing of the evening and played appropriate music in a very praiseworthy manner for opening and closing the service. H. M. B.

THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN MUSICIANS

This society will present Miss Carol Robinson, pianist, and William Preston Phillips, baritone, at Fullerton Hall, Art Institute, on Friday evening, March 5, 8:15 o'clock, in the following program:

Intermezzo, Op. 118, No. 2.....	Brahms
Capriccio, Op. 76, No. 2.....	Brahms
Fantasie and Fugue, G Minor.....	Bach-Liszt
Fussreise	Hugo Wolf
Zueignung	Richard Strauss
Zigeunerlied	Anton Dvorak
Chanson Triste	Henri Duparc
Tambourin	Old French
Chanson Bachique ("Hamlet").....	Ambroise Thomas
Rhapsodie, Op. 11, No. 2.....	Dohnanyi
Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 1.....	Chopin
Valse Impromptu	Liszt
Widmung	Schumann-Liszt
Blue Are Her Eyes	Winter Watts
The Hidden Song	Charles Wakefield Cadman
Witch Woman	Deems Taylor
The Day Is No More	John Alden Carpenter
The Eagle	Carl Busch
Arabesque, Op. 31	Arne Oldberg
Valse, B flat Minor.....	Carl M. Beecher
Prelude, C-sharp Minor	Theodor Otterstroem
Concert Etude, Op. 36	Edward MacDowell

LEAVITT STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

On Sunday evening, February 28, the choir of the Leavitt Street Congregational Church, under the direction of Miss Alice R. Deal, organist and choir director, will give a Dudley Buck Festival Service, the service beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The following numbers will be sung:

Quartet, O Come Let Us Worship.....	Mendelssohn
Short Te Deum in D.....	Dudley Buck
Rock of Ages	" "
Crossing the Bar	" "
Sing Alleluia Forth	" "

Immediately following the service Miss Deal will play as an organ recital the following program:

Star Spangled Banner.....	Dudley Buck
Home, Sweet Home	" "
Scherzo from Sonata in E flat.....	" "
Hail Columbia	" "

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, OAK PARK

Music for next Sunday evening:

Special soloist, Mrs. Herbert Watrous, contralto, of New York.
Organ Prelude—
March Triumphale	Dubois
Consolation	Mendelssohn
Mr. Kinsey
Anthem (quartet)—Babylon	Watson
Anthem (junior chorus)—The Lord Is Exalted.....	West
Offertory Solo—The Cry of Rachel.....	Salter
Mrs. Watrous
Sermon
Response—Rock of Ages.....	Buck
Organ Postlude—Postlude in A.....	Dubois

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The recital to be given at the college this Friday evening will be in charge of Miss Ida M. Moore of the dramatic department. Those taking part are Eleanor Aggen, Lillian Pollack, Evelyn Pollack, Grace Morrice, Maybelle Peterson, Ti Cable. Musical numbers will be given by Hester Hoskins, Mary Jones, Maude Johnstone, Leah Rubin, Robert Couffer.

The following will be on the program at the recital the following Friday evening at the College Recital Hall: Dorothy Denman, Francis McMaster, Ethel Seavey, Anna Wedemeyer, Elizabeth Pearn, Hilda Miller, William Learn and others.

On Friday evening, March 12, a concert will be given at the Garfield Park Methodist Church by students from the college.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

FOR SALE—Small music store, consisting of pianos, musical instruments and sheet music; no opposition; present location 14 years. 1851 W. Madison st.

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

HAYDNOWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO
CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 Mc Cormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

"Sunset and Evening Star"

By HELENA BINGHAM

The Favorite Setting of TENNYSON'S

"CROSSING THE BAR"

Uninterrupted Sales Since its Publication

IN THE FOLLOWING ARRANGEMENTS

Solo - - - High Voice, Eb
Solo - - - Low Voice, C
Duet - - - Soprano and Alto
Quartet - - - Mixed Voices
Quartet - - - Women's Voices

Newest Print

"MY BABY"

A Story to be Told to Music of "THE BERCEUSE"

By HELENA BINGHAM

A T A L L M U S I C S T O R E S

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE

Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building
Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA

For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIST

Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE
HARRISON

SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO

Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

Music in America

ANN ARBOR FESTIVAL

John McCormack, Mme. Margaret Ober, one of the stars of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Harold Bauer will be among the artists of the Twenty-second Annual May Festival to be held in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, Mich., May 19, 20, 21 and 22.

For months, in fact, even before the close of last year's festival, plans for this event have been in the brewing, and at last all of the artists have been engaged and everything except the details of the festival programs has been definitely settled. As usual, the festival will consist of six concerts, four evening programs beginning on Wednesday, with a symphony program Friday afternoon and an organ recital Saturday afternoon.

The choral works to be given by the Choral Union chorus under Professor Albert A. Stanley, will be Bossi's "Paradise Lost," Wolf-Ferrari's "New Life," and "The Children's Crusade" by Pierne. The "New Life," it will be remembered, attracted a great deal of attention when it was given one of its first American performances in Ann Arbor several years ago. Since then it has been performed many times in America by leading choral societies.

The "Children's Crusade," as its title would imply, demands a supplementary chorus of children and this year the children's chorus will be utilized in this way instead of at a separate concert. The children will also be heard in connection with the "New Life." The training of the children is being done by Professor R. H. Kempf, who will combine the boys' chorus of the Congregational and Episcopal churches, and Miss Florence Potter who is drilling the children from the public schools.

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under Frederick Stock, with its full quota of men, will take part in all of the concerts except the organ recital.

Not only is the list of choral works considered one of the most attractive ever offered, but the cast of artists engaged surpasses in every way any list ever before presented to festival patrons.

The musical critics of the metropolitan press, and those in other cities where Mr. McCormack has appeared this season, are of the unanimous opinion that John McCormack stands today at the zenith of his greatness.

He will be the great attraction heard at the artist concert Friday evening.

Mme. Ober, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is one of the shining lights and is always in demand. After a brilliant European career, she made a sensational debut in New York, in November, 1913, and since then has been one of the leading drawing cards on the long list of renowned artists of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

For the first time in years, one of the world's foremost pianists, Harold Bauer, will appear at the festival. His career is too well known to need elaborate mention.

Other artists to be heard, some new to Ann Arbor, and others old favorites, are as follows:

Leonora Allen, soprano, who was heard in Hill Auditorium on the occasion of the Belgian Relief Concert, and who is one of the most distinguished artists among the younger American sopranos. Miss Ada Grace Johnson, of Ann Arbor, will sing one of the roles in the "Children's Crusade," while Olive Kline will do soprano roles in both the "New Life" and the "Children's Crusade." Margaret Keyes, contralto, an old favorite, will again be heard, as will also Lambert Murphy. Theodore Harrison of the University School of Music, will do the heavy baritone role in the "New Life." The role is most exacting and much of the beauty of the work depends upon the proper rendition of this role. Mr. Harrison is considered ideal for this part.

Clarence Whitehill, one of the greatest Wagnerian singers, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing at the opening concert, and also at the last concert. The organ recital, Saturday afternoon, will be given by Mr. L. L. Renwick, while Mr. E. V. Moore will appear at the organ in connection with the choral work.

A preliminary announcement giving a complete list of artists, etc., with full information regarding the sale of reserved seat tickets, etc., is now in press, and copies will be mailed out shortly. Persons wishing copies sent to friends should notify the secretary, C. A. Sink, at the School of Music by postal. C. A. S.

ESCANABA, MICH.

Edward V. Ehrhardt, the Chicago pianist, delighted his hearers at the high school auditorium last evening, in a recital given under the auspices of the Escanaba Musical Club, by the feeling and expression that the young pianist injected into his renditions. Escanabans were offered a class of music that is seldom received in this section of the peninsula. The audience proved itself thoroughly appreciative of the expert efforts of the celebrated pianist.

Following the three-part program at the high school, a reception honorary to Mr. Ehrhardt was given at the home of Mrs. Cora Hicks Brace, at which time the guest of honor gave several more renditions before the musical club and a few invited guests.

The Escanaba Musical Club is to be highly commended for the effort that it has put forth to bring a pianist of the caliber of Mr. Ehrhardt to this city, thereby raising considerably the musical standard and standing of the city.

The program follows:

Sonata, Op. 27, No. 2, C sharp minor.....	Beethoven
Adagio sostenuto
Allegretto
Presto agitato
Berceuse, Op. 57
Polonaise
Etude, Op. 10, No. 12 (Revolutionary)	}.....Chopin
Etude, Op. 25, No. 9 (Butterfly)
Phantasie, Op. 49
Nocturne (for left hand only).....	Scriabine
Children's Dance	Van Wertherhout
Rigoletto Fantasia	Liszt

Van Grove—On Sunday, February 13, Mr. Isaac Van Grove was the accompanist for Alexander Kaminsky at the Fine Arts Theater.

CINCINNATI, OHIO

For the first time in its history the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music departed from its own hall for a larger auditorium in which to give its orchestra concerts. Last night witnessed the removal to the auditorium of Hughes High School, and, though there was treble the capacity in this hall as compared with Conservatory Hall, there was not a seat vacant when Signor Tirindelli raised his baton for the beginning of the program. In addition to those who were fortunate enough to find room, many hundreds were turned away, and more than it would be wise to indicate violated the laws and stood.

With the beginning of the current season the management of this institution has given these orchestra concerts in as complete a manner as may be expected. It is the purpose to give the orchestral works selected with a complete personnel, the student portion of the band being augmented by the symphony orchestra men. In this way the students, practically all of whom are to be found in the string section, are given the opportunity of gaining a direct experience in the performance of the larger orchestral works. Thus last night the "New World" symphony of Dvorak and the "Preludes" of Liszt were a task of no mean undertaking, and the accomplishments of Signor Tirindelli, the gifted conductor of the organization, and his student body were deserving of the highest commendation. The symphony was really a very noteworthy performance, because, in the first instance, it was given a splendid reading by the conductor, and, in the second place, the orchestra played it very well. The tonal shadings which Tirindelli was able to extract from his non-professional string section was no little achievement. The "Preludes" of Liszt, in which the other choirs of the band are more important, was stirring and full of intensity, forming a brilliant climax to the evening's program.

Three soloists assisted. Miss Mozelle Bennett, a very capable young violinist, gave a most creditable performance of the "Russian Airs" of Wieniawski, the tricky technical features of the work being most creditably overcome. Miss Etta Mastin, who is gifted with a voice of good quality and dramatic color, sang the "Voi Lo Sapete" aria from "Cavalleria Rusticana" in a manner to evoke great applause. The most pronounced success of the evening was scored by Miss Myra Reed, a pianist of exceptional talent and virtuoso equipment. She played the "A Minor Concerto," by MacDowell, in a manner that would have done credit to an experienced artist. Her technic was not only sufficient, but was made secondary to the spontaneity of her performance and the artistic conception of the work. The great enthusiasm shown by the audience attested their hearty appreciation, and also gave voice to the fact that the concert was not only of great educational value to the young players, but also to a big majority among the hearers.—J. H. T., in Cincinnati Enquirer.

International School—The International School announces the meetings of the choral and ensemble classes for Tuesday evenings. The classes are in charge of C. Guy Hoover.

BRADFORD, PA.

The residence of Mrs. Isabel Stewart-North on Tibbitts avenue was the scene Saturday evening of a most delightful musicale, when a program was presented by the Musical America Club and the Music Study Club, the members of which are her pupils.

The program was up to the usual high standard of Mrs. North's recitals and the audience was delightfully entertained.

Mrs. North gave the second part of the program, which included a variety of beautiful numbers most attractive at her hands. She ended the program with her own piano novelty, "The Fable," for the left hand alone, preceding which the sketch of "The Fable" was read by Mrs. Lewis Newell. It was a fitting close to the recital. The program follows:

PART ONE
Piano—Melody in F.....	Rubinstein
George Grady
Piano—
The Old Goblin	Schumann
Frightening
The Rider's Song
Romanze
Miss Mary Williams
Voice—How I Love Thee.....	Helena Bingham
Mrs. Arthur Hennage
Piano—Valse de Concert.....	Wieniawski
Miss Elizabeth Howe
Piano—Baba Yaga.....	Le Roy B. Campbell
Miss Eleanor Gray Smith
Piano—The Storm.....	Weber
Miss Helene Thompson
Voice—I Will Keep Watch O'er Thy Sleep.....
Isabel Stewart North
Expectancy	Stickles
Miss Phyllis Martine
Piano—Polonaise in C minor.....	Chopin
Miss Eleanor Gray Smith
Voice—Love Dreams.....	Robinson
Miss Lillian Cunningham
PART TWO
(By Mrs. North)
I Greet Thee.....	Schubert-Liszt
Reading of the "Erl-King Poem"
Mrs. Lewis Newell
The Erl-King	Schubert-Liszt
Scherzo
March Funebre	Chopin
Sketch of "The Fable"
Mrs. Lewis Newell
The Fable (for left hand alone).....
Isabel Stewart North

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

The following is part of a review of "The Pipe of Desire," given at Bloomington, Ill., last Saturday. It is copied from the Daily Bulletin:

The two presentations of the "Pipe of Desire," given Friday evening and Saturday afternoon in the Chatterton Opera House, were greeted by packed houses, and more than realized the expectations of all concerned. The opera is written by Frederick Converse, the leading American tone writer of the present day, and was presented here in two acts, under the auspices of the Wesleyan College of Music. That the people of Bloomington gave such generous support to the work of an American writer, and especially to such a serious work of art, is a source of great satisfaction to all of those in charge. The Wesleyan College of Music is to be congratulated on the manner in which the opera was staged, and upon the untiring effort and courage and organizing ability which made the production of an opera of such depth and complexity, possible.

The story is that of "Man against the mysterious forces of nature," and this great personal theme is handled with a delicacy and refinement, which makes it one of genuine poetic beauty. The libretto was written by Mr. Geo. Barton, with music by Frederick Converse. It is melodious throughout, opening with the beautiful springlike strains and interlacing motives in Wagnerian style, with those of true impressionistic nature like wisps of clouds against the voices of the air and water.

The production was in charge of Mr. Henry Purmont Eames and to him much of the credit for the opera's brilliant success is due. Aside from being a musician of exceptional gifts, he has the executive ability and enthusiasm necessary for working out such a production. He works with untiring energy and with such entire sympathy and understanding of those under his direction, as to make him exceptionally fitted for the work of director.

THE CAST

Iolan, a peasant.....	Ervin J. Stenson
Naola, his betrothed.....	Louise R. Watson
The Old One, keeper of the pipe.....
William Preston Phillips
First Sylph	Mrs. Lyle Straight
First Undine	Zola Zook
First Salamander.....	Lyle Straight
First Gnome.....	George Marton

Valparaiso—In a recent review in these columns of the performance of "Iolanthe," given at Valparaiso University, credit for a share of the success of the evening should have been given to Mr. R. A. Tallcott, who had charge of the staging and acting of the performance.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

MADAM FANNY BLOOMFIELD-ZEISLER AT STEINERT HALL

Thursday afternoon, February 18, after a long absence Madam Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler gave a piano recital in Steinert Hall, the program being:

Minuet, G major (No. 2, from 6 Minuets).....Beethoven
Sonata Appassionata.....Beethoven
Moment Musical, Op. 94, No. 3.....Schubert
Minuetto (No. 3 from Fantasie Sonata, Op. 78).....Schubert
Songs Without Words, Op. 62, No. 6 (by request),
Ballade, Op. 52
Etudes, Op. 10, No. 7, 12 }.....Chopin
Valse, Op. 64, No. 2 }
Scherzo, Op. 31 }

Its unconventional character made it especially interesting. The writer, unable to be present, reproduces a part of the review in the Boston Herald of Friday, February 19, by Philip Hale.

The characteristics of Mme. Zeisler's playing are unchanged. That she could still be tempestuous and tumultuous, even without consideration of the size of the hall, was shown by her reading of Beethoven's "Sonata," which for once was passionate and did not belie its name. But with what verve and gusto she played the allegro movements! Her mechanism is as polished and brilliant as ever, but the polish has warmth and the brilliance is not metallic. Her sense of rhythm is still marked. She is a mistress of tonal gradations, dynamic contrasts that are significant and romantic. There was at times as of old a curious and tantalizing succession of passages now played with a certain imposing inflexibility and now with ravishing temporal freedom. All in all a concert to be enjoyed and remembered without the labor of analysis, criticism and hyper-criticism on the part of the hearer.

A novelty concert for two violins Monday night, February 8, Emanuel Ondricek and Ella Kalover Ondricek with Rodolfo A. Fornari, baritone, and Corinne Harmon at the piano, gave a concert in Washburn Hall, Worcester, the feature of which was the works for two violins, played by Mr. and Mrs. Ondricek. The effort of Mr. Fornari was not gratifying to the writer. It displays a desirable degree of artistry when the singer or instrumentalist uses common sense, and considers the size of the hall in which a program is given when singing or playing forte. Certain carelessness of manner in going to and from the stage was to say the least, open to criticism, as it had a touch of amateurishness not expected of a thoroughly equipped artist.

A noticeable thing about the violin tone of both artists was its beautiful, warm breadth. Miss Harmon showed excellent qualities as accompanist and preserved the mood set by her soloists.

Another concert by Mr. and Mrs. Ondricek and Miss Harmon will be given early in April.

The Handel and Haydn Society Miscellaneous Concert

The third concert of the Handel and Haydn Society took place in Symphony Hall Sunday night, February 14, with Emil Mollenheuer, conductor, and H. G. Tucker, organist. The program with exception of purely orchestral and solo numbers, included "The Lost Chord" and "Christe Eleison" from the "Golden Legend" by Sullivan; the "Sleep of the Child Jesus," a female chorus by Gavaert; "Hymn to the Madonna" and "Thanksgiving Hymn," by Kremser; "Chorus of Homage," by Gericke; and an original work by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, written for the Panama Exposition. The audience as usual at these concerts was enthusiastic, and the work of the program-givers of usual excellence.

The last concert of this season's series will be Easter Sunday night, April 4, when "Creation" will be produced by chorus and orchestra, Mrs. Grace Bonner Williams, soprano; William H. Pagdin, tenor; Frederick Martin, bass; Mr. Tucker, organist, and Mr. Mollenhauer, conductor.

Boston Symphony Plays in Worcester

The second concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the fourth of the Ellis series, was given in Mechanics Hall, Worcester, Tuesday night, February 9, with Anton Witek, concert master, violin soloist, and owing to a slight touch of la grippe, from which Doctor Karl Muck was suffering, one of the first violinists, Ernst

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News.

Schmidt, conducted. The feature of the concert was the masterly playing of Mr. Witek, which displayed repose, fire, cantilena; in fact, the gamut of violin artistry in Bruch "Concerto for Violin" No. 1, G minor, Op. 26.

The orchestra upheld its standard of excellence, which was especially noticeable in Sibelius "Finlandia," symphonic poem, Op. 26, No. 7. The Beethoven "No. 8, F minor Op. 93" and the operture "Euryanthe" by Weber were the other orchestral numbers.

Fannie Crosby, the Blind Poet, Is Dead

Friday, February 12, Fannie Crosby, the blind hymn writer, died in Bridgeport, Ct., at the age of ninety-five. During her long life, although she became blind in infancy from the effects of a hot poultice applied to her eyes when she had a fever, and which destroyed the optic nerve, she has been an active writer, and since she was forty she has contributed eight thousand hymns that have been and now are being sung in Protestant churches. These hymns have been translated into every language and perhaps hundreds of thousands who sang them did not know that their author was blind. But not alone as a writer of the words of Christian hymns has Miss Crosby been known to the world. Fifty years ago her popular melodies were whistled the country over: "Proud World, Good-by," "I'm Going Home," "Hazel Dell," "The Honeysuckle Glen," and "Never Forget the Dear Ones," may be recalled.

Ira D. Sankey tells of the origin of one of her most effective and popular hymns, "I Shall See Him Face to Face." Howard

Crosby, unrelated to the poet Miss Crosby, was conducting a prayer meeting which a gentleman had attended and became impressed by the presentation of the subject of "Grace" and asked her to write a hymn upon the topic. Retiring to an adjoining room for an hour or two she wrote the verses beginning, "Some day the silver cord will break," and later George C. Stebbins composed the tune. The hymn was a great favorite of Dwight L. Moody's and it has been sung all over the world. Miss Crosby gave the hymn its first public hearing when she recited it at a Northfield summer conference, where Rev. A. J. Gordon, of Boston conducted, and Mr. Sankey assisted. The verses reached London, England, because a reporter present at the meeting copied them and sent them to his paper.

Another hymn of world-wide knowledge is "Rescue the Perishing," the chorus of which is "Rescue the perishing, care for the dying, Jesus is merciful, Jesus will save."

With the Music Schools

The Faclten Bulletin for February is out with its usual resume of the activities of the previous month. Forty-four pupils took part in "playing tests," and about 125 appeared in "recital tests" during the month. Director Carl Faclten gave interpretation lessons January 6, 13, 20 and 27. Miss Anne Hathaway Gluck appeared in an "Exhibition Recital" Thursday night, January 7. A "method class" conducted by Reinhold Faclten discussed "The Problem of Counting" January 6; "The Problem of Rhythm" January 13; "Useless Counting Versus Pointed Counting With Teacher and Pupil" January 20; "Illustration of How the Teacher Can Help in Keeping Time" January 27. The Pedagogical lecture class, Mrs. Reinhold Faclten, leader, considered "Conduct of Examinations" January 6, 13 and 27. Beulah Breed, Agnes Gerry and Mrs. F. G. Salisbury read essays.

The Bulletin ends with the following personals:

Mrs. George C. Brainerd, nee Littlefield, now of Cleveland, Ohio, was a recent visitor at the school, accompanied by her little daughter.

Frank H. Luker, F. P. C. '04, of the faculty, who is accompanist of the Apollo Club, was also the soloist at the club concert January 12. Mr. Luker is an accomplished pianist, whose brilliant performance was enthusiastically received.

Mary Pumphrey Tower, F. P. S. '11, appeared with the Hoffman Quartet at the Teachers' Association concert in Lowell January 13. The great "Quintet" for pianoforte and strings, by Schumann, was the principal number of the program.

Mrs. Reinhold Faclten has recently sustained two bereavements in her family by the deaths of her brother, Jerome Ford Dewing in November, and her mother, Louisanna E. Dewing, in January.

A pianoforte recital complimentary to students of the New England Conservatory was given last evening, February 9, in Jordan Hall by Frank Watson of the faculty. The program included the Brahms "Intermezzo" in B flat minor; Paderewski's "Nocturne" in B flat major; the MacDowell "Sonata Eroica" and other works. At the Tuesday afternoon rehearsal of the Conservatory Orchestra Miss Laeta Hartley, 1900, played the Tchaikowsky "Concerto" in B flat minor. Dr. Karl Muck of the Boston Symphony Orchestra some weeks ago featured Miss Hartley on one of his Cambridge programs.

The following advanced students of the New England Conservatory will give a concert in Jordan Hall next Friday evening, February 12: Cecil B. Richmond, Mildred Vinton, Dorothy Cook, Alice Allen, Alexander Blackman, Semeon Muscanti, W. Lawrence Cook, Marion Feeley and Howard Goding.

An operatic concert will be given in Jordan Hall February 26, Thursday evening, by Ramon Blanchart, baritone, and Graecia von Brocklin, soprano, assisted by C. Pol Plancon. Of these singers Mr. Blanchart needs no introduction to Boston audiences. A native of Barcelona, Spain, he has sung in many opera companies and has the reputation of possessing perhaps the largest repertoire of any living baritone. Miss von Brocklin has been Mr. Blanchart's pupil at the New England Conservatory. At his recital in Jordan Hall of May 12, 1914, she appeared with her master and his daughter, Miss Erminda Blanchart, in the trio "Figlia che reggi" from "La Gioconda." Mr. Plancon comes of a famous operatic family and has been singing professionally since finishing his studies at the Conservatory several years ago.

The New England Conservatory Men's Club at its February meeting, held in Recital Hall last evening, February 11, listened to a lecture by Walter Measday, of the United Shoe Machinery Company on "From Pelt to Welt." This talk covers the history of the shoe from its crudest beginnings among savage tribes. It was illustrated with colored stereopticon slides.

Among recent engagements of pupils of the New England Conservatory dramatic department Marion K. Witham is appearing at a local vaudeville house in a group of Breton folk songs; Francesca Roteli has become a member of a stock company at Lynn, and Florence Close Gale has been reading "Peter Pan" and "Peg o' My Heart" on a tour through New York state and New Jersey. The Friday afternoon dramatic recitals of this department, which are given during the second half year, will begin on February 19.

Merchant of Venice at the Boston Opera House

The production of Shakespeare's plays by the Henry Jewett Players at the Boston Opera House, afford an opportunity for one to hear diction raised to real art. At the performance of the "Merchant of Venice" Saturday night, February 13, the subtlety of expression was as varied as the colors of the prism. And the remarkable feature of these productions is that the entire company know their business, and proceed to do it all of the time. No over-brilliant star, but a splendid constellation, one appearing brighter now, another, then, as the play moves to its conclusion.

"The Merry Wives of Windsor" has been repeated this week.

It had not been seen in Boston since 1895, when the Henry Jewett Players brought it to performance some three weeks since. New interest was awakened in the piece by this revival, and the delightful qualities of the comedy began to renew their appeal.

The play is the only one from Shakespeare's hands written about contemporary Elizabethan folk and their manners and life, and possesses therefore, a unique interest. It ranges from the border-land of farce, in the incidents of the comic duel and Falstaff's forcible entry into the linen-hamper, to the most delightful of whimsical fantasy, as in the last scene when the fairies dance around the horned Falstaff.

As for the present production of the play, the unanimous praise of the Boston press is a guarantee of its excellence. Henry Crocker is the Falstaff, and his interpretation is admirable in every respect. The roles of the merry wives are played by Miss Compton and Miss Whitaker, who, to quote the Transcript, "are really and truly 'Merry Wives.' Their high spirits carry all before them, and they bring out effectively the humor of the dramatist's lines."

The other roles are in the capable hands of the other members of the company; notable fun-makers are Max Montesole as Doctor Caius, and Ernest Cove as the Welsh parson. Leonard Mudie's impersonation of Master Slender is inimitable, and won wide praise.

The production of "The Merry Wives" will be followed, in the week of February 22 by "The Taming of the Shrew."

L. S. B.

MIAMI, FLORIDA

The following program was played by Clarence Eddy at White Temple:

Concert Prelude on a German Chorale...Wm. Faulkes
"Song of Sorrow" (new)...Gordon Balch Nevin
"Will of the Wisp" (new)...Gordon Balch Nevin
Third Sonata in E Major, Op. 43 (new)...Rene L. Becker
I Prelude Andante maestoso
II Adoration, Adagio sostenuto
III Finale, Toccata, Allegro vivo
Russian Boatmen's Song on the River Volga...Anon.
Vorspiel to Lohengrin...Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Variations de Concert, Opus 1...Joseph Bonnet
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
"At Evening" (new)...Ralph Kinder
"Jubilate Amen" (new)...Ralph Kinder
Rondo, "Sœur Monique"...Francois Couperin
Toccata and Fugue in D Minor...Johann Sebastian Bach
Nuptial Song...William Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction...J. Frank Frysinger
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Toccata in F Major...Thomas J. Crawford

Hinners Organs—A neat little booklet issued by the Hinners Organ Company of Pekin, Ill., shows that this popular firm has lately built organs in the First Congregational Church, Rogers Park, Chicago; Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Des Moines; University Presbyterian Church, Champaign, Ill.; First Reformed Church, Roseland, Chicago; Ebenezer Evangelical Church, Tiffin, Ohio; Bowman Methodist Episcopal church, St. Louis, Mo.; Central Christian Church, Austin, Tex.; First Methodist Episcopal Church, Hutchinson, Kas.; Granville Avenue Christian Church, Grand Rapids, Mich.; First Presbyterian Church, Michigan City, Ind.; First Baptist Church, Barre, Vt.; First Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, La., and at the Illinois State Building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Gjertsen-Bessesen—Mme. Beatrice Gjertsen-Bessesen is appearing in song recital at Albert Lea, Minn., on March 1, and on March 11 is to sing with the Seattle Symphony Orchestra.

BOISE, IDAHO

"The Messiah" as given by the Thalia choir last evening, was a magnificent production, fully enjoyed by a house which crowded the seating capacity of the great auditorium of the First Methodist Church from floor to the topmost gallery. The soloists were in good voice, singing with inspirational quality, Dwight Edrus Cook' tenor was impressively fine and Ward French sang with deep feeling. Mrs. Avis Grice Cole, soprano, was never sweeter and Mrs. Alice Carley Mack's contralto was superb, especially in "He Was Despised and Rejected," a noble effort full of sorrow and passion. The chorus work was especially good and Mr. Farner at the organ and Miss Brinck at the piano were the artists they ever are.—The Capitol News.

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN HATTSTAEDT CONSERVATORY

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivalled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SOLOS and QUARTETS FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE

CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.

67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SEBASTIAN BURNETTI

Leading Barytone Montreal Grand Opera Company and Comic Oper Co., Berlin, has reopened his Studio at 505 Kimball Hall. Mr. Burnetti was for years the star pupil of Jean de Reszke, Lombardi, and Lamperti, the world's 3 greatest masters of voice culture. This training, later supplemented by his extensive concert and operatic experience, makes him an unrivalled exponent of the knowledge of voice and of repertoire of Songs and Opera in Original Languages.

Reception hours 2 to 4. Send for Booklet.

NORINE C. MULVIHILL

Soprano Soloist--Vocal Instruction
153 W. 69th St. (Birmingham Bldg.) Tel. Normal 6537

DAN S. DENTON TENOR

OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANIST
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

SAN FRANCISCO

Music at the exposition:

The best music and the greatest musicians from every country will center at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

This is disclosed by the musical program of the exposition which was made public in its entirety yesterday. Among the features of world-wide interest is the appearance of the aged French composer, Camille Saint-Saens, and the engagement of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, whose conductor is the famous Dr. Karl Muck.

Wallace A. Sabin is the official organist of the exposition and will dedicate the great organ in Festival Hall on the opening day of the exposition, February 20. Edward H. Lemare, one of the greatest living organists, will play 100 recitals in Festival Hall, beginning June 1 and ending in September. The recitals will be given at noon.

DETAILS OF PROGRAM

The complete program as announced yesterday, and which it is expected will undergo only slight modifications, follows:

Exposition Orchestra, eighty performers, will play during the entire season of the exposition. The conductors of the Exposition Orchestra are August Bosc, who comes from Paris, and Max Bendix, late conductor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Camille Saint-Saens will conduct a series of four concerts, playing his own compositions. The concerts will be given on June 12, 16, 20 and 26.

A French band of seventy performers, Gabriel Pares, conductor, will give a series of performances extending from March 6 to May 14.

Creator's Band of fifty performers will give performances from February 20 to April 16.

Thaviu's Band of fifty performers will give a two weeks engagement beginning February 20 and ending March 5, and another six weeks engagement from September 23 to December 4.

The Philippine Constabulary Band of ninety performers was detailed by the Philippine board for the entire term of the exposition.

Sousa and his band of sixty-five performers will give a nine weeks engagement, beginning Saturday, May 22, and ending July 24.

Conway's Band of fifty performers will appear eight weeks, from May 18 to July 12.

BOSTON BAND TO BE HEARD

The Boston Band, sixty-five performers, will play for nine weeks, from July 17 to September 17.

The band led by Pelz, Russian imperial court conductor, will give a number of concerts.

Three massed band concerts will be held, consisting of the official band, C. H. Cassasa, conductor; Sousa and his band and the French band, with Gabriel Pares as conductor.

The first massed band concert will be held May 22 and will be participated in by 165 performers. The subsequent concerts will be held on June 17 and July 24.

The Apollo Musical Club of Chicago, consisting of 250 voices, with Harrison Wild as conductor, will give performances on July 15, 16, 17 and 18.

Ogden Tabernacle Choir, 300 voices, Joseph Ballyntyne, conductor, will give a series of concerts in Festival Hall July 21 to 25.

The United Swedish Singers of the Pacific Coast will give a concert in the afternoon and evening of June 18.

The concert of the California School for the Blind will be given on June 30 at Festival Hall.

Pacific Choral Society of the College of the Pacific, 160 voices, will give "Creation" April 10.

Rossini's "Stabat Mater," Paul Steindorf, conductor, will be sung Easter Sunday, April 4.

Ben-Hur readings will begin March 14.

The Alameda County 1915 Chorus of 250 voices, Alexander Stewart, conductor, will give a concert in March.

BOSTON SYMPHONY TO PLAY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, 100 performers, will give concerts May 15 to May 25.

The Exposition Chorus of 250 voices, Wallace A. Sabin, conductor; Robert Hubbard, concert master, will sing "Heavens Are Telling," from "Creation," and the official hymn by Mrs. Beach in the Court of the Four Seasons on opening day.

Twenty symphony concerts by Exposition Orchestra will be given in Festival Hall, and one matinee performance each month at the Stadium, accompanied by the Exposition Orchestra and Military Band.

The official band of forty performers, Charles H. Cassasa, conductor, will play during the entire term of the exposition.

Representative organists of California and the Pacific Coast, the Middle West and the East have been engaged to play. Among them are the following:

Stewart, Dr. H. J.	Waldrop, Uda
Eaton, Louis	Diggle, Roland
Heinroth, Charles	Doane, John
Chace, Frank W.	Fairclough, George H.
Biggs, Richard K.	Chubb, Frederick
Stapps, Karl O.	Jepson, H. B.
Bishop, John J.	Baldwin, Samuel
Vibbard, Harry L.	Dickinson, Clarence
Macfarlane, Will C.	Hammond, Wm. C.
Andrews, J. Warren	Gomph, William J.
Goodrich, Wallace	Sleeper, H. D.
Fleissner, Otto	Moore, Benjamin
Hastings, Ray	Kingsley, Bruce Gordon
Eddy, Clarence	Davis, J. Percival
Allen, Warren D.	McClellan, John J.
Jordan, Albert D.	Durst, Sidney
Goodrich, Fred	Quarles, James T.
Kroeger, Emily	Hyde, Arthur
Comey, James D. D.	Adams, Frank
Noble, Tertius	Hunt, Hamlin H.
Phillipi, Daniel	Andrews, George W.
Galloway, Charles	—San Francisco Examiner.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

By far the most important musical event of the past fortnight was the coming of the National Grand Opera Company to the Potter Theater for a stay of two nights and one afternoon. A thorough campaign of advertising and much of good reputation preceded their arrival, and it is interesting to note that there was little occasion for disappointment in any part of the organization. Occasionally the chorus was not all that it might have been, and owing to a cold, Constantino was not in the best of voice; but on the whole, the three operas given were highly enjoyable. "Thais" was given on Monday night with Evalina Parnell in the title role. Miss Parnell charmed the audience not only with her beautiful singing but with her dramatic intensity. Tuesday evening "Il Trovatore" was presented, and Tuesday evening "Rigoletto," with Constantino as the duke, whose singing occasioned the greatest enthusiasm. Especially praiseworthy was the work of the orchestra of thirty-six pieces, under the able guidance of Cav. Fulgenzio Guerrieri. The coming of this organization for a brief period was a decided success and has proven beyond a doubt that the music lovers here are really eager to give their most enthusiastic support to any future repetition of this same experiment.

Mrs. Aal Loomis and Miss Mary Thayer furnished the program at the Music Study Club, at their meeting, February 4. Mrs. Loomis appeared in costume in the "Lover in Damascus" cycle, by Amy Woodforde Finden. Miss Thayer played "Uncle Remus," "To a Water Lily" and "To a Hummingbird," by MacDowell, and "Melodie a la Mazurka," by Leschetizky.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

Some recent press comment:

The bass, Gustaf Holmquist, new to most of his hearers, displayed a mellow, basso cantante voice of extreme pliability and extended compass. His "Why Do the Nations" was delivered with spirit and excited a keen desire to hear him again in Pittsburgh.—The Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Mr. Holmquist, in spite of the speed with which he was taken through "Why Do the Nations," gave its elaborate fioritura with clear diction, good intonation and excellent phrasing.—The Pittsburgh Gazette-Times. (Advertisement.)

Dufau—Miss Jenny Dufau, who has always been much interested in teaching, wishes it to be known at this time that she will undertake to coach a few serious pupils in singing at her studio in the Auditorium Hotel.

ORGANISTS DESERT THE CHURCH FOR MOVIES

Under the above caption J. McClure Belows writes as follows in the St. Paul Dispatch: In these days of the all-conquering "movies" music has been called upon to perform a new office, that of accompanying and interpreting pictures in a manner that shall lend color and enhance their general effect. Of course, symphony orchestras do not furnish this music, nor do Mischa Elmans or Paderewskis lend their magic aid; but good music is furnished in a larger and better degree than ever before, music written by acknowledged composers and played by serious artists.

It has been the introduction of the pipe organ into the majority of the moving picture houses that has accomplished this effect most potently. The great drawback of the production of good music in this field has been the expense of maintaining an adequate orchestra. Orchestras of mediocre caliber have been the rule until now, and the result has been to lower the standard of the thing presented on the screen. Yet the need of proper music to accompany the pictured story has always been felt and a poor orchestra has been considered better than no orchestra at all.

The unit orchestra as invented by Hope-Jones has been considered by many managers of picture houses a timely invention. This clever New Jersey inventor and organ builder devised a plan whereby the functions of a large organ might be turned into those of an orchestra, all under one man control. In the New York Century Theater and in the Cort Theater, Chicago, as in several other parts of the country, thousands have listened to the unit orchestra. The picture men claim that the chief value of this mechanical device has been to produce a more united effect between picture and music than could be obtained by the co-operation of an orchestra. Previous to the Hope-Jones invention, Barker, an Englishman, had worked out an arrangement that would control the voice of the organ by means of electricity; he also attempted two or three times a practical application of his invention both in England and in France. Several other organ builders attempted similar designs; but it remained for the American to perfect the idea.

Yet it is not only by the unit orchestra that the picture and vaudeville houses are being invaded. The organ alone is being introduced into the playhouses of the people, and men of high caliber are being engaged to play these organs. In the last year the more progressive managers have begun to realize the aid of music by engaging something better than the ordinary orchestra or mediocre organist. One large production of picture drama in New York recently was given with an orchestra composed of fifty men and a chorus of forty voices, while a complete musical score was written for every moment of the action.

Visitors to Oscar Hammerstein's new picture palace in Lexington avenue, New York, are beginning to feel that the injunction issued by the Metropolitan opera house of that city against further operatic enterprise by the former was an unintentional favor to the public, in that it turned the keen little manager into a larger and more potent field—that of the moving picture. At Hammerstein's house pictures are mounted in thoroughly adequate and artistic way. A large orchestra led by a painstaking and competent conductor, a three manual Moller organ of forty stops, with A. Bimboni at the keyboard, and an ensemble of operatic vocalists render a musical accompaniment to the motion picture that is remarkable in its effect. The interpolation of scenes from opera with scenery and costumes between the pictures is not only a very delightful innovation, but it stamps the entertainment with a dignity and bigness that makes it unique in its class. The picture house also has made a new field for the organist as we have already said. Only on an organ is it possible to render the correct musical illustration of the sentiment on the screen.

Many pictures demand a closely adapted accompaniment and no orchestra can possibly change the style of playing to suit the action nor modulate into another selection. Only an organist and one of really first-class attainments can do this.

Several distinguished organists the country over have been lured from the churches into the picture field. Among the better known ones in the East are Richard Henry Warren, Dr. Percy Starnes, Arthur Depew, Herbert Sisson, Granville Smith, H. Leslie Goss and Thomas Musgrove. Here in our own midst Anita De Witt Cook, who has long held a high position in the Twin Cities as an organist and composer of good ability, and the late Edward Mulligan, formerly organist at St. Mark's in the Bowery, New York, and of several churches here, may be mentioned among those who left the choir loft for the lecture house. Miss Cook plays with enhancing effect at the silent drama performances at the Strand.

Richard Henry Warren is perhaps the most notable instance of a great organist in the moving picture field. He is organist at the Church of the Ascension in New York, one of the oldest Episcopal parishes in that city, and every week he commutes from Boston, where he is organist at the Scollay Square Olympia, a leading picture house. This theater is equipped with a four manual Moller of his own design, which is in many respects a wide departure from the conventional style of instrument. The organist is starred as the leading feature of this large amusement house, and the organ is loudly advertised.

Mr. Warren's chief number at each performance is a sort of rhapsody of several themes, with here and there a suggestion of popular tunes, including the eternal rag-time, and all blended together so as to make a legitimate organ number planned to display the unusual resources of the instrument. His success in this particular respect may be estimated by the fact that he has been thus featured at this house for some dozen months without diminution of popularity. Incidentally it also pays Mr. Warren well. Mr. Warren usually plays in addition to his solo number for one picture feature of the bill, and his method with pictures is said to be worthy the study of any serious-minded organist. The invention of motives for the different characters of the pictures, the adaptation of a theme and its elaboration, the illustrative aid to a dialogue, characteristic bits invented for special requirements of the picture and many personal peculiarities of style are heard in the course of the picture. Organists of limited ability lacking in imagination and resource will find no place of enhancing usefulness in the movie field. The musical requirements are severe, but the rewards are considerable and the work most interesting to those who are really fitted for it. Hitherto the organ has been deemed the voice that exclusively belongs to churches; in this day and generation it has been accorded its rightful place alongside of the orchestra, and the silent drama has appropriated it for its very own.

—♦♦♦—

Amidon—Mr. L. F. Amidon, lately superintendent of schools, Iron Mountain, Mich., will take charge of the Brewer Teachers' Agency, Suite 1302 and 1303, the Auditorium, Chicago, after the middle of June, being associated with Mr. Orville Brewer, who founded this agency nearly thirty-four years ago. It is the oldest agency west of the Alleghenies and has been favorably known to a generation of educators.

—♦♦♦—

Sherwood School—Mme. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, director of the vocal department of the Sherwood Music School and dean of Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis., will present her pupils from both colleges in recital Saturday afternoon, March 6, at 4 o'clock, in the Sherwood Music School Studios, 300 Fine Arts Building.

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE
FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4005

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

LOS ANGELES

The appearance of Efram Zimbalist, Russian violinist, drew a good-sized audience in Manager Behymer's philharmonic course. Alma Gluck (Mrs. Zimbalist) will, on 2, appear in a fine recital of soprano songs and arias from operas.

h h h

The Music Teachers' February meeting, besides effective business outlines, listened to enjoyable music from Mrs. Hazel Ismond White, soprano; songs from the cycle "In a Brahmin Garden," by Frederick K. Logan, accompanied by Mrs. Charlotte Andrus Brown, who also played Liszt's "Etude in D Flat." Both were encoored and were greatly enjoyed in their music and art, both arrivals who will remain in Los Angeles. A special treat, as an aftermath of the National Grand Opera Company, was given to the members of the People's Orchestra course by Mr. Lebegott, he giving up his period for the ninth concert and having the appearance of star attractions of the opera, who rendered a very interesting program of opera and concert solo and instrumental numbers. The artists were Fillipo Bunyan, baritone; Miss Evelina Parnell, soprano; Signor Ingar, tenor; Signor Millo Picco, baritone; Mr. George von Hagel, 'cello; Miss Margaret Jarman, contralto; Miss Sarame Rainoldi, soprano; String Quartet, by Edmund Corradi, first violin; F. Mazza, second violin; L. Venturini, viola; George von Hagel, 'cello. The vocal artists also rendered the "Rigoletto" quartet. The crowded auditorium drew forth almost a double program in encores. A great treat.

The early return of Miss Ida Selby from the war zone in Berlin, Germany, where she has been in study with Mr. and Mrs. Lhevinne, made her first appearance as solo pianist in a very strong program, using Bach's "Suite No. 5," in E minor; Beethoven's "A Flat Major Sonata," Op. 26; Schumann's "Papillons," Op. 2, and three Chopin numbers. The talented young lady has already attained a decided mastery in technic, which was well marked, in both hands, in the Bach number. The left hand is under excellent control; temperamental qualities well placed in the Beethoven; technical and romantic qualities in the Chopin selections; variety of moods and fancies in the "Papillons." There is abundance of the real genius in the young lady. She plays with assurance and courage and her ambition will urge her to a definite place in pianistic artistry. The program was highly enjoyable throughout. A good-sized audience responded encouragingly.

h h h

The Ellis Club gave another of their unequaled male chorus-concerts; 100 voices, in splendid mettle from a vocal standpoint, showing the care of their leader, Mr. Poulin, in rendition of the spirit of the text, as the composer has conceived it in rhythm, melody and harmony. The "Drontheim" (King Olaf's Christmas), by Daniel Protheroe; the "Crusaders," by MacDowell, and the Strauss "Blue Danube" were the most telling in mass chorus effects, but the smaller and lighter numbers were gems and none the less enjoyable. The soloists, three, Mme. Helen Thorner, a dramatic soprano, who made very effective the "Tannhauser" "Dich Theure Halle" and was called back, when she sang an English selection. She also rendered, later in the program, Hildach's "Spring," Lang's "Day Is Done" and "Inter Nos," by MacFadyen; all ably accompanied by Mr. Will Garro-way. She has greatly extended her popularity as a capable vocal artist.

The second soloist was Gregor A. Gaitz-Hocky, a violinist of first-class skill and interpretation. He played the Chopin-Sarasate "Nocturne in E Flat," Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois," "A Scotch Romance," by Vernon Spencer, who exquisitely supplied the accompaniments to all the violin numbers. The urgent encore call drew forth the Sarasate "Spanish Dance." In the Schultze "Forest Harps," for chorus and harp, Signor S. R. Valenza played an effective harp solo part, and Mr. G. Hayden Jones was pleasantly heard in a solo obligato. Miss Mary O'Donoughe, the club accompanist, supplied an indispensable adjunct to the vocalism. Every seat in the Trinity Auditorium was filled and no single admissions are ever sold. No other club, except it be the Lyric Club of 100 ladies' voices, shares the general popularity as the Ellis Club.

h h h

The filling of the date intended for Lhevinne was no mistake by Manager Behymer, in placing Miss Myrtle Elvyn, the charming virtuoso artist of the piano, before the philharmonic course supporters. She opened the first of the two recitals with the Beethoven "Kreutzer Sonata for Violin and Piano." The violin was in the hands of our most accomplished concert-meister, Mr. Sigmund Beel, of our Symphony Orchestra. The great work had a fine rendering, showing what artistic timber and musicianship can do at short notice. Brahms' "E Flat Major Rhapsodie" called out an encore of a Chopin "Nocturne." A group of five gems closed with the Schubert-Tausig "March Militaire," which was masterly in delivery and encoored with the Strauss-Schultze-Evler "Beautiful Danube." In her second recital her pieces were the Beethoven "Sonata Appassionata" and "Twelfth Hungarian Rhapsodie," by Liszt.

h h h

The fourth pair of symphony concerts was given last week, with the same high grade of artistry, ensemble, interpretation, artistic taste and refinement. The Brahms

"Symphony No. 1," in C minor, Op. 68, was enjoyed in every movement. Mr. Axel Simonsen, 'cellist, was the soloist, in which he charmed his auditors with his skill and beautiful tone, drawn from the most soulful instrument of the whole string group. The instrument was by Nicolo Gagliano, of two centuries ago, who lived in Naples, Italy. It is at least 168 years old; the property of G. Allan Hancock, treasurer of the Symphony. The tone is beautifully sweet and mellow, instead of powerful and virile. For solo work with less accompaniment nothing would surpass it in singing quality. The closing orchestra number was Chabrier's "Espana," a rhapsody of the most catchy kind, on Spanish themes and dances. The orchestra will give a course of popular programs beginning on March 6. The Municipal Band, in organization, will invite Herr Tandler to assume the directorship. This year will be one of much musical interest here, particularly in June and July, when the Federation of Woman's Musical Clubs and the German Sangerfest will hold their great conventions here. The "Fairyl-land" opera has arrived and work upon it will begin early.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

1651 Sixth avenue.

— # # # —

GRACE E. KEESLER

A few of the press comments regarding the work of Grace E. Keesler:

To Grace Keesler, the accompanist, is also due a large amount of credit. Ever alert and following the soloist her work showed the finished touch of the ideal accompanist.—Peoria (Ill.) Journal.

The accompaniments of Grace Keesler were especially well done. Her playing of the Paraphrase on "Rigoletto" by Liszt was very brilliant. This is one of the most difficult of piano selections and can be played only by those having the very acme of technical perfection in the pianistic art.—Streator (Ill.) Monitor.

Grace Keesler played the accompaniment in a manner to elicit the just praise of the audience.—St. Louis (Mo.) Globe Democrat.

Beethoven's "Sonata in C Minor," more popularly known as the "Moonlight Sonata," was the principal solo which Grace Keesler presented on her program, and in this she showed a poetic style and singing tone in the adagio, a crisp touch in the allegretto and temperament and technical resource in the presto agitato. A group of shorter pieces, consisting of Poldini's "Etude de Concert," a "Melodie" of Gluck's, transcribed by Sgambati, and the "Fourth Rhapsody" of Brahms followed the "Sonata" and further impressed upon the audience the talents of the recitalist, which consist not only of a brilliant technic but also of musical qualities and temperament.—Chicago (Ill.) Examiner.

Grace Keesler, the accompanist with the Steindel Trio, proved an excellent artist.—Valparaiso (Ind.) Vidette.

Grace Keesler was grace itself at the piano. Charles Lurvey astonished many people last year with his accompaniments, but he has a strong competitor in Grace Keesler, as her lightness of touch, her suppression of self to theme, her absence of affectation and her exactness made a harmony that impresses with her personality. She gave a color to her playing not often observed. To her we are indebted to much of the charm of the evening.—Keokuk (Ia.) Constitution-Democrat.

Grace Keesler, the pianist, is deserving of much recognition. She has a strong and certain touch and her artistry as an accompanist contributed largely to the entire program. She was warmly greeted and her pleasing personality made her friends of everybody in the audience. Her rendition of the "Sextet" with the left hand captivated her hearers and her other numbers proved her capabilities.—Waterloo (Ia.) Times Tribune. (Advertisement).

— # # # —

Irving Park—Miss Mabel Woodworth, violinist; Edward Clarke, baritone, and Doris Carter, pianist, gave a program Tuesday evening, March 23. men's night at Irving Park Sorosis Club.

ARCANGELI
ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Le Trio Rameau

ALFRED BARTHEL, Oboe Soloist } Chicago Sym-
T. DU MOULIN, Violoncello } phony Orchestra
MME. BARTHEL, Piano.

AVAILABLE FOR CONCERTS

FOR DATES, TERMS AND SPECIMEN PROGRAMS

Address S. F. NEWHALL, GLENCOE, ILL.

ALEXANDER SEBALD'S VIOLIN
RECITAL

Half the professional violinists of Chicago were present at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Tuesday evening, besides many pianists, scores of the musical cognoscenti and—there were even critics of the daily press!

ALEXANDER SEBALD

All this in honor of Alexander Sebald, who is known to all of musical Chicago as a violinist of the very highest technical attainments and whose musicianship is broad and powerful while his interpretative ability is such as to cover every phase of the violinist's art with perfect ease.

Many other concerts were on the board for Tuesday evening and this writer therefore was compelled to omit hearing the wonderful "La Follia" of Corelli-Thomson, which Mr. Sebald plays so marvelously as well as his Bach number and the Chopin "Ballade," Op. 52, which was played by Oscar Deis, who acted also as accompanist for Mr. Sebald and in the closing group proved himself a thoroughly worthy co-worker with him.

This group consisted of three Sarasate numbers; the "Zigeunerweisen," "Jota Navarra," Op. 22, and "Jota de San Fermin," Op. 36, these comprising an amazingly colorful group and one which, as well, included many phases of expressive and powerful playing.

Mr. Sebald has technic in such perfection that he compasses every phase of the violinist's art without effort. He is such a master of rhythm that he bends and holds this item to his own uses, always, however, giving an impression of absolute authority.

He has a tone of absolutely rich quality but which also he is able at will to mold from pianissimo to fortissimo, maintaining always, however, absolute purity.

His temperament is very great and his musical interpretation of the Sarasate numbers was marked by immense variety of thought and a constant play of artistic beauty.

Altogether this recital was one of the most delightful functions of the season and was so considered by the audience, which endorsed it with unusual enthusiasm.

C. E. W.

STELLA NEUHAUS

Stella Neuhaus, the eminent pianist who has met with such success in the East and in California, will make her Chicago debut in recital at the Fine Arts Theater on Monday afternoon, March 8.

The New York World states that "Stella Neuhaus seems rather to revitalize the composer than merely to interpret his meaning."

Another writer said "She is reminiscent of De Pachmann, and will not sacrifice beauty of tone for noise." (Advertisement).

ELLMER ZOLLER

Recent appearances of Mr. Zoller as pianist-accompanist have been as follows:

With Mme. Gabrilowitsch, Rochester, N. Y.
With Henry Parsons, Little Theater, New York City.

With U. S. Kerr, Elmira, N. Y.
With Amy Grant, opera recitals, New York City.
With Mme. De Courcey, moment musicales, New York City.

With Mme. Eurichetta Onelli, Hotel Plaza, New York City.
With Edgar Schofield, Hotel Biltmore, New York City.

With Moritz Kretzschmar, recital, New York City.
Piano recital, Newport, R. I.
With Alexander Bloch, School Masters' Association, New York City.

BACH CHORAL SOCIETY

An event of much importance will be the appearance of the Bach Choral Society at Orchestra Hall on Tuesday evening, March 2, under direction of John W. Norton.

Works of Bach and Mendelssohn will be sung, and the soloists will be Mable Corlew Smidt, Edith Ayers McCullough, Helen Bright Bengel, George Hamlin and Palmer Christian.

Oak Park—At the First Presbyterian Church of Oak Park on next Sunday at 4:15 p. m., Mrs. Mable Corlew Smidt, Miss Harriet McConnell and Mr. James Goddard will present a song program under direction of Mr. Edgar Nelson. Four cellists will assist.

Kaufman—Miss Mary Ann Kaufman will be soloist in "The Creation" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition on April 10. She gives song recitals at Richmond, Ind., March 3, and Newcastle, Ind., March 4.

Ballmann Concert—A program of international music will be given at North Side Turner Hall on Sunday afternoon, February 28, by Martin Ballmann's Orchestra. The soloists will be Ella Staud Denton, American contralto, and Gustav Adolph Hoffmann, cellist.

IN BRIEFER FORM

Burnetti—Glenn Stock, baritone, a pupil of Sebastian Burnetti, in Kimball Hall, made a successful appearance at Turner Hall a week ago.

Boyd—Miss Jeanne Boyd's "Wind From the South," "La Tarentella" and "In Italy" will be sung by Artur Platz, tenor, before the Glenn Dillard Gunn Interpretation Class next Saturday afternoon.

Dietch—Mr. Narley Noran has been chosen tenor soloist at Trinity Episcopal Church, Highland Park. Mr. Noran is from Cedar Rapids, and a pupil of Sidney Arno Dietch.

Donath—The Glee Club of the Culver Military Academy under the direction of Kurt Donath, sang at the concert given by the musical department of the academy on Monday, February 22.

Church Concert—Clarence B. Johnson, baritone, assisted by Antoinette Holmes, organist, and Rudolph Hachmeister, violinist, will give a recital-concert under the auspices of the Martha Society at the Immanuel Church, Evanston, March 4, 1915, at 8:15 o'clock.

Medini—Mme. Roena Medini gave a talk upon "Personal Reminiscences of Longfellow" at a meeting of the Woman's Guild of Plymouth Congregational Church on Tuesday afternoon, February 23, at the home of Mrs. Edwin B. Harts, 4725 Kimbark avenue.

St. Paul—The choir of St. Paul's Church, Fiftieth street and Dorchester avenue, under the direction of John Allen Richardson, will present Harold Moore's cantata, "The Darkest Hour," on next Sunday afternoon at 4:30. The soloists will be Richard Higgins, soprano; William Clifford, tenor, and Charles Rouse, baritone.

Cuyler Avenue M. E. Church, Oak Park, Ill.—The choir of the Cuyler Avenue Church will give their monthly musical service this Sunday evening. Special numbers will be given by Mr. Eschbach, tenor, and Miss Gertrude Duvigneaud, soprano, and Mr. E. B. Elmore, bass. Miss Marie Edwards is organist, and Mr. H. H. Williams, choir director.

Burnetti—Sebastian Shender, a young tenor, who is studying with Sebastian Burnetti, appeared with much credit to himself at the Hebrew Institute last Sunday afternoon, singing "E Luccvan le Stella," from "Tosca," "Your Eyes Have Told Me" (O'Hara), and "Vesti la Giubba" from "I Pagliacci."

FRANCES

INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Books and Music

"FESTIVAL CHORUS"

"Festival Chorus" (Glory and Honor), by Herbert J. Wrightson. (Chicago; the Gilbert Music Company.)

Notwithstanding the ramifications into hitherto unexplored fields by modern composers, all can at least agree upon the good old contrapuntal school as regards effective choral music. The composition under notice consists of an unusually fine five-part fugue (S. A. T. B. B.) with an introduction and finale in no less than nine real parts (S. S. S. A. A. T. T. B. B.). In this work Mr. Wrightson exhibits himself as the reverse of a pedant. While displaying remarkable erudition and skill, the composer of this "Festival Chorus" shows that spontaneity is the chief characteristic in his writing for chorus.

The nine-part chorale with which the composition opens and closes is no mere duplication of voices, for the said nine parts stand out clearly in individual utterance, and the effect, if sung by a chorus of anything like respectable size, should be most inspiring. And certainly no contemporary composer has written a better five-part fugue than Mr. Wrightson's "Glory and Honor."

A broad theme is enunciated by the first basses, answered by the tenors, following which the "return" occurs for the altos, in turn "answered" by the sopranos, the second basses completing the initial development six measures later.

Throughout the work there is every evidence of fine workmanship, plus real musical quality. It is no easy matter to write a good choral fugue; Beethoven did not write easily in this form and, to take an opposite extreme, neither did Rossini (see final chorus to latter's "Stabat Mater").

Mr. Wrightson is to be congratulated.

J. LEWIS BROWNE.

"Young People's History of Music"

By James C. Macy. Oliver Ditson Company.)

The subject matter of history, whether musical or otherwise, can be put in endless different ways, and thus a newness of flavor imparted to the fixed and familiar facts. In spite of the many histories extant, there seems always room for one more, each no doubt embodying, on the part of the author, some effort at improving the mode of presenting the subject to the mind of the student.

The work before us is very concise and straightforward, giving nine chapters to a like number of epochs or important subjects connected with music development, then a score or so of short biographies of composers, and finally the very briefest possible sketches of "Musical Form," "Appreciation" and "Music Printing." Each of the biographies is accompanied by a full-page portrait, and there are some interesting examples in music score in the chapters on the madrigal and the choral. The work is, in fact, a concentrated digest of matter which usually occupies much larger volumes or sets of volumes.

H. J. W.

FROM HELEN WARE'S FUNNY SCRAP BOOK

Poet, Peasant and Poor Fiddler

One of the most popular and prominent orchestra leaders of New York filled many dance engagements during his apprentice days. Most of these were played in the small wedding and dance halls on the East Side. His technic in those wild and woolly days was in constant disagreement with his good will.

Picture his consternation when, at a certain wedding in the Ghetto, the pianist chose the "Poet and Peasant" overture for the "show piece" of the orchestra. The poor fiddler felt beads of perspiration running down his forehead, so scared was he over some of the passages in his part.

Before he had a chance to suggest something with fewer notes in it, the pianist gave the signal and off he went on an errand he felt certain would end in a sad fiasco.

When he came to the impossible passage a sudden fright prompted inspiration and saved him from inevitable disgrace.

"Go away from here, children! Don't crowd around me! Can't you stand in that corner over there! How can you expect a man to draw out his bow with all of you crowding around him?" etc., etc.

He commenced to lecture and chase the curious little flock about him, and stuck to this energetic police duty until the rest of the orchestra sailed past the danger point. Then, with the grace of a born hero, he turned to his stand and played on with an eased heart—and heavier conscience.

h h h

Cassals and the Gypsy

On the occasion of his first visit to Budapest, Cassals had an experience he'll not forget for many moons to come.

After his sensational debut in the land of Magyars several prominent Hungarian artists introduced the famous Spanish artist to the gay life of Budapest.

During the wee hours of the morning the jolly company entered a cafe where Toll Jancsi, Hungary's greatest gypsy 'cellist, played as leader of one of the most prominent gypsy bands.

Cassals, like all great visiting artists, was fascinated with the remarkable playing of this queer-looking gypsy. Indeed, Toll's playing roused him to the point where he felt that the truest form of expressing his appreciation would be to play for this remarkable cello genius.

The gypsy gave Cassals his instrument with a look of skepticism and jealousy. This spirit was soon replaced by bewilderment, for as the great 'cellist played on the gypsy's cello, singing as it never had before, its owner stood by awe-struck and with gaping mouth. Suddenly when Cassals took some passages in a certain composition, quite unlike his own method, he stopped the Spanish master and lectured him on the advantages of his own method.

The Hungarian artists who introduced the gypsy to Cassals were rather embarrassed at the unexpected turn of events, and drawing the pedagogically inclined gypsy aside told him who his suddenly-begotten pupil was.

The gypsy turned as pale as a gypsy possibly can and offered endless apologies.

Cassals was greatly amused and to prove that there was no hard feeling he played on and on, just resting long enough to give the gypsy a chance to play for him his weird Hungarian melodies, then Cassals hugged the cello and again played for his enraptured small audience long after the cock had ushered in the new day.

Thus it happened that his first appearance in Budapest did not consist of one, but of several programs.

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

Mabel-Helen
ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwald Avenue - - - - - CHICAGO

Music News

ALICE VERLET
SOPRANO

CHICAGO, AMERICA

MARCH 5, 1915

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University-School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Furth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MARCH 5, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George W. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Mus.c
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall.	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey, Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, March 5, 1915

No. 10

Editorial

THIS SEEMS WORTH WHILE

Music News is very glad to publish this information. It has a ring of sincerity.

"The Scholarship and Extension Committee of the Lake View Musical Society offers to the music students of Cook County three $100 scholarships, one each in piano, violin and voice. The scholarships will be placed to the credit of the winning pupil for tuition with the teacher under whom the scholarship is won. The contest will be held the last of April. Piano contestants shall be prepared to play one composition each of Bach, Beethoven and Chopin.

"Violin contestants a movement each of a Bach sonata and a standard modern concerto.

"Voice contestants a solo and recitative from an oratorio, an aria from a standard opera and a group of Schubert and Schumann songs.

"Those wishing to contest should file application with the chairman of the committee, Mrs. Charles F. Hagenow, 120 East Forty-fourth street, not later than April 1.

"Each application must be accompanied by the recommendation of the teacher with whom the applicant shall have studied the whole of the present school year. A letter of personal recommendation will also be required.

"Contestants must not be over twenty-five years of age.

"Applications will be numbered as received, and these numbers will be used as place numbers in the contest.

"Detailed information will be mailed to applicants."

A LETTER

Mr. Charles E. Watt, Editor Music News, Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

Your editorial, "A Lesson from Tires," is indeed a commendable one and is replete with valuable information for the management of musical schools and colleges. Price-cutting is a joker in all lines of business and robs an institution of stability. My policy, and I want all the business that it is possible to get legitimately, is to let a prospect walk out of the door rather than cut a price. When price-cutting is once begun there is no end to it. I can see no use in a printed tuition list if it is to be changed to suit the occasion.

Tuition rates should not be exorbitant but should be honestly fixed whereby the pupil gets dollar for dollar and the school or college a reasonable profit. Partiality should not be shown. Every manager of

TO AN ACTOR—

Study your part, become the personage himself, but do not abdicate. Retain the direction of your double.

—Constant Coquelin.

a musical college should welcome articles along the line that you have written.

Thanking you for your article and the stand you have taken,

Yours very sincerely,

H. G. GAMBER,

Business Manager P. M. C.

February 26, 1915.

A LETTER

Chicago, Ill., February 29, 1915.

My Dear Mr. Watt:

I wish to express my appreciation of your excellent criticism on the recent performance of the Apollo Club, February 22.

It was keen, unprejudiced and just from every point of view. Music News is becoming known and valued because of its fearlessness in telling the truth. It does not hesitate to give to its readers the honest opinion of the editor, who, by the way, is not a mere "man about town," but is one who is devoting his life to the betterment of music.

Sincerely yours,

G. D. P.

MRS. MORRIS PROTESTS

Music News is in receipt of the following letter, written on stationery of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, Mrs. Morris, the writer, being secretary of the Federation:

February 24, 1915.

Charles E. Watt,
Chicago.

Dear Sir:

Will you kindly cancel my subscription to The Music News, for anyone with as narrow a viewpoint as you expressed in an article in your last issue, in regard to the National Federation of Musical Clubs' "Student Contest" plan, should not receive support from the musical people working for greater and better things. Are you not informed that the Federation has given and is giving MANY CASH prizes and could give and do much more, only by the hindrance of just such views as you expressed in your magazine.

Respectfully,

(Signed) MRS. J. S. MORRIS.

Music News has not the remotest wish to antagonize the Federation of Musical Clubs. On the contrary, we will willingly do all in our power to help promote the legitimate and very remarkable work of this body.

We do believe, however, that the plan of competition for appearance of young artists at Las Angeles is absurd and that the "rewards" offered are ridiculous.

Mrs. Morris has said nothing in her letter which will serve to dispel this impression.

However, our columns are open to her, or to any member of the Federation, or the general public, for an expression of opinion in the matter or for explanations of the plan.

As to the innuendo that Music News is ignorant of the real plans of the Federation, we admit that it may be true.

We have offered, several times, to print all announcements as to contests, etc., whenever they may be sent to us. In spite of this offer, for many months nothing whatever has come to this office from the office of the Federation.

It is deemed sufficient, probably, to print the various news and announcements in the "official organ" of the Federation, but

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927
at Gorton School

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkerud, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR
SOPRANO
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94
Concerts Recitals

JENNIE M. TAYLOR
ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Beosoo Amusement Exchange, 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Music News does not care to get its information from this source. Neither does the public read it in sufficient numbers to make it thoroughly reliable for the dissemination of news.

Music News again repeats its offer to print all news and comment which may emanate from the Federation offices, and if in the future we are "ignorant" of Federation events, the fault shall be laid directly where it belongs—at the door of the Federation itself.

CAMILLE SAINT-SAENS, WORLD'S GREATEST SYMPHONIC COMPOSER, TO RENDER HIS OWN COMPOSITIONS AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, AT SAN FRANCISCO

Camille Saint-Saens, universally recognized as one of the two greatest composers of orchestral music in the world, will be part and parcel of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

George W. Stewart, director of the department of music at the exposition on his visit to Paris recently, prevailed upon the aged master—now 80 years old—to accept an engagement to conduct a series of at least four concerts at this exposition, where in the greatest of his own compositions will be rendered. In one of these great concerts, Saint-Saens will play one of his concertos, with orchestral accompaniment by the official exposition orchestra of 80 pieces, and in others he will preside at the pipe organ.

Of equal interest to music lovers the world over is the announcement made this week by Saint-Saens in a cablegram to Director Stewart, saying that out of compliment to the United States, and to the great exposition in which he is vastly interested, he now is hard at work writing an elaborate musical composition to be dedicated to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. This work also will be rendered at the exposition under his personal direction.

Just what form this pretentious work will take is still a secret; but that it will be a tremendous composition, with the exposition as its theme, suggesting among other things, man's mighty and victorious struggle with nature, as exemplified in the completion of the Isthmian Canal begun by Saint-Saens' compatriot, De Lesseps, is assured. It is probable also that woven through the theme in episodic manner will be the "Marseillaise" and the "Star Spangled Banner," this tentative suggestion having been made to the great composer by Mr. Stewart, in response to Saint-Saens' request that some vital and appropriate motif be laid before him.

Saint-Saens' connection with the great exposition at San Francisco will be not merely that of a "guest-conductor," but rather that of a distinguished guest, formally engaged to conduct his own compositions. He will be associated with the exposition for some two or three weeks, the exact date to be announced.

Despite the fact that he has reached the advanced age of four score years, the great composer still is vigorous and full of the same fire of genius which enabled him to contribute to the world at least 150 great musical compositions, including six operas, a dozen symphonies and symphony poems, many suites, military marches and overtures, near a score of concerts for various instruments, and an enormous amount of chamber and choral music.

"The composition which Saint-Saens is writing for the exposition, and to which he is dedicating it," said Director Stewart, "very probably will take the form, not of a symphony but of a symphonic poem, a type in which the great master excels. That his engagement by the exposition, and the fact that he is at work on a special composition to be rendered here in honor of this great international jubilee, will be an event of the highest importance to the musical world is evidenced by the fact that in every music center of the world Saint-Saens is recognized as easily one of the two greatest living composers of orchestral music. Who the other one is may be a subject of controversy; but there is no doubt as to Saint-Saens' right to be named as one of the two."

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 200
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW
CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER
CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER
BARITONE
Concerts Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN
Baritone
324 North Spring Street La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis
Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN
CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar William Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW
PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

Music in Chicago

CHAMBER MUSIC EVENINGS

The first of three evenings of chamber music announced under the direction of Miss Rachel B. Kinsolving, took place on Tuesday evening (23rd ult.) at Fine Arts Assembly Room. An ideal place for such music it proved to be to the very large and well pleased audience assembled.

The program opened with a thoroughly well rounded and enjoyable performance of the Richard Strauss "Sonata" for 'cello and piano by Miss M. Jennette Loudon and Mr. Carl Brueckner. In fact, nothing which came later exceeded the pleasure of this repetition of an eminently satisfactory bit of music. It has such an ingratiating way of interesting the most casual listener by its insistent, questioning theme given to the 'cello in the very first measures of the allegro. Then it goes on to stir the emotions of those who sense a stately rhythm in the almost requiem-like march movement which is the foundation of the Andante—"not too slow." And there is a brilliant, dashing vivo to make agreeable contrast and bring the work to a close. It has the qualities of endurance in it by reason of its quite obvious melodiousness, and there is freshness and vivacity over every page. It won't do to pass it by as the product of the callow days of Strauss—it is capably good music today. The artists played it fervently, Miss Loudon using well designed and executed nuances to vary and follow the moods and Mr. Brueckner preserving an always adequate balance to complete an ensemble that was felt to be the result of artistic sincerity. The same qualities also made for additional pleasure when Saint-Saens' compact concerto for 'cello was reached on the program. Mr. Brueckner proved himself adept in the more obvious smaller numbers on his list, even giving a taste of the pyrotechnics and gymnastics with which Servais turned and twisted the old waltz theme which he used for text in "O Cara Memoria." That it has not outlived its vitality was proven by the rousing encore it provoked. For this, Mr. Brueckner and Miss Loudon used the Schumann "Evening Song" and played it with such lingering tenderness and beauty of tone and phrase that it exercised its inalienable right to set mind and heart at peace and start the visions afresh.

Mrs. Marie White Clark contributed to the program two groups of songs. In the very last of these she revealed her best endeavor—the "Chanson Provencale" of Dell'Acqua. The voice is light and flexible and lent itself readily to the decoration afforded by this number. Mrs. Clark sings intelligently, meaningly and uses with good taste and judgment her natural and acquired abilities. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Tiffin, Ohio—Miss Maizee Bridges, a former student of Professor Frank W. Gillis, director of the Heidelberg Conservatory of Music, Tiffin, Ohio, gave a very successful recital in Rickly Chapel, assisted by Professor Emil Steurmer, violinist.

AT THE MUNRO STUDIOS

Mr. George W. Munro believes in setting definite mile-stones for his pupils and when one is reached he believes also in celebrating the event and in inviting the clientele of the school to come in, hear the work, and rejoice with the one who has made the definite attainment.

This spring Mr. Munro is presenting three pupils who have been with him some years, as finished products of his studio, the plan being to have them give the same program twice, at intervals of about four months, the first time illustrating the fact that the technical equipment of the pupil is considered complete, the second recital illustrating the further fact that finish and style have been applied.

Miss Vesta Marrs was introduced on last Saturday evening in her preliminary program and it will certainly be interesting to hear her again four months hence and to see what additional style she may put into the same works.

Miss Marrs has been with Mr. Munro four years, and came to him as a contralto (so named by four different teachers), and with a very small vocal equipment.

Now she is a coloratura soprano with more than three octaves in her range and with a good, serviceable D in altissimo to cap her climaxes when necessary.

Her quality is such now as to make any one marvel that she could ever have been called anything other than coloratura soprano and her facility is likewise remarkable.

Among the songs heard the Bantock Cycle "Songs of the Seraglio" proved to be somber but nevertheless of entirely suitable mood for her voice and these were done with thoughtful precision and musical effect.

"Five Songs," by Gilberte, were also wholly fine, the "Minuet" proving a perfect gem, "The Little Red Ribbon" delightful and "A Rose and a Dream" being thoroughly remarkable in the ease with which its high tones were negotiated.

The charming "Waltz Song" for The Doll in "Tales of Hoffman" was given with such ease and facility as to leave no possibility for doubt but that in such work Miss Marrs has found her correct metier and Herbert's "Love Laid His Sleepless Head" was another example of true coloratura.

Miss Marrs sang also works by Woodforde-Finden, MacDermid, Dell'Acqua, Ware, Bartlett and Bishop, and was rewarded throughout the program and at its close by most enthusiastic endorsement from the audience.

Accompaniments were well done by Mrs. Elsa McMynn. C. E. W.

Bohnet—Mr. Cleveland Bohnet gave a lecture-recital before the Foreign Study Club of Kankakee on March 4, will play a piano recital before the Marseilles (Ill.) Woman's Club on the 8th, and appear as soloist before the La Salle County Association at Lostant on the 9th.

FRANK W. Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903.

Mary STEEL
Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall - - - - - CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam T.B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

BATAVIA MUSICAL CLUB GIVES CONCERT

On Tuesday evening, February 23, the Batavia Musical Club of forty voices, under the direction of H. B. Bartholomew, gave a splendid performance of Gaul's "Joan of Arc" before a large audience in the Batavia Congregational Church.

The soloists enlisted for the rendition were Naomi Nator, soprano; Lawrence B. Reeder, tenor, and Edwin F. Quinn, bass. Miss Madge Geiss, pianist, and Miss Edna Cota, organist, furnished the accompaniments.

That Mr. Bartholomew is an exceptionally good conductor was proven by the smoothness with which the entire performance was carried out. He directs with assurance and intelligence and his singers undoubtedly gain much inspiration from the enthusiastic manner with which he enters into the work at hand. Also Mr. Bartholomew is a most exacting drill master, for his chorus has rounded into a fine singing body, offering at all times a fine tonal quality, considerable shading and confidence in their mastery of the music being rendered.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

Much of the "Joan of Arc" is very singable, but there is some which is very near impossible. The first chorus number, "Hail to the Beautiful Morning of May," was splendidly sung and the somber, colorful strains of "Our Time of Sorrow Has Begun" was one of the best numbers presented by the chorus. "The Maid—She Is Come At Last" received a very spirited reading, and there was a genuine thrill in "On To the Battle, On." "Glad Our Thanks Arise" was another number well sung and worthy of special mention.

The style of singing presented by this chorus kept one far from thinking that this was their first public concert. We had to be told this fact after the performance. They should go far in their work of the future and become a big factor in the life of Batavia and the people of that little city may well give them unstinted support.

The soloists were well chosen and sang their allotted portions of the work with great credit and their voices entered into certain ensemble numbers in a beautiful manner. Miss Nator was in elegant voice and her charming personality added much to the pleasure accorded the audience through her contributions of the evening. There is a wealth of fine music given the part of Joan which proved very grateful to the voice and interpretative gifts of Miss Nator. The recitative, "They Sleep; My Thoughts Are of Home," and the aria, "A Ring, a Simple Ring," were sung in a very delightful and praiseworthy manner. "Is It Here That I Must Die?" was very effectively given also by Miss Nator.

Mr. Reeder, a pupil of Mr. Bartholomew, is a young tenor who well deserves recognition and should be heard from. He possesses a very pleasing voice and he uses it with a great deal of intelligence. He also possesses confidence in his resources, and a fine style of delivery. The aria, "There Is No One Like Her," was sung in a manner by Mr. Reeder which placed it among the more beautiful numbers of the evening. He knew his music especially well. Perhaps the most enjoyable number, for the greater part of the audience at least, judging from the applause which followed its completion, was the duet for bass and tenor, "Full Flows the River," Mr. Reeder and Mr. Quinn indeed gave it a most finished and effective rendition.

Mr. Quinn was successful throughout the evening. His voice is one to be envied and much admired. Full and resonant, yet sympathetic at all times, he is most satisfactory in every line of song which he offers. That rousing and stirring patriotic song, "Who Would Not Fight for Freedom," is the one big portion allotted the bass and Mr. Quinn sang its lines with telling effect. He received the most ardent approval of the audience for his excellent part in the performance.

Miss Geiss played wholly satisfactory accompaniments for the soloists and shared equally with Miss Cota the praise which goes out for the fine support given to the chorus numbers. H. M. B.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

Sunday, March 7, at 4, Jessie Mack Hamilton, soprano, Grace Keesler, accompanist, will give the following program at her home, 5057 Winthrop avenue. "Ode To Night," by Laura Drake Harris, and Palmer John Clark's "Mary Jane" and "Summer Winds" will be of especial interest:

Air from Elijah	Mendelssohn
Du bist die Ruh	Schubert
Er ist's	Wolf
Should He Upbraid	Bishop
Oh, Si Les Fleurs Avaient Des Yeux	Massenet
Ouvrez	Dessauer
Spanish Love Song	Chaminade
I Saw The First When Cherries Bloomed
Ode To Night	Laura Drake Harris
Mary Jane	Palmer John Clark
Summer Winds	Palmer John Clark
The Voice of Philomel	Chadwick

St. Paul's Universalist Church—The musical program at St. Paul's Universalist Church for Sunday evening, March 7, will be given by Ruth Brechtspraak, violinist; Edith Clyde, harpist; Ella Smith, organist; Mrs. W. Middelschulte, accompanist.

HAROLD BAUER

The Master Pianist Who Appeared in Recital Sunday, February 21, at Orchestra Hall

Writes of Mason & Hamlin the - - -

MASON & HAMLIN CO.,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

It gives me keen pleasure to testify once more to the excellence of your pianos.

Since my first visit to this country, eight years ago, my admiration for these noble instruments has increased with each successive tour.

The instruments I have used this year not only represent the most perfect examples of the piano maker's art, but fulfill every imaginable requirement from the point of view of both pianist and audience, and are the most superbly beautiful instruments that I know.

(Signed) HAROLD BAUER.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

STUDIO RECITAL

Tuesday evening, February 23, Miss Sarah E. Paine, pianist, and Miss Myra A. Paine, violinist, appeared in a recital at the studio in Kimball Hall.

The Misses Paine opened the program with the "Allegro" from the Sonata, Op. 19, Sjorgen, giving it with a vigor and abandonment that was very convincing and much enjoyed. Miss Paine, pianist, gave a group of Chopin numbers as her solo group heard by this writer. Miss Paine gets a good tone from her instrument and she has very reliable technic at her command. She displayed much musicianship and interpretative ability in the renditions of the Chopin numbers. The "Ballade," Op. 23, "Impromptu" in F sharp, Op. 36 and the "Valse" in A flat major, Op. 42, comprised the group. The "Impromptu" and the "Valse" were especially well done.

Miss Paine, violinist, gave the "Allegro Vivace" from the Mendelssohn concerto a very good rendition. She has good technic, much musical ability and she was heard with much pleasure. A goodly number of music lovers and friends greeted them with much applause. The last half of the program was not heard by this writer, but it is safe to say it was carried through in a praiseworthy manner. H. W. P.

Weber—Miss Henriette Weber appeared jointly with Miss Anne Larkin in melodramas before the Lake View Musical Society last Saturday afternoon and in joint recital with Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner at Lake Forest on Wednesday.

LEWIS INSTITUTE PAGEANT

Lewis Institute has given some splendid entertainments in the past and such is the fame of them that the Chicago Auditorium, vast as it is, can be filled whenever one of their unusual events is offered.

On last Friday evening the place was sold out and such enthusiasm as was present is encountered but rarely.

The affair was thoroughly elaborate and would require a very long review indeed to cover all its phases. It is possible, therefore, to merely touch upon some of the most salient features.

The book for "The Pageant" was written by Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Langworthy, and was such as to prove her a writer of distinction—one also whose knowledge of stagecraft must be thoroughly fine.

The work was divided into four units, and each one vied with the others in splendor of dress and movement, the whole forming a series of pictures which will remain in memory for many months.

There were hundreds of young people employed and the knowledge and skill shown in acting, elocution, dancing and posing was amazing.

The entertainment was given without a hitch—the scenes were well managed, the grouping of all factors was done most intelligently and the lighting particularly was so fine as to be worthy of special comment.

The entire production was buoyed up and shot through and through with music and this part of the work was in the capable hands of Mr. George L. Tenney, who again showed himself a master.

As a basis, he had a large orchestra, besides piano, for accompaniments, and the work done by these was very good indeed, Miss Ruth Simmons, at the piano, proving a host in herself.

Then the chorus was altogether remarkable and again and again rose to points of eloquent utterance very seldom heard from a student body and which reflected immense credit on the skill of Mr. Tenney as a drill master and director.

The musical numbers were selected from a great variety of sources and were well chosen and well presented.

"Invictus" was well sung by Dean De Butts; Schubert's "Omnipotence" was admirably done by Adelaide Brown (Mrs. Tenney), with chorus; MacDermid's "Sacrament" proved very attractive as sung by Kathryn Wyre; McKee's "Morning Song" was well done by Edward Fabel and the chorus, as also the "Spring Song" ("Flying Dutchman"), by Frances Angell and chorus.

The Cadman "Spirit of Spring" was sung by a quartet so beautifully that it had to be repeated and Eugene Dressler, in the "Robin Hood" Serenade, made a splendid impression.

Ethel Shapiro led the chorus admirably in Costa's "Triumphal March," and Nathalie Gilmartin in a lot of coloratura work in the last unit proved that she is another Tenney "find"—one of rare charm and beauty of voice; while Ellin Jones and the chorus made much nice music of the "Faust Waltz."

The chorus was splendid in a number of instances and the Men's Glee Club was particularly good in the "Blue Danube Waltzes."

A feature of very prime importance was the series of dances seen in the last unit. These introduced scores of young ladies, all of whom were good, some being exceptional.

This feature of the entertainment was very unusual and far exceeded in effectiveness the more pretentious dancing seen at the Blackstone Theater on Thursday afternoon, when another local school presented its pupils in opera. C. E. W.

LAKEVIEW MUSICAL SOCIETY

The president's reception of the Lakeview Musical Society at Martine's Hall on last Saturday afternoon was attended by many members and guests and an exceptionally attractive music program was rendered which this writer was privileged to hear.

Katherine Norfleet, an artist pupil of Ludwig Becker, was heard in a violin solo and proved herself the possessor of good technic and a fine musical temperament.

Hans Handke, a German pianist, lately come to Chicago, played his own very effective arrangement of the Svendsen "Romance" (originally for violin), and some other piano numbers with a most beautiful tonal quality and in such way as to prove himself the possessor of technic and temperament in abundance.

Mrs. Frederica Downing sang "Down in the Forest" (Ronald) and "Sunset" by Dudley Buck so beautifully as to challenge the admiration of everyone present. Her voice is delightful and her musical style is beyond reproach. Her reception by the club was very enthusiastic.

Mrs. John Fremont Murphy, who came to Chicago from New York several years ago, was heard also at this time in a well-chosen list of songs and at once proved her right to be classed as among the most attractive and effective of local singers.

Her voice is rich, round and free. Her temperamental equipment is fine and her musical style very good.

She sang Ronald's "Prelude" (Cycle of Life) with much vivacity, the "Voi che sapete" (Mozart) with thoroughly suave and beautiful style and Woodman's "Song of Joy" with spirit and charm.

Miss Henriette Weber and Miss Ann Larkin added to the program a number of their "Melodrames" and were, as always, thoroughly fine and equally successful. The most novel of their numbers to this writer was a setting of "Come into the Garden, Maud" (Tennyson), although the Arensky "How Beautiful Were Once the Roses" again proved also to be a work of infinite charm and expressiveness as given by these talented artists. C. E. W.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANIST TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogies
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4563 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINEVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTSBUILDING CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.

64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. M. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Axe

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.
620 Kimball Hall

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS...730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
631d Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

M. ROSE BURNS GIVES LECTURE-RECITAL

The audience which gathered in Hamilton Park Assembly Hall on Wednesday evening, February 24, to hear the lecture-recital given by M. Rose Burns, president of the Burns School of Music, Physical Expression and Etiquette, 436 West Sixty-third street, was given a rare treat through the medium of Mrs. Burns' splendid lecture and the delightful numbers offered by her pupils.

Mrs. Burns is a woman of strong personality, possesses a charming stage presence, is well versed on musical topics, and presents her lecture with elegant voice and conviction. She had something of much interest and educational value to say about each number of the program, and the audience was enthusiastic in its approval of her intelligent talk. She is working hard to create and strengthen a desire and taste for standard music, and the program which she offered on Friday night is wholly commendable and merits repetition and imitation. She brought parents in closer touch with the work their children are doing in music. The young child as well as the advanced music student received ideas that will be helpful in his own work, and the laymen were led to learn how to find new and more interest in listening to music. These are the features of musical activity in which Mrs. Burns was actively engaged while in Europe last year.

The program opened with Elizabeth Kleker playing the "Valse Arabesque," by Hendricks, in good style. Maude McKendry, Elsie Hannon and Myrtle Pesauski were three little girls who brought delight to the audience through their playing of "Jubelfirer," by Kramer, a fine number for six hands.

Miss Helen Mitchell offered a well selected monolog, which was much enjoyed.

Catherine Bellis, a young and praiseworthy pianist, played with splendid results four movements from "Sowing the Seed," by Adams.

Kathryn Boddy pleased the audience immensely with two laughable readings. Edna De Lude played a "Sonata" by Clementi and a "Melody" by Rubinstein in a manner denoting much study and careful training, as did the playing of a "Melody" by Beethoven and an ancient style "Dance" by Chaminade.

Jane Flaws was another reader who brought added enjoyment into the evening's program, and Mr. Henry Ohlendorf closed the program with "Shepherdess Song," by Labitsky, and "Mazurka," by Paderewski.

A reception followed. H. M. B.

Woodworth—Miss Mabel Woodworth, violinist, was one of the soloists at the concert given in Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon, February 20, by the American Conservatory. On Sunday afternoon, February 21, she played at the open-door meeting of the Chicago Woman's Club, and on Tuesday evening, February 23, she appeared before the Irving Park Sorosis Club.

Greulich—Anna Breining Greulich sang on Saturday, February 27, at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Elmhurst. The event is a choir benefit concert.

"THE SORCERER"

Presented by the Choirs of Christ Church

Tuesday evening, February 16, the choirs of Christ Church presented Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Sorcerer," at the Parish Hall.

The opera was given under the auspices of the Choir Guild of Christ Church; George Bainbridge, director; Mason Slade, musical director; Mrs. Alice Crane, accompanist, and Mrs. Helen C. Tunison, business manager. The Harvey-Fiske Orchestra assisted.

The dramatis personae is as follows: Sir Marmaduke Poindextre, Roscoe Starek; Alexis, W. A. Wallace; Mr. Daly, Seymour Neill; Notary, John Baker; John Wellington Wells, John Drybough; Lady Sangazure, Mrs. Charles Young; Aline, Dorothy Neill; Mrs. Partlet, Cora Blatch; Constance, Mrs. Grace Fisher; Imps, Messrs. Ballantyne and Hooper.

The musical director performed the lion's share of the work at the conductor's stand. Mr. Slade proved himself to be a conductor who believes in holding things together, and he succeeded in a manner that was praise meriting in every respect. Mr. Bainbridge did his share of the work unseen, but in a very capable manner, for everything went smoothly. The solo and chorus parts were taken by members of the choir and church, and they acquitted themselves in a very commendable manner. They all sang on the key, and not a single hitch or slip of memory to mar the success of the entire production. The performance was so much better in every respect than those given in Chicago recently by an all-star cast that comparison could only add more credit to the presentation seen at the Christ Church Parish. The sincerity of purpose with which they did things and the desire to make the production a success was not without reward. Mr. Slade, as musical director, should feel justly proud of the work, and so may all those who helped to a successful end. H. W. P.

JOHN LORING COOK

Tuesday, February 23, Mr. Cook presented his lyric club of ladies' voices in concert at the Quadrangle Club of the University of Chicago. This club of singers has been rehearsing the last winter on various part songs, and their work Tuesday gave ample evidence that their time has been well spent. Cadman's "Indian Mountain Song" and "The Willow," by Thomas, were especially attractive and, in point of attack, shading and phrasing, the club left nothing to be desired.

The soloists at this concert were Edith Langdon Kresin, Irene Sage and Emelinda Makeel. Mrs. Kresin always pleases with her clever style, clear enunciation and beautiful voice. Miss Sage has made remarkable progress in her work with Mr. Cook, and was highly successful in her numbers, especially "Will o' the Wisp." Miss Makeel showed much improvement in style, and sang with freedom and apparent ease.

International College of Music—The International College of Music furnished the program at the Eastern Star entertainment in their club room in the Masonic Temple lately. Among those appearing was Miss Gertrude Campbell, pianist.

WILLIAM BEARD AND HIS PUPILS BUSY

Mr. William Beard, head of the vocal department of the Walter Spry Music School, is having an exceedingly busy season. His class of pupils contains many of the best young voices in the city, and the success attained by several singers from Mr. Beard's studio is proof of his efficiency as a teacher.

The choral class which was recently organized under the leadership of Mr. Beard is doing faithful and satisfactory work. The class meets on Monday evenings at 8 p. m., at the Spry Music School, 712 Fine Arts Building. The organization is open to all vocal students, whether member of the school or not. Mr. Beard announces that he particularly needs more basses and altos.

The activities of several Beard pupils are as follows:

Miss Margaret Messer achieved great success last week when she sang a recital of songs made up of compositions from Godard, German, Bond, Guedy and Saint-Saens at the Lawton Parkes studios on the north side. Miss Messer also sang recently at the Children's Welfare League with equal success.

William Preston Phillips, who is a successful teacher of voice at Bloomington Ill., and a splendid singer, will be one of the soloists at the concert offered by the Society of American Musicians at Fullerton Hall on Friday evening, March 5.

Miss Charlotte Johnson, soprano, is on a five weeks' concert tour through the south.

Mr. Frank M. Nellis, baritone, sang at Loyola Academy last week and was received with much acclaim.

— — —

ESTELLA NEUHAUS

East and west unite in praise of the exquisite pianism of Estella Neuhaus, who is to make her first appearance in Chicago at the Fine Arts Theater next Monday afternoon.

Miss Neuhaus is an artist of rare ability. She has given recitals in the White House for Mrs. Taft, at the executive mansion in Albany, and in the homes of the most prominent society leaders in the east and California. Her list of patronesses for her concerts in New York, Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Portland include the names of the most prominent women, socially and musically, in those cities.

Olin Downes, in the Boston Post, says: "Estella Neuhaus displayed to the greatest advantage a tone of exceptional beauty and elegance and refinement of style." Redfern Mason, San Francisco Examiner: "Miss Neuhaus manifested the most poetic depth, and I greatly enjoyed the way in which she caused to sing the lovely melodic elements of the 'Andante Spianato.'" The Los Angeles Times says: "Her style reminds of De Pachmann. Indeed, in her vital interpretations lies her forte but, aside from her ability as a pianist, her programs stand out as unusual and distinctly lovely"; while the New York Herald says: "Estella Neuhaus is an artist of rare ability." (Advertisement.)

MISS BELDON'S CONCERT

A number of talented violin and piano pupils were presented in recital by Miss Ethel Beldon Tuesday evening, February 23, in studio, 730 Fine Arts Building, Chicago.

Nadine Schirmer, in a Bach "Invention," gave conscientious attention to the "Leading of the Voices" and showed growing mastery of other difficulties, and a high order of musical intelligence in a brilliant solo, "Hungary," by Hoelling.

Mildred Cornish played remarkably well, giving a poignant and skillful reading of Lack's "Moment de Caprice." She supplied tasteful accompaniments to two songs and joined Ora Ballinger in a "Sonata" movement by Grieg, which was a highly creditable piece of ensemble.

No matter what composition is chosen as the medium for displaying the skill and musicianship of Ora Ballinger, he realizes and brings to bear on it a vital interpretation, with a maturity far in advance of his years. Thus the sentiment of the Kreisler "Liebesfreud" lost nothing in his hands and the difficulties of the David variations were overcome with ease and great finish. Johanna Wadles has a sweet soprano voice, which she supplements with very good taste when her technic is inadequate.

Others who took part were Mrs. Marion Walkers, Stella Wadles, Kathryn Egan, and Beulah and Norman Anderson.

— — —

Davis—Ernest J. Davis, tenor, gave a program for the Welsh Society at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium Saturday, February 27. Daniel Protheroe furnished the accompaniments.

THE WESTERN CONSERVATORY

A pupils' concert was given at the cozy rooms of the Western Conservatory on Tuesday evening of last week by piano pupils of Mr. E. H. Scott and voice pupils of Mr. H. W. Owens, which was attended by as many people as could get into the room set aside for the program.

The Western Conservatory is very fortunate in having rooms which lend themselves admirably to recital purposes, and the clientele of this school often finds its way to the fifteenth floor of the Mallers Building to enjoy these functions.

On Tuesday evening Miss Harriet Schnitker's very nice lyric soprano voice was heard in "Mifanwy" (Foerster) and her musicianship and enunciation were proven to be satisfactory.

Mrs. Leota Fletcher sang Cadman's "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," showing her voice to be a round, rich one and her musical style very good, while Mr. Archer Ballantine, in an aria from Haydn's "Creation," showed good voice and a fine style for oratorio.

The pupils of Mr. Scott exhibited good tone and rhythm, as well as accuracy of reading and much care in musical expression in a list of good salon pieces. Those playing were Mr. Alvin Thomas, Miss Margaret Butler, Miss Joy Sievers, Miss Alice Davies, Miss Agnes Howard, Miss Pearl Fountain, Miss Adeline Eriksen, Mr. Charles Bourrie, Miss Lottie Norris, Miss Irene Keeler and Mr. William Luckow.

— — —

Ehrhardt—Mr. Edward V. Ehrhardt, pianist, gave a recital at the Iowa Wesleyan University, Mt. Pleasant, Ia., Wednesday, March 3.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract

26th Year

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHO E CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS

5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE OPERA PERFORMANCE

A performance of great proportions and one, too, which introduced much finish of detail was the opera program given by the Chicago Musical College at the Blackstone Theater on last Thursday afternoon.

There was a large audience present, and much enthusiasm was shown for the work of the young artists engaged in the performance of one act each of "Samson and Delilah," "Madame Butterfly" and "La Traviata."

The performances, taken as a whole, were remarkably good for students work, but the chief charm of the afternoon lay in the individual efforts of several young artists whose work was notably good; in fact, in

MISS JANE MAC ARTHUR
as "Mme. Butterfly"

many cases it was truly professional in character.

That Edoardo Sacerdote is a fine teacher will go without saying, inasmuch as many of the best singers of the operas are pupils in his studio, but it is equally certain that he is only a fairly good orchestra and choral director.

The orchestra was rather important in numbers and seemed complete as to instruments, while the chorus was all that was necessary for the limited use to which it was put, but Mr. Sacerdote failed many times to keep these forces in strict accord, one with the other.

The stage setting for "Madame Butterfly" was fine; indeed, so beautiful and appropriate was it that it might well serve as a model for many professional performances.

On the other hand, the setting used for "Traviata" was very commonplace, and that for "Samson and Delilah" was absurdly inappropriate.

The dancing shown was distinctly of the amateur variety. It was doubtless fine as

ELSA STAUD DENTON
as "Delilah"

H. STANLEY DEACON
as "High Priest of Dagon"

an example of classroom work, but so far short of being professional in any sense that it gave but little pleasure to the audience.

Under these circumstances the burden fell heavily upon the principals in the various casts, and in this respect the afternoon was a glittering success, for, as said above, very rarely has any school presented so many fine singers in one performance, and the work of most of them would distinctly grace any professional grand opera company.

In "Samson and Delilah" the three parts "Delilah," "Samson" and "The High Priest of Dagon" were sung respectively by Elsa Staud Denton, Dan S. Denton and H. Stanley Deacon, all doing exceptionally fine work.

Mrs. Denton has a rich contralto voice, fine personality and much acting ability. She sang the two big arias of the second act with much display of vocal beauty and power, and in the duets with "Samson" and the "High Priest" she displayed fine musicianship and great artistic abilities.

EDITH SCHUMAN

Mr. Dan S. Denton not only sang "Samson," but was heard also as "Goro" in "Madame Butterfly" and as "Alfredo" in "Traviata"—certainly a big afternoon's work.

In "Samson" he acted with power and accomplished his ensemble work with great artistry; as "Goro" he presented an original conception of the part and was thoroughly effective, while as "Alfredo" he gave a fine exposition of vocal art.

Mr. H. Stanley Deacon also had three parts to sing, chief of which was the "High Priest" in "Samson and Delilah," which he delivered with such authority, both vocal and histrionic, as to prove very conclusively that he has a strong bent for the operatic stage and that he will be very successful thereon.

The work of Mrs. Denton, Mr. Denton and Mr. Deacon in "Samson and Delilah" had been well considered individually and it had also been amalgamated into a concise and effective whole. The audience recognized it as distinctly professional in tone, and accorded it enthusiastic endorsement.

Mr. Deacon also sang "Sharpless" in "Madame Butterfly" with distinction, giving the music suavely and the action with discretion, and he also appeared in the part of the "Barone" in "Traviata," materially helping to life that performance to artistic heights.

In "Butterfly" a great surprise was presented to the audience in the work of Miss Jane MacArthur, who gave a reading to the title part which was at once original and distinctive. Miss MacArthur looked the part as no passe prima donna of the regular boards could hope to do, and her voice also was charmingly fresh and sweet.

"Onc Fine Day" was sung with much vocal skill and a truly inspired feeling for its story, while the splendid "Flower Duet," with Miss Edith Schuman, was also done with great skill and effect.

Miss MacArthur has a truly fine conception of the part of "Butterfly," and besides singing the music with much of vocal charm and sweetness, she realized the part of the young Japanese girl as it has been realized but seldom. She acted every scene with style and finish and her scene with the Baby was particularly winsome and effective.

Miss Edith Schuman had a very clear and very convincing idea of the character of "Suzuki" and played the part with real dramatic ability. Her costume was very attractive and she held closely to accepted Japanese traditions in all that she did. Her voice is rich, full and vibrant, and suited the music of the part to perfection. Her solo bits were excellently done and in all the ensembles she showed herself a thorough musician.

Mr. William Irving did small parts in "Butterfly" and in "Traviata" very well and Miss May Pfeiffer and Mr. Joseph Singer were also heard to advantage in the latter opera.

Another sensation of the afternoon was the work of Ella O'Neal Corrigan, who, as "Violetta" in "Traviata," proved herself a singer and an actress of great ability.

The "Ah Fors e Lui" was done with great effect, in fact, much better than it is often done by singers in the front ranks of opera and throughout the long and difficult scene Mrs. Corrigan proved herself fully mistress of the Verdi score.

Her voice is of an exceptionally sweet quality, and is thoroughly unusual in the ease with which coloratura effects are manipulated. Although she came at the end of a long and taxing program, the applause for her work was of the highest degree of enthusiasm, and every bit of it was honestly won.

Altogether, these young artists may well consider that their work of last Thursday was in the highest degree creditable to their teachers and also that it contained ample promise of future successes of the most pronounced sort. C. E. W.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, March 5

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Fullerton Hall, 8:15; Carol Robinson and William Preston Phillips, piano and song recital.

Saturday, March 6

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, March 7

Fine Arts Theater 3:30; Mae Doelling-Rene Lund, joint recital.

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

Assembly Hall, 3:30; Carol Robinson-Josephine Gerwing, piano and violin recital.
Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Josef Hofmann.
Fullerton Hall, 8:00; opera lecture.

Monday, March 8

Fine Arts Theater, 3:00; Estella Neuhaus, piano recital.

Tuesday, March 9

Assembly Hall, 8:15; Beethoven Trio.

Thursday, March 11

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; concert of American compositions.

CLARA ANDERSEN IN RECITAL

The Mendelssohn Conservatory presented Miss Clara Andersen in a recital at their studios on last Tuesday evening, when she scored a complete success in a remarkable program, composed entirely of compositions by Liszt, including three "Rhapsodies," several transcriptions and the "Tarentella." Miss Andersen has great brilliancy of technic and a splendid musical equipment. The audience was pleased to the utmost with her careful and brilliant work and applauded it to the echo.

Miss Andersen is a member of the artist class of Miss Carrie Scott, director of the Mendelssohn Conservatory.

Beethoven Trio—The second of the three evenings of chamber music announced for the Assembly Room, Fine Arts building, will be given on March 9 by the Beethoven Trio of Chicago, M. Jennette Loudon, piano; Otto B. Roehrborn, violin; Carl Brueckner, violoncello. The program will include the "C Minor Trio" of Beethoven; the "Sonata" in A minor by Schumann, and the "Trio" in B major by Brahms.

LECTURE RECITAL AT THE LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY

A lecture recital given by members of the faculty of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory in the Fine Arts Building on Saturday afternoon, February 27, was attended by a large and appreciative audience.

The program offered consumed just one hour's time and proved to be one of the most interesting and enjoyable hours of music which has been heard in a long time. The interest aroused came about through the descriptive analysis given by Mr. Edgar A. Brazelton of each piano number offered and a word concerning each song presented by the young and talented composer, Miss Jeanne M. Boyd. The pleasure accorded the audience came through the brilliant piano playing of Miss Patricia Abernethy, the splendid singing of Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, and Arthur F. Platz, tenor, and the artistic accompanying of Miss Boyd.

Mr. Brazelton revealed once again his deep musicianship and the thorough student that he is by his concise yet broad and wholly intelligent analysis of a group of piano numbers which was played by Miss Abernethy. The "Allegro Appassionata," Saint-Saens, was performed brilliantly and with assurance, the beautiful "Liebestraum," Liszt, received a very satisfying reading at the hands of Miss Abernethy, as did "In Autumn," by Moszkowski. An Etude in C Sharp Minor, by Chopin, was a rare gem in the group and afforded a welcome variety, as did the very modern "Danse Negre," by Scott, which closed the group. Miss Abernethy is fast taking a place among the leading pianists of the city and she won a host of new admirers on this occasion.

The last part of the program was made with songs from the pen of Jeanne M. Boyd, a composer who has stepped to the front in the last few months with a number of compositions which should lead her into great prominence. She had a few well chosen words to say concerning each number and was at the piano throughout their renditions. She not only is a very gifted composer but an excellent accompanist as well. It is hardly possible that the accompaniments will ever be played better than the composer furnishes them at present.

A delightful song cycle entitled "A Child's World" is dedicated to Mrs. Bollman, who sang it with splendid voice and effective expressiveness. "Indoors," "The Light," "The Dark," "The Fairy Pool" and "The Mystic Wood" make up its five portions. "The Dark" was made exceedingly humorous and "The Fairy Pool" was the real musical gem of the five with Mrs. Bollman as the interpreter.

"Wind from the South," "La Tarantella" and "In Italy" are three songs which will place Miss Boyd's name much higher than any so far produced.

Mr. Platz, a much admired singer wherever he appears, has been singing them with great success, the first one is dedicated to him. "In Italy" is great and will no doubt be in the repertoire of every singer as soon as published. Its repetition was demanded on Saturday afternoon. H. M. B.

Balatka—A concert will be given on Wednesday evening, March 31, by members of the faculty of the Balatka Academy of Musical Art.

CECIL FANNING BaritoneH. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.

EDNA DUNHAM Soprano

CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN
TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY

300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter Contralto

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

ALBERT SPALDING IN RECITAL

Mr. Albert Spalding has personality, and that is always something to be reckoned with. If you judged hastily by his brisk, wide stride, as he comes on the stage, you might think him one of our typical young American business men. He is clean limbed and square shouldered, erect, slender, lithe and quick, well groomed and athletic. His smooth-shaven face seems a bit stern until you discover that it appears so because the eyes are deep set, the chin square, and that the nostrils distend. But the brow is high and smooth, the clear eyes themselves alight with eagerness and animation and the mouth ready to relax and smile when the time comes. The expression is really an earnest indication that he takes himself and his work seriously, that it engrosses and absorbs him. You feel that every bit of purpose he has is back of his talent and acquired ability, and that a sterling manliness prizes the gifts and strives to make them mean as much to others as they do to him.

ALBERT SPALDING

These traits are all winning and at once stimulate a friendly attitude towards the young artist as he stands fingering the strings while he waits for the violin's entrance. But if he is to play Cesar Franck's "Andantino Quietoso" you find at once that he has a something which illuminates his attributes and gives to his playing a noble quality not felt before. For want of a better word we call this quality "soul," a much abused expression too often used as the excuse for exaggeration and egotism. But to play this Franck music and make it hit the mark you simply have to have it. In no moment of the delightful afternoon of music which Mr. Spalding and Mr. Andre Benoist gave at the Illinois Theater on Sunday afternoon were the finest flavors of Mr. Spalding's talents more markedly expressed. The cheerful geniality, the sweet humility, the generosity and eager enthusiasm, the spontaneous originality coupled with absolute mastery of the technic of his art, the serene confidence of the ultimate value of his music and the unfailing patience with those who could not understand it united with the Frenchman's unerring instinct of reserve—all these qualities which lived and throbbed in Cesar Franck are to be found in this appealing "Andantino." To say that Mr. Spalding met them more than half way and submitted himself unquestionably to their influences and guidance, is to pay him high praise, and recognize in him great spiritual gifts with which to adorn and beautify whatever he offers.

If each number of the program does not receive special comment it is not to be taken that they were not equally individual and masterful in the presentation Mr. Spalding made. Notably in a "Scherzo Giocoso," of his own writing, did he reveal all manner of technical experience and dexterity. The audience would willingly have had a repetition of this, as they did of a Brahms "Hungarian Dance" and into the familiar offerings, which people love to hear and listen to with marked pleasure, he gave a splendid spirit of sentiment and made the Chopin E flat "Nocturne" and the "Liebesfreud" and "Humoresque" to glow with beauty of tone and touch of feeling.

With Mr. Benoist as an adept and well poised foil Mr. Spalding gave just such a reading as might have been expected of John Alden Carpenter's Sonata in G. Mr. Carpenter is another who takes his art with serious intent and writes himself into the fascinating moods he gives out. In all but the concluding movement of this work he is convincing. The "Presto Giocoso" is not well balanced. It is overburdened with thematic material that forces its irrelevancy to be noted. Among the moods of this finale the joyous one is far in the minority after the first dashing phrases. Intensely interesting is the first movement, a steady flow of melody and understandable harmony. The "Largo Mistico" is built on a tiny three note theme but so ingeniously well woven and worked out that it never loses the atmosphere it imposes in the initial measures.

The work received a compelling interpretation. The presence of Mr. Benoist was a distinct satisfaction to those who have found his organ compositions so serviceable in past days.

A return recital is announced for April 11.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

— # # # —

Church Concert—The fifth and final concert of the course given at the Cuyler Avenue M. E. Church, Oak Park, will be given by the chorus choir of forty voices under the leadership of H. H. Williams this Friday evening, when they will give the "Rose Maiden," by Cowen. The soloists will be Mrs. Gertrude DuVigneaud, soprano; Mrs. Frederica Gerhardt Downing, contralto; William Barlow Ross, tenor; Frank Webster, bass; Miss Edna Anna Wheeler, harp; Miss Mabel Lees, pianist, and Miss Marie Edwards, organist.

Aside from the solo work in the cantata, Mrs. Downing will sing "Dear Love, Lend Thine Aid," from "Samson and Delilah" (Saint-Saens), and Mr. Ross will sing the prize song from "Die Meistersinger," by Wagner, and Miss Wheeler will play a "Pastorale" of Bellotti and "Piccolo Fantasia," by Salvi. Miss Edwards will give a group of pipe organ solos.

The Elderly Person

The Elderly Person did not notice it at first. He knew that the day was gorgeous, a middle November afternoon, with a whiff of May in it. The sky was blue and almost cloudless. The sun did not seem to be bound for the west, so far away from his summer course was he, and so low towards the horizon. Whether one walked in the middle of the road or in the dry, grass-edged paths beside it, a thick rime of dust covered the boots and little clouds came from the tread of feet and rustle of garments. But when the leaders of the walking party turned sharply from the highway and over a rickety gate, and the wide uplands expanded, the Elderly Person found out what it was that made the limbs strike out briskly, the head become erect and the eyes eager, the chest inflate and the whole being respond to a signal which thrilled and controlled. It was the wind, buoyant, persistent, playful, pungent, urgent, elusive, but all a-quiver with elixir. It saluted every cheek, touched every bit of exposed flesh, whispered into the ears, crept into the nostrils, teased the eyes until they wept, tossed the lighter garments, stole under hat bands, played with the words and laughter and sent them every which way, light-heartedly. It stimulated the pace and made the movements agile and free and elastic. It pleaded for outer garments to be removed for fuller expansion. It persuaded men with hair and men without hair to take off the head covering and indulge in its caresses without fear of any punishment from the sun. It carried an endless chain of messages from its wild haunts, and inoculated every soul with a reckless spirit of pleasure. Men and women laughed aloud for the pure joy of being alive and abroad. They forgot to talk except disjointedly. It made them drunken with happiness and abstracted reason, and manners, and forethought, and deportment, to say nothing of years of reserve, which really have no place after all in a walking party.

Across a cornfield the right of way was appropriated, and the wind whisked the loose stalks and made them rustle approvingly as the men, with one accord, said that they were on their native heath in a cornfield. It told them all sorts of things about their early days, and they eagerly answered back with a certain happy pride that they were glad to be reminded of where they had lived as children. Each one swelled a little as he found how goodly was the company of city chaps who had been bred on farms. They gathered stray ears of corn from the stacked fodder and ate of the kernels, or shot them at one another, boy fashion, or put odd handfuls down the backs of giggling girls, to be rewarded with the same sort of shrieks and squeaks that attended such frolics in the long ago.

Over the fields, and pastures and dusty roads, and railway embankments, and under so many barbed wire fences and over so many woven wire ones that the day goes down into walking history as "wire fence day," the wind frolicked along, the very life of the crowd. It was everywhere at once, and gathered up and redistributed any number of scraps of conversation, to say nothing of the more intimate excerpt it kept to itself. It loitered around the pretty girl who managed to keep three fellows in her train, and watched her with a real glee as she wound them about her finger and persuaded them to obey her slightest desire. She always had aid in getting over, under, by or through the obstacles, and yet the wind noticed that she never seemed to make any exertions to secure these attentions. This perplexed the excitable wind, and it went back a bit to talk to the lady, wearing glasses and very stout boots, who was attached to an obstinate piece of wire by her gown. But it got no satisfaction from her, for she said it was one of the things she had never been able to understand—how some girls could have any number of men in their trains and other girls not a solitary one.

All afternoon the wind was a fine comrade to the Elderly Person, who could give it no payment for its friendship save to thank it over and over again, and to listen to it happily and with every sense alert. It told him things that went deep down into his being and will never be forgotten, of the joy of living, and knowing it was good to be alive, of the strength that one could gain by loving the simple and near at hand things, of the stimulant of privation and deprivation, of the quickening sense of appreciation for the best when one has learned to value one's own longings and to find them lighting the way when they were blessed by consecration to the demands of one's own sphere, of the ministry of pain and the confidence which endurance brings, and of the ever expanding joy that must yet be to come when one is ready for it. All this and more the messenger wind said to ears willing to hear such things, as it followed the footsteps through bright sunlight to early dusk. It was quieter in the woods and thickets lining a stream, and it grew graver as the shadows of the thick growth fell heavily. It listened to the brittle crackling of twigs as they were stepped upon, and it laughed at the noisy rustle made by the Elderly Person and other men as they kicked the thickly fallen leaves. These leaves piled themselves in deceiving hollows and gulches as pitfalls to catch unwatchful walkers, and the wind gathered to itself a wealth of laughter and jokes and teasings borne by the victims. It swelled gently and longingly on a tiny promontory where the stragglers were waited for. It played a little with the stream down below, but not vigorously, for it did not care to disturb the reflection of a mighty oak that spread its wide arms far over the water, where they showed interlacing weavings in the shiny surface beneath. Nor did it spoil the placid beauty of a sycamore showing its brown and white patches of bark to the admiring water. It followed quietly as the sunlight faded from the land and the tree trunks no longer sent long shadows athwart. It was still quieter as the lagging feet came into the final highway towards the rendezvous, but it whispered the plea that the Elderly Person, at least, pause on the little eminence and see what the sun was doing.

Looking back at the strip of forest, it was thick with gloom and gave out a solemn sense of its loneliness and desertion. The cheerful wind felt the influence and lost its warmth of breath although it kept blithely busy. But its furtive touches had an affectionate gentleness, as if it would say that it must soon speak farewell and give way to its elder brother, the evening coolness, which is not so full of stir and restlessness, but sends quiet to active blood and repose to tense nerves. And then out from the shadow of the tall trees and to a sharp turn of the road it followed, and then fluttered around while the eyes of the soul absorbed the glory of the sunset tints and watched them melt and coalesce and dissolve and fade from sight to give place to the oncoming night. Masses of red gold and crimson and salmon did the clouds make of themselves, as they draped the luxuriant colors about their forms and twisted and turned admiringly to observe themselves and one another. One narrow feathery mass shot straight up to the zenith, a plume of prismatic gleams, pointing with a shining tip to the place where the first star came forth when the darkness fell at last. So absorbed were the faculties in the presence of such bewildering beauties, that they soared from the body for the moment and floated in fancy among the shining colors. When they came back they knew that the friendly wind, the joyful comrade of the afternoon, had said goodbye, and gone to be with the yesterdays. And the quiet and stillness seemed the fittest possible farewell, for they accented by contrast the vivacity, the lightness, the softness and the loveliness that had departed. The man held out his arms and waved them in every direction for farewell and blessing.

And as he turned towards the bivouac, he felt a cool touch upon his cheek, and knew that the elder brother was greeting him.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park

Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN

TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying

714 KIMBALL HALL

Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Ru nboldt 4569

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO

Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO SONG RECITAL PUPILS

SOPRANO 804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL CHORUS GIVES CONCERT

In spite of several notable musical attractions being given downtown on Sunday afternoon, February 28, the Columbia School Chorus of seventy voices under the direction of Louise St. John Westervelt assisted by Anna Chinlund, pianist; Norman Saxby, violinist, and William G. Hill, accompanist, succeeded in attracting almost a capacity audience to the Blackstone Theater for their eighth annual concert.

This chorus which is made up wholly of women's voices, is one of the most satisfactory singing bodies of this type now appearing before the music loving public of Chicago. They produce a most smoothly blended tone quality and distinct enunciation at all times. That they have rehearsed well and faithfully is also very clearly proven by the sincerity and assurance with which they perform their duties. All of which is a tribute to the abilities of Miss Westervelt as a conductor. So many women are complete failures when at a conductor's stand, not so with Miss Westervelt. She is a fine musician and can use a baton in directing her forces with all the grace and intelligence for which any man is praised. She achieved many excellent results from the chorus on Sunday afternoon and had the work well in hand. The audience was not slow in showing its unstinted approval of her efforts.

"Under the Greenwood Tree," Arne; "Noel of the Bressan Waits," Darcieux, and "Sleep of the Child Jesus" formed a group which opened the program and was followed by "God in Nature," Schubert. None of the four were heard by this reviewer.

"Nuptial Song" by Clauson, was charmingly sung as was the "Chorus of Maidens" by Borodin which brought forth unusually beautiful shading and elasticity of tempo. "Prayer" (Boris Godounow), by Moussorgsky, was sung with a fervor quite convincing and there was excellent tonal volume offered throughout its rendition. Louise Carlton sang the solo part with good voice and assurance.

Perhaps the most pretentious work given during the afternoon was "Pan" by David Stanley Smith, which received its first Chicago hearing at this concert. Its production enlists the services of the unique combination of soprano soloist and oboe and Miss Charlotte Bergh and Mr. Alfred Barthel were chosen to take those parts. The music as well as the words are weird in content yet immensely interesting and the chorus sang it in grand style. Miss Bergh possesses a voice of pleasing quality and well produced. Her solo portion aided much in making the number effective and enjoyable.

Mr. Barthel is one of the few virtuoso with the oboe and he proved that this instrument can be used with great effectiveness with solo voice or chorus. "Spring's Greeting," Koch; "Sigh No More, Ladies," Foote; "I'm Wearing Awa," Foote, and "The Year's at the Spring," Beach, formed a group which closed the program. The Foote numbers were especially beautiful and much enjoyed. Mrs. Beach's well known song was given an inspiring and finished rendition and had to be repeated.

Mr. Saxby, a pupil of Ludwig Becker, played two movements from a Vieuxtemps

"Concerto" in a style which stamps him as a violinist who should be heard much in the near future and the audience demanded an encore to his program. Miss Chinlund, a pupil of Clare Osborne Reed, was also quite successful with her group of piano solos, which included compositions by Haensel, Sinding and Rubinstein. She also was compelled to add an extra number.

Mr. Hill furnished very musical and sympathetic accompaniments throughout the afternoon. H. M. B.

BALLMANN'S ORCHESTRA

As the series of concerts draw near the close, there isn't any indication that people are tired of the musical treats that Mr. Ballmann has offered. The program of Sunday, February 28, was international in character and thoroughly enjoyable. The program opened with excerpts from "Haensel and Gretel," Humperdinck, played in a very enjoyable manner. The Strauss number, "Tales from the Vienna Woods," and a march, "Eilenberg," were received with much enthusiasm. Mr. Ballmann's reading

SUMM SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a

Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

of the "Peer Gynt" Suite, Grieg, was excellent, and Soedermann's "Wedding March" was well liked.

The "Suite of American Melodies," Herbert, were given with a patriotic spirit, drawing forth applause that should be very gratifying to Mr. Ballmann and the orchestra. The overture, "William Tell," Rossini, was given a musicianly and effective presentation.

The soloists of the afternoon were Elsa Staud Denton, contralto, and Gustav Hoffman, cellist. Mme. Denton offered as her first group numbers by Schumann, Verdi, and Becker. She made a deep impression by her splendid presentations of "Strida la Vampa" and "Fruehlingszeit." She has a voice of good range and quality and a very pleasing stage presence.

Mrs. Denton gave for her second group a cycle of German folk songs with great expressiveness and a good understanding. She was given a cordial reception and her singing won her much applause. Mr. Hoffman played the Popper-Hoffmann "Sarabande and Gavotte," and "Masked Ball" scene, Arlequin. His rendition of the first number found him at his best. H. W. P.

Tonqui—Mrs. Tonqui, soprano, a pupil of the Hinshaw Conservatory, sang Craig's "Pilgrim's Message" at the Austin M. E. Church last Sunday with much success.

BALATKA ACADEMY OF MUSICAL ART PRESENTS PUPILS IN RECITAL

If the Balatka Academy of Musical Art in the Auditorium continues along its present flourishing road and there is every reason to believe it will, Anna H. Balatka, the directress, will have to seek a new hall in which to present the recitals. On Saturday night, February 27, the Auditorium Recital Hall, which is rarely if ever filled for any affair, was packed when the program opened at 8:15. Many people came after that and had to be turned away. This is quite a remarkable fact and most worthy of mention.

The public work of the pupils on this occasion from each department far surpasses that heard about one year ago. Not only are the numbers offered, up to a much higher standard, but there is better stage deportment noticeable and a greater sincerity in the work at hand on the part of all concerned. The program of Saturday night was altogether too long for any detailed mention on the work of each pupil. Much interest centered about Haydn's "Toy Symphony," which started the evening's activities. Mr. Albert Green, head of the violin department, had this in charge and the orchestra of toy instruments which he assembled brought great delight to the vast audience. The ensemble class also under Mr. Green's direction closed the program with a well played number. Bernard Salzburg, Ruth Cohen, Elizabeth Green, and Evelyn Morrow were pupils who gave well played violin numbers, for which Mr. Green as well as the pupils deserve praise.

Miss Balatka, who is teaching one of the largest piano classes in the city, was well represented by a number of her pupils. Helen Keefe and Samuel Feder played a piano duet in fine style. Viola Ernst, Marion Cannoy, Monroe Bowman, Irene Daniel, May Hornbeck, Rosalie Barth, Alice Morrow, Dorothy Cohen and Erhardt Bergstrasser all played with skill and thorough understanding and received in addition to very enthusiastic applause from the audience many beautiful bouquets of flowers.

Miss Charlotte Noelle, soprano, and pupil of Ella Bachman, displayed a very pleasing quality of voice and good musicianship in two well chosen solos.

Lois Rehm and Dorothy Symons, pupils of Anna Parker Saylor, were heard in a recitation which brought a variety and added pleasure to the auditors. Mrs. Saylor has written a very effective sketch which enlists the services of two readers and the little Misses Rehm and Symons, who were dressed to fit the parts, presented it in a very pleasing manner. We indeed will be glad to hear its repetition.

Alice Lippert, Anna Kane, Agnes Doolcy, Irene Morris, Elcanor Griese, Edna Nicklas, Iris Kingsley, William Lang and Lottie Krause were also heard during the evening.

Helen Hazen Morgan, teacher of whistling, gave two whistling solos, and Lottie Krause, Clara Bing and Carl Weiss furnished the accompaniments.

The next concert by this school will be given on Wednesday evening, March 31, by members of the faculty. H. M. D.

Webster—Marian Coryell Webster's "When Day Is Done" was sung with great success by the Orpheus Glee Club in a concert at Gary last week.

MENDELSSOHN CLUB CONCERT

An audience keenly appreciative of all that was done on the stage and one also which in itself must have been an inspiration to the singers was in attendance at Orchestra Hall on Thursday evening last, when the Mendelssohn Club gave a splendid program of concerted numbers and was particularly happy in its choice of a soloist also—Miss Florence Hinkle being a great favorite in the concert rooms of Chicago.

The complete list of songs given was printed in Music News last week and it need not here be repeated. Suffice it to say that, as always, Mr. Wild had found many novel and many very beautiful compositions to present and the club sang them with splendid virility and much musical beauty.

WILLIAM LESTER

Two songs by William Lester, of Chicago, formed one of the most interesting divisions of the program and served again to prove that in this young composer Chicago has one of whom it may well be proud. "The Northland," "Ghosts" and "A Song of Joy" were the titles used by Mr. Lester, the texts being in every case thoroughly worthy and the musical settings full of authority as well as original charm.

Horatio Parker's "Valentine" and A. H. Brewer's comical "Alexander" had to be repeated. "A Toast" (to women), by William G. Hammond, proved to be of exquisite quality and Chadwick's "Song of the Viking" was stirringly impressive.

"Omnipotence," by Frederick Stevenson, of California (the work dedicated to Harrison Wild and the Mendelssohn Club), is a magnificent setting of sacred text, such indeed as to prove a notable and a most agreeable contrast to the monstrous "Forty-seventh Psalm" of Schmitt used by the Apollo Club recently, and Max Filke's "Spring Night" was also well fitted to its mood and text and was admirably delivered by the club.

In both the Stevenson and the Filke numbers Miss Hinkle sang incidental solos admirably and she gave also two solo groups which were models of elegance.

The German group was of extreme suavity and much well-controlled power, and in the second group Coleridge-Taylor's "Life and Death" proved so wonderful in the Hinkle singing that the audience was aroused to an enthusiasm which has been witnessed but seldom this season. C. E. W.

###

RECITAL IN EVANSTON

Miss Edith Maldwyn Jones, mezzo-contralto, gave a recital in Music Hall of Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston, on Thursday evening, February 25.

Miss Jones is soloist at the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Forest and has also been filling many concert engagements recently.

She is a professional pupil of Walter Allen Stults. Her voice is one of unusual beauty, and her excellent method of using it makes her a very satisfactory singer.

The program opened with the aria "Si, tra i ceppi," from the opera "Bernice" (Handel), and it was delivered in entirely artistic manner.

"Schöne Wiege meiner Leiden" (Schumann), "Volksliedchen" (Schumann), "Die Lorelei" (Liszt) and "Lenz" (Hildach) were given as the second number and served to display the singer's splendid interpretative ability.

Next came "Adieu, Forêts," from "Jeanne d'Arc," presented with true dramatic fervor.

The novelty of the evening for the audience was the group of Welsh folk songs—"Dafydd y Garreg Wen" (David of the white rock), "Tra Bo Dau" (Wherever hearts are true), "Yn Nyffryn Clwyd" (The vale of Clwyd) and "Codiad yr hedydd" (The rising of the lark).

Welsh being Miss Jones' native language, it is needless to say that her singing of these songs was a tremendous success, and the audience demanded an encore before allowing the singer to proceed to the last number on the program.

The last number included:

Apple Blossoms	Lester
Melissande in the Wood	Goetz
Candle Lightin' Time	Coleridge-Taylor
June	William Spencer Johnson
I Hear a Thrush at Eve	Cadman
Call Me No More	Cadman

The singing of these only strengthened the fine impression already made. This young singer is an artist.

She is well equipped vocally, and her voice "appeals." Sympathy and sincerity characterize her work at all times.

Miss Aline McQuillen, who presided at the piano, proved herself to be an able accompanist. C. E. W.

###

Pillsbury—Sunday afternoon at 3.30, March 7, Agnes Hope Pillsbury will give a concert at Sherman Park under the auspices of the Civic Music Association. Marion Green will be the assisting artist.

POPULAR CLASSICAL CONCERT

The second of the Monday afternoon series of popular classical concerts at the Fine Arts Theater was given this week to a goodly attendance and such enthusiastic endorsement as to prove the movement to be one entirely in accord with the wishes of the public.

The soloists were three in number—Cora M. Libberton, soprano; William Beard, baritone, and James Whittaker, pianist.

The work of the last named was recently reviewed and again on Monday it was found to possess artistic elements.

Mrs. Libberton was, at this time, far from being well, but managed to conceal the traces of her cold very skillfully.

Her first group contained three Wolf songs—"Faden," "Knabe und Veilschen" and "Selig mit blutendem Herzen"—all beautiful songs and delivered by Mrs. Libberton with potent charm. She used a light and suave quality of tone—very full of intensity, however, and wholly effective.

For her second group she gave two of the songs from the Woodforde-Finden suite, "Stars of the Desert," i. e., "The Rice Under Water," and "You Are All That Is Lovely and Light," these being love songs of utter charm and much musical intent.

They were sung with great buoyancy and also a never-failing sweetness of quality which is always an asset of Mrs. Libberton's voice. The last item in her list was "To Kew in Lilac Time," a wonderful little song which suits Mrs. Libberton to perfection.

There is more than a hint of coloratura in her voice and the little rushes and ripples, the musical ebb and flow of this dainty song, were negotiated with great skill and charming effect.

Mr. Beard is always dependable and always musically eloquent—his enunciation is a never-failing joy and his intelligence guides him always to forceful and effective interpretation. "Droop Not, Young Lover" (Handel), "When Love Is Kind" and "I Heard the Gull" (folk songs) were given with classic simplicity of style, and Schubert's "The Hunter" introduced a very perceptible flavor of virtuosity.

"Illumination," a song by M. Hartmann, now in Washington, proved to be thoroughly worthy of a place on the program, and the careful reading accorded by Mr. Beard. Gena Branscombe's "The Morning Wind" was a gay bit, and two of the Carpenter songs were given an exceptionally effective reading. C. E. W.

###

A Unique Program—Julie Manierre, Edith Clyde, harpist, and Charles Rouse are preparing programs of rare and beautiful old Scotch, Irish, English and French folk songs and some old French operettas that were popular at the French court in the days of the Trianon. These programs and operettas will be given in appropriate costumes of the various periods.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow. 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago
Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church. 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1141.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHERINE D'ORSAY
Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
16 Auditorium-Merrick Bldg.-Phone Englewood 9748

GUILD FESTIVAL SERVICES AT NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

It's all right, Brother Watt, and I'll "write up my own show," as you say I must, only I shall have to do it unconventionally and in my own way. I know that Bailey was two-stepping out in the far west, and that Porter was waltzing around the south side, all trying to cover everything that was uttering itself musically on Thursday and Friday of last week, so I forgive you for leaving me to speak my piece alone.

Come to think of it, I don't know who could write better about the affairs, for I am in pretty close touch with the musical activities at the New First Congregational Church. You see, I've been playing that organ for ten years, and when we pitched on the last week in this February as the date when the Guild brethren and sisters would play at the customary Guild services, the dates fell close to that tenth anniversary. When I told Mr. Smith and the choirs of this fact they set in to help the whole celebration, and Mr. Hyde, the chairman of the services committee, chose for me six of the choicest players in the Guild, and Mrs. Corlew-Smith came back to her old place in the quartet to add that much more to the interest. Then the business committees put all the machinery in motion to notify the people on the mailing list of the festivals, and they came and filled the church both evenings.

On Thursday evening Mr. John W. Norton was the first player. If I speak of him as "scholarly" I don't mean that he is severe and spectacled, but that his playing is serene, reserved, earnest, dignified and unaffected and permeated with a virile manliness that makes it take hold and grip any one who finds in these qualities the highest ideals. He chose Handel's "Occasional Overture" and as my organ is of noble calibre, the music sounded out richly and convincingly.

Miss Alice Deal was the second player and I was delighted to have her select the Jensen "Bridal Song" as arranged by S. P. Warren. She did a graceful thing to use it, for young people do wisely to appreciate those who meant much to their day, as surely S. P. Warren did. She played it charmingly, with a certain arch daintiness that made it lovable. She contrasted this with a simply stunning delicacy of the Crawford "Toccata," dashing off its brilliant phrases with the neatest sort of clarity, and embellishing it with numberless bits of colorful decoration and playing the big resounding finale with over-running enthusiasm.

I was particularly glad to welcome Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser, who is a newcomer and at Grace Church, Oak Park. He is sponsored by Mr. Wild and is brimful of ability, youth and abounding freshness and vitality. If these get away with him at times it is no sin. When he sent me his numbers I was pleased beyond measure to find them to be excerpts from James H. Rogers' "Sonata," for the composer is an old time friend, and I had put down for the quartet to sing, an anthem which Mr. Rogers had written and dedicated to me. Mr. Fraser did the two movements beautifully—in fact, I am constrained to repeat a statement I made once before, that he is a beautiful player. He has warmth and impulse, power and studied sense of light and shade and, surrounding it all, a temperamental fervor that is potent.

On Friday night Mrs. Katherine Howard Ward played Mr. Rossetter Cole's "Rhapsodie," which is seen on recital programs with such frequency, that Mr. Cole is to be justified in a quiet conviction that he has added something acceptable to organ literature. Mrs. Ward does everything with superb poise and a spontaneity that gets hold of and interests everyone who comes under her influence. There is a distinctive bigness and ardor in her methods—purposeful and broad-minded they are, and illuminated by a desire to mean something in every note and phrase, not only of the music she uses, but in those notes and phrases which make daily life.

As Mr. Fraser was the newcomer to be welcomed, so Mr. A. F. McCarrell represented the older generation. I never felt greater pleasure than in welcoming this man who has played for the Second Presbyterian Church so long that my decade seemed scanty, and whose service has meant so much that there is no real way of measuring it, or in honoring him. He showed his broad gauge outlook by using the work of one of the younger generation of writers for organ—the "Sunset" and "Thanksgiving" of Clifford Demarest, and they were given with such unhesitating ease and authority that they became moments of invigoration.

Mr. Hugo Goodwin was the last player using a movement from a Widor "Sonata," the mystical, half-veiled "Moonlight" of Karg-Elert, and Shelley's scintillant "Toccata." He was almost the last word on agility, deftness, speed and vitality, infusing into the "Toccata" a momentum that was irresistible and bewildering. Although my organ is not modern in its appliances for bewitching registration, Mr. Goodwin was clever enough to devise all sorts of means by which to enhance the illusory character of the Karg-Elert, and he made of it a something of weaving, shimmering, fantastic beauty.

Mrs. Corlew-Smith submits to a species of adoration when she sings for us. It does not hurt her, and it helps her to sing all the better. Therefore, the Bizet "Agnus Dei" received at her hands a beautiful interpretation and her voice was in prime condition to meet its requirements. Mrs. Roscoe King played the piano part excellently, and Mr. King gave to the obligato all that could be asked of sympathy and enrichment. He is a versatile musician, for he did the bass solo in the "Gloria" from the Gounod "Saint Cecilia" mass, with the finest sort of unction and contrast as well as being a tower of strength in the quartet, With Miss Lucy Hartman, another tower, and Mr. Smith who, with Mrs. Smith made up the quartet, the Rogers "Day of Praise" had a more than nice hearing. In the ensemble responses, Ivanoff's "Bless the Lord" and Stainer's "Sevenfold," there was the expected beauty of blend and the rare

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

pianissimos and crescendos for which this quartet has made for itself a good name.

The choirs were 150 strong and sang the "Gloria," "Sanctus" and "Benedictus" from the Gounod Mass. On Thursday night everything was not quite at its best, but on Friday a spirit got into the loft that was exhilarating. Those lovely floating chords which open the "Gloria" were almost intangible in their elusive sweetness, and there was a deep pathos in the appeals of the "Miserere," as well as a triumphant burst of sound that magnified itself in the "Father Omnipotent," and a mighty splendor in the final "Amen."

Dr. Leon Jones, a tenor with a light lyric voice, sang the "Qui Tollis." His tones fitted the pathetic phrases to a nicety, but Mrs. Smidt has made the "Sanctus" peculiarly her own at this church. She sings it with rare mood, a sort of reverent approach to the Holy of Holies, which makes it the keynote on which is to be built that overwhelming climax that makes this number monumental in its power to exalt and compel. I grant readily that Gounod was theatrical in his way of devising and developing. He would not have been a Frenchman if he had not been so. But he knew what was effective and proceeded to build something in 1851 that holds its own more firmly in these days than ever. Whenever an ecstatic moment is desired—and they are still desired and enjoyed—this "Sanctus" is apt to be chosen to supply it. Its complement is the almost monotone-like "Benedictus," so devotional in spirit and tone that the words need not be uttered to reveal its meaning.

Mr. H. Augustine Smith leads these choirs. He has brought them to so unusual a state of finish that comparisons are made at times. But comparisons or statements do not make facts. These latter are to be found in the unique growth and arrangement of the forces, and the astonishing amalgamation of varied interests in a virile and uplifting whole. For instance, Mr. Smith sings tenor in the quartet and I direct that. He obeys me implicitly—never turns a hair or winks an eyelash at anything I ask him to do. In turn I play the organ for him and I n. t. a. h. o. w. a. e. at anything he tells me to do. The surrender to the ensemble is as remarkable throughout the groups and there is now a blending, a massing, a solidity that is making tradition for that choir loft. Into Mr. Smith's recent work there has come a new poise and surety, a positiveness of tread that is authoritative, because it is built on experience as well as study and preparation.

And as a final touch there was a flocking from all the corners of the gallery, of representatives from the five choirs with arms filled with books for the ten-year-old organist. And it fell about that the usually garrulous man became like Uncle Cy in the "Old Homestead," who said that whenever he tried to propose to Aunt Cynthia he "allus choked up"—and so the man said never a word!

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

CHICAGO LITTLE THEATER

The meteoric success of the Little Theater puppets in "The Decluded Dragon" has been such that the Saturday morning tickets are being sold three weeks in advance and the demand has been so great that Wednesday afternoon performances will be given at 4 o'clock (to enable children to come), beginning Wednesday afternoon, March 10.

The run of "The Philanderer" has again been extended, and began its tenth week at the "Little" last Tuesday evening.

Senor Manuel Mora, Spanish tenor, and Mr. Glenn Dillard Gunn will be the Little Theater's guests of honor on Sunday afternoon, March 7, from 5 to 7 o'clock. Senor Mora has very kindly consented to sing, and will be accompanied by Mr. Gunn. Senor Mora comes to America with the enthusiastic approval of the London Mail Gazette, the Leicester Guardian, the Il Resto del Carlino of Bologna, Italy, the La Perseveranza of Milan, and numerous other representative presses and Chicago musical circles are fortunate in having him here permanently.

h h h

It is very easy to understand why "The Philanderer" has had such a splendid run at the Little Theater and why it is still continued though it was announced for withdrawal some time ago.

In this wonderful play by Shaw, both Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Browne have found parts which suit them absolutely and which they play in a manner to bring unbounded delight to all who may see them.

Mr. Browne, particularly, is fitted to a nicety in his part and gives a portrayal of it which might well serve as an object lesson to every young actor in the country.

Other plays must be put on at the Little Theater shortly, but "The Philanderer" could be continued indefinitely to an unbroken succession of good audiences in all probability.

C. E. W.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mr. Josef Hofmann, pianist, will make his only recital appearance in Chicago next Sunday afternoon, March 7, at Orchestra Hall, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program is as follows:

Aufschwung
Warum
In der Nacht
Vogel als Prophet
Contrabandist (Transcript Tausig)	Schumann
Fantasia, C major (three parts)
Etudes—
C sharp minor
A flat major
D flat major
G flat major	Chopin
Impromptu, F sharp major
Valse, E flat major
Nocturne, C minor
Scherzo, C sharp minor
Fileuse Pensive, Op. 10	Ganz
Rustic Danse, Op. 24	Ganz
East and West
Le Sanctuaire	Dvorsky
Penguin
Rhapsodie No. XII	Liszt

The other March recitals under the management of F. Wight Neumann are a song recital by Mme. Julia Culp, Sunday afternoon, March 14, at the Illinois Theater, and the third and last Kneisel Quartet concert, with Rudolph Ganz, the popular Swiss pianist, as assisting artist.

MRS. CHARLES L. KRUM

Some of the recent engagements of the professional pupils of Mrs. Krum, one of the busiest teachers in the city: Lillian White-Frcyn will be the soloist at the Sunday evening concert at the Liberal Church in Englewood March 7.

Miss Klea Orschel, mezzo-soprano, will give the musical program at B'nai Sholem Temple, Fifty-third street and Michigan avenue, Tuesday, March 2.

Mrs. Mabel Nevin Schoolfield will give a program at the Fullerton avenue Presbyterian in Scotch costume March 9.

Among the numbers that will be of special interest is her own cousin's song, "When the Kye Came Home," Nevin.

Mrs. Frederick Lewis will furnish the accompaniments.

BUSH CONSERVATORY NOTES

On Friday evening, March 5, a students' recital will be given at the Bush Conservatory for the pupils of the vocal, violin and piano will take part.

On Thursday afternoons at 3:30 p. m., Mr. Harold von Mickwitz artist students' interpretation class is held.

Mr. Joe Wynne, pupil of Mr. Harold von Mickwitz, is at present on a concert tour through the southwest, where he is scoring great success. This young artist, who possesses a phenomenal technique and virtuosity, is rapidly coming to the front.

Read—John T. Read, bass-baritone; Lillian French-Read, soprano, and Dorris Carter, pianist, gave a recital before the La Grange Woman's Club March 2.

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

Rouse—Charles Rouse sang the baritone solos in Moore's "Darkest Hour," which was given under John Allan Richardson's direction by St. Paul's Episcopal Choir last Sunday afternoon, February 28.

MARGARET LESTER

Margaret Lester, soprano, pupil of Sandor S. Radanovits, assisted by William Lester, accompanist, will give the following program at 516 Fine Arts Building, Thursday evening, March 11:

Deh vieni non tardar ("Marriage of Figaro").....	Mozart
Der Nussbaum.....
Du bist wie eine Blume.....	Schumann
Frühlingsnacht.....
L'Esclave.....	Lalo
Chant Hindou.....	Bemberg
Romance.....	Debussy
L'Heure exquise.....	Hahn
Ouvre tes yeux bleus.....	Massenet
Mifanwy.....	Foerster
Rose Kissed Me Today.....	Harling
Retreat.....	La Forge
Blackbirds' Song.....	Cyril Scott
Lullaby.....	Cyril Scott
Umbra.....
It Was Not in the Winter.....
A Vagabond's Song.....	(in mss.) Wm. Lester
When I Am Dead, My Dearest.....
A June Song.....

MISS LUCY J. HARTMAN

With Elgin Choral Society, L. A. Torrens, Director

Miss Lucy J. Hartman is a contralto of rare beauty. Miss Hartman had no difficulty in filling that big church with her beautiful melodious tones which reminded one of the beautiful soft notes of the blackbird. In fact, the blackbird is often referred to as the contralto of nature. Miss Hartman did herself justice in the aria, "But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own." She has a very charming manner and poise.—Elgin Daily News.

Miss Lucy J. Hartman, contralto, exhibited a voice of uncommon sweetness, pleasing particularly with the song of Channon's "My Love Is Not There." Two German numbers were a diversion enjoyed.—Elgin Daily Courier.—(Advertisement.)

Estella Neuhaus is an artist of rare ability.
—New York Herald.

FINE ARTS THEATER
Monday Afternoons, March 8 and 22
at three o'clock

Two Private Subscription Recitals by NEUHAUS
THE EMINENT PIANISTE

Tickets Five Dollars Each, Admitting Two Persons to Both Recitals, of
J. H. CLIFFORD, 2110 Seminary Avenue

STEINWAY PIANO USED, Courtesy of Lyon & Healy
Mistress of the keyboard, poetic to a degree in her expression.
—Los Angeles Times.

CLEVELAND BOHNET
Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

CEDRIC W. LEMONT
PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

ADORATION: for medium voice
By HARRY R. DETWEILER
Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.
"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

NORA OLIN
VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

FLORENCE LE CLAIRE

The following piano program will be given by Miss Florence Le Claire at Central Music Hall, 64 East Van Buren street,

FLORENCE LE CLAIRE

under the direction of Miss J. E. Allen, on Sunday afternoon, March 14, at 3:30:

Prelude from English Suite III.....	Bach
Sonata A flat, Op. 26.....	Beethoven
Andante con Variazione.....
Scherzo.....
Marcia Funebre.....
Allegro.....
Fantasia Impromptu.....	Chopin
Nocturne F sharp, Major.....	Chopin
Scherzo B flat, Minor.....	Chopin
Witches Dance.....	MacDowell
In Autumn.....	Moszkowski
March of the Dwarfs.....	Grieg
Dance of the Gnomes.....	Liszt

ERIC DE LAMARTER'S CANTATA

"The Testimony of St. John" Presented at the Fourth Presbyterian

Sunday, February 28, Mr. De Lamarter's cantata, "The Testimony of St. John," was presented at the regular monthly musical services, only the last portion being heard by this writer, because of many other things to attend.

Mr. De Lamarter has written many things that are worth while and, judging from the short portion heard and the commendatory statements from those who heard the entire composition presented on this occasion, it should gain a permanent place in repertoires of the many choirs and choral societies. A repetition will be awaited with much interest and it is sincerely hoped that it will be in the near future.

The members of the quartet are Ruby De Lamarter, soprano; Emily Louise Stretch, contralto; Lemuel Kilby, baritone, and Sherman B. Orwig, tenor.

The choir did some splendid hymn singing and gave an excellent rendition of the Bortnyanski "Cherubim Song." Mr. De Lamarter gave Bach's "Concerto in A Minor" an authoritative reading that was very enjoyable and musicianly. H. W. P.

SUNDAY ORCHESTRA CONCERT IN EVANSTON

The interest in the orchestra concerts continues to increase and, if one may judge from the splendid crowds within and without the theater, a larger building will have to be secured to care for the music-hungry people who are seeking admission, for the building was filled and nearly three hundred people turned away.

The program opened with the overture "Figaro's Marriage," by Mozart. The small orchestra brings out many new beauties in many of the programed numbers, and this presentation was no exception.

"Traumerei" (Schumann), always a popular favorite with the public, was played with a fine quality and color of tone that was very satisfying. The Dvorak "Humoreske" was delightful and was received with much enthusiasm. Mme. Marie Yahr, contralto, was the soloist of the evening, singing in her first group songs by Ross, Bohm and Protheroe. "Dawn in the Desert" was well done. "Silent as Night" found Mrs. Yahr at her best, in the first group. "The Year's at the Spring" (Protheroe), "His Lullaby" (Bond) and "The Eagle" (Grant-Schaefer) comprised the second group. "His Lullaby" was given a good interpretation, as was "The Eagle" (Tosti). "Good-Bye," given by Mme. Yahr as an encore, won her much merited applause. The second half of the orchestra program was directed by Mr. George Dasch, who had been announced previously but for various reasons could not appear until this, the third of the series. "Two Spanish Dances" (Moszkowski) were delightfully rendered, and the "Liebesfreud" (Kreisler) with its flowing melody and rhythms. Excerpts from "Faust" (Gounod), the Bizet "Minuet" and "Farandole," from "L'Arlesienne Suite" were the final numbers of the orchestra, played in a very pleasing and noteworthy manner. Mr. Dasch, at the leader's stand, added much to the interest of the evening's program. H. W. P.

Kimball Hall—Miss Zefer Algots, pianist, assisted by Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano, will give a recital at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, March 8.

Increase Your Memory Capacity

by means of the

Squire Music Memory System

A modern, safe, sane and scientific method of not only increasing the memory capacity, but of attaining PERMANENT MEMORY. By this method you can memorize from four to ten different pieces at once with more ease than you can memorize one piece by the ordinary methods now in use.

Taught by BELLE SQUIRE
Teacher of Piano and Music Memory

522 Fine Arts Bldg. CHICAGO

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

Mr. Lemont, whose successful playing of his own compositions was noted in a recent issue of Music News is teacher of composition at the Spry Music School.

There is no study more fascinating than that of musical composition, and nothing can give greater satisfaction to the student than that of being able to create something that is all his own. If this were more fully realized a larger number of the musically inclined would take up this most interesting study. Not every student has the time or talent to write in the larger musical forms, but there are many students who, if given proper guidance, could write and find sale for songs, piano pieces and kindred musical forms.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

Believing that many former piano students who are no longer keeping up their study would enjoy playing four and eight-hand piano music, Mr. Lemont will conduct a class for such pianists on Wednesdays at the Spry Music School. There will be no charge for this class other than the cost of the music used. Applicants should be able to read at sight music as difficult as the Mozart sonatas.

TRINITY CHURCH

Sunday, March 7, at 4 o'clock the united choirs (150 voices) of the Christ Church of Woodlawn, Church of the Redeemer, Hyde Park, and Trinity Church will give Stainer's "Crucifixion" at the Trinity Church. Mr. Irving C. Hancock will play the service. The soloists will be Arthur Scott, tenor, Raymond Gifford, baritone, Ben F. Lewis, bass.

Gale—Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale has been engaged as soloist for the next concert of the Marshall Field Choral Society, the date being April 15, and the place, Orchestra Hall.

Oak Park—At Grace Church, Oak Park, on next Sunday at 4:30, Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser will present his choir in "Galia," the soloist being Ethel Geistweir Benedict.

CALVARY CHORAL CLUB

The Calvary Choral Club, numbering sixty-five voices, Milton R. Harris, director, gave a concert at the Calvary Presbyterian Church Friday evening, February 26. Miss Laura D. Earnist, soprano; H. C. Carothers, baritone; Emil Nissen, tenor, and Miss Helen Gallup, pianist.

The chorus is doing some splendid singing, under the direction of Mr. Harris. He has an exceptionally large number of good voices in the chorus, and their work was very commendable.

The program opened with Anderton's cantata, "The Wreck of the Hesperus." The three solo parts were taken by Miss Earnist and Messrs. Carothers and Nissen. This cantata isn't the most grateful one, from any standpoint, but it was given with fine spirit. The "Soldiers' Chorus" from "Faust" (Gounod) was given a rousing rendition. "Silent Night" (Becker) was a fine example of splendid choral singing, as was "O Light of Love" (Pinsuti).

"The Rosary" (Nevin) was redemanded, and it lost nothing by the repetition. Miss

"Genuine Singing Bass"

BORROFF

"A Forceful Interpreter in Oratorio."

—Chicago Daily News.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF PUPILS ACCEPTED

504 Kimball Hall

CHICAGO

Earnist, the regular soloist at the church, gave numbers by Hawley, Speaks and Saint-Saens. She has a voice of good range and quality, and she used it to a fine advantage in her various numbers. "To You" and "Spring's Awakening" were fine examples of lyric singing. The Saint-Saens aria was rendered with a fine regard for its musical values and made a deep impression and won her much sincere applause.

Mr. Carothers' voice is of good quality and range, and with continued study he should do much with it. He was heard with much pleasure in numbers by Damrosch, Huhn, and "All Thro' the Night." The program closed with presentations of Emerson's "Star of Descending Night" and Fanning's "Song of the Vikings." Miss Helen M. Gallup presided at the piano throughout the evening, furnishing accompaniments that were musicianly, sympathetic and all that could be desired, both in the solos or chorus accompaniments.

H. W. P.

THIRD CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT

The Society for the Uplift of Chamber Music on the West Side, on the occasion of their third concert, presented for the first time in Chicago Fibich's String Quartet, Op. 8, a work of the utmost beauty and variety, in which the Dvorak Quartet (Messrs. George Hrusa, first violin; Melvin Martinson, second violin; Albert Belsan, viola, and A. V. Cerny, violoncello) found excellent opportunity for displaying their concerted talents, the beautiful quality of the blended tones being one of the greatest of the many delights in this great work. It was most interestingly prefaced by Dr. J. Talaba Vojan's resume of the sad career of that world-shunning genius, Zdenko Fibich, of whom America knows but little, who from out keen suffering and struggling evolved music of undying beauty and worth—beautiful flowers springing forth from the rough, hard ground of adversity, to gladden and rejoice the soul with their immortal perfections. Those artists par excellence, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Butler, of the American Conservatory, journeyed out west to generously give of their fine repertoire and, in Tor Aulin's original "Toccata," Dvorak's magnificent "Slavonic Fantasie" and the very powerful "Ballade" by Moszkowski, Mr. Butler displayed the polished ease, perfect style, mellowness of tone and depth of temperament which distinguish him. The remarkably fine accompaniments played by Mrs. Butler were an equal delight.

Mme. Louise Topinka has a fine, clear, powerful soprano voice, and also scored success with her very dramatic rendering of the wonderful aria from Smetana's "Bartered Bride." Miss Myrtle Greene proved herself a most accomplished and attractive young pianist.

The Dvorak Quartet presented for the first time a very melodious, well-constructed "Menuet," for strings, by George Hrusa which entirely deserved the double encore, as being another of the very sterling compositions of this true artist.

It is exceedingly pleasant to note how greatly appreciated are the unmercenary efforts of this society, and the interested frequenters are expressing great hopes that these concerts will become a permanent thing in future seasons; not pass as a bright and brief pleasure with the last of the present series, at which, on Sunday, March 7, at Stiles' Hall, the Dvorak Quintet will give the Schumann "Piano Quintet" and Misses Jadwiga Dombek, contralto; Florence Forst, piano, and Mr. Grant Hadley, baritone, will be the soloists.

AGNES BELDON.

Illinois College—The Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, will give the twentieth students' recital of this season and at this time the medals will be given to those who have worked for them. The following students will give the program: Dorothy Denman, Francis McMaster, Ethel Seavey, Anna Wedemeyer, Elizabeth Pearn, Hilda Miller, William Learn, Shirley Stetler, Ada Markson, Lucille Linneman, Myrtle Reuschell, George Hahn, Roland Stetler.

On next Friday evening, March 12, the college will give a concert at the Garfield Park M. E. Church, corner Kedzie avenue and Walnut street.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Plays in Chicago

Chicago musicians owe a vote of thanks to Mr. Carl D. Kinsey for allowing them, once a year, the opportunity of hearing the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

True, we hear plenty of symphony concerts and are so familiar with the entire repertoire that it is difficult to find any novelties for us, but, while this is undeniably the case, it is equally a fact that only very occasionally do we have the opportunity of seeing a really inspired conductor and hearing, under his baton, really poetic and colorful readings.

ing accorded the Rachmaninoff "Symphony, No. 2 (E Minor)," which was the greatest work of the program and was set forth in profoundly impressive style.

A strong picture was unfolded, a fine story was told and there was delivered a magnificent epitome of the possibilities of a great symphony orchestra when engaged in the reading of a master work.

The "Don Juan" Tone Poem, (Richard Strauss) showed Mr. Oberhoffer at his very best, for its overlay of color and its undercurrents of emotional intensity require the

EMIL OBERHOFFER

In short, we never get this except when Damrosch or Oberhoffer comes to town, for, fine as is our orchestra, wonderful in personnel and repertoire, it yet lacks a conductor who has personality or magnetism.

Comparisons are odious, of course, but one cannot refrain from expressing the opinion that, as between Oberhoffer and Damrosch, the former is very much in the lead, although Walter Damrosch is a wonderfully potential conductor and has an immense prestige in Chicago as elsewhere.

It is said that the personnel of the Minneapolis orchestra is improved this year, and indeed after hearing them on Sunday this seems a perfectly true statement but, after all, it is Oberhoffer that counts, for he is so all-compelling, so thoroughly colorful and electric that his men willingly give him of their best and so, spontaneously, each of his readings becomes a polished gem.

On Sunday afternoon Orchestra Hall was filled with the most distinguished audience of the season and there was expressed a profound admiration for the splendid read-master hand in poesy and mood painting for their intelligent setting forth. These they received at the hands of this wonderful conductor and the work was therefore made a glowing picture, the reincarnation of an inspiration.

The Beethoven "Fidelio Overture" completed a list of works at once well balanced, highly colored, intensely musical and all-embracing as to musical moods and tenses.

Katherine Goodson, the soloist of the concert, is a great favorite in Chicago and her number (the Tchaikowsky B Minor Concerto) is also much liked.

Without possessing very much musical feeling, she yet has brilliant and serviceable technic, which, however, availed her but little in view of the fact that her piano (a Knabe) had a thoroughly strident tone and was, in all respects, exactly what a concert grand should not be.

The accompaniment provided for Miss Goodson was truly a beautiful model of what such work should be and again proved

Mr. Oberhoffer very alert in this sort of endeavor.

He senses so keenly and so accurately the soloist's every intention and he knows so thoroughly well how to provide light, shade and color that he was, on Sunday a perfect joy, for these qualities are all too rare in Orchestra Hall "Concerto" accompanying.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

THE WOODLAWN WOMAN'S CLUB

On Thursday evening, February 25, the combined choruses of the Woodlawn, West End and River Forest Woman's Clubs, Mrs. Philemon B. Kohlsaat, director, and Miss Cora Higby, accompanist, assisted by Miss Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist, and Mr. Gustaf Holmquist, bass, were heard in a concert at the Woodlawn Masonic Temple. Miss Rogers, harpist, always a great favorite wherever she has appeared, gave a splendid reading of the Kovarovic "Fantasie," playing it with a fine regard for interpretative and tonal values.

The Tedeschi "Impromptu" and "Ballade" were especially well liked and were rendered in a manner that an encore was demanded and graciously granted.

Mr. Holmquist, bass, who is always heard with great pleasure, sang a varied list of songs. Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love" was very effective and a model of song interpretation. The recitative "I Rage, I Melt, I Burn" and the aria "O Ruddier Than the Cherry," by Handel, were given with an abandon and breadth of style that was very convincing. Mr. Holmquist, for his second group, sang numbers by Grant-Schaefer, Quilter and Hammond. "In an Old Fashioned Town" and "Recompense" were great favorites with the audience, and he sang them with great artistry.

The chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Kohlsaat, did many things that were commendable and enjoyable. They did their best singing in Gena Branscombe's "Moonlight in Arcady" and Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and "Rockin' Time." There are many good voices in the chorus, and it is safe to predict that they should accomplish many things in the future.

MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The accompaniments for the entire program were in capable hands. Miss Pearl Cora Higby, who has appeared with fine success as soloist and accompanist on many of the musical programs, added much to the success of the program by her musically and sympathetic accompanying throughout the evening. H. W. P.

ORCHESTRAL PRIZE CONTEST

Chicago, February 10, 1915.

Mr. Glenn Dillard Gunn,
Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago.

Dear Mr. Gunn:

In the judgment of the committee of award, the following compositions are the best among those submitted under the terms of the competition:

1. Kolar—Suite Americana.
2. Lang—Symphony in C minor.
3. Berwald—Overture, "Walthari."

It is recommended that the $500.00 be divided into two prizes of $300.00 and $200.00 to be awarded respectively to Kolar and Lang. In case the Kolar suite is ineligible from the fact that it has been published, and that therefore possibly has been performed, we recommend that the prize be divided evenly between Lang and Berwald.

Respectfully submitted,
FREDERICK STOCK,
TH. OTTERSTROEM,
ROSSETTER G. COLE.

Davis—Mr. Ernest J. Davis was soloist at the West Side Sunday Evening Club last Sunday, singing Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer." He sang also the solo portions from the St. Cecilia "Sanctus."

AT FULLERTON HALL

Two weeks ago, on very short notice and with practically no rehearsal, Mr. Alfred Kanberg went on at Fullerton Hall as a substitute in "Carmen" and saved the performance.

On last Sunday evening he appeared in "La Boheme," and not only duplicated his "Carmen" success but also proved himself a thorough artist and a great favorite with the Fullerton Hall clientele. His rendition of the famous "Narrative" was masterly and his singing in the fourth act duct was also admirable from every musical and interpretative standpoint.

Mr. Marion Green was the other artist of the program, singing in the duet with Mr. Kanberg and giving also the famous "Coat Song," which is always well received.

Miss Weber gave a most charming explanation of what constitutes the real "Bohemia" and was witty, bright and poetic in delineating this particular opera, bringing out all its most admirable points and deftly ignoring those few episodes which pass muster in "Bohemia" possibly but would hardly bear retailing to a Sunday night audience at Fullerton Hall. All the instrumental numbers were done with unusual care and finish, Musetta's Waltz particularly being so well liked that repetition was necessary.

Mixer—Mr. Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist, appeared before the Connecticut branch of the Illinois Colony Club in the ballroom of the Auditorium Hotel Saturday, February 27, at 2 o'clock. Among the numbers played by Mr. Mixer were: "Cannonetta," by Friml; "Orientale," Cui; "The Swan," Saint-Saens, and Kreisler's "Tambourin Chinois." Mrs. Charles Orchard was the accompanist.

BUSH CONSERVATORY NOTES

Miss Lillian E. Wright, pupil of Charles W. Clark, and Miss Marietta Livengood, pupil of Mr. Guy Herbert Woodard of Bush Conservatory, appeared on program at the Clarke School Friday evening, February 26.

Mary Thomas, the ten-year-old violin virtuoso and pupil of Guy Herbert Woodard of Bush Conservatory, gave a program at the Armstrong School in Rogers Park Friday evening, February 26.

Mr. Charles W. Clark has just returned from his eastern trip and has resumed teaching again. His interpretation class met Saturday, February 27, at 2:30 p. m., as usual.

Miss Grace Stewart Potter, pianist, has been booked for a number of recitals in the following towns, beginning Monday, March 1: Decatur, Ill.; Rockford, Ill.; Madison, Wis.; St. Paul, Minn.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Dubuque, Ia.; Clinton, Ia.; Kansas City, Mo.; St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Kenneth M. Bradley has just returned from his eastern lecture tour, where he has been re-engaged for a number of additional lectures, beginning March 1.

The School of Opera of Bush Conservatory conducted by Signor Attilio Parelli, holds its rehearsals Saturday afternoons at 4 p. m.

On Wednesday morning, March 3, at 10 a. m., Mr. Rowland E. Leach will give a lecture on "Instrumentalism" at the Bush Conservatory.

Violet Bourne, the wonderful child pianist and pupil of Mme. Julie Rive-King, scored such great success last Sunday at the Illinois Athletic Club that a return engagement has been arranged for.

Last Wednesday evening Miss Laura E. Williams, pupil of Mae Julia Riley of the Expression Department of Bush Conservatory, gave a very interesting reading of "Within the Law." Miss Williams held the interest of her audience throughout the entire program and reflected great credit on her teacher.

KURT WANIECK

Kurt Wanieck, pianist, and Mrs. Louise Hattstaedt-Winter will appear in joint recital Saturday afternoon, March 6, at Kimball Hall. Mr. Wanieck's program will include the Schumann "Sonata," Op. 22, and compositions by Liszt, MacDowell and modern French composers, and Mrs. Winter will sing selected modern French-German and American songs. The public recitals of the American Conservatory have never been more popular than the present season. At nearly every performance many people have to be turned away for lack of room.

RADANOVITS STUDIO RECITALS

A series of recitals that will be given by the pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits, at the recital room, 516 Fine Arts Building:

March 4—Warren Proctor, tenor.

March 11—Margaret Smith Lester, soprano.

March 18—Isabel Richardson, mezzo-soprano; Artur Platz, tenor.

March 25—Cardon V. Burnham, baritone.

April 1—Miss Hattie Mann, soprano; Mrs. Friend.

April 8—Mabel Daly, contralto.

People & Events

Alice Verlet

Music News on its cover page today presents a new picture of Miss Alice Verlet, the Belgian soprano, who is now touring in the United States.

Mlle. Verlet gave a very successful recital in New York City last week and has been received with great enthusiasm wherever she has appeared.

REESE R. REESE

Mr. Reese R. Reese of 201 Nixon Building, Pittsburgh, presented his students in a splendid program of songs and ballads on Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 22 and 23:

Twenty-five pupils appeared, as follows: Miss Ira Thomas, Miss Eva Page, Mr. V. A. Kirschler, Miss Georgia Gueptner, Miss Martha Jones, Miss Ella Philson, Mrs. Donne Little Grier, Mr. Robert Davis, Mrs. William Bennett, Mrs. E. A. Brunner, Miss Margaret Page, Mr. Frank Walters, Mrs. George Jones, Miss Irma McCall, Mrs. Mary Reese Wilson, Miss Blanch Evans, Mr. Stanley Howell, Miss Gwladys Thomas, Mr. Howard Evans, Miss Burna Ferguson, Mrs. Mary Reese Wilson, Miss Selena Gularski, Mr. Stanley Howell, Miss Ira J. Thomas, Miss Mariam Stauff.

GRANT-SCHAEFER'S RECENTLY PUBLISHED SONGS

Three Scotch songs, "Lullaby of an Infant Chief," "Young Colin" and "For the Sake o' Somebody" (A. P. Schmidt, Boston), in high and low keys, are among the best things done by Grant-Schaefer. The first of these has already appeared on the programs of Christine Miller, and as they become known will doubtless be used extensively.

"From an Old Garden" is a graceful setting of Frank Dempster Sherman's well-known poem, and consists of a simple rhythmic melody with a piano accompaniment which is gratefully easy. Teachers will welcome this song as a useful addition to their teaching material. Published in high and low keys, and of limited range.

HAZEL HUNTLEY

Some recent press comment upon Miss Huntley's singing:

Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto, of Chicago, and Miss Katherine Frazier, harpist, of Albany, N. Y., gave a concert at the high school auditorium, under the auspices of the Berkshire Music School, that was worth hearing. Miss Huntley has a contralto voice of rare sweetness and power, and wins her audience by her charm of manner and entire unaffectedness, as well as for the smoothness and ease so satisfying to an audience.—Pittsfield (Mass.) Press. (Advertisement.)

Durno—Another pupil of Jeannette Durno who is having much success in her teaching is Isabel Breyer. Some of her pupils who will appear at a recital on Friday, February 26, are Eva Logie, Jane Cardwell, Thora Enney, Alice Fischer, Helen Peterson, Mary Chany, Clarence Kautz, Natalie Rasmussen, Mrs. Teucher, Ruth Logie, Mildred Miller, Esther Anderson, Alma Metz and Jessie Stewart.

JENNY DUFAU AND SOME OF HER PATRONS

My dear Miss Dufau:

Just now, as we are arranging our program for the Teachers' Association meeting this fall, I am reminded of your splendid success here November 12, 1914, when you sang in our great Auditorium to about 5,000 Kansas school teachers, who applauded to the echo many times.

Indeed, we shall have much difficulty in arranging so good a program again, and we only wish we could hear you repeat the beautiful numbers rendered in your inimitable style.

So many times different ones have remarked that the concert last year was far the best we ever had, and all such comments are devoted especially to the mention of your name and your exceedingly pleasing music and personality.

With sincerest wishes for a long continuance of your successful art, I am

Very truly yours,

(Signed) E. S. CLARK.
Kansas Teachers' Association.
H H H

COKER COLLEGE CHORAL ART SOCIETY

Hartsville, S. C., February 20, 1915.

My dear Miss Dufau:

I doubt if there has ever been given in

WARREN
PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

Hartsville a concert which pleased our audience as much as did yours of October 20 last, and it affords me much pleasure to add my testimony to the mass which you must have already accumulated. I hope that at some future date we may have the pleasure of hearing you again.

With best wishes and kind regards, I beg to remain,

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) C. W. COKER.
H H H

GREENVILLE LYCEUM ASSOCIATION

Greenville, S. C., February 22, 1915.

My dear Miss Dufau:

I am writing to tell you how very pleased we were with your concert given here on October 22. It proved in every way to be nothing short of an artistic triumph. Everyone was delighted and many voted your concert the most successful of its kind ever given in the city.

Wishing you continued success and with kind regards, I am,

Very truly yours,

(Signed) G. A. BUIST.
H H H

Bethany College—The festival at Lindsborg, Kans., this year will extend from March 28 to April 4, and will include recitals by Julia Claussen and others. The chorus will contain 525 singers, with 250 in children's chorus, a band of 40 pieces, and an orchestra of 40. Music News will be in attendance.

Helen Keller and the Zoellners

Swaying in rhythm with the music; trembling while tears slowly gathered in bright, unseeing eyes or smiling joyously and breathing deeply with emotion as the theme was one of sadness or joy, a wonderful blind girl stood in the high school auditorium vibrating with every note from masterly played violins. Helen Keller could not see the players nor hear the music but through her sense of touch, and possibly some peculiar sense of feeling she could appreciate every shade of tone.

"It is beautiful," she exclaimed softly as the music ceased. Quickly she turned to the members of the Zoellner String quartet who had been playing for her. "You don't know how much I appreciate or enjoy it," she said.

It was at her lecture appearance in the auditorium Saturday night that Helen Keller heard the Zoellners for the first time. The father, daughter and two sons who compose the quartet volunteered to play for Miss Keller and incidentally for the audience that heard her story.

As they played, Helen Keller stood with finger tips laid lightly on the resonant wood of a table placed before her, apparently listening with bent head. She could not hear a note but the vibrations of the music were interpreted as appreciatively as though she possessed a trained sense of hearing.

LIKE VOICES SINGING

"The first composition, 'Genius Loci' by Thern, was beautiful and dreamy," she said when asked to describe her feeling of the music. "It seemed like four beautiful voices singing in sweetest harmony."

"I feel the vibration and the measured rhythm in music so I too can enjoy it even though I do not hear it."

"The last movement of the Beethoven quartet (Op. 18, No. 2) was bright and joyous and it makes me think of happy children dancing and frolicking and playing hide and seek."

"With the 'Andante Cantabile' by Tchaikowsky, I felt in it a wild and troubled longing such as comes when I stand by the great sea and feel the winds from afar blowing in my face."

A warm friendship quickly sprang up between the blind girl and the Zoellners. Miss Keller declared that she had never before been so entertained as by their playing and the appreciativeness that she showed incited the musicians to their best efforts.

Sunday was a day of delight for the entire party. The Zoellners will appear here in the recital hall of the Musical Art Institute Tuesday night under the auspices of the institute and the Ladies' Music Club. They are stopping at the Lee-Huckins hotel. Miss Keller and her companions were resting there after two days of visiting and lecturing here.

They lunched together at noon and afterward the Zoellners played. Miss Antoinette Zoellner and Amandus Zoellner played violins, Joseph Zoellner, the father, played the viola and Joseph Zoellner, Jr., the elder son, played the violinello.

For hours the girl, who can neither hear nor see, sat silently enjoying the music or describing in her quaint way the scenes or visions that each number called to her mind.

"It was a remarkable experience," declared Joseph, affectionately known as "Papa" Zoellner, in telling of the visit. "Miss Keller is certainly one of the most wonderful women in the world, excepting possibly Mrs. Mason, her teacher. She understands music. She is a true artist."

"We—my daughter and sons and myself—felt that we are playing to a responsive instrument. It gives us great pleasure and Miss Keller seemed delighted. She could interpret the themes of the composer in a wonderful manner. Of the 'Andante' of Tchaikowsky she said that she felt as though standing beside the great sea and felt the winds blowing on her face. Tchaikowsky took his theme from an old fishermen's song. No one had told Helen Keller of that and yet without being able to hear a note she interpreted it beautifully."—Daily "Oklahoman," Oklahoma City.

Artists' Association—The Chicago Artists' Association will hold a reception of the Juniors, at the Art Institute, Club Room Two, from 2:30 to 5 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, February 27. There will be a program consisting of piano, violin and vocal numbers given by the members of the Junior Club.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

IN BRIEFER FORM

Zoller—Ellmer Zoller was accompanist for Miss Alice Verlet in her New York recital yesterday.

Edwards—Miss Marie Edwards will hereafter teach at 612 Fine Arts building on Saturday mornings.

Gannon—Rose Lutiger Gannon will be soloist at the Sunday evening service, First Congregational of Oak Park.

Donath—Mr. Kurt Donath will present his pupils in an operatic recital at the Little Theater next Monday evening.

Christ Church—Mason Slade will present his choir at Christ Church in Stainer's "Crucifixion" on next Sunday evening.

Champaign, Ill.—The pupils of L. R. Copp gave a program of American compositions at the Copp Studios on February 26.

St. Peter's—Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus" will be given at St. Peter's Church under direction of Herbert E. Hyde on Sunday evening.

Muenstermann—Miss Esther Muenstermann has accepted the position as contralto soloist at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Oak Park.

Owens—Mr. H. W. Owens will present his advanced voice pupils in recital at the Athenaeum Recital Hall on next Monday evening at 7.

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer has been engaged for the special Easter service, Sunday afternoon, April 4, at the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church.

Carnival—A very successful "carnival" was given at the Park Avenue M. E. Church last week, the music under direction of Haydn Owens.

Mandel Hall—A program will be given at Mandel Hall of the University by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra on next Tuesday afternoon at 4.

Charleston—Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury" was given by Charleston singers at the Burlew in Charleston, W. Va., last Friday under the direction of J. Henry Francis with very great success. The Charleston Gazette declares that the work was better than that presented by visiting professionals.

Civic Music—Sunday at 3:30 at Hamilton Park, Charles W. Clark and Gordon Campbell; Sherman Park, Agnes Hope Pillsbury; Holstein Park, Georgia Kober.

Meeker—Mrs. Augusta Meeker will give a song recital at Zion Evangelical Church at Waller and Iowa streets on Wednesday evening, March 10, William Lester, accompanist.

Normal Park Baptist—At this church William Griswold Smith will present his choir in Maunder's "From Olivet to Calvary" on Sunday evening, Beulah Lee Taylor, organist.

Bonanno—On Saturday evening, March 6, Signor Bonanno will assist Maestro Dino Bigalli, a distinguished member of the Royal Conservatory at Florence, Italy, in a recital at the latter's home on Indiana avenue. The program will include a group of piano compositions of Franz Liszt, Mme. Bigalli will sing a duet with Signor Bonanno and he will sing a group of operatic selections.

Ballmann's Orchestra—At North Side Turner Hall Sunday, March 7, the Ballmann Orchestra will give the eighteenth concert of the season. The soloist will be Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano; George Milton Lipschultz, violinist; August Winhardt, flute.

Owens—Mr. Haydn Owens presented his choir at the Park Avenue M. E. Church on last Sunday evening in a Shelly program. The numbers included "Berceuse," organ; "Savior When Night Involves the Sky" and "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," anthems; "God Is Love," trio; "Hark, Hark My Soul," duet, and "Art Thou Weary," solo by Nina Shankland.

Chicago Artists' Quartet—These young singers have been engaged to do the solo parts in a performance of "Building of the Ship," by Henry Lahee in Hinsdale in May. Music News gave an incorrect spelling of the name of the bass of the quartet last week. It should be Alonzo Morsback. The accompanist and reader of the little company is Miss Marguerite Wickes.

A FINE EASTER SONG

In His Pity He Redeemed Us ^{3 Keys--G, F, Eb} Special price 25c
 (Fifty Cents)

THE FABLE---Piano solo for left hand alone. An excellent pedal piece, with beautiful melodies, outlined by a story (65c). Special price - - - - 33c
 (At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.)

By ISABEL STEWART-NORTH PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
 Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
 5407 S. Halsted St. and
 2831 Washington Boul.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Barthao Arendt
 2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCulloch
 1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
 2nd Alto--Hazel Hootley
 Director-Accompanist
 TINA MAE HAINES

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

BAILEY

ANNA AGNES Soprano
HERBERT M. Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONTRALTO CONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bhss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling

Pianist Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST Care of MUSIC NEWS

DORIS PFEIFFER

VIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles City Iowa

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

CHARLES W. CLARK

Some recent notices:

Through the Mendelssohn Club, Rockford music lovers were given a rare opportunity last night to hear one of America's greatest artists, Charles W. Clark, baritone, of Chicago, in a program of songs, ranging from Schubert classics and French masterpieces, to the simpler melodies in English text, all of which made a strong appeal to the audience.

Mr. Clark is an artist in the highest meaning of the word, and nothing gives greater proof of his musicianship than the simplicity with which he interprets the songs of simple character—those which appeal to the sentiment or humor of his audience. His voice is resonant and full, with a wondrous beauty of quality and clarity of tone.—Rockford Register-Gazette.

A large and appreciative audience heard the artist concert last evening of the Mendelssohn Club at Court Street Church, Charles W. Clark, the American baritone, giving the program. The program was one that was well calculated to please an audience, embracing representative classic and modern song compositions and ranging from dramatic numbers to the artistic simplicity of the Schubert songs and the tender beauty of the songs of Sidney Homer.

The Schubert group, the delicately lovely Faure group, and the Massenet aria, "Vision Fugitive," were given with the remarkably refined interpretation of the artist and the absolute control of voice quality that was evident in the delicate shading and beauty of tone. Following Marshner's brilliant "An-an jenem Tag," Mr. Clark was obliged to respond to an encore giving the "Irish Folk Song," of Foote.

A group of Sidney Homer's songs, "How's My Boy," "Uncle Rome," which he repeated, "Sheep and Lambs," and "Old Watt and the Rabbits," was given enthusiastic applause and the singer added West's sacred song, "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old." Through the succeeding English songs, particularly beautiful being Reinhold Hermann's "Wooring," and the brilliant climax of the program, Carl Busch's "The Eagle," the splendid musicianship of the artist was emphasized and enhanced by the beauty of the voice.

At the close of the program, the audience was insistent and Mr. Clark sang again, giving the familiar and beautiful "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes." As a whole, the program was one that was extremely enjoyable to the audience and no small part of the success of the program was due to the support of the accompanist, Gordon Campbell.—Rockford Republic.—(Advertisement.)

LAURA WESSELS

The following is the program of Miss Laura Wessels' Omaha, Neb., recital given March 4:

Hi Ho for the Morning.....	Marshall
I Hear a Thrush at Eve.....	Cadman
Woodland Croon Song.....	Clutsam
L'Esclave.....	Lalo
Mon Coeur S'ouvre a Ta Voix.....	Saint-Saens
I Wove a Fabric.....	Morgan
June.....	Downing
Old Folks at Home.....	Foster
Lieti Signor.....	Meyerbeer
Vola Serenata.....	Tosti
Hoffnung.....	Reichert
Die Drei Zigeuner.....	Liszt
Niemand Hats Gesehen.....	Loewe
Night Song.....	Ashford
Good Night.....	Ashford

MUSKEGON, MICHIGAN

Paul Neilson well deserved the great appreciation that was shown by the large crowd that turned out to hear the concert given by the Muskegon High School Orchestra in the auditorium of the Hackley Manual Training School last night.

Miss Edith Hastings, physical culture instructor in Hackley Gymnasium, read selections from "The Littlest Rebel," and was called back time after time. Francis Martin rendered a number on his violin that immediately classed him among the best amateur musicians in the city. Following, Miss Jeanette Vander Werp at the piano, Mr. Seastrom with the harmonium and Professor Neilson on his violin gave a selection that was the feature of the entertainment.

The finale given by the full orchestra, approached symphony harmony and the audience cheered long before they moved from their seats.—Muskegon Press.

MR. AND MRS. STEAD PLAY IN PEORIA

Mr. Franklin Stead, director of the Peoria Musical College and concert organist, gave his second organ recital of the season Sunday afternoon, January 31, in the college recital hall, assisted by Mrs. Mabel Riggs Stead, pianist. Regardless of the terrible weather conditions, a fine audience was in attendance, including a large number of Peoria's best musicians.

The organ numbers selected by Mr. Stead were perhaps of special interest and the well contrasted styles of composition, together with the remarkably fine interpretations, gave the attentive audience a pleasure long to be remembered. The chorus in D by Guilman, with its massive chords, made a forceful opening number, followed by the Lento from the Seventh Sonata.

The following group gave to some in the audience the greatest enjoyment of the afternoon for the brightness and daintiness of the Gavotte by Martini could not have been excelled, nor could the beauty of the 15th century "Ave Maria," by Arcadelt, been more exquisitely brought out than through the clever registration by Mr. Stead.

The difficult Chromatic Fantasia, by Thiele, was then played with all the warmth and brilliancy of execution which Mr. Stead has in such abundance and then, too, he touched it off with such apparent ease, that the composition seemed doubly satisfying.

The interpretation of the Mendelssohn Sonata was intensely exhilarating, and again Mr. Stead's big technical equipment served him as a means to an end—making the listeners forget all the labor required in reproducing the great work.

The "Melodie," by Rachmaninoff, in rather dramatic style, and the showy "Rhapsody," by Silver, were also much enjoyed. Mr Stead followed this with an encore number, the favorite "Andante," by Lemare.

Mrs. Mabel Riggs Stead played the "Romanza" from the E Minor Concerto, giving a very artistic conception of the Chopin work. Mrs. Stead has a finely developed technic and plays with great breadth of style. Her tone coloring is always a delight to her hearers. Mr. Stead supplied the orchestral part to the "Romanza" on the organ. For an encore Mrs. Stead played the E Major "Etude," by Chopin, to which she gave a splendid interpretation.—Peoria Star, February 7, 1915.—(Advertisement.)

TORVALD FREDERICKSEN

Some comment regarding the compositions of Torvald Fredericksen:

A pretty little book of "Fairy Tale Songs," text and music by Torvald Fredericksen, is issued by Clayton F. Summy. The little songs are divided into three parts: "Songs of Little Red Riding Hood," "Songs of Hansel and Gretel," and "Songs of the Three Billy Goats."

Mr. Fredericksen has written his music to the Danish texts, which have been rendered into English by William Morton Payne. Written with the simplest possible means these little pieces have melodic charm and should be much admired.

The music is written for the piano, with the text placed between treble and bass, so that they may either be sung or used as piano pieces with text.—Musical America.—(Advertisement.)

SIoux CITY, IOWA

Over 100 people were turned away from the fourth public concert held at the Public Library on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the Heizer school of music orchestra appeared in a program of delightful selections. The largest crowd that has ever assembled at the library was present to greet the youthful musicians. Frederick Heizer directed the 40 pieces without the aid of music, a proof of the wonderful work of the musicians.

This orchestra has become one of the most popular in the state. It was organized solely for music advancement, and they are not allowed to play any place where fees are charged.

Miss Margaret Distad and Miss Margaret Mackey entertained with several vocal numbers. Nathan Herzoff played several violin solos.—Sioux City News.

Dobyns—Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, contralto, has been engaged as soloist with the Auditorium Symphony Orchestra, Milwaukee, (Herman Zeitz, conductor) on Sunday afternoon, March 28.

ALICE VERLET'S AMERICAN PRAISE

Alice Verlet, the Belgian coloratura soprano, who gave a recital in Carnegie Hall, New York, on Thursday, March 4, has received the following press encomiums regarding her successful appearances in America:

Mlle. Verlet is mistress of a charming manner. Her French is quite delightful, her English piquant and fascinating. She possesses a lyric voice of quality clear and crystalline. Particularly delightful was Mlle. Verlet's singing of her encore from Massenet's "Le Cid." It is to be hoped that Mlle. Verlet will long retain her sotto voce high notes, for she evidently prizes them highly.—Hartford Times, December 10, 1914.

Coloratura singers of Mlle. Verlet's type are a rarity in these days and it was good to hear these old arias sung in such excellent fashion as they were last night.

Mlle. Verlet is a fine exponent of this difficult style of vocal art, her voice is of particularly fresh quality and her command of the vocal pyrotechnics necessary to the denunciation of this music is uncommonly good. She has been schooled in this particular style of vocal art and it is, of course, her very best asset. Few singers on the concert stage today could give as good a rendition of the "Shadow Song" as Mlle. Verlet gave; her scale work and staccato singing were accomplished with ease and clarity.—Columbus (Ohio) State Journal.

Alice Verlet followed with a magnificently sung aria, "Caro Nome," from Verdi's "Rigoletto." After the first few notes it was manifest that the laudatory notices that had heralded her appearance were more than justified and she had to respond with an encore, a dainty little English song. Mlle. Verlet's next group consisted of Massenet's "Alleluia," from "Le Cid," a magnificent composition, gloriously and majestically sung; Debussy's "Mandoline," which she gave the necessary rollicking lilt to; "Serenade Neapolitan," by Charles Pons, and Landon Ronald's "Down in the Forest," likewise a gem. She had to respond with another encore, Piere's "Serenata," in which she again displayed every emotion and expression demanded. Her last item was the waltz song from Gounod's "Romeo et Juliet" and another delightful French song. This Belgian singer is a consummate artist, with a perfect control of voice and capable of exhibiting every nuance of emotion called for by the variegated choice of compositions she essayed. The voice is bell-like in its clearness, velvety and luscious in its quality—and this is inherent throughout her extended range, from lowest to highest note above high C. She possesses the art of producing a ravishing diminuendo and a perfect legato, that ultimate desideratum in all musical art work. Her display of messa di voce in the highest ranges was delightful. Add to this that she displays a wonderful sense of the poetry in her temperamental shadings and gradations of the tone color, and all is said of this great artist.—Montreal Daily Mail, January 25, 1915.—(Advertisement.)

SIDNEY ARNO DIETCH IN THE SOUTH

Sidney Arno Dietch, accompanist-coach, left Chicago on last Sunday evening for a tour of several weeks in the south, mainly in Florida. He will spend considerable time in Orlando, where, owing to the success of his pupil, Mrs. Mather Smith, soprano soloist at the Presbyterian Church, who has been doing concert work there, he will accept a number of pupils who wish daily voice lessons. Mr. Dietch will appear in several concerts and private musicales with Mr. Worthe Faulkner, the Chicago tenor, who is with him in Florida.

Proctor—Warren Proctor, tenor, will be heard in recital at Cedar Falls, Ia., March 30. This is the location of the largest teachers' college in the United States. Mr. Proctor is a great favorite among college audiences. Being a college man, he is entirely at home with them. March 12 Mr. Proctor will assist on a program given at the annual meeting of the Chicago Alumni Association of Grinnell College of Grinnell, Ia.

CONCERT AT GARY

The interest which the Associated Charities has created by its excellent work in Gary culminated last evening in the concert held in the Gary theater and given by the three musical organizations of this city, Gary Musical Club, Orpheus Club and Cecilian Choral society.

During the first half of the program the Orpheus club appeared to fine advantage, first in "Sunset" by Van de Water, Walter McPherson taking the solo parts and second two songs, (a) "Bedouin Song," by Rogers and (b) "When Day Is Done," by Marian Coryell Webster. This song was especially arranged for the Orpheus club as announced by Mr. Downes in his brief address concerning the song and his introduction of Mrs. Webster, who presided at the piano. The audience was exceptionally demonstrative in their appreciation of the Gary composer, and both Mr. Downes and Mrs. Webster were obliged to acknowledge the insistent applause.

The Cecilian Choral society appeared third in "Gloria" from Millard's "Mass." This organization under N. J. Holzer has most assuredly accomplished wonderful results, it only having been at work since last May and this being the initial performance. This number was strikingly effective, the solo parts being taken by Miss Anita Bailey and Mr. Fred Keilmann.

Mrs. William H. Bailey was heard in the "Mignon" aria, "Dost Thou Know That Sweet Land."

Mrs. Alice Geer Ferguson, president of the Gary Musical club, gave "A Gypsying," the words having been written by herself and the music by Lida Browning White, who played the accompaniments. This is a fine song full of gay, free vigor and conducive to making us all surely want to go "A Gypsying." Her second song was, "Ab, Je Veaux Vivre" (Gounod).

Mrs. C. R. Kuss gave an admirable rendition of Chopin's "Ballade" in A flat.

Following the intermission the second half of the program opened with violin trio consisting of Mrs. Walter MacNab, Mrs. G. T. Cogswell and Mrs. John Diedell. This was a treat, for chamber music is seldom heard on Gary programs. The selection was enthusiastically received and an encore was demanded.

The soloists in the second part were Mrs. Clara

Edmunds Hemingway, Mrs. Fanny Amstutz Roberts and Mrs. Anna C. Binnix. Mrs. Hemingway gave a double number, (a) "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" by Cadman; and (b) "The Lark Now Leaves," by Parker in a most charming manner both songs being particularly well received. Mrs. Roberts played "Notturmo" from the suite, "A Day in Tuscany," by Nevin. This is a delightful number and conveys all the melodious insight of that particular composer. Mrs. Anna C. Binnix sang the Meyer-Helmund "Canzonetta" most delightfully. Mrs. Roberts' accompaniments to these numbers were exceedingly commendable.

The Orpheus club sang "Now the Night in Starlit Splendor," by Donizetti, and were recalled twice. The ovation was most gratifying and proved conclusively to how great an extent the work of Mr. Downes and his club is appreciated.

The Cecilian choral society did especially good work in "Sleep, Little One, Sleep," their pianissimo work being noticeably effective and the number being a splendid contrast to their final selection, "Soldiers Chorus," from "Faust."—Gary Evening Post.

M. LEO ZELENKA-LERANDO

Some recent press comment:

M. Leo Zelenka-Lerando was applauded wildly. He has absolute command of his chosen instrument and allows it a freedom of expression that wins the dullest hearers. St. Charles never heard anything better.—St. Charles, Mo., St. Charles Daily Banner-News.

Zelenka-Lerando delighted his audience with his harp solos. He demonstrated in a most masterful fashion his musicianship and his technic and was received with the heartiest applause.—Kalamazoo Mich., The Telegraph.

Leo Zelenka-Lerando, the harpist, was a revelation to many who heard him. The harp as he played it at once takes its place as a solo instrument that must rank with the more widely recognized solo instruments. His tone was always beautiful and his numbers were of so high an order that few harpists today would care to attempt to play them.—Muskegon Mich., The Muskegon Chronicle.

The harp numbers by Leo Zelenka-Lerando were of high order and will be remembered. Peoria, Ill., Peoria Herald Transcript.—(Advertisement.)

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice
Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA
M. EMILE FOLLMER
HELEN WATSON POWERS
HELEN DESMOND

'Cello
Tenor
Soprano
Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO
MARGUERITE AUSTIN
HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp
Viola
Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony
Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.
Residence 5438 Harper Avenue Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL
TEACHER Mrs. Herman Devries
STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR CHICAGO, ILL

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

HECKSCHER

C E L E S T E D. COMPOSER

Personal Representative
ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
 110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
 NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
 "It is a Gem"

H. EVAN WILLIAMS
 TENOR, Concerts, Recital, Oratorio
 Wolfson Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
 NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

MARGARET KEYES
 CONTRALTO
 Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
 Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg
 THE METHOD OF PORPORA
 From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
 Professional Coaching
 VOCAL STUDIOS
 Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON
 BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
 Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON
 MEZZO-CONTRALTO
 248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann
 Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
 also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

Lambert Murphy Recital
 Oratorio
 Opera
 Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfson Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

CONCERT OF THE NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

Amato, Pasquale Amato, adored baritone of the Metropolitan Opera House, was the magnet to help crowd Carnegie Hall on the evening of February 25, when the audience was treated again to the spectacle of the orchestra not only walking away with the honors, but forced to repeat a number—and a Reger number at that—though the waltz time vociferously redemanded might have hopped out of a page of one of Messire Johann Strauss' Vienna waltzes.

Alas! alas and truth to tell, the public is still dance-mad and the "Eroica" may go hang for all the fox-trotters and tango-steppers care or consider.

For the "Eroica" of Beethoven, (sad in some of its parts as the tragedy of sightless orbs or the stone-deaf ears of its creator) opened the program and the two first movements so strangely,—one might say,—rudely remote from the succeeding ones, were delineated in almost unearthly beauty, and very nearly spotless perfection.

Beethoven has moments of unspeakable rapture and delight, and the two first movements of the third symphony reflect the composer at his most sympathetic—well-nigh tragic—self-revelation.

Well, the audience gave but cold heed to the mighty composer. They waited for Amato, who has a laudable ambition to sing Wagner in that composer's curious, delightful crabbed Deutsch. And upon this side Amato is at home. Perhaps if not his Amato at least his Stradivarius knew somewhat of Russian-Jewish ancestry.

With intelligence and the desire to interpret and impart, Amato is filled; but he has not the vocal resources or the method calculated to put his voice at ease in its endeavors. Indeed much of the luscious, resonant quality with which nature endowed him, and of which his teacher's and method of singing have robbed, has departed, or is upon the peradventure of a speedy exit.

Alas! alas again! It is the teacher—not the pupil. The young Amato—he might well be Scotti's son in years—sings with the reedy quaver of the tremolo-haunted. Young to look at—but in the listening, one wonders whether the people who applaud have ears attached to their brains, or foolishly accept anything hall-marked: "Metropolitan Opera House."

"Die Frist Ist Um," from "Der Fliegende Holländer," is very strong meat for strong men, with rolling, luscious, mellow voices, whose quality bears reminiscently upon the molten topaz of Ammontillado. Another genre for Amato—young, handsome Amato—and not the quasi Buffo of his last offering—Rossini's "Danza" with its vocal flurries and hurries, its whirls and twirls, and dancings up and down scale.

This musical confectionery brought the recalls—not the "Eroica," not the delightful Smetana symphonic poem, "Vltava," with its magnificently-scored finale.

Strinsky improves each moment and his men follow the impetus supplied by their leader.

"Eroica" and "Vltava," their dynamics were as perfect as the perfect assembling of the choirs in unison, harmony, and poetic visioning.

In the intermission I consulted the program cards. There was the cameo-like reproduction of the classic head of Germaine Schnitzer adorning the announcement of her forthcoming appearance with the Russian Symphony Orchestra, and at last (oh happiness in anticipation), the great Tschai-kowsky "Concerto in B Flat Minor," played as possibly she alone plays it—spirit in unison with the flame, and forever new fires of the saddest of all the Russians in music.

Yes, Mme. Schnitzer will bring to it her irresistible (the Germans have the better epithet—hinreissend) energy and transporting interpretation.

Musical at the Residence of Senator William A. Clark, with a Notable Attendance of Society

Senator and Mrs. William A. Clark threw open their palatial mansion at Seventy-seventh street and Fifth avenue on the afternoon of February 24, the occasion being the concert in aid of the French military hospital, financed by Mrs. Charles H. Marshall (whose daughter, by the way, was married recently to Marshall Field, 3rd) as an auxiliary of Val de Grace.

The entertainment was held in one of the great picture galleries of Senator Clark's superb residence—that spacious, lofty gallery, with a glorious organ, whose tonal beauties might inspire the hymns of a seraph.

The auditorium was well filled by men and women of prominence, and a musical program of distinguished features offered; opened by Scott Brook, with the Guilman "Caprice" exceedingly well rendered, and with a fine impression of an artistic understanding of registration.

Mr. Andre Turret, violinist, and Mr.

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
 AEOLIAN HALL
 NEW YORK
 Knabe Piano used

Jean Verd, pianist, were heard in Cesar Franck's "Sonata," with four lengthy and difficult movements. The artists' performance welded into a nearly perfect whole—a musical interpretation even in rhythm, tempi and understanding.

Mr. Tourret, who occupies an enviable position in Paris as artist and teacher, will take up his permanent residence here it is hoped. Added to an unusual personality, in which dark eyes make a striking foil to hair and beard of gold-blonde, Mr. Tourret has the necessary commanding physique without which the artist must suffer some disadvantages.

As a violinist Mr. Tourret proved himself a master of smooth, flowing style and confidence-getting repose. He played with the earnestness of a lover as well as close student of his instrument.

It is to be hoped that he will be heard here often.

Mr. Claude Benedict of the Theater Francaise recited two poems in the suave French of a histrion of distinction. He was forced to respond with a third number. Then Mr. Paul Kefer contributed Saint-Saens' "Appassionata" and Vincent d'Indy's "Lied" in graceful manner, with nuance and shading innumerable upon his 'cello.

Mlle. Challet-Balme, soprano, was heard in an air from Charpentier's "Louise," two songs by Gabriel Faure, and Gounod's "Ave Marie," with the accompaniment of 'cello, violin, piano and organ.

The singer disclosed an agreeable voice, delivered in the accepted French manner, which stamps the work of de Reszke and other of his co-temporaries, and apparently satisfactory to many music-lovers who accept the de Reszke verdict as final.

Mrs. William A. Clark, the fair young hostess, received her guests attired in a silk of deepest, darkest ruby, brocaded in black, and wearing her three strings of splendid pearls.

Mrs. Clark's winning simplicity is a feminine quality so rare as to be almost negligible. She charms by her unconsciousness of self and her amiable affability.

After the conclusion of the program the guests were afforded an opportunity of inspecting the treasures of the several picture galleries and the luxurious state apartments.

Mrs. Heckscher in New York

The event of a visit from Mrs. Heckscher was a happy variation from the week's work of duty.

She came in upon me like an angelic visitant, after making known her presence in the metropolis by a telephonic annunciation; proving herself though angel still mortal.

Mrs. Heckscher looked exceedingly well and happy; happy in the completion of her important opus, "The Slav," an orchestral composition which is receiving the greatest praise from the musicians and conductors who have thus far had access to the score.

At the moment of her visit I had not yet received the latest issue of Music News, which surely marks a novel and beautiful departure from the stereotyped. It is a bit of fine art in printing, and for once I take this opportunity of making my compliments to Messieurs, the printers, engravers and publishers of Music News, who have pro-

(Continued on page 31)

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano, Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABEL

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present
The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE

CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL

Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346GERTRUDEPupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years LeschetizkyThe Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIAFor years with Heermann and ServickCLEOPHASHave Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIST

Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau

Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. MendsenTENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.Leonora AllenSOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS

4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHLSOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007Lida BROWNING WHITEACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345Rubee Wilson DeLamarterSOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian ChurchJOHN RANKLBARITONE
608 Fine Arts BuildingLOUISE SLADE ContraltoHARRISON Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718FREDERICA DOWNINGGERHARDT CONTRALTO
Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

Music in America

THE MARCUSSON-RANKL RECITAL AT HAMILTON PARK

The series of song recitals given by professional pupils from the MacBurney studios at Hamilton Park Field House revolved around to a joint recital by Grace Brune Marcusson, soprano; John Rankl, bass-baritone, and Grace Grove, accompanist, on Monday evening, March 1. These singers have been heard several times before in the same class of program with growing enjoyment and it is well known that their list of songs are always interesting, unhackneyed and exceptionally well sung. Add to this the artistic accompaniments as offered by Miss Grove and you receive an evening of music well worth traveling far to attend.

The program was made up wholly of duets, with two exceptions. Mr. Rankl sang with great dramatic fervor and a splendid portrayal of his rich, resonant voice the "Erlkoenig" by Loewe. Mrs. Marcusson likewise achieved splendid results in an aria from "La Reine de Saba," Gounod. Her resourceful voice stood her in good stead at all times but especially to be commended was her mastery of the more high and powerful portions of this aria.

"La Dove Preude" (Il Flauto Magico), Mozart, and a recitative and duet from the "Creation" were sung in a most satisfactory and effective style and were well chosen as to fitness for opening the program. A group of four Mendelssohn duets were a welcome and very pleasant part of the evening's offerings. "Im Schweiger der Nacht," "O Fruchling," "Uber Stillen Wassern," "In der Mondnacht," "Huetet euch" and "Im Lenz," the first three by Stange and the latter by Von Fielitz, formed a very interesting group and received most finished renditions from the soprano and baritone.

The program closed with another well selected group of duets. These were "Angelus," Chaminade, which proved to be a rare gem and was especially well liked. "Allah Be with Us," Finden; "Du bist wie eine stille Sternennacht," Eggers; "Under the Greenwood Tree," Lehmann, and "Maiden in Grey," Barnicott.

Miss Grove deserves no small part of the honors of the evening. As usual she was ever alert and followed the singers with the finished touch of the ideal accompanist.

RECITAL BY ESTELLA NEUHAUS

The following program will be played by Estella Neuhaus in her Fine Arts Theater piano recital, Monday, March 8, at 3:

Sonata, B minor (first movement).....Chopin
Allegro Maestoso.....Cui
Gondolier's Love Song.....Youferoff
Spinning Song.....Balikirew
Islamey (Fantaisie Orientale).....Balikirew
Balikirew's wild fantasy on trans-Caucasian airs abounds in strong oriental color and startling originality. Its strange themes and extraordinary harmonies, though modulating with amazing rapidity, are nevertheless clear in treatment and meaning. It is one of the chief works in Russian pianoforte music.
Readings—J. Howe Clifford,
Polonaise, F sharp minor, Op. 44.....Chopin
Legend—St. Francis' Sermon to the Birds.....Liszt
Arabesque.....Debussy
Slavonian Cradle Song.....Klein
Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 13.....Liszt

LEONORA ALLEN SOLOIST AT SINAI CONCERT

Miss Leonora Allen, who achieved such marked success with the Apollo Club at Orchestra Hall recently, pleased another vast audience at Sinai Temple on Sunday night, February 28. This was not Miss Allen's first appearance in the popular orchestral concerts given at Sinai. She appeared in a similar capacity one year ago and no doubt the announcement of her appearing again this year accounted for the extra large audience which was present.

Her charming personality, great interpretative ability and much admired soprano voice were again the subject of commendatory remarks on all sides and much pleasure to all who heard her well chosen offerings.

At her first appearance she sang the big dramatic aria, "Wie nacht mir der Schlummer" from Weber's "Der Freischutz" with orchestra accompaniment, in excellent style throughout, displaying with brilliant results her many enviable attainments.

A group of four songs which included "Long Ago," Loepke; "Night and the Curtains Drawn," Ferrata; "Gallie," Mokrejs, and "Love, I Have Won You," Ronald, was even more enjoyable than her first offering. Each song appeared especially grateful to Miss Allen, and her hearers grew more enthusiastic the more she sang. Consequently she had to repeat a part of the Mokrejs song and add another to the program list.

The twenty-five Chicago symphony men which compose the Sinai orchestra, were in fine form as usual and played numbers by Mendelssohn, Lacombe, Wagner, Haydn, Moszkowski and Suppe with delightful finish under Mr. Dunham's direction.

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Alexander Zukowsky, violinist, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, at its concerts Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. He will be heard in Bruch's violin concerto No. 1 in G minor.

The program will be as follows:

Overture, "Melpomene".....Chadwick
Symphonic poem, "Prometheus".....Scriabine
Concerto for violin No. 1, G minor, Op. 26.....Bruch
Symphonic Variations on an Original Theme.....Stock
Selections from "The Damnation of Faust".....Berlioz

A CANTATA

"The Little Mermaid," by Charles Vincent, was sung by the Englewood Woman's Club Chorus, Monday, March 1, at the club house, under the able leadership of Miss Lucia May Smith. Assisted by Mrs. Lenore Herrinton, reader; Miss Lucia May Smith, soprano; Miss Esther Muenstermann, contralto; Miss Agnes Bodholdt, accompanist.

Zendt—Marie Sidenius Zendt will sing a recital at Wilmette, Ill., Congregational Church Friday evening, March 5. Tuesday evening, March 9, she will assist Zefer Al-gots, pianist, at Kimball Hall. March 11 she has engaged to sing "Allain" in the "Children's Crusade," at Wheaton, Ill.

ORPHEUS CHORAL SOCIETY

The Orpheus Choral Society gave a performance of the "Messiah" at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium Tuesday evening, February 23. William D. Johnson, director; Louise Krause, soprano; Esther Muenstermann, contralto; M. J. Brines, tenor; Gustav Berndt, bass. Mrs. Martha Anderson, pianist, and members of the Chicago orchestra furnished the accompanist.

The chorus as an organization is very young in experience but they did much commendable singing. Their sincerity of purpose and willingness to attempt things that are worth while should not be overlooked. The first chorus numbers heard by this writer, "Glory to God," was given with a fine spirit. "Lift Up Your Heads O Ye Gates" found them at their best. The "Hallelujah Chorus" was sung with much power and was enthusiastically received. The chorus was accorded much applause for its efforts throughout the evening, and it is to be hoped they will continue the work so well begun. Miss Louise Krause, soprano, who has appeared in concerts with much success, has a voice of good quality and range, a pleasing stage presence and attractive personality. She gave a good account of herself. She was at her best in "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," singing it with a fine regard for the spirit.

Miss Esther Muenstermann, contralto, has a voice of good quality and range, added to this is an attractive and pleasing stage presence. "He Was Despised" found Miss Muenstermann at her best, and it was given with a fine quality of tone, and she displayed much musicianship and a fine regard for the text.

M. J. Brines, tenor, is well known in the oratorio field, and he has received much commendatory criticism regarding his "Messiah" presentation. "Thou Shall Dash Them" was sung with much dramatic intensity and won him much applause.

Mr. Berndt contributed the bass solo. The soloists are to be commended for the manner in which they did the work as a whole, for they sang for the most part against a very irregular beat that was more than once at odds.

H. J. P.

ROGERS PARK BAPTIST CHURCH

Every member of the quartet at the Rogers Park Baptist Church is an excellent soloist and the ensemble work is particularly good. Last Sunday morning they were heard in Pfeuffer's "How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me" with great effect.

Mr. Samuel B. Garton, the tenor, was heard in Stevensen's "Light," a number which is becoming very popular with church singers of late. Mr. Garton sang it with good, rich tone and much understanding. The singing of the hymns was unusually good.

Schubert Symphony Club—The Schubert Symphony Club, composed of Leeta Corder, soprano, Thomas Valentine Purcell, violinist, and Lavina Zendt, contralto and accompanist, will give a concert at the Presbyterian Church in Maywood this (Friday) evening.

American Conservatory—Saturday at 3:30, March 6, Kurt Wanieck, pianist, and Louise Hattstaedt-Winter, soprano, will give a recital at Kimball Hall.

LONG BEACH, CAL.

Inasmuch as the predominating features in music as well as in science, art and languages find an impetus in the Ebell Club, it may be appropriate at this time to say a word regarding this progressive woman's organization that has accomplished so much along literary, economic and social lines in California.

In 1876, Dr. Adrian Ebell of Germany, a writer and educator, while on a lecture tour in this country, organized what was known as the first chapter, at Oakland. The demise of Dr. Ebell occurred soon after this, when the active members, to commemorate the memory of this philanthropic friend and to perpetuate the good work so successfully commenced, changed the name to the Ebell, which has been the synonym for most everything good and uplifting in all branches of intellectual culture and social intercourse without interruption all these years.

In 1894 an Ebell was organized in Los Angeles, and in 1896 Mrs. Adelaide Tichenor was instrumental in forming an Ebell in Long Beach, which, in large measure, has secured for this growing metropolis the appropriate and popular cognomen, the "Queen of the Beaches," for the Ebell is distinctively queenly in its zealous endeavor and higher ideal.

The Ebell has lately arranged for a new club house, necessitated by the rapidly increasing membership and, under the able administration of the accomplished president, Mrs. June MacNee, whose exceptional ability and unceasing energy has placed her at the head of this flourishing organization, a continuation of successful work is assured.

At the February "Home Day," illustrating the power of music, two beautiful lullabies were rendered in a most distinctive manner by Mrs. H. T. Harriman, who possesses a full, round sympathetic contralto voice and a pleasing personality that have won for her many deserved encomiums. Mrs. Luella Clark Emery gave her adequate support with her artistic piano accompaniment.

Studying the "Masters in Music" has claimed the attention of Ebell for some time. Professor Abby De Avirett has just closed two well-prepared lectures upon Liszt, the "Man and the Musician." In illustration of his last discourse, Miss Collier Woodell sang, with great beauty, "Ich Liebe Dich." Miss Madeline Luper played a Hungarian rhapsody, forcibly indicating the gypsy style, and Miss Pauline Farquhar played three other of his masterpieces with great success.

Miss Freda E. Peycke, favorably known in Chicago, gave a program of charming songs and storiottes in the new assembly hall at the Horace Mann school last Saturday evening. Her word-plays and the enhancing of child life in sweet song bring out in full measure the irrepressibility of her own pleasing personality.

Under the attractive headline of "How Music Came to Be What It Is," Miss Edith Rhett will give ten lectures, under the auspices of the City Teachers' Association. The first subject was "The Beginning; Bach, the Father of Modern Music."

Mrs. Princess Long, sister of Mr. Charles W. Clark, of your city, was the guest of honor at a social function lately and sang two selections, to the delight of all. She has charge of the music at the Christian Church.

ROSELAND QUARTET

The quartet from Roseland Presbyterian Church gave "In a Persian Garden," by Liza Lehmann, for Roseland Woman's Club Tuesday evening, February 23; Mrs. Flora Waalkes, soprano; Miss Gretchen Ernst, contralto; Mr. J. J. Kendrick, tenor, and Mr. Richard B. De Young, bass.

Clippinger—Mr. D. A. Clippinger will present Mrs. Anna C. Binnix, soprano, in song recital at his Kimball Hall studios on next Saturday afternoon at 3. Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President
Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE OWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

"SIEGFRIED" AT THE HARVARD STADIUM

Under the auspices of the Harvard University, Wagner's Grand Opera "Siegfried" will be given at the Stadium Thursday night, June 3 (4th or 5th if rainy) with a large chorus, the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, enlarged to 120 players, Mr. Hertz, eminent Wagnerian conductor, conducting, and with a cast including Mme. Gadski, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Alma Gluck; Messrs. Berger, Whitehill, Reiss, Goritz, Ruysdael, all from the same opera house.

A New Work by Gustave Strube

"Variations" on an original theme by Gustave Strube, one-time member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and for some years associate conductor of the Worcester, Mass., Musical Festival, now head of the department of theory and composition at the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, was played at the 15th public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Karl Muck, conductor, Friday afternoon, February 26.

This was the first hearing accorded the work anywhere, and much interest was manifest among the musicians and audience present.

The theme is a broad chorale type with simple harmony and melodic line, and this is treated with a wealth of resource and technical ability, touched with the impressionistic phantasy of the French school of composition which Mr. Strube has effected in his later works, and which shows his sympathy with it. Some of the "variations" are dramatic, but most are in his characteristic poetical vein.

The Taming of the Shrew at the Boston Opera House

The Henry Jewett Players have been giving "The Taming of the Shrew," at the Boston Opera House during the week of February 22, to houses including many public school pupils from towns and cities in "Greater Boston," that have appreciated the reduced prices offered them by Manager W. R. Macdonald, fifty cent seats for twenty-five cents, thirty-five cent seats, twenty cents, twenty-five cent seats, fifteen cents, to hear this and other Shakespeare plays that have been produced this season.

After seeing the work of Leonard Willey, the Henry Jewett "Petruchio," in his furious attacks upon the equally tempestuous "Katherine," Irby Marshall, until he subdued her and made her an object of wonder to her father and those who knew her before his successful treatment, one would hardly like to meet a woman alone who had the masterfulness to "tame" him, although the process, viewed at a safe distance, might be very informative and exciting.

The "comic" business in the hands of "Grumio," Max Montesolc, "Biondelo," Leonard Mudie, and the "Haberdasher," Frank Gregory, kept the house in a merry mood, while "Bianca," Mary Forbes, gave the play that touch of sweet femininity so gratifying to the human heart.

The incidental music, Samuel Manus, director, would have been in better taste had the program been made up of music characteristic of the times of the play, or at least of early English composers, Purcell among them. The "Metropolitan Echoes," Tobani; "Chin-Chin," Caryll; "Spanish Dances," Moszkowski; an organ solo by Elmer Wilson, and the "Largo," orchestra and organ, Handel, was the program.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be the offering of the Henry Jewett Players in the ninth week of their Shakespearean season at the Boston Opera House, beginning Monday, March 1.

A Concert by the B. Y. M. C. Union

Tuesday night, March 2, the B. Y. M. C. Union gave the first orchestral concert with educational music talks, arranged after the plan of the municipal concerts of former years, at 48 Boylston street, William Howard conducting. The orchestra consisted of

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News.

nine players, the soloists were Mme. Wright-Calvert, soprano, and William Howard, violinist. The lecturer was Lois C. Elson.

Theater Attractions

A limited engagement of the Andreas Dippel Opera Company, with an all-star cast Monday night, March 1, at the Majestic Theater. The opera was Charles Cuvillier's "The Lilac Domino."

The artists of the company have been selected from the Metropolitan, the Chicago and Philadelphia opera companies, Jeanne Maubourg from the first, Rene Detling and James Harrod from the second, while such well known singers as Eleanor Painter, prima donna, and the English baritone, Wilfrid Douthitt, come from the third and elsewhere. There was a chorus of voices picked from leading grand opera companies, and a symphony orchestra under Dr. Anslem Goetzl and Milan Roder, conductors.

This company has been organized to revive light opera in America, and Mr. Dippel hopes to make popular in the best sense, this style of entertainment which modern musical comedy has almost driven from the field.

New England Conservatory Items

A pianoforte recital by Florence Fern Larrabee of the New England Conservatory class of 1908 drew a large audience to Jordan Hall Friday evening, February 26. Miss Larrabee, since her graduation with highest honors after four years of instruction with Carl Stasny of the Conservatory faculty, has been studying abroad with Mme. Carreno. She is a native of Petersburg, Va., where her sister, Mrs. Pauline Larrabee Robertson, is head of a leading southern piano school. Mrs. Larrabee came to Boston after graduation from the National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md. She held a scholarship for a time in the Whitney International School of Music and prior to entering the New England Conservatory she studied with Mrs. Philip Hale. A little more than a year after her Conservatory graduation she appeared as soloist at a Boston Symphony Orchestra concert, the first instance in which that organization engaged an American artist who had never studied abroad.

Miss Larrabee's program in this, her reappearance before a Boston audience, comprised the Beethoven "Sonata" in C major, Op. 53; four "Etudes" by Chopin and the "Scherzo" in C sharp minor, Op. 39; "Elftanz," Popper; "Au Bord d'une Source," "Concert Etude" in D flat major, "Gondoliera and Tarentelle," "Venezia e Napoli," Liszt.

A Pantomime

"Too Late," an original pantomime of the Boxer uprising in China, written by Joseph A. Skinner, had its first presentation at a recital of the pantomime and rehearsal class of the New England Conservatory of Music Friday afternoon, February 26. The plot is based on a true incident in which some beleaguered missionaries, thinking from a noise outside their hiding place that they were about to be killed and their women taken into worse than captivity, committed suicide just before being rescued. The characters of the pantomime were taken by the author himself, Edith Hawes, Elizabeth Sise Feeley, Ronald Green, Lee Estabrook, Grace French, Lois Brader, Roy Holmes and A. P. Hodnott. This is one of a series of original pieces to be put on Recital Hall stage during the present session.

At the same recital Edna Hammond, a student from Hingham, did an interesting series of studies of childhood, in costume, and the second act of Henry Davies' farce, "Cousin Kate," was given by Harold Stewart, Margaret Gulesian and Dorothy Tremble.

Charles Marie Widor

The seventieth birthday of Charles Marie Widor, which occurred February 23, 1915, was celebrated at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, with an organ recital by advanced pupils and former students. The program consisted entirely of numbers by Widor and J. S. Bach. Portions of the Fifth, Sixth and Eighth Symphonies of the "Symphonie Gothique" and the "Symphonie Romane" of Widor were presented by Ruth Tilton, Emmie W. McKie, Ernest Mitchell, Marshall S. Bidwell and Raymond C. Robinson. Frank A. Ellis was heard in the Bach "Fantasie" in G minor; Roy L. Frazee in the choral prelude, "Christ, unser Herr," and Lelia M. Harvey in the "Fugue" in E flat major.

MUSIC IN NEW YORK

(Continued from page 27)

duced a chef d'Oeuvre in this charming and dainty front page.

An Interesting Concert

The letter following shows how much one auditor at least enjoyed the concert of Monday evening at the Magdalen Home:

New York City, February 23, 1915.

Mme. Abbie Stephens Fridenberg,
Suite 110, Carnegie Hall, New York.
Dear Mme. Fridenberg:

Your gracious thought and consideration for poor me were the means of my spending a most delightful February 22 evening at the concert of the Magdalen Home, in which Mrs. John R. MacArthur, soprano, and Mr. Sascha Jacobsen so distinguished themselves.

Of course, I was well acquainted with Mrs. MacArthur's talents as a pianist, therefore it was a genuine surprise to see and hear her appearing as a vocalist. Her voice impressed me as of excellent quality and she has the art of intelligent interpretation and temperament in abundance.

Mr. Jacobsen, violinist, whom I had the pleasure of hearing last April at Senator Clark's musicale, has vastly improved, and surely gives promise of attaining the highest rank in his maturer years.

I am particularly impressed by the goodness and humanitarian instincts of these artists in giving freely and without compensation of their talents to their less fortunate fellow creatures, and it is to be hoped that other of our artists will lend themselves and their talents towards contributing the few bright moments in the lives of these poor creatures who are often more sinned against than sinning.

I doubt if the Metropolitan Opera House ever held a more enthusiastic and appreciative audience than this gathering at the Magdalen Home.

Again I thank you for adding another courtesy to the many I have received from you in the past.

Most sincerely yours,

Mrs. MacArthur, tactfully and tastefully attired in full evening regalia, seemed to me at her most radiant and enchanting best. She smiled so happily, and her gown of lace and net, with bodice and sweeping train of Persian brocade, made her a picture worth remembering; and how she did finish the program, aided by young Jacobsen, violinist, and Sascha Saslavsky, at the piano, in the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," in whose altitudinous climax she inserted a more altitudinous "upper C."

Mrs. MacArthur was heard in other numbers with violin obligato, notably Schubert's "Serenade" and Weyl's lovely "Spring Song."

She was hugely applauded for everything, and won all hearts with "Comin' thro' the Rye," which she graciously repeated.

Mr. Jacobsen interpreted a Couperin number with great style and breadth, a noble poise, and that rare thing, a fine round big tone. He played about half a dozen numbers, and was heartily applauded. Schumann's "Traumerei" was so insistently applauded that it was accorded a repetition.

Mr. Charles L. Wagner announces a series of three Lenten recitals at the Princess Theater, as follows:

Rudolph Ganz, Swiss pianist; Tuesday, at 3:30, March 16.

Roderick White (debut), American violinist; Tuesday, at 3:30, March 23.

Rudolph Ganz; Tuesday, at 3:30, March 30.

That dashing Australian contralto with the red-gold hair, Eva Mylott, had a great success in Fall River a few days ago. She was the central figure of a program of importance, and her songs were applauded and re-demanded.

Miss Mylott's selections included the principal aria from Saint-Saens' "Samson et Delilah," the Bach-Gounod "Ave Marie" with violin obligato, Giordani's "Caro mio ben," and Schumann's "Wenn Ich frueh in den Garten geh." A very appreciative audience was gathered to do honor to the artist's talents.

J. PERCIVAL DAVIS

Mr. J. Percival Davis, who is to be one of the recitalists at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco this month, came to this country in November, 1913, to accept the position of organist and choir-master at St. Mark's Church, Syracuse, N. Y.

Mr. Davis was born at Easingwold, Yorkshire, England, twenty-six years ago, and is a pupil of Dr. G. R. Sinclair of Hereford Cathedral. Dr. Sinclair is one of the most prominent of present-day musicians, being the director of two choral societies, each containing 600 voices, and of two orchestral societies of 80 members each. Services at this cathedral are fully choral, twice a day, with choirs of from forty to fifty paid voices.

J. PERCIVAL DAVIS

Mr. Davis has made an unusual progress in the musical profession, having appeared with much success as organist, pianist and composer, in England, France, Spain, Canada and the United States. He was introduced in this country as a composer by Madam Maude Powell, the celebrated violinist, whom he had the opportunity of accompanying at the Central New York Musical Festival, held at Syracuse, N. Y., May, 1913. He is better known by his "Songs Impromptu," which recently appeared and are becoming universally popular.

Mr. Davis is at present organist and choir-master at Christ Church, Joliet, where he has done great work with the choir, given over fifty recitals, established what is known as the Will County Choral Society, and greatly assisted in raising the musical standard of the town with his large teaching connection.

Bonanno—Sig. Bonanno has returned from Georgia, where he went to enjoy a fortnight of springtime.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

FOR SALE—Small music store, consisting of pianos, musical instruments and sheet music; no opposition; present location 14 years. 1851 W. Madison st.

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

WANTED—Studio time immediately. Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 regularly. Address C, Music News.

YOUNG lady with musical education desires position with a music studio or private instructor as assistant in reception room. Address E. C. Dalquist, 811 North Parkside avenue, or Phone Austin 5831.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of MUSIC Modern Expression Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

HAYDNOWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS
ORATORIO
RECITALS

SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO

CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
612 Fine Arts Building Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

NORINE C. MULVIHILL

Soprano Soloist—Vocal Instruction
153 W. 69th St. (Birmingham Bldg.) Tel. Normal 6537

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone. Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place
Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE · PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, ChicagoNelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

OMAHA

The coming of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra to the Boyd Theater on the 19th, with Frances Nash of Omaha as piano soloist, drew the most brilliant musical as well as society audience seen in our city for many years.

The orchestra, always popular with the Omaha musical people, was, if possible, more enjoyed than ever before, while Miss Nash met the expectations of her friends and admirers, who expected much of her because of her long sojourn in the German capital, where she has been such an enthusiastic student.

Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, comes to the Brandeis Theater March 14. Much interest has been aroused by his coming in the ranks of violin students and admirers of Mr. Kreisler, who are legion in Omaha.

Henry Cox gave a very interesting evening of chamber music at the Omaha School of Orchestral Instruments on February 22. A large audience enjoyed the program thoroughly.

The choir of the Emmanuel Baptist Church gave a good account of itself on February 22, when they sang "The Rose Maiden." Harry Disbrow, baritone, and Marie French, soprano, were very satisfactory as soloists. The audience was large and applause generous in the extreme.

On Saturday evening Miss Eleanor Lentz gave a recital by piano students, in which ten pupils took part, acquitting themselves with credit.

On January 26 the junior and intermediate departments of the Berglum School gave a recital at the Schneller & Muler Piano Company Auditorium, reflecting credit upon themselves and teachers as well.

Miss Hazel Wilcox, one of Omaha's rapidly rising young violinists, played a very successful engagement at David City on February 19. She also played the second Wieniawski "Concerto" with the Omaha Study Orchestra on February 25.

Miss Olga Eitner, child violinist; Tress Keys, entertainer, and Ruth Flynn, pianist, gave a recital at Valley, Neb., on February 18.

On March 4 Laura Wessel, mezzo-contralto, will give the third number in the Artist Pupils' Concert Series at the Dickerman School. Her program will include arias in French and Italian and ballads in French, German, Italian and English.

The opening of the Fontenelle, Omaha's new million-dollar hotel, will be of importance musically, as it is understood a series of musicales will be maintained there each year. A chorus under the direction of Thomas J. Kelly, assisted by Mrs. Kelly and Henry Cox's Violin Choir, will be one of the first attractions.

On March 8, at the Brandeis Theater, George Hamlin, tenor, and Frances Nash, pianist, will give a concert, under the management of the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church. Much interest seems to be manifest, as Miss Nash made a very favorable impression when she played with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on February 19.

Miss Marie Yard, soprano, pupil of Millie Ryan, left recently to join the "Everywoman" Company, as understudy for "Conscience."

Omaha music lovers are rejoicing because Herbert Witherspoon, bass, has been engaged for the spring concerts in connection with the Chicago Orchestra and the Mendelssohn Club.

The Boyd Theater Stock Company has been making a special feature of Tuesday night as society night and has used some concert performer on these occasions. On March 2 Hazel Silver, soprano, will sing "Carissima" between acts.

The newly-organized Elks Glee Club, Carroll Wright, director, is planning for a public concert early in March.

On February 28 Evan Williams, the very popular tenor, gave a most successful concert at the Brandeis Theater.

GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

G. MAGNUS SCHUTZ

The following is taken from the Beloit Daily News:

An unqualified success was scored last evening by the Beloit Male chorus in its first public appearance as a single body since its organization several months ago. The First Congregational Church was comfortably filled with an audience of over 500 and the spontaneous applause which greeted every number on the program attested its appreciativeness.

The chorus numbered thirty-five and while not up to its full strength of forty voices was very well balanced and left nothing to be desired in harmonious effects. Director G. Magnus Schutz had perfect control of the singers at all times. His every move brought the desired response and the result was precision of attack and perfect tone coloring.

Presenting a variety of selections, the concert was easy to listen to and the feeling of tediousness which so often is prevalent at a musical program was altogether lacking. Of the chorus numbers, "The Bells of Shandon," "The Long Day Closes," the two darkie melodies, "Doan Ye Cry, Ma Honey" and "Kentucky Babe," "Marching," and the "Winter Song," which closed the concert, were the most pleasing. "Castilla," a Spanish ballad, effectively opened the program and served to warm the singers to their work. The groups following the intermission were the most enjoyable.

The chorists were assisted by two soloists of unusual ability, G. Magnus Schutz, bass, and Hans Dressel, cellist. Their excellent work rounded out the program and enhanced the enjoyment of the evening two-fold. Mr. Schutz needs no introduction to Beloit audiences, his notable performances heretofore in many of the big local musical events having won him the plaudits of all who have had the pleasure of hearing him.

Mr. Schutz displayed unusual versatility. Selections from grand opera, lesser classics and dramatic readings were included in his repertoire. The bombastic "Honor and Arms," from the opera "Samson," was followed by "The Evening Star," from "Tannhauser," and each was given an equally effective interpretation. The latter, sung in German, has seldom been equaled before a local audience and Mr. Schutz was greeted with tremendous applause.—(Advertisement.)

LESTER

510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist

MINNEAPOLIS' SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AN ASSET TO THE STATE

Caryl B. Storrs writes as follows in the Winona (Minn.) Independent:

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which gave its first concert in Winona last evening, is an organization of which the state of Minnesota should be very proud. Though every one in the northwest acknowledges the high quality and standing of the orchestra, its really phenomenal career is not everywhere fully appreciated. Twelve years ago there was no Minneapolis orchestra; today it is acknowledged by learned music critics from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic to be one of the three supreme orchestras of the United States—the other two being the orchestras of Boston and Chicago.

The significance of this statement may be made clearer by a little analysis and comparison. The Boston Symphony Orchestra was organized in 1881, and has been, during its thirty-four years of existence, under the baton of six different conductors. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra was organized nine years later though its nucleus was composed of a group of fifty musicians brought from New York by Theodore Thomas, when he left the east to continue his wonderful musical mission in the middle west. The Chicago orchestra has had two conductors, Theodore Thomas and Frederick Stock.

UNPRECEDENTED ACHIEVEMENT

The age of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is about one-third that of these other two organizations, and yet this vigorous youngster among orchestras has rapidly passed many others and taken its place fairly alongside the two veterans of Boston and Chicago in a little less than twelve years. This achievement is unprecedented in the musical history of the world.

The Minneapolis orchestra owes its rapid rise chiefly to two forces; the personality and talents of Emil Oberhoffer, its conductor, and the loyal, sustained and enthusiastic support of the Orchestral Association and the citizens of Minneapolis. The great initial force, of course, was Mr. Oberhoffer, who is a rare combination of musician and business man with sufficient magnetism to inspire his public, his financial supporters and his musicians.

NONE SELF-SUPPORTING

It should be unnecessary to state that there is no such a thing in the world as a self-supporting Symphony Orchestra of the highest type. Musicians such as those who now compose the rank and file of the Minneapolis orchestra command large salaries; for, contrary to a curiously persistent and entirely erroneous opinion, the orchestra is not made up of Minneapolis men. There are, in the present body of eighty musicians, only six of the original orchestra, all the remainder being imported men who have been drawn from the ranks of every great orchestra in the world, while the principals of the different sections are solo artists recognized all over the world of music. To cite only two instances, Richard Czerwonky, concert master and head of the first violin section, and Carl Scheurer, head of the viola section, were personally selected and brought to this country from the famous orchestra of Cologne, Germany, by Dr. Karl Muck when he was called to take his present position as conductor for the Minneapolis orchestra to give a sufficient lar instances in the personnel of the orchestra might be related.

PROFIT IS IMPOSSIBLE

With eighty musicians commanding salaries mete with their quality, with managerial and office staff sufficient to look after its business affairs, with the enormous annual rental of the Auditorium and a hundred and one other expenses, it is impossible profit, or even to pay expenses. The annual deficit of the Minneapolis orchestra is met from a number of concerts during the season to make any guaranty fund of $65,000 which is subscribed gladly by the loyal citizens of Minneapolis for the support of what they believe to be the biggest aesthetic advertising asset the city could possibly possess. This fund is not required in full, but the deficit is prorated among the subscribers; that is, when 60 per cent of the fund is needed to meet the deficit, the individual who has subscribed $100 is assessed $60, the one whose subscription is $1,000 is assessed $600, and so forth.

To one who has watched the development of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra from its inception as closely as the present writer, not all the joy of its success lies in the growth and betterment of the orchestra itself. Equally pleasurable has been the privilege of watching the correlative growth of musical taste and enthusiasm in Minneapolis. The orchestra has given every season for several years, more concerts than any other symphonic body in the United States. The present season, for instance, is making upon Mr. Oberhoffer in the exacting work of program construction and upon the orchestra in rehearsing those programs, demands that seem almost prohibitive in their magnitude to anyone who knows what the adequate preparation of orchestral music means.

SERIES OF CONCERTS

The backbone of an orchestral season, of course, is its series of symphony concerts. Twelve of these are being given in Minneapolis this winter, which means the selection and preparation of twelve different symphonies, with overtures, suites and solo numbers enough to make up two-hour programs. This work during the present season has been increased more than fifty per cent by the preparation of eight symphony programs to be given in the St. Paul Auditorium, nearly all of which have been different from those given in Minneapolis. The difficulty of selecting symphonies for these concerts has been increased by the fact that the nine Beethoven symphonies, the usual havens of refuge for the distracted orchestral conductor, are being played at a special series of six all-Beethoven programs, presented on week-day afternoons and, therefore have not been available for the Friday evening concerts.

Most delightful of all the concerts to one who likes to observe the audience are the twenty-one popular Sunday afternoon concerts and six concerts given for school children with verbal explanations by Mr. Oberhoffer. It should be mentioned that Minneapolis is the only city in the world where popular concerts for 25 and 50 cents and children's concerts for 10 and 15 cents are given by a full symphony orchestra under its own conductor.

FIFTY-FIVE CONCERTS

The total number of concerts given by the orchestra in Minneapolis this season will be fifty-five, each before a practically sold out house in an Auditorium seating about 2,800 people. Multiply 2,800 by 55 and you will realize that a good many people, even reckoning duplicates, have learned to enjoy orchestral music in Minneapolis.

The fifty-five local concerts will be more than trebled by the eight St. Paul concerts, the twelve eastern tour concerts and the more than 100 concerts to be given during the spring tour.

And when the spring tour ends on June 5, and the orchestra has made a record of more than 165 concerts since October 25, who shall say that the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is not a vital force in the cause of good music in the United States?

###

Radanovits—The Hungarian University Club, Sandor S. Radanovits acting as chairman, attended a performance of "Sari" in a body. After the performance Mizzi Hajos was a guest of Mr. Radanovits at the banquet given in the Grey Room of the Sherman Hotel, where Mizzi Hajos and a real gypsy orchestra entertained the club.

On Monday, February 22, the pupils of Mr. Radanovits presented him a beautiful watch, as an expression of their best wishes for a happy birthday.

HELEN AXE BROWN

The following comment on Miss Brown's singing with the orchestra is taken from the Indianapolis Star:

Miss Brown sang "He is Good; He is Kind" from the opera "Herodiade," by the famous French composer, Jules Massenet. This aria is presented in the first act of the opera when Salome enters the court yard of King Herod's palace. She inquires for John, the Prophet, declaring that he is wondrously good and kind, having saved her life on the desert when she was a child. The aria, "Il est doux, il est bon" (He is good; he is kind) is her declaration of his goodness and kindness. Miss Brown sang this aria with rare sympathy and understanding; her enunciation of the French was perfect and those with even a slight understanding of the theme had no difficulty in following her.

As an encore, she sang the "Maids of Cadiz," by Delibes, and it was in this selection that she scored so heavily. There are few compositions so brimming with such lilting melody, such daintiness of expression, such bubbling joy of life. Few sopranos number this selection in their repertory, but Miss Brown handled it with apparent ease.

While congratulating the orchestra on its birthday, it is not amiss to compliment it on obtaining a return engagement to play at Bowling Green, Ky., May 5, 6 and 7, at the annual May Festival of the Western Kentucky Normal School. Miss Brown will accompany the orchestra as soloist, and she said yesterday that she would sing the "Maids of Cadiz" which means that a great treat is in store for Bowling Green.—(Advertisement.)

###

PUBLICITY

We reproduce the following from the "Bulletin" of the I. M. T. A. The booklet may be obtained by addressing E. R. Lederman, Centralia, Ill.

Charles E. Watt, editor and publisher of "Music News," in the issue of February 12th, writes editorially, in conclusion of the article on the meeting of the State Presidents, as follows:

"The special matter under discussion on Wednesday was standardization, the subject which this year again will occupy attention of practically all conventions, though one might suggest an equally important topic—"PUBLICITY FOR THE MEETINGS." Thousands of teachers throughout the country would attend the State Association meetings if they were told in any way what and when these are to be—and in this connection "Music News" once more offers its columns freely. We will print notices and programs of any and all State Association meetings which may come to our office."

The statement of Mr. Watt in regard to the woeful lack of publicity given our conventions and the aims and principles of our Associations is absolutely correct. Our I. M. T. A. has been given more publicity this year than usual on account of our examination plan and especially so with our orchestral prize contest, and we shall be glad to use the columns of the "Music News" to gain greater publicity and with it increased usefulness for musical progress in our state.

E. R. L.

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly
TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

Have You Passed the Dead Line in Your Musical Work?

HAVE you ever realized that there is a dead line that comes in the work of many artists and teachers? Have you ever thought why Rossini sank into comfortable decay at forty while Verdi climbed onward and upward to produce his marvelous "Falstaff" at the age of eighty?

The dead line may come at twenty or it may come at fifty. Insurance actuaries place it in the case of the average man at 40. Between 40 and 45, 75 per cent of all men lose all they have earned, after fifty only one man in 5000 ever "Comes Back." At sixty, 95 per cent of all people are living on daily earnings or are supported by their children.

Once beyond this dead line such musicians commence to fall downward and in a very few years find themselves at the bottom of the hill, when if they had only taken their careers in time they might have avoided the Dead Line.

If you are interested in passing the Dead Line or in coming back you will surely want to read the remarkable article by Thomas Tapper in the March issue of the Etude, which by the way is one of the finest issues ever published. Important contributions from J mes Huneker, Katherine Goodson, Clayton Johns, Hendrix Opienski.

Cut out this advertisement and send it with your complete address and 25c and we will send you the ETUDE for three months beginning with the March issue. Yearly subscription $1.50. Single copies 15c.

Published by the THEODORE PRESSER CO., 1712 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Pruyn-Hall—White-Smith Co. has just published one of Edythe Pruyn-Hall's recent writings, "Festal Prelude" (on Sullivan's "Onward, Christian Soldiers") for organ, dedicated to Mr. Edwin Arthur Kraft. The composition is extremely melodious and a worthy contribution to the organist's repertoire.

Beebe—Mrs. Agnes Leist Beebe will sing with the Zukowsky Orchestra at the Hebrew Institute on next Sunday afternoon. Mr. B. F. Lewis, who sang at Trinity Episcopal Church at the last choral service, is a pupil of Mrs. Beebe. He made a big success, also, as soloist recently at Christ Church in Joliet.

Aurora—At the New England Congregational Church, Aurora, under direction of Harry R. Detweiler, on last Tuesday evening, Coleridge-Taylor's "Death of Minnehaha" was given by the choir of the church. The soloists were Watahwasso, soprano; Lemuel Kilby, baritone; Lillian Shults, soprano; Rhoda Miller, organist, and Melita Kreig, pianist.

DOELLING-LUND RECITAL

Miss Mae Doelling, pianist, and Mr. Rene Lund, baritone, will give a joint recital at the Fine Arts Theater on next Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

The program is a very well selected one and includes several compositions by Chicago composers. Miss Alice R. Deal will be the accompanist for Mr. Lund.

MABEL CORLEW IN WHEATON, ILL

Miss Mabel Corlew gave a musical program last week in Wheaton as the annual open meeting of the Woman's Club of that city, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson.

The following comment appeared in the Wheaton Illinoian:

Miss Corlew rendered an interesting group of songs and gave the opportunity we too rarely get in Wheaton of enjoying the unsurpassed beauty of a voice revealing ease, refinement, inspiration and technical merit.—(Advertisement.)

Corlew—Sunday evening, February 28, Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, appeared as soloist with the Englewood Sunday evening Club singing with great success, "The Lord Is My Light," Speaks, and Roeckel's "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters." Miss Corlew was well liked. "The Lord Is My Light" was especially well done.

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer will be the soprano in a quartet assisting at a special service to be held at Temple Emanuel Friday evening, March 12. Miss Cramer sang at Temple Sholom January 15, 16, 22 and 23.

Walker—Edward Walker is engaged to sing the tenor role in Haydn's "Creation" with the Haydn Oratorio Society in Orchestra Hall, Chicago, April 9.

Ross—William Barlow Ross will be the soloist at the Sinai Temple Orchestral Concert on Sunday evening.

MR. DRAKE AND HIS PUPIL

This is a picture of Earl R. Drake, the successful violin teacher, and his talented young pupil, Harold Fullen Ayres, who recently gave a very successful recital at Auditorium Recital Hall.

HAROLD FULLEN AYERS AND
EARL R. DRAKE

HENIOT LEVY-ALEXANDER SEBALD

The last of the Sonata Evenings at the Little Theater, given by Mr. Levy and Mr. Sebald, took place on Monday evening and attracted the same audience as before—an audience thoroughly complimentary in numbers and equally enthusiastic in approval of the program.

These two artists certainly deserve the unbounded thanks of lovers of high grade ensemble for the splendid work they have accomplished, and it is to be hoped that next season will see a resumption of their programs.

Each of these two players is a thorough solo artist, each has a fine knowledge of repertoire and, best of all when ensemble is in question, each is big enough and broad enough to submerge himself when necessary and to devote himself absolutely to the evolution of perfect ensemble.

The works given on Monday were Op. 29, E Minor, Busoni, played for the first time in Chicago; the Brahms Op. 78, and the sterling "Kreutzer Sonata," by Beethoven.

Busoni has written with much more attention to the piano score than to the violin and his work, though distinctly novel and unquestionably fine, sounds a little one sided.

Brahms in Op. 78 is at his best, the Adagio Movement was particularly fine for the violin.

The "Kreutzer" is a wonderful example of ensemble for violin and piano, each instrument has some lovely solo bits and together the effect is a wonderful one. It was played at this time with superb intelligence and corresponding effect. C. E. W.

MARVIN HINSHAW'S LETTER OF ADVICE TO VOCAL STUDENTS, AND SUGGESTIONS TO ALL PROFESSIONAL PEOPLE WHO USE THE SPEAKING OR SINGING VOICE AS A MEANS OF LIVELIHOOD.

In all ages as far back as we have any history and up to and including the present day, both in this country and abroad, it has been advocated and claimed by all teachers of singing and schools of music that it has been my privilege to come in contact with, that when a student starts taking vocal lessons, it is obvious that during the early part of his instruction, say for the first year or two or even three, he can get no definite idea of what the teacher is trying to convey, but that he must content himself with paying a good price for lessons two or three times a week, to have the teacher simply exercise his voice and muscles, and that the pupil is not to understand what is going on, and hence cannot assist in the process.

If the foregoing claims are true and the pupil cannot understand definitely what the teacher is endeavoring to tell them, we are forced to draw this conclusion:

1 Either the pupil is non compos mentis, and incapable of grasping the most simple and well established laws of nature, upon which all perfect singing and tone production depend; or

2 The teacher, while he or she may be able to sing very well, does not fully or sufficiently understand the process by which they obtain the good results; or

3 The teacher does not possess that necessary natural gift of imparting his knowledge, and for this reason many fine singers cannot teach successfully.

Any false impression that a pupil can learn to sing simply by paying some teacher to exercise his voice and muscles for a certain number of years, should be at once dismissed from the mind, for exercise of a fault only increases the trouble instead of remedying it, and if continued will form permanent habits which will have to be overcome before they can ever learn to sing correctly. For this very reason we have thousands of singers who possess wonderful vocal instruments but who use them very badly owing to incorrect teaching and being allowed to exercise all the faults they may have; as a matter of fact, any and every fault a singer may have is caused entirely by wrong mental conception of what is right and a lack of mental control over the vocal organs and the muscles used in breathing and singing, and no fault whatsoever can be corrected by physical exercises prescribed by any teacher until the trouble is first remedied in the mind of the singer, and he is taught a new idea, which when he thinks, will begin to relieve the difficulty in the very next tone he sings. Then with just a little practice on any simple exercise, in order that the mind of the student may gain control over the disobedient muscles or vocal organs by the Master Mind, the whole trouble passes away as simply as in the law of nature the mist melts away under the rays of the morning sun. This will prove as great a help to the best singers as to students and will aid the greatest artists to sing still more gloriously.

This new natural method is founded upon the principles involved in science, mental suggestion, compressed air, wireless telegraphy and the telegraphic system of nerves in the human body. The object of all teachers should be to secure the best results in the shortest time possible.

The following are a few of many common faults so thoroughly taught to, and strenuously practiced by ambitious pupils and singers, and which are a great detriment to the voice and must be fully undone before the singer can succeed to any degree:

MARVIN HINSHAW

A Few Don'ts

- 1 Don't force the breath out or even allow it to escape gently.
- 2 Don't stretch the throat abnormally.
- 3 Don't raise the uvula and soft palate.
- 4 Don't try to open the back part of the mouth beyond normal.
- 5 Don't hold the tongue down, or up, either.
- 6 Don't hollow the tongue out in the center or turn the point up.
- 7 Don't stiffen the jaw.
- 8 Don't allow the muscles under the chin to cramp or contract.
- 9 Don't hold the lips stiff during the articulation, or at any time.
- 10 Don't allow the head chambers to contract or close.
- 11 Don't allow the nasal cavities to close or contract in the least.
- 12 Don't practice humming exercises by blowing air currents through one nostril at a time, or both.

13 Don't exercise your voice at all until your faults are first corrected in your mind, otherwise you simply develop the fault. Don't practice or sing the old three-register system.

14 Don't practice yawning exercises.

15 Don't spread the vocal cords.

16 Don't change (e) or (a) sounds to (ah), (oh) or anything else; speak them as in correct talking.

17 Don't hold the diaphragm too rigid.

18 Don't allow the diaphragm to weaken and sink during tone production.

19 Don't use chest or abdominal breathing.

20 Don't contract any muscles of the face, mouth, tongue, or throat during tone production.

21 Don't squeeze or pinch the muscles around larynx or vocal cords when singing high tones.

22 Don't push, force or reach to get your high tones.

23 Don't swallow your low tones or reach down to get them.

24 Don't try to portray any emotion by physical exertion or effort.

25 Don't try to gain expression by any arrangement of the muscles of the face.

26 Don't mistake facial contortion for true facial expression.

27 Don't make hard work of singing.

28 Don't mistake violent physical exertion for genuine emotion.

29 Don't sing all songs expressing grief, happiness, delight, pity, and a thousand others, with the same fixed facial expression.

30 Don't stand stiff or rigid while singing.

31 Don't raise on your toes when taking a high tone.

32 Don't stand or walk lazily or slouchy.

33 Don't stand on one foot and drop the other hip.

34 Don't stand with your feet far apart or just even.

35 Don't allow the shoulders to droop or the hips to fall forward.

36 Don't keep thinking about your physical body while on the platform; if you wish to be graceful, gain poise and develop a magnetic stage presence.

37 Don't tarry long or say too much when you call on a manager to secure an engagement.

38 Don't fail to have a neat card ready to leave with the manager bearing your name, address, telephone and your specialty.

39 Last but not least, don't look frightened. A smile is worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

MARVIN HINSHAW.

— # # # —

Votaw—Miss Lyravine Votaw and Miss Margaret Tarrant will sing excerpts from Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" at 3 o'clock matinee Saturday, March 6, in the Central Eleanor Assembly Hall, and before the Austin Woman's Club Monday, March 8. This attractive performance is meeting with great success.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Music Abroad

LONDON, ENGLAND

Mr. Landon Ronald and the New Symphony Orchestra gave us a concert Sunday afternoon, unique in that it was entirely of British music, conducted by the composers themselves in three cases. I might as well give the program at once:

A Birthday Overture.....Landon Ronald
Orchestral Poem—A Phantasy of Life and Love.....F. H. Cowen
Concerto in B Minor, for violin and orchestra, Op. 61.....Edward Elgar
Two Movements from the "Seasons," Spring and Autumn.....Edward German Shepherds Fennel Dance.....Balfour Gardiner

I was late in reaching the hall, on account of delayed transportation, and did not hear but the last few bars of the "Overture." What I did hear made me regret missing it. It was very impressive. It was conducted by Mr. Ronald himself, of course.

I was charmed with the Cowen number, under Mr. Cowen. This piece is well named. It is truly poetic. It abounds in melody of the most original nature. He does not strive for sensation, or to be "modern." It seems that he has given it the best of his years of experience. It is intensely emotional, even dramatic, but has a conservativeness about it that shows Mr. Cowen as a temperate man.

That admirable artist, Albert Sammons, had the solo part in the Elgar "Concerto." Nothing is uninteresting when Mr. Sammons plays. He is well equipped in technique, and his tone is large and never forced. His playing brought the heartiest response of the day.

The music is of the highest order. Mr. Elgar was announced to conduct it, but it fell to Mr. Ronald to do it. He always plays a good accompaniment. Much of the "Concerto" is without the solo instrument. There is where Mr. Ronald shows splendid taste. He never forgets that the soloist cannot make the same amount of noise that the orchestra can. You never have to adjust your ears to the soloist again when his turn comes. The concerto is written along the usual lines for such pieces. It has a splendid cadenza that Mr. Sammons thrilled us with. If you have not heard it you should.

The spring and autumn movements from "The Seasons" was conducted by Mr. German. The music is typical of the name. It is more than "descriptive music" too. I have always thought of Mr. German as a song writer. This work goes farther than song writing. In it he has ample contrast, and still does not flaunt them at you. Of course, melody is the foundation of them, if I may so speak. Mr. German as a conductor has a most pleasing manner. His personality had much to do with making his work interesting from first to last.

The closing number, "The Shepherds' Fennel Dance," was like the fruit at the close of a meal. It is sharp, even tart, but does not need "sweetening." I have said before that these things in Mr. Ronald's hands are very delicious.

They can write music in England. The whole program was a well-balanced concert, and proved that England can have music without leaving her own shores to get it. I am more taken with the English orchestra players as I hear them more. I have met all of the conductors of the orchestras. They tell me that two rehearsals is all they ever need to give any program. Such men as Safonoff tell me that it would be impossible to find better readers. They take manuscript and play it as though it were the best of print. It is somewhat discouraging to think of the time that must pass before we can have such men in America. We have them, to be sure, but not in large enough numbers. When our parents see fit to give the boys a good start in music between the years of five and fifteen, then we will have the first step. I cannot say when that will be.

In talking to Mr. Percy Pitt, director of the Covent Garden Opera, he tells me that the season is very doubtful. It is again a case of depending on the foreign singer. If they had a school of opera here they could as well have them. It is the same thing with us. We have the singers, but have never used them.

The Tonal Arts Club

An organization without a purpose seems useless. That was the answer given me a short time ago by one of the oldest members of "The Tonal Arts Club" here in London, when I asked him the purpose of the club. "It is an organization without a purpose."

I have now attended two of their dinners, which are given monthly at "Pagan's." I go as an invited guest, of course, but that does not rob me of the sense of freedom and good fellowship that prevails among the best English artists. The foremost of musical artists and composers here are, with few exceptions, "Tonal Artists." Unlike the "Savage Club," they are all connected with music.

After a dinner, which begins about 7 o'clock, they have a program of music which is arranged by the chairman of the evening. Mr. Waddington Cooke was chairman on my last visit. He had furnished us with "The London String Quartet" and Harry Dearth, a bass-baritone. I have mentioned the quartet before in some of my writings. They are one of the best Europe can boast of. Mr. Sammons, first violin, was away from the city on a concert trip at this time, but his place was taken by Mr. John Sanders, first violin of the New Symphony orchestra. They played the Schubert "Quintet" with the assistance of Mr. John Mundy. It was a most delightful performance. The music is so Schubert-like. Mr. Mundy is a 'cellist with a tone about like that Mr. d'Archembeau of the "Flon-zaleys." He is a good artist, and we can hope to hear him over on our side of the ocean some time.

Mr. Waraick-Evans, the quartet 'cellist, played a solo number in his usual care-free, unconscious, happy way.

Mr. Dearth's singing can be summed up in a remark I heard one of the club men make. "He has a jolly good voice, and can sing with it!" He has a "way" that is contagious; and was in the best of moods that night. The men made him repeat everything he sang.

After the program, a good visit is indulged in all around. One cannot get clear around in one night; or two for that matter. I will give you some idea of the gathering by mentioning those that were nearest to me at the table. Mr. Cooke, the chairman, is a pianist and composer, and one of the board of directors of the "Royal Philharmonic Society." J. Mewburn Levien, whose guest I was, is the treasurer of the same society. He is a voice teacher, for years associated with Manuel Garcia, and now doing most of the teaching for Sir Charles Santley. I had only to reach across the table to shake the hand of Edwin H. Lamare, the organist we know so well for his magnificent playing in our country. He will be there again soon. Miles B. Foster, organist and composer, was on my right; Mr. Percy Pitt, director of the Covent Garden Opera, was near, and told me how doubtful the spring season of opera is at this time. Stanley Hawley was his host. Mr. Hawley is secretary of the Philharmonic Society, and well known as an editor of many of the best piano works. His editions are used everywhere; J. H. Maunders, whose splendid church music and cantatas we use so much, was a neighbor. He was accompanist to Sims Reeves for many years, and gave me some useful information concerning Mr. Reeves. He freed my mind of some of the tales of his intemperance I have heard on our side; William Wallace, composer, author of "The Musical Faculty," painter, too, as an amusement; R. Goss Custard, organist at St. Margaret's, Westminster, and Frederick Whelen, director of the Queen's Theater, also Mr. Ambrose, whom we know over there as one of the directors of Savage Grand Opera, were all in talking distance. It was a most interesting evening, and one well worth while to any one. I will hope to see more of the "Tonal Arts Club."

ALBERT A. WHITE.

Ellmer Zoller PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
with Mme. Gabrilowitsch—Henry Parsons—Amy Grant. HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th Street, New York City.

DAN S. DENTON TENOR
OPERA—CONCERT—RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE
Concerts - Recitals - Musicales
Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

BROCK COLLINS J. BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue - - - - - CHICAGO

MUN

NEW YORK LETTER PAGE 26

LIBRARY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
12 MAR 1915

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

ISABEL HAUSER

Pianist

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MARCH 12, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodls
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, March 12, 1915

No. 11

Editorial

THE ORCHESTRA PENSION FUND (Contributed editorial.)

What splendid proportions have been reached in the amount of this fund since our last article!

The total to date is $219,000, though it must be remembered that $62,000 of this is not yet (strictly speaking) available, by the terms its giver made when giving.

The quick accession, by the trustees, to the men's desire to give concerts in aid of the fund shows that the hearts of those trustees are "in the right place."

The benefit concert announced for March 30 should create a "bumper" addition to the fund.

And now for a new policy in the management of the orchestra: More concerts for Chicago; fewer tours "on the road"; all the profits to the Association; wipe out the debt.

S. F. NEWHALL.

— ## — OPERA IN ENGLISH (Contributed)

To the Editor: It is late to be answering the (implied) conundrum on the above subject, printed in your issue of December 11: "You said you wanted opera in English, beautifully sung by Americans, and put on in the best style at reasonable rates, didn't you? WELL?"

Here is at least one important part of the reason why such opera was so poorly supported. As a rule the libretto was very bad; wholly lacking in the poetry to which alone music should be set; not knowing the language in which, for instance, the libretti of "Boheme" and of "Butterfly" were written, I cannot say whether those libretti possessed this absolutely essential poetry or not; but I do know that old "Annie Rooney" or "Old Dog Tray" contained more real poetry than the English libretto of "Butterfly."

Is the poetic sense quite dead among our translators? Schubert and Beethoven went to the great poets for the lines to which they set their songs; the average music writer of today seems to demand nothing except that the lines shall rhyme, and that is the least important feature of poetry.

But let us be thankful that though the demand for opera be declining, the demand for good orchestral music is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Liberty is the power which of right belongs to every man to use all his faculties as he may choose. Its rule is justice; its limits are the rights of others; its principles are drawn from Nature itself; its protector is the law.

—ROBESPIERRE

PASSING COMMENT

In following his well known plan of letting the patrons of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra hear everything—old and new—that is worth hearing, Mr. Stock has led his hearers lately into some queer bypaths.

Edward Moore, of the Journal, in commenting upon Scriabine's "Prometheus," describes it as "the worst noise heard in Orchestra Hall since the 'Five Little Pieces by Schoenberg,'" and Ronald Webster, of the Tribune, writing on Hadley's "North, East, South and West," speaks as follows:

There were many who thought Mr. Hadley's work undignified in the extreme; at the very least a sinful waste of time. For they might have been contemplating during that particular forty-minute period, the obscure and profound beauties of Brahms, or the doleful exuberances of Tchaikowsky shouting the doctrine of despair. A symphony by its very form implies a kind of self-abnegation, and writers of them might, many of them, be accused of "other-worldliness"—of sacrificing the audiences of today to the tastes of yesterday or tomorrow.

h h h

Like "a sweet morsel under the tongue" has been the news of the bankruptcy of the Chicago Grand Opera Company to the Eastern music papers and, needless to say, they have made the very most of it editorially and in their news columns.

As a matter of fact the "failure" is only a tentative one. The company is just as able now to go on and give opera next season as it was before going into bankruptcy; in fact, much more so, for by that act it was freed from many distressing contracts.

To go back to original causes: The failure, it would seem, resulted wholly from the facts (1) of the extended and very unprofitable western trip last spring, and (2) because of the lack of courage to go on with a season this year in spite of the war.

Many there are who will never understand the lack of enterprise which caused the abandonment of the season for the current year, for, most certainly, as events turned out a season could have safely been carried through in the winter no matter how distressing was the outlook last September.

Now, however, all mistakes have been considered and all the possibilities are squarely before the directors and shortly will be before the public.

There is still plenty of enterprise in the men who originally made the organization and it is devoutly to be hoped there is still enough civic pride among the people to make a season next year both possible and profitable.

A cartoon in one of the daily papers recently hit the nail squarely on the head. This picture represented the "Death of the Goose Which Laid the Golden Egg," the bird, a huge one, being depicted in its death struggles and surrounded by the opera singers with the captions, "High Salaries," on shoulder or cap, the whole a setting of the Auditorium stage.

h h h

"But," objects Julia Claussen in an interview, "the business men who run opera in Chicago should look at it not as a business but as an art." "Quite true," comments B. L. T. in his "Line o' Type." "The opera singers can be trusted fully to attend to the business details."

And there you are again. Mary Garden is a very wonderful artist and we all want to hear her, but surely she is not worth a guarantee of eighty thousand dollars for a single season; and Ruffo, even though he can pack the Auditorium when he sings what the public wants, must certainly be a "business" loss at two thousand dollars a performance.

h h h

Chicago will not accept a "starless" opera nor will any half-way measures be tolerated, but surely there is a happy medium where salaries of moderation can be offered and accepted and where the best of everything can be given to the grand opera patrons.

h h h

If you wish to learn a great many things about America which you do not now know, and if you wish to become thoroughly permeated with patriotism—go to the Auditorium and see "Uncle Sam at Work" before the close of the engagement of that wonderful production. It is so entirely different and so wonderfully superior to anything else in the "picture" line that words fail with which to tell you just how good it is.

The pictures are not confined to Washington by any means, though wonderful enough even from that angle, but also the work of the government on the seas and in every part of the country is shown in great detail and exhilarating quantity.

h h h

There are many stories around Chicago of bad checks and even one of a plain forgery of the name of an artist. Music News stands ready at any time to print the complete story of any one of these cases if the artist involved will sign a written statement. Young artists in Chicago have troubles enough without having to deal also with unscrupulous managements. This sort of dishonesty should be exposed.

h h h

A source of great rejoicing is found in the fact that Mme. Schumann-Heink has so far recovered her usual health that she has been positively announced for the coming Wagner Festival at Harvard University and for the Brooklyn Saengerfest. California has done wonders in overcoming the conditions which existed when Mme. Schumann-Heink went there a few weeks ago, and although she will remain some weeks longer, it is now an assured fact that she will shortly be again in the concert field.

h h h

Chicago is gradually acquiring a colony of singers of international reputation and to this list a very welcome and prominent addition is Miss Florence Macbeth, the coloratura soprano, who has already made such fame for herself and her teacher, Mr. Yeatman Griffith, and who will certainly rise very high in her chosen profession. Her success in a recent concert trip to the Northwest was phenomenal.

h h h

Another singer who has elected to make his home in Chicago and who is very welcome indeed, is Mr. Louis Kreidler, an opera singer of renown who is also a splendid teacher and a concert singer with few equals.

h h h

It is said that Frances Ingram at the last rehearsal of "The Veil" by the Apollo Club seemed dissatisfied with the way things were going, and she suddenly stopped and said to the director: "Mr. Wild, do you want me to BE the Mother, or shall I just sing oratorio?" "Go ahead," said Mr. Wild; "sing it as you feel it." Miss Ingram did so, and the subsequent result will go down into history as one of the most stirring events of the season of 1914-15 in Chicago.

h h h

Few of the teachers of singing who came to this country because of war conditions have been more genuinely successful than Mr. Yeatman Griffith, whose New York studio is now the scene of lessons and rehearsals daily in which are involved one of the largest and finest vocal classes ever gathered together in that city.

h h h

Music News is in receipt of a letter from Elizabeth Bintliff, of Ripon, who is known to very many Chicagoans, and who takes this means to dispute a recent statement in our columns that the meeting here some weeks ago of presidents of the state associations to the end of discussing programs and with the ultimate thought of a federation, was the inspiration wholly of Mr. Lederman, of Illinois. Mrs. Bintliff claims, and Music News is glad to admit the claim, that the idea originally came from Liborius Semmann, of Wisconsin, but was, however, taken up with much promptness and vigor by Mr. Ledermann. At any rate, both men are working hard to make their individual state meetings very successful and both have sympathies which extend also much farther into the music field.

h h h

A new management in Chicago is that of Maurice Fulcher in the McCormick Building. Chicago can very readily support such a management as that proposed by Mr. Fulcher, and Music News wishes him all possible success.

h h h

The Evanston ministers are raising quite a hullabaloo about the very successful Sunday evening concerts managed by Miss Rachel Busey Kinsolving. The whole matter seems to hinge upon the question as to whether it is better for the Evanston youth to travel to Chicago on Sunday evenings and there indulge in "picture shows," or to remain at home and hear some really good music at a very low price of admission.

h h h

The success of Clarence Eddy at the opening of the Festival Hall in San Francisco, when he played several organ recitals, was a notable one, Music News being in possession of some remarkable press comment which will be given to its readers later. In the current issue may be found a thoroughly interesting interview with Mr. Eddy, which was printed in one of the San Francisco papers.

h h h

It has been suggested by a member of the dilettante class in Chicago that if the Apollo Club wishes to give the "Forty-seventh Psalm" again, the sopranos be divided into relays (with great reinforcement) and that Relay No. 1 be asked to yell for the first minute, No. 2 the second and so on throughout the progress of the work. There are advantages in the plan.

h h h

Music memory is a subject which has had much attention and which is still a thoroughly "open" one. The recent announcements of Belle Squire along this line have caused much comment and her Fine Arts studio is the scene of much interested inquiry.

h h h

It is not generally thought that the musicians who play organs at "the movies" give much attention to suitability of selection. Music News is in possession of a program, however, which proves the contrary to be true in at least one case. Mr. Emmett Robert Gaderer sends his list of pieces played for "The Children of the Ghetto" film, and with surprise it is noted that the list comprises "Kol Nidrei" (Ver-rinder), "Eli Zijon," "Mesker-Neschamoth" and "Hebraische Melodie," by Wagner, as well as "Finlandia," by Sibelius, and "Reverie Trieste" (Ferrata).

This remarkable program was played at the Independence Theater on West Twelfth street.

§ § §

Herbert Bailey, of Music News forces, is now in Kansas, and before his return will attend the Bethany Festival at Lindsborg.

§ § §

Recently the editor spent an hour at the Old Friends' Club Room on Dearborn street. This club is made up of actors and managers and will eventually become the local equivalent for the New York Lambs' Club. The Old Friends possesses a collection of photos of actors and of old play bills which is not surpassed anywhere. Music News will tell more about these later.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, March 12

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Y. W. C. A., 8:15; Maude Fenlon Bollman, song recital.

Saturday, March 13

Kimball Hall, 2; Chicago Piano College, concert.

Kimball Hall, 3:30; American Conservatory, concert.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, March 14

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Julia Culp.

Turner Hall, 3; "Martha," in costume.

Central Music Hall, 3:30; Florence Le Claire, piano recital.

Kimball Hall, 3:30; Betsy Howland, piano recital.

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Bauer-Casals Sonata recital.

Blackstone Theater, 3:30; Isaac Van Grove.

Fullerton Hall, 8; lecture recital, "Orpheus."

Monday, March 15

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Popular Classical concert.

Sunday, March 21

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Gabrilowitsch.

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Kneisel Quartet.

Monday, March 22

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Estella Neuhaus, piano recital.

—§§§—

THE LAST POPULAR CLASSICAL CONCERT

The Spry-Kortschak-Steindel Trio, assisted by Minnie Fish-Griffin, soprano, will give the program at the third and last concert of the series of popular classical concerts, which will take place Monday afternoon, March 15, at 3:30, in the Fine Arts Theater.

Mrs. Griffin will give songs by Beethoven, Hugo Wolf, and Charpentier, and the trio will play selections from Schubert's "Trio, Op. 99," Saint-Saens "Trio, Op. 18," and the Tchaikowsky "Trio in A Minor."

—§§§—

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, is to be the soloist at the program given by the Men's League at the Wellington Avenue Congregational Church Tuesday evening, March 9.

Music in Chicago

BACH CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT

Bach is so austere—so utterly uncompromising in his demand upon his hearers—that a miscellaneous audience is apt to grow restive under too long a program of his works, and even the Cognescenti must as the possessor of a voice of great potentiality.

Helen Bright Bengel brought to the interpretation of the beautiful contralto solos a commanding style and personality and a voice of rare beauty.

Evidently this sort of work appeals to Mrs. Bengel very much, and she certainly showed herself mistress of the situation on Tuesday.

George Hamlin, who had important work to do both in Mendelssohn's "Hymn of not be too long plyed with his profundities.

EDITH AYERS McCULLOUGH

Therefore, it must be confessed at once that the chief weakness of the Bach Choral Society concert of last Tuesday evening was its undue length.

With Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" for the second half of the program, the first part should have been shortened just 50 per cent.

But, aside from this objection, nothing further can be said in the way of criticism, unless, indeed, it be possible that some of the Bach numbers, especially the solos, were taken at too deliberate a movement for best possible results.

The program opened with the G minor "Fantasie and Fugue," for the organ, played superbly by Mr. Palmer Christian, who also supplied sympathetic accompaniments throughout.

Excerpts from the "St. John Passion" were given, as also a tenor solo from "Ich bin ein guter Hirt" and the entire cantata "Bide with Us," which, as stated before, was too much Bach by about one-half hour. The chorus numbers in these various works were accomplished with much intelligence and were invested always with tone at once pure, powerful and expressive.

Mable Corlew-Smith, in her lavish allotment of solos, showed herself an emphatically serious and sincere musician, as well

MABLE CORLEW-SMIDT

Praise" and in the Bach portion of the program, was not in his best voice but was able, as always in a program of this sort, to prove himself the possessor of a rare intelligence.

The society, under direction of John W. Norton, to whose artistry and indomitable perseverance the fine program was due, sang the choral numbers in the "Hymn of Praise" with more vivacity than was shown in Bach and with, at many points, warmth of feeling and truly artistic finish.

One of the most delightful moments of the whole evening was that when Mrs. Smidt and Mrs. Edith Ayers McCullough sang "I Waited for the Lord" with the most beautiful of vocal effects and a rare interpretative perfection. Both voices are lovely, the ensemble was perfect, and the obligato by the chorus was fine.

One solo for bass was sung by William M. Walter, a member of the club, who has good voice and musicianship but who must rid himself of his present pronouncedly disagreeable tremolo if he wishes to advance in the vocal art.

Mr. Norton directed throughout with skill and authority, and good accompaniments were furnished by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. C. E. W.

THE DOELLING-LUND CONCERT

Owing to a mistake which is becoming chronic at the Fine Arts Theater, an icy blast was put in circulation instead of that balmy atmosphere which would have been so much better a contrast to the raw March feeling outside on last Sunday afternoon.

Miss Mae Doelling and Mr. Rene Lund were therefore given an unnecessary handicap at the very beginning of their concert, which, however, with all other difficulties, was swept away by the sheer beauty and virtuosity of the program.

Miss Doelling elected to play the interminable Handel-Brahms "Variations and Fugue" as her opening number, and as she began promptly on the announced minute and the audience was unduly dilatory, it happened that by the time she had finished the number there were as many people standing in the foyer as there were seated in the theater.

However, after the serious break caused through seating all these people there were no further contretemps and the concert was marked by its very great effectiveness and the unusual enthusiasm with which it was received.

Miss Doelling played the Brahms number with great crispness, excellent tonal quality also being maintained throughout.

This was followed by the cunning "Three Hands," by Rameau-MacDowell, and a "Bourree" by Scarlatti, both played with vitality and musical style.

Her next group was made up of four Chopin Etudes, two of which were luscious in their purity of cantabile, one was of remarkable virtuosity in its technical display and the fourth (the "Butterfly") was played with such amazing grace and facility that its repetition was demanded. A further encore was "On Wings of Song" and a brilliant group by Sapellnikoff, Rachmaninoff and Schulz-Elver completed the piano offerings.

Miss Doelling has great technical preparation, much musicianship and an abiding sincerity and good taste in interpretation. She is already very popular and her great gifts will take her much farther.

Mr. Lund has grown amazingly in voice since his last appearance and his equipment now includes great power as well as the other items of musicianship, sincerity and artistry which have already placed him well to the fore among local baritones. His initial reception and repeated recalls testified eloquently to the fact that he has gained a firm footing in musical Chicago. His list on Sunday comprised thirteen songs, nine of which were in English text and several by Chicagoans.

To open his first group he gave two songs in Norwegian by Korling, for which translations should have been provided as very few of the audience, of course, understood what they were about. However, they proved to be songs of much musical intensity and they were sung with great musical expressiveness.

"Dank," a nondescript excerpt by Schonberg, followed (in German) and the group closed with a beautiful reading of Massenet's "Pensee d'Automne," in French, a language in which Mr. Lund is particularly adept. "A Dirge of Love" (Canterbury) was fine in conception and in the reading accorded it. William Lester's "Compensation" again proved itself a perfect gem of a song and again also did Felix Borowski's "The Song of Tristram" prove him a writer of force and finish.

Mr. Lund sang also in this group two pieces by Herbert Hyde with the composer at the piano. These proved to be works of much purposefulness and great musical charm.

"Rain Song" has a high-lying "drone" which is delightfully characteristic and the voice line of both that and the "Serenade" proved wholly agreeable and very well suited to the Lund quality and style.

Works by Warner, Harling and Woodman were not heard by this writer. Excellent accompaniments, filled with pianistic surety and deft finish, were furnished by Miss Alice R. Deal.

The piano was a Mason and Hamlin and was as fine a concert grand as has been heard in a local concert room this season.

C. E. W.

A CONGREGATIONAL SONG-DRILL

Sunday evening, two weeks ago, the Emerald Avenue Presbyterian Church, pastor, Rev. Richard D. Hughes, M. A., experienced a new departure in connection with its congregational singing, not that its singing is behind but rather is ahead of most churches. The pastor invited his friend, William Ap-Madoc, to come and take the musical charge of his congregation, and give it one of the "drills" to which Welsh churches are accustomed. The result was, with the tactful help of the organist and the choir of twenty voices, that the hymn-tunes that are common with congregations were made over into new life and power; the tempo was made to conform with the nature of the words, and what he called "lights and shades" seem to shine out from all the tunes sung. "It was very courteous of Mr. Ap-Madoc," remarked a lady, "to invite the choir leader to conduct one of the hymn tunes, with baton in hand." It could easily be seen that such "drills" would lift congregational singing up to the intelligible measure of the words.

PALMER CHRISTIAN ORGAN RECITAL

Mr. Christian will play the following program at Kenwood Evangelical Church next Sunday at 4.

He will be assisted by Emily Louise Streich, contralto.

Dithyramb	Harwood
Meditation (Sixth Sonata)	Guilmant
Romance	Sibelius
Fugue in C	Suxtehude
Wait Thou Still	Franck (1670)
Into Thy Hands	Delamarter
By the Waters of Babylon	Howell
Miss Streich
Adagio (Tenth Organ Concerto)	Handel
Allegro (Tenth Organ Concerto)	Handel
Toccata	Mereaux (1791)
Cradle Song	Dreyschock
Caprice (The Brook)	Dethier

HAROLD BAUER

The Master Pianist Who Appeared in Recital Sunday, February 21, at Orchestra Hall

Writes of Mason & Hamlin the - - -

MASON & HAMLIN CO., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

It gives me keen pleasure to testify once more to the excellence of your pianos.

Since my first visit to this country, eight years ago, my admiration for these noble instruments has increased with each successive tour.

The instruments I have used this year not only represent the most perfect examples of the piano maker's art, but fulfill every imaginable requirement from the point of view of both pianist and audience, and are the most superbly beautiful instruments that I know.

(Signed) HAROLD BAUER.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

SUNDAY CONCERTS IN EVANSTON

The bewilderment, consternation, almost panic which Miss Kinsolving's concerts have worked up in the minds of certain of Evanston's spiritual leaders would be ludicrous were it not pitiful. These pastors see their influence over congregations waning because a little ensemble of ten members of the big orchestra, led by George Daseh, is playing on Sunday evenings, at a 15-cent rate, in the Evanston Theater, and presumably drawing a percentage of the sparse congregations which erstwhile used to seek the sanctuary, there to listen, generally speaking, to plain dogma.

The attitude of these pastors is reminiscent of a hundred years ago; what fair-minded man will contend that the influence of good music upon the emotions is anything but uplifting, ennobling, inspiring? And what more than these is the greatest sermon ever preached—always excepting the Sermon on the Mount?

These pastors, in their churches, spend hundreds, if not thousands of dollars for the element of music, and that music is oftener entertainment than devotion; they take up a collection and he who fails to contribute is looked at askance by him who passes the plate.

Miss Kinsolving is doing a fine work and deserves to succeed in greater and greater measure. VIEUX TEMPS.

Clarke—Rachel Steinman Clarke and Earl Victor Pahl, together with Miss Barbara Wait, will give a concert at South Bend on Thursday afternoon, March 11.

PHILHARMONIC QUARTET

GEORGE DASCH

CARL BRUECKNER

OTTO ROEHRBORN

HJALMAR RABE

PHILHARMONIC QUARTET

Irving Park Series

The twelfth concert of the orchestra series will be given Friday evening, March 19, at the Myrtle Masonic Temple, 4240 Irving Park boulevard. Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto, will be the soloist.

The program follows:

Allegro con spirito, from Quartet in B Flat, No. 49	Haydn
Aria from Orpheus	Gluck
Theme and Variations, Op. 18, No. 5	Beethoven
Meditation	Bach-Gounod
Songs—
Apple Blossoms	Kellie
Night in the Desert	Ross
Spring Is Here	Foerster
Quintet for Strings	Dvorak
Allegro—ma non tanto
Dunka
Scherzo

The Philharmonic Quartet will be assisted by Arne Oldberg, pianist.

###

ARTHUR UHE IN VIOLIN RECITAL

Mr. Arthur Uhe gave the following violin program at Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kans., last Monday:

Spring Sonata	Beethoven
Allegro
Adagio
Scherzo
Allegro
Passaglia	Handel-Leonard
Andante	Martini-Kreisler
Menuett	Handel
Rigaudon	Couperin-Kreisler
Canto Doloroso	Rubini
Finale of D minor Concerto	Vieuxtemps

THE ORCHARD SCHOOL

On Saturday, March 13, at 3 p. m., the first-year pupils of Miss Zeigler, piano; Miss Wallis, piano; Mrs. De Vore, violin; Mrs. Orchard, piano, and Miss Valentine, dancing, will present the following program:

Etude	Frank Sifton	Lemont
Ditty	Josephine Chappin	Schumann
Exercise	Scott Arms	Kohler
The Merry Bob-o-link	William Avery	C. Green
Russian Folk Dance	Arranged by E. H. Burchenal
Pupils of Miss Valentine
Cradle Song	Elizabeth Crandall	Paul Ducelle
Accompanist, Carlin Crandall
The Pigeons	Jane Wild	Kohlsaat
Duet	Mrs. Crosby Adams
Scott Arms and Harvey Skalen
Gondolier	Marie Harney	Krogman
Graceful Dancer	Harvey Skalen	Lamothe
Dream Fairies	Foster Lewis	Ducelle
The Robins' Lullaby	James Skalen, Harvey Skalen	Krogman

###

CHARLES ROUSE

Charles Rouse will give his fifth musical evening at his studio, 712 Fine Arts Building, next Monday evening, March 15, at 8:30. The program will consist of early and modern Italian and French songs, given by Mr. Rouse and his pupil, John Poat, basso-cantanto.

Mr. Rouse will also give a brief talk on the development of song in Italy and France.

Mr. John Kohler, violinist, will assist with violin numbers by Italian and French composers. Evabel Clixby Tanner, accompanist.

The three remaining musical evenings are as follows:

- April 12—Russian and Slavic song.
- May 10—English and German song.
- June 7—American song.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing

81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST

Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE

Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR

Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST

Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE

Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO

27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANIST Studio 416, 69 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach

Lectures, Recitals

4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Blomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO

LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINEVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO

FINE ARTSBUILDING CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists

ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store)

TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist 4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Aze SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

SCHUBERT SYMPHONY CLUB

The Schubert Symphony Club gave a concert at the Presbyterian Church in Maywood on last Friday evening which was largely attended and which was the scene of very great enthusiasm.

The members of this company, which has traveled in all parts of the country, are exceedingly versatile and though they number but three the variety of numbers offered was truly remarkable.

THOMAS VALENTINE PURCELL

Leeta Corder, the soprano soloist of the company, has a voice of rare charm. It is lyric in quality but covers also every requirement of the coloratura scores.

This young singer has appeared in over a thousand concerts, in thirty states, during the past four years and has proven herself a great favorite wherever she has been.

LAVINIA ZENDT

Her work at Sig. Arcangeli's concert at Orchestra Hall last fall when she created a sensation in the "Styrienne," from "Mignon," is still remembered and a great future is predicted for her.

She has a very large repertoire of concert songs and has learned also the soprano roles in many grand operas. During this season she has sung for the Hyde Park Travel Club, Hyde Park Business Men's Association, Convention of Merchant Tailors, and at the Park Ridge Country Club, and the Rotary Club.

On Friday evening she was heard in the aria from Handel's "Atalanta," called "Come, My Beloved," and gave an exposition of pure legato tone and sustained breath control which was wholly remarkable.

There was beauty of feeling as well as of tone and the total interpretative worth of the song was very great.

This was followed by "Dream On, Dear Heart," a coloratura song, written for Miss Corder by Mr. Purcell, in which there was given a dazzling display of virtuosity as well as a suavity of style very rarely encountered.

Lavinia Zendt, the contralto soloist of the company, has a voice as unusual as it is charming.

She sings a whole octave below middle C, and has a corresponding power in her voice. "Love Is Mine" (Gartner) and "Lullabye" (Purcell) provided fine opportunities for the display of her exact musicianship and remarkable voice and in these she made pronounced success.

Thomas Valentine Purcell, violinist, presented the Wieniawski "Faust Fantasy,"

LEETA CORDER

"Adagio" (Bazzini) and "Czardas" (Nachez) with such skill as to prove that he has been a long-time and thoroughly sincere student of his difficult art.

His intonation is absolutely pure, his tone is rich and full, his musicianship very great and his concert style distinctly fine. The audience liked him very much indeed and insisted upon several encores.

In addition to these major items of the program, items also which were of absolute musical values, there were given a number of lighter things which not only pleased the audience but also proved the immense versatility of the three artists of the company—all of whom, by the way, are fine accompanists and took turns in so serving.

Several trios were played on mandolin, bandolin and guitar to the intense delight of the audience and Mr. Purcell also gave great pleasure in a mandolin "Concerto" by Stauffer, a work, by the way, which is far beyond the resources of the ordinary player of the instrument.

A vocal trio was also given, with much style and effect and Miss Corder and Mrs. Zendt scored a big success in a duet from "Bohemian Girl," to which (as also to several other numbers) an artistic violin obligato was furnished by Mr. Purcell.

Altogether a talented and artistic trio of musicians and one which will be heartily welcomed on a second appearance anywhere.

C. E. W.

Dormer—The vocal and dramatic students of Elizabeth Guion Dormer gave a concert at the hall of the Church of the Precious Blood on last Wednesday evening.

"THE ROSE MAIDEN" GIVEN AT CUYLER AVE. M. E. CHURCH

The fifth and final event of the great concert and lecture course which has been held at the Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Oak Park, took place on Friday evening, March 5, amid much enthusiasm. The main feature of this final concert was a performance of Cowen's delightful cantata, "The Rose Maiden," sung by the forty-voiced choir of this church under the direction of H. H. Williams. Gertrude Duvigneaud, soprano; Frederica Downing, contralto; William Barlow Ross, tenor, and Frank B. Webster, baritone, took the solo parts, and Marie Edwards, organist; Mabel Lees, pianist, and Edna Anna Wheeler, harpist, furnished the accompaniments.

Preceding the cantata rendition, Miss Edwards played a group of three organ numbers which included the "Petit March," Du Bois-Rogers; "Minuet," Boccherini, and "Nuptial March," Guilmant. Each of the three proving wholly enjoyable to the audience through the mastery and skill displayed by Miss Edwards.

"Dear Love, Lend Thine Aid," from "Samson and Delilah," was sung by Mrs. Downing with great breadth and abandon. Her voice is one of the most satisfactory now being heard in Chicago and she is the true artist at every move. She sang in such a finished and convincing manner that the audience ardently demanded an encore, which came in the form of Ronald's "Down in the Forest," which was most beautiful in its delicacy and sincerity.

Miss Wheeler played two harp solos in a manner which drew much recognition and praise from her hearers and was compelled to add an encore, as did Mr. Ross, who offered the "Prize Song," from "Die Meistersinger," which, by the way, was considerably above his grasp on Friday night.

In opening the cantata rendition, Miss Lees played the introductory music in a style which stamped her as a pianist of no small attainment. She also contributed materially in the accompanying score throughout the performance.

The chorus should be and well deserves endless praise for their portion of the concert. There was genuine pleasure derived from their spirited singing of the many chorus numbers. They developed an unusual amount of well balanced tone volume for this number of voices and they knew their music well. The famous "Bridal Chorus" was of course heartily applauded.

Mrs. Duvigneaud revealed a very pleasing soprano voice, exceptionally rich and full in its lower scale, and her solo and ensemble offerings were adorned with those admirable qualities which come from the deep musician only.

Mrs. Downing, with the portions allotted the contralto in this work, continued the splendid success she attained earlier in the evening. One of the most graceful solos of the entire cantata fell to her lot and she delivered it in a wholly praiseworthy style and was accorded a ringing round of applause for her efforts.

Mr. Webster was struggling with a very bad cold, so consequently the bass solos were omitted, but he sang the several recitatives with mastery and the rich sonorous quality of his voice was heard with pleasure at those times. He entered into the duets and trios with sympathy and a thorough understanding of the work at hand.

Mr. Ross may have been bothered with a cold also, at any rate the heavier parts of the tenor score seemed a burden to him, but in the softer passages his work was satisfactory.

Miss Edwards deserves a strong word of praise for the success of the evening. She played at the piano splendid accompaniments for the soloists in the early part of the evening and was ever alert to just the proper support for the chorus and soloists in the cantata performance. There is a wealth of beautiful music in the accompanying score and she played it all in an excellent manner.

H. M. B.

CHICAGO LITTLE THEATER

Week of March 8. In response to numerous requests, the Chicago Little Theater has succeeded in making arrangements for a return engagement of Miriam Marmein, in her own dances. This talented dancer made her debut at the "Little" on January 27, and her extremely clever interpretations created such enthusiasm that Mr. Maurice Browne, the director of the Chicago Little Theater, congratulates himself on having secured Miss Marmein for the forthcoming week.

The demand for seats at the Chicago Little Theater to see the Puppets play has been so great and so many people have had to be turned away, that it has been decided instead of Wednesday afternoon performances, a regular Puppet repertory season will be given towards the end of April. Meanwhile the Saturday morning performances will continue, but there will be no Wednesday afternoon performances, as previously announced.

Maverick—Laura Maverick will sing Irish songs by Carl Hahn and Fay Foster at the concert of the University Forum, Plaza Hotel, New York, Tuesday evening, March 16.

RECITAL BY WARREN PROCTOR

Mr. Sandor S. Radanovits presented Mr. Warren Proctor, tenor, in recital Thursday evening, in Studio 516, Fine Arts Building.

An audience of large proportion and great enthusiasm was assembled, and only praise was heard for the young artist's work.

Mr. Proctor has much poise and sings with authority and sincerity. His program of Thursday night, as appended, gave opportunity for much variety in his work, and he showed himself equal to the many demands.

"Wohin?" (Schubert) and "In Italy" (Boyd) both had to be repeated.

"My Rose" (William Lester) and "My Rose Immortal" (Sandor Radanovits) were received with great appreciation. Mr. Proctor's English is very well spoken in most cases.

Mr. Proctor is an artist of whom Chicago may be very proud, for he will win laurels wherever he sings and his engagements will certainly be many. Mr. William Lester was the assisting artist at the piano.

Recitative—Ye People, Rend Your Hearts
Aria—If With All Your Hearts (Elijah)	Mendelssohn
Possession	Clough-Leigher
Mary Jane	Clark
My Rose	Lester
Dein Angesicht	Schumann
Wohin?	Schubert
Ich liebe dich	Grieg
Ungeduld	Schubert
Prize Song (Meistersinger)	Wagner
A Spirit-Flower	Campbell-Tipton
In Italy	Boyd
My Rose Immortal	Radanovits
I Hear You Calling Me	Marshall
	M. K. W.

Majestic Theater—The engagement of Henry Dixey at the Majestic Theater last week brought the usual great success for him, and Joseph Santley also proved a great attraction for Mr. Glover's patrons. This week the headliner is Charlotte Walker & Company.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

26th Year

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd Year

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHO E CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS

5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile

TUCKER

BARITONE

ONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

NORTH SHORE CONGREGATIONAL

Thursday evening, March 4, a concert was given at the North Shore Congregational Church by Mrs. George Lee Tenney, soprano; James Goddard, baritone; Rex Underwood, violinist; Palmer Christian, organist, and Miss Ruth Simmons, accompanist, for the benefit of Pi Beta Phi Settlement School Building Fund.

Mr. Christian is an excellent organist, playing his numbers with a fine display of musicianship and a splendid technic. He gained some splendid effects in color and tone and his interpretations are always musicianly. Mr. Christian gave as the opening group de Boeck's "Allegro con fuoco," Drey-schock's "Berceuse," Kreiser's "Caprice." Later he played Saint-Saens "Prelude," Faulke's "Capriccio" and Mendelssohn's Overture in C. The accompaniments Mr. Christian furnished for Mr. Goddard and Mr. Underwood were elegant along every line.

Mrs. Tenney, a great favorite at this church, gave songs that were very artistically sung. "A Birthday," Woodman, was given a splendid reading, and "Legacies," by Mildred Hill, sung with a fine quality and beauty of tone that was a delight to hear. Bizet's "Agnes Dei," sung with violin, piano, organ, was heard with great pleasure. Miss Simmons at the piano left nothing to be desired, in musicianly and sympathetic accompaniments. Mr. Rex Underwood isn't heard very often in public because of other duties, but it is safe to predict that should he choose the public platform again he would be given a cordial welcome. Mr. Underwood draws a tone that is colorful and of good quality. He gave splendid presentations of numbers by Tor Aulin, Kreisler, Cui, and Brahms-Joachim. The "Berceuse," "Orientale" and "Hungarian Dance" were especially well liked and rendered. Mr. Goddard, baritone, might be called a new comer in the field of concert singers, but he has made a good impression. He has an excellent voice and much musical temperament and his presentation of Verdi's "Il lacerato spirito" and "Invictus," Huhn, and Homer's "Uncle Rome" won him much sincere and merited applause. H. W. P.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

The next regular concert of the Amateur Musical Club will be held in the Second Presbyterian Church, corner Michigan avenue and Twentieth street, on Monday afternoon, March 15, at 2:30 o'clock.

Program arranged by Mrs. Henry Sheffield and Miss Ruth Simmons.

PROGRAM

Come unto Me, Ye Weary.....	Andrews
Mrs. Monica Stults, Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson
Marche Pontificale (from the First Symphony).....	Widor
At Twilight.....	Stebbins
Finale, in A flat.....	Thiele
Miss Alice Deal
Hear Ye, Israel (from "Elijah").....	Mendelssohn
Mrs. Monica Graham Stults
Meditation.....	Dubois
Largo (for violin, harp and organ).....	Handel
Miss Zetta Gay Whitson, Miss Emma H. Osgood,
Miss Mary Porter Pratt
Three Sacred Songs.....	Dvorak
Hear My Prayer
God Is My Shepherd
By the Waters of Babylon
Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson
Rhapsodie.....	Rosseter Cole
Berceuse.....	Clarence Dickinson
Benedictus.....	Reger
Caprice Heroique.....	Bonnet
Mrs. Katherine Howard Ward

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Julia Culp, assisted by Conrad V. Bos as accompanist, will make her only appearance in Chicago at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann, next Sunday afternoon, March 14. The program is as follows:

Minnelied
Nachtigall
Vor dem fenster
Sapphische ode
Schwalbe sag' mir an
Feldeinsamkeit	Joh. Brahms
Indian Songs—
The Weaver
Her Blanket
Lullaby	Thurloew Lieurance
Wind Song	James H. Rogers
The Star	James H. Rogers
Dutch Serenade	S. de Lange
Befreit	Richard Strauss
Morgen	Richard Strauss
Sie blasen zum abmarsch
Ihr jungen Leute
Mausfallenspruchlein	Hugo Wolf
Heimweh

The Kneisel Quartet, assisted by Rudolph Ganz, will give their third and last concert this season at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann, Sunday afternoon, March 21. The program will contain Quartet, B Minor, Op. 51, No. 2, by Brahms; Quartet, E Minor, by Smetana, and the Cesar Franck Quintet.

Charles W. Clark, the popular baritone,

Leginska
PIANIST

Has been engaged for FIVE appearances as soloist with the
NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Walter Damrosch, Orchestra
Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York City.

will make his first public appearance in Chicago this season at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, March 28, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Maggie Teyte, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will give a song recital under the direction of F. Wight Neumann at the Illinois Theater, Sunday afternoon, April 4.

Albert Spalding, American violinist, who pleased the large audience attending his recital last Sunday, has been engaged for another recital by F. Wight Neumann, to take place Sunday afternoon, April 11, at the Illinois Theater, when Mr. Spalding will give an entirely new program.

LA GRANGE, ILLINOIS

An organ recital will be given at La Grange, Ill., by Palmer Christian March 15 with this program.

Concert Prelude and Fugue
Barcarolle
Capriccio	Faulkes
Mr. Christian
Rhapsodie ..	Cole
Reverie ..	Debussy
Scherzo ..	Bossi
Mr. Christian
Berceuse ..	Spinney
Overture in C ..	Mendelssohn

Haydn Choral Society—The Haydn Choral Society, under direction of H. W. Owens, will present "The Creation," by Haydn, at Orchestra Hall on April 9. The soloists will be Lucille Stevenson, Charles W. Clark and Edward Walker.

SONATA AFTERNOON BY CAROL ROBINSON AND JOSEPHINE GERWING

In one line of expression the "sonata form" certainly gives a valuable reason for its being. Nearly every composer has made a contribution to the sonata literature for violin and piano, and in marked measure these gifts are free from exaggeration and excess and alive with the sincerest earnestness and simplicity.

On Sunday afternoon, at the Fine Arts Assembly Hall, Miss Robinson and Miss Gerwing offered a thoroughly delightful program, both as to selection and presentation. Before comment is made about their playing, one wishes to express gratification that the two young artists sought this method of use for their talents, and to congratulate them upon the success which attended their endeavor. If they did not scale all the heights or sound the full depths of the music they used, there was a fine spirit of care and preparation that made for an ensemble altogether admirable. It aroused a desire that they might feel the undertaking so well worth while that they would continue in it.

The program consisted of the D minor suite of Schutt in full, and three movements each of a sonata of Brahms' and Strauss'. The Schutt music in its entirety went best. Its contents seemed to appeal vastly to Miss Gerwing's style, which is so vigorous at times as to be almost brusque, but has at its command a big, broad tone and unqualified surety of pitch and facility of execution. The disposition to accent heavily might grow into a mannerism and hamper a great talent.

Miss Robinson lifted into prominence at this time a most admirable trait not felt to the full by the reviewer at former hearings. She has a cantabile that can be denominated luxurious—the ability to make of certain passages, long drawn phrases of elastic flow and smoothness colored and molded adeptly into a glowing beauty. There were any number of opportunities for the use of this enjoyable trait and she used them completely. In addition she was as forceful and inspired as before with an adjustable sense of rhythm, a notable breadth, and deft fleetness for the brilliant moments. Particularly did all these fit into the demands of the first movement of the Strauss "Sonata," which is something of eloquent charm in itself. The Brahms "Andante Tranquillo" will grow upon the players—perhaps more knowledge of life itself must come before its hidden meaning will reveal itself and give the reason for its title.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Brines—Mr. M. J. Brines was the soloist at the last Sunday evening concert in Evanston and scored a great success with the splendid audience present. His voice is very beautiful and his style thoroughly ingratiating and he was received with great enthusiasm.

"The Messiah"—Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," will be sung by the Irish Choral Society, under direction of Daniel Protheroe, at Orchestra Hall on March 28. The soloists will be Helen Protheroe, Christine Miller, Dan Beddoe and Gustaf Holmquist.

CARL BRUECKNER, 'CELLIST, IN IRVING PARK

There are two factors which are absolutely necessary for a successful concert, namely good talent and an appreciative audience.

These factors were both in evidence in Irving Park on Tuesday evening, March 2, when Carl Brueckner, 'cellist, assisted by Jennette Loudon at the piano, gave a recital in the beautiful auditorium of Myrtle Masonic Temple.

The residents of Irving Park are to be congratulated on having among them some public-spirited men who believe that there is nothing in the musical line too good for Irving Park. Consequently they are having a series of recitals and concerts with Chicago Symphony Orchestra members, Philharmonic String Quartet, Albert Borroff, Gustaf Holmquist, Mable Corlew Smidt, and other like talent as attractions.

What more could they ask?

As to Tuesday evening's recital, it is hardly necessary to tell Chicago concert-goers how the program was delivered. For the benefit of any who may never have heard Mr. Brueckner play, we will say that if there had been a better way of doing it it would have been done that way, because his performances are always first-class.

The assisting pianist of the evening is also well known and needs no eulogy from

AN EVENING OF MUSIC AND GOOD-FELLOWSHIP IN WILMETTE

The Ladies' Aid Society of Wilmette Congregational Church provided a very enjoyable event for members and friends of the church on Friday evening of last week.

During the early part of the evening the large audience which assembled in the auditorium of the church listened to a recital by Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano, assisted by Mr. Arthur F. Platz, tenor, and Miss Elizabeth Phelps, pianist.

Mrs. Zendt opened the program with a group, "When Roses Wake" (Mark Andrews), "Night and the Curtains Drawn" (Ferrata) and "Villanelle" (Del' Acqua), which received splendid interpretation.

Next came "Oh Si Les Fleurs" (Massenet), "Menuet d'Exauget" (Wackerlin), "Tintania" (Swedish) (Peterson-Berger, "Zueignung (Devotion) (Richard Strauss), a delightful group, charmingly sung.

The third number on the program was contributed by Miss Phelps, who played "Pastorale Varie" (Mozart) and "Prelude in G Minor" (Rachmaninoff). This young lady is a recent comer to Chicago, but after hearing her work on this occasion we do not hesitate to predict a bright future for her in the field of music. Her playing is marked by beauty of tone, ease and authority. Her accompanying is sympathetic and very satisfactory.

"Sunset" (Alexander Russell), "In Heather Time" (Fanny B. Earle), "Slumber Song" (Fanny B. Earle), "When Love Is Kind" (A. L.) and "Where Blossoms Grow" (Sans Souci) were Mrs. Zendt's last solo offerings of the evening and scored a success, as the previous numbers had done.

Mrs. Zendt was in good voice throughout the program, and her beautiful clear tones and excellent musicianship won the hearty appreciation of the audience.

Two duets, "Du Liegst Mir am Herzen," a German folk song by Berger, and "The Day Is Done," by Herman Lohr, sung by Mrs. Zendt and Mr. Platz, closed the recital.

Following the recital the audience was invited into the church parlors for refreshments, and while these were being served Mr. Platz sang a group of songs, accompanied on the piano by Miss Jeanne Boyd. Among the songs sung by Mr. Platz were three charming compositions by Miss Boyd, which made a decided "hit" with the audience.

Mr. Platz's voice is of excellent quality and his singing thoroughly artistic.

The whole evening was a success artistically and socially, and from the size of the crowd we would assume that it was equally successful from a financial standpoint.

C. J. B.

MARIE WHITE, CLARK

Some recent and future dates of Mrs. Clark, soprano, are as follows: January 21, Evanston Woman's Club; February 1, reception at residence of Mrs. Tobey, Evanston; 9, Chicago Woman's Club, Blackstone Theater; 12, Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church concert; 20, residence of Mrs. Clarage, West Adams street; 23, chamber music program, Assembly Hall; March 26, Evanston Country Club.

EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR

Some comment on the splendid successes of Mr. Williams in the west reads as follows:

A large audience was held entranced by the magic of Evan Williams' voice, personality and sympathetic interpretation of favorite "heart throb" songs at the Oliver Theater Tuesday evening. This was the first visit to Lincoln by the famous Welsh tenor, and he made a striking success.

Mr. Evans renders his songs with the tender, exhilarating appeal of a matchless tenor voice and adds to this the charm of an unusually cordial, natural manner. The audience was greatly impressed by the pleasant faces of and perfect sympathy between the singer and his son, T. Vernon Williams, who accompanied him at the piano.

In "A Song of the Sea," by Riker, and "The Youth's Departure to the War," by Sidney Homer, and "Open the Gates of the Temple," colorful, powerful songs, he showed the might and majesty of his voice. But it was the sentimental, poetical songs which won the greatest enthusiasm of his audience. His rendition of "A Perfect Day" was like a benediction. Eugene Field's "Little Boy Blue," "The Four Leaf Clover," the Schubert "Serenade" and "Dry Those Tears," all encore songs, brought joyous smiles to the faces and were greeted with thunderous approbation. "Dreaming," Bartlett, "Miss Mary's Eyes," "Lullaby," Brahms, and "Open the Gates of the Temple" were special numbers which he substituted, displacing the Schubert group on the program. He announced that as he had been singing for six nights in succession and was very tired, he could sing but a few of the special numbers requested.—Lincoln (Neb.) Star.

"Engagement extraordinary" was the announcement at the head of the programs passed at the song recital given by Evan Williams at the Brandeis Theater Sunday afternoon, and such in fact it was, for the appearance of Mr. Williams will stand out as one of the rare occasions of inspired singing that have been heard in Omaha. Mr. Williams opened the program by inviting the audience to come a little closer and fill the vacant seats; from that moment he had their sympathy and held them spellbound until the end of an intensely interesting recital. Gifted with a tenor voice of extremely beautiful quality and a sympathetic personality, Mr. Williams has added to his art wonderful breath control, exquisite phrasing and clear diction; these are, however, simply the means, for the real thing back of each song which he sings is the interpretation, the spirit, or rather the inspiration. He sings to the soul of his listeners and, from the response shown by the audience, there is no doubt but that he awakened in each their highest and noblest thought and aspirations.—Omaha News.

Management

WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU
New York

EDWARD WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
TENOR 1325 E. 64th St.

this reviewer. The accompaniments were models of skill and good taste, and the audience had but one fault to find with the piano solo number. It was entirely too short. The audience wanted "more."

The program of the evening was as follows:

Sonata	Richard Strauss
Sarabanda, for 'cello alone.....	J. S. Bach
Gavotte, for 'cello alone.....	J. S. Bach
Etude	Chopin
At the Fountain.....	Ch. Davidoff
Piano solos—
Liebestraum No. 2.....	Liszt
Scherzo	Mendelssohn
Albumblatt	D. Popper
Mazurka	D. Popper
O Cara Memoria.....	F. Servais
	C. J. B.

MARCELLA CRAFT TO SING IN CHICAGO

A benefit concert is to be given at Orchestra Hall on March 22, evening, for St. Joseph Hospital. The artists giving the program are Marcella Craft, soprano, Royal Opera House, Munich; Bruno Steindel, 'cello; Enrico Tramonti, harp, and Wilhelm Middelschulte, organist.

DORIS PFEIFFER-MOSES

Doris Pfeiffer-Moses, who has been having splendid success as a teacher and in concerts in Iowa, has located in Chicago permanently.

Mrs. Moses was a pupil of Herbert Butler in violin and of Karleton Hackett in voice.

CEDRIC W. LEMONTPIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485ADORATION: for medium voice
By HARRY R. DETWEILERPres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ill.
"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.MAGNUS FLORENCE R.
RUDOLPH E.Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. ChicagoEDNA DUNHAMSoprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New YorkJ. NOEL FOREST, TenorVOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981Allen W. BogenCONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGOHARRY S. AUSTINBASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758ALTA MILLERRECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318DEWITT DURGIN
TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COXTEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865Mrs. Charles L. KrumSOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986Vivian ScottTeacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZVOICE
PIANO
HARMONY800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-HarterCon-
tral-
to
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-RCAROL ROBINSON AND WILLIAM PRESTON PHILLIPS IN RECITAL

The Society of American Musicians presented Miss Carol Robinson, pianist, and Mr. William Preston Phillips, baritone, in a joint recital at Fullerton Hall on Friday evening and as usual at their functions a capacity house was in attendance.

MISS CAROL ROBINSON

This audience was also of that sort which could fully appreciate a program of unusual seriousness and significance and the endorsement of the work of the two artists was therefore in the highest degree enthusiastic.

Mr. William Beard, who made the introductions and who, by the way, spoke with sufficient distinctness to be heard throughout the hall, told something of the scope and the plans of the society, saying among other things that it was composed of "singers and musicians," a statement on which he dared to venture because of the fact that he himself is a singer. Among other cheerful announcements made by him was the fact that a series of five chamber music concerts is to be given during the spring, the backbone of which will be Hugo Kortschak and Ludwig Becker.

WILLIAM PRESTON PHILLIPS

In his talk Mr. Beard told that both Miss Robinson and Mr. Phillips are strictly American taught, the former having studied exclusively in Chicago while the latter, although he spent some time in Europe, also was there the pupil of an American teacher.

Miss Robinson is a pianist whose work impresses more and more as the months go by and who will doubtless rise to very great heights in public esteem. In the crisp security of her work, the absolute control over rhythms and in the great variety of tone, color and shading at her command she suggests, irresistibly, her splendid teacher, Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, but she has also a very distinct and a wholly pleasing originality of style and in interpretations, and on these she can depend for great and continued successes.

She was greeted with enthusiasm on Friday evening and proved very easily that she has scores of friends among the professional musicians, who made up the audience very largely and that they frankly and gladly grant her applause in the very unusual success she has made.

Her program was chosen with uncommon skill and while it was largely of direct appeal, it also had a big element of novelty in it, the numbers being chosen largely for their unhackneyed qualities.

The "Intermezzo," Op. 118, No. 2, and the "Capriccio," Op. 76, No. 2 (Brahms), served to open the list with purposefulness and were followed by the Bach-Liszt "Fantasie and Fugue" in G Minor, played with superb poise and swing.

A Dolnanyi "Rhapsodie" found Miss Robinson at her best; the Chopin "Nocturne," Op. 27, No. 1, was given with breadth as well as beauty of tone; a Liszt "Valse Impromptu" was sparkling, and the Schumann-Liszt "Widmung" was perhaps the most distinctive number of the program. It is immensely difficult and very difficult of interpretation, but it was read nevertheless with great fire and intensity as well as a crystalline purity as to feature.

The Arne Oldberg "Arabesque" proved attractive; a "Valse" by Carl M. Beecher (also of Evanston) was original; a "Prelude" by Otterstrom (sounding exactly like Chinese music) brought the program to its last number, the "Concert Etude," Op. 36, by MacDowell, which was given such a splendid reading both from the technical and the interpretative standpoints as it has very rarely received.

Mr. Phillips, who now lives in Bloomington, Ill., has many friends in Chicago, and he also was received with great acclaim, and as the evening progressed he won the hearts of the audience completely.

He has splendid concert style and authority and in his musical and interpretative work is so thoroughly sincere and so wholly in earnest that no audience could fail to appreciate these good qualities or to applaud him for them.

Mr. Phillips' voice is of good quality and his musicianship is unquestionably fine. His enunciation is an asset far above the ordinary value and he has the power also to differentiate his songs in quite remarkable fashion.

He also chose a thoroughly original and very much varied program, including works in German, French and English.

The "Fussreise" (Wolf), "Zueignung" (Strauss) and "Zigeunerlied" (Dvorak) are certainly fine examples of the art of the three composers named and wholly agreeable also to any audience.

"Chanson Trieste" (Duparc) and "Chanson Bachique" (Thomas) are splendid examples of French songs and were excellently sung, while "Tambourin" (Old French) was one of the most attractive and popular moments of the evening.

Mr. Phillips closed his program also with American works, presenting "Blue Are Thine Eyes," by Winter Watts; "The Hidden Song" (Cadman); "Witch Woman" (Deems Taylor), and "The Day Is No More" (John Alden Carpenter), very carefully and with much musical worth.

The Watts and Taylor pieces need further hearing to determine possible values, the Cadman song was fine from every vocal and poetical standpoint, and the Carpenter work was the best yet heard from this pen.

Following these, Mr. Phillips presented "The Song of the Eagle," by Leonard Lahay, a young Chicagoan, to the accompaniment of the composer. The work is pretentious and forceful; the text, very indicative, is by E. F. Andrews, another young Chicagoan, and the total effect was a fine one.

Mr. Gordon Campbell played all the other accompaniments and he was, of course, a tremendous help to Mr. Phillips and a very great factor in the complete success of the evening.

C. E. W.

A WELSH CHORAL TREAT

The excellent church choir of the Welsh Presbyterian Church, corner Adams street and Francisco avenue, under the direction of Professor W. R. Jones, will hold its second annual concert Tuesday evening, March 16, in the auditorium of the church. As announced in Music News, the choir's first concert consisted of a third performance of Dr. W. Rhys-Herbert's cantata, "Bethany," and without question the best rendition of the three performances, which is a high compliment to director and choir. Next Tuesday evening no lover of good music will miss the varied program prepared by this choir of seventy-five voices. Professor Jones does not neglect the composers of his own people. Gwilym Gwent in his day, and up to the present, is considered one of the best writers of glees, part-songs, and short oratorios. His part-song, "Sleep, Lady Sleep," the Welsh and English words by William ApMadoc of this city, is a gem, and it will be sung by the men members of the choir. "Dixie," arranged beautifully for mixed voices by Professor Evan Stephens, conductor of the famous Tabernacle Choir of Salt Lake City, will also be sung. There are thousands of Welsh-Americans on the west side, and elsewhere, who will be glad to attend. The pastor of the church, Rev. J. C. Jones, D. D., will preside.

Dunford—Mr. Frank M. Dunford sang in concert Sunday, March 7, at Clinton, Ia. Mr. Dunford has several other out-of-town engagements in the near future, which will be announced at an early date.

ANOTHER FACULTY RECITAL AT THE ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The third of a series of faculty recitals given by the Orchard School of Music, 1533 Hyde Park boulevard, took place on Tuesday evening, March 2, with Miss Olene Wallis, pianist; Mrs. Jessie Nichols-Baldwin, soprano; Mrs. Jessie DeVore, violinist, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, furnishing the program.

Miss Wallis opened and closed this program, playing at her first appearance the "Sonata in E Minor," by Grieg, at her second and last a group of numbers composed of "Au Ruissau," Schutt; "Etude," Neupert, and "Valse de Concert," Wieniawski. She is a young pianist worthy of many more public hearings than is now being accorded. She has a most gracious stage presence, enthusiasm, sincerity, assurance and above all a well-schooled technical equipment, which is used with great intelligence. She performed all her numbers on Tuesday night brilliantly and artistically.

Mrs. Baldwin likewise had two appearances during the evening, singing at the former a group of Russian songs made up with "Bend, Lovely Bud," Rubinstein; "Lilacs," Rachmaninoff; "Sylvan Roundelay," Rimsky-Korsakow, and "Hopek," Moussorgsky, which were prefaced by a very appropriate, interesting and intelligent talk by Mrs. Baldwin on the characteristics of Russian music, especially the songs from that country. This discourse was a wise move on the part of the soprano and bears imitation on the part of many other musicians. Her voice is of very pleasing quality, good range and carries a true ring of sympathy and sincerity. Her interpretations of the Russian songs were especially realistic and much to be commended. Her latter appearance brought forth Rummel's "Across the Hills," which displayed Mrs. Baldwin's use of the mezzo voce in a beautiful light and the flexibility of her voice was shown to fine advantage in "The Swallow," by Del'Acqua. "Little Damsel," by Novello, is a most grateful song to this soprano, and was much enjoyed. Woodman's "Birthday Song" closed her part of the program in great style and aroused more than the usual amount of enthusiasm on the part of the audience.

Mrs. DeVore is always a welcome addition to any program, and she and her violin were in especially good form on this occasion. She played the "Canzonetta" from Tchaikowsky's "Violin Concerto," Op. 35; "A Memory," by Gena Branscombe, and "Danse Tzigane," by Nachez, in fine style throughout and pleased her audience immensely.

The offerings of both Mrs. DeVore and Mrs. Baldwin were much enhanced by the ideal accompaniments played by Mrs. Orchard, who has few equals in this style of musical endeavor. She not only deserves praise and credit for her work at the piano, but for the splendid faculty she has assembled which makes these concerts possible and for the present flourishing condition of the school which she founded on the south side and which bears her name. H. M. B.

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Hubbard 4569

Edith V. Rann

TEACHER OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgard Stilleman Kelley and Alexander Helmemann, Berlin
es. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

ESTELLA NEUHAUS IN CHICAGO DEBUT

Estella Neuhaus is well known in the Pacific coast cities and also in New York, but Chicago had not heard her until last Monday afternoon, when she played a splendid piano program at the Fine Arts Theater to a goodly audience, which enjoyed her work to the full and applauded with vigor.

ESTELLA NEUHAUS

The program was both unique and of rare musical value, being adapted admirably also to display pianistic gifts both technical and interpretative.

Estella Neuhaus makes a sincere and direct appeal to her audience. Entirely devoid of mannerisms, she yet compels attention by the perfection of her technic and the good style with which she infuses all her readings.

She has power in plenty when she chooses to use it, but her finest charm lies in the remarkable clarity and finish which she is able to command in passages of the light and purling order.

The program opened with one movement of the Chopin "Sonata" in B Minor (allegro maestoso), and before this had proceeded very far Miss Neuhaus had shown her ability to present great contrasts of light and shade as well as to prove that she has a strong sense of rhythmic values and can also color her tone dramatically and poetically.

Next followed a "Gondolier's Love Song," by Cui, a work of very unusual content, but possessed of decided charm as played by Miss Neuhaus.

A "Spinning Song," by Youferoff, proved to be a distinct novelty, and was played with scintillant charm. No "spinning song" other than Mendelssohn's is remembered to have such sparkling effect. Later the "Arabesque," by Debussy, was also found to be thoroughly in keeping with Miss Neuhaus' finer gifts, and the "Slavonic Cradle Song," by Klein, was also "different" from the usual and was played with a true cantabile melody line.

The F Sharp Minor "Polonaise," by Chopin, marked the highest point of intellectuality and musical erudition of the program and served to prove that Miss Neuhaus has rare introspective powers, while the Balakirew "Islamey" (Fantastic Orientale) and the Liszt "Thirteenth Rhapsodie" proved equally well that she has virtuosity of technic and brilliance of interpretative thought.

Altogether Miss Neuhaus is a pianist of fine attainments and her second recital, to be played on March 22, will doubtless attract great attention.

Midway of the program, some readings were given by J. Howe Clifford. C. E. W.

—♦♦♦—

GRACE CHURCH, OAK PARK

Sunday afternoon, March 7, the ladies' choir of the Grace Church sang Gounod's "Gallia." Ethel Geistweit Benedict, soprano, was the soloist. Mr. Fraser is a capable organist and the work accomplished by the chorus heard on this occasion is proof enough of his ability as a director, for they have been singing scarcely three months, and they acquitted themselves in a very praiseworthy manner. Gounod's "Gallia" was originally written for soprano and chorus, orchestra and organ. Clifford Page

CORA LIBBERTON

Mrs. Cora Libberton, whose successful singing at the Popular Classical Concert in the Fine Arts Theater on Monday of last week was reviewed in the last issue of Music News, is soprano soloist at the new Fourth Presbyterian Church, where her work has been very much appreciated and is also a member of the faculty of the Walter Spry Music School.

MRS. CORA LIBBERTON

—♦♦♦—

THE ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, gave a students' recital last Friday evening at the college; the program being given by the following students: Francis McMaster, Ethel Seavey, Anna Wedemeyer, Elizabeth Pearn, William Learn, Shirley Stetler, Lucille Linneman, Myrtle Reuschell, George Hahn, Gertrude Maxwell, Dorothy Ferney, Roland Stetler, Isabel Barenz. At the close of the program medals were given to those who had worked diligently and had the required averages for the first half year work ending the middle of February. Those who received them were: Ethel Seavey, Shirley Stetler, Bertha Dahlstrom, Naomi Dahlstrom, Lucille Linneman, Bonnie Donaldson, Gladys Wagner, Lortcea Flaherty, Rumelle Aubrey, Helen Golding, Vesta Learn, Jessie Donaldson, Clarence Fine, Dorothy Ferney, Sadie Rawitch, Evelyn Pollack, Leah Rubin, Ethel Rawitch, Ruth Anderson, Helen Dyer, Gladys Hughes, Clarence Jensen, Helen Rusch, Amy Berkowitz, Rose Rubenstein, Carl Wagner, Beatrice Dorian, Myrtle Reuschell, Shirley Stetler, Roland Stetler, John McArthur, George Hahn, Franklin Paul, Francis McMaster, Ellsworth Waters.

The college will give a concert at the Garfield Park M. E. Church this Friday evening and at the Central Park Presbyterian Church on the 19th, the next Friday.

—♦♦♦—

Tenney—Mr. George L. Tenney will present his pupils in song program at Lewis Institute, West Madison and Robey streets, this (Friday) evening. Cadman's "Morning of the Year" will form a part of the program.

SUMMER SCHOOL Start the
Effa Ellis Perfield
 Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
 The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
 Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
 SUITE 950-955 McCLEURG BLDG.
 218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
 Chicago, Ill.

has arranged it for women's voices, organ, orchestra and soprano soloist. The chorus sang with much surety, good body of tone, and their shading, attacks and releases were well taken.

The "Jerusalem" number sung by the chorus was especially enjoyable. "Is It Nothing to You?" for the chorus, with soprano obligato sung by Mrs. Benedict, was a high point of the musical service.

Mrs. Benedict sang as an offertory number "Lord, Why Hidest Thou Thy Face," from Sullivan's "Light of the World." She has a voice of good quality and excellent range, and she sings with great sincerity and musical feeling.

Her solo number was given with much dramatic power, and the solo parts in the cantata were splendidly done.

Mr. Fraser at the organ left nothing to be desired, and he kept both chorus and orchestra well in hand, completing a very effective ensemble. H. W. P.

MARGARET TARRANT AND LYRAVINE VOTAW IN "HANSEL AND GRETEL"

"HANSEL AND GRETEL"

Saturday afternoon, March 6, the members and friends of the Central Eleanor Club were permitted to enjoy a rare musical treat. The event was a delightful and artistic presentation of Humperdinck's opera, "Hansel and Gretel," in what might be called an opera-lecture-recital, given by Misses Lyravine Votaw, "Hansel," Margaret Tarrant, "Gretel," Alice Kent, interpreter, Martha Lathrop, pianist. The excerpts from the scenes of the opera presented on this occasion had been chosen with much care and arranged in a manner that enabled one to enjoy to the full the many beauties of the score and text. Miss Kent gave us the story of the opera in such a natural and intelligent manner that one could not help saying she had much real ability along this particular line of endeavor and she should be heard from when her work becomes better known.

Miss Lathrop was at the piano throughout the evening and did some splendid accompanying. And in the solo parts for piano she proved herself a capable pianist.

Misses Votaw and Tarrant have excellent voices and they excelled themselves in the portrayal of the characters of "Hansel and Gretel." They sang the music with great finish and understanding, proving beyond doubt that they had studied well, and their merited success should be very gratifying. The songs and dances were given in an irresistible manner throughout. Their acting is natural and unaffected, and they looked like "Hansel and Gretel." It is well worth a special effort to see and hear them in Humperdinck's opera. H. W. P.

—###—

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

This very flourishing club, which, less than a year old, has already more than four hundred members, gave a program by its student membership under direction of Miss Anna Balatka, chairman, with a lecture by Miss Katherine Schuster and with Mrs. Fannie Barnett-Preiser as accompanist at the Francis First Room of the Congress Hotel last Thursday, which was very successful. The following young people took part: May Hornbeck, Winifred Gibbons, Madeline Gerharz, Glyndine Andersen, Madeline Lawrence Carroll, Elisa Leimbach, Helen Volckmann, Bernice Chapman, Gladys Welge, Marguerite Thjomoe, Charlotte Krause, Marie Walters and Lucy Thacher. Among the teachers represented were Miss Ella Bachman, Mrs. Fannie Preiser, Mrs. Herman Devries, Mrs. Eleanor Capps Hostler, Albert Leo Preiser and Miss Anna Balatka.

LAKEVIEW MUSICAL SOCIETY

A fine concert under the auspices of the Lakeview Musical Society took place in Martine's Hall Monday afternoon, March 8.

The first part of the program was given by active members of the society, and the second part was in the form of a piano recital by Rudolph Reuter.

Miss Isabel Richardson, soprano, had the task of opening the program, and proved herself entirely equal to the occasion, her selections being "May Morning," by Denza, "Elysium," by Speaks, and "An Open Secret," by Woodman. Miss Richardson's voice is a brilliant one of excellent quality and she uses it with intelligence and good control. Her phrasing and enunciation are admirable, and the varied tonal qualities demanded in properly presenting the numbers in her group were beautifully brought out.

For the encore which was demanded, she sang Mrs. Downing's "Only a Rose," and scored further success thereby.

Mr. William Lester furnished Miss Richardson's accompaniment, and anyone acquainted with the Lester accompaniments need not be told that it was excellent.

The second number was given by Miss Mildred Brown, a young violinist, who played "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso," by Saint-Saens, in a manner entirely to her credit, and was accorded splendid appreciation by the audience. Miss Mae Doelling, a pianist of well known ability, accompanied Miss Brown with her usual fine discrimination.

Mrs. Lucile Megahan Wynekoop, contralto, was to have given a group of songs, but on account of illness, was not able to appear.

Mr. Reuter, a young Chicago pianist of ability, played selections from the works of Schumann, Chopin, Granados, Ravel, Schoenberg, Paderewski, Dieter and Dohnanyi for the second part of the program, and displayed thereby great technical skill and a conscientious devotion to classic repertoire. We would offer the suggestion, however, that Mr. Reuter would add greatly to the charm of his performance by offering more variety in the style of compositions on his programs. C. J. B.

—###—

Ballmann—The Ballmann Orchestra will give its nineteenth program on Sunday with the following artists: Henrietta Herfurth, pianist, and the Chicago Grand Opera Quartet, Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano; Elsa Staud-Denton, contralto; Dan S. Denton, tenor; Max Bing, baritone. The program will consist of excerpts from grand opera.

—###—

Racine, Wis.—A concert was given at the White House Theater by the Lyric Singing Society under the direction of Jessie Waters Northrop on February 23. A program of part songs and solos was given. The soloists were Leonora Allen, Russel Lewis and Alfred Hilker.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston, Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHARINE D'ORSAY
Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium-Merrick Bldg.-Phone Englewood 9748

AT THE CLIPPINGER STUDIOS

Mrs. Anna C. Binnix, soprano, with Mrs. Charles Orchard at the piano, furnished the regular Saturday afternoon hour of music at the studios of D. A. Clippinger in Kimball Hall on March 6.

The recital in an educational and enjoyable way was fully up to the high standard maintained in these studios. Mr. Clippinger had an unusual amount of information to offer in reference to the songs given by Mrs. Binnix, who has a well schooled voice of good quality and range and gave an all around good account of herself on this occasion. She opened the program with two seldom used Handel arias which displayed the more light and flexible side of her voice to good advantage, as did an aria by Donizetti and "The Violet" by Scarlatti, the latter being sung with especially good breath control and enunciation. "The Knotting Song," "Nymphs and Shepherds," "I Attempt From Love's Sickness to Fly," "Five Fathoms Deep" and "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," all five by Henry Purcell, formed a fine group and were sung in a very commendable manner by Mrs. Binnix. "The Fairy Pipers," by Brewer, and "Ecstasy," by James Rogers, were the only numbers heard in her last group. The Rogers song was one of the most delightful heard during the afternoon. A part of its success came through its charming accompaniment, which was played in appropriate and realistic style by Mrs. Orchard. No accompanist in the city is more satisfactory than Mrs. Orchard and the singers giving these recitals may well boast of their good fortune in having her take a part in the rendition of their programs.

CCSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art gave a recital on Saturday afternoon, March 6, in the recital hall of the school.

Pupils of Mrs. W. S. Bracken, Henry P. Eames, Mrs. Mabel W. Osmer and Lucille Stevenson appeared.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Eames entertained members of the faculty of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art at their home, 4401 Oakenwald avenue, on Thursday evening, March 11.

Mr. William Waugh Lauder, director of the musical history and aesthetics department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, will lecture at the University of Iowa on March 15 and in Missouri and Alton, Ill., on March 18 and 20.

American Conservatory—Saturday afternoon, March 20, several advanced pupils of the American Conservatory will appear in recital, accompanied by the Conservatory Students' Orchestra under Herbert Butler. The program will include the Rubinstein D Minor, the MacDowell A Minor and the Chopin E Minor piano concertos, played by the Misses Idorne Newmark, Katherine Kittilsby and Florence Schubert. Miss Gertrude Schulze will sing the aria, "Voi che Sapete," by Mozart, and Miss Frances Burch the aria, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint-Saens.

Little Theater—Miriam Marmcin is repeating her successful dance program at the Little Theater. On Thursday "Medea" will again be put on for two weeks.

STEIN CONSERVATORY

The third of a series of public recitals presented by the Stein Musical-Dramatic Conservatory was given March 3 in the Auditorium Recital Hall by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Stein and Mr. Edwin J. Gemmer. This is the first time pupils of Mr. Gemmer have appeared on the school recitals and in spite of nervousness on the part of one or two they proved that another efficient and high class teacher of piano has been added to the faculty.

The quartet arrangement of the Lucia Sextet, sung by the Light Opera Quartet, made a good opening number. In the "La fioraja" Miss Dahly was at her best, which is saying a great deal, and Mr. Loach gave a fine accounting of himself in the "Evening Star" and "The Gipsy." Miss Spiegel sang the "Melba Waltz Song" with ease and beauty of tone.

"There are no pupils like Mrs. Stein's pupils," said one of the audience and it would be hard to find more realistic acting than Miss Thormann's in "Behind a Screen," more intense feeling than Miss Robson's in "Kchoes Bar," or more spirit and clearer pictures than Miss Paulsen's in "The Parson's Conversion," and all done without the slightest affectation. The closing number was an entertaining playlet, "The Burglar," cleverly acted by Misses Duell, Galtermann, Leonhardt, Torshund and Riencke. E. B.

AT FULLERTON HALL

Miss Henriette Weber is very catholic in her tastes and the plan of her Fullerton Hall lectures covers easily the operas of all schools and countries.

The early Italian, severe German or modern French operas each find her keenly alive to possibilities and she makes each in turn thoroughly fascinating to her audiences.

On Sunday evening "Herodiade" was the theme and in her preliminary remarks Miss Weber impressed upon her hearers the versatility of Massenet by showing the vivid contrasts between "The Juggler" and "Thais," as well as by pointing out the beauties of all three operas.

She told entertainingly of the wonderful local color in "Herodiade." "It has been said that the hearing of a fine performance of Herodiade is as good as a trip to Palestine," said Miss Weber. "But the music, nevertheless, is essentially modern French."

It was not possible Sunday evening to remain throughout the program, but a thoroughly characteristic reading of a "Dance" by the players was heard, as also "He is Kind, He is Good," which was sung in superb style by Miss Lucille Stevenson and was rewarded with a storm of applause.

FLORENCE LE CLAIRE IN RECITAL

Miss Florence Le Claire will give a piano recital at Central Music Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 14, at 3:30, under direction of J. E. Allen. The program was printed in Music News last week.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

KURT WANIECK AND LOUISE HATT-STAEDT-WINTER IN CONCERT

The American Conservatory on last Saturday afternoon presented Mrs. Winter and Mr. Wanieck in a song-piano program and drew the usual capacity audience to Kimball Hall.

Mrs. Winter has a pretty voice and a good style and, although she was indisposed on Saturday, did herself much credit in groups of songs including distinctive works by Bizet, Pessard, Reger, Tosti, Bemberg, Ware and German. Of the numbers heard by this writer, "Tis Snowing," by Bemberg, was the best, and it was truly an example of refined and legato vocal work.

Mr. Wanieck opened the program with the Schumann "Sonata," Op. 22, which he played with great distinction and infused with much of temperament.

For his second group he made the "Bells Across the Valley," by Ravel, very interesting, gave the "Moto Perpetuo," by MacDowell, with excellent technical detail, and in the "Concert Etude," by the same writer, he was splendidly virtuosic.

This same mood was continued in the Liszt "Etude in D Flat," in which there was breadth and power as well as astonishing fleetness of lighter technical effects and the concert was brought to a close with a truly inspiring reading of the "Toccata," by Saint-Saens, a monumental work difficult both to interpret convincingly and to manage technically. Mr. Wanieck, however, found the composition entirely within his powers and played it very beautifully as well as with entire conviction.

This young pianist has every possible gift in the pianistic art and will certainly go on his present conquering way to still more pronounced successes. C. E. W.

Thompson—Cave Thompson, the distinguished blind pianist of Chicago, has recently been engaged to give a recital in the early part of April under the auspices of one of the well known churches of this city.

As usual Mr. Thompson's program will contain numbers which are in keeping with his superb musicianship and wonderful virtuosity; it would likewise look very strange to see a program by this artist which did not embody a few new and unhackneyed works, since Mr. Thompson is a musician at all times to be found in the vanguard of pianistic progress.

The letters of endorsement and press comments which are always the spontaneous result wherever he appears are a constant testimonial of the fact that he bids fair to become one of America's most eminent pianists in the near future. His stamina and intellectual keenness highly qualify him for what he has so marvelously attained.

Lester—"The Triumph of the Greater Love," a sacred cantata, the libretto by Frederick Martens, the music by William Lester, will be given a festival performance at St. James' Episcopal Church, Cass and Huron streets, Sunday afternoon, April 18, by Margaret Lester, soprano; Augusta Alberti-Meeker, contralto; Warren Proctor, tenor; Cardon V. Burnham, baritone; Palmer Christian, organist, and the choir of the church, assisted by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, all under the direction of John W. Norton.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY

Tuesday evening, March 2, Miss Carrie Scott presented Miss Margaret Andersen, a member of the artist piano class, in a recital at the School. The Mendelssohn Conservatory Ladies' Quartet assisted. Miss Andersen is a young pianist with much musical ability and a good technic. She gave numbers by Chopin, MacDowell, Sinding, Debussy, Liebling, Grieg, and Liszt. She opened the program with the Chopin "Polonaise," in A flat Major, Op. 53, receiving much applause for her efforts. A MacDowell group, including the "Concert Etude," "In Autumn," Op. 51, "Praeludium," Op. 10, No. 1, were played with much finish and with a fine regard for interpretative thought. In the Chopin group, Miss Andersen made a good impression. Sinding's "March Grotesque," Op. 32, No. 1; and the Grieg "Dance Caprice" were given excellent interpretation and heard with much pleasure. The Liszt number was a happy choice for closing the well played program. The Mendelssohn Ladies' Quartet gave two numbers by Park, "Annie Laurie" and "A Perfect Day." They gave great pleasure in their programmed numbers and the recall numbers were very enjoyable.

ALBERT BORROFF AS AN ORATORIO SINGER

To be successful as an oratorio singer, one must have a finely developed sense of sincerity. There must be a full sympathy for the uplifting thought as voiced by religion. Mere vocal display must be suppressed and no other thought in the singer's mind than the message of the text and music. The Staats-Zeitung of Chicago said of the singing of Albert Borroff in the "Messiah": "He was one through whom the message of the composer was made clear," and the Chicago Tribune said: "The best singing of the 'Messiah' heard in years." A singer can have no greater compliment paid him than to have it said that he made the audience feel the truth and beauty of exalted religious utterance through the medium of music.

DEATH OF FRANCES CROWLY

For the second time in the history of the Columbia School of Music, death has entered the ranks of the faculty, this time taking Miss Frances Crowly, for many years a valued teacher of piano. Miss Crowly's work was almost entirely with children and her passing has created a general depression throughout the school, for she had made a very special place for herself in the hearts of her co-workers. Miss Crowly died Tuesday, March 2, as a result of a very serious operation, and her funeral services were held from Oakwood Chapel, Thursday, March 4, at 11 o'clock.

ORCHESTRA CONCERT

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, presented the following program Tuesday afternoon in Mandel Hall:

Overture—Fingal's Cave Mendelssohn
Symphony No. 2, D minor, Op. 70 Dvorak
Symphonic poem—The Sirens Grieg
Italian Serenade Wolf
Symphonic poem—The Moldau Smetana

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-
ORGAN
Americao
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organoist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE

TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist

Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist

YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam 1B, Cartoo, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL
COLLEGE

KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

LAURA WESSEL

Mezzo Contralto

Miss Wessel was heard in three numbers affording splendid opportunity for the exploitation of her vocal attainments.—Omaha World Herald.

Miss Wessel was repeatedly encored and at each succeeding appearance seemed to give added pleasure. Her voice is of wide range, exceptional velvety quality and an unusually even scale. "Der Sieger" was sung with wonderful spirit and dramatic fire. The soft pianissimo tones of "The Woodland Croon Song" were alluring in the extreme. "Hoffnung" proved her capable of doing exceptional legato work. She also displayed a charming bit of piquant humor in her rendition of "Niemand hat's gesehen."—Omaha Examiner.

Laura Wessel possesses a remarkably pleasing contralto voice of rich velvety quality which she handles very intelligently and she has considerable dramatic ability. This was especially evident in the interpretation of the song cycle "Moods," which was given with great dramatic force and called forth repeated encores.—Omaha Excelsior.

Studio recitals seem to be the fad at the close of the season. Mr. Dickerman of Omaha, before leaving for his annual season in Chicago, invited the writer to a recital by Laura Wessel. Her rendition of "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," Schubert's "Erking," and "Good Night," by Ashford, proved her the possessor of a scale of exceptional smoothness and a most pleasing interpretative voice. Her ability to cover a wide range of songs shows the excellent standard of instruction she has followed.—The (K. C.) Clef.

Laura Wessel, contralto, possesses a rich, well modulated voice, sweet and entrancing; her selections in German and Italian gave her splendid opportunity for displaying the varying tone colors. Her English selections were no less attractive.—Papillion (Neb.) Times.

Miss Wessel's voice is very sweet and clear, of wide compass and fine intonation. Much skill was manifest in her rendition of the difficult music of which her program was composed, singing in French, German, Italian and English.—Wisner (Neb.) Chronicle.

Miss Wessel has an excellent and pleasing voice and the care with which it has been trained is manifest in her singing. That her audience was delighted with her work was attested by the hearty applause and repeated encores to which she graciously responded.—Pilger (Neb.) Herald.

For terms and dates, address 22 Arlington Block, Omaha, Neb. Home address, Wisner, Neb.

H. W. OWENS PUPILS IN SONG PROGRAM

In all candor the recital given at the Athenaeum Building on last Monday evening might have been announced as one by artist pupils, for the designation fits the case exactly.

Mr. H. W. Owens has the happy faculty of holding his pupils for a long time and the result is that he always has a lot of thoroughly advanced pupils on hand.

He also is great on giving recitals and very especially does he believe in oratorio performances, which latter he gives whenever he finds a possibility to do so.

In these performances he has a habit of using his own advanced pupils as soloists and thus they gain a routine and an experience which are not offered by many teachers.

Of the pupils who appeared on Monday night at least half have been heard at some time during the past two or three years by this writer in regular oratorio performances, and in passing it may be said very truthfully they were heard with great pleasure.

The program of Monday was only one hour long, but it introduced a wealth of good material and again proved Mr. Owens a fine teacher. It also proved Haydn Owens to be a good accompanist and it showed again that the Owens class is composed of a lot of energetic young artists who will certainly make their way in the musical world.

The program was made up of standard selections from opera and oratorio as well as from the ballad list, all in English, the writers represented being Hawley, Delibes, Handel, Schubert, Ronald, Stuart, Mendelssohn, Ware, Pontet, Salter and Mulder.

The students appearing were Harriet Schnitker, Lillian Anderson, Ledru Treider, Nina Shankland, Haydn Owens, Charles Burch, Mayme Jenkins, Robert Jones, Lillian Landwer, Archer Ballantine, Gertrude Steinberger, Carl Brown and Augusta Collson.

Every one of these did good work and it is hardly fair to specialize, but it may truthfully be said that Haydn Owens showed a very good tenor voice and much style in some Ronald numbers, Lillian Landwer was very facile and had a fine trill in "Sunlight" (Ware), Archer Ballantine proved himself the possessor of a phenomenal range for bass voice, Gertrude Steinberger showed musical temperament in Salter's "Cry of Rachel," Carl Brown was very suave in an oratorio selection and Augusta L. Collson again displayed coloratura excellence in the Mulder "Staccato Polka."

C. E. W.

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone, and Kurt Wanick, pianist, are to give a joint recital at Thurber Recital Hall, Fine Arts Building, Thursday evening, April 15. The feature of the program will be Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," with music by Richard Strauss.

Longman—Marie White Longman gave one of her novel programs at South Haven on March 11, at Hope College. Requests are coming in for these programs, not only from musical organizations, but from literary clubs as well. Mrs. Longman appears at Hutchinson, Kas., on April 5.

AT TRINITY CHURCH

The ever growing popularity of the Lenten "cantatas" was well exemplified on Sunday afternoon when in spite of the very bad weather, Trinity Church was found packed to the doors and Music News representative could not even secure a program, much less get inside the door. The occasion was triply a "festival," inasmuch as "The Crucifixion" was sung by the choirs of Trinity, Christ and Redeemer Episcopal Churches, making a total of 150 men and boys.

The three directors are Irving Hancock, Mason Slade and Francis Mackay. On this occasion Mr. Hancock presided at the organ and Mr. Mackay directed, the soloists being chosen from the various choirs.

From the vestibule, the chorus sounded very fine indeed. There was, of course, much massed beauty of tone and, be it said to the credit of all concerned, there was wonderful unanimity of purpose and precision of effect. The solo voices rose full and clear and the tones of the organ came with such purity and sweetness as to again prove Mr. Hancock's skill and to show that his new organ is indeed a gem. C. E. W.

Elmhurst, Ill.—At the Community House, on February 16, the Euterpean Men's Chorus, of Morgan Park, under direction of Edward T. Clissold, gave a concert of part songs.

Morgan Park—The second concert of the Euterpean Men's Chorus series, under direction of Edward Clissold, will be given on Saturday evening with Henry Eames, pianist, as assisting artist.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

KURT DONATH PUPILS IN OPERA PROGRAM

Everything in the Little Theater is presented with distinction and on Monday evening there was unusual charm and finish accorded the performance of three opera excerpts by pupils of Mr. Kurt Donath.

KURT DONATH

The music also was charmingly rendered and certainly reflected very great credit on the training done in the Donath studios.

The choice of operas was thoroughly felicitous, for the piquant color of "Carmen" was in vivid contrast to the sweet simplicity of the act from "Der Freischuetz," and the "Trovatore" scene served to cap the climax of an evening full of music delights.

The pupils had been well drilled, they dressed and acted admirably and the singing was far above the usual amateur, being, in fact, very near the professional stage throughout.

In "Carmen," Miss Pearl McAdams sustained the name part exceedingly well, her singing being pure and musical and her acting thoroughly convincing. She also looked charming and sang sweetly in the part of "Annie" in "Der Freischuetz."

Irene Graf, as "Frasquita" in "Carmen," brought that small part up to unusual perfection, and as "Agnes" in the Weber opera, was of unusual excellence, acting with distinction and singing the long aria falling to the part with much vocal beauty.

Joseph Hurt had important parts in each of the operas and acquitted himself creditably, as did also Maude Haseh, and a small chorus consisting of Henrietta Dix, Julia Montague, Tena Nisted, Mildred Nisted and Mathilde Sehuber.

The wedding music in "Der Freischuetz," sung by these young ladies, was so particularly charming that one wonders why it is not often selected to sing at such functions in real life.

To close the program, an act of "Trovatore" was given with great vim and intelligence, Miss Graf assuming the part of "Leonora," and Mr. Kurt Donath resuming the stage clothes of "Manrico" and singing with splendid style and distinction.

Mr. Donath has tradition at his finger tips—he is a splendid actor and his voice is thrillingly impressive.

His singing of "Di quella pira" has not often been equaled, and it brought the performance to a brilliant and enthusiastic close, even though the hour was near 11:30.

As intermezzi to the opera scenes, Mr. Augusto C. Gonzales gave some songs and presented a duet with Mr. Donath, and Miss Marie Simon was heard in some piano solos.

Mr. Gonzales has a most ingratiating personality and a bass-baritone voice of unusual purity and charm.

He gave Tosti's "Good Bye" in Italian and Adams' "Thora" with thoroughly excellent English enunciation.

He has real musical feeling as well as rare intelligence and will unquestionably go far in his art.

Miss Simon, who played fine accompaniments throughout the evening, was discovered also to be a finished player along the solo line. Her reading of the Glinka-Balakirew "Lark" was marked by delicate charm, and the Saint-Saens "Etude en forme de Valse" was sufficiently brilliant.

C. E. W.

Evanston—Miss Dorothy Watt, soprano, and Miss Louise Carter, pianist, gave a program at Northwestern University last Wednesday, the accompaniments being played by Miss Jane Watt. Miss Watt sang numbers by Haydn, Mozart, Grieg, Saar, Thayer, Woodman, Finden, Frederick Norton and Del Riego. Miss Carter played works by Oldberg, MacDowell, Chopin, Grieg and Rachmaninoff.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

The Chicago Piano College presents Betsy M. Howland, pianist, in recital at Kimball Hall Sunday afternoon, March 14, at 3:30. She will be assisted by Sydnie Smith Cooley, contralto. The program follows:

Prelude and Fugue, D major.....Bach-Busoni
Saint Francis Walking on the Waves.....Liszt
Songs—

Dawn of the Night.....L. Nikolayef
Slumber Song.....A. Gretchaninow
Lilacs.....Rachmaninoff
Nur wer die Sehnsucht kennt.....Tschaikowsky
From a German Forest, Op. 61.....MacDowell
Of Bre'r Rabbit, Op. 61.....MacDowell
Fantasie, F minor, Op. 49.....Chopin
Song Cycle—A Night in Raibapur.....Mary Turner Salter

Allegro, Op. 35
Lento, Op. 35.....Cyril Scott
Danse Negre, Op. 58
Polonaise, E major.....Liszt-Busoni

— — — — —

Kortzenborn—Mr. George F. Kortzenborn, who was for two and a half years choir director at the Ravenswood Baptist Church, is now filling a similar position at the California Avenue Congregational. On next Sunday evening a special music program is to be given, including anthems, quartets and solos. The choir is at work on Mendelssohn's "Forty-second Psalm" and Barnby's "Rebekah," to be sung at the annual spring concert.

— — — — —

Chicago Artists' Quartet—The Chicago Artists' Quartet, the personnel of which is Florence Hedstrom, Nellie Sturtevant, Carl E. Craven and Alonzo Morsback, assisted by Mrs. Charles Sorrensen, contralto, will give a popular concert with the Glenn Dillard Gunn Trio at Fine Arts Theater Sunday afternoon, March 21.

PASSION MUSIC

by the

Apollo Musical Club

HARRISON M. WILD, Conductor

augmented to

1,000 SINGERS

Auditorium Theater, Sunday Afternoon, March 28

at 3 o'clock

SOLOISTS

FLORENCE HINKLE	Soprano	G. MAGNUS SCHUTZ	Bass
ALMA BECK	Contralto	BURTON THATCHER	Bass
NICHOLAS DOUTY	Tenor	EDGAR NELSON	Organist

Entire Symphony Orchestra

TICKETS, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00

BOXES, $15.00

At the Apollo Club Box Office, in Lyon & Healy's Wabash and Adams

CARL D. KINSEY, Business Manager

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

The Elderly Person

The Elderly Person can't help writing just a little about the reflections engendered by reading a contributed editorial called "A Symposium of Noise" in the number issued February 26. He is quick to add that he does not do so to arouse argument. He has lived long enough to know that argument fattens on itself and arrives nowhere. It is even difficult to discuss, wisely, any topic which causes one or other side of the table to call the discussed object "names," and the writer referred to expresses himself or herself (as the case may be) in no uncertain terms when Frederick Converse's "Ormazd" is called a "phantasmagoria" and "a drivel of discords." Well, that's all right, good friend, if you feel that way, but there is an Italian proverb that reminds us that hard words are like burrs in the hair—easy to throw but difficult to disentangle.

One of the privileges of youth is to be severely positive and to do battle for a position once assumed. And fortifications can always be built about any statement that has the energy of conviction in it. And it never matters to youthful combatants that there are any number of shattered forts that were built to support a position once taken, and defended for that reason even after it was found to be a doubtful one. The Elderly Person has more than once rained all the shot and shell he could muster at those who opposed his radical statements. Irony and sarcasm and taunts that should surely have struck dismay have been launched, and blunderbusses loaded with argument and streams of flowing ink have gone into the fray. Sometimes he has been on the right side, sometimes not, and he has not always been a good loser when victory perched elsewhere than on what he felt sure was his white plume. Not very long ago he was bemoaning to a well-to-do friend the fact that he had put a little of his hard-earned money into a stock which promptly passed its current dividend, had not paid any since and steadily decreased in price. "Hoot, mon," said this friend, "and have you only one bad stock to your credit? I have heart failure every time I go to my strong box. I have any number of certificates that stare me in the face and ask me impertinent questions. Ask any man of means and he'll tell you he has gold and silver and copper mine stocks, and that all the metal he has even seen from them is what is used in the illuminated letters on the certificates. All of us have put more money into the ground than we've ever taken out." . . . In some such way the Elderly Person reviews his bad judgments in matters musical in past years. And like the bad stock certificates that will not stay at the bottom of the strong box—the real humiliations of life are the confessions we have to make to ourselves of the egregious blunders we made and the way we tried to prove them to be steps of prescience and superiority. If it were not for these records there do be many who, when they reach elderliness and find themselves much given to looking backward, would readily say that they would be glad to live their lives over again. But to have to make the same sort of blunders again—no, thank you!

Now it so happened that the Elderly Person heard the orchestra play the Converse tone poem. He felt that he must say something about it, but there was no time to prepare the comment, else there would have been two extremely opposite expressions as to its merits in the columns of what evidently two men think to be the only musical columns worth while. In fact, the Elderly Person only awaits an opportunity for a second hearing to endeavor to express the thoughts the music aroused in him. Funny about this matter of impression,—how two absolutely honest men could obtain diametrically opposite stimulation from the same thing. In one man it stimulated such impatience that he called it names. In the other it stimulated the imagination to see a great vision of moral strength and inspiration. But by both these tokens the work itself proves its worth. The old parson used to say: "I don't care what you call my preaching. You can call it heresy if you want to, but if it makes you think it does what I want it to do."

It is nearly always so with anything which has in it the possibility of being ahead of its time. The Elderly Person recalls well the days when Wagner and his "music of the future" were scoffed at, laughed at, abused and belittled. And Richard Wagner himself by all the evidences of biography and history was difficult to get along with, and really not the kind of a man one would choose for mentor in morals or money matters. He was all sorts of outrageous things—but nothing could down him or his music. It has come to stay. There is nothing quite like it and all the praise that those who emulate him can hope to obtain is that their endeavors may resemble his. In more recent days Gounod sniffed at Cesar Franck, and those who basked in Gounod's sunshine hurt in all manner of ways the gentle organist and fine-souled man with a message of beauty for the world.

Nearly every innovator who looks for a hearing of his preachment of any sort is obliged to exaggerate to secure attention. Nearly always there is a tang of bitterness accompanying the stressful moments. Quiet endeavors make progress slowly—hence the impatience of those who wish to see results while they are present in the flesh. Berlioz stormed and fought and fumed and fretted out his being, and in his overwrought moods defeated his desired ends by failing to see where he was vulnerable. But, like the old parson, when he did get a hearing all people talked, and some of them thought, and he lived to see himself respected, if not altogether righted.

It has to be confessed, therefore, that some of those who are now writing the music of the present, hoping that it may survive them and be the music of the future, are indiscreet in their expression, somewhat like those examples of cubist art we had at the Art Institute. But there were plenty of quiet moments of force in the school, even if they were not heeded in our glee at discovering the overwrought and excessive. Mr. Stock offered the Schoenberg "Five Little Pieces" and the Elderly Person made himself conspicuous by his undisguised hilarity at their queer-ness, to put it mildly. The Strawinsky "Fireworks" bored him as it seemed to bore the players, and there was a Debussy contribution recently that made one think of that funny business about the little gazelle and the roaring lion and the palmetto tree. But one can't condemn and dismiss these composers and their confreres because we don't appreciate them. Leipsic refused to welcome Brahms despite Mendelssohn's friendship, Joachim's enthusiasm and Schumann's prophecy. Not until the restless Herzogenbergs turned every stone to prepare him a welcome did he get any foothold in the stronghold. They called his music hard names or else they were indifferent, which is the worst of crimes. But now he is listed as "classical," and one of those, doubtless, whom the contributed editorial writer frets for, as lying almost neglected for the modern noise producers. But Mr. Stock owes it to his time to give the new voices an utterance. It cannot always be taken to indicate his preference. The Elderly Person is quite at one with the writer in feeling a slack interest in many of the "novelties" that come and go, and he audibly wonders at times what led Mr. Stock to select them. But by the very irony of things he was as prodigiously impressed with the Converse tone poem as the writer was disgusted by it. And so he laughs a little at his own strictures anent other novelties, which may in their turn have gladdened other hearts, and urges his friend to be patient for a while, assuring him that time will duly settle whether the present trend of music is to be the permanent one, or whether the return to former standards is the ultimatum.

The contributor was perfectly honest in firing his broadside at what he conjectured to be a bubble coming down the musical road. But he may find his bullets are mashed against a hard substance. We may as well recognize Tendency with a capital T as filling a wide space just now, and it has a way of flattening out those who stand in its path and call on it to stop. The Elderly Person accepts the popular cry of "Safety First" as a wise maxim, and prefers to sit on the fence and whistle while he watches the fellows pushing along this vehicle of musical momentum. He observes some anarchist among the group, Florent Schmitt being one who makes himself loudly heard, but he sees Frederick Cowen in his old age down among the boys, too, and Harrison Wild patting him on the back through the Apollo Club's work on "The Veil." The Elderly Person hopes to be sharp enough to know which way to jump when the time comes. Meantime he repeats his adage about thanking God for the good that can come through the worst of men. The lawyer don't like that indirect philosophy and says "Whenever I find myself disparaging a man I don't understand, I jerk myself up by confessing that he is no doubt smarter than I am and I don't like to acknowledge it." THE ELDERLY PERSON.

People & Events

YEATMAN GRIFFITH

Mr. Yeatman Griffith is having a busy season in New York with the students he brought from Europe and those from all parts of the states who have gone to New York to study with him. His studio is at 318 West Eighty-second street.

YEATMAN GRIFFITH

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT BAILEY FILLING CONCERT DATES IN KANSAS

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey left Chicago on Sunday evening, March 7, for a brief concert tour in Kansas. Notable among their engagements are two performances of the "Creation" during the convention of the Golden Belt Teachers' Association, held in the Fort Hays Normal School, Hays City, Kas., March 10 and 12. Mrs. Bailey will sing the soprano role, Mr. Bailey the bass, Garnet Hedge will be the tenor, and H. E. Malloy, former director and bass soloist of the music festivals at Lindsborg, Kans., will conduct the performances.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will give their joint recital, in which they have specialized and are very successful, at a number of the smaller cities in Kansas later in the month.

Mr. Bailey will attend the "Messiah" festival at Lindsborg from March 28 to April 4 in the interests of Music News, as well as visit several other important cities of the middle west in the same capacity.

Bush Temple—On Friday evening, March 5, a students' recital was given at the Bush Temple Conservatory by Gertrude Van Straaten, Agnes Hart, Gertrude Brenner, Dorothy O'Brien, Marietta Livengood, Lillian Fox, Adele Reimers and David Marcus.

ANTONIO SALA

Antonio Sala, Spanish 'cellist, member of one of the C. W. Best Concert Companies, appeared recently as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, scoring a great success.

The local press comments as follows:

Outstanding features of the sixteenth popular concert by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra Sunday afternoon were the 'cello numbers played by Antonio Sala.

Sala, the young Spanish 'cellist who quite accidentally came into the ken of Mr. Zach and was induced to remain in St. Louis over Sunday, revealed himself as a superb artist. Of engaging presence and demeanor, he attacked the intricacies of Saint-Saens' "A Minor Concerto" as if there were nothing ahead of him but the playing of half notes in common time.

He made no pauses between the three movements, and there were moments when he played with such astounding facility that a listener closing his eyes might think he heard a violin. Those who kept their eyes open would not have been surprised had Sala suddenly chucked his 'cello under his chin while finishing the cadenza.

But for some reason the soloist did not develop the tone-volume or the clarity of his playing in the Saint-Saens, excellent though his exposition of the work proved to be.

He rose to the height of his endeavor in his encore, a Chopin "Nocturne," for which Mr. Zach played the piano accompaniment. Against this lighter tonal background, Sala's 'cello sang an entrancing song, warm and luscious, and, by way of pardonable virtuosity, he embellished his presentation with sundry arabesques in the imitation of which few of his contemporaries will assume the hardihood.

Sala would gladly have added another extra, save that Mr. Bach's rule of "one encore only" had to be obeyed. The ready deference which Sunday's audience paid to this stipulation was not an unpleasant factor of the occasion.—St. Louis Globe.

It was the luckiest of windfalls for popular concert goers that a belated train connection held Antonio Sala, Spanish 'cellist, in St. Louis over Sunday a month ago; and that, seeing a street-car advertisement of a "pop" concert, he went to the Odeon, played for Conductor Zach at the end of the program, and was engaged as soloist for yesterday afternoon's Symphony Orchestra concert.

For this unheralded youth of twenty-one years, coming as a gift of chance, gave a performance of such amazing technical perfection, informed with so flaming and poetic genius, as fairly to electrify his hearers.

Those who went with the expectation of hearing merely a proficient performer on the 'cello caught their breath at the first few strokes of Sala's bow, as he began the Saint-Saens "Concerto for Violoncello in A Minor," Op. 33.

They heard the bulkier 'cello become a "show" instrument of violin-like nimbleness; they heard arpeggios race with dazzling velocity and surety from one end of the keyboard to the other. His chanterelle string sang with the vibrant passion of a great contralto voice; and his flageolets, or harmonics, produced with the fleetest facility, were thrilling and resonant, like full tones on the E string of a violin.

But this prodigious skill was only the servant to a temperament of fiery emotional power. So that, at the end of the concerto, the audience, in astounded delight, burst into a storm of applause. As an encore Sala played a Chopin "Nocturne," with Mr. Zach at the piano. His playing was such that even the musicians of the orchestra sat spell-bound, while the audience clamored long and loudly, but in vain, for a second concerto.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch. (Advertisement.)

Reiterman—Mabel Reiterman was accompanist for Mr. and Mrs. M. Ongawa at Oshkosh, Wis., on February 13. They presented their Japanese play, entitled "Along the Road to Tokyo," before the Twentieth Century Club. She will also accompany them at Kankakee, March 3, before the Woman's Club.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. at Gorton School
TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Violin American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

RAOUL BONANNO

Another talented musician who came from Europe this season is Raoul Bonanno, of the Paris Opera, who has decided to make his home in Chicago.

Sig. Bonanno is an Italian and, although a titled man, has devoted his whole life and energies to the development of his musical art. He developed remarkable musical talent in his early youth and first attracted attention when he was a soloist with the Royal Choir of the Capella Palatina, or Choir of the Royal Palace. He decided to follow a musical career and met with such strong opposition on the part of his family that it finally caused a serious breach and the young nobleman departed for Milan to follow out his own inclinations and study music. Later he studied in Paris with de Rezske, Bouhy and Duquanne and also sang with the Paris Grand Opera. He bids fair to become one of the world's greatest baritones.

RAOUL BONANNO

Signor Bonanno has traveled over the whole world and on account of his fondness for the American people has spent much time in America. He says that he is an admirer of the independence of American women and an advocate of woman's suffrage. He, like many other artists, is fond of Chicago and sees for it a great artistic future.

Signor Bonanno is available for concerts and recitals and will accept a limited number of pupils in voice placing and operatic coaching.

He is under the management of J. E. Allen, Fine Arts Building.

Portage, Wis.—A concert was given by the Portage Choral Society at the Presbyterian Church on February 26 by local artists, assisted by Miss Mignon Meeker, of Chicago.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON IN RECITAL

Among the many musical events that took place outside the downtown district of the city last Sunday afternoon, the recital by Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton given at her residence, 5057 Winthrop avenue, should receive more than casual mention, because it was entirely worth while.

In the first place, the program was carefully built from works of some of the best composers, old and new, and furthermore the selections were so arranged as to hold one's interest from start to finish. Many excellent programs are deprived of their effectiveness by poor arrangement.

Another important factor in Mrs. Hamilton's recital was the fine accompanying of Mrs. Grace Kessler. Evidently Mrs. Kessler knows what an accompanist should and should not do and acts accordingly. Her work was skillfully and beautifully done.

The program opened with "Hear Ye" from "Elijah," and was sung with plenty of dramatic spirit.

Then followed compositions of Schubert, Wolf, Bishop, Massenet, Dessuier, Chaminade, Cadman, Laura Drake Harris, Palmer John Clark (these last two Chicago com-

WARREN
PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

posers) and Chadwick. All these were given thoroughly artistic interpretation.

The old English number, "Should He Upbraid," by Bishop, was an especial delight, and showed the brilliancy and flexibility of Mrs. Hamilton's voice to splendid advantage.

Two Spanish songs, "Ouvrez," by Dessuier, and "Spanish Love Song," by Chaminade, were pleasing novelties, being given in Spanish.

"Ode to Night," by Laura Drake Harris, and "Mary Jane" and "Summer Winds," by Palmer John Clark, are entirely worthy of a place on such an excellent program and Mrs. Hamilton did well to include them.

The complete program, which was noted in last week's issue of Music News, was beautifully rendered, and should be of especial value to the vocal students who were privileged to hear it.

After the recital the hospitality of the home was extended to the many guests of the afternoon, refreshments were served, and an exceedingly pleasant social time ensued.

C. J. B.

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

The following recitals will be given at the Bush Temple Conservatory at 8:15:

March 19—Pupils of Charles W. Clark and Lyle Barber, pianist, pupil of Harold von Mickwitz, assisted by Mrs. Lorraine Decker Campbell, soprano.

March 26—Eugene Musser, pianist, pupil of Grace Steward Potter, assisted by Frank Brantley, baritone.

April 2—Earl Victor Prah, pianist, pupil of Julia Rive King, assisted by Rowland Leach, violinist.

CONSTANCE PURDY ALREADY BOOKED FOR NEXT SEASON

The energetic Mabel Hammond, who has the management of Constance Purdy's concert engagements, and who is also the artist accompanist on Miss Purdy's programs, is already making arrangements for 1916. On January 6, 1916, Miss Purdy is booked to give a recital with Tina Lerner at the Woman's Musical Club of Columbus, Ohio. As this club, of which Ella May Smith is president, is one of the most important in the country, the engagement is especially gratifying.

Miss Purdy was recently a visitor in St. Louis, where she sang at a concert given at a convent and immediately returned to New York, where she sang at a musicale, after a most trying experience in traveling.

Miss Purdy is fortunate in having as her associate in her recitals so gifted an artist as Mabel Hammond, who is a native of Worcester, Mass. Miss Hammond's talent comes to her through inheritance, for her mother was a most talented pianist, quite a remarkable woman in every way and always active professionally, being accompanist for the old Mozart Society. Miss Hammond in her early years studied with her mother and then with Clayton Johns and later for three years with MacDowell. Then, going to Paris, she was for a considerable time with Therese Chaigneau and in Harold Bauer's ensemble classes. Miss Hammond graduated from Radcliffe College and is a highly educated woman as well as a most talented musician. She is also a keen critic, judging with unerring discrimination and fairness. As a coach, Miss Hammond has done considerable work and with splendid results, for she is instinctively an artist and one whom it is a pleasure to meet.

Miss Purdy and Miss Hammond will probably open their next season in Chicago with a recital.

—###—

HONORS FOR CHEVALIER FERRATA

Dr. Chev. G. Ferrata, well known composer also of organ music, had bestowed on him by the king of Italy the honor of "Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy." In 1904 Dr. Ferrata was made a Knight of that Order. Between the "Knight" and "Commander" there is an "Officer's" class, but the king of Italy of his own initiative elevated his former subject to the exalted dignity dispensing with the intermediate rank.

Dr. Ferrata has been active as a composer and has not confined himself to any one particular field of composition. Amongst his most successful works are "Night and the Curtains Drawn," a song gaining in popularity every season; "Nocturne" for organ, played frequently by Clarence Eddy, Charles Heinroth of Pittsburgh; Samuel A. Baldwin of New York, and last but not least, his excellent series of violin and piano compositions entitled "Italian Spring Melodies."

Dr. Ferrata has been connected with the Sarah Newcomb College of Music and Tulane University of New Orleans, for about six years.

—###—

Russell School—On Monday evening, March 15, a Pupils' Faculty Recital will be given at the Russell School of Music at Seventy-fifth street and Vincennes road.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

IN BRIEF FORM

Owens—Pupils of H. W. Owens will give a song program at Athenaeum Hall Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

Adler—Miss Lois Adler will present her pupil, Marie Donner, in piano recital at the Little Theater on March 29.

Cosmopolitan School—A pupils' recital will be given on Thursday evening, March 18, at the Auditorium Recital Hall.

Mandy—Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Mandy will present their pupils in a recital at their Oak Park studio on Sunday afternoon.

Dellers—Walter Dellers is to give a series of concerts with his Oak Park Orchestra at the First Congregational Church in that suburb.

Pettinger—Florence Pettinger, dramatic soprano, will sing at the annual banquet of the Iowa State College Alumni, at the Auditorium, March 13.

Van Grove—Sunday, March 14, at 3:30, Mr. Isaac Van Grove, pianist, will give a recital at the Blackstone Theater. He will be assisted by Mr. E. Concialdi, baritone.

Kaun—The Kaun Music Company of Milwaukee have sent out "The Song of Songs" (Melodie), English words by Clarence Lucas, paroles de Maurice Vaucaire, music by Moya.

Langer—Mrs. Ora Padget Langer sang a program for the Chicago South Side Woman's Club at the Swedenborgian Church, Forty-sixth street and Greenwood avenue, on Thursday evening.

Durno—Miss Cecilia Bellaire of the Jeanette Durno studio has been engaged to give a piano recital in Dubuque on March 17. She will give a Chicago recital on April 9 in Thurber Hall.

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone, Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, and Earl Victor Prael, pianist, will give a concert for the Woman's Club of Chicago Heights on Wednesday afternoon, March 10.

Austin—Anna C. Braun, contralto, and Robert R. Birch, organist, will be heard in recital Tuesday evening, March 16, at the Austin Masonic Temple. Mabel E. Woodworth, violinist, will be the assisting artist.

North Shore—Gaul's "Ruth" will be given at the North Shore Congregational Church by the Choral Society on Sunday evening. The soloists will be Ethel Geistweit Benedict, Winnifred McGaw, James Seiler and Julia Dashiell. Sarah Wildman-Osborn will play.

Calumet Choral Society—On Wednesday evening, March 17, the Calumet Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Clemens A. Hutter, will give their St. Patrick's program, in the Midway Hippodrome at Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue. An interesting program has been arranged and a number of soloists will appear.

Temple Emanuel—A special musical service will be given this (Friday) evening at 8 o'clock under direction of Miss Stella Rodin. The soloists will be Naomi Nator, Louise Harrison Slade, Worthe Faulkner, Dr. J. B. Tommenschein, Alice Cramer, Elizabeth Fisher and Thomas McGrannahan.

International Series—The first of the International Series of song recitals will be given at the Auditorium Hotel on Sunday afternoon at 3:30. A Russian program will be given by Alexander Makutin, tenor, assisted by Master Mischa Kottler, pianist.

Civic Music—Sunday, 3:30, Sherman Park, Madrigal Club, under direction of D. A. Clippinger, with Allen W. Bogen at the piano. Hamilton Park, Herbert Butler Orchestra. First Baptist Church, evening, the Civic Music Club under direction of John Allen Richardson; soloists, William Clifford and W. J. Breach.

ARCANGELI
 ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
 300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

A FINE EASTER SONG

In His Pity He Redeemed Us ^{3 Keys--G, F, Eb} (Fifty Cents) Special price 25c

THE FABLE---Piano solo for left hand alone. An excellent pedal piece, with beautiful melodies, outlined by a story (65c). Special price - - - 33c

(At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.)
 By ISABEL STEWART-NORTH PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
 Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
 5407 S. Halsted St. and
 2831 Washington Boul.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
 2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
 1st Alto--Fermelia Newby Gale
 2nd Alto--Haze Hunt
 Director-Accompanist
 TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
 NEW YORK CITY

Mayme E. BolgerACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257CAROLINE E. BUCKLEYCONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts BuildingGLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST---Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163BAILEYANNA AGNES Soprano
HERBERT M. Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET LAWSON MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHN CONCERTSCONTRALTO ORATORIO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319Edith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.Doelling PianistTeacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HART PIANISTCOSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLeo Zelenka - LerandoCONCERT HARPISIT Care of MUSIC NEWSDoris Pfeiffer - MosesVIOLINIST Mezzo-Soprano
1403 E. 68th STREET PHONE HYDE PARK 714Lucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWDALE AVENUEJENNY DUFAU IN CONCERT

Between October 5 and March 1 Miss Jenny Dufau has been giving on an average of two to three concerts a week all over the country. Very nearly half the number of her appearances resulted in re-engagements for next season. Some notices on last week follow:

Last evening, at the Grand Opera House, Keokuk was given a musical treat. Jenny Dufau has been endowed by nature in a lavish manner. She is perfectly at home with French and German. One seldom hears the German so musically interpreted. In the "Polonaise" from "Mignon" the rapid trills, runs and staccato movements were so wonderfully sustained that she was recalled and responded with a number which seemed marvelous in execution after so apparently a trying role as that which preceded it, but she was as fresh and charming as though it were her first number, and her stage presence was most alluring. The recalls were many, and people were loath to leave.—The Daily Constitution-Democrat, Keokuk, Ia., February 26, 1915.

Last evening was given one of the most wonderfully attractive programs ever presented in Keokuk under the auspices of the Monday Music Club.

Mlle. Dufau possesses a coloratura soprano voice of exquisite quality; her vocal purity stands out in bold relief in her exquisite bel canto, displayed most noticeably in her perfect staccato effects; her soaring song electrifies her hearers with its scintillating brilliancy and accuracy. Not often does a single artist enjoy the distinction of being equally successful in both operatic and concert fields—this honor belongs, without question, to Mlle. Dufau.—Clara Gertrude Fry, in the Daily Gate City, Keokuk, Ia., February 26, 1915.

A record-breaking audience gathered to hear Mlle. Jenny Dufau, who made her initial appearance before a Normal and Bloomington audience. Mlle. Dufau is just as successful in concert as she is in opera, and she has quite easily adjusted herself to American concert requirements. She sings the English language as it should be sung, and her enunciation is a telling example of what most of our American singers neglect, namely, clarity in diction. All agree that the supreme art of the singer is to sing herself into the souls of her hearers, and that, in brief, is what Mlle. Dufau did at the concert last Saturday evening. The audience, heterogeneous in its ability to appreciate music in its finer points, was taken by storm, and when the captivating and charming personality had favored with the final encore of the simple and beautiful "Tis the Last Rose of Summer," the audience sat hushed and spell-bound, then the singer was given an ovation that is rarely seen. If Normal or Bloomington is ever again given the opportunity to hear Mlle. Dufau, the management would do wisely to provide a place adequate to the accommodation of the largest crowd ever assembled in either of the cities to hear grand opera singing.—The Pantagraph, Bloomington, Ill., February 28, 1915. (Advertisement.)

Nichols—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Nichols are rapidly filling their open dates for a spring tour. Some of the most important include, the Buffalo Saengerbund Society for a concert, April 19; the Ladies' Club of De-Witt, Ark., for April 23; two engagements at the Spring Festival of the Kansas State Normal, Emporia, Kans., April 27 and 28; one for a joint recital and another for an appearance with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, when Mrs. Nichols will play the "Hungarian Fantasy" by Liszt for piano and orchestra. April 29 Mr. Nichols appears with the Chicago Mendelssohn Club, doing a couple of groups of solos and also singing the tenor part in Hallin's "Before the Dawn" with the club. On March 19 Mrs. Nichols makes her second appearance this season on the Artists' Course at Columbia University, playing a Grieg program. In July Mr. and Mrs. Nichols give a six weeks' course in piano and voice at the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt., (on Lake Champlain).

APPRECIATION OF CECIL FANNING

At the first concert of the season given by the Kentucky branch of the Southern Association of College Women, Lexington, Ky., Cecil Fanning and Mr. Turpin gave the program. The following article concerning Cecil Fanning is taken from the Lexington Herald and was written by Elizabeth Byers:

Brilliant indeed was the concert given last evening at the Ben Ali by that popular baritone, Cecil Fanning. It was but natural under such pleasing circumstances, for this singer and his splendid accompanist to be in the best of moods to bring his most exquisite offerings to his audience.

He must have realized that the entire assembly felt not only distinct sympathy with their work, but a warm feeling of genuine friendship as well, because of their previous visits here. And certainly this condition between artists and audience added much to the evening's pleasure.

A decided point was scored in the first number, the wonderful "I Pagliacci" prologue, when Mr. Fanning sang it in English. It was really, as it was intended to be, an address to the audience. An exquisite encore was "A Song of India," by Rimsky-Korsakow. In the second number we had a beautiful group of varied German songs rising gradually to a superb climax in Loewe's "Der Erlkonig." This was well sung, highly dramatic and appreciated.

Mr. Fanning's style is most pleasing, his interpretation broad in scope and his tones were exquisitely formed. They were rich and deep and pure, with an almost tenor-like clarity in the upper register.

Mr. Turpin's accompaniments were so excellent that the piano and voice seemed one perfectly combined instrument.—(Advertisement.)

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

A song recital will be given by Maude Fenlon Bollman at the Y. W. C. A. this (Friday) evening. She will be assisted by Jeanne M. Boyd, pianist, in the following program:

Come, Ever Smiling Liberty (from Judas Macabaeus)	Handel
Caro Mio Ben (1743-1798)	Giordani
On Wings of Song I'll Bear Thee	Mendelssohn
La Colomba	Tuscan Folk Song
Wir Wandelten	Brahms
Un Jour de Printemps	Bizet
Legacies	Mildred Hill
A Spirit Flower	Campbell-Tipton
The Willow	Goring Thomas
Light
In the Mystic Wood
The Fairy Pool
From "A Child's World"
Dedicated to Mrs. Bollman	Jeanne M. Boyd
Wind from the South
La Larentella
In Italy
The Cuck-Coo Clock	Grant-Schaefer
A Lullaby	Herman
In Lovely Summer	Del' Acqua
A Song Fairy	Bernberg
The Wood Pigeon	Lehmann
Giangui d' Inferno	Mozart

BETHLEHEM, PA.

The tenth Bach Festival will be given at Lehigh University on May 28 and 29, by the Bach Choir of the Bethlehems. The program, as announced this week by Dr. J. Fred Wolle, conductor, will be the "St. John's Passion" on Friday, May 28, at 4 p. m. and 8 p. m., and the "Mass in B Minor" on Saturday, May 29, at 2 p. m. and 5 p. m.

The Bethlehem Bach Festivals have been designated by the Outlook as "the greatest sequence of musical performances in America." Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, is one of the leading guarantors. Dr. H. S. Drinker, president of Lehigh University, is president of the choir.

Celebrated Boston Symphony Orchestra to Give Thirteen Concerts at the Panama Pacific International Exposition

The celebrated Boston Symphony Orchestra will be heard in an extended series of concerts at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition for two weeks during the latter half of the month of May.

The coming to San Francisco of this, the greatest symphonic organization in existence, without question will be the most important musical event of the world during the coming year. The entire series of concerts will be heard in Festival Hall, on the Exposition grounds.

The conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra is the famous Dr. Carl Muck, for many years conductor of Kaiser Wilhelm's Royal Opera, Berlin. Under the magic of the baton of this great master, the 104 musicians composing the orchestra, each one an artist of renown and each a master, chosen from all of the greatest musical organizations of the world, will weave such melodic harmonies as to make of the Exposition City, for the time, the musical capital of the world.

Following the invariable rule of this organization, the full strength of the orchestra of over 100 musicians will be heard during the fortnight of their engagement. In order that they might fill this engagement, it was necessary for Conductor Muck to omit two weeks of popular concerts in Boston. They will come and return to Boston on special trains, making no stops en route in either direction. Thus the only opportunity which the public will have for hearing them between the closing of their seasons of Boston Symphony concerts and the opening of the following season, will be at the Exposition at San Francisco. The supreme excellence of this organization is due largely to the fact that under no circumstances, no matter how far they may travel, has the management ever consented to decrease the full number composing the orchestra. This is the first time that the people of the Pacific slope ever have been given the opportunity of listening to this greatest of orchestras, the organization never before having been further west than Chicago and St. Louis. Repeated attempts in past years on the part of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and other centers to secure Conductor Muck and his melodists have been abortive, owing to the vast sum of money required, and to the fact that the eastern seaboard cities have insisted on monopolizing them.

It is said that it is costing the Exposition management a fabulous sum to secure the presence of the Boston Symphony people for this engagement of two weeks. The Exposition directors, however, took the position that the organization secured ought to be of such superlative merit as to stand on a par with the Panama-Pacific Exposition itself—the greatest in point of cost, comprehensiveness and artistic beauty ever given to the world; and the engagement of the Boston organization—only one of a number of similar triumphs, announcement of which will be made in a few days—was the logical result.

Commenting on this signal achievement, one of the most capable authorities on things musical in America, who is now in San Francisco, yesterday said:

"The Boston Symphony Orchestra is acknowledged throughout the world to be the greatest orchestra that has ever existed. Collectively and individually, it is made up of the best musical ability that can be found in the known world. The leading players of its different sections, year by year, have been brought from Paris, Vienna, Berlin, London, Rome, Buda Pesth and other great centers of music; and in practically every instance, each man secured was the most important musician in his city. It is easily to be seen therefore that the orchestra contains a larger number of virtuosi than any other organization in the world.

"Among the thirty violinists in the orchestra, headed by Anton Witek, the concert master, are such masters as Roth, Hoffman, Rissland, Mahn, Berger and Gerardi. There are ten violas, ten cellos, eight basses, nine horns, four each of flutes, bassoons, trumpets and trombones, and three each of drums, oboes and clarinets, besides harps, tympani, tuba, bass clarinet and an organist and two librarians.

"This orchestra was composed 35 years ago by the man of wealth and culture who still is responsible for its maintenance, Major Lee Higginson, a grandson of the famous aide of Washington, "Light Horse Harry Lee," and one of the little group who on Tuesday were first to send the human voice from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific—at which time, along with President Wilson, he conferred with the Exposition officials. In its early years Major Higginson personally maintained the orchestra, many times with yearly deficits ranging from $50,000 to $75,000. Recently, in order to perpetuate the orchestra, he announced that he had created for it an endowment of $1,500,000.

"At San Francisco the orchestra will be under the leadership of Dr. Karl Muck, who was selected by Kaiser Wilhelm many years ago as the conductor of the Royal Opera in Berlin. Dr. Muck unquestionably stands pre-eminent as the greatest conductor of symphonic music in the world today. Eight years ago, Major Higginson, through his personal acquaintance with the Kaiser, induced him to loan Dr. Muck for two seasons to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. After the conductor's return to Berlin, every influence was brought to bear from year to year to induce him to come permanently to Boston; but not until his contract with the Kaiser terminated was he permitted to return to America. This will be the greatest of many great musical events secured by the management of the Exposition at San Francisco."

— — — — —
Lipschultz—On Sunday afternoon, March 7, George Milton Lipschultz played the Hollaender "Concerto" with the orchestra at the Ballmann concert with fine success.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice
Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SENIOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LAREND

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL
TEACHER Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

D. PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory. Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

Lambert Murphy Recital
Oratorio
Opera

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

MISS ISABEL HAUSER

Miss Isabel Hauser, a reproduction of whose lovely features adorns the front page of this issue of Music News, is a pianist who adds to her distinguished talents as a soloist the far more difficultly-obtained laurels of an ensembliste of rare distinction and devotion; for ensemble playing postulates conscientiousness, tireless energy, the will and the power to subordinate the individual instrument to the complementary instruments. The desire not to outshine but to complete; to merge the lesser individuality of the soloist in the greater individuality of the ensemble; to help in the rounded and complete fusing of a small body of instrumentalists.

Miss Hauser as a member of the Saslavsky ensemble has done much in her own self to help the public to appreciate chamber music. Her audiences have grown to have a finer ear for the offerings of this exquisite genre in music, and the Saslavsky ensemble with Isabel Hauser has become a magnet, an aggregation of artists second to none in drawing powers.

As a pianiste, Miss Hauser takes her art very seriously. She loves it profoundly. Hence the music-lover is well satisfied when she presides at the keyboard.

Aesthetically the connoisseur of the artistic and the beautiful has his pabulum supplied in the winning and attractive picture she creates; for her unerring taste sartorial adorns if it cannot enhance the charms of her personality; the sincerity of her smile; her charms of body and spirit.

Miss Hauser is an ideal hostess, and one concerned unobtrusively with the uplift of society (which needs something beyond functions and cards); she is an artiste of fine sensibilities because she has sought and seeks always the fields of a broadening culture.

Miss Hauser has a fine taste in program-making. We shall know more of this next season, when it is hoped that she will appear frequently in public in her own recitals.

The accompanying picture is a fairly faithful bit of portraiture, but it cannot give anything like an adequate idea of this lady's countenance; which reveals a delightful mobility in the play of her dimples when she smiles. Her fair and rosy complexion cannot even be guessed at in the faithful black and white, nor the changing expression of her large, dark eyes.

Germaine Schnitzer, Soloist with Russian Symphony Orchestra

Saturday, March 6, ushered itself in with a flurry of rain and snow, developing soon into one of the severest storms of the season. By evening walking was a matter of calculation and at night the snow made a wall of itself—the heavens showed lurid and truculent. Of disagreeable nights it was the most disagreeable.

The foyer of Carnegie Hall at 8 p. m. might have been the pavement outside; it ran water and melting snow; men came in looking like Santa Claus, and all the women, even comfortable Mrs. Raphael Joseffy, became engaging snow maidens, with here and there and everywhere the crystalline decorations that were the trail of the tempest, and its miniature trophies.

But the auditorium hinted nothing of the violence of Old Boreas outside. Boxes were comfortably filled; the parquet showed few empty seats and the galleries were filled with the real enthusiasts. The people who adore music; those who never pose, who always use their hands in making the applause which encourages the artist to do his best.

The Russian Symphony Orchestra lives up to its title, and its programs are usually revelations of the treasure in the Czar's country—the country which has lent its inspiration to not a few of contemporary composers to help themselves. Mr. Modest Altshuler, a conductor who appears to live up to the definition of his baptismal, did the music-loving public a service of great value, when he brought forward in orchestral form alone (himself the learned and adept orchestrator) Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunov," an opera which has enjoyed some few productions at the Metropolitan Opera House this and last seasons, without, however, creating much of a stir.

Treated in suite form—sequence upon sequence—the tremendous intrinsic merit of this matchless harmonic structure becomes immediately apparent, and the lover of the symphonic will have enjoyed a treat, withheld from the opera-goer, confused into a belief in the miscellaneous character rather of the Moussorgsky opera, as its scenes pass before his eyes; the singers faintly heard (for the nose and throat operations vocally of course are the rule in an opera house where vocal efficiency and carrying voices have been and are conspicuous by their absence), the orchestral parts an auxiliary in the general operatic misunderstanding.

Here Moussorgsky could reveal himself freed from cluttering obstructions to his contrapuntal scheme; and here one discovered with more than a shade of indignation the sources of the Debussy output—the rea-

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

son for the Frenchman's sudden departure from Gallic conventionality in music; from Gounod, and Massenet and Saint-Saens. (Puccini, even he has not hesitated to profit at third hand by the acquisitiveness of Debussy.) Rimsky-Korsakoff whispered, and lo! Moussorgsky was born anew into a world which failed to recognize him alive.

Also "Pelleas et Melisande," the "Apres midi d'un Faun," the "Chevaux de Bois," and its little sister-songlets, including the "Mandoline," and the Morceaux for the piano, owe themselves to the dead Moussorgsky in whose resurrection one Modest Altschuler is a factor of importance.

Now will some of the gentlemen of the baton who have embraced and espoused Debussy, not widen the sphere of their educational activities to include Mr. Altschuler's orchestration of "Boris Godunow?" Let them mount not the palfreys of Mr. Debussy's "Chevaux de Bois," but the mettled, heaven-ward soaring Pegasus, upon whose heaving body the Russian might have looked down to see a small army of Debussys, cubists and futurists, pushing and striving—himself their remote and unacknowledged founder.

Hats off to Mr. Altschuler.

So much (and not nearly enough) for Mr. Moussorgsky upon his heaven-kissing hill.

Now for the soloist, one Germaine Schnitzer, risen from her sick-bed, a fair, white maiden in fair, white clouds of tulle and crystal, to tryst with another Russian—an acclaimed—Tschaikowsky.

Fair and sweet, Germaine Schnitzer, notwithstanding her physician's wishes—commands—came to the scene of battle to confront her Russian general, and the smiling front hiding his bristling spears and javelins.

The B flat minor Concerto of Tschaikowsky is no prattling mono-toned Debussy—no mere Lisztian fireworks, or Brahms' tier upon tier of storied architecture melted into harmonies.

The Russian is deep and clever—even mocking—under his guise of melodist, and his concerto demands brains as well as body. The flesh and yet the flesh, and yet the spirit too.

Granted a certain amount of endurance, technical dexterity and a familiar acquaintance with the black and white keys, the cock-sure pianist may furnish forth a quite assimilable performance of this celebrated concerto, but to achieve the triumph of an exposition of its poetry as well as its mightiness, demands far more than finger facility and the wish to please.

In selecting Germaine Schnitzer as his soloist for the Tschaikowskian sphinx problem, Mr. Altschuler chose wisely. For this artist has the will to do; the power to execute; the brain capable of analyzing the composer's complexities; his effects to cause and cause to effects.

She has the daring as well as the subtlety—the gift (rare in musicians of any variety; Bonci has it; Bachaus has it; de Pachmann has it) of serious analysis; the abundance of dynamic resources; the digging deep for meanings—the elective as well as the selective force. And these and other delights she bestows upon her hearers.

The prodigious tempo of the last movement—the "Allegro con Fuoco"—must remain as a standard of comparison. (Carreno who played it here last season could not compass it; nor fulminate with the passion

(Continued on page 34)

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

OF the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway

NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist

STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

T
H
U
E
L

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Helen Stanley

SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR

CONCERTS,
RECITAL
ORATORIO

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK

Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOEBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder.
At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius
TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky
The Brooks-Evans Building
Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with Heermann and Sevcik
Have Returned from Europe and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen
TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.
Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts - Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT CONTRALTO
Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

Music in America

KANSAS CITY

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra gave a Wagner program in Convention Hall on Sunday afternoon, February 21. Nine numbers, and all directed from memory—bravo, Mr. Oberhoffer! Furthermore, we read in Mrs. Van Kirk's interesting article from Minneapolis that every symphony given this season by the Minneapolis Orchestra has been directed by Mr. Oberhoffer from memory. It is enough to make one marvel. It was a great treat to hear the orchestra in Kansas City. The following was the program:

WAGNER PROGRAM

Introduction to Third Act and Bridal Chorus, from "Lohengrin"
Overture to "Rienzi"
Prelude to "Lohengrin"
Walther's Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger"
Violin—Richard Czerwonky
Overture to "Tannhauser"
Ride of the Valkyries from "Die Walkure"
Prelude and Liebestod, from "Tristan and Isolde"
Good Friday Spell, from "Parsifal"
Violin—Richard Czerwonky
Finale from "Das Rheingold" (Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla)

The "Lohengrin" music was given a splendid interpretation, and the familiar "Tannhauser" overture, with its religious motif predominating, was carefully played. The popular "Ride of the Valkyries" was a brilliant number; one could well see the goddesses on their winged steeds and hear the "Ho-yo-to-ho." In the poetical "Tristan and Isolde" music and in the finale from "Das Rheingold" the orchestra did its best work. Richard Czerwonky, in two numbers, delighted the audience. His tone work is exquisite.

Kansas City is indebted to Miss Myrtle Irene Mitchell, energetic and generous manager, who brought the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra here.

The second concert of the Kansas City String Quartet series, with Mr. Moses Boguslawski, pianist, as assisting artist, was given at the Grand Avenue Temple, February 8. The members of the quartet are Henri Shostac, first violin; Ray Shostac, second violin; Hans Peterson, viola, and Alfred Buch, cello. With such a quartet, each member being an artist, we may expect a very remarkable performance.

This program was given:

Quartet, E flat, No. 14.....W. A. Mozart
Allegro ma non troppo
Andante con moto
Menuetto
Allegro vivace
Quintet, Op. 44.....R. Schumann
Allegro brillante
In modo d'una Marcia
Scherzo
Allegro ma non troppo
Quartet—Cinq Novellettes.....A. Glazounow
Alla Spagnuola
Orientale
Interludium in modo antico
Valse
All' Ungherese

The Mozart "E Flat Quartet" is an interesting one, the allegro making an excellent opening number for an evening of music. The melodious andante is a real gem, and was played in a truly poetical way. The Schumann "Quintet" was splendidly handled, the scherzo being especially brilliant. The "Novellettes," by Glazounow, were pleasing. The interesting airs in the "Orientale" were marked in a fascinating way. Perhaps the best of these five numbers is the "All' Ungherese," and it was played with fitting decision and brilliancy by the quartet.

The next concert of this organization will be March 22, when the assisting artists will be Mrs. Carl Busch, pianist, and Mr. Carl Busch, viola.

h h h

A musicale and reception given to Professor W. H. Leib, who is retiring from active work in Kansas City and expects to make his home in the Ozarks, was given at the Grand Avenue Temple last week. Professor Leib came to our city in 1885, and has been a man of great influence in musical circles. His voice is a lyric tenor, and even today is true and sweet. It was a real pleasure to hear him sing some of old-time favorites, with which he has charmed audiences so many times in the past. Other numbers on the program were part songs, duets, quartets and chorus work given by some of the best singers of our city, who united in the endeavor to show that the work of Professor Leib as a singer, as a teacher and as director of the Choral Club and Oratorio Society, has been appreciated by everyone in Kansas City. Also, there was a violin solo by Miss Norma Troje, an organ solo by Mr. Powell Weaver, and a piano solo by Miss Geneve Lichtenwalter.

We regret that Professor Leib is leaving us, but rejoice to think that the Ozarks are not far away, and he can be often in our midst.

h h h

The recital given in the Studio Building by Miss Winifred Repp, soprano, assisted by Miss Geraldine Shepard, pianist, was an affair of interest. Miss Repp has a well-placed voice, and sang with style. Her stage presence is pleasing. Her songs were a group of Italian songs, most notable of which was Mimi's song from "La Boheme" (Puccini), followed by a group of French songs and another group in English. Her singing of Sanderson's "Awakening of Spring" was particularly good. She was accompanied by her teacher, Mrs. Jennie Schultz, who is an accompanist par excellence.

Geraldine Shepard played the "D Minor Concerto" by Mendelssohn, with orchestral parts on the second piano played by Miss Geneve Lichtenwalter. Miss Shepard is an industrious and gifted young pianist, whom it is always a pleasure to hear.

h h h

At the second concert of the Schubert Club, February 18, Miss Maggie Teyte was the assisting artist. She is a most charming singer and a generous one too, singing some twenty songs during the afternoon, half of which were French. Probably no one can sing the French chansons in more delightful manner than Maggie Teyte.

The Schubert Club, under the able direction of Clarence Sears, showed progress in choral work. In "The Death of Mighty Pan" the Club was perhaps at its best.

h h h

Felice Lyne will give a concert here the first of March. It will be her only appearance here this season.

h h h

At the next concert of our own symphony orchestra, to be given on the first Tuesday of March, the Saint-Saens "C Minor Symphony" will be played. We will also have the opportunity to hear a new symphonic poem by Carl Busch, "Minnehaha's Vision."

h h h

Miss Lucile Vogel has opened a studio in the Studio Building and will take advanced piano pupils. Miss Vogel comes to us after several years abroad, where she studied with the masters of pianoforte playing. She recently played with the Forbes String Quartet the following program:

Twenty-one Variations Brahms-Haendel
Piano Quintet.....Cesar Franck
"Eugen Onegin" Paraphrase.....Pabst-Tschaikowsky
Piano Concerto in E Minor.....Chopin

We are looking forward with great pleasure to a recital to be given here in March by Rudolph Ganz, pianist, and Helen Ware, violinist and interpreter of Hungarian music.

—ARY H. FLAGG.

311 Studio Building.

SAINT PAUL, MINN.

The program of the sixth evening concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, under the St. Paul Institute auspices, at the Auditorium, was largely given over to the soloist, John McCormack. It was a great audience that assembled to hear John McCormack and though the orchestra itself should have the patronage at these concerts without depending to so great an extent on the soloist, it was inevitably manifest what the drawing powers are of the name of John McCormack.

Mozart's overture to "The Magic Flute" opened the program and the wonderful D Minor Symphony of Cesar Franck's with its triumphant note and themes so beautifully wrought, left us with a desire to hear it again. After the intermission McCormack sang "Che gelida Manina," from Puccini's "La Boheme." The Irish Rhapsody by Stanford followed and the program closed with Irish songs, sung as only McCormack can sing them. Edwin Schneider was the accompanist.

h h h

Plymouth Congregational

Society was well represented at the Plymouth Congregational Church on the occasion of the farewell recital given by Elizabeth Rothwell-Wolff, with Walter Henry Rothwell, the former conductor of the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, in the role of accompanist. A most interesting program was enjoyed by the large audience and Mr. Rothwell played accompaniments. Mrs. Rothwell was never more enjoyed, especially in the aria, "One Fine Day," from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," sung as an encore. Many floral tributes were received and the recital was one to be remembered.

Alma Peterson, soprano; Bessie Parnell-Weston, pianist; and Katherine Hoffman, accompanist, gave the program at the Saint Paul Hotel, the evening of February 13, before an audience which would have been larger had the weather permitted.

Miss Peterson sang the scene for "Michaëla" from Bizet's "Carmen," with which she was to have made her debut with the Chicago Grand Opera Company last fall.

Mrs. Hoffmann played artistic accompaniments.

Bessie Parnell Weston, pianist, was never heard to better advantage. Her brilliant success is due in a measure to the developing and broadening of her powers under Rudolph Ganz. She has an admirable technique and played with finish and an authority that was commanding. The Brahms "Rhapsody," Op. 72, No. 2, she played nobly and finely.

Marie McCormick, with Katherine Hoffman, accompanist, and Mary Keegan, pianist, gave a recital at the Church Club. Miss McCormick has broadened noticeably in her art since her last appearance here. Her beautiful soprano voice was heard to distinct advantage in her admirable singing of Brahms "Wiegenlied" and "Standchen." French, English and Irish songs were beautifully sung, the program closing with a Scotch song by Leopold Bruenner, "Bonnie Doon," which was well received.

Miss Keegan, pianist, gave an admirable performance of Chopin's "Twelfth Etude" and MacDowell's "Brook."

Albert Lindquist, the Chicago tenor, appeared in concert with the Arpi Male Chorus at the Central Presbyterian Church. He sang a group of Swedish songs and later one of English.

Christine Chindblom, pianist of Chicago, played two groups with excellent finish. Notably fine was her playing of the Paganini-Liszt "Campanella." The Arpi Chorus sang delightfully.

The last meeting of the Minnesota Chapter of the American Guild of Organists was a dinner at the new House of Hope Church, a most enjoyable feature of which was the singing of the Apollo Quartet, made up of the following well known singers, Harry E. George, Walter Mallory, Karl Larson and Grant Kelliher. After the dinner Mrs. Harry Crandall, organist of the church, gave a short organ recital and Dr. Henry Swearingen, minister of the church, gave a most interesting talk on the symbolism of the church architecture.

The second organ recital in the series at the House of Hope Church was given by Mr. George H. Fairclough.

Mr. Thomas McCracken, tenor, was soloist, and his numbers were beautifully sung. Mrs. Harry W. Crandall was an admirable accompanist.

Of the representative organists of California and the Pacific Coast, Middle West and East, who have been engaged to play at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, it is interesting to note that Mr. G. H. Fairclough of St. Paul has been engaged for a series of organ recitals in Festival Hall.

The Charity Musicales at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hill was an artistic success, enjoyed by a fashionable audience of some 200 people. About $1,000 was raised for the benefit of the poor in St. Paul. The finely appointed ball room, with its splendid three-manual Aeolian, furnished a charming background for those who took part. The program was given by Louis Shawe, baritone; Mrs. F. L. Paetzold, soprano; George A. Thornton, organist; and Katherine Hoffman, accompanist.

MYRTLE WEED.

TWENTIETH YEAR

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Earnest students developed and carried through a most comprehensive course of study, leading to a degree

HARMON H. WATT, ELEANOR F. GODFREY, Directors
304 South Wabash Avenue, Kimball Hall Chicago, Illinois

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President
Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Phone Drexel 8165

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE OWMAR RICKETTS

JANET MILLER

A REMARKABLE LITTLE PIANIST

Miss Viola Cole, whose studio is in the Fine Arts Building, and who is herself a pupil of Harold Bauer, presented on Tuesday evening a young pupil, Miss Janet Miller, in a very remarkable piano program.

Janet is a very small girl, so small that her feet do not come anywhere near the floor when she is seated on the piano stool, and she can use the pedals (which she does very adroitly) only with the aid of a clever contrivance which brings them a foot or so nearer the keyboard.

Her musical gift is astonishing, her style is remarkable and the real musical feeling she displays would do credit to a veteran.

Miss Cole has rare skill in teaching children and splendid taste in selecting programs.

Reviving the old tradition that Bach expected all players to elaborate his simpler clavier scores, Miss Cole teaches this art in her appreciation classes, and there Janet Miller has shown her great talent.

The program of Tuesday contained a Bach march in D Major, the harmony for which had been composed by Janet in the children's harmony class.

Also, Poldini's "Music Box" and Lack's "Le Chant du Ruisseau" were given in arrangements made especially for Janet Miller by Miss Cole, and in the latter case a second piano part was supplied very skillfully by the teacher.

The little pianist opened her program with a number of Schumann pieces, excellently sensed, and beautifully played.

Bach was splendid in her hands, especially the "Invention in F."

Durand's "Pomponnette," played with remarkable rhythmic surety, and Poldini's "Music Box," tossed off with fine abandon, both had to be repeated, and a "Pastorale," by Mozart, contained real musical feeling and pure musical tone.

The Lack piece was played with great poise and musical feeling.

At the close of the program Miss Janet was given a genuine ovation and literally buried in flowers.

Miss Gertrude Cole was announced to sing, but on account of illness, Miss Myrtle Lawson, pupil of Kirk Towns, was substituted.

Through a series of contretemps her accompanist did not arrive, and therefore her announced aria by Massenet, and songs by Bemberg and Tosti could not be given. She

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News.

afforded a great treat, however, with Carrie Jacobs Bond's "Little Pink Rose," a song which is effective any time or place.

She played the accompaniment herself and sang sweetly and sincerely. C. E. W.

RADANOVITS STUDIO

The following engagements have been filled this week by the professional pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits:

Isabel Richardson, soprano, Lake View Musical Society, March 8.

Hattie L. Mann, lyric coloratura soprano, at the Baron Hirsch Society March 10.

Augusta Mecker gives a recital in Austin March 10.

Margaret Lester recital at the Fine Arts Studio Recital Hall March 11.

The next studio recital will be given by Artur Platz and Isabel Richardson March 25.

PROGRAM OF ILLINOIS COMPOSITIONS

On Illinois Composers' Day at the Millard Avenue Woman's Club on March 5, the following interesting program was given:

Piano—
Mazurka	Selected
Selected	Ethel R. Dickson
Songs—
Oh, Joy	Helena Bingham
Selected	Miss Eleanor Goudy
Songs—
The Quest	Eleanor Smith
A Perfect Day	Carrie Jacobs Bond
	Mrs. George Adams McGaw
Violin—
Adoration	Felix Borowski
Humoreske	Felix Borowski
Mazur	Felix Borowski
	Robert Louis Barron
Songs—
Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes	Carpenter
If You Would Love Me	MacDermid
Flower Rain	Schneider
	Mrs. Cora McAllister Knapp
Songs—
Ashes of Roses	Cole
Slumber Boat	Gaynor
	Millard Avenue Woman's Club Chorus
Songs—
May Time	Arthur Olaf Andersen
The Gypsy	Merle Kirkman
	Mrs. Clara Stenger Gamble
Violin—
Melody	Dawes
Dance of the Sylphs	Maurice Goldblatt
Butterfly	Maurice Goldblatt
	Robert Louis Barron
Song—
Illinois	Millard Avenue Woman's Club Chorus

MR. JAN BLOMQUIST IN SONG RECITAL

Mr. Jan Blomquist, a member of the faculty of the Chicago Conservatory, who made several successful appearances in Europe last summer, will give a song recital at Belmont Hall, Belmont and Clark streets, on next Wednesday evening, March 17. He will be assisted by Beatrice Van Loon, an opera singer; Hans Hess, cellist, and Frank Ernst, pianist, in a very attractive program.

Zaring—Mrs. Irene Belden Zaring was organist at the dedicatory exercises of the North Shore Methodist Episcopal Church when a new Hinners organ (Pekin, Ill.) was dedicated also. Her numbers included "Fanfare Triumphale" (Dubois), "Grand Chorus" (Guilmant), "Grand Choeur" (Spence), "Harmonie du Soir" (Karg-Elert) and "March in C" (Purcell-Mansfield). Miss Edith Maldwyn Jones sang the offertory solo. On Sunday evening, March 14, Mrs. Zaring will give an organ recital preceding the service.

Correction—Music News inadvertently stated in its Omaha letter that Marie Yard of that city had been chosen as understudy for "Conscience" in the morality play, "Everywoman." As a matter of fact, Miss Yard was selected to fill the role of "Conscience," as is told in a clipping from the Omaha press printed elsewhere in this issue of Music News.

Sinai Temple—Sunday, March 14, Miss Lucile Stevenson, soprano, will be the soloist with the orchestra at Sinai Temple.

ARTHUR UHE

The following is from the Lindsborg Record:

The first number on the program was a double selection of Professor Uhe, his offerings being "Largo," Handel, and "Perpetuum-Mobile," Reinhardt, with piano accompaniment by Arvid Wallin. So much has been said in praise of our new instructor in violin, in these columns and elsewhere, that we fear what we would attempt now would be a mere repetition, and shall therefore desist. We have often heard it said by those of authority that there can be no doubt but that in a very few years Professor Uhe will be considered as among this country's greatest violinists. We had hardly dared deem this possible, but after his magnificent performance of last Monday evening we confess ourselves capable of believing anything predicted for him—even that his playing will soon rival that of the renowned Ysaye.

The following is taken from the press of one of the leading Kansas towns:

At the close of "The Morning of the Year," Mr. Uhe favored the delighted audience with two more wonderful selections, "Air on G String" (Bach) and "Prelude and Allegro" (Pugnani-Kreisler). The stamp of genius and of talent lies on him, who, in doing whatever he does, does so with all his heart and soul, loses all consciousness of that about him and gives forth the best within him. He who can do this is a master. Never have we seen a performer so wrapped up, so entirely given over to playing his last selection. It was a revelation, a veritable inspiration. After this last selection, Mr. Uhe was applauded so roundly that he was compelled to respond to an encore, which he did in a very gracious manner.

Mr. Uhe has the largest violin class ever maintained at Bethany College, with students from California, Texas, New York, Illinois and other states.

After his recent appearance before the Wichita Convention, Mr. Uhe received the following letter:

Mr. A. Uhe,
Lindsborg, Kans.

Dear Mr. Uhe:

The president of the K. S. M. T. A. has appointed you a member of the Committee on Violin Standards, of which Mr. C. A. Preyer is chairman. The Executive Committee hope you will be willing to serve, but if for any reason it is impossible, kindly notify the secretary at once, before the new stationery is printed.

Yours truly,
ALBERT O. ANDERSON.

(Advertisement.)

Clark—Charles W. Clark will give a song recital at the Illinois Theater, March 28.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH

Sunday evening, March 7, the choir of St. Peter's Church, under the direction of Herbert Hyde, presented Stainer's cantata, "The Daughter of Jairus." The men and boys' choir at St. Peter's Church are in splendid trim, and it is safe to predict that their renditions for the coming musical evenings will be of especial interest. The cantata was sung with a splendid quality and wealth of tonal color that was very satisfactory. The chorus numbers were very effectively sung. The "Wailing," written for women's voices, was beautifully done, as was the recitative and chorus, "Awake, Thou That Sleepest." The tenors and basses, representing the chorus of unbelievers, acquitted themselves with distinction. The soprano soloist of the evening was Master George Johnson, and as this was his first attempt, much credit is due him, for he sang well and his voice is very pleasing. He gave his solo numbers with much assurance and in the duet with Mr. Ahlberg, tenor, they made a deep impression. Mr. Ahlberg has a lyric voice of good quality and his singing was very commendable, as was the work of Mr. Middleton, bass.

Mr. Hyde presided at the organ throughout the evening and he gained some splendid effects, and the accompaniments for the soloists might well be taken as models in organ accompanying.

Sunday evening, March 14, Buck's "Story of the Cross" will be given, and March 21, "Olivet to Calvary," by Maunders, will be presented. H. W. P.

AUSTIN, ILLINOIS

"Hansel and Gretel" was most charmingly given by Miss Tarrant and Miss Votaw at the Austin Masonic Temple Monday afternoon, March 8, as the closing program of the music department of the Woman's Club of Austin, Mrs. M. V. Hinshaw, chairman.

The voices blended perfectly and their work was very artistic, especially in the prayer.

Miss Alice Kent, as interpreter, was most graciously received, and great credit is due Miss Lathrop for her excellent work as accompanist.

There were about five hundred ladies in attendance.

C. E. WRIGHT,
Department Secretary.

REED MILLER AND NEVADA VANDER VEER

These artists have just had a splendid success as soloists with the Rubinstein Club in Washington.

They both appeared on March 4 in "Stabat Mater," in New York; on the 15th will sing in recital at Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; on tour in the south the last ten days of April; May 21, Keene, N. H., festival; 27, Montpelier, Vt.

Mr. Miller will appear in "Mors et Vita" with the Cathedral Choir of New York on March 14, as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on March 31 and April 1, and with the Handel and Haydn Society in Boston on the 14th and 15th.

EDWARD V. EHRHARDT

Some recent press comment:

Mr. Ehrhardt certainly possessed the physique and technic, his performance being highly pleasing.—Mt. Pleasant Daily News. (Advertisement.)

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—A piano teacher with south side pupils to join faculty of a music school; address Room 10, 6255 Kimbark av.; phone Hyde Park 2885.

FOR SALE—Small music store, consisting of pianos, musical instruments and sheet music; no opposition; present location 14 years. 1851 W. Madison st.

WANTED—Studio time immediately. Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 regularly. Address C, Music News.

YOUNG lady with musical education desires position with a music studio or private instructor as assistant in reception room. Address E. C. Dalquist, 811 North Parkside avenue, or Phone Austin 5831.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
SOPRANO ORATORIO RECITALS
Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO

CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
612 Fine Arts Building Phone Garfield 5007

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

Estella Neuhaus is an artist of rare ability—
New York Herald.

FINE ARTS THEATER

Monday Afternoon, March 22
at three o'clock

Second Private Subscription Recital by

NEUHAUS

THE EMINENT PIANIST

Tickets Two Dollars and a half each,
Admitting Two Persons, of

J. H. CLIFFORD, 2110 Seminary Avenue

STEINWAY PIANO USED, Courtesy of Lyon & Healy
Mistress of the keyboard, poetic to a degree in her expression.
—Los Angeles Times.

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

Raoul S. Bonanno BARI-TONE

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phon. Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE · PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Ph e Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

SAN FRANCISCO

The following interview with Clarence Eddy is taken from the San Francisco Chronicle, for which it was written by Walter Anthony:

"I congratulate the people of San Francisco," said Clarence Eddy, "on the possession of a brilliant and important concert organ which is one of the largest in the world, and my pleasure in felicitating your city is heightened by the thought that from Festival Hall this instrument will pass permanently into the Civic Auditorium, where I earnestly hope the acoustics will be as favorable to tone as they are in Festival Hall."

Clarence Eddy has probably "opened" more organs than any other living man and his knowledge of the mechanics of the instrument is fortified by an experience during which his hair has become gray, though his feet are as agile, seemingly, as the pedal extremities of Ruth St. Denis or Mrs. Douglas Crane.

Since no organist or musician would quarrel with Mr. Eddy's judgments as to the obvious mechanics of a pipe organ, I thought it decent to ask a pointed question.

"What," I said, "is the matter with the organ in Festival Hall as it now stands?"

"Nothing," said he. "It is a brilliant organ, prompt as lightning to the touch, as elastic as a hand clasp and the action of the 'swell' is precision itself."

By the "swell" is meant, patient reader, that part of a pipe organ which adjusts dynamics to the gusty moods of the composer. A pianist pounds when he wants a sudden climax. An organist opens the "swell" behind which are the pipes which sing softly or noisily, according to the disposition of the shutters which surround them.

"Is not the organ lacking in refinement?" I asked, seeking to draw more enthusiasm.

"On the contrary," said this expert on pipe organs, "if there is a radical fault to be found with the instrument, from my point of view, it is over-refined. Much money has been spent in providing the lighter 'stops,' which are infinite in number and variety of tone color.

"The 'voicing' is also artistic to the highest degree and the character of the orchestral instruments which are the models of the organ, has been nicely reproduced."

"Still," I insisted, "there is something in the organ that I miss. It is not of the character, let us say, of the organ that thundered and rumbled and glowed at St. Ignatius before the fire."

Thereupon Mr. Eddy grew confidential and told me what I had been trying to hear.

"There is no intrinsic fault in the organ at Festival Hall," said he. "It is a great organ, and one of the noblest I have ever played upon. Vocally it needs more diapason. A big scale eight-foot diapason is missing on the 'great organ,' and another large scale 'stentophone' should be installed in the solo organ."

A "stentophone" is stentorian and noble, like a "diapason," which is the foundation of all organ tone, and which differentiates the pipe organ from the orchestra.

According, then, to Clarence Eddy, dean of American organists and fellow of any man who ever sat at a console from Bach to Lemare, our pipe organ needs only a few more pipes. Otherwise it is perfect and complete. It needs an "eight-foot tone" to balance the sixty-four-foot tone that now thunders and rumbles against the melody of the smaller pipes.

"This correction," said Eddy, "is the more important since the organ is going to be placed, I understand, in the Civic Auditorium, where the area is much greater and the need is likewise greater that the organ be provided with fundamental, carrying diapason tone."

Since Clarence Eddy came all the way from Paris to dedicate the organ at St. Ignatius Church, he has felt himself a member of our musical family, and was reluctant even to suggest that the organ in Festival Hall needed anything to make it perfect.

"I really think," he said, "that the American builders of pipe organs now lead the world. We have the inventive genius and we have had the advantage of the experiments of Europe. Bach's influence remains supreme, the French have added a note from the orchestra and an emotional feeling for organ music; the English have added color and America has taken the nobility of Bachian fugue, the orchestral effects of the French and the flexibility of the English organ and the resultant is the greatest organ built today.

"Personally I believe that the 'colorist' is the only organist. By 'colorist' I mean a man who 'orchestrates' as he plays. It is in the wealth of instrumental effect that the organ demonstrates its right to be called 'the king of instruments.' And there are, indeed, very few good colorists. I consider Edwin Lemare, who is coming soon to play on this organ, one of the few splendid colorists."

Only two hours were required by Eddy to familiarize himself with the manifold possibilities of instrumentation that are latent in the pipe organ at Festival Hall. This ease was due, he says modestly, to the fact that the organ has been designed to lend itself to the best conventions of organ playing anywhere. It is not "freakish." I prefer to assert, however, that Clarence Eddy has within him that which expresses itself in combinations of tone and color possible only on the pipe organ. He is a Guerin for color and a Whistler for design.

— # # # —

SANTA BARBARA

A varied and interesting program was given by George H. Normington, assisted by Miss Ruby Kathryn McCarmel, vocalist, Sunday, February 21. The two numbers of greatest beauty and deserving of the highest praise from the standpoint of interpretation were "Spring Song," by Alfred Hollins, and "Gavotte" ("Mignon"), by Thomas. "Variations on an American Air," by Flagler, proved elaborate, while Gounod's "Imperial March" (introducing "America") was interesting and enjoyable. Miss McCarmel sang "Rosary," by Nevin, and "Over the Stars There Is Rest," by Franz Abt.

The Music Study Club's program, given before the Woman's Club, brought forth several numbers of worth and two numbers which were a distinct surprise. A chorus of sixteen voices, brought into existence during the past two months, and under the excellent leadership of Mrs. Helen Manhee Barnett, sang "Italian Serenade," by Frederick Stevenson, with baritone solo by Mr. Crowther, "The Reverie," by Josef Rheinberger, and "Old Mammy's Sleepy Song," by Cornelia J. Thompson. The delicacy of shading, the beauty of expression and the finish which characterized these numbers were almost unbelievable in an organization so new, and spoke volumes for the thorough musicianship of Mrs. Barnett. This fact was further emphasized by her singing of "How Nearly I Was Sleeping," from "Der Freischütz." Other numbers on the program were "The Nightingale and the Star" (Victor Herbert), by Mrs. Hazel L. Hummel; quartet from "Hawthorne and Lavender" (Fanny S. Knowlton), by Mrs. Lapham, Mrs. Heimerl, Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Bliss; cornet solos, "Evening Star" (Wagner), "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling" (Bohn), by Miss Esther McKee; "Butterfly Time" (Vernon), and "Boat Song" (Ware), by Mrs. Audrey Turner Lapham; and a violin duet, "Celeste Aida" (Verdi), by Mrs. Edna L. Bliss and Mrs. Helen R. Heimerl.

A. B.

— # # # —

ISABEL STEWART NORTH

The members of the Musical America Club and the Music Study Club, all being pupils of Mrs. Isabel Stewart North, met at her home on Saturday evening. The program was a delightful one. The participants, who were all workers of much promise, revealed intelligent perceptions of the import of the compositions rendered and elicited enthusiastic praise from all present. Mrs. North gave the second part of the program, playing with emotional fervor and rich warmth of tone. She closed the program with her own piano novelty, "The Fable," for the left hand alone.—(Advertisement.)

CHARLESTON, VA.

In reviewing the happenings of the past month the Elks Minstrels probably stands out more prominently in our minds than any other. This is an annual affair wrought out by local talent, coached and presented by representatives of a company of organizers of that class of entertainment, and is usually a very popular event. This year's production was in no way behind that of previous offerings, except in point of date, and the brethren made a nice little sum, the organizers earned their salaries, the boys had lots of fun, and the public paid the bills and enjoyed the show.

The Cambridge Players appeared at the Stephenson Auditorium (Y. M. C. A.) under the auspices of the Philathea Societies, in a program of music and dramatic readings of much merit. The company is composed of Misses Granger, Miller and Harrison and Mr. Jesse Coffey. Three scenes from "Hamlet," an old English comedy, "My Miller's Bill," and Barrie's "The Twelve Pound Look," were among the numbers presented.

The Mason Quartet, too, which at one time gave great promise of becoming a well and favorably known institution, but which has not been in evidence for some time, was heard again at a benefit concert at the Plaza Theater, Sunday afternoon, February 7. Mr. W. S. Mason was the violin soloist, playing the "Thais" Meditation and Kreisler's "Liebesfreud." Mrs. Matilda Reddington Mason also sang several numbers.

Several minor events of mainly local importance have been staged, but little was heard of the results, effects, etc. Good reports came to us from Huntington, however, of the Carnival at Marshall College. Among the musical programs, a minstrel show and a musical comedy, "made, concocted and produced at home," were particularly well spoken of. Mr. Earle V. Townshend had charge of the former and Mr. C. E. Hawthorn wrote and developed the latter. "Medea," the classic Greek drama, was leading feature of the fair.

Here in Charleston, at the Burlew Opera House on Friday, the 26th, afternoon and night, the members of Beni-Kedem (Shrine) Patrol gave their first attempt at an amusement enterprise. Assisted by the Charleston Choral Club in Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury," and several local people of histrionic and terpsichorean ability, etc., they gave a very creditable vaudeville bill. Lack of space prevents a detailed account; the "Trial by Jury" was the "headliner," however, and evoked much favorable comment.

As yet the Lenten season does not seem to be influencing affairs, one way or the other, and another week will bring yet more news of interest. J. HENRY FRANCIS.

JEANNE M. BOYD

"In Italy," by Jeanne Boyd, has been accepted by the Gamble Hinged Music Company and will shortly be on sale. Arthur Platz sang a number of the Boyd songs at the First Presbyterian Church in Wilmette on last Friday evening. A musical sketch by Jeanne M. Boyd, entitled "My Divinity," was produced at Christian College, Columbia, Mo., on March 1, at Carthage College, Carthage, Ill., February 2, and at Iowa City, Ia., February 24. Press notices from all these places are very favorable.

CINCINNATI, OHIO

The Cincinnati Matinee Musical held a most interesting meeting on Wednesday, February 24. Local talent provided the program for the day and all assisting were most graciously received. The musicale was held in the parlors of the Gibson house.

The Symphony Orchestra under Dr. Kunwald gave the public a magnificent program on Friday and Saturday, the 26th and 27th of February, respectively. Miss Florence Hinkle was the soloist on this occasion and as heretofore proved herself a great and worthy artist. Her singing of Bruch's "Cross of Fire," a rather mediocre composition, became a masterpiece through her wonderful attributes of voice and style. Her tone is exquisite, her poise wonderful and I consider Miss Hinkle one of the leading sopranos of the musical world today.

Gatty Sellers, the English organist, gave two performances in Cincinnati last week. Mr. Sellers did not seem to have an exceptional impression of his ability as an organist.

A vocal recital given by the pupils of L. Drew Mosher at Cable Hall, Thursday, the 25th, proved a great success. The sextet which closed the program received many deserving recalls which only its repetition satisfied.

Miss Louie Webber, a beautiful young contralto, and Mr. Raymond Baker, bass of exceptional promise, will sing the solo parts in Kernochan's "Foolish Virgins," at Aurora, Ind., the 14th of March.

Madame Dotti of the College of Music presented a number of her pupils in recital at the Odeon on Tuesday evening, March 2. The students were well received and sang with much musical expression.

The success of the performers who so well merited praise on the 10th of February in recital at Cable Hall under the direction of Mr. L. Drew Mosher, when the main feature of the program was Liza Lehmann's "In a Persian Garden," will have the opportunity of repeating this program on the 17th of March, when the Hyde Park Business Men's Club has engaged them. The performers will be Miss Frances Drew Mosher, pianist; Bernice Carl Eller, violinist; Florence Teal, soprano; Carolyn Dunn, contralto; W. E. Smith, tenor; E. A. Prentice, baritone; Olinda Voss Mosher, accompanist. L. D. M.

LA GRANGE, ILLINOIS

The entertainment given at Mrs. C. P. Clark's Wednesday, February 17, served a triple purpose, the dime "birthday social," valentine party and memorial, it being the anniversary of the Heavenly birthday of Frances Willard, the beloved leader of the W. C. T. U. movement so many years. About fifty ladies were present, members and their friends. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flowers, hearts and valentines. The following delightful program was given under the supervision of Miss Ella Clark:

Organ—
Communion Baptiste
Offertoire Read
Ella Clark

Vocal—
Philosophy Emiel
To My First Love Sherman
Mrs. Frank Vorhees

Words of greeting and presentation of certificate of Cook county W. C. T. U. life membership to Mrs. C. P. Clark by the president, Mrs. Watts.

Vocal—
Life's Garden Carrie Jacobs Bond
Supposing Bischoff
Mrs. G. W. Booth

Piano—Magic Fire Scene Wagner
Ella Clark

Vocal—
The Borden Marden Fraser
After Water Robert Burns

Reading—The Sign of the Cross Quo Vadis
Olive Cota

Vocal—
Japanese Love Song Thomas
The Chrysanthemum Salter

Accompanist, Miss Clark.
Remarks on "Peace and Peace Flag"
Mrs. T. R. Fleming
—La Grange Citizen.

— # # # —

Potter—Miss Grace Potter has the following piano recital engagements: March 1, Madison, Wis.; 5, Rockford, Ill.; 10, St. Paul, Minn.; 11, Minneapolis, Minn.; 15, Moline, Ill.; Waterloo, Ia., and Decatur, Ill., to follow. Later in the spring Miss Potter goes east for a two weeks' tour.

— # # # —

Wycoff—Eva Emmet Wycoff, soprano, gave a recital of French songs for the Modern Music Society in New York on February 9, and has had several engagements recently in programs devoted exclusively to American songs. She will be in the west in April.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

and energy of Germaine Schnitzer.) It was carried through in this whirlwind tempo without a tremor, accelerated to the immensity of the thunderous climax.

The opening of this concerto is immediately exhilarating. It thrills the spinal column. Its chords must ring out true yet wild. Mme. Schnitzer attacked them big, broad, flung-out to the winds of heaven as they should be; and, as the composer desires and asserts, with majesty; with the martial dignity and assurance of an Amazonian queen.

It is given to few women to compass upon the technical side this gorgeous display of force regulated by brain, and to infuse into a bewildering display of dynamics the thousand upon thousand shades of melodic meaning so rarely left accounted for.

Matchlessly quiet and unobtrusively-virginally sung was the dainty "Andantino Simplice." It was a little pearl; a dewdrop falling from heaven. An armistice after a clash of arms. The breathing period before the renewed attack. The combat to the death. The climax wherein the little pianist fell upon her enemies (for this concerto to me means war) and destroyed them.

GERMAINE SCHNITZER

Against her the weather; against her her sick body doing the work upon her command, yet against it; nerves stung and tingling, and muscles quivering and relaxed; against the formidable eventuation of the epoch-making "Boris Godunow" just played by the orchestra, and leaving the audience under the strain of an omnipotent sensation; against all these, Germaine Schnitzer came to her audience; battled with the mighty concerto, and triumphed.

Hers was the ovation of the evening. Flowers and recalls; recalls and applause; applause, crescendo to fortissimo, and still applause, and more. The applause still rings in the ears.

Here cunningly inserted by my editor's art is the dainty head which for days has ornamented the Carnegie Hall program, that important pamphlet in vivid sepia and dull ochre. I am wondering how much better it will look in black and white.

Among those who braved the storm and elements to do honor to Mme. Schnitzer were Raphael Joseffy and his wife, who paid their respects and their grateful homage to her remarkable musicianship after the concerto, in the artists' room. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh Haensel were also among those in the artists' room, and as I departed group after group came in to shower congratulations.

§ § §

Alice Verlet in Recital

Miss Alice Verlet, the coloratura soprano, whose "character" singing might afford her a special niche and mark her apart from her work as a coloratura singer who takes her high art seriously, lovingly and earnestly, was heard on the afternoon of March 4 in Carnegie Hall, well filled in all its parts—its tiers of boxes overflowing with fashionables of the artistic world; singers, musicians et al., and artistically gowned fashionables—women whose motor cars lined more than the liberal space fronting Carnegie Hall.

The Soprano is typically French from the tips of her little silver "mules"—veritable Cinderella slippers—to the tips of her pink-nailed fingers, and the tip of her dainty retousse nose.

The elegance of her pale gray and gold—dull gold—costume was doubly eleganted by the bewitching arrangement of her bronzed chevelure with its aggressive, upstanding black aigrets, cunningly fastened in two combs of winking rhinestones.

Miss Verlet sang a taxing program with a clear and exceedingly flexible voice which proved itself as fresh at the end of the program as at the beginning, and as the singer was encored for nearly everything she sang, it is only fair to say that she was in the pink of condition when she kissed her adieux to the audience after her ultimate encore.

The Diva is a vocalist of intelligence and refined art. Her rendition of Vidal's "La Meneuse de Jeu" was a bit of delicious vocal characterization, as was in its way the "Concert a la Cour" by Auber. In this last her laughing measures rang naturally yet vocally, repeated in different keys; a feat of which few coloraturists of the day might be expected to acquit themselves. To sum up Miss Verlet is a conscientious musician and has mastered the technical vocal difficulties of Song.

Her singing of Rossini's "Rossignol" with flute obligato, showed her mounting the flights of roulades—of ascending and descending scales—of gently ushered-in trills, and upleaping florituri.

Miss Verlet has the subtly-ingratiating air of one who takes her audience into her confidence, and established a precious rapprochement.

Her programs are entirely out of the ordinary, and for that reason if for no other doubly enjoyable.

A variation in program and genre must be a relief to the concert-goer, weary of over-many "Lieder" singers roaming the land like Gypsies, and with somewhat of a reminiscent fragrance. The Brat-Wurst contending with the Pineapple cheese.

Beginning with a Gluck air and the Page's song from "Nozze de Figaro" of Mozart, the concert was an afternoon of surprises; what with a Flautiste, Miss de Forest Anderson, who supplied with delicacy and finish a difficult flute obligato to the amiable soprano, who was also heard in an elaborate aria with violin obligato.

The program follows:

Air de la Naiade from "Armide".....Gluck
Non so piu from "Nozze di Figaro".....Mozart
Le Mariage des Roses.....C. Franck
Ballade et air de la Fileuse from "Gwendoline".....Chabrier
Le Rossignol.....Handel
With Flute obligato by Miss de Forest Anderson
Flute Solo—
Concertstück Chaminade
Miss de Forest Anderson, Accompanied by Philip Sipser
Le Bonheur est chose Legere.....Saint-Saens
With Violin obligato by Charles Vét
Group of Modern French Songs—
Mandoline Debussy
Après de la Source Glacée.....Ch. Pons
La Meneuse de Jeu.....P. Vidal
A story of the difficulties of a grown up person trying to organize games for a crowd of unruly children who cannot make up their minds just what they want to play.
Concert a la Cour (old classical French aria).....Auber

Ellmer Zoller, Accompanist

§ § §

Thuel Burnham Again

Thuel Burnham will be heard on Tuesday, March 9, in New York. In the meantime he has not been idle elsewhere, and his near future will be devoted to filling re-engagements, and surprising new centers of musical endeavor by exhibitions of his manly art—not of self-defense—but of proving that the piano is a means of self-revelation; to prove that the pianist may dream over Chopin, and thunder—but not pound—with Liszt.

In the meantime word has come to me from Boston where he has many friends, and I have a few correspondents, that Mr. Burnham's recital in Steinert Hall was far more than an incident in the musical history (in the making) of the Attica of the United States.

That it was a revelation of new and extraordinary pianistic gifts in an American young enough to take the deepest enjoyment in his playing; alert and keen as to musical values, poetic and penetrating in his pianistic insight.

Much stress was laid upon his interpretation—subtle and searching—of Chopin, whose genre appeals strongly to young Burnham.

The critic of the Boston Post says Mr. Burnham has a virtuoso technical equipment—strong wrists and fingers, authority and fire. The critic also remarks upon the finer qualities; his beautiful tone, the singing of his melodies. The enthusiasm of the audience was dilated upon.

The Boston Monitor has also its panegyric; its encomiums upon the pianist's brilliancy and individuality, his particular schooling. It summed up, without qualification, the phases and merits of Burnham's art.

And Boston is desirous of seeing and hearing Burnham again, and it is upon the cards that he may gratify the good citizens of that city before the season ends.

The woods are full of pianists, but not of the School of Burnham, nor of his type.

§ § §

Concert for the Studio Club

Mrs. John R. MacArthur is the unobtrusive benefactress of New York. She is the SONG RECITAL

TO BE GIVEN BY

JAN BLOMQUIST

Belmont Hall, Belmont Av. & Clark St.
CHICAGO

Wednesday eve., MARCH 17, 8:15

ASSISTING ARTISTS:

BEATRICE VAN LOON, Opera Prima Donna

HANS HESS, 'Cello

FRANK ERNST, Piano

Admission Fifty Cents : : Tickets at the Door

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

good angel to whom many stretch out their hands knowing that she will not refuse.

The concert held at the Princess Theater on the afternoon of March 2 emphasized her generosity; for the theater was her donation for that function and as a consequence made it possible.

The artists taking part were Miss Hilda Deighton, contralto; Mme. Marie Narelle, soprano, and Miss Lucile Orrell, 'cellist.

Miss Deighton, who is the possessor of a voice of excellent quality, and who evinces dramatic fire, sang a group of five songs including Lalo's "T'Esclave," Holmes' "Kypris" and Arensky's "But Lately in Dance."

Miss Orrell, young, beautiful and gifted, appeared twice upon the program, playing with fine artistry Saint-Saens' "La Cygne," Klengel's "Tarantelle," Popper's "Spinnelied" and a "Cantabile" by Caesar-Cui.

Mme. Narelle exhibited much dramatic fire in the "Cry of Rachel" by Salter, and charmed in an old Italian air by Durante, and 3 songs in English.

There were numerous encores given by the three participants. An audience of society women and music-lovers were present, and exhibited an encouraging enthusiasm.

Mme. Narelle's Activities

During the last week of February Mme. Narelle made a sensational success at a concert in New Rochelle, where she was acclaimed as the most remarkable dramatic singer who has ever appeared there. She was given special recognition for her intensely dramatic delivery of the great aria from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana." She was also heard in the "Aria of the Rose" from Mrs. Heckscher's Opera, "The Flight of Time," and the "Norse Maiden's Lament."

Mme. Narelle was one of the soloists on the evening of March 3 in the great auditorium of the Brooklyn Academy of Music, where she was rapturously applauded for her group of Scotch songs, including "My Laddie" by Thayer, and forced to respond with "Comin' Thru the Rye" and "Robin Adair."

Mme. Narelle's illness prevented her from singing on the evening of March 1 in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. The soprano will sing in Montreal on March 17, and in Flushing on the 20th a program of Oratorio numbers—a request program. Among the numbers she will sing in Montreal will be an aria from Gluck's "Iphigenie en Aulide," and Haydn's "In Verdure Clad."

Albert Spalding, the distinguished young virtuoso, who has just returned from a tour of the Pacific coast, will be heard for the fourth time in New York this season next Saturday afternoon, March 13, in Aeolian Hall. On his recent tour Mr. Spalding created quite a sensation, and was hailed not only as the greatest American violinist, but as one of the greatest on the concert stage. In San Francisco he played to one of the greatest audiences that ever assembled in that city. At his coming concert he will offer a program made up largely of dance music, though it will include works by Bach, Brahms, Tartini, Dvorak, Kreisler, Sarasate and Spalding.

The program will be one of intense interest.

Miss Ethel Leginska, the charming and splendid pianiste, will be heard in recital in Carnegie Hall on the evening of March 19.

Mr. Gustav L. Becker was admired on the 4th of March, both as composer and pianist, the occasion being the meeting of the "Athene" Society at the Waldorf-Astoria, when Mr. Becker played the following numbers: "Allegretto Scherzando" by Haberbier; "Gavotte in E" left hand alone by Bach-Joseffy, and "The Forest Brook" and "Polonaise in E" by Gustav L. Becker.

Mr. Becker's worth as pianist and composer was immediately conceded. Mr. Becker's interesting songs were artistically rendered by Mrs. Adele Rankin, soprano. Their titles are "Nightingale" and "Lullaby."

OMAHA, NEBRASKA

"When 'Everywoman' needs a new Conscience she comes to Omaha for it.

"Omaha has supplied 'Everywoman' with two Consciences in the past, and now both of these have left 'Everywoman' to play new parts. Two more Consciences have been provided to fill their places.

"Two Omaha girls—Miss Charlotte Van Wickel, now Mrs. B. F. Jacobs of California, and Miss Marie Donahue, now Mrs. H. M. Larrabee—had this role in Henry W. Savage's play, 'Everywoman,' last year.

"And both of them married within three months after accepting the role, so that the Savage Company has come back to Omaha for another Conscience.

"Mrs. Millie Ryan, who supplied the first young women from her pupils, was visited recently by Fred Roycroft of the Savage company and again asked for two young women with soprano voices to play Conscience.

"I want the two to alternate in the part, and, as Cupid interferes so much with Conscience, couldn't you find a third to come as understudy so we can always be sure of a Conscience?" he asked of Mrs. Ryan.

"As a result the Misses Bertha Coffey and Marie Yard, also pupils of Mrs. Ryan, joined the Savage company in Lincoln, when it was on its way to the coast last week. Miss Coffey has already made her debut in the part, and complimentary notices were given her.

"Mr. Roycroft has forwarded Mrs. Ryan the necessary music for the role, and Mrs. Ryan will prepare another Conscience for the company in the near future."—Omaha Press.

MABEL CORLEW SMIDT

Mrs. Smidt is rapidly becoming a favorite in the suburbs and surrounding towns, as is indicated by the following local comments:

ORCHESTRA CONCERT—EVANSTON

Mrs. Smidt, if we are not mistaken, made her first appearance before an Evanston audience. She scored an emphatic success and one that was well deserved. She has a charming personality and at once puts herself en rapport with her hearers. The voice is a lovely soprano of wide range and ample power. It is splendidly used. Not the least of the singer's virtues was an enunciation of commendable clarity, added to which is the fact that she sings with an unaffected sincerity that is altogether admirable.—Evanston News-Index.

NINETEENTH CENTURY CLUB—OAK PARK

Mrs. Smidt made "At the Trysting Hour" memorable with her exquisite singing of the solos. Sincerity marked every phrase. Against the background afforded by the chorus, her pure tones were brought into clear relief. Here, as in "In the Homestead," Mrs. Smidt was the unaffected, well equipped artist.—Oak Leaves.

ELGIN CHORAL CLUB—ELGIN, ILL.

Mrs. Smidt was the next to appear on the program and at once captivated the audience with her charming personality. Mrs. Smidt has a wonderful voice and the first note that rang out in that beautiful bell-like quality of tone proved that she knows how to use it. Mrs. Smidt's voice possesses that degree of expansion and flexibility that enables her to sing her pianissimos and fortissimos with perfect ease. "Sing to Me, Sing" gave her a good chance to show her ability in this particular number. We hope that we may have the pleasure of listening to that artist again in the no distant future.—Elgin Daily News.—(Advertisement.)

FREER SONGS

Loraine Decker-Campbell, soprano (artist-pupil of Charles W. Clark), sang Eleanor Everest Freer's songs, "To a Painter" and "To a Dreamer," at a recital at Bush Conservatory, Chicago, on February 5.

The name of Mrs. Freer appears with increasing frequency on programs, and now that some of her best known songs are obtainable in German text, one finds them on programs sung in Germany. Mrs. Freer's monumental work, the setting to music of Browning's Portuguese Sonnets, has placed her in a unique niche of her own among American composers.

It is pleasant to note that her only child, Eleanor Freer, a senior at Bryn Mawr College, is said to inherit her mother's gifts, both as singer and poet.

LILLIAN MACLEISH

On Saturday evening, March 6, Lillian MacLeish, soprano, gave an interesting recital which was greatly appreciated before the North Side Service Club. Miss MacLeish's program included English ballads and Scotch songs in costume. Miss MacLeish is becoming well known in her specialty and proves a delight wherever heard. She is busy preparing a new program for next year's work.

Brines—M. J. Brines will be the soloist at the First Congregational Church, Oak Park, on next Sunday evening.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

CONCERT BY THE DOLLY VARDEN
QUARTET, SOUTH BEND, IND.,
FEBRUARY 11

Some comment of the local press:

Seldom has the Oliver Hotel been the scene of a more charming affair than the first of the series of Twilight Musicales Thursday afternoon when the Dolly Varden Quartet of Chicago gave a program. The tapestry room, beautifully arranged with an improvised platform, furnished to simulate a music room, made an attractive setting for an entertainment of splendid artistic value. The audience, which was almost as large as the room would permit, was very appreciative.

The quartet was composed of Ethel Connely Cutter, first soprano; Margaret Lester, second soprano; Clare Livingston, first alto, and Agnes Hansel-Harter, second alto. Each of the voices displayed finish, strength and sweetness, and the quartet work revealed a fine sense of proportion in each. The gracious personalities of the singers added much to the charm of their singing. The program was discriminating and somehow seemed to have been made for the day, partaking of the light, springlike atmosphere that was welcomed Thursday after the gloomy days of the past week. Perhaps for this reason Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," which the quartet sang so beautifully, was received with more appreciation—if possible—than any of the other quartet selections. Most worthy of note, however, was the delightful repertory of folk songs, of which the quartet had a great variety. . . . Lovely in the extreme was the concluding group of old-time songs. . . . To sing these, the musicians entered gownned in the beautiful and quaint costumes of the 1830 period, with large hats to match, each of a different color—The South Bend News Times, February 12, 1915.

A company of over 100 music lovers were entertained by a varied program of songs, ranging from grand opera to the simple melodies of old songs. . . . A feature of the afternoon was the work of Mrs. Lester, who charmed her audience with a voice of lyric sweetness, and whose singing was marked by particular warmth and color. In "Mifanwy" by Foerster, she sang with direct simplicity, admirably displaying the beautiful tone quality of her voice. Mrs. Harter was also very good in "Farewell, Ye Hills," which she sang with fine dramatic sense. The folk songs, lullabies and old melodies were the most popular of the work of the quartet, the voices of which were beautifully blended. . . . Among the old-time songs were two which especially fitted the spirit of the twilight hour, "Annie Laurie," which Miss Livingston sang beautifully, and "Love's Old Sweet Song."—South Bend, Ind. Tribune, February 12, 1915.

The Dolly Varden Quartet has been coached by William Lester.—(Advertisement.)

— # # # —

Gamble Hinged Music Company—The Gamble Company announces a list of new songs by Claire Guedy, including "Love and Peace," "Spring," "Just for This," "When Soft Winds Blow," "If," "Deceivers Ever," and "Swing Low, Swing High."

— # # # —

O'Neal-Corrigan—On Sunday afternoon, March 7, Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano, sang with much success arias from "Traviata," "Rigoletto" and Bishop's "To Hear You, Gentle Lark" with the Ballman Orchestra at North Side Turner Hall.

DAN S. DENTON TENOR
OPERA—CONCERT—RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

Music Abroad

LONDON, ENGLAND

Unannounced Concerts

It is my good fortune to have met, and to have become acquainted with Lady St. Helier. Lord St. Helier was what we might have called judge of the supreme court. His death occurred some years ago.

You might imagine his wife living a life of retirement. She is well able to do so. She lives in one of the older of the London homes, at 52 Portland place. Its large and well-appointed rooms make you feel like just staying there, rather than doing the many things she chooses to do. She is a member of "The London County Council," and one who has not had opportunity to see her at various times during the day, cannot know how much of her time this takes each day.

That, and the management of her home would seem quite enough, you think. Lady St. Helier does not think so. She is now giving concerts each week to the soldiers and sailors in training. How she finds the time to do all of it is a mystery to all who know her. All we know is that she does. Two or more of these concerts each week are in order. They are given at the various training camps. (I cannot tell you where they are at this time. I would be violating a trust). They have large halls though, and are well equipped for concerts of any kind.

The performers at these concerts are the best London has. The program given depends on where it is given, and whether it is the first concert given at that place. They vary in grade.

I must mention two of Lady St. Helier's helpers. They are Mr. J. M. Levien, the voice teacher, and Mr. Alfred Kalish, the well-known critic of musical matters here. She simply tells them what she wants in the way of a program, and they secure the performers. They are both members of the Royal Philharmonic Society, and are in touch with most of the concert and entertainment performers of the city.

These performers are paid for their services at the rate of three guineas (about $15) per night. It is needless to say that many of the best of the young performers over there would be glad to get such a fee. There are usually three singers, an accompanist and an entertainer of some sort for the fun. You can see that it is no small expense to the one back of this movement.

That is not all. We are all invited to her home for tea before going. It consists of a good, round meal, and a social chat while we are eating it. Two autos, or one of the motor busses is then chartered, which takes us all to the scene of the concert. If the night is dark and rainy it matters not. We go just the same; and we always have an audience.

To enter one of these camps takes some little questioning at times. Perhaps the sentry is not well informed as to just who is to be in the party. Perhaps he has forgotten. But we get in about the time the program should commence and find a hearty welcome awaiting us. The boys in training are furnished every description of game that can be of any amusement to any man. Many of them are games that train the eye and hand as well as amuse the player. I watched them throw rings over pegs, toss a marble into a hole, play indoor tennis, ping-pong, football, and every kind of such thing. The way they will pitch into it is invigorating to watch. They have all been training all day long; some at trench digging. Still they will go at it with a vengeance. England never puts a soldier into the field untrained.

Two thousand or more of them will be packed into the concert hall. The rest will have to go on with the games, or attend one of the other meetings in progress. They have several on the same night and every night, too. There is always one "revival service."

Some of the men are most unsophisticated. The song with the slightest humor will please them beyond all expectations. They are—contrary to our idea of the Briton—all quick to catch the wit of any story as well. They forget themselves and laugh until you are holding your own sides in sympathy with them. They encore every one of the many numbers, and when the last song is sung, and they have had their last chance to sing on the chorus—they always do that—they will stand as reverently at salute, and sing "God Save the King." What a volume of tone they do make, too. As you face them on the platform, and see those stern, ruddy faces; the thick shouldered, vigorous chaps right where they could make England the best of husband and father: You are thinking of the hell of steel and lead they must face soon. It does you no good; they must face it just the same. Then,—even after the three cheers for Lady St. Helier—and how they do whoop it up!—we ride home without saying much to each other. You leave the car and slink into the house, sometimes with no more than the mechanically spoken good-night.

The performers are changed for every concert. She will give help to as many of them as is possible. That is not all, either. She has a course of concerts at her home; one each month for the benefit of the younger artists. Some of the best programs given in London are given there. Each performer is paid, too. She has arranged this by organizing her friends into an association. I cannot take the time to give details of these programs.

Now what can I say of Lady St. Helier? I will not try it. You may say it.

ALBERT A. WHITE.

— # # # —

Apollo Club—The Apollo Musical Club, augmented to 1,000 singers, will give a performance of Bach's "Passion Music" Sunday afternoon, March 28, at the Auditorium Theater. The performance will start at 3 p. m. and end at 6 p. m., instead of being divided in two parts, as in former years. This concert will be one of the big musical events of the season. Tickets are now on sale at the Apollo Club box office in Lyon & Healy's.

80.5 slack
MUN

FESTIVAL AT FORT HAYS, KANSAS

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

WILLIAM LESTER

THE ONLY PAPER
OF THE MUSICIANS

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store)

TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

New Music by

Torvald Frederiksen

Three Songs in Semi-Popular Style

"Love Me Forever, My Sweet Little Heart" (solo with chorus as solo or duet) "Evening Bells" (solo) "The Land of Dreams" (solo, duet or male quartette.) PIANO SOLO "Silver Star" Reverie. At all music stores or address the publisher.

Torvald Frederiksen, 2756 Diversey Avenue, CHICAGO

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MARCH 19, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect
Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsharzer Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Musie News

Vol. 7.

Chicago, March 19, 1915

No. 12

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

B. L. T. suggests in his "Line o' Type" that the Mendelssohn violin "Concerto" should be put into the "cannery"—whatever that may be—because, now that Kreisler has glorified it the public will never care to hear anyone else give it.

"But," objects my young violinist friend, "if the Mendelssohn 'Concerto' must go because Kreisler has played it, we shall soon discard some other Concerto because Spalding has given it so beautifully and other pieces will disappear for similar reasons until eventually the poor amateur will have nothing he can play."

h h h

Did you read the Elderly Person's article in Music News last week? If not, you should still do so. We all have our opinions about modern repertoire and doubtless, sometimes, some of us are right, but in the long run who can tell what may be worth while and what not? At any rate read what the Elderly Person says about it.

h h h

It may be perfectly true, as the Musical Monitor says, that "it is ridiculous for anyone to insinuate that the Federation of Musical Clubs wants to get a concert out of young, unknown artists for nothing," but if you will turn to page 255 of the same issue of the Monitor containing the editorial from which we quote you will find an article captioned "The National Federation Contest for a Place on Representative Program at Biennial Convention," two items of which read as follows:

(1) Contestants need not be members of a federated club, but, to be eligible, they must join the National Club within the Students' Department of the N. F. M. C. (for advanced students and young professionals), by sending with their names and addresses the fee, one dollar, to the vice president of their state, who will remit it to the Federation treasurer.

(2) The prize will consist of the opportunity to secure engagements from the 309 federated clubs, whose delegates will come to Los Angeles with instructions to engage from these winners, if satisfactory, the artists for their "American Day" program.

h h h

Under the heading, "A Drop in the Ocean," the Chicago Tribune prints the following letter which was sent to the "Voice of the People" Department. It has a point: Red Oak, Ia., March 5.—(Editor of the Tribune.)—When I see in the Tribune a letter from some one who feels offended and requests his subscription be canceled it puts me in mind of what I once heard

UNCONQUERABLE

(From the Kansas City Star)

¶ The habit of never being whipped, of always keeping up the fight—that is the quality of the great leader. The man who never admits defeat is the man the world has to take into account. Time and again the foes he is fighting may think they have him down. But before they know it he is on his feet sounding the advance.

¶ Such a man molds events. He helps create the new heavens and the new earth of the prophet's vision.

¶ A mighty force of the universe is the unconquerable soul!

about the deportation of the colored people to Africa, a plan that was proposed by some one at some time. When it was learned that more than a ship load of colored children were born every day in the week the plan was abandoned, because it was not thought possible to fit out a ship for that purpose at such brief intervals. While the letter of the irate subscriber is on the way from his home to the Tribune office there is such an overwhelming number of letters containing orders from new subscribers also on the way to the office that the one stop order is never noticed.

W.

h h h

At a North Side concert recently one of the principal men soloists had a very great amount of the "nasal" quality. "Well," said a member of the audience (not a musician) sitting in front of me, "I believe that I would like that voice if he could ever seem to get it out of him."

h h h

Said a young lady pianist and accompanist in Musie News office last week: "I have resolved absolutely that I have now played my last 'free' engagement. If I am so bad that my work is worth just NOTHING—no more, no less—I shall hereafter spend my afternoons and evenings at home and PRACTICE so that I may become better."

h h h

Musical Advance has a good editorial in its March issue on "Emancipation," during the course of which occurs this indicative paragraph:

Thanks to the present war, conditions have changed. Prices are being cut, demands are being refused and many foreign artists stranded here are finding out that the American goose has been stripped of its feathers and that the picking is no longer good. If nothing else, the war has given a new and necessary turn to affairs and the outlook is decidedly better. It presages America's musical emancipation.

Let us hope that the improvements are permanent and will endure after the war has ceased.

h h h

Next June, when much of the musical world will be moving westward in order to hear the "Fairyland" performance at Los Angeles, there will still be an immense throng of people left to travel on June 4 to Harvard University, where, at the Stadium, an open-air performance of "Siegfried" (Wagner) will be given with a wonderful cast, including Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Gluck, Whitehill and other opera stars. The whole promises to be one of the greatest events in the musical history of the country.

h h h

In a letter to Musical America, Miss Harriet Ware complains bitterly because, after having played three times for the John Wanamaker concerts in New York for nothing she was refused remuneration on the fourth occasion when she was desired to grace these functions. What does Miss Ware expect?

There never yet was a club, church, society woman or department store which voluntarily paid for the services of any musician after once having had them for nothing. If Miss Ware established her price as nothing—no more nor less, with the Wanamaker house, she will everlastingly be rated as worth nothing by them.

The promise held out by the promoters of free concerts that "this will lead to pay engagements afterwards" has long since been proven a fallacy—it never has led to pay engagements and it never will. Young artists had far better stay at home and practice than to waste their time fulfilling free engagements.

§ § §

The charming little piano recital given by Janet Miller, under the direction of Miss Viola Cole last week was in the new and equally charming Thurber Hall in the Fine Arts Building, a place which is ideal for this sort of endeavor and which is attracting the attention of many concert givers.

§ § §

Mr. Albert Cotsworth has the sympathy of the whole music profession in Chicago in the loss of his mother, her death occurring in Chicago last week.

Mrs. Cotsworth was ninety years of age and had been a life long enthusiast for music and it was to her guidance and help that Mr. Albert Cotsworth owed his initial impulse toward musical work.

§ § §

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kimbell suffered the loss, by fire, of nearly all their worldly possessions on last Wednesday evening, when their flat was almost completely destroyed. Luckily the loss is well covered with insurance.

§ § §

Josef Hofmann is an example of great talent gone to seed too early. As a boy he was marvelous, but to the editor of Music News he has long since seemed the most wooden of pianists and his recitals are distinctly boring. That the public in general is beginning to share this opinion seems to be proven in the very small attendance at his concert at Orchestra Hall in Chicago last week.

§ § §

Of young women in Chicago who play piano extremely well there are legions—every school and college has many of them. Every private teacher is continually introducing more. Occasionally, however, some of these go on much further than the artist student stage and, after much toil and also after awaiting the developing influences of a few years of time, they are ready to take a step distinctly higher in the scale of pianistic evolution and at this stage they deserve to be called young professional pianists and as such are worthy of immense praise for the great achievements already to their credit and they may, each one, be said to be fairly in that race to a finish which produces sometimes international artists and always reliable local pianists and teachers. To this class of young artists, additions are made from time to time, but not any too rapidly, for the road is a stony and a long one leading up to this goal.

Among the latest of those who have surely arrived at this distinction may be named Miss Betsy Howland, whose recital at Kimball Hall on last Sunday is reviewed elsewhere in this issue of Music News, and who on that occasion showed herself thoroughly worth while and who will undoubtedly be heard from much in the future.

MAKE IT TUESDAY INSTEAD OF WEDNESDAY

Music News formerly accepted notices for the current week throughout Wednesdays—but, owing to increased number of copies printed we have been compelled to go to press some hours earlier. We therefore ask our Advertisers, Correspondents and friends in general to remember that ALL CHANGES IN ADVERTISEMENTS MUST BE MADE ON MONDAY. All programs and notices for the paper should come in not later than and that nothing should be sent us on Wednesday excepting absolute emergency copy.

TUESDAY

AGAIN THE SCHOOL OF NOISE

(Contributed)

The mild reproof administered to the writer by "The Elderly Person" only emphasizes the thought—always with us, but not expressed in our last—Is there not, in every average human life, enough of discord, enough of inevitable problems, without seeking for ways and means of expressing this discord, these problems, in music?

The writer's venerable mentor, Dr. Kappes, the friend and daily associate, for many years, of Mendelssohn, Schumann and Jenny Lind, says on this subject: "Music and painting should never be employed to express or portray anything but the beautiful."

Were it only possible for us average mortals to hear what the poet calls

"The harmonious echo of our discordant life!"

W. E. S.

BETTER LIGHT FOR OUR MUSICIANS

(Contributed)

To the Editor:

More detrimental to the eye-health of the members of our great orchestra than the lack of elevators to the bodily comfort of the gallery patrons, is the inadequate lighting of the stage, where sit the nearly one hundred musicians for their fifty-six "regular" concerts, besides numerous concerts additional to these, and besides more than one hundred rehearsals.

For the lack of elevators the trustees have given out reasons satisfactory to themselves; to install elevators would doubtless involve a remodeling of the building, a cutting down of its seating capacity, already inadequate to the demands of the patrons of the concerts, not to speak of the expense.

But the other question, adequate lighting of the stage, is so simple of solution that there can be no excuse for delay in providing the necessary additional (and improved) lights.

Many of the younger players, even, have so strained their eyes that they have been obliged, years before their time, to begin the use of glasses.

If you don't believe the above statement, Messrs. Trustees, appoint a sub-committee of your number to sit on the stage for two hours next Friday or Saturday and follow the score as the men play it.

S. F. NEWHALL.

SOME LETTERS

Portage, Wis.

Music News:

Enclosed please find two dollars for renewal of subscription to Music News. It is indispensable.

(Signed) MRS. C. P. JAEGER.

§ § §

Lyons, Ia.

Music News:

Please let us have a picture of "The Elderly Person." We enjoy his articles so much.

(Signed) CLARA A. WHEELER.

(Note—A picture of the E. P. can be found on page 14 of the issue of Music News for February 19. He is seated at the organ and is in the lower left-hand corner of the page).

§ § §

Prophetstown, Ill.

Music News:

Please tell me something of Fevrier—can find nothing in the reference books.

(Signed) MRS. W.

(Note—Fevrier is a prominent composer living in Paris; is about 37 years old. He is a pupil of Debussy and Saint-Saens. His opera, "Mona Vanna" was successfully performed by the Chicago Grand Opera company last year).

§ § §

AS TO VOCAL METHOD

(Contributed by John Lekberg)

Celestial tones, translucent, pure,

Sung by a voice that will endure!

Have we observed the operation?

Is there a method true and sure?

Experience teaches that we might

Relax the thorax when it's "tight"

By breathing rapidly and lightly;

To force the breath is never right.

Breathe as a runner takes his breath,

A fever patient nearing death;

And you will find the respiration

Will be complete in depth and breadth.

The ear will choose 'twixt tone and noise,

And perfect freedom will give poise

To the whole vocal apparatus;

It's poise and breath support the voice.

Now that the throat is wide and free,

Enunciate, not slovenly, yet lazily,

As you sing softly sans restraining,

And without "pushing" mightily.

Just remain passive to the tone

And let the voice "go it" alone.

The action must seem automatic;

This is the method—NATURE'S OWN.

Music in Chicago

AMERICAN MUSIC PROGRAM

The second program of American music to increase the appreciation of American audiences was given by Glenn Dillard Gunn with the assistance of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and with Burton Thatcher and Alfred Goldman as soloists at Orchestra Hall on last Thursday evening to a somewhat smaller house than the first.

ALFRED GOLDMAN

The program read very attractively but in performance was rather monochromatic. The orchestra, throughout, played admirably.

The works by Cole, Brune and Lang were not heard by this writer.

The symphonic poem, "In the Cambrian Hills," by Daniel Protheroe, was a fresh proof of the great gifts and skill of this highly admired Chicagoan. He has a full grasp on orchestral writing and in this particular work had a distinct message to deliver which he did convincingly.

The symphonic sketch, "The Sorrow of Mydath," by Leo Sowerby, showed this talented young Chicagoan in a splendid light. To this writer the work was far and away more interesting and also much more beautiful than previous compositions from the same pen.

The subject chosen is weirdly sorrowful and almost grotesque in its eccentric symbolism, a verse of the poem reading as follows:

Weary the cry of the wind is, weary the sea,
Weary the heart and the mind and the body of me.
Would I were out of it, done with it; would I could be
A white gull crying along the desolate sands.

—Masefield,

Mr. Sowerby has caught the spirit of this most deftly. His work has all the evanescent moodiness and the exasperating elusiveness of Debussy and its overlay of color is, as usual with Mr. Sowerby, very thick, but in spite of this, or perhaps, because of it, the composition is very charming. It has real coherence, real climax building and a very real conclusion.

The "Americana," by Kolar, proved to be good orchestra writing; very full, very effective.

It has cleverly covered hints of "Old Folks at Home," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground" and "Yankee Doodle," to give it "American" color; otherwise it is strictly and solidly Teutonic.

Mr. Thatcher, besides singing in the Brune "Sea Music," which according to all reports is a very poorly scored work, presented also Clough-Leigher's delightful "Possession," in which his excellent voice and fine concert style brought him big appreciation from the audience. There was an eager demand for more.

Mr. Goldman played the "Andante" from a violin concerto by Severn far better than it deserved and again proved his splendid technical equipment and his fine musical feeling. For encore he gave the Charles G. Dawes "Melody" (with orchestra) so beautifully as to constitute it one of the chief delights of the evening. C. E. W.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

A very successful and somewhat unique program was given at Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon by voice pupils of Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, 'cello pupils of Mr. Hans Hess and piano pupils of Mr. Earl Blair.

Anna Rosenberg sang an Arditi Waltz and Clara Wunder presented the Campbell-Tipton "Spirit Flower" and Lisa Lehmann's "The Wren" with nice voices in both cases and with such sincerity of purpose and such display of musicianship and poise as to reflect much credit on Mrs. Zendt's teaching.

Theodore Ratzer played two movements from a 'cello Concerto by Klengel, and Annie Slack gave one movement from the Romberg Concerto in fine style. Both players have rich, warm tone, both played with steadiness of rhythm, much purity and considerable power of tone and both had such good stage presence and such an adept style in pleasing the audience as to prove conclusively that their training at the hands of Mr. Hess has been admirable.

Dorothy Redfield, Fleta Pease and Marguerite Johnson played piano solos, and Lenna Fitzsimmons and Ralph Carlson each gave good account of themselves in piano-forte Concertos. C. E. W.

Fourth Presbyterian—At the Fourth Presbyterian Church Mr. William E. Zeuch gave a successful organ recital on Thursday, March 4. His numbers were "Rhapsody" (Cole), "Evening Bells and Cradle Song" (McFarlane), "Scherzo" (Vierne), "Fantasie and Fugue" (Bach), "En Bateau" (Debussy), "Canon" (Schumann), "Evensong" (Bairstow) and "Vorspiel to Der Meistersinger" (Wagner).

Mayme E. Bolger
ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY
CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS
PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES Soprano
HERBERT M. Baritone
BAILEY
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland
PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD
CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 PERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN
CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL
ORATORIO CONCERT CONTRALTO
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH
SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN CONCERTS
CONTRALTO ORATORIO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough
Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist
Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso
TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando
CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses
VIOLINIST Mezzo-Soprano
1403 E. 68th STREET PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Lucy Hartman
CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWDALE AVENUE

CALIFORNIA AVENUE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

It was not an easy matter for anyone to follow Milon R. Harris at California Avenue Congregational Church, for as choir director

GEORGE F. KORTZENBORN

there throughout a number of years he had built up a splendid choir and had gained a most enviable reputation.

When he left a few weeks ago his choir was, of course, partly disbanded, through the fact that it had been composed so largely of his personal pupils.

However, Mr. George F. Kortzenborn came into the field with a fine reputation also, and with a big personal following as well, so that in the very short time since his advent he has been able to accomplish wonders in the rebuilding of the choir.

On Sunday evening the program heard was one of much worth intrinsically and it was given with good musical values and a very creditable amount of finish.

The balance of parts in his choir is already very good and there are sufficient good voices in each section to make satisfactory provision for incidental solos as well as small ensembles, while the choir tone as a whole is rich and full and the musical values shown are unusually fine.

On Sunday evening the "Gloria" from the "Twelfth Mass," by Mozart, was sung with great freedom and clean-cut shading and phrase, while the "B Minor Te Deum," by Dudley Buck, disclosed excellent musical values as well as good musicianship.

In addition to these two important numbers, Watson's "Hear, Oh Lord" was sung with great suavity and good musical feeling, a soprano solo being well cared for by Miss Agnes Peterson.

In the "Te Deum" the baritone solos were done with much finish by Earle Houghton, a baritone with good voice and style, and the very beautiful tenor solo was presented by Earle R. Alden, a young singer who has been gifted with much musical feeling as well as a good voice, which if trained faithfully will bring him fine rewards.

Charles F. Alden, who has long been known at this church as a very pleasing baritone singer, was heard in a quartet, "Like As the Lord Pitieth His Children," with his brother and Miss Helen Hood, soprano, and Miss Ruth Hancock, contralto, the whole ensemble being very pleasing and the song well done from every musical standpoint.

In all this work, as well as in a fine "Response" after prayer, and in several well chosen hymns, Mr. Katzenborn proved himself a thoroughly authoritative conductor and the singing throughout was also an eloquent proof of his artistic thought and feeling.

Mr. Kortzenborn is also a soloist with much power and finish in his work and, since his advent at this church has won the highest praise for his work in this line.

Another factor counting very much in the general excellence of the music at California Avenue Church is the organ playing of Miss Myrtle Mattison, who not only supplies voluntaries and offertories of great artistic value but whose accompanying is always helpful to the fullest extent and filled also with colorful and artistic touches.

C. E. W.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

A strong program was given by the Amateur Musical Club at the Second Presbyterian Church on Monday afternoon of this week.

The first number, a duet from "Stabat Mater," sung by Mrs. Monica Graham Stults and Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson, was not heard by the reviewer.

Miss Alice R. Deal, organist at Leavitt Street Congregational Church, played "Marche Pontificale" (Widor), "At Twilight" (Stebbins), and "Finale in A Flat" (Thiele) as her contribution to the program, and by her skillful work maintained the splendid reputation she has already gained as a proficient and conscientious artist.

"Hear Ye, Israel," from "Elijah," was given a beautiful and dramatic rendering by Mrs. Stults. Her voice is one of great charm and she has both temperament and control in its use.

Two trios, "Meditation" (Dubois) and Handel's "Largo," arranged for violin, harp and piano, proved to be one of the delights of the afternoon as performed by Miss Zetta Gay Whitson, Miss Emma Harriet Osgood and Miss Mary Porter Pratt.

Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson sang three Dvorak biblical songs, "Hear My Prayer," "God Is My Shepherd," and "By the Waters of Babylon." This singer, always pleasing to hear, seemed to have made these songs especially her own. Her beautiful voice and fine interpretative ability were used to splendid advantage.

Mrs. Katherine Howard Ward closed the program with "Rhapsody" (Cole), "Berceuse" (Dickinson), "Benedictus" (Reger), and "Caprice Heroique" (Bonnet). Mrs. Ward is organist at Sunday Evening Club and First Methodist Church, Evanston, and her work is so well known that it scarcely needs reviewing here. She played with her usual skill and brilliancy.

C. J. B.

Great Pianists Demand Great Pianos

That is why so many have turned enthusiastically—finally—to the

Mason & Hamlin

musically the most beautiful piano the world has ever known

On exhibition and sale only at the Music Rooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

Write today for Art Catalogue and Price List

TEMPLE EMANUEL

Friday evening, March 12, a special musical service was given at Temple Emanuel by Stella L. Roden, organist; Miss Naomi Nazor, soprano; Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade, contralto; Dr. J. B. Sommerschein, bass, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Fisher, contralto; Miss Alice Cramer, soprano; Thomas McGranahan, tenor; Ernest J. Davis, tenor; Fred W. Frank, bass. Miss Roden is an organist with a very serious attitude toward her art. She was heard to a fine advantage in the "Grand Chorus" (Guilmant) and "Processional" (Reed). Miss Roden gained some splendid tonal effects and gave excellent support to the singers throughout the evening. Miss Nazor's splendid soprano voice was heard in "A Highway Shall Be There." She sang it with great feeling and a fine display of vocal charm. Mrs. Slade left nothing to be desired by her excellent rendition of her solo, "Out of the Depths," for she used her excellent voice in a manner that was very appealing and effective.

Messrs. Davis and McGranahan made the most of the tenor section; Miss Cramer and Miss Nazor did their share toward making things go in the soprano parts; Mrs. Slade and Miss Fisher, contraltos, and Messrs. Sommerschein and Frank, bass. The double quartet did some splendid singing during the service and the special numbers were heard with great pleasure. "Blessed Be Thou, O God of Israel" (Matthews) and Haydn's "The Heavens Are Telling" were especially effective.

H. W. P.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

TURNER HALL CONCERT

Turner Hall was packed to the last place on Sunday afternoon and great enthusiasm was engendered for a program of the most truly "gala" style.

The orchestra numbers were played with great vim and much also of artistic finish.

seem much more musical than usual and which held the audience spell-bound.

Her phrasing was exceptionally good. She ended every one of them exactly with the orchestra, and her shading and climax building were also very fine.

In response to an enthusiastic demand for encore she gave a Poldini "Etude" with great technical finish and much musical charm.

Rudolph Mangold, violinist, was heard in the first movement of the Mendelssohn Concerto.

Another high point of interest was the appearance of the Chicago Grand Opera Quartet. They sang the "Rigoletto Quartet," Verdi; "Lucia," Donizetti, and scenes from "Martha." The personnel of the quartet will be of interest, for this was announced as their first Chicago appearance: Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano; Elsa Staud-Denton, contralto; Dan S. Denton, tenor; Max Bing, baritone. They gave rousing renditions of the Verdi and Donizetti numbers and were greeted with a storm of applause for their efforts. The works presented offered few individual opportunities, but one has no hesitation in saying that they will gain their share of merited applause wherever they appear. The "Martha" excerpts were received with great enthusiasm. "Nur naecher bloede Madchen" was very catching. The duet was given with a fine style and understanding by Mrs. Corrigan and Mr. Denton. Mrs. Corrigan's splendid voice was heard to a fine advantage in the well known "Last Rose of Summer." Mrs. Denton and Mr. Bing were heard with great pleasure in their recitatives and solo parts. This quartet will be heard again with great pleasure, and they should have great success in the concert field.

— — —

"THE STORY OF THE CROSS"

"The Story of the Cross," by Dudley Buck, was the special musical feature at St. Peter's Church last Sunday night, and an excellent presentation it received. The sixty or more men and boys composing the organization seemed to feel the tragedy and pathos of the story as revealed by the words of the text and to be intent on making the hearers feel it also. The choruses, "We Found This Man Perverting the Nation," "Away With This Man! Crucify Him" were delivered with dramatic intensity. The incidental chorales and hymns were beautifully sustained and shaded.

The solos were given in praiseworthy style; the soloists being Master George Johnson and Master Lewis Finch, sopranos, Mr. Thorsten J. Ahlberg, tenor, and Mr. R. B. C. Middleton, bass.

The whole work showed careful, intelligent preparation, and Mr. Herbert E. Hyde, choirmaster and organist, has just cause for gratification because of the results obtained. He is a skillful organist and carries his singers with absolute confidence.

C. J. B.

FINAL POPULAR CLASSICAL CONCERT

The third of the popular classical series of Monday afternoon concerts was notable not only for the very refined and temperamental singing of Mrs. Minnie Fish-Griffin, but also through the introduction of the Spry-Kortschak-Steindel trio, an organization which should certainly remain in the field and, by frequent appearances, become a popular factor in the local situation.

Schubert in his Op. 99; Saint-Saens; Op. 18, and Tschaikowsky, Op. 50, constituted a splendid list of pieces, affording much contrast, a great deal of musical delight and an ever up-building toward a final and very convincing climax.

Each of the players in this trio is so individually fine and their combined experience is so great that nothing short of super-excellence could be expected of their ensemble and such indeed did it afford, excelling perhaps in the Tschaikowsky.

Mrs. Fish-Griffin has a voice of rare beauty and she brought to her task on Monday the experience and the finish of many appearances before the public. In her German group she was thoroughly convincing and in "Depuis le jour," from Charpentier's "Louise," she gave an exposition of vocal art which is seldom equaled in beauty of tone and never excelled in artistry of expression of the sentiments involved.

Her manipulation of tone is masterly; her mezzo voce is perfect and the ease with which she increases to a fortissimo or lessens to a pianissimo is very seldom shown by any singer. The purity of her vocal quality is remarkable also and to these assets must be added the fact that she is a musician through and through and has also admirable enunciation of both the German and French text.

In "Ferry Me Across the Water," by Homer, she showed also that she is complete mistress of English text and her rendition of this cunning little song was a model of clarity along that line.

C. E. W.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' CHORUS TO SING IN ORCHESTRA HALL

The Chicago Teachers' Chorus, consisting of 100 women singers under the direction of Mr. O. E. Robinson, will give a concert at Orchestra Hall, Tuesday evening, April 20.

The chorus will have the assistance of Mrs. Luella Chilson Ohrman; the well-known baritone, Mr. Edward Clarke; Miss Kathleen Grant, accompanist, and twenty-two members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Walfried Singer, who has been a member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for fifteen years and for five years has been in charge of the Sunday afternoon concerts at the Art Institute.

The proceeds of this concert are to go for the benefit of charity.

HENRIETTA HERFURTH

The men have been working together so faithfully since fall and the routine imposed has been so all-embracing that Mr. Ballmann has now evolved an ensemble of very unusual merit and there are, throughout every program, individual touches of excellence which prove all the players to be fine in their particular lines.

A "Festival March," by Goldmark, opened the program auspiciously, and other numbers by the same composer as also well selected works by Wagner, Meyerbeer and Moszkowski kept the interest at a high point throughout the afternoon.

The first soloist to appear was Miss Henrietta Herfurth, a pupil of Esther Harris in the Chicago College of Music, and she beyond any question made as fine an impression as has been registered at Turner Hall in many a month.

Her vehicle was the showy "Concertstueck," by Chaminade, and she made it glister and sparkle in quite unexampled manner.

Her technic is very sure, clean and broad, and her rhythm is irreproachable, so that she was able to hold the Chaminade intentions fully at all times and in the lighter, more delicate passages she added touches of individual charm which made the work

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DEDRIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS...730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgcomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
6313 Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN IN RECITAL

Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman gave a song recital at the Y. W. C. A. Hall on Michigan avenue last Friday evening to the great delight of the fine attendance of guests of the institution.

Numbers by Handel, Giordini, Mendelssohn, Brahms, Bizet and Mildred Hill had been sung before the arrival of this writer, and even before entering the hall the absolute purity and utter sweetness of the Bollman voice was sensed at a distance in her singing of the high-lying and very impassioned "Spirit Flower" of Campbell-Tipton, a work which suited her to perfection.

Goring Thomas' "The Willow" was sung with utter beauty of vocal art and the "Lovely Summer" of Dell'Acqua, a song heard from a hundred lyric and coloratura sopranos, was given at this time with an entirely new interpretative thought, one also which was as charming as it was novel.

Grant-Schaefer's "Cuck-Coo Clock" had to be repeated, so finished was the rendition of the cunning little song, and in everything she presented Mrs. Bollman not only showed very great purity and beauty of tonal quality but was also mistress of breath control in very long phrases, and did some very pretty figure, including also a remarkable trill.

Few voices are more even throughout their scale and very few indeed of sopranos have such exquisite poise and control in the upper part of the scale.

A very interesting part of the program was that devoted to compositions by Jeanne M. Boyd, with the writer herself at the piano. Three little pieces from "A Child's World" (dedicated to Mrs. Bollman), were exquisite both in conception and execution and both artists had to bow acknowledgments often and the audience wished for repetition of each song, and gained its wish in several instances.

"Wind from the South" was delightful, the high lying phrases suiting Mrs. Bollman exactly and the accompaniment being played ideally. "La Tarentella," with its very exact rhythmic story, was tossed off with immense abandon, and "In Italy" rose to such a climax of beauty and thrill that its repetition was absolutely unavoidable. C. E. W.

THE SIXTH PRESBYTERIAN

Frances Anne Cook, organist of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, is planning a special music service for Palm Sunday. Miss Cook will play some organ numbers and the quartet, Mrs. B. J. Roe, soprano; Mrs. A. Brunelle, contralto; Louis Porter, tenor; Dr. J. B. Sommerschein, baritone, will sing special numbers.

Sunday morning, March 14, the quartet was heard to good advantage in Buck's "Te Deum in B Minor" and Brown's "In Heavenly Love Abiding." The quartet led the congregation in some spirited hymn singing that was very enjoyable.

Miss Cook is a very capable organist, and her solo offerings, "Barcarolle" (Johnson), Callaert's "March Solenne," and the quartet accompaniments were very musicianly and praise-worthy.

Peoria—A faculty concert was given at the Peoria College of Music recently by Blanche Morgan Allen, pianist.

FLORENCE LE CLAIRE IN RECITAL

Central Music Hall is charming in its new dress and undoubtedly it will rapidly grow in popular knowledge and favor. The new colorings are exquisite, the lighting is fine and the management of the place on last Sunday afternoon was without flaw.

Miss Florence Le Claire in piano recital was the attraction and she fitted into her dainty surroundings most amiably—for she is a very young lady and very modest in demeanor, while at the same time she is wholly sincere in her attitude toward her work.

She has technic which is exceptionally pure and clean, her scales are like liquid music and her tonal quality is always musical. However, it lacks as yet a certain amount of power and virility and it was for this reason that Bach and Beethoven were not altogether satisfactory, as played by her.

The notes were produced accurately and there was nice shading and tonal discrimination, but no virility. This will come most surely, however, with time.

The Chopin group proved to be another story and was played with charming effect. Such clarity of scales and such purity of melodic intention is produced but seldom and the entire group became therefore one of unalloyed delight to all that part of the audience which was able to sense and understand the utter musical quality of her work.

The last group was devoted to MacDowell, Moszkowski, Grieg and Liszt and in this Miss Le Claire showed the same cunning sense of figure and the same clarity of execution, with occasional touches of bravura display, although Grieg was not rugged enough when measured up against the usual performances of that wonderful composer. C. E. W.

Brewer—The Brewer Teachers' Agency is to be congratulated on the fact that Susan Emma Drought has accepted a position as head of the music department. Details may be noted in the advertisement in current issue of Music News.

Illinois College of Music—A concert was given at the Garfield Park Methodist Episcopal Church on Friday evening last by advanced pupils of the college, assisted by Mr. Edwards, Miss Edwards and Miss Tollefson of the faculty.

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone, Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, and Earl Victor Prahl, pianist, will give a concert this week at Blissfield, Mich., on Thursday evening, March 18.

DAN S. DENTON TENOR

OPERA—CONCERT—RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

BROCK COLLINS J. BASSO-CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

ZEFER ALGOTS RECITAL

Miss Zefer Algots, an advanced pupil of Silvio Scionti, gave a successful piano recital at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening of last week, appearing in a varied and very well arranged program of works by Beethoven, Rubinstein, Chopin and Liszt.

Miss Algots has style and technic and her work also possesses much of temperament and finish.

She was very fortunate in having as her assisting artist Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, who sang some Swedish and Norwegian songs as well as a group consisting of "When Roses Wake" (Mark Andrews), "Night, and the Curtains Drawn" (Ferrata), and "Alleluia," by Mozart, only the last named group being heard by this writer.

Mrs. Zendt has one of the most beautiful voices in Chicago and to this there has been added personality and charm of the most pronounced order. The audience of Tuesday night, like every audience before which she appears, found her work thoroughly pleasing and applauded her most enthusiastically.

The Mark Andrews song is a "find" of Mrs. Zendt's evidently, for no one else has yet sung it here. It is a very effective song and suits her to a nicety. The Ferrata work is one full of intensity of feeling and great musical beauty and Mrs. Zendt sang it admirably. The Mozart number is also "different" from ordinary program numbers and it gave Mrs. Zendt much opportunity for clarity of tone and facility of technic.

C. E. W.

THE BEETHOVEN TRIO

The second of the three evenings of chamber music being given at the Assembly Hall, Fine Arts Building, took place on Tuesday evening of last week when the Beethoven Trio, composed of M. Jennette Loudon, pianist, Otto B. Roehrborn, violin, and Carl Brueckner, violoncello, gave an excellent program to a fine attendance and much appreciation.

A function of this sort always draws a distinctive audience and this one was no exception, for professionals and dilettanti comprised the body of those present and the sensing of the music was as accurate as it was enthusiastic.

The program included "Trio," Op. 1, No. 3, Beethoven "Sonata" (violin and piano), A Minor, Schumann, "Trio," Op. 8, Brahms, a thoroughly fine list and one which this routine and absolutely artistic ensemble presented in a way to leave nothing to be desired.

The last concert will be given on March 25 and will take the form of a sonata evening by M. Jennette Loudon and Harry Weisbach.

C. E. W.

Fullerton Hall—On next Sunday evening Miss Henriette Weber will present the Le-cocq opera, "The Daughter of Mme. Angot," with a quartet of soloists, the personnel being Lucille Stevenson, Frederica Gerhardt Downing, Alfred Kanberg and Marion Green.

Columbia School of Music—On Sunday afternoon, March 21, a concert will be given at the Blackstone Theater by artist pupils of the school and the Columbia School Orchestra, under direction of Ludwig Becker.

FINE ARTS THEATER

The Fine Arts Players have, during the past fortnight, been presenting four short plays at the Fine Arts Theater each evening and have added much to their reputation and to the intellectuality of the audiences there assembled even if the subjects treated in the plays are not, in each case, particularly nice ones.

"The Burglar Who Failed," by St. John Hankin, is broad extravaganza, though billed as farce comedy. It has no point nor any character drawing of worth, but was well done, especially in the case of Mary Servoss in the role of "Dolly Maxwell."

"Criminals," by George Middleton, is wholly ridiculous in its stilted appeal, and though it is deft in word and movement, its subject matter is simply impossible.

"Conscience," by Qren Taft, Jr., is a strong little drama with two well drawn characters, which were played admirably by Kirah Markham and Walter Kingsford. It is perhaps superfluous to flaunt the ways and the ideals of "a girl of the streets" in the face of polite society, but nevertheless the play induces honest and perhaps thoroughly worth-while thought. At any rate, it is very tense, and as given by the Fine Arts Players it held the closest kind of attention.

"By Ourselves," the last of the quartet of playlets, is by Ludwig Fulda and is distinctly and deliciously clever and humorous. Geoffrey Stein, Mary Servoss, Manart-Kippen, Walter Kingsford and Madeline Armistead were each fitted with splendid parts and each one did splendid work.

This little play made the audience forget the atrocities of "The Burglar" and "Criminals," as well as the very bitter taste of "Conscience," and sent them away happy and still glad that the theater exists and that such writers as Fulda flourish.

C. E. W.

MARCELLA CRAFT TO SING IN CHICAGO

At the benefit concert for the St. Joseph's Hospital, to be given at Orchestra Hall on Monday evening, March 22, Miss Marcella Craft will make her first Chicago appearance. The entire program is exceptional and reads as follows:

Organ Concerto	Handel
Aria	Mr. Wilhelm Middelschulte
Gavotte	Pergolesi
	Bach
O del mio dolce ardor	Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Steindel
Violette	Gluck
Caro mio ben	Scarlatti
	Giordani
Ballade de lo Feu	Miss Marcella Craft
Minuet	Godefruid
	Hasselmans
Bergnacht	Mr. Enrico Tramonti
Wieder moecht ich dir begegnen	Berger
Erwachen	Sucher
Menuetto	Miss Marcella Craft
Harlequin	Beethoven
	Popper
Du meines Hezens Kronelein	Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Steindel
Allerseelen	Strauss
Schlagende	Strauss
	Strauss
Wiegenlied	Miss Marcella Craft
Harpe Eolienne	Poenitz
Pattuglia Spagunola	Godefruid
	Tedeschi
Star Trysts	Mr. Enrico Tramonti
June	Marion Bauer
Was that My Heart Is a Lute	Mrs. Beach
Enticement	Woodman
Separation	Rueckauf
	Mrs. Beach
	Miss Marcella Craft
	Harold Osborn Smith at the piano

###

Bruening—Mrs. Russell Oliver Johnson and Mrs. Hans Bruening gave a program of readings and songs at the Wisconsin College of Music in Milwaukee on March 8. The chief number was "In a Balcony" (Browning), for Mrs. Johnson, and the "Indian Love Lyrics" (Finden) by Mrs. Bruening.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York N.Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS

5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

ONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

BETSY M. HOWLAND IN RECITAL

When the reviewer presented his card at Kimball Hall on Sunday afternoon the guardian at the door forbade entrance, every seat being taken and a waiting list standing outside. Mr. Harmon Watt, seeing the emergency, made a place for the scribe, but others had to be turned away. Those who were there were thoroughly well entertained and there were flowers and enthusiasm for Miss Howland as well as for Mrs. Sidnie Smith Cooley, who added to the program two groups of song. Miss Howland has gone far enough up on the ladder of musical evolution to pause on the present round and survey her progress with a good sense of perspective. If she measures her accomplishments as did the reviewer she will credit herself with the possession of a wonderfully obedient memory, which, so far as could be observed, never played her false once during the elaborate program of the afternoon. She has induced it also to give an unquestioned authority thereby to the fingers, so that there is an abounding clarity and a steadfastness of rhythm that no sort of difficulties could disturb. There is a beautiful, well rounded tone also at command and fleetness for the floriture, as well as vigor and strength for the dramatic moments. If the decorative infusions of poetry and imagination are not as fully in evidence, it is because they are latent and waiting to be fitted on when the fundamentals shall be secure. In no one thing did the young artist give more able evidence of her gifts than in the Prelude and Fugue in D Major of Bach, as further arranged by Busoni. This had a splendid poise and surety, proportion and balance and its inherent difficulties never once obtruded themselves to the detriment of the excellent effect.

BETSY HOWLAND

Mrs. Cooley has a big contralto voice with liberal range, warm in its color and commendably well schooled. In the matter of tonality she faltered once or twice, but this did not seem to be a trait but rather an incident. The group of Russian songs went very well, the "Lilacs" of Rachmaninoff finding particularly grateful treatment at her hands. Mrs. Salter's "Night in Naisapur" song cycle is rich in the oriental color its title suggests, and Mrs. Cooley sang the various numbers with well thought out effects and made them very beautiful. She is a very good singer at present and gives of her unquestioned gifts generously.

Even if she be last mentioned, not least enjoyable were the accompaniments furnished by Mrs. Bessie McAllister, well shaded and supporting in every detail.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

TENNEY PUPILS IN LEWIS INSTITUTE CONCERT

Mr. George L. Tenney presented a quartet of pupils in concert at Lewis Institute on last Friday. Among the debutantes was Miss Ruth Simmons, who might object to

BORROFF

BASSO

"Magnificent—Almost Matchless."

"Encore after encore, yet at the end the audience to a man kept his sea and called loudly for more."

"Fairly Tetrizzini like."

"One of the most satisfactory singers on the American stage."

Comments of critics East, West, North and South.

Borroff averages over 80% return engagements.

504 Kimball Hall.

the title except that it was a first hearing for her in a new role, that of a singer. She has a contralto of lovely quality, so suave and mellow and smooth is it. Of course her musicianship shone out in the interpretative methods used and her three songs and the encore were thoroughly choice. And Mrs. Ethel Geistweit Benedict, who accompanied her, was a model of what such things should be—perhaps a little more so, for she made the piano part so winning that it was temptation all the time to listen to it. Young Mr. Eugene Dresser sang capital with a light tenor voice that Mr. Tenney is developing along the right lines and Donald Smith has a smooth baritone which he uses easily.

Regrettably, the entire program could not be heard by the reviewer. It included as its chief feature the ever-beautiful "Morning of the Year," of Cadman, and it goes without saying that Mr. Tenney's coaching would make the numbers enjoyable to the extreme.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

HELEN EDITH PETERSON IN CONCERT

Miss Helen Edith Peterson, contralto, sang in a concert at First Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church last Friday night, her selections being "Song of Spring" (Glover), "Curly Headed Baby" (Clutsam), "Happy Song" (Del Riego), "Hope in the Lord" (arr. Mason), and two Swedish songs, "Hemlangton" (Josephson) and "Fagelns Visa" (Soderberg).

Miss Peterson has for several years been soloist at the First Presbyterian Church of Lakeview. Her voice is one of exceptional charm, being rich, sympathetic and of ample range and volume and the ease with which she uses it adds greatly to its effectiveness.

The group, which included the first three selections above named, was sung most artistically and with fine spirit. "Hope in the Lord," an arrangement of Handel's "Largo" for voice, was well sustained and reverently interpreted. Mr. Arthur R. Reuder furnished the violin obligato for this number in a pleasing manner. The Swedish songs, which comprised Miss Peterson's last number, were greatly appreciated and demanded an encore.

Mrs. Harriet Hertz-Seyl, at the piano, gave splendid support by her proficient manner of accompanying.

Miss Viola M. Kiesling pleased the audience greatly by her well presented readings.

C. J. B.

EUTERPEAN MEN'S CHORUS

Saturday evening, March 13, the Euterpean Men's Chorus of Morgan Park, Edward T. Clissold, conductor, gave their second concert of the fourteenth season at the Methodist Episcopal Church. The chorus opened the program with "A Plainsman's Song" (Bliss), singing it with a vigor and power of tone that was startling. They give one the impression that whatever they would attempt they would do and do willingly and well.

The "Tinker's Chorus" (De Koven) and "Swing Along" (Cook) brought the program to a most enjoyable moment, for Mr. Clissold has splendid control of the chorus, and their renditions of those numbers was delightful. The Schubert-Liszt number was met with great favor. Miss Gertrude Evans sang the soprano obligato, acquitting herself with credit.

The Randegger number and two songs by Schilling were especially well liked by the audience. "Sunshine" was redemanded and it lost nothing in the repetition. "On the Sea" (Buck) was a happy choice as a closing number, for they sang it with great abandon and the same excellence of phrasing and enunciation that was one of the many delights of the splendid evening of songs. Mr. Clissold deserves special praise for the manner in which he conducted the program to a successful close. Mr. Frank Bronson was the accompanist. Mr. Henry Eames, pianist, played numbers by Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt.

H. W. P.

Stults—Reid Hillyard, a pupil of Walter Allen Stults, in the Northwestern University, gave a song program at Music Hall in Evanston on Thursday evening, the alternate artist being Miles A. Dreskell, violinist.

MARGARET LESTER IN RECITAL

Mr. Sandor Radanovits presented, as the second of his artist pupils' concerts, a song recital by Margaret Lester at the Fine Arts

MARGARET LESTER

Building on last Thursday evening, when the Recital Hall was filled to the utmost and the singing of the young soprano was greeted with unlimited enthusiasm.

Mrs. Lester has a voice of rare charm and her personality is such as to at once ingratiate her with any audience.

Coupled to this she has the rarest sort of intelligence in the use of her resources and in the interpretation of songs of wide variety of content and embracing many schools and languages.

Notably good was her German, Italian and French enunciation, while her English also proved a continual joy and delight.

Her voice is of exceeding sweetness and in the lighter phases of the singer's art is simply irresistible in the charm and ease with which she encompasses all the delicate tracery and all the effects demanded by writers of the filigree genre.

A Mozart aria, which opened the Thursday program, proved to be a model of legato, and a group of Schumann was made absolutely delightful, both from the vocal standpoints and in the charm and variety of expression displayed.

The second group was mostly in French and it also brought fresh evidences of a beautifully poised voice and absolute control of all musical resources. Particularly lovely was "L'Heure Exquise," by Hahn, in which the unusually long phrases were managed with excellent skill and the high lying passages were manipulated with absolute purity.

The third group, composed of numbers by Foerster, Harling, La Forge and Scott, brought further delight and was the means of showing Mrs. Lester's keen appreciation of English text songs and her rare gift for interpreting them.

The fourth group was of especial interest, for the songs were from the pen of William Lester, who presided at the piano throughout the evening, playing accompaniments that were, as always, authoritative and artistic. "Umbra," "It Was Not in the Winter," "A Vagabond's Song," "When I Am Dead, My Dearest," "A June Song," were the compositions presented in a thoroughly artistic manner by Mrs. Lester. Mr. Lester's style of writing is very original and effective. The musical values are excellent, and the close relation of text and music has made them very attractive. Mr. Lester's compositions have gained their place in the standard repertoire, and it is safe to predict a great future for him in his chosen field.

Corlew—Friday evening, April 2, Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, will be the soloist at the Englewood Presbyterian Church, when the choir will sing Gaul's "Passion Music."

Donath—The Kurt Donath pupils are now rehearsing the second act of "The Beggar Student."

JULIA CULP RECITAL

Manager F. Wight Neumann made a happy find when he began giving recitals at the Illinois Theater. With a fine sense of the desirability of effective surroundings the management of the theater gives a cosy stage setting for the concert giver, and, as a finishing touch, on Sunday afternoon at the recital of Julia Culp there was a bust of Bach on a pedestal and pictures of Beethoven and other art workers on mantel and wall, as well as soft lights to touch up a bit of tapestry in the background.

To hear Julia Culp sing the two Strauss songs, "Befreit" and "Morgen," was to participate in a mood of exaltation that made the moments unforgettable, so rare was the impression left upon a sympathetic listener.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MacDonald—Nelle Damuth MacDonald, soprano, will give a recital at Fowler M. E. Church, Millard avenue and Twenty-third street, Tuesday evening, March 23, singing a program of American songs. This is the second of a series of four to be given by her this spring. Thursday evening, March 17, she will sing a group of songs for the West Side Women's Civic Club; and will be special soloist at Diversey M. E. Church Sunday, March 21.

Zebrowska—Miss Antoinette Zebrowska, a former pupil of J. H. Chapek in Chicago, who has been abroad for study the past two years, has returned to Chicago and will give a concert at the New Polish Union Hall at Augusta street and Milwaukee avenue on next Sunday evening. She will be assisted by Agnes Nering, soprano, Ernest Kreizan, pianist, and Augusta Chapek, accompanist.

Turner Hall—Sunday afternoon, March 21, the twentieth orchestra concert under the direction of Martin Ballmann will be given with the following soloists: Ethel Evelyn Hoffmann, soprano, Victor Tufigno, violin, G. A. Hoffman, cello.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

CLARA BAUR, Foundress, 48th Year

Conducted according to the advanced methods of the most progressive European Conservatories.

A Faculty of International Reputation

Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

LITERATURE
EXPRESSION

MUSIC LANGUAGE
DRAMATIC ART

Special Features:—Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates.

STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME

FOR CATALOGUE

Address MISS BERTHA BAUR, Directress,
HIGHLAND AVENUE AND OAK STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

CEDRIC W. LEMONTPIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485Isabel RichardsonMUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. ChicagoEDNA DUNHAMSoprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New YorkJ. NOEL FOREST, TenorVOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981Allen W. BogenCONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGOHARRY S. AUSTINBASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758ALTA MILLERRECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COXTEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865Mrs. Charles L. KrumSOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986Vivian ScottTeacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-HarterConcerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R"ORPHEUS" AT FULLERTON HALL

Miss Weber, pursuant to many requests, repeated on last Sunday evening the old German-Italian-French "Orpheus," by Gluck.

Miss Weber explained that there had been two versions of this written by the composer, with an interval of ten years between, one in Italian and one in French, for although Gluck was German, he lived much in France also and this opera was written just at the turning point of opera from the old declamation style to the modern combination of song and drama.

Gluck, quite unusually, made the heroine of this opera a contralto, and it is because this part suits Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade so admirably that the work was so well liked last year and was again a resounding success on last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Slade has much temperament as well as a beautiful voice and good musicianship. She fills each role with dramatic feeling and carries her audience by storm when her beautiful voice is allowed full play and power.

"I Have Lost My Eurydice," that aria which has been sung by every contralto countless times, was made into a piece of glowing artistry by this singer and each of her numbers was a special delight. She has become a tremendous favorite at Fullerton Hall and she was greeted with much enthusiasm and the audience begged for many encores.

Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, who has also made a fine name and place for herself with the patrons of these Sunday evening functions, sang the part of Eurydice and sang it admirably. "The Elysian Fields" is a happy and charming song and Mrs. Warner infused it with splendid musical values as well as realizing to the full its gay mood.

Mrs. Warner sings with the utmost authority and colors everything with splendid dramatic and emotional tints.

The duet singing of the two artists was as effective as anything that has been done at Fullerton Hall this season and it proved immensely popular with the audience.

The instrumental numbers also were unusually well done. "Dance of the Furies" was a whirlwind of well controlled sound and "Happy Hours" was so charming that its repetition was necessary.

Bargman—These are from Sylvia Bargman's date book: November 7, private musicale, home of Mrs. Theodore Keller, Evanston; November 8, Central Eleanor Club; November 21, private musicale, home of Mrs. Theodore Keller, Evanston; November 23, concert of Milwaukee Mannerehor, Pabst Theater, Milwaukee, Wis.; January 16, concert at Mark White Square; February 2, concert for Chicago Federation of Girls' Clubs, in Chicago Woman's Club rooms; December 12, concert, Donovan, Ill.; February 16, private reception; March 28, engaged for Illinois Club.

Nordin—Mr. H. Wilhelm Nordin sang before the Chicago Woodlawn Woman's Club at the Woodlawn Masonic Temple Tuesday, March 9. His numbers were "Schmerzen" and "Traume," by Wagner. Mr. Nordin was accorded hearty applause. He gave as an encore Radecke's "Aus der Jugendzeit."

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Clara Andersen showed two weeks ago that she has remarkable facility and virtuosity by playing an entire Liszt program very well indeed, but last week she proved that she has wonderful versatility and a big repertoire as well, for the pianist announced for Tuesday evening falling ill, Miss Andersen was called upon at two days' notice to give an extra program, which she did with much credit to herself and her teacher, Miss Carrie Scott.

The "Rondo Capriccioso" and "Scherzo," by Mendelssohn, were played with much ease and a skillful admixture of delicacy and power. A "Minuet," by Mozart, was quaintly simple, while bravura works of Kowalski, MacDowell and Liszt again proved her brilliancy of technic and some smaller works of Sinding, Chopin and Grieg added color and variety to the program. She was assisted by W. Harold Simons, a young violinist.

WARREN E. PROCTOR

Warren Proctor, tenor, received an ovation at Illinois Athletic Club in concert on Sunday afternoon, assisted by Mrs. Maxon, contralto, and Mr. Smith at the piano. Their monthly club magazine, "Tri-Color," says in review of him:

Those who attended the Sunday afternoon concert on February 7 were most enthusiastic over the groups of songs rendered by Mr. Warren Proctor, the young American tenor. Mr. Proctor has a voice of unusual warmth and color. He sang "I Hear You Calling Me" with such excellent taste that he had to respond to several encores and many members expressed the wish that he might be re-engaged for one of the future concerts. Seldom, if ever, have we had a soloist at the Club who has given such a pleasing program.—Tri-Color, Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago. (Advertisement.)

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Kneisel Quartet assisted by Rudolph Ganz will give their third and last concert of this season at the Illinois Theater next Sunday afternoon, March 21, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program contains the Brahms Quartet, B Minor, Op. 51, No. 2, Smetana Quartet, E Minor, and the Cesar Franck Quintet, F Minor.

Charles W. Clark, the eminent baritone, will make his first public appearance in recital since his return from Paris at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, March 28, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Arthur Granquist, pianist, will give a recital at the Fine Arts Theater Sunday afternoon, April 4.

Maggie Teyte will be heard in a song recital at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, April 4, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. This will be Miss Teyte's only appearance in Chicago this season.

Albert Spalding, American violinist, will give a return engagement at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, April 11, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Apollo Club—Solo artists engaged for the performance of Bach's "Passion Music" by the Apollo Musical Club of 1,000 singers at the Auditorium Sunday afternoon, March 28, are Florence Hinkle, soprano; Alma Beck, contralto; Nicholas Douthy, tenor; G. Magnus Schutz, bass, and Burton Thatcher, bass.

LEMUEL W. KILBY IN SONG RECITAL

A complimentary song recital was given by Mr. Lemuel W. Kilby on Monday evening and for one hour he entertained the students and faculty of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory in right royal fashion.

Following out a plan of unique program making which he began some time ago, he on this occasion presented a program of all English works, including four old English songs ranging from 1695 to 1776 in their dates of composition and included in his list also compositions ranging down to the present day.

Of the Old English works, though all were charming, "Coelia" was the most distinctly so and the "Hunting Song" was most stirring—all being sung excellently.

Next followed the big baritone aria from "Hiawatha's Departure" (Coleridge-Taylor) and this was invested by Mr. Kilby with rare vocal art as well as convincing interpretative thought.

Mr. Kilby's voice is mellow and rich, while it is also powerful to the fullest need in robust arias of the Coleridge-Taylor sort and it is so much under his control that very dainty effects are possible also.

"My Ships That Went a Sailing" (Lohr) and "Long Ago in Egypt" (Lehmann) proved to be songs of lugubrious content, but were made to carry much vocal art by Mr. Kilby, the latter especially being done with rare skill.

"My Laddie" (Allitsen), "I Had a Flower" (Kellie), and "Pleading" (Elgar), were all of the finest sort of fiber musically and the reading accorded each by Mr. Kilby was correspondingly fine and suave.

"My Captain" (Scott) proved to be a big song in every sense of the word, albeit of somber color, and it was delivered with much virtuosity while "The Barber of Turin" (Russell), "The Floral Dance" (Moss) and "Stone Cracker John" (Coates), while in a lighter and more or less humorous vein were yet fine examples of vocal art also.

Four songs from the Tagore "Gitanjali," in a setting by Ronald, brought to light much of interest and were well received, particularly good was "Light, My Light," which also happens to be the only one of the Tagore poems chosen by both Ronald and Carpenter for their "Gitanjali" cycles.

Altogether, Mr. Kilby gave his auditors a fine treat and proved himself once more an artist very much worth while.

Accompaniments which were models, each song after its own kind, were played by Miss Marguerite Dresser, who is not only a fine pianist but who also can sense poetry to the full and knows always the musical intent of the composer she is playing and the artist she is seconding. C. E. W.

Peterson—Miss Helen Edith Peterson, contralto, was the soloist at Temple Shalom for the Ladies' Auxiliary, February 21, and was received with great enthusiasm. On Friday, March 12, Miss Peterson sang three groups of songs at a concert and she is directing the First Swedish Methodist Church. On March 18 she will give a recital for the Zion City Woman's Club.

University of Illinois—A series of organ recitals of much interest is being given by J. Lawrence Erb.

NORTH SHORE SCHOOL OF MUSIC

At a recent concert at the North Shore School of Music an interesting program was given by Camma Town, Gertrude McCaulcy, Dorothy Cairnes, Eunice Hoefer, Kittie Storm, Marion Deneen, Richard Hoefer, Eleanor Town, Herbert Kincaid, Kathleen Cairns, Henry Bond, Helen Brown, Richard Puffer, Dorothy Frederichs, Fingel Gustafson, Emeline Cook, Nell Foley, Paul Kullman and Ruby Clauson.

The following program was given on Thursday, March 11:

Piano—Valse Chromatique Godard
Miss Helen Whittelsey
Piano—Arabesque Chaminade
Miss Mildred Hartwick
Voice—
Aus meinen grossen Schmerzen Franz
Viel Traume Sinding
Volksliedchen Schumann
Miss Clara Herz
Piano—Mazurka, B Minor Chopin
Miss Mabel Smedley
For the Love of Mary Ellen
Mrs. Dora Lust

Piano—
Preludes B flat Major, C Minor, B Minor, G Minor Chopin
Romance, F minor Tchaikowsk
Miss Louise Haake

Voice—
From the Land of the Sky Blue Water Cadman Away On the Hill Ronald A Little Winding Road
Miss Clara Herz

The Cremation of Sam McGee
Mrs. Dora Lust

Piano—
Valse, B Minor Chopin
Valse, E Minor
Miss Marjorie Gallagher

MR. OWENS' PUPILS

Mr. H. W. Owens presented another group of pupils in recital at the Athenaeum Recital Hall on last Monday evening and again proved his skill in teaching and his good taste in selecting and giving a program.

These pupils were younger in experience than those of the previous week, for the most part, but their work was also full of good points and rife with promise for the future.

Luther Jones showed sincerity and considerable style in Lynes' "The Earth Is the Lord's." Miss N. G. Erickson had to her credit considerable facility in "Oh! Had I Jubal's Lyre" (Handel); Mrs. Foster was very facile in "Villanelle" (Del' Acqua); Florence Phillips was distinctive in a Welsh song, and Harlan Haines proved himself the possessor of a fine voice and a very good degree of artistic attainment in "Onaway, Awake, Beloved" (Coleridge-Taylor). Especially commendable was his enunciation.

Others on the program were: Arthur Wiman, Leona Enslen, Hattie Butler, Eva Enslen, Bessie Price, Gladys Johnson, Emma Enslen, Beatrice Parkhill, Lillie Anderson and Minnie Hecker.

Bush Temple—On last Friday evening, March 12, the following pupils of Charles W. Clark sang successfully in a recital at Bush Temple Conservatory. Misses Mary Wheeler, Olivia De Mand, Alice Calvert, Eleanor Orr, Julie Manierre, Marguerite Soule and Mrs. Lorraine Decker Campbell with Mrs. Lillian C. Wight, accompanist.

MacBurney—Mrs. Elsa Fern MacBurney will give a recital at Hamilton Park Field House on Monday evening, March 29.

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

1510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

Edith V. Rann

TEACHER OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE

OPERA SONG RECITAL PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Raoul S. Bonanno

CONCERTS AND RECITALS Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

FOURTH CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT

The Society for the Uplift of Chamber Music on the west side ended their first series of concerts on March 7 at Stiles' Hall, which was packed with a very representative and enthusiastic audience. The Dvorak Quintet (Miss Forst, piano; Messrs. George Hrusa, first violin, Melvin Martinson, second violin, A. Belshan, viola, and A. V. Cerny, violoncello) appeared in that exquisite classic, Schumann's "Piano Quintet, Op. 44," in which Miss Forst showed great talent and technical surety, in an excellent rendition of the piano part, and the ensemble work was of the remarkably fine quality always attained by this group of artists, the result of strenuous, untiring rehearsals, under the keenly critical direction of Mr. A. V. Cerny, director of the society. The generous co-operation of Dr. J. E. Salaba-Vojan, LL.D., has been especially valuable, his program notes showing great research, and presented with an eloquence, enthusiasm, and beauty of language entirely original and individual. Miss Jadwiga Dombeck has a magnificent contralto voice of unusual range, and the temperament of the genuine grand opera singer, as evinced in her rendition of the aria from Verdi's "Don Carlos," the tragic "The Gypsy Rose" Bendl, and the weird "Sentinel." That eminent baritone, Mr. Grant Hadley, scored an immense success with his fine selections, he possesses power and dramatic force; he also gave great delight with Dvorak's touching "Songs My Mother Taught Me," which was most warmly encored, and "Sing Me a Song of a Lad That Is Gone."

Mr. August Pfeifer, a graduate of Prague Conservatory, is a most brilliant flautist, giving a virtuosic performance of a particularly attractive concerto for flute, by William Blodek, which has a sparkling "vivace" a movement of great beauty and originality, in which Mr. Pfeifer's technical perfection was demonstrated in every variety of "passage playing"; the novel composition was much appreciated, and the exquisite tones of a very beautiful flute in the hands of so fine an artist, a genuine musical delight. The final item, that gem of overtures, "William Tell," brought a storm of enthusiasm, from the magnificent rendition by a novel combination of performers—string quintet, five violoncellos, flute and piano, four hands; those taking part were the Dvorak Quintet, the 'cellists, Miss Zdenka Cerny, Messrs. Janos Kmety, M. Martinson, J. Cimerá and A. V. Cerny, who performed the opening measures as a 'cello solo, of great beauty of tone and interpretation, later taking up his baton to conduct the "March," which was performed with a speed and brilliancy that roused the hearers to vociferous demands for a repetition. Miss Forst and Mr. Jaroslav Kosatka, the pianists, distinguished themselves by their splendid attack, precision and brilliant execution, and Messrs. George Hrusa and August Pfeifer divided the honors in their exquisite violin and flute passages in the "Mountain Song" with its pure and sweet tones. The audience gave several further rounds of applause to convey to the society their deep appreciation of this fine series of musical treats. A further series will be given in the fall, and will doubtless prove as entirely enjoyable as these, their brilliant forerunners.

AGNES BELDON.

SANDOR S. RADANOVITS STUDIO

Thursday evening, March 25, at 516 Fine Arts Building, the third of the artist series will be given by Isabel Richardson, soprano, and Artur F. Platz, tenor, pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits.

Nun bist du worden mein eigen.....	Hildach
Wolkslied.....	Berger
Miss Richardson and Mr. Platz
Volkslied.....	Berger
Sapphische Ode.....	Brahms
Die Forelle.....	Schubert
Beim Tanz.....	Hermann
Miss Richardson
Zueignung.....	Strauss
Murmelndes Lütchen.....	Jensen
Eine Brücke.....	Abt
Ein Traum.....	Grieg
Mr. Platz
Elysium.....	Speaks
Will o' the Wisp.....	Spross
To a Wild Rose.....	MacDowell
Springtide.....	Becker
Miss Richardson
I Am Thy Harp.....	H. Woodman
When Soft Winds Blow.....	Guedy
Wind from the South
Tarantella
In Italy.....	Boyd
Mr. Platz
The Day Is Done.....	Loh
Miss Richardson and Mr. Platz

SUMMER SCHOOL Stu the
Effa Ellis Perfield
 Teaching System and how to bleed Key-board Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
 The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
 Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
 SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
 218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
 Chicago, Ill.

ESTELLA NEUHAUS

Estella Neuhaus, the eminent pianiste, who was so enthusiastically received on her debut in Chicago, March 8, will give her second recital at the Fine Arts Theater on Monday afternoon next, March 22, at 3 o'clock. Miss Neuhaus' programs are different, unusual and distinctly lovely, and while she is essentially a musicians' musician, her art is thoroughly enjoyed by children—physically and musically. The program follows:

Sonata, Op. 57.....	Beethoven
Allegro assai
Andante con moto—Allegro ma non troppo
Spanish: Caprice Creole.....	Albeniz
Tango.....	Albeniz
Castilian Dance.....	Albeniz
Readings by J. Howe Clifford
Andante Spianato and Grand Polonaise.....	Chopin
Two Mazurkas.....	Chopin
Hungarian Gypsy Chant.....
Hungarian Csardas.....
Nocturne, D Flat Major.....	Chopin
Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 12.....	Liszt

Minnesota—The annual meeting of the Minnesota State Teachers' Association will be held at Albert Lea on June 22, 23 and 24.

TWO TALENTED YOUNG ARTISTS

The accompanying pictures show Miss Pearl McAdams and Miss Irene Graf in va-

MISS GRAF AND MISS McADAMS
In "Der Freischuetz"

rious operatic costumes, as also Miss McAdams in an interpretative dance.

These two young ladies are pupils of Mr. Kurt Donath and were heard to excellent advantage in a recent performance of opera excerpts given by him at the Little Theater, a detailed account of the function having appeared in the last issue of Music News.

Miss McAdams has a rich mezzo-contralto voice, beautifully trained and with much warmth of feeling. She has been a pupil of Mr. Donath for three years and does great credit to his instruction.

She has already sung very successfully in "Beggar Student," "Madame Butterfly," "Carmen," "Martha" and "Der Freischuetz," and in June will again appear with Mr. Donath at the Little Theater, singing "Gany-

MISS IRENE GRAF
As "Leonora"

mede" in "Galatea," "Martha" in "Faust" and "Bronistava" in "Beggar Student."

Miss McAdams also specializes in interpretative dancing, having given a program of Oriental, Egyptian and Grecian dances at the Little Theater on February 27 most successfully and being booked to appear there again early in April.

Miss Graf has a lovely lyric soprano voice with all the range and flexibility necessary to the coloratura also, and she has sung very successfully in "Hansel and Gretel."

MISS PEARL McADAMS
As "Salome"

"Der Freischuetz," "Carmen," "Il Trovatore," "Madame Butterfly" and "Martha," having been a student with Mr. Donath for four years.

She made a most attractive "Agnes" in the recent "Freischuetz" performance at the Little Theater and successfully played "Leonora" opposite Mr. Donath's "Manrico" in "Trovatore." In June she will be the "Lovely Galatea" in "Galatea," and will have the important part of "Marguerite" in "Faust."

OAK PARK, ILL.

From Oak Leaves we quote the following:

A most successful and brilliant musical program was given by Mrs. Caroline E. Buckley and Miss Georgiella E. Lay before the music department of the Nineteenth Century Club on Wednesday morning.

During the year the department has considered the various developments and forms of the symphony, and the present program on the "Finale and Conclusion" of the symphony finished the series on this subject.

Mrs. Buckley and Miss Lay, at the piano, showed marked appreciation and understanding, both in technique and interpretation of the several masters whose works were presented by them in duet form.

So successful did this program prove to be that the club unanimously requested its repetition at the end of the season.

Smith—William Griswold Smith sang a number of Irish songs at the St. Patrick's day meeting of the Chicago Woman's Club on Wednesday, March 17.

ST. MARK'S, EVANSTON

Some excellent music was heard at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Evanston, last Sunday afternoon, at the vesper service.

Mr. Robert Holmes, choirmaster, and Mr. Stanley Martin, organist, form a combination not often surpassed in connection with choir work, and the singing of the choir on this occasion showed the result of the competent direction and able support it receives at the hands of these men. The processions were spirited, the chants and responses were beautifully modulated, and the "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis in D," by Gadsby, were marked by fine contrasts.

"Jesu, Word of God Incarnate," with music by Mozart, sung as offertory anthem, was a fine piece of work. In fact, all the work of this choir on Sunday afternoon was exceptional in tone quality, shading, and blending of parts.

At the close of the service Mr. Martin gave a brief organ recital, which proved him to be a thoroughly artistic and competent musician. His program included:

Evensong	Johnson
Largo (New World Symphony)	Dvorak
Priere (Suite Gothique)	Boellman

On next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 "The Crucifixion" will be sung, with John Rankl, soloist. C. J. B.

MME. AGNES LEIST-BEEBE GIVEN AN OVATION

The clear soprano voice of Mme. Beebe was never heard to better advantage than in the Zukovsky Orchestra concert last Sunday afternoon, when she sang a group of songs comprising French, German and English, each of which was given with vocal beauty and artistic interpretation. In the aria "Ah, fors e lui," from "La Traviata," Mme. Beebe proved her thorough understanding of dramatic and legato singing, as well as complete mastery of vocal technique. The perfect enunciation and splendid stage presence of this singer also helps toward winning thorough appreciation from her audience.

After several encores Mme. Beebe sang "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," by Bischof, accompanied by Mr. Julius Furman, with flute obligato. The rendition of this number was so beautiful and the tones of the voice so nearly the same as the flute that it was followed by persistent and prolonged applause. The piano accompaniments by Mr. Karl Albrecht were given with true musical dignity. I. PEGAN.

Winter—Fannie E. Warren presents Louise Hattstaedt-Winter in a program of Italian songs before the Rogers Park Woman's Club Monday afternoon, March 22, with Doris Carter at the piano.

Torgerson — Helena Stone-Torgerson, harpist, and Jennie Bomar-Ricketts, reader, will furnish the program at Bryn Mawr Women's Club Monday, March 22.

A CHURCH CONCERT

Last Sunday evening at the Morgan Park Methodist Episcopal Church was given a most interesting sacred musicale, under the direction of Mrs. Stanley Wood. The musicale was the culmination of a series of eight lessons in choral singing which Mrs. Wood had given to two classes of pupils from the Sunday school, one class of young boys and girls and another class of young women and men. A unique feature of the occasion was the reading by the pastor, Rev. Evans, of the exposition of the Twenty-third Psalm, given by "The Assyrian guest," illustrated at various points by the chanting of the boys and girls class of excerpts from the psalm.

All the singing of the choirs was marked by an accuracy of attack, a beauty of tone and a sustained volume exceedingly remarkable when the fact is understood that the preparatory training had been received by only eight class lessons given by Mrs. Wood. The object of these lessons was the creation of musical interest in the Sunday school and the establishing of a virile and efficient Sunday school choir. Undoubtedly Mrs. Wood has accomplished wonderful results in such a limited period of time.

Both the organ and a grand piano were used in the accompaniments, Miss Helen Marvin, a pupil of Mrs. Wood's studio, playing the piano. The solos sung by Miss Gertrude D. Evans and by Mr. N. S. Beardsley were the work of accomplished musicians, who lent their assistance to the entertainment of the evening. There was a large and interested audience present.

T. X.

HONORS FOR S. E. GRUENSTEIN

A concert was given at the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Forest on last Saturday night to mark the completion of the reconstruction of the three manual organ, an audience of 800 people being present.

Mr. Gruenstein, who has been organist of this church for twenty-four years, played a splendid program of organ numbers and at the completion of the program was presented with a silk robe of the A. G. O.

The degree of Master of Music was also conferred upon him.

The other artists on the program were Else Harthan Arendt, soprano; Edith Maldwyn Jones, contralto; Arthur Kraft, tenor, and Alex P. Gray, bass, all of whom were received with enthusiastic approval by the audience.

Bartholomew—Mr. H. B. Bartholomew was accompanist for Marion Green in his Batavia, Ill., recital. Miss Louise G. Wagner, contralto, a pupil of Mr. Bartholomew, appeared as soloist at the First Congregational Church at Aurora on last Sunday evening.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer Conservatory
Violinist WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHARINE D'ORSAY
Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium Merrick Bldg. Phone Erglewood 9748

People & Events

WILLIAM LESTER

William Lester, whose likeness is on the current cover page of Music News, is one of the younger musicians of America who is creating much interest by his constantly increasing catalog of achievements. He has had a quiet, healthy growth, unmarked by sensationalism of any kind—a constant crescendo of self-betterment, which is the truest promise for still greater things in the future. About five years ago Mr. Lester began to attract attention by the distinctive quality of his accompaniments, and from that time until the present he has ripened and deepened in his art until today he is classed as one of the few elect in that field. During the past two seasons he has appeared with such artists as Florence Hinkle, Eleanore di Cisneros, Helen Stanley, Jane Osborn-Hannah, Enrica Clay-Dillon, Jessie Lynde Hopkins, Augusta Alberti-Meeker, Rose Lutiger Gannon, Lambert Murphy, Gustaf Holmquist, Herbert Witherspoon, Reinald Werrenath, Arthur Middleton, Edmund Clement, Arthur Burton, Warren Proctor, Helen Ware, Isabel Richardson, Grant Kimbell, Marion Green and Julia Koskelo. His wide knowledge of song literature and sound musicianship have drawn to him a large class of enthusiastic pupils and he has been very successful as a coach for singers. For the past four years Mr. Lester has been organist and director of music at the Memorial Church of Christ. His training for organ was with Wilhelm Middelschulte; in theory and composition with Adolf Brune.

Until about a year and a half ago, little was known of Mr. Lester as a composer outside of his circle of personal friends. But enough material had been shown at various times to create a deep interest in this strong and individual talent so quietly working towards its destiny. A little over a year ago the White-Smith Music Publishing Company of Boston published four songs by the young Chicago composer, which set of songs gave evidence that the work done in privacy was now come to its reward for, according to such reviewers as A. Walter Kramer, in "Musical America"; Gustav Saenger, in the "Musical Observer," and reviews in the Music News, Musical Courier, Musical Leader, Chicago Inter-Ocean and other authorities, the composer possessed of splendid technical equipment and inspiration, gave evidence of a most distinctive individuality and emotional feeling. The success of these first four songs was so prompt and deep that a second set of three more songs was published by the same company within six weeks. Singers like Helen Stanley, Florence Hinkle, Beatrice MacCue and Jane Osborn-Hannah programmed the songs at once, with great success. Since that time other publishers—G. Schirmer, Clayton F. Summy Company and Carl Fischer—have brought out many other compositions, songs, anthems, choruses, and (just fresh from press) a new Easter cantata, "The Triumph of the Greater Love," which is to be given at Saint James' Episcopal Church Sunday afternoon, April 18, by the choir of that church, assisted by Margaret Lester, soprano; Augusta Alberti-Meeker, alto; Warren Proctor, tenor; Cardon V. Burnham, baritone, Palmer Christian, organist, and members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of John W. Norton. Mr. Lester's choruses and anthems have been widely used—notably two choruses for mixed voices, "Under the Rose" and "Home," written for and first performed by the Chicago Madrigal Club last spring, and three choruses, Op. 40, given with great success at the last concert of the Chicago Mendelssohn Club.

The young composer has had valuable assistance from his wife, Margaret Lester, soprano, soloist at McCabe Memorial Methodist Church, a pupil of Sandor Radanovits, and one of the most artistic of the younger singers today. Mr. and Mrs. Lester have created quite a field for themselves with a joint program devoted to piano pieces and songs by this composer. Mr. Lester is unusually fertile for so young a composer. At the present time he has in manuscript five cantatas, two ballads for chorus and orchestra, a suite for string quartet, violin sonata, rhapsodie for violin and piano, two suites for violin and piano, two suites for cello and piano, suite for organ, two piano suites, about 180 songs, many separate pieces for piano and organ, about sixty choruses and anthems, an operetta and seven duets. During the past year and a half the following numbers have been published:

WHITE-SMITH MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, BOSTON

"To Phyllis," song for high or low voice.
"As a Perfume Doth Remain," song for high or low voice.
"Echo," song for high or low voice.
"Compensation," song for high or low voice.
"Apple Blossoms," song for high or low voice.
"Remembrance," song for high or low voice.
"My Rose," song for high or low voice.
"Christmas Lullaby," song for high or low voice.
"To Music," song for high voice.
"Song of Proserpine," song for high voice.
"Just as I Am," sacred song for high voice.
"Rockabye Town," song for low voice.
"Hushabye, My Baby," song for low voice.
"In the Quiet Hours with Jesus," duet for soprano and alto.
"Sleep, Holy Babe," trio for women's voices.
"The Light of God," anthem for chorus of mixed voices.
"Give Thanks unto God," anthem for chorus of mixed voices.
"The Glory of the King," anthem for chorus of mixed voices.
"Abide with Me," anthem for chorus of mixed voices.
"Under the Rose," chorus for mixed voices.
"Home," chorus for mixed voices.
"Spring Fever," chorus for men's voices.

G. SCHIRMER, NEW YORK

"A Dirge," song for low voice.
"The Lord Is in His Holy Temple," anthem for mixed chorus.
"The Tryst," part song for women's voices.
"Phyllis and Damon," part song for women's voices.
"O Mistress Mine," part song for men's voices.
"If She Be Made of White or Red," part song for men's voices.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

"Come unto These Yellow Sands," part song for men's voices.

"The Path of Righteousness," trio for soprano, alto and tenor.

CARL FISCHER, NEW YORK

"The Triumph of the Greater Love," cantata for soli, chorus, organ and orchestra.

CLAYTON F. SUMMY COMPANY, CHICAGO

"My Prayer," sacred song for medium voice.

"Evening Hymn," sacred song for medium voice.

"My Own," chorus for men's voices.

"Song of the Sea," chorus for men's voices.

"The Northland," chorus for men's voices.

"Ghosts," chorus for men's voices.

"A Song of Joy," chorus for men's voices.

SUCCESS OF YEATMAN GRIFFITH'S STUDENTS

At a reception given at the home of Mrs. Thomas Chadbourne of New York, for her mother, Mrs. W. S. Crossby, of Chicago, Miss Juanita Prewett, soprano, of California, and Mr. Hardy Williamson, English tenor, (both studying in New York with Yeatman Griffith) won splendid success.

Miss Prewett sang the "Bird Song" from "Pagliacci," a duet from "Madame Butterfly" with Mr. Williamson, and a beautiful song by Mrs. Chadbourne, "Spring's Morning," which she was obliged to repeat. Mr. Williamson's selections were from "La Boheme" and two songs by Max Herzberg, "My Love" and "My Lovely Nancy," which called forth enthusiastic appreciation and were sung several times.

Both artists were in excellent voice. Mrs. Crossby was prevailed upon to give piano selections from Wagner, for which she is famous, and Mrs. Yeatman Griffith lent to the charm of the afternoon by her beautiful accompanying.

Among the guests present were: General Pagani, Effie Shannon, Kate Douglass Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. Yeatman Griffith, Mr. Pasternack, Mrs. John Flagler, Mrs. Force, Mrs. George Hamlin, Mrs. Edmund Burton, Dr. Percy S. Grant, Mrs. Alexander Durer Irving, Mrs. Josephine Hunt and Mrs. Marsden Perry of Newport.

Joyce—At the Clara L. Joyce Studios, 2104 Washington boulevard, on Sunday afternoon, March 7, a fine program of piano music was given by Esther Burnham, Katherine Egarter, Marion Goebel, Celia Blair, Anita Von Stefanelli, Harry Maybrook, Mary Hartnett, John Hartnett, Catherine McDonnell, Gregory Fahey, Margaret McDonald, Rose Mary Flood, Lauretta Wendorff, Pauline Poirier, Edith Fernandez, Helen McDonnell, Eunice Weisenberg, Alice Clifton, Florence Williams, John Whittingham and Elizabeth Hornbeck.

Chamber Music—The third evening of chamber music in the Fine Arts Assembly Room will be a sonata recital by Harry Weisbach, violin, of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and M. Jennette Loudon, piano, on Thursday, March 25. The "Sonata," Op. 28, by Julius Weisman, will be played for the first time in Chicago. The program will include the Mozart "Sonata C Major," No. 8, and the Beethoven "Sonata in G Major."

Loomis—Clarence Loomis of the American Conservatory faculty has been engaged to teach piano two days each week at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

From the dramatic department of the Wisconsin College of Music a series of dramatic readings is announced by Mrs. Russell Johnson, at the first of which the following program was given, with the assistance of Mrs. Hans Bruening, soprano, and Mr. Bruening at the piano.

At an open meeting of the Tuesday History Club, March 30, the North American Indian will be the subject and Mrs. Bruening will sing the Indian cycle of song by Cadman and five Indian sketches will be played by Raymond Meyer. Miss Isabel Schoenecker will be the accompanist. Pupils' recitals are of weekly occurrence and those of Arnold Krueger and Margaret Kissinger as well as Mrs. Johnson will be heard in the immediate future.

I. B. W.

LILY WADHAMS-MOLINE

The following program was given and enthusiastically received last Monday evening at the Lily Wadhams-Moline School of Music, 2434 Burling street:

Al Meda Wadhams, pianist

Lily W. Moline, soprano

Ariette—Je Veux Vivre.....Gounod
A Spirit Flower.....Tipton

Nocturne in F Sharp.....Chopin

Etude in E Flat.....Chopin

Depuis le Jour—"Louise".....Chapientier

Karlekens Vag, "Love's Way".....Chapientier

Lily Wadhams Moline, Pub. April 1, 1915

In Slumberland.....Brahms

Rhapsodie, Op. 79, No. 2.....Lily W. Moline

Etude de Concert.....MacDowell

Polonaise.....MacDowell

Society of American Musicians—On Sunday afternoon, May 2, the Society of American Musicians will inaugurate a series of five concerts of chamber music to be given in Fullerton Hall, Art Institute, on the Sunday afternoons in May. These concerts will be under the artistic direction of Mr. Hugo Kortschak and Mr. Ludwig Becker, who will appear on each program, assisted by young American players and singers. The programs will be made up of the compositions of the old masters and such works of American composers as are available. Two concerts will be given each Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. and 4:15 p. m. A nominal fee of ten cents will be charged. Season tickets may be procured at the Art Institute and from Mr. William Beard, secretary, 712 Fine Arts Building. Price fifty cents.

Ring—Robert J. Ring, pianist, and James B. Stevens, vocalist, gave a program at Winona College (Winona Lake, Ind.) last Wednesday, Mr. Ring playing "Hungarian Rhapsodie," No. 15 (Liszt), "Polonaise" and "Etude" (Chopin), "In My Neighbor's Garden (Nevin), "Octave Study" (Czerny) and "Staccato Caprice" (Vogrich). Mr. Stevens presented songs by Schumann, Handel, Mozart, Haile. Readings were given by Miss Emma Saphene Wyman.

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan, tenor, sang at the dedication of the organ at the Cathedral, Clinton, Ia., on March 7, last Friday at the West End Woman's Club, and on March 16 for the Knights of Columbus in Austin.

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE

TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELI

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case

SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSIC

Clarence Eidam

Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist

YOST
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel

MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

FORT HAYS NORMAL CHORUS AND SOLOISTS IN "CREATION"

March Festival at Fort Hays, Kansas, Normal School

A new and swiftly growing music center has arisen on the horizon of wealthy Kansas in the past year at Hays City, where the Fort Hays Normal School is located, and fast becoming one of those flourishing educational institutions for which Kansas is noted. One year ago the music department of this school amounted to practically nothing and the ever progressive president, Mr. W. A. Lewis, set out to find a man wholly qualified to become the head of this department and build it up to or above the standard already maintained by many of the other Kansas schools. The location of Hays City, in the central western portion of the state marks it as an ideal place for the development of a great school in that there are no colleges of any description to be found within a radius of a hundred miles and the people are clamoring and boosting for just such a school as is now becoming a reality. The man needed to make the music department a success had to be one who knows the needs of Kansas along musical lines, a versatile musician, a hard worker and one not afraid to go ahead and tackle big undertakings. Henry Edward Malloy was the person chosen to fill the position and it is safe to say at this early date that the proper man is at the helm. Mr. Malloy was for many years a successful voice teacher, concert artist, orchestra and chorus conductor at Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kansas, achieving enviable success there as bass soloist in the many "Messiah" productions, and in 1914 he conducted those performances with excellent results.

He is known to be one of the most brainy men in the musical profession of Kansas, and since coming to Hays City last June, a great change has come, not only in the school but the city and surrounding country as well as to the attitude of the people on the development of music study. Interest in and a desire to hear and learn to appreciate the larger and more serious forms of music has been aroused which is bound to grow as the years roll by.

PRESIDENT W. A. LEWIS

Mr. Malloy has accomplished in one year,

HENRY EDWARD MALLOY

with the aid and support of the entire Normal faculty and students as well as the people of Hays, in organizing an oratorio chorus of one hundred and fifty voices, an operatic society and a symphony orchestra capable of presenting a four days' music festival in a manner which merits great praise. This festival took place on March 10, 11, 12 and 13, in the Normal Auditorium, with Haydn's "Creation" and Planquette's "The Chimes of Normandy" as the chief attractions.

The soloists brought to the Normal for this festival were Anna Agnes Bailey, soprano, of Chicago; Garnett Hedge, tenor, of Brookings, S. Dak., and Herbert M. Bailey, baritone, of Chicago. The orchestra was augmented by the addition of several players from Lindsborg. The first two days which included one performance each of "Creation" and "The Chimes" was open to the public at large, and a special train was run to bring in a crowd from the west. The last two days, which included three performances, was given to the members of the Golden Belt Educational Association who were in session at the Normal, eight hundred strong, and the Golden Belt Editorial Conference, which was in session at the same time.

A Performance of "The Chimes"

On Wednesday evening the auditorium held a capacity crowd when the first performance of "The Chimes of Normandy" was given with the following cast, which, with the exception of Miss Allen and Mr. Hedge, was made up with singers who never had taken part in a public opera performance before:

KATHLEEN IRELAND

Serpolette, the Good for Nothing.....	Kathleen Ireland
Germaine, the Lost Marchioness.....	Anne Allen
Gertrude	Miss A. La
Jeanne	Miss Margery Crichton
Manette	Miss Judith Nord
Suzanne	Miss Pansy Roberts
Henri, Marquis of Corneville.....	Mr. George King
Jean Grenicheux, a Fisherman.....	Mr. Garnett Hedge
Gaspard, a Miser.....	Mr. Lyman D. Wooster
The Baili.....	Mr. Ralph Ward
The Registrar.....	Mr. Lew Wallace
The Assessor.....	Mr. Thomas Mock
The Notary.....	Mr. Ira H. Van Cleave

Miss Ireland, who is a pupil of Mr. Malloy, achieved great success in the part of "Serpolette." Her voice is one of those beautiful high sopranos such as one hears only occasionally. It is well developed throughout its entire scale, capable of much volume in the heavier passages and especially delightful in the softer work. She sings with intelligence at all times, thereby making every phrase and mood expressive, and as an actress she is highly gifted. Her part was one of the most realistic seen during the performance. The solo portions allotted this character were sung with telling effect by Miss Ireland, and she entered into the ensemble numbers with understanding and individuality. Her costumes were especially appropriate, as were those of Miss Allen, who came into great favor and easily carried off a goodly portion of the honors of the evening by her excellent singing and sincere acting of the part of "Ger-

ANNE E. ALLEN

(Continued on page 30)

CLARA LOUISE MALLOY

WALTER E. OBERT

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

THE JEWETT PLAYERS IN "A MID-SUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM"

Last week the Henry Jewett Players gave Shakespeare's "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," to a large house at the Boston Opera House, and sustained their reputation as actors that could present the great play-writer's charming work to the delight of the audience and the satisfaction of the management.

In the setting for the different scenes at least ten opera scenery and settings were used, among which were the "wood wings, forests and interiors from "Monna Vanna," "Pagliacci," "Mefistopheles," "Forest Bleu," "Martha," "Trovatore," and others, and properties taken from an equally wide range, and this wealth of resource gave the most wonderful wood and fairy dells that Puck, Oberon and Titania, with their retinue, ever danced and played their pranks in.

And could Shakespeare, who wrote his plays with no idea of having them given with scenery, have been present at one of these productions and heard the beautiful Mendelssohn music and seen the creatures of his fancy, among the grottoes and beneath the great trees, costumed in light draperies and airy, colored fabric, while they recited his classic tongue, a pardonable pride, as well as surprise, might have possessed him that a play written for another time and generation, could be so intensely interesting and so adaptable to the requirements and so well suited to the unvitiated taste of a modern public.

The "Midsummer-Night's Dream" was written between 1593 and 1595, but it really is a "May-night's dream," for the morning following the night occupying most of the play is "the morn of May."

"St. John's night," or "Midsummer eve" has always been associated with fantastic revels, and with rairies and gnomes. It is no doubt this element that gave the play its name.

"Twelfth Night" began the week of March 8 and following his two consecutive successes, "Falstaff" and "Bottom," Henry Crocker will play Sir Toby Belch. To the ever popular Leonard Mudie the part of Ague-cheek has been entrusted, and Malvolio goes to the versatile and gifted Max Montesole. The "Olivia" will afford Miss Irby Marshall an opportunity to present a vivid contrast to the role of Katharine in "The Taming of the Shrew," in which part she made her debut at the Boston Opera House. Miss Compton needs no introduction, having long since won her way into the hearts of the patrons of this capital stock company. In "Twelfth Night" she is to play Viola. George Relph will interpret the role of Orsino.

§ § §

Eurhythmics at the New England Conservatory

Facts concerning the establishing of a department of eurhythmics after the system of Jaques Dalcroze at the New England Conservatory of Music are set forth in a long article of the New England Conservatory Magazine-Review for March which has just appeared. A description is given of the work of the present class in rhythmic gymnastics under Mlle. Renee Longy, and Miss Bertha Draper King, one of the Conservatory alumnae, writes interestingly of Dalcroze's personal side as observed in the summer of 1913 at his celebrated college of eurhythmics near Dresden.

This number of the Magazine-Review quotes a statement from Louis C. Elson regarding recent successes of graduates of this institution. "The New England Conservatory," writes the well known critic, "has been bearing good fruit in the way of pianists lately. We have had Mr. Lee Pattison (a Paernann pupil), in a remarkably strong program; Miss Laeta Hartley (Stasny), with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in Cambridge; Mr. Julius Chaloff (De Voto) has been making a great success in Berlin, Frankfurt, Hamburg and many other German cities, but he has now come back to Boston, and Mr. Guy Maier (Proctor), who has been studying recently in Berlin, now places the results of his work at the disposal of the Boston public. The European war has driven the three male artists above named back to Boston."

So successful was a Wagner concert given by the New England Conservatory Orchestra with chorus in Jordan Hall last evening (Friday, March 5) that the program will be repeated in the same place next Tuesday afternoon. The demand for tickets was almost unprecedented.

One of the especially effective numbers was that of the entrance of the gods into Walhalla, from "Das Rheingold," in which the part of Wotan was sung by Charles Bennett and those of Frah and Loge by Clarence B. Shirley, both of the faculty; of Weglinde by Edith M. Woodman (Grand Pre, N. S.); Wellgunde, Dorothy Cook (Brookline); Flesohilde, Mrs. Marie B. Moore (Cambridge). The song "Traueme" was rendered by Agnes D. Reid (Baltimore). Other numbers were from "Lohengrin," "Tristan and Isolde," "Parsifal," "Die Walkure" and "Die Meistersinger."

Charles Wakefield Cadman's music had a pretty exemplification at the New England Conservatory in a performance yesterday afternoon (Friday, March 5) of "Sayonara," a little Japanese romance, the words by Nelle Richmond Eberhart, given as part of the program of a recital by the pantomime and rehearsal class. The only speaking part which this piece-calls for was taken by Julia Lennen, a student from Little Rock, Ark. The program also contained an interesting revival of the old eighteenth century French comedy, "Adrienne Briqueville," by Meilhac and Halevy. The four characters were impersonated by Margaret Gulezian, Lee Estabrook, Ray Holmes and Grace French. An original two scene pantomime, "The Under One," was by Edith Hawes of Kansas City.

§ § §

From the Faelten Bulletin

During February forty-four pupils of the Faelten Pianoforte School appeared in playing tests, and test recitals, with educative and interesting programs were given Thursday afternoon and evening, February 4 and 11, Saturday afternoon, February 13, and Thursday night, February 18.

Other activities of the month were:

INTERPRETATION LESSONS By the Director, Mr. Carl Faelten

FEBRUARY 3

Haydn—Sonata, D major.
Weber—Rondo brillante, Op. 62.
Raff—Messengers of Spring, Op. 55, Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 12; Rigaudon, Op. 204, No. 5.

FEBRUARY 10

Gaupp—Sonata, D major, Fischer Ed., 1915.
Hummel—Rondo brillante, Op. 109.
Chopin—Polonaise, D minor; Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 3; Ballade, F major.

FEBRUARY 17

Bach—Prelude and Fugue, Peters' Ed., 207.
Beethoven—Sonata, Op. 10, No. 3.
Field—Nocturne, A major.
Chopin—Valse, E minor.
Liszt—Spinning Song from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman."

FEBRUARY 24

By Mr. George Pratt Maxim, pianist; and Mrs. George Pratt Maxim, reader
Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," with music by Richard Strauss, Opus 38.

§ § §

The 108th Anniversary of Pierian Sodality
Saturday night, March 6, the Pierian Sodality, made up of Harvard undergraduate musicians, held its annual dinner at the Thorndike Hotel.

The occasion celebrated the 108th anniversary of the organization, which took place in 1807, making it the oldest college musical organization in the United States.

Howard Shaw, a former president of the sodality, acted as toastmaster, and among the speakers was Dr. Archibald T. Davison, the university choirmaster. Professor Frank W. Taussig, noted Harvard economist, told of the Pierian Sodality in his undergraduate days at Harvard, when he was its president.

The officers elected by the Pierian musicians for the coming year are: President, E. B. Packard of Watertown; vice president, A. Belden of Albion, N. Y.; manager, Wilfred J. Brown of Plymouth; treasurer, P. D. Woodbridge of West Newton.

—§§§—

Eidam—Mr. Clarence Eidam will present his pupil, Elizabeth Layman, in piano recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Tuesday evening, March 23. She will play "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue" (Bach), "Sonata" Op. 31 (Beethoven), "Rhapsodie" (Brahms), "Song Without Words" (Mendelssohn), "Mazurka," "Berceuse" and "Scherzo" (Chopin), "Prelude" (Gliere) and "Etude" and "Rhapsodie" (Liszt).

—§§§—

Clarke—Edward Clarke and Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, have been engaged to appear at the annual convention of the Indiana Music Teachers' Association, to be held at Greencastle, Ind., April 29. There will be two artists' programs. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, together with James Whittaker, pianist of Chicago, will give the program the first evening.

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

The popular orchestra concerts of the Municipal Orchestra are drawing to a close, much to the regret of many people. At the last concert it was necessary to use almost the entire auditorium, making the demands on soloists much more strenuous than earlier in the season. This appreciation of the public reassures the management to plan for another season. Very marked improvement in the ensemble is constantly noted, and the programs have been chosen with care and discrimination. The soloists of the last three concerts have been Mr. Edward Kappelman, Mrs. Louis Auer and Miss Charlotte Peege.

Mr. Kappelman was heard in a composition of Hugo Kaun, the first rendition in this city. He is of the Moerschel School, which is itself an assurance of good work, and he is himself a teacher in the Wisconsin Conservatory. Mr. Kappelman's playing at this time was clear cut and forceful.

Mrs. Louis Auer's lovely soprano has never been heard to better advantage than in her selection of "Inflammatus" of Rossini. So interested was the audience that she was obliged to respond with two encores.

Miss Charlotte Peege, soloist at the last concert, is being constantly recognized as equal to most of the professional contraltos visiting the city. She was heard in "Penelope's Trauer," Max Bruch, which is one of the most exacting arias written, and was superbly rendered by Miss Peege.

The Arion Chorus have added two concerts to their regular series, a recital by Evan Williams and another by Florence Hinkle. We are quite indebted to the Arion club for this further activity as our concert season was so suddenly curtailed early in the year. The program for the Williams concert is announced and contains many of the favorites so closely connected with his work. The Arion Club assist in several novelties from the pen of Coleridge-Taylor, Ed. German, and their able leader, Mr. Protheroe.

Miss Dorothy Meadows of Chicago will be heard at the Little Theater this evening. One of their own players, Mr. Robt. Hess, gave "Enoch Arden" with the musical setting, accompanied by Miss Friend, at a recent date. The constant activity of this band of young workers, both dramatic and musical, makes it quite impossible to review. But they are guided so ably by their leader, Mrs. Edith Adams Stewart, that more than a passing word of praise is extended her for her untiring efforts.

IVA BIGELOW WEAVER.

Search—Frederick Preston Search played two splendid 'cello recital programs at the Montana State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts last week, scoring especial success with "Avowal" and "Roseland Gavotte," by Maurice Goldblatt.

Cosmopolitan School—On Saturday afternoon, March 20, the Cosmopolitan School of Music will give a pupils' recital at 3, in the Auditorium Recital Hall.

Bohnet—Mr. Cleveland Bohnet, pianist, appeared before the Iowa State College alumni at their banquet at the Auditorium Hotel on last Saturday evening.

AUSTIN WOMAN'S CLUB

Some recent comment upon the program given by the Hinshaw Faculty at the Austin Masonic Temple, March 1:

T. Francis Hughes chose for his solo number Tosti's "Toreador Song, Halo." This he gave with a dash and finish which was wholly pleasing, his clear, ringing tenor voice showing to excellent advantage. As an encore he gave a humorous song very effectively.

Miss Ethel Woodstock, whom Austin is proud to call her own, delighted the audience with two readings, "Intermezzo" and a selection from "The Littlest Rebel."

Miss E. Louise Krause sang as her number "A Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton, and showed herself the possessor of a beautiful voice. Her tones are free and full, and the quality is one of great sweetness. Her encore, "Elije," by Mascagni, again displayed an attractive style in her delivery, and her enunciation is most commendable. She is a pupil of Mr. Hinshaw, and is no stranger to an Austin audience.

Marvin V. Hinshaw's offering was a double number, "I Wept, Beloved," by Hue, and, by request, Bergen's "Charge of the Light Brigade." The first he sang with exquisite feeling and finish. The second he gave with wonderful dramatic power, and he sang it in such a virile, artistic manner that it carried straight to the heart. His interpretation was all that the most critical could wish. The demand for an encore was very insistent, and the response, "The Pretty Creature," proved to be another musical delight.

As a fitting finale to the splendid program, Miss Krause, Mr. Hughes and Mr. Hinshaw were heard in a trio from "Faust." The voice blending was a pleasure to listen to and the entire number was given with telling effect.

To Mrs. Hinshaw fell the part of accompanist, and her fine work added much to the finish of the program. Sympathy, expression and musical feeling were shown in each accompaniment, and each was a pleasure to hear.—Austinite. (Advertisement.)

De Bernyz—The Bertrand de Bernyz Opera-Concert-Oratorio Society of New York City, organized to aid needy American talent and to give public performances of opera, and classical music, gave a concert on March 3, in Studio Hall, 58 West Seventy-second street, New York City. There was a soloist ensemble of over forty voices which sang many operatic and classical selections in a most creditable manner. The principal soloists were Misses Katherine Lieber, Anna Nebel and Matilda Oberd, sopranos; Miss Mary Esther Corcoran, contralto; Mr. Roland D'Ouvall-Campus, dramatic tenor; Mr. Wendell Hart, lyric tenor; Mr. Oscar Sayers, baritone; Mr. Reynolds Whitney, basso; these young soloists sang several selections from the operas, "Aida," "Lohengrin" and "Il Trovatore" in a most artistic manner. Mr. Andre Polah conducted and Miss Ottilie Kreuger was a very capable accompanist. A large and enthusiastic audience enjoyed the efforts of the young artists.

Oak Park—A splendid program was successfully given by Mr. Walter Dellers' Oak Park Orchestra at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on last Monday evening, the Senior and Junior Choruses of the church assisting also.

Herdien—Mabel Sharp Herdien has been engaged to sing the part of "Alaine" in "The Children's Crusade" at Oberlin, Ohio, this making the tenth time the popular soprano has sung the very grateful part.

Chicago Piano College—A program of piano pieces was given by Misses Leitch, Fisk, Davidson, Clough, Browne and Greider, pupils of the Chicago Piano College at Kimball Hall last Saturday afternoon.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927
at Gorton School

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO

67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

"ISRAEL IN EGYPT" IN MOLINE

Handel's "Israel in Egypt," given with tableaux for the first time in America, was performed by the Moline Choral union before a large audience at The Moline last evening. Much interest was naturally placed in the novelty of the illustrations. The idea is one which Dr. Allum has long wished to present and that it proved successful and elucidating might have been judged from the enthusiastic response of the audience. Moreover, the tableaux served to relieve the tension of the number of massive choruses of which the work is composed and saved it from the effect felt by the public on its first presentation at the King's theater in London in 1739, that the work was composed too much of choruses.

Although considered, with the "Messiah," to be Handel at his greatest and written by the composer in the astonishing short period of twenty-eight days, this oratorio was given only nine times during his lifetime, partly perhaps because of the exacting demands on a chorus. On the whole the numbers are much more difficult to render than from the "Messiah," and since the place of honor is given to the chorus, the work is one which is a great test of any choral body.

The artistic value of a choral organization is in its ability to successfully tackle the most exacting demands and therefore great honor is due the Moline organization, under the guidance of Dr. Charles Allum, for its successful rendition of the immensely difficult work. The volume of tone, attack, enunciation and climaxes was solid throughout and although the contraltos had been unfortunate in losing two or three of their strongest voices for the evening, they all worked with a will and produced their best. The famous hailstone chorus was exceptionally well given and the contrasted possibilities in the spirited rendering of this number and the quieter pastoral one, "But for His People," were examples enough of what the Moline Choral union is now capable of in good choral singing. In every way there is reason to feel that a worth-while accomplishment was achieved last evening and since the public turned out well to hear it, there is now hope that the Choral union may continue and not disband, as had been feared if the concert just given was unsuccessful.

The solo parts of "Israel in Egypt" are insignificant, compared with the importance of the choral writing, but the beauty of these was amply sustained and brought into prominence by Lucille Stevenson, Rose Lutiger Gannon and J. B. Miller, a trio of artists famous for the earnestness of their work in oratorio. Each principal solo—there are only three principal arias for each voice—had to be repeated. The duet solo also for soprano and mezzo soprano was sung by Miss Stevenson and Mrs. Gannon, whose voices blended admirably both in quality and production. Miss Stevenson, whose work is so well known here, was warmly welcomed and enthusiastically applauded by both chorus and audience.

Miss Gannon has sung here once before—in the "Messiah"—and was also welcomed enthusiastically, besides being heard by many for the first time. Mr. Miller gained great favor and exhibited a voice and art of much beauty and flexibility.—Mary Lindsay Oliver in the Moline Dispatch.

— # # # —
Hall—Mrs. Bertha Lotta Sorensen, who will appear as one of the artists at the Actors' Fund Benefit at the Auditorium Theater Friday afternoon, started her musical education in Chicago, spent several years in Milan, Italy, studying under Maestro Nicolo Lentini of the famous Lamperti School as a lyric soprano, returning to Chicago in 1908, and again taking up her work with William Clare Hall. About a year and a half ago he discovered the fact that she had a natural contralto voice, which has since developed into a full, rich quality and unlimited range, over which she has magnificent control, and her rendition of the most difficult classical and religious music is winning recognition in musical circles throughout the city. She is at present soloist at the People's Liberal Church in Englewood.

— # # # —
Reckzeh—The following pupils of Karl Reckzeh in the Chicago Musical College will appear in a program at the Recital Hall at the college on Wednesday evening, March 24: Irvin Antes, Edith Deutsch, Mamie Thilo, Frances Fernschild, Hazel Nudelman, Eitel Brosseit, Margaret Wilson, Edith Randolph, Ebba Meissner and Julia Kryll.

MAGNUS PUPIL SINGS WITH MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA WITH GREAT SUCCESS

Mrs. Magnus has had in training for the past three years an unusually promising young singer, Nelda Hewitt Stevens. Her voice is a rich, warm soprano and to this is added a splendid presence and charming personality.

She has filled many important engagements this winter, among which was a recent appearance with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at Louisville, Ky.

Her selections upon this occasion required the utmost versatility and were given in a manner which brought her enthusiastic praise from all, including the members of the orchestra and their conductor. It was remarked by all that the sureness and finish which she displayed is rarely seen except in artists of wide experience.

LA SALLE COUNTY MUSIC TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

At the meeting at Lostant last week, a very successful program was carried out, the items being as follows: Address, L. C. Wolf, Lostant; "Music in the Public Schools," Ruby Smith, Streator; "Piano Pedagogics," Ida Chamberlain, Ottawa; piano numbers, May Downey; songs, Lucile Schoenneshoefer, Lostant; number by violin quartet; numbers by children's chorus.

Address, Rev. Arthur E. Rowson, Lostant; piano numbers, Mrs. Grace P. Trenary, Ottawa; violin numbers, Katherine Lincoln, Ottawa; songs, Miss Lenna Landes, Streator; piano numbers, Cleveland Bohnet, Chicago; songs, Ruby Smith, Streator, and numbers by the combined choirs of Lostant.

BERTHA BEEMAN AT BARRINGTON

Miss Bertha Beeman, contralto, whose recital at Evanston last fall will be remembered as one of the finest events of the current season, sang in a private musicale at Barrington, Ill., recently and scored a great success there also. The "Review" in speaking of her work, said "her songs were most delicately chosen for their soft melody, but the power of her voice could be recognized under the hushed tones and her concert singing must be splendid." There was also much appreciation of her splendid concert appearance and style. Her accompanist was Mrs. Knapp, also a popular instructor at the Northwestern University School of Music, where Miss Beeman teaches in the voice department.

— # # # —
Burns—In a report of the successful concert given at Hamilton Park by M. Rose Burns, Music News inadvertently omitted the name of Mr. Lawrence Boyd, a very talented pupil of Mrs. Burns, who on that occasion gave a good account of himself in a Beethoven "Melody" and the "Dance Ancienne," by Chaminade.

— # # # —
Andrews—Mr. J. Warren Andrews, organist of the Church of the Divine Paternity, New York City, announces Lenten organ recitals for Thursday afternoons, March 18 and 25 at 4 o'clock. Mr. Andrews played recitals at First Baptist Church, Syracuse, N. Y., on March 8, and at First Presbyterian Church, of Ilion, N. Y., on March 9.

PASSION MUSIC

by the

Apollo Musical Club

HARRISON M. WILD, Conductor

augmented to

1,000 SINGERS

Auditorium Theater, Sunday Afternoon, March 28

at 3 o'clock

SOLOISTS

FLORENCE HINKLE . . . Soprano	G. MAGNUS SCHUTZ . . . Bass
ALMA BECK . . . Contralto	BURTON THATCHER . . . Bass
NICHOLAS DOUTY . . . Tenor	EDGAR NELSON . . . Organist

Entire Symphony Orchestra

TICKETS, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00 BOXES, $15.00

At the Apollo Club Box Office, in Lyon & Healy's Wabash and Adams

CARL D. KINSEY, Business Manager

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer.
 Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

Wednesday evening, March 10, the Mesiah Church of Austin presented Augusta Alberti Meeker, contralto, in recital, assisted by Helen Carney, violinist; William Lester, accompanist.

Mrs. Meeker's voice is of excellent quality, rich and full throughout its entire range which is a wide one. Her voice is one of the best before the public today.

She sings with perfect ease and evenness of production, so that she does not need to strive for effects; they are entirely within her grasp.

She has a splendid musicianship, good interpretative power and musical feeling. Added to this is a pleasing stage presence and winning personality, and she met with great success.

Mrs. Meeker opened the program with Liddle's "Abide with Me," singing it with a fine church style, and fine regard for the text. "O don Fatale" (Verdi) was given a most dramatic rendition.

A group of Swedish songs were given in a delightful manner that was thoroughly enjoyable. "Du ar min ro" (Collan) and "Herdegrossen" (Berg) met with great favor.

A group of English songs ranging from Bond's "Lullaby" to the intensely dramatic "Cry of Rachel" (Salter) were sung by Mrs. Meeker with great artistry and understanding.

Miss Carney is a young violinist with much musical ability. She draws a good tone from her instrument, and she plays with all the vigor of youth. She gave numbers by Volpe, Faure, Kreisler, Svendsen, and German in a manner that speaks well for her future, if she continues along the same good lines. The program closed with Barlett's "Day Is Ended," violin, piano and voice. It was very effectively done.

The accompaniments were everything that artistically played accompaniments should be. Mr. Lester knows how to play and he does it.

Armour Institute—On Friday, March 26, the Armour Glee and Mandolin Clubs, under the direction of William Griswold Smith, will give their annual concert at Armour Institute of Technology, Thirty-third and Ferdinand streets.

Chicago Piano College—Julia B. Perry, a pupil of Mr. Harmon H. Watt in the Chicago Piano College, will give a recital at the lecture rooms of the college on Saturday afternoon, March 20, at 2:30.

Beck—Miss Alma Beck was soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on March 7, singing arias from Gounod's "Sappha" and Meyerbeer's "The Prophet."

CLARENCE EDDY IN SAN FRANCISCO

The following comment is from the San Francisco Examiner:

There were three thousand people in Festival Hall yesterday morning to hear Mr. Eddy, and I could not help thinking as I sensed their joy in the recital what a wonderful power for culture will be exercised in this place. It will be an esthetic dynamo radiating love for the best in music into places hitherto unreachd by the gospel of tone.

It is assumed by most people that the organ is an impersonal instrument, and some organists play it as if they were anxious rather to hide their individuality than to give it positive expression. Clarence Eddy views his art from the opposite pole of thought. He knows by experience that the organ has ways of its own of confessing the character of the man who sits at the console. This is the expression in terms of organ music of the psychological fact that everything we do, whether it be the way we walk, our manner of speech, or the deeper things of thought and fancy, bears unmistakable marks of our identity.

Whatever he may play, whether it be gentle sentiment as in Ralph Kinder's "At Eventide," or the brilliant Toccata of Rene L. Becker's Sonata in E Major, Op. 43, or the splendid Paean dedicated to him by Julius Harrison. Mr. Eddy disengages the idea of a masterful personality. The organ takes his mood; it obeys him as a horse obeys a practiced rider. To hear him fill out a rolling bass on the pedals or to give the idea of an authentic staccato on the most legato of all keyboards is stimulating, not merely to the student of the organ, but to the ordinary listener whose sole care is that the instrument shall diffuse images of beauty.

Mr. Eddy has no prejudice against arrangements. He played Schubert's "Am Meer" and the heavenly "Standchen," rather spoiling the latter with canonic imitation, to my mind, but bringing out the heavenly melody with almost tear-compelling loveliness.

I rejoiced, too, when he played the "Song of the Volga Boatmen," a strain with which the Russian laborer lightens the toil of hauling the great barges which float on the Volga. Mr. Eddy has admirably suggested the stress which is the rhythmic basis of this notable occupation-song. In his "Old Hundredth" he showed himself master of that greatest of all organ forms, the fugue, and made me anxious to see what he will do with the Bach G Minor.

An Allegro con Fuoco by the Belgian composer, Auguste de Boeck, incidentally made me wonder what kind of compositions we shall hear when Belgium gives musical expression to the cataclysmic experiences through which she is now passing.—Advertisement.

Craven—Mr. Carl E. Craven sang the tenor solos in Mercadante's "Seven Last Words" at St. Simon's Church last evening, this being the second time he has been engaged for the part in this church.

Brown—Tuesday evening, March 16, the choir of the St. Patrick's Parish, under the direction of J. Lewis Browne, gave their annual concert of Irish music at the Parish Hall at 8:15.

A FINE EASTER SONG

In His Pity He Redeemed Us ^{3 Keys--G, F, Eb} Special price 25c
 (Fifty Cents)

THE FABLE---Piano solo for left hand alone. An excellent pedal piece, with beautiful melodies, outlined by a story (65c). Special price - - - - 33c
 (At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.)

By ISABEL STEWART-NORTH PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
 Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
 5407 S. Halsted St. and
 2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
 2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
 1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
 2nd Alto--Haze Hunt
 Director-Accompanist TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
 NEW YORK CITY

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.
 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department
 She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans
 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Books and Music

AMERICAN SONGS

The Gamble Hinged Music Company, Chicago, sends out a little pamphlet announcing lists of songs by the following American writers: Hamilton, Lester, Genet, Marschal-Loepke, Ross, Nevin, Cadman, Fearis, Kramer, Caverly, Warner and Strelezki.

Report of the M. T. N. A.

Music News returns thanks for a copy of the Proceedings of the M. T. N. A. at the Hotel Schenley, Pittsburgh, last December.

The book contains complete reports of the meetings, as well as all the papers read there. It is well worth the price, which is $1.00, and may be obtained by addressing Waldo S. Pratt, 86 Gillett street, Hartford, Conn.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra

Many of our readers remember with pleasure the delightful "Memoirs of Theodore Thomas," by his widow, Rose Fay Thomas.

The recently published "Boston Symphony Orchestra," by M. A. De Wolfe Howe, is a worthy companion work, detailing, as it does, the history of the older orchestra from its establishment, thirty-four years ago.

The first thing that strikes the thoughtful reader is the high plane of thought, even as a youth or a very young man, of its founder, Henry Lee Higginson, who, while in Germany, drinking avidly from the deep wells of music there to be found, writes to his father such sentences as this: "What is money good for, if not to spend for one's friends and to help them? You've done so all your life; let me do so, too, while I can . . ."

And this: "As every one has some particular object of supreme interest to himself, so I have, and it is music . . ." "Trade was not satisfying to the inner man as a life occupation . . ." "In music I have a resource to which I can always turn with delight . . ." "If you remember that in the depths of my soul I enjoy music as nothing else in the world, you will understand why I stay on in this magnetic, musical atmosphere," etc.

From a close personal friend he receives by letter this advice: "Don't grow rich; if you once begin, you'll find it much harder to be a useful citizen . . ."

Well, the time came when he could drop the cares of business, retire and lead a life of comparative leisure if he wished, or he could continue to work, and with his earnings establish an orchestra—the dream of his young life; and because his father approved of his purpose, the orchestra was established, and this little book tells its history.

After going over the details of his plan for the establishment of a really great orchestra, Major Higginson (for he had gone to the wars and earned that title) writes, as early as 1881: "It is my intention to bring the capital of this enterprise up to a million dollars, which, invested at 5 per cent, would produce $50,000." And this single-hearted philanthrope stood, single-handed, behind the business operations of the orchestra, paying its deficits from his own pocket, often $50,000 in a single year, until, comparatively of recent years, it became self-supporting; and then, looking forward to the time when he must take leave of earthly harmonies, he endowed the orchestral association with the $1,000,000 which he had years before planned to give.

Of course, the reader cannot help comparing the experiences of the Boston with the Chicago orchestra. In twenty-four years Chicago has had but two conductors; Boston, in thirty-four years, has had six. We have a body of eighty-eight men; Boston has one hundred.

Looking at the make-up of the programs, we find that the Boston orchestra played the "Coriolanus" overture of Beethoven's thirty-five times; his "Egmont" seventy-two times; his "Eroica" eighty-nine times; No. 5, 114 times; Schubert's "Unfinished" eighty-two times; Tschaiikowsky's No. 5, forty times.

As a benefaction, Major Higginson's was and is the most beautiful that memory can recall. The man who endows a hospital ministers to bodily well-being; he who gives to education ministers to the intellectual side of human nature, but he who endows and thus makes permanent a great orchestra does good to thousands, in time to millions, of souls. SIMLON F. NEWHALL.

Easter Anthems

The Oliver Ditson Company sends out the following attractive list of Easter anthems, in octavo form:

- Spence, William R.—"The Early Dawn Was Breaking."
 Bartlett, J. C.—"Nailed to the Cross."
 Spinney, T. Herbert—"Hallelujah!" (Arranged by G. B. Nevin for men's voices.)
 Truette, Everett E.—"As It Began to Dawn."
 Rogers, James H.—"I Declare unto You the Gospel."
 Hosmer, E. S.—"Brethren, I Declare unto You."
 Allen, N. H.—"The Angels' Song."
 Garrett, G. M.—"God, Who Is Rich in Mercy."
 Turner, Edmund—"O Death, Where Is Thy Sting?"
 Berwald, W.—"Hark, Ten Thousand Voices Sounding."
 Brackett, Frank H.—"The Lord Is Risen indeed."
 Frey, Adolf—"Thanks Be to God."
 Manney, Charles Fonteyn—"I Heard a Great Voice."
 Cauffman, Frank G.—"They Came unto the Sepulchre."
 Bartlett, Homer N.—"On Wings of Living Light."
 Berwald, W.—"The Morning Kindles All the Sky."
 Roeder, Martin—"The Day of Love." (Arranged by Ross Hilton.)
 Gaines, Samuel Richards—"For Christ the Lord Is Risen."
 Hosmer, E. S.—"On Wings of Living Light."
 Nichol, H. E.—"If Ye then Be Risen with Christ."
 Turner, Edmund—"Christ Is Risen."
 Van de Water, Beardsley—"Day of Days." (Arranged by Manney. Trio, women's voices.)
 Jackson, B.—"Awake, Thou That Sleepest."
 Brackett, Frank H.—"O King Immortal." Violin part for "O King Immortal."
 Maxson, Frederick—"Blessing, Honor, Glory and Power."
 Berwald, W.—"At the Lamb's High Feast We Sing."
 Hosmer, E. S.—"The Day of Resurrection."

- Normandy Carol—"The Three Holy Women," (Arranged by H. B. Gaul.)
 Ambrose, Paul—"At the Lamb's High Feast We Sing."
 Stanford, C. Villiers—"Why Seek Ye the Living Among the Dead?"
 Fisher, William Arms—"I Am He That Liveth."
 Fletcher, Percy E.—"Let the Heavens Be Joyful."
 Berwald, W.—"Jesus Lives!"
 Manney, Charles Fonteyn—"Hearken unto Me."
 Harp part for "Hearken unto Me."

MUSIC FROM OLIVER DITSON AND COMPANY

For the B-Flat Cornet—Twenty-one arias from grand opera.

For Trombone or Baritone—Twenty arias from famous operas.

For B-Flat Clarinet—A score of operatic melodies.

Sixty Folk Songs of France—The Musician's Library.

Seven Songs from Out of Doors, by Alberta H. Burton, including, in a very beautiful booklet, "What Is Behind the Hills," "The Burro," "The Old Mission," "The Sandpiper," "The Indian Dance," "The Hop-toad" and "The Other Side of the Hill."

Violin Music—In the fine list of pieces for violin and piano the following are noted: "Perpetual Motion," Gruenberg; "Flower Song," Rheinberger; "Madrigale," Simonetti; "Salterella Scherzo," Rissland; "Sonata," Senalle; "Indian Summer," Cadman; "Forgotten," Cowles-Rissland; "At Dawn-ing," Cadman-Rissland; "Minuet and Gavotte," Veracini; "Etude Concertante," May-seder; "Sixth Sonata," Handel.

Sacred Songs—"I Will Extol Thee," Bruno Huhn; "The Shepherd," Geibel; "I Will Praise Thee, O God," Lansing; "O Jesu, I Have Promised," Steane; "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," Storer; "Nearer Home," Vincent; "Land So Fair," Wooler and "Love and Light," Wright. All these are printed in various keys. "Behold the Risen King," Louis R. Dressler; "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "The Lord Is King" and "Song to the Saviour," by Adolph M. Foerster.

Secular Songs—Frederick Knight Logan, "Far and Near" and "When the Purple Heather Blooms"; William Dichmont, "A Wish," "Could I Forget," "My Day," "Thinking of You," "Together," "To You" and "When the Violets Grow"; William Spencer Johnson, "A Road Tune," "Even Song" and "From Oversea"; Arthur H. Ryder, "Didst Thou Not Love Me" and "When the Last Day Is Ended."

Piano Pieces—John M. Stienfeldt, "Le Desir," "Country Dance" and "Village Wedding Procession"; Cedric W. Lemont, "An April Shower," "Clothilde," "Care Free," "La Debutante," "Nocturnette," "A Roundelay," "Shadow Pictures" and "The Wood Nymph" (all splendid teaching pieces); H. L. Cramm, "The Gossips," "Rowing Song," "A Morning Gallop," "A Child's Pansy Song," "Bunnie's Ball" and "Going to Sunday School."

Four Hand Music for Piano—"In the Friendly Circle," Sartorio; "Witches Dance," MacDowell; "Sextet from Lucia," Donizetti-Austin; "Timid Avowal," Cui.

Boosey and Co.

Holiday Sketches by Clarence Lucas—"Barcarolle," "Pro Patria," "In Alabama," "An Interlude," "Mazurka" and "In the Alameda," in the form of a suite—salon style of music.

Songs—"Values," Josephine McGill; "A Dream Fancy," Charles Marshall; "In Distant Lands," Lemon; "The Quest," C. Linn Seiler; "Two Violets," "The Little Road Home," Weatherly; "Wings of the Morning," Haydn Wood; "The Dell Where the Buttercups Grow," Megan-Wetherly; "A Song of Gladness," Sanderson; "The Love That Never Filleth," Vernon Eville; "Reveille," Herbert Oliver; "Springtide of Love," Sanderson; "When You Pass," Sanderson; "Ride On, Ride On in Majesty," Smith; "In Drowsy Dale," Trevelsa; "April Morn," Batten, and "A Song of Faithfulness," Allitsen.

C. W. Thompson and Co.

The Thompson Company, Boston, sends out the following:

"En Courant," for piano, by Carl Jean Tolman; "The Fountain," concert caprice for piano, by Roland Diggle; "Christine Waltz," Mabelle Claire; "By the Brook," Lillian Craig Coffman; "Autumn Days," Tollman; "Vacation Days," Hoffer; "Love's Old Sweet Song," Malloy, arranged by R. H.; "Cradle Song and Andante," Frances B. Townsend; "The Dunes," Elizabeth Thompson Ordway; "The Silhouettes," Florence Parr Gere; "Barcarolle," Roland Diggle; "A Christmas Romance," Myrtle Chase; "Dreaming of Thee," Horace Clark; "A June Morning," Reginald S. Hutchins, and "The Lament" and "A Passing Show-er," by Laura Conant Wiggin.

Clayton F. Summy Company

Piano Pieces by Adelaide Heron—"Valsette," "Wood Nymph," "Canzonet" and "Scherzando," excellent teaching material.

Adoration

A new song by Harry R. Detweiler is "Adoration," which is written to beautiful text by Christina Rossetti and is one that will be used very much in salon and concert work. It is dedicated to Jessie Lynde Hopkins, the popular contralto.

An Organ Piece by Mrs. Hall

The White-Smith Company, Boston, have sent out a very attractive little organ piece by Edythe Prun-Hall, a Chicago organist. The title is "Festal Prelude on Sullivan's Onward Christian Soldiers," and the work is distinctly pleasing as well as thoroughly authentic.

"Love Triumphant"

This is a Lenten cantata by P. Marinus Paulsen, published by the H. W. Gray Company. It is a work of considerable pretension, very melodious and wholly adapted to choir needs.

Duet for Two Violins

A "Concert Duet" for two violins by Sol Cohen, published by Carl Fischer, New York, is a work of much beauty and good style. It will undoubtedly be much used on novelty programs.

Sonata by James A. Bliss

A "Sonata" in C Minor, for pianoforte, by James A. Bliss, of Minneapolis, has been sent out by the J. E. Frank Music Company of that city. It is a work drawn along big lines and full of modern ideas. It is thoroughly worth a reading.

Boston Music Company

Select Festival Music for the Organ—A dollar volume containing "Christmas," "Lent and Easter," "Whitsuntide and Thanksgiving" and "Miscellaneous" numbers arranged by William C. Carl.

Two Piano Pieces by Carl Moter—"In Merry Mood" and "In the Country."

"Hyacinthe"

An "intermezzo caractéristique" for piano by L'Oliver, published by the Jos. Krolage Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Offertory Solos

The C. W. Thompson Co., Boston, sends out the five following "Offertory Solos," by J. Henry Francis: "Come to the Lord," "Jesus, Thy Boundless Love," "God Has Been Merciful to Me," "He Leadeth Me" and "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee."

Novello and Company

"Largo Appassionata and Andante" in C Major for violin and pianoforte, by Drew Birch. A work of much merit and built along big lines.

Torvald Frederiksen

The Torvald Frederiksen Publishing Company of Chicago sends out some music by Torvald Frederiksen which is well worth consideration and will find a big place in semi-popular repertoires.

"Love Me Forever, My Sweet Little Heart" is, as is the case in all the Frederik-sen songs, to text by the composer himself and has a very neat and pretty sentiment underneath the attractive music. It is for medium voice and the refrain may be sung either as solo or by a quartet or chorus.

"Evening Bells" is a love song in waltz movement all about "evening bells and nightingales" and will prove an attractive addition to such lists, while "The Land of My Dreams," which has, on the last page a male quartet setting also, is another popular, sentimental song.

"Silver Star" is a reverie for piano solo, dedicated to Carrie Scott, director of the Mendelssohn Conservatory of Music, and will prove to be very useful both as a salon piece and in the teacher's studio.

Sherwood Music School—On Saturday afternoon, March 13, a piano program was given by Madeleine Chadwick, Jean Gillespie, Lillian Harkness and Celia Ticktin, pupils of Ethel Lathrop Marley, in the Sherwood School rooms. On Wednesday, March 17, at Thurber Recital Hall, Miss Kober presented six advanced pupils, assisted by pupils of Genevra Johnstone-Bishop. On Wednesday, March 24, at Thurber Hall a joint recital will be given by Marie Pirek, pianist, and Mme. Elsie Harthan Arendt, soprano.

Stein—On Wednesday evening, March 17, a program was given by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Buren Stein at the Stein Conservatory rooms in the Auditorium Building.

Nichols—Mr. John W. Nichols has been re-engaged to direct the Summer School of Music at the University of Vermont (Burlington), commencing July 5.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice
Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS
STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LAREND

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.
Residence 5438 Harper Avenue Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL
TEACHER Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR CHICAGO, ILL.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

THUEL BURNHAM IN CONCERT

Thuel Burnham, who has been almost too busy to remember that New York has claims upon him, was heard in a delightful program at the Princess Theater on the afternoon of March 9. A program demonstrating several phases of his talents as a virtuoso of the keyboard—an artist who is a thinker as well as a technician—a painter in bold strokes of his harmonic picture—the pioneer of piano playing from a most modern standpoint. One who visualizes for his audience Rembrandtesque contrasts of light and shade.

Mr. Burnham's personality is his first enthralling asset. His youthfulness—the erect, graceful figure (physique of health and strength); the sparkling hazel eyes, changeable as jewels in the glow of the footlights; the sweetness of his smile; the modesty of his demeanor. He seems to overflow with what the French call the "joie de vivre," and this bonhomie crosses the footlights in his playing as in his very self.

I came late to the concert (New York, if not a city of magnificent distances, knows its magnificent delays at least), yet in time to hear the Chopin numbers, played with distinguished attention to the composer's not so easily discerned inner meanings and intellectual emotions, and showing clearly the Chopinesque influence, with a bolder and perhaps diviner conception of these compositions, which appear hitherto to have been approached by pianists with less of confidence and intuition.

To Burnham the Chopin genre is particularized in essentials not apparent to many, even the most conscientious of the disciples of the Polish composer-poet.

There was captivation—fascination in the "Trois Preludes"—a reverential yet fiery attitude in the development of the big "Polonaise"; the strong attack, the judicious management of color contrast upon color contrast; the demonstration of a wide resourcefulness; the outlining of a stirring idea with the necessary immense technique, magnitude of pianistic utterance, and the appeal of directness and simplicity to complete a satisfying rendition of the sublime "Polonaise."

The pianist was recalled again and again after this exhilarating opus.

Mr. Burnham was heard in other numbers. He scored deeply in Moussorgsky's "Gopak"; not so well known here as it might be; with its gripping intensity; its full-blooded, realistic, vivid and vivifying measures, all graphically delineated by the artist at the piano.

Dramatically the young maestro eventuated the MacDowell "Polonaise," whose component parts are welded in just proportions of pure harmonic exquisiteness and ardent glowing intensity.

He also played a "Nocturne," by Borodine, which seemed a revelation of the thousand-phased imagination of the Slav, and a "Prelude," by Rachmaninoff.

At the finish of the program, the pianist was gracious in the matter of encores as a reward for continuous applause.

The audience was representative in the best sense and listened with keen attention.

I am informed that the house was sold out and that many persons were turned away. A magnificent wreath of laurel and oak leaves tied with streamers, cunningly intermingled, bearing the colors of the United States and France, was handed to Mr. Burnham after the conclusion of his first group of soli.

Mr. Burnham will be heard on April 6 in joint recital with the coloratura soprano, Alice Verlet, in the ball room at Sherry's.

There were many prominent men and women in the audience, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Villard. Mr. Villard is a philanthropist and the owner of the "Evening Post"; Miss Woodford, daughter of the former Spanish ambassador, a charming woman with a very mignonette face; Mrs. Bovee, amiable and large-hearted, looking her very best; Mrs. Mackey, Mrs. Bovee's beautiful young daughter; Mrs. Grattan Williams, Mrs. William B. Phelps, Miss Emma Thursby, Miss Ina Thursby, Mrs. Arthur Grennell, Mrs. Roslyn Herriek, Mr. Albert Morris Bagby, Mr. Rice, and others, a number of whom went back to congratulate Mr. Burnham.

Albert Spalding in Recital

Saturday afternoon, March 14, was a glorious day with the heavens a riot of blue and sunshine; the air caressing, and with more than a breath of balmy May.

Fifth avenue crowds gave promise of Easter's finery parade in the many new costumes which promise to become the vogue. Crowds out for an airing with many a pedestrian departing from the avenue at Forty-third street to visit Aeolian Hall, where Albert Spalding, a favorite violinist of the metropolis and elsewhere, was fiddling a program of dances from grave, erudite, voluminously-varied Bach to Tarantula-like gyrations of Hungarian and Bohemian measures, and the real pickanniny steppings—Alabama's cake-walk, perhaps, and not Golliwog's—the nimble "stepping" of the simon-pure darkey, done into music with suggestive impulses.

Quite an innovation, one might think, yet

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

Mr. Spalding's numbers were selected with the rare discretion of a program-maker of taste and experience; and he chose to deliver them with their special note of national significance. (And from Bach, Corelli, Veracini and Tartini to a Spalding dance a l'Alabama is a vast step—even for a dancing step), but he bridged the chasm and it is doubtful whether his audience was not as charmed with the darkey's steps in care-free abandon, as with the dignified "Pavane"—more courtly than a staid minuet.

Mr. Spalding's gain artistically knows no limits. His facility (as the Kaiser might say: finger-fertigkeit) is to be wondered at; the sureness of his tone and its quality; the finely arranged dynamic scheme; capped by tact and good taste.

The audience—one of excellent size—felt this too, and he was applauded until he good naturedly repeated several numbers. The program follows:

Siciliano (Old Quiet Dance of Pastoral Character)..... Bach

Menuet and Gavotte (French Dance Moderate)..... Veracini

Gigue (Lively Dance)..... Corelli

Chanson, Louis XIII and Pavane.....Couperin-Kreisler

Variations on a Gavotte by Corelli..... Tartini

Sarabande (Old Spanish Dance of Grave Character)..... Bach

Gigue (Lively Dance)..... Bach

Chaconne from the Sonata in D Minor..... Bach

Hungarian Dance, No. 20.....Brahms-Joachim

Hungarian Dance, No. 7.....Brahms-Joachim

Mazurek (Slavonic Dance)..... Dvorak

Liebesleid.....

Liebesfreud.....

.....(Old Viennese Waltzes)..... Kreisler

Alabama (Song and Dance, Plantation Style)..... Spalding

Spanish Dance, No. 4 (Habanero)..... Sarasate

A Biltmore "Friday Morning" with John McCormack as Soloist in Chief

On the morning of March 12 the fourth of the famous "Biltmore Friday Mornings" found a packed house, the largest audience yet assembled in the splendid ball room of this well known hostelry locale of those functions at which Caruso sang in a sense his Swan song, and Geraldine Farrar was made the star of the initial recital. Yet neither the one nor the other of these "drawing cards" of the only opera house (more's the pity) faced so enthusiastic an assemblage, nor one of such dimensions, as greeted John McCormack, Irish tenor and magnet of crowded houses. Mr. McCormack was in excellent voice and high spirits, whose infection spread easily to his auditors.

His songs of Celtic genre were sung with all the attention a devoted son of Erin can bestow upon the little gems of the special Irish anthology one might imagine set apart for him, and in which he makes so strong an appeal, especially that little pearl of songlets, "The Snowy-Breasted Pearl," with which the tenor's name is strongly identified.

Also he gave the right touch (the poet's conception of his stanzas whose meanings Mr. McCormack knows so simply and charmingly to reveal) to "The Ballymure Ballad" and "The Bard of Armagh." Also he was heartily applauded and coaxed to yield an encore.

His chief number to my mind was his operatic offering, the "Flower Song," as it is usually termed (sung not in French but

(Continued on page 35)

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO
Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Helen Stanley

SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSIC & L BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK

Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE

CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL

Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs

5841 Prairie Av.

Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE

Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA

For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory - Mallery Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS

4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital

1205 North State Street

Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE

303 KIMBALL HALL

Phone Wabash 8028

Music in America

LOS ANGELES

The violin recital given by Herr Arnold Krauss was received with great appreciation. While he has not appeared in a full program recital for sixteen years, each year of the fourteen he was concert master of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, he appeared as solo artist with the orchestra. He was in popular favor and a master artist. The Tschaiakowsky "Concerto, Op. 35," Mendelssohn; "Concerto E Minor, Op. 65," Chopin-Sarasate; "Nocturne No. 2, Op. 9," Saint-Saens; "Rondo Capriccioso," with a Mozart "Minuet" and Hubay "Zephyr." The program was ably accompanied by Anna Schulmann. His admirers hope his recitals may be more frequent in the future.

The Saint-Saens Quintet Club gave their second concert of the season at the Ebell Club. The new Quintet by C. E. Augeloty, the viola artist of the organization, had its first public hearing. It met with favor and is worthy addition to that class of musical literature. Mr. Edwin H. Clark gave a fine rendering of the Ries "Adagio," and "Perpetual Motion" compositions. The "Opus 19 Trio" by Mendelssohn, and the "Opus 33," Godard quartet, were the happy contributions of the evening. The other members were W. A. Clark, Sr., second violin; Madame Elsa Von Gross Menasco, 'cellist, with Mr. William Edson Strobridge, pianist.

The closing of the Lebegott Orchestra course was interesting, with many soloists and much entertaining music.

Hadley's overture, "In Bohemia," was a good opening. Two songs, "Evening" and "Love Song," by our talented composer, Miss Fannie Dillon, were sung by Mrs. Catherine Shank, a soprano in popular favor here. The orchestra overpowered the voice; few words were heard. The music is highly adaptable to the spirit of the text. The last was redemanded.

The Handel and Haydn Choral Society gave the "Heavens are Telling," from the "Creation," and the "Hallelujah" from the "Messiah." The first was conducted by Mr. Carl Bronson, the club's director. Both were rendered with orchestra and organ accompaniments, with Mr. Hastings at the organ.

Miss Millicent Virdin, a solo pianist of excellent equipment, gave Cesar A. Franck's "Variation Symphonique," for piano and orchestra. Again the orchestra was in the dominant preponderance to the disadvantage of the solo artist.

Another number of interest was a new orchestra work by Joseph Riccard, a talented local composer, pianist and teacher, who conducted his own work with authority. It was very pleasing and shows musical genius worth developing. The work is named the prelude "Au Convent, Op. 8." The Lebegott musical movement has given splendid opportunity to hear the ambitious attempts of the aspiring local composers, and they have had splendid support and encouragement.

Mrs. Emma Porter Mackinson gave a good rendition of Wagner's "Elizabeth's Prayer," from "Tannhauser," and as encore sang Cadman's "From the Land of the Sky Blue Waters." Her rendition is authentic, having sung it and others of the author's "Indian Music" under his personal direction. The orchestra course was a noble effort in the right direction, but scarcely paid its expenses. Another course may be arranged later in the season of the year.

The Cadman lecture, song and trio recital, under Behymer management, had a good hearing in a Saturday afternoon performance. His "D Major Trio, Op. 56" for violin, 'cello and piano, was given with Mr. Cadman at the piano; Mr. Oscar Seiling, violin, and Mr. Axel Simonsen, 'cellist. This is the third or fourth time the same artists have presented it here, and it improves with each hearing. Its form is good and it is a very pleasing composition.

Princess Tsianina Red Feather illustrated in a pleasing mezzo soprano voice the Indian songs, and others. The verbal, historical, explanatory remarks of Mr. Cadman greatly intensified the interest in the musical themes, melodies and peculiar song expressions of the Indian tribes from which they were copied. The program in the main was a Cadman creation. They both have had numerous appearances with clubs and musical gatherings. To say the least it is in a marked sense quite educational, showing a play of emotion in music.

The Brahms Quintet Club, in the third concert of the season, is not only to be complimented on their fine performance, but for their patriotic spirit in having an all American program, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, "Piano Quintet," and Edgar Stillman-Kelley's "Piano Quintet," Op. 20. The difference in the two was sufficiently varied to break the monotony of the program, the first being a striking number for any general concert program. Mr. Fred G. Ellis was the soloist, a baritone with a good, sonorous voice. He sang selections by American authors, and MacFadyen, Branscombe, Woodman and Hammond were well interpreted with splendid piano accompaniments by Miss Blanche Ebert.

All the instruments, too, were made in America; the quartet strings were made by Fritz Pulpanek of Los Angeles, and he has surely accomplished much in the production. Uniform in tone quality and in ensemble work, it is a feature of excellence. The team is in perfect understanding and plays as a unit. The best yet given.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Chas. H. Demorest gave an organ recital at the Trinity Auditorium, the assisting soloist being Miss Grace Wood Jess, a soprano of good voice by nature, quality and range. She gave a group of three songs from "Mignon," Thomas, Wolf and Rachmaninoff, and later with organ, sang Costa's "I Will Extol Thee," from oratorio of "Eli." The program was arranged with historical mention. It opened with the Bach "Fugue in E Flat;" "Mignon," Gavotte; Borowski's "Sonata in A Minor;" sketches from MacDowell, Brewer and Byrd. "Old Kentucky Home and Variations" by Lord. The Diggle "Twilight Reverie," Guilman; "Fugue in D" and "Pomp and Circumstance" (military march) by Elgar. Their rendition was good in technic and organ orchestration, showing authority in the manipulation of the organ.

Mme. Alma Gluck sang to a crowded house in a popular program of good songs. She was a choice attraction for the Behymer Philharmonic course for two performances, the second with her husband, Efram Zimballist, the violinist. She satisfied her audience on her first appearance and the house is sold out for the second.

A musicale of much interest was given at the home of Mrs. Minnie Spangler and her daughter, Miss Gladys Spangler, who has been studying voice and piano, and made her appearance before a company of friends in song and accompanying. The following program was given for the friends assembled: Miss Spangler sang "Forgotten," by Cowles, and in a duet "Moonlight on the Rhine," by Newland, with her teacher, Mr. Mountz. He sang "For You," by Montague, playing also accompaniments for several other solos.

Mr. T. R. Roberts, baritone, gave Marshall's "I Hear You Calling Me," "Nirvana" and "Thora" by Adams, and "Nightfall" by Metcalf. The last sung by Mr. S. W. Mountz was "I Love You Truly," Bond; "Celeste," by Newcombe; "Refractory Monk," by Rasse; "Break! Oh Sea," by Frank H. Pierce, and in compliment to the Illinois guests, sang the state song, "Illinois," all joining in the refrain. The accompanist for the evening was Miss Alice Ruth Shaw, a most accomplished assistant, who played MacDowell's "Prelude" with much skill and artistry.

The monthly banquet of the Gamut club last night was another enjoyable event in the large company of artists and celebrities. Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, Edward Markham, the poet, Mr. Cadman and "Tsianina," Mrs. Mary Carr Moore, of Seattle, Wash.; Mr. Wright, architect of Chicago; Mr. Hans Linne and his company of artists in his sketch playing at the Orpheum; Miss Frieda Peycke, humorist monologist at the piano, and many others were finely introduced by the chairman, F. W. Blanchard. Mr. Behymer gave an outline of the Musical Pageant to be given in a parade on the second or third of July, during the Federation of the Music Clubs convention and the introduction of the "Fairylend" opera performance. All are enthusiastic in the work.

S. W. MOUNTZ,
1651 Sixth avenue. Phone West 1024.

###

San Francisco—During the initial week of the San Francisco Exposition that city heard the following imposing array of musical artists: Zimballist, Gluck, Fuller Sisters, Clarence Eddy, Pasmore Trio, Philharmonic Orchestra, San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, Exposition Symphony Orchestra, National Opera Company, Creatore's Band, Thaviu's Band, Philippine Constabulary Band and La Fonte's Band.

###

North Shore—A festival service was given at the North Shore Congregational church on last Sunday night when Gaul's "Ruth" was excellently sung by the Choral Society under direction of Elmer J. Crabbs. The soloists were Ethel Geistweit Benedict, Juliette Dashiell, Winifred S. McGaw and James Seiler. Mrs. Sarah Wildman Osborn provided splendid support at the organ.

OMAHA

On March 6 William Pfautz, bass, assisted by Mildred Stepp, soprano; Jessie Ohman, reader, and Hazel Wilcox, violinist, will give a recital at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary. Quite a little interest has been aroused at the seminary as it is the first recital of the kind given by a student of the school.

###

March 18 Henry Cox's Violin Choir will appear at the Fontenelle Hotel, it being one of the first of a series of musical events which are scheduled for the future.

Sunday evening March 6 the Norwegian Singing Society will present Miss Inga Orner, famous Norwegian soprano, at the Swedish Auditorium, assisted by Jean Underland, one of Omaha's clever young violinists, who spent two years in Prague under Marak. This concert is looked forward to with great pleasure by those who are familiar with the work of the two artists.

###

Dr. Alma Webster Powell of New York has been in the city for several days lecturing on the movement for the maintenance of a national school of music for the development of American type of music. In connection with her lectures she gives a series of songs of many nations as illustrations typifying the national musical style.

###

The attraction for Society night at the Boyd Theater in connection with the Stock company Tuesday, March 9, will be the Will Heatherington String Trio in chamber music.

###

Wednesday, March 10, the Musical Department of the Woman's Club will give "Faust" in lecture recital form, Mrs. Fisher presenting the lecture, and selections from the opera will be sung by pupils of Mrs. Ryan.

###

Great interest is being shown in the coming concerts of the Mendelssohn Choir concerts, the dates for which have been set for April 26 and 27. This being the last year of the present contract with the Chicago Orchestra, it is more than likely that the unusual interest shown will culminate in a new contract for a series of years.

###

The sacred cantata, the "Forty-second Psalm," composed by Lee G. Kratz, will be given at the Hanscomb Park M. E. Church under the direction of the composer. All of the soloists will be from the choir of the church.

###

The Immanuel Lutheran Choir will give a Lenten program Tuesday evening. The choir of sixty voices will be assisted by Cora Swartz, soprano; Clinton Stuht, tenor; George J. Collins, baritone; Will Heatherington, violin; Earle Tickner, flute, and Colonel Coolidge, organist.

###

March 18 Ethel Preston, monologist, assisted by Mildred Stepp, soprano, will give the fourth number in the Artist Pupils Concert series. Miss Preston will present "The Mennonite Maid" monologue in four acts. Miss Stepp will sing three groups of songs, including an aria from "Carmen" and Jane Ogden Hunter's waltz song, "Spring Song."

###

Corinne Paulson, pianist, who has been abroad for a number of years and was to have toured Germany with a large number of orchestral engagements, has been compelled to return to America. She has reopened her studio here and it is to be hoped she will soon be heard in concert.

Ben Stanley, organist at the Trinity Cathedral, is giving a series of Lenten organ recitals which is attracting large audiences.

The Rotary Club gave a musicale at the Fontenelle Hotel on February 26 under the management of Miss Davies. Soloists were Florence Harrieso-Hause, contralto; Martha Grim, soprano; Daisy Higgins, contralto and accompanist, and Miss Davies.

GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE OWMAR RICKETTS

MARCH FESTIVAL AT FT. HAYS

(Continued from page 19)

maine." Miss Allen is one of the teachers of singing in the Normal, and is now taking advanced work with Mr. Malloy. She is well gifted both vocally and musically and she possesses a personality wholly charming and much in her favor for her success in the future. While her voice is not of the big dramatic soprano type, it is of that sweet, pleasing and restful quality which is always welcome and draws much praise from her hearers.

ANNA AGNES BAILEY

Her singing with the chorus in that popular and pleasing number, "Legend of the Bells," was extra good and well deserves special mention. Her work had much to do with making the entire performance satisfactory and the Fort Hays Normal can well congratulate itself upon having Miss Allen as a member of its teaching corps.

Mr. King in the part of "Henri" was given much to do of course. He accomplished his task in a manner worthy of considerable praise. He is inexperienced both as to singing and acting, but nevertheless entered into his role with enthusiasm, and sincerity, and looked capital at all times. He was at his best in "With Joy, My Heart."

The part of "Grenicheux" was in very capable hands and Mr. Hedge with fine make-up and his big, sonorous voice sang those beautiful solo parts, "On Billow Rocking" and "That Night I'll Ne'er Forget," in fine style. Insufficient rehearsing on the part of Mr. Hedge hindered him somewhat in making his part convincing, but his authority and voice covered up much of that handicap.

Mr. Wooster did splendidly with the taxing part of "Gaspard." In the first place he was especially well made up and was equally good as to realistic acting, being one of the best on the stage in this art. He knew his place in the ensembles well and likewise knew his music well.

Mr. Ward took the part of "The Bailli" in good style and sang very well indeed. Mr. Wallace, Mr. Mock and Mr. Van Cleave accomplished much with their parts and gave to the audience many a hearty laugh. The four village maidens were prominent throughout the evening, and the chorus, which was made up with the following singers, Alice Craig, Mary Brull, Bertrice Kirkman, Mathilde Meier, Minnie Helm, Hilma Peterson, Hildur Peterson, Maude Carter, Flora Hargitt, Roy Wilds, Ray Breitweiser, Martin Peterson, J. E. Bates, Harry Stock, Earl Scott, Asa King and H. H. Sandy, was well costumed, knew its music well and possessed good stage deportment. "All Who for Servants," "Such Conduct is Quite Sad," "Tell Me Girl," "Set Our Torehes," "Silent Heroes" and the "Ding, Dong Bell" were especially enjoyable.

Mr. Malloy conducted the performance with a master hand, having his forces under splendid control at all times. He possesses that magnetic personality and enthusiasm which inspires all to give of their best. The orchestra played the overture in a wholly commendable manner and accompanied satisfactorily.

Mrs. Clara Louise Malloy, teacher of violin, and concertmaster of the orchestra, deserves much credit for the present proficiency of this young organization. She is a

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control—freedom of vocal method, is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C."

MUSIC NEWS

fine musician and is not only an excellent violinist, but a singer of high attainments. She is a hard worker and strives for the highest point of perfection continually. The Normal is again fortunate in having her taking a part in its musical activities.

Mr. E. B. Matthew, another never-tiring worker, had charge of the staging of the opera and deserves a word of mention as does Mrs. Hattie Van Cleave, who played the piano score in good style.

"The Chimes" was repeated on Saturday night to a packed house of Kansas educators.

~ ~ ~

The "Creation" Performances

Thursday evening again found the auditorium holding a large, eager, expectant and enthusiastic audience when Mr. Malloy conducted his chorus and orchestra through a rendition of the "Creation." Never has the western half of Kansas heard anything near its equal. The chorus knew its score extremely well and they sang with life, fervor and good expression at all times. Arousing unusual enthusiasm was an inspiring delivery of the well known "The Heavens Are Telling," in which the solo trio took a prominent part. "Awake the Harp" was likewise good and "Achieved Is the Glorious Work" was rendered in great form. Many people in the audience who knew that the chorus was only organized last September were greatly surprised at the results attained, and could hardly make themselves believe that these young and inexperienced singers could sing an oratorio of the caliber of the "Creation." Everybody is for the chorus and music department of this school at present and is looking forward with delight to the musical treats in store for next season.

The soloists, Mr. Hedge, Mrs. and Mr. Bailey were greatly enjoyed, apparently, from the applause and comment which followed their contributions to the performance. Their ensemble work both as a trio and with the chorus was a display of beautifully blended voices and artistic delivery of the "Creation" score. Mr. Hedge was for many years prominent in the oratorio field and his services were much appreciated throughout the festival.

Mrs. Bailey has one of the sweetest voices that has been heard here. It is a pure lyric instrument and is played upon in an excellent manner. The upper voice is produced with unusual freedom and ease. Her solos were most attractively and efficiently sung.

In the duets Mr. and Mrs. Bailey made a most pleasing impression upon their audience. Mr. Bailey made a decided hit in his solos. His voice is a beautiful baritone which he uses with excellent taste and discretion. His interpretations, while built upon traditional lines, possess the element of individuality necessary to gain and hold the attention of his hearers. Mr. Bailey has a most promising future as a singer, both in oratorio and concert.

Mrs. C. A. Shively played the piano accompaniments with the orchestra in a helpful and finished manner.

On Friday night it was necessary to give the "Creation" twice to accommodate the crowd. One performance started at 7 o'clock and another at 9:30 and large and appreciative audiences faced the singers each time. The soloists, chorus and orchestra went through this seldom heard of task with flying colors and apparently were none the worse for the effort.

HERBERT M. BAILEY

~ ~ ~

Gleanings of the Festival

A prominent Kansas educator, Mr. W. A. Lewis, is president of the Fort Hays, Kansas, Normal School, and only a short visit with him reveals the fact that here is the right man in the right place. As is often the case, Mr. Lewis is not a one-sided educated man. He knows the needs and principal details of every department in the school and works with great courage and energy to bring about the best results in every department. He is anxious and willing to turn every effort to build up a strong and valuable college of music in the Hays School, and judging from the standard already set, which is bound to rise, the institution is going to come to the front as a big factor in the musical life of the Sunflower state.

Mr. W. E. Obert, the professor of piano, appeared twice on the program of the G. B. E. A., playing the "Ninth Rhapsody" of Liszt, and the Verdi-Liszt "Rigoletto Paraphrase." Mr. Obert has a brilliant technique and a good, healthy tone. He is a pupil of Wilson G. Smith of Cleveland, and of Professor Carter of Oberlin, and has made a host of friends by his musicianly attainments and unassuming manner.

The Golden Belt Educational Association was very active during its two days' convention. Meetings, round tables, addresses by prominent educators of the state and nation were taking place at all hours. On Friday afternoon much music was heard in that contests for high school orchestras, vocal music in the grades and vocal music in the high school were held.

Professor Hagbard Brase, teacher of pipe organ and theory and conductor of the "Messiah" chorus at Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kansas, was the adjudicator for these contests.

Miss Alma Rosengren, violinist; Mr. Hjalmar Wetterstrom, 'cellist and conductor of Bethany band, and Mr. Lennard Gunnerson, string bass player of much prominence, came from Lindsborg to strengthen the Normal Orchestra.

The Hays school has prospects for a splendid band in the future if a competent band leader is placed in charge. The city is full of fine band men in that a few years ago Hays City possessed one of the largest and best bands in the country and took part in several of the big G. A. R. reunions of the nation.

Frank Strong, Chancellor of the University of Kansas; Dr. Frank M. Leavitt, of the University of Chicago; R. H. Emberson, of the University of Missouri; Dr. Wm. H. Black of Missouri Valley College; E. C. Bishop, president of Boys and Girls' Club of America, and Mrs. Cora J. Lewis of the state board of administration were prominent visitors and speakers at the festival, and heard the "Creation" performance on Friday night.

M. N. R.

NELDA HEWITT STEVENS

Nelda Hewitt Stevens, soprano, appeared as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at Louisville, Ky., on February 23, and scored a great success, her numbers being "Il ist doux, il est bon," by Mas-senet, and the "Bird Song" from "I Pagliacci," with a ballad with harp accompaniment for encore.

NELDA HEWITT STEVENS

She was recalled many times and the audience did its best to get other encores, which, however, was impossible, because of the rule of the orchestra.

Since her residence in Chicago, Mrs. Stevens has had many important engagements, among them having been appearances at Mandel Hall of the University of Chicago (Summer Night Concerts); joint recital with Ridgley Hudson at Monroe, Wis.; soloist with the Nelson Orchestral Band, Oshkosh, Wis.; recital at Janesville, Wis.; joint recital with Francis S. Moore at the First Presbyterian Church in Chicago and recitals at DeKalb, Ill., Davenport, Ia., Waterloo, Ia., Boone, Ia., Des Moines, Ia., Kansas City, Mo., and Iola, Kas.

Mrs. Stevens has many other engagements for the balance of the season, notice of which will be given in Music News later.

Two extracts from the fine Louisville notices read as follows:

Admirable was the program yesterday when an ovation was given Nelda Hewitt Stevens, in whose contributions there was artistic sense. She has control of diction and a rare fastidiousness of taste. She shows artistry, voice and personality. The program containing arias from "Herodiade," "Pagliacci" and an encore from "Madame Butterfly" was charming and skillful.—Louisville Herald.

It was a brilliant and enthusiastic "house," testifying by insistent applause its appreciation and its delight in the return of Nelda Hewitt Stevens to her former home. The gracious personality of the soloist added much to the effectiveness of her singing. She has much charm and individuality of style, and sings with dramatic fervor. These qualities are combined with excellent enunciation and the ability to attain climaxes.—Louisville Courier-Journal.—Advertisement.

Sinai Temple—Sunday evening, March 21, the Hyde Park Orchestra of fifty-five players will give the concert at Sinai Temple. Mary Hanson, violinist, will play the solo numbers.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—A piano teacher with south side pupils to join faculty of a music school; address Room 10, 6255 Kimbark av.; phone Hyde Park 2885.

WANTED—Studio time immediately. Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 regularly. Address C, Music News.

YOUNG lady with musical education desires position with a music studio or private instructor as assistant in reception room. Address E. C. Dalquist, 811 North Parkside avenue, or Phone Austin 5831.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of MUSIC Modern Expression Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDNOWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 661 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO
CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
612 Fine Arts Building Phone Garfield 5007

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4715 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Story Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

Estella Neuhaus is an artist of rare ability.

—New York Herald.

FINE ARTS THEATER

Monday Afternoon, March 22
at three o'clock

Second Private Subscription Recital by

NEUHAUS

THE EMINENT PIANISTE

Tickets Two Dollars and a half each,
Admitting Two Persons, of

J. H. CLIFFORD, 2110 Seminary Avenue

STEINWAY PIANO USED, Courtesy of Lyon & Healy
Mistress of the keyboard, poetic to a degree in her expression.
—Los Angeles Times.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Palmer Christian
Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Columbia School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Piano, Sunnyside 7127
611 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford
VOICE & PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER
PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

Some of the many delightful as well as restful events of Lent are the organ recitals which are so numerous during the spring season. This is the one season of the year in which we hear all kinds of music on the organ. St. Paul and Minneapolis have each a fine new organ to arouse special interest this year. A Skinner organ in the new House of Hope Presbyterian Church in St. Paul at which Mrs. Harry Crandall presides, and the splendid new Hall organ at Gethsemane Episcopal Church in Minneapolis, played by Edmund Sereno Ender. Mr. Ender started a series of eleven recitals in December and the writer unfortunately has only found time beginning in Lent to attend.

February 23 Mr. Ender gave a Guilman program which, although pleasing, was not especially showy. Mr. Ender, however, introduced us in a little side visit to many of the special points, and we are looking forward to some of the future programs. The cathedral chimes of 20 bells is a distinct feature and the strings are unusually fine. The organ is a four manual, contains 42 speaking stops and is divided in the five following sections: Great, swell, choir, solo and pedal organs, other accessories being 20 couplers, 2 tremolos, adjustable crescendo pedal, 27 combination pistons and buttons, adjustable at manuals. Swell, choir and solo organs enclosed in swell boxes. Electric action. Detached console. Approximately 2,700 pipes.

March 1 the monthly dinner and recital of the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists was held at St. Paul's Church in Minneapolis. Mr. Harold N. E. Tower was host. A splendid dinner was served at beautifully appointed tables, thirty-six guests participating. Mr. Tower, assisted by Paulo Gruppe, second cellist of the Symphony Orchestra, gave the following program:

Chorale Prelude	Bach
Sonata in C minor	Salome
Cello—
Adagio	Bruch
Intermezzo	Rogers
Barcarolle	Pollitt
Nocturne	Faulkes
Prayer	Borowski
Cello—
Allegro	Locatelli
Lento	Lalo
Lied	Dethier
Toccata	Matthews

The entire program was splendid, the Salome "Sonata" excellent, and the most novel number on the program. The cello and organ blended exquisitely and the Bruch and Lalo numbers might be classed among the "almost too beautiful" things.

These guild meetings are thoroughly enjoyable even to an outsider and there is a delightful spirit of bon camaraderie.

March 2 Clara Williams, the well-known soprano, and Gertrude Dobyns, pianist, gave a delightfully artistic recital at First Unitarian Church. Miss Williams was in fine voice, and her delightful personality and artistic interpretation of French and German songs pleased a very appreciative audience.

Miss Dobyns gave excellent readings of Schumann's "Sonata" in G minor, as well as two groups of shorter pieces, the "Romance" in F (Schumann) and "Impromptu" (Liszt) seeming to arouse greatest enthusiasm, although Miss Dobyns' entire program was given in a most finished and high class style.

The Thursday Musical program March 4 was splendid, the Choral Club under direction of Mr. H. S. Woodruff, Miss Gertrude Dobyns, pianist; Miss Mildred Ozias, soprano; Mr. Walter Scott Johnson, violinist, and Mrs. Marion Austin Dunn, organist, giving the program, which was as pleasing as varied. Miss Edwina Wainman and Mrs. Chas. S. Hardy acted as accompanists.

Greetings to our orchestra and its masterly director, home with many added laurels! We are more than glad to have you with us and also glad that so many other cities have had the pleasure of hearing you.

The best proof of the esteem in which the orchestra is held locally was the big audience which greeted them on the evening of March 5 during the worst storm this section of the country has seen this year.

Arthur Shattuck, the American pianist, was soloist, and the following program was given.

Overture—In Springtime, Op. 36.....	Goldmark
Symphony No. 5, From the New World in E minor	Dvorak
Adagio-Allegro molto
Largo
Scherzo; Molto vivace
Allegro con fuoco
Concerto for Pianoforte No. 4 in D minor.....	Rubinstein
Moderato
Moderato assai
Allegro assai
Dramatic Overture "Paola and Francesco," Op. 21	Oldberg

The Goldmark "Overture," resplendent with sparkling themes of nature in her happiest moods, was played with true value of its beauties.

The beloved Dvorak "Symphony," more beautiful each time we hear it, was given a superhuman reading by Mr. Oberhoffer. The many ideas given as to the motives underlying this work will always influence us while we are listening to it. Several years ago on a hunting trip through an Indian reservation the "Largo" was brought forcibly to me many times at night passing the small cabin of some old Indian who was whiling away his quiet hours with some of his old tribal chants, probably dancing to his own music, a most romantic setting in the moonlight, that brought Dvorak forcibly to mind and now the "Largo" in turn brings back the prairie nights and it is no wonder to me that any composer who could have that opportunity would find for inspiration.

The Oldberg "Overture" is distinctly original and at the same time very good. It is tremendously dramatic and its tempestuousness at times lifts one off the earth. Mr. Oldberg's presence added considerably to the interest manifested.

We have two more evening symphony concerts this season and enthusiasm runs high now at the coming of Fritz Kreisler. Much sympathy is expressed for our concert master, Richard Czerwonky, who was taken very seriously sick with appendicitis and operated on at Fort Wayne. His many friends are more than thankful to hear he is progressing satisfactorily and now we are anxious over Adolphe Dumont, another of the violin section, who was operated on Saturday morning for the same trouble.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

— # # # —

South Bend—Mr. E. D. Lloyd, formerly of Chicago, has been appointed organist and director of music at the First Methodist Episcopal Church of South Bend, Ind.

INDIANAPOLIS

The third number of the Ona B. Talbot subscribed concerts was given on January 20, when the attraction was the New York Symphony Orchestra with Rudolph Ganz as soloist. The program was: Prelude "L'après midi d'un Faune," Debussy; "Symphony No. 4," Tchaikowsky; "Concerto in B flat for piano," Tchaikowsky, and three British folk songs and dances arranged by Grainger. Mr. Ganz was in excellent form and gave a masterly reading of this popular concerto. Mr. Damrosch's reading of the "Symphony" was wonderful in its regard for slavic sentiment of which Tchaikowsky was perhaps the greatest representative of the Russian school.

■ ■ ■

Mr. Christian F. Martens, baritone, of the College of Musical Art, gave a most artistic recital at the College Hall January 27. He gave a fine and evenly balanced program and was in fine voice.

■ ■ ■

Vera Barstow, violinist, appeared here under the auspices of the Matinee Musical. January 28. Her program follows: "Concerto," D minor, Wieniawski; "Sarabande et Musette," von Kunits; "Minuet," Schubert; "Pierrot Gai," Tirenelli; "Indian Scherzo," Victor Kolar; "Ave Maria," Schubert-Wilhelm; and "Spanish Dance No. 8," Sarasate. Miss Barstow has a good style, beautiful tone and an adequate technic.

■ ■ ■

The Indianapolis Orchestra gave a concert at the Murat on January 29. The soloist on this occasion was Mrs. Arnold Spencer, who contributed the Japanese song cycle, "Sayonara" by Cadman. She was dressed in costume and received an ovation for her splendid singing. Mr. Ernestinoff was happy in his selection of material for this program which closed the first half of the season's concerts.

■ ■ ■

The second concert of the Musikverein was given February 15. The soloists were Franklin Riter, tenor, and Hugh McGibeny, violinist of the Indianapolis Conservatory under direction of Alexander Ernestinoff gave several interesting numbers.

■ ■ ■

Mr. Robert Lloyd, pianist, Johann Berthelsen, baritone, and Mrs. Gaylord Yost, violinist of the Indianapolis Conservatory of Music gave a faculty recital at the Conservatory, March 4. A very large audience was in attendance and a very attractive program was artistically presented.

■ ■ ■

The Indianapolis Maennerchor gave their third concert on March 5. The soloists were Marcus Kellerman, bass, and Gaylord Yost, violinist. Mr. Rudolph Heyne, the director of the chorus, presented several numbers for male and mixed chorus which were much enjoyed. Both Mr. Kellerman and Mr. Yost were well received.

■ ■ ■

Orville S. Cavanah, a young violinist, who recently returned from a concert tour of the south, where he gave some sixty concerts, has established himself here and already has a large class of pupils.

■■■

Louisiana—The Louisiana State Teachers' Association will have their next meeting at New Orleans in April.

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN

Several very successful concerts have been given in Ann Arbor recently, all of which were held in Hill Auditorium, and were attended by audiences of about four thousand each.

On February 17 the Cincinnati orchestra, under Dr. Ernst Kunwald, made its first appearance in Ann Arbor, and was enthusiastically received in an unusually heavy program as follows:

Symphony No. 6 in B Minor, Pathétique, Op. 74 Tchaikowsky
Suite for Orchestra, Op. 19 Dohnanyi
Vorspiel und Liebestod from "Tristan und Isolde" Wagner
Traume from "Tristan und Isolde" Wagner
Overture to Rienzi Wagner

On March 2 Ferruccio Busoni, the distinguished Italian pianist, made a profound impression. His recital was considered one of the finest exhibitions of pianistic art ever rendered in Ann Arbor.

Thursday, March 4, Miss Leonora Allen, soprano, guest soloist; Mrs. George B. Rhead, pianist, and the Lockwood String Quartet of the University School of Music gave a most interesting program as follows, on the School of Music Faculty Concert Series:

Quartet, E. minor Smetana
Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Lockwood, violins; Mr. A. J. Whitmire, viola; Mr. L. N. Parker, cello
Zueignung Richard Strauss
Lullaby Hans Hermann
Immer Leiser Wird Mein Schlummer Brahms
Der Schmied Brahms
Leonora Allen
Pastorale and Variations Mozart
Nachtfalter Caprice Tausig
Mrs. George B. Rhead
Bird Song (Pagliacci) Leoncavallo
Leonora Allen

Miss Allen was easily the favorite of the program. She appeared twice, first in a group of German songs, and concluding the program with the "Bird Song" from "Pagliacci." Her voice is of a clear and strong quality, and she sings with excellent style. Her stage presence is charming. The accompanists were effectively interpreted by Miss Frances Louise Hamilton.

■■■

Little Theater—The current attraction is the old Greek play, "Medea."

SPECIAL OFFER

Through the Year in Melody

Twelve Easy Instructive Pieces for the Pianoforte

By CARL MILLEGRAM

THIS set of teaching pieces will be found exceedingly valuable for first grade work. It is unique and characteristic; the pieces are carefully fingered and phrased and will strengthen and develop the feeling of musical rhythm, so essential in training of beginners.

Complete set in one volume 45c, regular price $1.00.
Separate Numbers 10c each, postpaid.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE

FAULKNER

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

Moline—Madame Hanna Butler and her pupils were entertained at a musicale at the Lily Wadhams Moline School of Music, 2434 Burling street, on last Saturday afternoon.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

A New Operetta

for Ladies' Voices

THE WILD ROSE

In Two Acts. Book by
EDITH M. BURROWS

Music by

W. Rhys-Herbert

75c Net

Vocal score can be obtained "on approval"

Address the Publishers

J. Fischer & Bro. New York

7, 8, 10 and 11 BIBLE HOUSE (Astor Place)

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RUSSELL SCHOOL

The Russell School of Music and Dramatic Art at Seventy-fifth street and Vincennes road is the scene of much activity, if one may judge by the splendid audiences that come to hear the programs given by the pupils of the school.

The quality of the work heard was of high grade, reflecting much credit upon the pupils and their teachers. Those taking part in the program were from the departments of piano, violin, voice and mandolin.

The piano pupils were Adele Godden, Edith Lonergan and Florence Hills, who, by the way, deserves special mention for, in addition to her solo groups, she played accompaniments for the violin numbers and also for the mandolin solo played by Dorothy Rea in a manner that was very commendable. The violin pupils, Frieda Friedmann, Elias Freudenheim, Ralph Becker, were heard to good advantage. The work of little Master Becker was very surprising and it is safe to say he has much talent and ability.

Erma Wilson's voice is of good quality and she sang with much assurance. "May Morning" (Denza) was especially well done.

Mr. Quinn has a good voice and he should feel very much encouraged, for he sang numbers by Sterling, North and Malloy in a very earnest manner that won him much applause. "The Postillion" was especially well done.

Hazel Rettker's soprano voice is very appealing in quality, and she used it to good advantage in numbers by Puccini and Newton. "Love's Echo" found her at her best, and in the duet with Miss Wilson, they sang with much finish.

Mr. Russell furnished splendid accompaniments for his pupils.

Of special interest was Isabel Stewart North's song, "If I Could Call the Years Back."

MAC BURNEY STUDIO RECITAL

The following program was given by Alma Leslie, soprano, at the MacBurney Studios in the Fine Arts Building on last Monday evening with Miss Grace Grove as accompanist:

Se tu m'ami	Pergolesi
Care Selve	Handel
Chi vuol la Zingarella	Paisiello
Lilacs	Rachmaninoff
At the Ball	Tschaikowsky
The Nereid	Glazunoff
Oh Come to Me	Balakirew
Aria de Lia—"L'Enfant Prodigue"	Debussy
Music, When Soft Voices Die	Deis
Cuckoo Song	Quilter
Remembrance	MacFarlane
The Time of May	Salter

Van Sant—Donald Opdyke, a young baritone of La Salle, Ill., and pupil of La Porte Van Sant appeared very successfully as soloist at the La Salle County Teachers' Association meeting at Lostant, Ill., substituting for Mrs. Grace Trenary of Ottawa, who was ill. Mr. Opdyke sang as offertory solo at the Congregational Church in La Salle last Sunday afternoon the very popular and effective "Pilgrim's Message," by Mr. Van Sant.

Lutton—Sunday, March 14, Mr. Charles E. Lutton, baritone, sang the part of "Boaz" in the cantata "Ruth," at Holstein Park. DeWitt Durgin Lash, director.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Louisville Quintet gave its last concert of the season on March 9. So enthusiastic was the audience that after the last number on the program had been finished they remained in their places and applauded for several minutes to express their admiration for the artists and their gratitude to them. Those who were present felt and showed the debt that Louisville owes to this organization musically.

Were it not for the Louisville Quintet we would be without that acquaintance with chamber music which is beginning to mark it. Were it not for the generally increased interest in music that the quintet stimulates, many other musical events in Louisville would become impossible.

The quintet played with more fire than at any time this year and its spirited enthusiasm transmitted itself to the audience. Rarely has a concert in Louisville given such general enjoyment. The program consisted of Schubert's Posthumous quartet, Stillman-Kelly's piano quintet, an old English composition by James Oswald, and a scherzo from a quartet by Glazounow.

On March 12 the Treble Clef Club of New Albany, Ind., an organization composed of ladies, gave the second concert in a series

W
A
R
R
E
N

PROCTOR

CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS

Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

of "people's concerts" inaugurated by the music committee of the Woman's Club of Louisville last month.

The small admission fee charged places these concerts within the reach of all and the large crowd which attended the first showed how greatly the public appreciated the opportunity. The program consisted of several choral numbers directed by Mrs. Henry Terstegge, with solos by Elsie Hedden and Ethel Robertson, sopranos, and a cello solo by Earl Hedden, who is widely known for his musicianship.

Miss Elizabeth Vogel of New Albany, Ind., has accepted temporarily the position as organist of the Fourth Avenue Methodist Church. Miss Vogel is a pupil of Professor Henry U. Goodwin, one of the most prominently known teachers of piano and organ in the south.

J. PETERSON.

New Albany, Ind.

Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal Church—A special Lenten service will be given at the Methodist Episcopal Church, next Sunday evening under direction of Ernest Todd, with Louise Harrison Slade as special soloist and Marguerite Dresser as organist.

Becker—Violin pupils of Ludwig Becker, in the Columbia School of Music, will give a concert at Assembly Hall, Fine Arts Building, Friday evening, March 26, assisted by Lillian Price, soprano.

Roeder—Mr. Edward Roeder, violinist, played with great success last week at the First Christian Church of Hammond, Ind., there being an audience numbering 1,500 people.

HOMER GRUNN WITH THE LOS ANGELES SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra gave their first popular concert to a crowded auditorium March 6. All seats were 25 cents, except boxes and loges. The selections were familiar but of excellent grade.

HOMER GRUNN

To hear them given with the exquisite artistry of this choice band of musicians, under the direction of our popular young leader, Herr Tandler, with his careful reading and delicate touches of interpretation, was a treat par excellence for the masses who love music when the prices of admission are not prohibitive.

The Mendelssohn "Wedding March" from "Midsummer Night's Dream," which opened the program, was followed with the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," with violin and harp solo adjuncts, in which Mr. Beel, the concert meister, with harp and other support, produced fine effects of devotional character. The 'cello solo by Axel Simonsen in Saint-Saens' "The Swan" was a fine example of artistic interpretation and had to be repeated to satisfy the audience. The "G Major Minuet," by Beethoven, also had a repetition by the orchestra. The Strauss "Beautiful Blue Danube Waltz" charmed throughout. The closing number was the overture to "Orpheus," by Offenbach.

They were all gems, and varied to suit all tastes. The only new number was the "March Heroique," for orchestra and piano, by Mr. Homer Grunn, who was the solo pianist. The cordial reception given by the audience and the orchestra upon entree of the composer and pianist manifested the high esteem and popular favor he holds in the minds of the concert-going people here. He is also the soloist and accompanist of the Brahms Quintet of Los Angeles, in which his extraordinary skill and adaptability has marked him a most essential requisite to the great success of the quintet.

The "March Heroique" is about ten minutes in duration. It has marked entertaining features, in rhythmic, harmonic and melodic concepts throughout the entire length of the piece. It starts with full orchestra, leading to a piano solo in thirty-six to forty-eight measures to a dramatic dash of piano virtuosity. The work is richly scored orchestrally by Mr. Rudolph Kapp, in which the lyric part is beautifully distributed to string, woodwind, reed, brass and tympanum effectiveness. The melody phrases are quite enchanting, attaining a fine ensemble and great climax with full orchestra and piano. On the fourth recall the pianist gave an encore, playing MacDowell's "Prelude, Op. 10." It is an honor to be selected as composer and artist to play on a program with our really great symphony orchestra, which can compare with the best now in this country. The popular concert management will give consideration to local solo artists and composers of merit in or outside the membership. The success of the first welcomes a more frequent repetition of the lighter music well presented. S. W. M.

S. RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE
Room 404, 59 East Van Buren St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Illinois College of Music—On next Monday evening, March 22, there will be a recital at the College, 2831 Washington boulevard, given mostly by students from the violin department under the direction of Mr. Ralph Reiche. Piano numbers will be given by Gladys McKiernan, Genevieve Godfrey, Adolph Kraus. The next regular recital, the twenty-second this season, will be given at the college on Friday night, March 26, by students, the following being among those taking part: Emma Maxted, Edith Creighton, Helen Larkin, Hester Hoskons, Edna Williams, Ruth Couffer, Bessie Marksön, Mary Jones. A recital will be given by the College at "Ardmore," South Elmhurst, Ill., on Wednesday evening, March 31. A concert will be given this (Friday) evening by students of the College at the Central Park Presbyterian Church.

New York Oratorio Society—Under Louis Koennenich, the Oratorio Society of New York closes its forty-second season on Wednesday evening, March 24, at Carnegie Hall, presenting Bach's "Magnificat," and Wolf-Ferrari's "La Vita Nuova," with Marie Sundelius, soprano; Rose Bryant, contralto; Alfred D. Shaw, tenor; Clarence Whitehill, baritone. The Symphony Society Orchestra will assist. The longer work, "La Vita Nuova," involves only soprano and baritone solos.

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

in the Italian of the vocal school in which the singer was trained and which he honors) from Bizet's "Carmen."

Here McCormack made evident the still potent force of his operatic experience in the histrionic atmosphere he was capable of throwing round his aria; his fine phrasing and grateful legato. Neither Colleen nor Carmen might hope to withstand such wooing.

The tenor was also heard in other songs, and encores insisted upon by an entranced audience.

Other artists on the program were Miss Lucile Orrell, charming young 'cellist, and Mabel Garrison, soprano. S. W. W.

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. W. Hinshaw

On the afternoon of February 28 Mrs. Cecile M. Behrens gave a reception for Mr. and Mrs. William Wade Hinshaw. There was a musical program which included an interesting group of piano soli played by Mme. Behrens. There was also a crush of people.

The baritone and his distinguished-looking wife were the center of attraction and distinction.

Messrs. Desidir Von Vecsei and Ferruccio Busoni Play

Desidir von Vecsei, a young Hungarian pianist, distinguished himself on the evening of March 2 in Carnegie Hall by playing with brilliancy and intelligence two concertos, one by Saint-Saens and one by Liszt, with an orchestra selected from the New York Symphony Society, and conducted by Victor Kolar. A large audience was assembled and the handsome young artist acclaimed.

On the afternoon of March 6, in the same hall, Ferruccio Busoni entertained an appreciative and much-applauding assemblage with the finesse and distinction of his art ably developed, in groups by Bach-Busoni, Schumann and Liszt, with a Beethoven "Sonata" of importance.

The Liszt group was the chef d'oeuvre from a popular standpoint. The Bach numbers made apparent the insight and far-reaching scrutiny of the composer-pianist, who has enriched them.

Apollo Club—One week from this Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Bach's great "Passion Music" will be sung by the Apollo Musical Club, augmented to 1,000 singers, at the Auditorium Theater. It has been seven years since the "Passion Music" was last heard in Chicago and the West and this promises to be one of the big musical events of this season. Five noted solo artists will participate as well as an orchestra of 80 musicians with Harrison M. Wild conducting and Edgar Nelson at the organ. It is expected the performance will be over by 6 o'clock.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing

31 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE

Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR

Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST

Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE

Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO

27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mac Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals

4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Ziesler

CONCERTS - PUPILS

25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO

LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

ALFRED GOLDMAN

CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

COLUMBUS AND CENTRAL OHIO

At a recent song recital by Maggie Teyte, announcement was made of the Quality Concert Series to be given next season under the direction of Miss Kate M. Lacey. The opening number will be a concert by Pasquale Amato, premier baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, who appeared here during the 1914-15 season. After this concert, October 29; dates and attractions are as follows:

November 29 or 30—Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra; George Sandby, 'cellist, soloist.

December 14—Yolando Mero, Hungarian pianist, and Evan Williams, tenor.

January 11—Mischa Elman, wizard of the violin.

February 15—Alma Gluck, glorious soprano, who was in Columbus on the Lacey series this season.

The dedicatory recital for the newly acquired organ at the Mount Vernon Avenue Methodist Episcopal church was given Thursday evening by Mrs. Wilbur Thoburn Mills, organist at Broad Street Church. She was assisted by Mrs. Forest G. Crowley, soprano, and Miss Louise Claspill Rinehart, violinist. Recently Mrs. Mills gave dedicatory recitals at Defiance College and at the Central Presbyterian Church in Zanesville, and her art has won enthusiastic commendation on the occasion of each appearance.

The Musical Art Society, directed by Professor Samuel Richards Gaines, and with Joseph Vito, harpist, as soloist, will give an entertaining program at the Hartman Theater March 18.

Elizabeth Powell Van Closter, soprano, formerly with the San Carlo and Kansas City Grand Opera Companies; Walter Leon, tenor; Anne M. Sullivan, mezzo-soprano, formerly of the Chicago, Mantelli and Aborn Grand Opera Companies; Edward H. Quinn, baritone, and a number of other musical stars, are included in the Fidelio Grand Opera Company, which is to tour Ohio and other states next season under the direction of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau.

Mrs. Edward MacDowell greatly interested an audience at the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening with a discussion and interpretation of some of her late husband's compositions.

Pupils of Miss Nora F. Wilson gave a pianoforte recital Thursday evening in Y. W. C. A. hall.

Miss Jenny Dufau, colorature soprano; Miss Katharine Goodson, English pianist; and Mr. Charles Lurvey, accompanist, appeared in a notable concert Tuesday evening at Memorial Hall under the direction of the Woman's Music Club.

Robert Dolejsi, Bohemian-American violinist, and Signor Giuseppe Bartolotta, Italian tenor of the Caruso order, will tour next season as soloists with the Dolejsi Bohemian Orchestra, under Redpath management.

Paul Bertram Gast, for three years organist and choir director at the Emanuel Lutheran Church in Marion, Ohio, has accepted a similar position at the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Columbus.

The famous series at Ohio Wesleyan University has as its concluding numbers a concert April 15 by Enrico Aresoni and a program early in May by the Russian Symphony Orchestra.

MAINE NEWS

Organist Will MacFarland, of Portland, will play at the exposition in San Francisco October 4-8. Mr. MacFarland has received many invitations to play throughout America, and he was the principal organist at the St. Louis exposition in 1904.

Prof. Robert Walter Douglas, the famous Maine baritone, who had such a very successful operatic and concert tour through Southern Europe, the Azore Islands, Egypt, Algeria and Gibraltar, covering over twenty thousand miles, has opened a musical studio in Boston, where he is coaching and teaching. One of the most interesting features of his work is the semi-monthly concerts for all musical talent to give them the opportunity to be heard. The idea is similar to the plan of the New York Musical League and already fine results are shown by the demand for the young artists heard at these recitals. Professor Douglas will have his usual summer school of opera on Peak's Island, near Portland.

Mme. Emma Eames de Gogorza is spending the winter at her old home in Bath, Maine. She has recently purchased the McLellan estate, one of the finest show places in the city. Maine people are delighted that Madame Eames has decided to live in Maine. She frequently sings for her friends, who say her voice was never finer than it is this winter.

MRS. G. W. RICH.

WHEATON, ILL.

The following program was given at College Chapel, March 8, by pupils of Miss Marguerite Dresser and Miss Nelle Bibbens:

Twilight Song	Shackley
Alta Brown
A Valentine	Lehman
Bernice Gorsuch
Swing Song	Rogers
Valse	Rogers
Gypsy Fireside	Eilenberg
Elizabeth Conley
Intermezzo	Callearts
Pearl Trumbull
In Poland	Moszkowski
Blanche Kirk
Song of Sorrow	Gordon Balch Nevin
Will of the Wisp	Gordon Balch Nevin
Carl Fischer
Barcarolle from Tales of Hoffman	Offenbach
Miss Jayne and Miss Fowler
Toccata	Dubois
Maude Smith
Melodie	Paderewski
Hazel Morey
Hold Thou My Hand	Briggs
Bernice Gorsuch
Menuet	Bach-MacDowell
Scherzo from Sonata, Op. 2, No. 3	Beethoven
Butterfly	Grieg
Pearl Trumbull
Caprice Espagnol	Moszkowski
Maude Smith
Resurrection Morn	Johnston
Vergil Bradfield

Corlew—Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, sang "Naomi" in the cantata, "Ruth," at Holstein Park with the Buena Park Choir Sunday, March 14. Miss Corlew's appealing contralto voice is winning her many friends and much praise from the press and public.

Millett-Wood—The piano pupils of Mildred Millett and Leonore Wood gave an attractive program at Wurlitzer Hall last Friday evening.

180.5 Stack
MUN

THE ARTIST AND HIS ART—NINTH ARTICLE

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

CHICAGO, AMERICA

MARCH 26, 1915

LILLIAN WHITE FREYN, Soprano

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MARCH 26, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrass 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlio Staatsburger Zeitng, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Aotwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklaboman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, March 26, 1915

No. 13

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Music News chronicled last week a seldom-heard-of-event, i. e., the singing of "The Creation" twice in one evening by the same society in the same place and with the same soloists. This occurred at the Hays City (Kas.) Festival, where there was such an exceptional demand for tickets that the performance had to be given at 7 o'clock and again at 9:30, the place being packed each time. The young Chicago artists, Anna Agnes Bailey and Herbert M. Bailey, had the soprano and bass roles respectively, and they both did credit to themselves and their Chicago training with Mr. Thomas MacBurney.

§ § §

A gala event—double-distilled and triple-plated—will be the concert of May 3 at Aurora, when the Chicago Apollo Club will combine with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in one of the best programs of this season.

§ § §

The "Console," which is the official organ of the National Association of Organists and which usually knows exactly of what it is talking, comments as follows in its last issue:

In Chicago the Music News, edited by Charles E. Watt, is giving splendid notice to the work of the organist. No two-line paragraphs will suffice for Mr. Watt. The work of the organist is dealt with as fully as the work of the concert pianist or violinist; intelligent criticism is freely indulged in; praise given when deserved, and gentle rebuke when occasion justifies.

§ § §

And, by the way, the next meeting of the N. A. O. will be held at Springfield, Mass., on August 3, 4, 5 and 6, this year.

§ § §

The affairs of the Chicago Grand Opera Company are gradually assuming shape and definite announcements may soon be looked for. It has been given out that the necessary guarantee has been raised and that all doubt as to a ten or twelve weeks season, beginning next November have vanished. Among the guarantors are the following: Robert Allerton, Ogden Armour, Blackstone Hotel, E. B. Butler; Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.; Congress Hotel, R. T. Crane, C. G. Dawes, Marshall Field & Co., F. T. Haskell, L. Hutchinson, Samuel Insull, L. B. Kuppenheimer, W. V. Kelley, A. J. Lich-

Dinna be ashamed o' your dreams;—they'll a' come true some day, for we canna' think better than God will do.

—Ian MacLaren

tern, W. A. Lyden, H. F. McCormick, John J. Mitchell, Max Pam, George F. Porter, Julius Rosenwald, Martin Ryerson, John G. Shedd, C. A. Stevens & Bros., Frank D. Stout and Edward F. Swift.

§ § §

Strange indeed would it be if Chicago should have Geraldine Farrar for its own Company next year! Such a thing is rumored and may possibly come true.

Wouldn't that make New York sit up straight! New York is very difficult to convince that Chicago has done things musically and will do more in the future, but, if we should take away their most loved prima donna they would get an object lesson which would be an eye-opener. If Music News had a deciding voice in the matter, Geraldine Farrar would be engaged at any cost—merely to "show" New York a few things it needs to be shown.

§ § §

The daily press gave much space recently to an exposition of the plans of the International Academy of Opera which is to be opened in Paris under the directorship of De Reszke, and an urgent appeal is made to American men of wealth to invest in "scholarships" at five thousand dollars each. Doubtless this would be a good thing for Paris and for De Reszke, but is it not right in line with the thought of centering all operatic activity in Europe and absolutely antagonistic to the development of opera in America?

If American men of wealth can be induced to pay out each, five thousand dollars for opera scholarships, including tuition and a debut, why should not the academy be located in Washington, New York, Chicago or Boston?

The present war has made a little rift in the European monopoly, even of opera, and why should an effort be made to throw all that prestige right back to Europe immediately after the war? Let somebody start the movement of an International Academy of Opera to be located in the United States of America.

§ § §

Mr. Lemuel Kilby, in a recent recital, made some comment on his program, which, by the way, was all-English, during the course of which he stated that such songs as "Stone Cracker John" and "Barber of Turin" and others were typical of a class of English songs which might well be called "story songs" and which, while plentiful there, have but few counterparts among the

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927
at Gorton Scho

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austio 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
EJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Sweeney, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR
SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR
ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS 6th Floor Auditorium 94

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

compositions evolved in America. The thought is worth consideration and it may prove the inspiration of some new American writers.

Not many Americans have yet covered this genre of songs at all—Homer perhaps leading the list with his "Uncle Rome," "Banjo Song," "Pauper's Drive" and others of like ilk.

h h h

At the Borwick recital at Evanston last Friday evening a full concert grand was played instead of the "baby" usually in evidence at Music Hall. "Goodness!" said a young lady student just back of me, "how did they ever get that big thing in this tiny place?"

"Oh! easy," answered her friend; "you know it all comes apart."

h h h

The difference between full-fledged publicity and the state of being entirely unknown was well illustrated in Evanston last Friday evening.

When Christine Miller appeared at Music Hall a month or so ago, hundreds were turned away unable to gain admission, but when Leonard Borwick played there last week only about two-thirds of the seats were filled.

But, then—Christine Miller is known (and loved) by all the students at Northwestern and Borwick is simply (to them) an unknown quantity.

h h h

The singing of Marcella Craft at Orchestra Hall on Monday night opened the eyes of many people to an operative possibility which had before that time been but little thought of in Chicago.

Mary Garden is a tremendous force here and Geraldine Farrar is considered in New York especially as an equally potent singer of intensely temperamental operative roles, but after hearing Marcella Craft at Orchestra Hall and observing the ardor of her temperament and the wonderful intelligence of her interpretations, there is no hesitation in the thought that this singer would equal either of the other two in popular esteem as a star in our grand opera.

Music News thinks Chicago would be singularly fortunate if Marcella Craft could and would be a member of the new Chicago Grand Opera Company.

———

MUSIC THAT IS FORGOTTEN

(Editorial in the Chicago Tribune.)

A faithful concert-going correspondent, whose years are multiplying and who finds watchful waiting rather wearisome, complains what many intelligent lovers of symphonic music doubtless have voiced or felt—namely, that a good deal of excellent music is never or hardly ever played at all, while a good deal of third or fourth rate music is curiously and unaccountably fortunate, getting on the programs with a regularity and frequency that nothing in its intrinsic quality can possibly justify.

Illustrations would be invidious, perhaps, but they cannot really be avoided. Some weeks ago Mr. Stock "resurrected" a Dvořák symphony that, as he himself explained, had been "forgotten" for many years. It was not an inspired or wholly successful work, but it was better than—or at least as good as—several symphonies that are rendered with legal or religious regularity every season. It was refreshing and enjoyable. There are certain overtures and "poems" that every one is tired of, and yet we are condemned to suffer them simply because so many other, not at all inferior, overtures, poems, suites, serenades, fantasies, ballads, what not, are "forgotten." Forgotten not by this or that conductor, but by all practically. Why do we get so little of Berlioz, Rubinstein, Mendelssohn, Saint-Saens, Liszt?

The worst foe of music is the routine maker of hackneyed programs, the man who is afraid to put an old-new, or unfamiliar composition among his selections. Variety is the spice of life musical. Of ultra-modern stuff—labored, manufactured, tortured, arid stuff that challenges the scholastic admiration of learned grammarians—we get enough, or a surfeit; of good, if not first rate, music of the near or somewhat remote past we get little or none. The conductor who shall reinspect the dusty shelves and recover lost or strayed music will be hailed as a benefactor of concert attending humanity.

JOHN ALDEN CARPENTER'S "PERAMBULATOR"

Mr. John Alden Carpenter pays the penalty, at times, of his social prominence. The disposition of a strata of our cosmos to exalt cleverness, halfway prejudiced those who dislike that superficial trait against his first orchestral venture, "Adventures in a Perambulator," before a hearing. Fortunately, indeed, he has preserved his poise and given a further evidence of his unquestioned creative gifts. The suite is good music in itself under any caption, spontaneous, happy and healthy, with a fine sense of restraint and at the same time a full surrender to the impressionistic form. But it is always musical, never turgid or over-reaching in its effects, and grateful to listen to and to absorb, as well as containing a certain amount of poetic impulse which never lapses into sentimentality. Altogether very well worth while and a distinct contribution to American music of the first class.

Mme. Alma Gluck was the soloist—always one of those who steals away the senses when she sings.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Music in Chicago

A CONCERT AT ZION CITY

Mrs. Mary Hotchkiss-Love, who is the manager of the Waukegan Conservatory of Music, maintains also a branch at Zion City and on last Saturday evening she presented the pupils of the latter school at the Christian Catholic Church in Zion City, assisted by a few from Waukegan.

MARY HOTCHKISS-LOVE

There was present an audience of at least 500 people and the occasion was a thoroughly enthusiastic one.

The concert was divided into two parts, in the first of which some small children did work which proved that Mrs. Love is an exceptional teacher, while the playing and singing of the second part also redounded to her great credit, for, while this introduced young men and women, they were yet but beginners mostly and as Zion City is not a place of wealth and everybody there believes in working, it is true that in the case of these students very few have anything more than evening and early morning hours for practice.

Under these circumstances the concert can be regarded as nothing short of remarkable.

The young pianists of the first part of the program were Kathran Chisholm, Lucile Drake, Marguerite Chisholm, Guerdon Hicks, Vera Schwartztrauber, Mary Elizabeth Judd, Lois Rockafeller, Gladys Scott and Ruth H. Love, every one of whom played with good rhythm and tone, and the memory of each one proving trustworthy.

The list of pieces was well selected and contained much of variety. A chorus of little girls did a "Motion Song" very cleverly and Harold Enstedt and Mary Elizabeth Judd, very small children, displayed talent and good training in some very cunning songs.

In the second part a religious song disclosed the fact that Ray Bennett has a good voice and musical feeling. "The Red Scarf" (Bonheur) offered a good opportunity, which was well conserved by William Wheelock, and "Joy" (Helena Bingham) and "Perfect Day" (Carrie Jacobs Bond), both of which are beautiful songs, gave much opportunity to Byron Mudgett to display nice tonal quality and musical feeling.

Nellie Williams played the "Second Mazurka" (Godard) with crisp rhythm, and Corinne Brannen showed facility in the Von Weber "Invitation to the Dance." "Hark! Hark, the Lark" (Schubert-Liszt) gave Oscar Johnson opportunity to show that he has musical taste and a good touch, while Miss Grace Love proved that she is well advanced by her careful playing of a Saint-Saens "Mazurka," and also in the good accompanying she provided for the chorus work.

Mrs. Love was scheduled for a vocal solo, which she was unable to give because of a heavy cold, but the work of her pupils was amply sufficient to prove her skill and musicianship.

She was accompanist for the solo singers and also conductor for a score or more of young people who constituted a mixed chorus and sang with pure, fresh tone and considerable skill.

Their numbers were "Venetian Summer Night," a setting of the Moszkowski "Waltz in E," and "The Bridal Chorus" from Cowan's "Rose Maiden."

Altogether, the concert was a great credit to Mrs. Love, an undoubted benefit to her students and a pleasure to the audience.

Miss Massie Lowry, teacher of dramatic art at the Waukegan Conservatory, gave great pleasure by her skillful reading of several character sketches, including an Italian impersonation, very true to life.

C. E. W.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The American Conservatory not only provides an endless list of opportunities for its pupils to appear in concert, but it also frequently provides orchestral accompaniment for concerto playing and the singing of arias, the members of the body being recruited from the Conservatory class rooms.

Such an occasion was that of last Saturday afternoon when piano concertos were played at Kimball Hall by Florence Schubert, Idorna Newmark and Kathleen Kittilsby, and arias were sung by Gertrude Schultze and Frances Burch to the accompaniment of the American Conservatory Students' Orchestra, under direction of Mr. Herbert Butler.

It was possible to hear but ten minutes of this concert and it happened that these minutes fell to Miss Newmark, who was heard in a movement from the "D Minor Concerto" by Rubinstein.

This young lady, who is a pupil of Mr. Frank Van Dusen, has splendidly developed technic and good musical perception.

She played her number with precision, style and effect, showing herself to be the faithful student of a painstaking and artistic teacher.

C. E. W.

Rigelman—Miss Mabel Rigelman is appearing very successfully this week at the Majestic Theater in vaudeville.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method

815 WILSON AVENUE

TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES BAILEY

Soprano

HERBERT M.

Baritone

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO

522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER

Just returned from abroad

Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET MULFORD

LAWSON

CONTRALTO

PUPILS

CONCERT 871 FERRY PARK AVENUE

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO

STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG.

Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO

CONCERT

RECITAL

3958 Drexel Boulevard

Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST

Concerts Recitals

Receptions

Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater

Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHR

CONTRALTO

849 LAKESIDE PLACE

TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano

Oratorio

Recital

Concerts

Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling

Pianist

Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE

509 S. WABASH AVENUE

Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Ninth Floor Auditorium Building

Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIS

Care of MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST

Mezzo-Soprano

1403 E. 68th STREET

PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO

Oratorio—Recital—Church

2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Charles W. Clark

The Distinguished American Baritone, who will appear in Public Recital on March 28, at the Illinois Theater, writes — of the —

Mason & Hamlin

Cable Piano Company,
Wabash and Jackson,
Chicago, Illinois.

October 4, 1914

Gentlemen:

I am pleased to tell you that I shall use the Mason & Hamlin Piano again during the coming season, and it is a pleasure to tell you of the satisfaction that it has given during my previous concert tours

The Mason & Hamlin Piano completely satisfies every demand of both the singer and the pianist, supplying a wealth of tone of superlative beauty, and placing it at the absolute command of the performer.

Sincerely,

CHARLES W. CLARK

Mason & Hamlin Pianos are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

GRANT KIMBELL

March 10—Chicago Woman's Club: A delightful rendition of "De Janire," Saint-Saens' last opera, was given before the Chicago Woman's Club in recital form by Mrs. Stephen C. Göss, dramatic reader; Mabel B. Layfield, contralto; Grant Kimbell, tenor; and Mrs. Charles Orchard at the piano. The work was beautifully done and greatly enjoyed by the audience. The opera will be repeated April 5.

Some of Mr. Kimbell's future engagements are:

"In a Persian Garden," Chicago, March 23.

Concert, Waukegan, March 26.

Opera recital, "De Janire," Chicago, April 2.

"Messiah," Chicago, April 1.

"Messiah," Tiffin, O., April 27.

"Messiah," Angola, Ind., May 5.

"Swan and Skylark," Berwyn, May 10.

Clark—Mrs. Marie White Clark, soprano, formerly teacher at the James Milliken University, and for the last three years soloist at the Wilmette Congregational Church, sang last Thursday at the Evanston Country Club, and on Wednesday at the wedding of Miss Madeleine Baillie at Evanston.

Pillsbury—Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury will present her pupil, Miss Vini Fravel, in piano recital at the Anna Morgan studios in the Fine Arts Building on Saturday afternoon, April 3, at 3 o'clock.

CHICAGO ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION

The Chicago Artists' Association held their regular monthly meeting in the Francis I Room of the Congress Hotel, Tuesday afternoon, March 16. The program was given by the following artists: Theodora Sturkow-Ryder, pianist; Wally Heymar, violinist; Warren Proctor, tenor, and William Lester, accompanist.

Miss Heymar played as her first group numbers by Wagner-Wilhelmj, Roberts, Sturkow-Ryder, disclosing a tone of great beauty. She has much musical temperament, a splendid technic and she employs her resources to a fine advantage.

As her second group Miss Heymar gave the Suite D Minor, by Edward Schuett, in a manner that merits much commendatory praise. In her first group two of the numbers were of especial interest, Sturkow-Ryder's "Moto Perpetuo" (MS.), and Leo Robert's "Serenade."

The first performance of "Moto Perpetuo," proves that Mrs. Ryder has succeeded in making a splendid new number for violin. Mrs. Ryder and Miss Heymar gave it in such an effective manner that it was redemanded. The "Serenade" made a good impression, and the work of both composers will be watched with interest.

Mrs. Sturkow-Ryder is an artist of great merit, and always a great favorite whenever she chooses to appear. On this occasion she played Arensky's "Etude," F sharp major, and "Polichinelle," Rachmaninoff. She has a splendid musicianship, much musical temperament, and added to this is an attractive stage presence and winning personality that have won her a host of friends and admirers.

Warren Proctor, who has made such rapid strides as a singer of exceptional merit, again proved his right to the place he is gaining in musical circles.

Mr. Proctor sang as his first group songs by Schubert, Grieg, Jensen, with a fine display of artistry, musical intelligence and beauty of voice. His second group of songs by American composers, two of whom are Chicagoans, Jeanne M. Boyd, and William Lester, and the other, Clough-Leigher, were given presentations that were highly enjoyable from all standpoints. "In Italy" (Boyd), "My Rose" (Lester) met with great success.

The Leoncavallo "Mattinata" and the Campbell-Tipton "Spirit Flower," used as an extra group, were sung with the same splendid style. Mr. Lester furnished accompaniments that were artistic and musicianly.

H. J. P.

TURNER HALL

A special feature of the concert at Turner Hall on last Sunday afternoon was the good piano playing of Mrs. Ethel Evelyn Hoffman, who gave the MacDowell Concerto in A Minor (with orchestra) in excellent style, playing also in the Mendelssohn Trio, Op. 49, with V. Tufigno, 'cello, and her husband, G. A. Hoffman, who besides being a violinist of good tone and much musical ability, is a composer of much worth.

His "Three Pieces for Orchestra," played at this concert for the first time, aroused much favorable comment.

The entire program was a varied one and included some exceedingly interesting orchestra numbers, directed with great artistry by Mr. Martin Ballmann.

FULLERTON HALL

Opera bouffe in the form of Lccoco's "The Daughter of Mme. Augot" was the offering at Fullerton Hall last Sunday evening, it being the twenty-first "opera evening" of the season under the auspices of the Chicago Woman's Club.

Probably only a very small percentage of those present Sunday evening ever heard this work before, and many could not have called to mind ever having even heard of it, although after its first performance in Brussels about the year 1872 it became quite popular, and was presented in this country a number of times.

The music is tuneful and bright but of no special significance. The libretto is full of action and deals with events in Paris shortly after the Revolution.

The whole work is in style quite a contrast to what these "opera evening" audiences are accustomed to hear there from week to week, but both audience and singers entered heartily into the spirit of it and everything progressed merrily.

Miss Henriette Wehr, the moving factor in these opera presentations, started many ripples of laughter by her witty comments, and the vocalists added to the mirth by their tactful rendering of the frivolous music and text.

The soloists of the evening were Miss Lucile Stevenson, soprano; Mrs. Frederica Gerhardt Downing, contralto; Mr. Alfred Kanberg, tenor, and Mr. Marion Green, basso-cantante.

Each of these with the exception of Mrs. Downing has been heard repeatedly at the Fullerton Hall recitals and the heartiness with which they were received by the audience testified to their popularity.

Mrs. Downing, whose first appearance it was in connection with these functions, has a voice of great beauty and dramatic power. Her tones are rich and vibrant and they are produced with an ease and freedom most pleasing to hear. Mrs. Downing has confidence, poise and musicianship also, making her a very satisfactory singer to listen to.

As to Miss Weber at the piano, and Messrs. Itte, Hillman and Klammssteiner and their instruments, they have all been so often and favorably heard and reviewed in connection with these Sunday evening events that comment regarding their work on this occasion is unnecessary. It was no exception.

C. J. B.

MARVIN HINSHAW PUPIL WINS RECOGNITION AT WOMAN'S CLUB

Miss Aline Hoffman, pupil of Marvin Hinshaw, of the Hinshaw Conservatory, appeared at the Humboldt Park Woman's Club on Tuesday afternoon, March 15, with much success. Miss Hoffman possesses a beautiful soprano voice which has been developed to a high degree and it is predicted by critics that she will go far in the professional world. Miss Hoffman was immediately engaged for another concert for the club and has also received several flattering offers to go on the road in concert.

Rankl—Mr. John Rankl was soloist in a performance of Rhys Herbert's "Bethany," presented by the Choral Society at Cranston, Wis., on Thursday evening.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

ANTOINETTE ZEBROWSKA'S CONCERT

Miss Antoinette L. Zebrowska is a young violinist to be reckoned with for the future, for she has personality, concert poise and wonderful technical fluency, besides which her musical feeling is fine and thoroughly individual.

She was for a long time a pupil of Joseph H. Chapek of Chicago, and under his instruction she became, even as a very young girl, a thoroughly good violinist. Music News has heard her in past years many times and always with the feeling that her talent was of such a character as to warrant the thought that she would become a fine artist.

Several years ago Miss Zebrowska went abroad for further study and has been since then with Sevcik, and is also a graduate from the Conservatory of Music in Prague.

ANTOINETTE ZEBROWSKA

Her growth in the musical art while she was abroad was very great and she won the unqualified admiration of her teachers and the press; in fact, so fine has been her progress that for the current season she was engaged to fulfill dates with many European orchestras and to appear in recital in many cities.

All this, however, had to be abandoned on account of the war, and she has returned to Chicago with these engagements still to be filled in the future; but, nevertheless, she has come back a very finished young artist and one who should take high rank in this city and country.

Miss Zebrowska gave a concert last Sunday evening at the New Polish Hall at Milwaukee avenue and Augusta street, a hall of fine proportions and excellent acoustics, where a splendid audience was roused to great enthusiasm by her violin playing.

The Paganini "Concerto" was played with great virility; the "Fantasia on Themes from Lucia" (Lubin), without accompaniment, was a remarkable piece of poise and virtuosity; "Blue-eyed Maiden" (Dvorak) was delightful, and the "Witches Dance," by Paganini, was done in masterly style.

For encores "Carnival Russe" (Wieniawski) proved a wonderfully dramatic bit and the "Legende" by the same composer has seldom had so musical or thoroughly intelligent a reading in Chicago.

Miss Zebrowska has unusual power; her tone is of remarkable breadth. At the same time she has such admirable control that pianissimos of the most ravishing quality are equally at her command and every trick and development of violinistic technique is hers absolutely at command.

She feels her music irresistibly, and she presents always a glowing musical picture.

She is an exceedingly pretty girl and has the most charming of stage manners. She will certainly go far in her endeavor to charm the public.

Miss Zebrowska was very fortunate in

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

her choice of assisting artists also, for Mrs. Augusta H. Chapek proved to be a thoroughly fine accompanist from every technical and musical standpoint, and much interest attached also to the piano solos of Ernest Krizan, who played numbers by Chopin, Dvorak and Liszt, excelling in quite remarkable degree in the "La Campanella" of the last named composer.

An artist who at once stepped into great favor with the audience and who was more and more cordially endorsed as the evening progressed was Agnes Nering, a soprano, who has won great attention and created a thoroughly favorable impression for her work since her return from European study a year or so ago.

Mrs. Nering has a splendid stage presence and her voice is of remarkably effective quality. She has great power and brilliance and yet is able also to present smaller works with distinction.

In a "Waltz Song" by Strauss (Johann, not Richard), she disclosed remarkable facility, being enthusiastically encored.

Later in the evening she sang the Braga "Angel's Serenade" and the "Elegie" by Massenet to a most sympathetic and beautiful obligato by Miss Zebrowska, which proved to be so popular that another number had to be added. For this she chose Del Riego's "O, Dry those Tears," and in many respects it was one of the most charming numbers of the program.

C. E. W.

MRS. CHARLES ORCHARD—RECENT AND COMING DATES

January 31—Mrs. Hannah Butler, Dorothy Meadows Club.

February 5—Mr. Robert Quait, "Dichterliebe" and other Schumann songs.

February 9—Helen Axe Brown, Mrs. Jessie DeVore, Elmhurst.

February 11—Mrs. Ora Padget Langer, Oak Park.

February 12—Mrs. Ora Padget Langer, Oak Park.

February 17—Helen Axe Brown, recital, Janesville, Wis.

February 19—Incidental music, Chicago Dramatic Society.

February 21—Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin, Mrs. Winifred MacGaw, D. A. Clippinger lecture-recital.

February 27—Charles Mixer, violinist; Arthur Merz, baritone; Helen Axe Brown, soprano, Colony Club.

March 2—Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin, Mrs. Jessie DeVore, Faculty concert.

March 6—Mrs. Binnox, D. A. Clippinger lecture-recital.

March 8—Mrs. Jessie DeVore, Hyde Park Travel Club.

March 10—DeJanire and Saint-Saens: Mrs. Aletta Goss, reader; Mrs. Layfield, contralto; Mr. Grant Kimbell, tenor; Chicago Woman's Club.

March 11—Mrs. Ora Padget Langer with Mrs. James Crandall and Harold Heaton at Chicago South Side Club.

March 17—Helen Axe Brown, Dorothy Meadows Club, Oak Park.

March 20—Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin, Brahms program.

March 22—Mrs. Sybil Sammis MacDermid, Dorothy Meadows Club.

March 23—Helen Axe Brown, Milwaukee, Wis.

March 30—Mrs. Jessie DeVore, Chicago South Side Club.

—###—
Livengood—Charles Livengood, bass-baritone, appeared as special soloist Sunday morning, March 14, at the Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal Church, and in the evening at Diversey Boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church, with great success. March 7, Mr. Livengood sang in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Elkhart, Ind. Mr. Livengood has appeared many times as soloist in Elkhart and has established himself as a great favorite.

—###—
Myrle Tyler Irons—Phineas Cohen, a very talented young pupil of Myrle Tyler Irons, played piano solos at a political meeting at the Lexington Hotel last Thursday evening, creating great enthusiasm for his work in the thirteenth "Rhapsodie" by Liszt and the MacDowell "Hexentanz."

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.
A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe
SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgcomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

AT THE CLIPPINGER STUDIOS

Miss May Wall, alto, gave a thoroughly good song recital at the Clippinger Vocal Studios in Kimball Hall on last Saturday afternoon, being assisted by Mr. Clippinger, who gave most pleasing explanatory notes, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, who played exceptional accompaniments.

Miss Wall has a voice of remarkable beauty—rich, round and free. She has remarkable poise and a complete control of all her resources, and was able to infuse her program with vitality as well as an unusual amount of vocal beauty. Her range is broad and her mental grasp correspondingly so, and she therefore was able to hold the closest attention throughout a long and varied list of songs.

MAY WALL

The German classics were sung with authority and the old Italian arias were made to carry a full burden of vocal delight.

Leoni's "The Leaves and the Wind" was particularly effective and D'Hardelot's "Dawn" proved a most welcome setting of the text. Harris' familiar "Hills of Skye" suits Miss Wall admirably and the Galloway piece also proved thoroughly germane to her style.

The lighter works were thoroughly effective, and this largely because of the good enunciation given their texts. The program follows:

To Music	Schubert
Faith in Spring	Schubert
Litany	Schubert
My Heart Ever Faithful	Bach
Rendimi (Mitrane)	Rossi (1645)
L'Esperto Nochiero (Astarte)	Bononcini (1660)
O Lovely Night	Ronald
The Leaves and the Wind	Leoni
Norwegian Song	Loge
Farewell to Summer	Johnson
Come, Let's Be Merry	Wilson
The Dawn	D'Hardelot
City of Sleep	Kernochan
The Hills of Skye	Harris
Phillis	Bauer
O Heart of Mine	Galloway
The Merry Brown Thrush	Buck
	C. E. W.

Bollman—Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman will sing at the festivals in Lansing and Battle Creek, Mich., this spring and will appear also with the Harmonic Club of Clinton, Ia., soon.

AT THE CALUMET HIGH SCHOOL, CHICAGO

The charm and refining influence of music is much enjoyed and appreciated at the Calumet High School. Principal Grant Beebe turns every opportunity to account on this line. It was a great treat to the pupils and their parents lately, when Mrs. Grant Beebe, a dramatic mezzo-soprano of remarkable quality, played and sang "The Star Spangled Banner" while thirty finely trained pupils acted, in pantomime, the scores of the poem—it was a pantomimic opera of great merit and was received with prolonged applause.

On Thursday, March 18, Miss Mary Brince, of Eveleth, Minn., a student at the Chicago Conservatory, visited the school and delighted the music classes with a few songs, among them "The Slave Girl," from the opera, "The Brides of Venice" (Jules Benedict), and a ballad, "I Thought You Loved Me," the music instructor of the school, Mr. William ApMadoc, at the piano. Miss Brince possesses a beautiful soprano voice, sings with much expression, and her enunciation is excellent.

The musical talent of the school is very favorably reflected in the well chosen voices of a delightful young ladies' glee club, directed by Miss Nelle Jackson, and led by Miss Esther Merritt. The members of the glee club are the following:

First Sopranos—Gertrude Beattie, Florence Forsyth, Astrid Peterson, Margaret Rook, Harriet Wall, Evelyn Bundy, Rose Hart, Hertha Menzel, Esther Tuohy, Irene Slater.

Second Sopranos—Goldie Westerberg, Lydia Miles, Ruth Yeder, Frances Muldowney, Miriam Bundy, Lorraine McGovern, Luella Hochel, Grace Vonderheid, Lillian Reynolds, Margaret Stratman, Martha Huber, Mildred Heoster, Hattie Krugmann, Margaret Nash, Marie Shiller.

First Altos—Ruby Fremont, Anna H. Foster, Corrine Wilson, Helen Turner, Esther Lohse, Beatrice Stryker.

Second Altos—Merle Hauser, Emma Bennett, Mabel Bendfelt, Goldie Woffle, Clarice Horton, Minnie Nottlemann. J. T. N.

— # # # —

Lester—The Dolly Varden Quartet, of which Margaret Lester is second soprano, and William Lester, coach-accompanist, gave an extensive program at the sixteenth annual banquet of the American Railway Engineering Association in the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel, Wednesday evening, March 17. The same quartet will appear in a concert at the Second Congregational Church of Oak Park, Thursday evening, April 15, and at the Memorial Church of Christ the week following.

— # # # —

Fraser—Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser presents his choirs at Grace Church, Oak Park, on Sunday evening, March 28, in MacFarlane's "Message from the Cross." On Good Friday night Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung and on Easter morning at 11 the full choir will be assisted by a twenty piece orchestra in a very elaborate service.

DAN S. DENTON TENOR

OPERA—CONCERT—RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

BRAHMS' "REQUIEM"

Last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the choir of the Second Congregational Church of Oak Park sang the Brahms' "Requiem" under the direction of Mr. Dudley L. Smith, who is organist of that church.

On this occasion, Mr. William Zeuch did the organ work, while Mr. Smith used the baton. The chorus of fifty voices was assisted by Ethel Geistweit Benedict, soprano, and Alfred Newman, bass.

To say that the performance was a success is putting it mildly, for it really was a great demonstration of what that choir can do. Mr. Smith deserves unlimited praise for his work. Brahms' "Requiem" is one of the most difficult of all choral works, and each chorus was done with an unusual cleanness of attack and beauty in shading. The church quartet, which consisted of Ethel Geistweit Benedict, soprano; Edith M. Richelson, contralto; Stuart L. Dykema, tenor, and Alfred Newman, bass, with the assistance of Dr. Albert Morey, bass, was heard in the number, with baritone solo, which Mr. Newman sang with much fervor and in excellent style. The quartet also sang the difficult fugue, "But the Righteous Souls Are in the Hand of God."

ETHEL GEISTWEIT BENEDICT

The power and beauty of Mrs. Benedict's soprano voice was heard and greatly appreciated in the tuneful solo and obligato, "Ye Now Are Sorrowful." She is always at home in oratorio and makes her audience feel the message of the text as well as hear the strains of the music.

The work of Mr. Zeuch at the organ was greatly appreciated; so much so that after the benediction the audience remained seated during the postlude. D. F. V.

Cosmopolitan—Mr. William Waugh Lander will give a series of lecture recitals on Tuesday mornings from 9 to 12 o'clock at the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art. The first recital will be held on March 23, the subject being "Beethoven's Nine Symphonies"; on March 30, "Liszt, His Personality, Music and the Virtuoso"; April 6, "Wagner and Music Drama." These lectures are open to the public.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Wednesday afternoon, March 17, the sight-singing class under the direction of Harris R. Vail, gave the cantata, "King Rene's Daughter," Smart. Voice pupils of Ragna Linne gave a short program of duets preceding the cantata, which added much to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

Misses Fengeld and Davis were heard in Phillips' "Beyond the Meadow Gate." Misses Spanier and Wackerbarth sang "May Time," by Geehl. The "Flower Duet," from "Madam Butterfly" was splendidly sung by Mrs. Dombeck and Mrs. Greulich, whose lovely soprano voice has won her so many friends and admirers wherever she has chosen to appear. Mrs. Hertz-Seyl furnished splendid accompaniments.

Mr. Vail may feel justly proud of the work of the class in sight singing, under his direction. The solo parts were taken and cared for in a praiseworthy manner by Clara Smith as "Iolanthe," Frances Burch as "Marta," Hattie Dombeck as "Beatrice," Helen Rinehart, soprano, and Carrie Wackerbarth, alto.

The chorus and solo numbers were sung in a manner that merit much praise, as do the accompaniments played by Miss Pearl Mayne.

— # # # —

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

The seventh concert of the Chicago Woman's Musical Club, will be given Thursday, April 1, in the Francis I Room, Congress Hotel. Mr. Tom Lewis will be the assisting artist.

The following members will give the program:

Mrs. Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano.
Mrs. Veronica Condon Krebs, contralto.
Miss Anna Balatka, piano.
Miss Leta Murdock, violin.

— # # # —

Turner Hall—Sunday, March 28, the final concert of the season will be given by the orchestra under the direction of Martin Ballmann. The soloists will be Leeta Corder, soprano; Ferne Gramling, soprano; Gustav A. Hoffmann, cello, and Carl Baier, zither.

MACBURNY STUDIOS

Elsa Fern MacBurney will give the following song recital at the MacBurney Studios, Fine Arts Building, on Monday evening, March 29.

Mr. Lon P. Payne will sing with Mrs. Mac Burney in the duets and Mr. John Doane will preside at the piano.

Adieu	Nicolai
Du, du liegst mir im Herzen (German Folk Song)	Mrs. MacBurney and Mr. Payne
Now Joan Ardently ("Joan of Arc")	Bemberg
.....	Mrs. MacBurney
In the Garden	Hildach
Old German Love Rhyme	Hildach
Who Taught Ye All Your Singing	Hildach
Under One Umbrella, Two	Hildach
Passage Bird's Farewell	Hildach
.....	Mrs. MacBurney and Mr. Payne
Onaway, Awake, Beloved	Coleridge-Taylor
.....	Mr. Payne
My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair	Haydn
A Rose Rhyme	Salter
Damon	Stange
The Little Fish's Song	Arensky
.....	Mrs. MacBurney
Where My Caravan Has Rested	Loehr
Were All the World Like You	Foote
O, Lovely Night	Ronald
When Day Is Done	Loehr
.....	Mrs. MacBurney and Mr. Payne

— # # # —

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Miss Julia B. Perry, a pupil of Harmon H. Watt in the Chicago Piano College, gave a pleasing piano recital in the Lecture Rooms of the College last Saturday afternoon and aroused enthusiastic endorsement from the fine audience present. Miss Perry played numbers by Beethoven and Chopin to open her program, these not being heard by this writer.

In the "Scherzo" from the Liszt "Concerto," Op. 102, in which Mr. Watt played the second piano part, she was extremely sparkling and displayed also poise and clarity.

In the Godard "Venitienne" she disclosed musical tone and fine feeling, and in a Moszkowski "Waltz" was brilliant, sure and thoughtful. C. E. W.

— # # # —

Bracken—Mrs. W. S. Bracken, contralto, appeared at Benton Harbor, Mich., on Monday evening, March 22, with the Chicago Philharmonic String Quartet.

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago. Over 40,000 Positions Filled 32nd YEAR. We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
Phone Austin 10273 5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

March 16 Miss Carrie Scott presented another of her artist pupils in recital at the Conservatory recital room. Miss Hazel Reid, pianist, assisted by Andrew MacCallum, tenor, gave a very interesting program. The first half of the program included works by Beethoven, Moszkowski, Fuchs, MacDowell, Chopin. Miss Reid opened the program with the Beethoven "Sonata, Op. 14, No. 2." The "andante" and "allegro" were the two movements heard by this writer, and she played them with much surety, good display of technic and fine body of tone.

The "Serenata" was given a delightful reading, as was the MacDowell "Hexentanz." Miss Reid played the Chopin "Nocturne" and "Waltz" with a good style and brilliancy of technic. The program included a group of Torwald Frederiksen. "Silver Star," dedicated to Miss Scott, was heard with much pleasure. Mr. Andrew MacCallum, tenor, pupil of Joel Mossberg, gave a good account of himself in songs by Cadman, Nevin, Lohr. His voice is pleasing and his renditions of the Irish songs were especially enjoyable. The program included in the latter part a group of numbers by Grieg and Weber. H. J. P.

Maverick—Laura Maverick recently gave a very successful song recital at Aeolian Hall, New York, Carl Hahn being the accompanist. The program contained a representative list of both French and German works and among the Americans represented were John Alden Carpenter, Carl Hahn, Fay Foster and Ferrata.

MRS. JOHN FREMONT MURPHY DRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

—TWENTY-NINTH SEASON—

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

Chicago's Foremost School of
MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivalled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SOLOS and QUARTETS FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

MARCELLA CRAFT IN CONCERT

The first feeling after hearing Marcella Craft at Orchestra Hall on Monday night was one of resentment that Chicago has not been allowed to hear this wonderful singer at the opera house or with the symphony orchestra.

She would equal, histrionically, Mary Garden at her best and in opera her voice would be superb, while at Orchestra Hall with the orchestra she would be like a burst of sunshine on a cloudy day.

She is more temperamental than most of the opera singers and her voice is more beautiful than any heard with the orchestra this season.

To hear her sing Woodman's "Alas That My Heart Is a Lute," and Mrs. Beach's "Separation" is a treat which occurs but very few times in a decade of concert going.

MARCELLA CRAFT

These two were part of a group of American songs which were all done superbly and which proved that Marcella Craft senses the American musical thought to its core and that she also appreciates and loves it. Very appropriately and very beautifully Miss Craft began her offerings with saue, honey-sweet songs in Italian, the composers being Gluck, Scarlatti and Giordani, and the entire list comprising a period of song at its best estate and wholly beautiful.

An entire group of Strauss was given as well as other German text songs by Berger, Liszt and Sucher, the whole list affording Miss Craft many opportunities for the display of deep musical feeling as well as allowing brief and intoxicating moments when flaming passion held full sway.

Miss Craft swept her audience as with fire. She carressed them as with gentle spring breezes and soothed with delightful charm.

They clamored for "more" until the concert reached great length, and as they went away each individual factor of the throng was telling other factors how perfectly delightful Miss Craft had been.

The occasion was a benefit concert for

St. Joseph's Hospital and there was present a splendid audience, although not at all composed of professional musicians.

The other factors of the concert were Wilhelm Middelschulte, who would grace any program and who was fine in a Handel Concerto for organ, Bruno Steindel and Enrico Tramonti contributing also familiar numbers in their familiar style. Mrs. Steindel was accompanist for her husband and Harold Osborn Smith played for Miss Craft. C. E. W.

ESTELLA NEUHAUS IN SECOND RECITAL

Miss Estella Neuhaus gave the second of her piano recitals at the Fine Arts Theater on Monday afternoon to a fairly good audience and again did she demonstrate her ability to select a wonderfully vital program and to present it in an effective way.

The pianistic excellences shown in the first recital, two weeks ago, were in still greater evidence this week and the general effectiveness of the afternoon was much enhanced by the technical proficiency with which the pianist presented the master works chosen for exploitation.

Beethoven in his Op. 57 is wonderfully potent to charm an audience and to put it in thoroughly receptive mood for what may follow. In this case the number was played with style and authority.

Albeniz is not well known and his bits of Spanish music came as a complete novelty to most of the audience. They were held to crisp rhythms and were brightly colored by Miss Neuhaus.

Chopin was generously presented, his "Andante Spianato and Grand Polonaise" and D Flat "Nocturne" being particularly felicitous for Miss Neuhaus and thoroughly pleasing to the audience.

Some Hungarian bits, novel and pleasant, were offered and the program closed with the twelfth "Hungarian Rhapsodie" by Liszt in which Miss Neuhaus showed, at times, glittering technic, and again held the tone and the movement to the somber mood prescribed by Liszt.

The recital was diversified on Monday, as on the previous occasion, by some well thought out readings by J. Howe Clifford. C. E. W.

KNEISEL QUARTET

Manager Neumann earned the eternal gratitude of the community when he caused to be built the program of the Kneisel Quartet's final concert of the season, which occurred at the Illinois Theater on Sunday afternoon. It opened with the beautiful Brahms' "A Minor" and was followed with the absorbing Smetana in E Minor, in which the great Bohemian gives almost an epitome of his own shadowed life. This is such marvelous music that it is almost exhausting to assimilate. But as a climax came, an ideal performance of the Franck F minor piano quintet, in which Rudolph Ganz joined the other artists. It is such music in itself that it calls for loving interpretation, and at this time it glowed and swelled as it pervaded every susceptible sense with a new and abiding beauty and gave one the feeling that he was a part of a benediction. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

CLARENCE EDDY

Four programs, out of the thirty recitals already played by Clarence Eddy at the San Francisco Exposition, read as follows:

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 12

Toccata in F major.....J. S. Bach
At Twilight.....J. Frank Frysinger
Suite in C major, opus 205.....Homer N. Bartlett
Chorale, Maestoso
Introduction and Scherzo
Andante
Finale, Allegro brillante
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Funeral March.....Chopin
Arranged by Clarence Eddy
The Celebrated Largo.....Handel
Arranged by S. B. Whitney
Russian Boatmen's Song on the River Volga.....Anon.
Arranged by Clarence Eddy
Communion in G.....Batiste
"Caprice Heroique".....Joseph Bonnet

THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 11

Prelude and Fugue in D major.....J. S. Bach
In Springtime.....Alfred Hollins
Sonata in D minor, opus 42.....Alex. Guilman
Introduction, Largo e maestoso, Allegro
Pastorale, Andante quasi Allegretto
Finale, Allegro assai
Russian Boatmen's Song on the River Volga.....Anon.
(Arranged by Clarence Eddy)
Paeau (new).....Julius Harrison
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Ave Maria.....M. Enrico Bossi
Allegro con fuoco.....Aug. de Boeck

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 10

Marche Religieuse.....Alexander Guilman
Meditation Serieuse, Op. 243.....Homer N. Bartlett
Love Song.....Giuseppe Ferrata
Wedding Chimes.....Lucien G. Chaffin
Pilgrims' Chorus.....Richard Wagner
Romance in C.....Frederic Maxson
Concert Fugue in G major.....J. L. Krebs
Elegy.....Jules Massenet
(Arranged by Clarence Eddy)

Fanfare.....Lemmens
Even Song.....Edward F. Johnson
Wedding March.....Mendelssohn
From the music to the "Midsummer Night's Dream"
(Arranged by Clarence Eddy)

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 13

Concert Overture in C minor.....Alfred Hollins
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Meditation—Opus 29.....Rossetter G. Cole
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Faust Fantasie.....Clarence Eddy
Funeral March.....Chopin
(By request)

Toccata in F Major.....Thomas J. Crawford
Evening Song (new).....H. Alexander Matthews
Grand Processional March.....Gounod
(Arranged by Clarence Eddy)

Mr. Eddy has also played a splendid dedicatory program on the fine $20,000 Kimball organ recently installed at the First Presbyterian Church in Oakland.

Mr. Eddy will be in Chicago about April 1 for a short stay and will, while in this part of the country play a recital on the new four-manual Austin organ at Madison, Wis., after which he will return to San Francisco and resume his organ recitals at the exposition.

Ryder—Miss Wally Heymar played Theodora Sturkow-Ryder's "Perpetual Motion" for violin, at the Chicago Artists' Club meeting last Monday and scored with it a complete success. It is a work of fine form as well as of gay content and its reception by the audience was such as to presage its permanent success.

Apollo Club—The Apollo Club announces its artist quartet for the San Francisco trip as follows: Leonora Allen, Christine Miller, Paul Althouse and Arthur Middleton. In May the Apollo Club will combine with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a gala concert at Aurora, Ill.

MARY ANN KAUFMAN'S ENGAGEMENTS

Mary Ann Kaufman, the popular soprano of Oak Park Congregational Church, has been engaged to sing in the "Creation" at Exposition Hall, San Francisco, April 10. The Symphony Orchestra will assist and the conductor is to be Warren D. Allen, dean of the music department at the College of the Pacific.

Many important engagements have been filled by Miss Kaufman. She was three times soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, also at the Evanston North Shore Festival, Apollo Musical Club of Chicago, Evanston Musical Club, Schiller-Liedertafel, Chicago Lehrer Chor, Junger Maenerchor, Germania Club, and before many of the leading women's clubs. Miss Kaufman sang in recital, March 3, at Newcastle, Ind., and March 4 at Richmond, Ind. Edwin W. Glover, conductor of the Cincinnati Orpheus Club, was accompanist at the Richmond recital.

Miss Kaufman was engaged as soloist in the "Stabat Mater," with Paul Steindorf, conductor, Easter Sunday, at Berkeley, Cal. But as she could not be away from her regular church position in Oak Park on that day her engagement was cancelled.

Bush Temple—The Bush Temple Conservatory will present Earl Victor Prah in piano recital at Recital Hall, Bush Temple, on April 2. This evening (Friday, March 26), Eugene Musser, a pupil of Grace Stewart Potter, will be heard.

Boroff—Albert Boroff is planning a Chicago recital. The date is not definitely settled, but will probably be Sunday afternoon, May 2, at the Illinois Theater. Mr. Boroff will be assisted by Miss Marie Bergersen, pianist.

THE LASH STUDIO

The following pupils have appeared as noted: Miss Zeralda Belle Cook and Mr. Schramm gave a joint recital in the studio, Monday, February 28, to the satisfaction of a fine audience.

Miss Irma Sundmacher, soprano, and Mrs. Edith Wheeler, contralto, gave a program Monday, March 8, which was well received.

Mr. Paul Roberg, baritone, and Mr. Sig. A. Awsunb, tenor, will sing the solos in "The Crucifixion," by Stainer, at the Buena Memorial Presbyterian Church, Sunday, March 28, at 8:15 p. m.

Miss Irma Sundmacher, soprano; Mrs. Edith Blades Wheeler, contralto; Mr. Sig. A. Awsunb, tenor, and Mr. Paul Roberg, bass, pupils of Mr. Lash, will sing the solos in "The Holy City," by Gaul, at the Buena Memorial Presbyterian Church, Tuesday, April 6, at 8:15 p. m., with the Messiah Chorus of the church.

The concert will be given by the same organization at Glen Ellyn, under the auspices of the Glen Ellyn Woman's Club, Monday, April 12, 1915. Mr. Lash will conduct.

A number of recitals and concerts will be given under the studio management this spring.

LEAVITT STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

On Palm Sunday evening, March 28, Miss Alice R. Deal, organist and choir director of Leavitt Street Congregational Church, will play a postludial organ recital, the service beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

PROGRAM

Grand March—From "Aida".....Verdi-Shelley
The Palms.....Faure-Westbrook
Oriental Sketch No. 3.....Bird
Hosanna.....Dubois

Easter Sunday evening, April 4, the choir will sing the sacred cantata, "Christ the Victor," by Dudley Buck.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

CLARA BAUR, Foundress, 48th Year

Conducted according to the advanced methods of the most progressive European Conservatories.

A Faculty of International Reputation

Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

LITERATURE
EXPRESSION

MUSIC
DRAMATIC ART

Special Features:—Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates.

STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME

FOR CATALOGUE

Address MISS BERTHA BAUR, Directress,
HIGHLAND AVENUE AND OAK STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

CEDRIC W. LEMONTPIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485Isabel RichardsonMUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. ChicagoEDNA DUNHAMSoprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New YorkJ. NOEL FOREST, TenorVOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981Allen W. BogenCONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGOHARRY S. AUSTINBASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758ALTA MILLERRECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg'

R. GRATZ COXTEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865Mrs. Charles L. KrumSOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986Vivian ScottTeacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZVOICE PIANO HARMONY
300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-HarterCon-
tralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-RA FINE CONCERT IN AUSTIN

The Masonic Temple in Austin was the scene of a gala event on last Tuesday evening, when Miss Anna Braun, contralto, gave a joint recital with Robert Birch, organist.

Miss Mabel Woodworth, violinist, was the assisting artist, and the occasion was still further graced by the appearance of Miss Mae Doelling as her accompanist.

Mr. Birch is a young artist whose name will become more and more known as the months go by, for, to a faultless technical development he adds musical charm and grace in exceptional quantity and he is also thoroughly logical as well as musical in all his readings.

The Bach "Fantasia et Fuga" in G Minor was firm, solid and proportionately convincing. A "Rondo" by Lemare and "Will o' the Wisp," by Nevin, were engagingly facetious, while the "Variations" (Bonnet) and "Toccata" (Crawford) disclosed exceptional bravura possibilities.

A "Romance," by Sibelius, was played with wonderful registration contrasts and familiar numbers by Guilman with great authority.

Miss Braun has a contralto voice in which power and suavity are evenly blended and to musical feeling she adds intelligence of interpretative thought.

Handel's "Ombra Mai Fu" (with organ) was very impressive, and German text songs by Arensky, Strauss and Sibelius were sung with intensity of musical feeling.

The familiar aria from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" was very well done indeed, and the English text songs showed fine enunciatory power as well as musical feeling.

"Sheep and Lambs," by Homer, proved to be a perfect gem of a song. It is religious in nature and was sung by Miss Braun with great sincerity and pathos.

Miss Woodworth, in her single group, displayed the fact—as overheard in a statement made by a neighbor—that she "has advanced by leaps and bounds recently." Her tone is rich, full and glowing. Her bravura effects are produced with clean-cut precision and her interpretative intuition is sure and convincing.

Coleridge-Taylor's "Deep River" was played much better than by most concert givers, two "Slavonic Dances" (Dvorak-Kreisler) were perfect in rhythm and superb in color, and the Robert Birch "Tarentella" was made to fairly glitter under Miss Woodworth's violinistic skill. The composition itself is charming and thoroughly well written and ought to have a big success.

Mr. Birch and Miss Doelling both acted as accompanists and both were fine.

The program ended with a performance of the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria" for voice, violin, piano and organ, in which Miss Braun was delightful, Miss Woodworth true and musical and Miss Doelling and Mr. Birch wholly fine also.

C. E. W.

Zoellner—The Zoellner String Quartet, under the management of Fred C. Graham, gave a magnificent concert to a large and enthusiastic audience at the Assembly Hall, Salt Lake City, on Friday last, March 19. This was the second appearance of the organization in the city, and had the effect of strengthening the good impression made by their first visit.

JAN BLOMQUIST IN SONG RECITAL

Belmont Hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience on last Wednesday evening, drawn by the desire to hear Mr. Jan Blomquist in a well selected list of bass-baritone songs.

Mr. Blomquist is a teacher in the Chicago Conservatory, and has a large following of friends and pupils in Chicago. He was suffering from a very bad throat on Wednesday and not able to do himself justice in any respect, but in spite of this he was able to prove that his voice is one of good quality, his musicianship is fine and his taste in program making of the best.

He sang best of all a group of religious songs by Buck, Noren and Handel, "Judge Me, O God," by the first named, being the very best number of the program.

It was sung with good tonal quality and a purely religious feeling for its magnificent text.

"Pilgrim's Song" (Tschaikowsky) and an aria from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba" disclosed good musical feeling, and some small songs were very well done indeed.

"The Pauper's Drive" (Homer) disclosed a commendable amount of dramatic power and the "Evening Star" (Wagner), with cello obligato, pleased the audience very much.

A group of Swedish songs, which were well understood by a large part of the audience, gave much delight.

Cello solos were offered by Hans Hess, an artist of the first rank, who played exquisite bits from Gluck, Bach, Mozart, Kreisler, Pergolesi, Chopin and Cui with a warm, full tone and distinctive style. He proved to be a very great favorite and had many recalls.

Beatrice Van Loon, operatic soprano, was well received in her two arias and encores.

Accompaniments were played by Frank Earnest.

C. E. W.

ST. PATRICK'S PARISH

March 16 the combined choirs of the St. Patrick's Church, under the direction of J. Lewis Browne, gave their annual concert of Irish music. The first part of the program was not heard by this writer, but judging by the way they gave the last part it is safe to say it was given in an excellent manner.

Mr. C. F. Quigley's orchestra assisted during the program and played several Irish melodies that met with great favor. The ladies' chorus sang "The Fragrance of the Rose," Howard, with a splendid volume of tone and spirit. Bernice Patterson, soprano, acquitted herself with credit in the solo obligato.

Messrs. William and George Kent were thoroughly enjoyable in the duet, "Mother Machree" (Olcott-Ball). The combined choirs filled the church parish with a volume of tone when they sang "The Cruiskeen Lawn" (Vogrich). William Mason, tenor, was recalled a countless number of times after his group of solos. He responded with an encore that was also redemanded. Mr. Hurst and the choir gave a splendid rendition of "A Song for the Pope," arranged by J. Lewis Browne.

Dr. J. Lewis Browne was a tower of strength at the piano throughout the evening, also directing the choirs in a manner that deserves special mention.

LEONARD BORWICK IN EVANSTON

Perhaps the smallest audience that ever greeted an artist in Evanston was the one faced by Leonard Borwick, the English pianist, on the occasion of his first Evanston-Chicago recital at Music Hall of Northwestern University last Friday evening.

Mr. Borwick is a very exact and unemotional player, though absolutely sure of himself and his powers. He has grace of musical feeling and tone when he chooses to use them, and also great power. In fact, he has so much power that he is often beguiled into dangerous pathways and his playing becomes much more marked in its breadth than in beauty.

His program was in four divisions on Friday, the first comprising Bach, Beethoven and Scarlatti excerpts, the second including six numbers from the Schumann "Kriesleriana," the third devoted to Chopin and the fourth (not heard by this writer) comprising Debussy, Rachmaninoff and Liszt.

The "Organ Fugue in G Minor" (Bach) was played with clarity, but the Beethoven "Rondo," Op. 51, No. 2, was utterly without the crisp rhythm and vivacity which seems inherent in it usually. It was, in fact, played with the exaggerated rubato and the super-sentimental style affected by many school girls when they give the E-flat "Nocturne," by Chopin.

Two "Harpsichord Lessons," by Scarlatti, marked a much more rational plane. They were exact, clear-cut and definite.

The "Kriesleriana" contained some nice tonal work, but was without poetry or imagination.

Chopin found Borwick at his best and the group comprised much of good piano playing. The best work was done in the A flat waltz, and as an encore the C sharp minor waltz was played.

C. E. W.

WILLIAM BEARD'S STUDIO

The pupils of William Beard continue their successful activities in many places.

William Preston Phillips, of Bloomington, Ill., made a decided impression recently at the concert given in Fullerton Hall by the Society of American Musicians. He heads the voice department in Wesleyan School of Music, Bloomington.

G. Edwin Knapp is head of the School of Music at the State Normal School, Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Harriet Jane MacConnell is contralto in the select quartet in First Presbyterian Church of Oak Park.

Frank McNellis is baritone soloist in the choir at the Church of the Holy Angels. He is singing constantly in public and gives promise of being one of the leading young singers of Chicago.

Miss Lucile Dunton sang in Kankakee last week with much success.

Miss Margaret Messer sang in a private house in Winnetka last week.

Mr. Beard's choral class, which meets every Monday at 712 Fine Arts Building, is growing and doing good work. He desires a few more basses and altos. This class is open to all.

Mr. Beard will teach a summer term in Chicago and from present indications will have a large class.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL CONCERT

There was a time when only one or two music schools of Chicago ever presented pupils with orchestral accompaniment, but that time is of the distant past now and the occurrence is becoming a very ordinary one.

No school, however, gives this sort of concert better than does the Columbia School of Music and the series of three at the Blackstone this season have been remarkable in effectiveness.

This is very largely because of the super-excellence of Ludwig Becker, the conductor of the Students' Orchestra, who in these concerts has again proven that there are few in Chicago to equal and none who can excel him.

He plays upon his orchestra as on a solo instrument and on Sunday he was really the big star of the program. The Liszt "Second Rhapsodie," under his skillful and artistic manipulation, became a marvelous piece of work and each player gave of his very best while the ensemble maintained was a perfect one.

LUDWIG BECKER

The reading was markedly fine. Brilliance was tempered by logical rubato and the gaiety of most parts of the work was modified by a lusingando in the more legato portion which was exquisite in effect and finish.

The soloists, chosen from the classes of the Columbia School, were excellent in every case and proved that many artists are in the making at this institution and that even now the quality of the concerts possible to give is at the very highest point of student excellence.

Miss Elizabeth Pease showed a rich, vibrant quality of tone in "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice" (Saint-Saens), and Miss Anne M. Sullivan maintained a good tone throughout "Il est doux" (Massenet) and capped her climaxes with vigor.

Miss Catherine Norfleet played the Saint-Saens "Rondo Capriccioso" for violin with remarkable clarity and definiteness of rhythm and phrase.

Miss Marie Clement Moll in the A Minor pianoforte Concerto of MacDowell disclosed exquisite musical qualities and Mr. Robert Macdonald in the opus 22 by Saint-Saens showed power, brilliancy and much good taste.

Altogether a concert far beyond the usual student plane—a concert of young artists, in fact.

C. E. W.

Mixer—Thursday evening, March 18, at Plainville, Ill., Mr. Charles M. Mixer, violinist, played with great success at the concert of the Plainville High School Glee Club.

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
151 OE. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Hu nboldt 4569

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO

Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE

ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Raoul S. Bonanno BARI-TONE

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARI-TONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heilmann, Berlin
es. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

A UNIQUE MUSICALE

Last Saturday evening, March 20, an exceedingly interesting musical event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Starr, Monroe avenue and Warwick road, Kenilworth. The host and hostess entertained a company of about one hundred friends at a function especially appropriate to the Lenten season. Mr. Stanley Wood, editor and dramatist of Chicago, delivered an address on "Parsifal and the Grail Legend," discussing the genesis and symbolism of Richard Wagner's last musical message to the world. The talk was illustrated with musical excerpts from the opera of "Parsifal," played on the piano by Mr. Harold Olson, of Chicago. Among the numbers played were "The Good Friday Spell," "The Zauberstick," "The Dance of the Rose-maidens" and the "March of the Grail Knights."

At the conclusion of the address a brief concert was given, Mr. Olson playing the "Quartet from Rigoletto," Verdi-Liszt; a transcription from "Traviata," Verdi; the "Erl King," Schubert-Liszt, and the "Berceuse" by Godard. Mr. Charles J. Cameron, Chicago, sang the tenor aria, "Oh Fair and Sweet and Holy," Cantor; and also "Rose of My Heart," Lohr, and "Sweet Be Your Dreams," James.

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Starr, was prevailed upon to sing and gave with great beauty of tone and accomplished artistry the famous soprano aria, "Eurydice." Mrs. Dobyns is engaged to sing with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Many compliments were given to Mr. and Mrs. Starr on the unique and charming function.

AN ENSEMBLE PROGRAM

A very attractive program was given at the Fine Arts Theater on last Sunday afternoon by pupils of William Clare Hall and the Glenn Dillard Gunn Ensemble, consisting of H. Felber, Jr., violin, and H. Felber, cello, with three pianists, i. e., Florence Scholl, Harold Yates and Sidney Arno Dietch.

The numbers played were the "Trios," Godard, Foote, and Tchaikowsky, Miss Scholl appearing in the first, Mr. Yates in the second, and Mr. Dietch in the last, this being the only one heard by this reviewer, and proving to be a piece of work of the most fascinating finish and displaying the pianistic values of Mr. Dietch in thoroughly convincing fashion.

Mrs. Bertha Lotta Sorensen made a distinct success in her solo group, reflecting much credit on Mr. Hall's teaching. She sang the "O Don Fatale" aria and shorter numbers by Leoncavallo, Neidlinger and Salter.

Mr. Hall also introduced the Chicago Artists Quartet, the ensemble of which is Florence Hedstrum, Nellie Sturtevant, Carl E. Craven and Alonzo Morsback. They were heard in the Lehmann "Persian Garden" and gave ample proof of fine individual voices, excellent teaching and good concert preparation.

VanderWater—Mr. M. VanderWater, of Muskegon, Mich., has been appointed agent for the C. W. Best Artist Series of Concerts in Michigan.

CIVIC MUSIC CONCERT

Monday evening, March 22 the people of Hamilton Park and vicinity were given a rare musical treat when Louis Kreidler, the eminent baritone, and Edward Collins, pianist, appeared in concert at the Park Auditorium. Mr. Collins opened the program with a Chopin group, displaying great brilliancy of technic, surprising ease of execution. Two "Rhapsodies," Op. 79, Brahms, were also delightfully given. The MacDowell "Improvisation and Polonaise" was a moment of very artistic playing.

Mr. Collins offered "Three Waltzes," Op. 1, of his own writing, that were heard with pleasure. In the Liszt "Liebestraum" and "La Campanella," Mr. Collins excelled himself.

Mr. Kreidler needs no introduction to lovers of good singing, for he seems to have established a reputation of singing well everywhere he appears.

This superb artist was heard in two groups of songs and he was compelled to add encores after each group before the applause would cease. Mr. Kreidler gave as his first number the Pagliacci "Prologue," with fine display of vocal art, rarely heard in concert halls. "Life and Death," Cole-ridge-Taylor, was given a very artistic interpretation.

Two Grieg songs, sung in German, met

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield
Teaching System and how to blend Key-board Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a
Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

with great favor with the audience, and were given in splendid style that was very convincing. Mr. Kreidler and Mr. Collins will be given a sincere welcome should they choose to appear again in coming concerts of the season.

New First Congregational Church—Dubois' "Seven Last Words" will be sung on Sunday night, March 28, with Frank Collins, Thomas McGranahan and Lucia May Smith as soloists, and will be repeated on Good Friday night with Charles Edwin Lutton in the baritone solos. Within the next two months Mr. H. Augustine Smith and his choir at the New First are giving "Penitence, Pardon and Peace" (Mauder), "Hear My Prayer" (Mendelssohn), "The Crucifixion" (Stainer), "The Seven Last Words" (Dubois), "The Messiah" (Handel), "The Resurrection" (Manney), and "The Creation" (Haydn).

Patterson—Miss Helen Marshall, contralto, a pupil of Grace Dickinson Patterson, sang in illustration of the lecture on "American Indian Music" at the Westminster Club of Longwood on March 4.

GIRTON FESTIVAL CONCERT

The Girton Festival Concert under the direction of Eloise Hilton Wing, was a splendid success. Gustav Holmquist, bass, was the soloist; David Nyvall, accompanist.

The Girls' Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Wing, sang as the opening group numbers by White, Schumann and Delibes. "The Spring Has Come" was sung with such a surety of pitch and precision of attack that many choruses older in years and experience might well envy their accomplishments and training.

The "Serenade" with its swinging rhythm was a happy choice, and they sang it very well, indeed, as they did the Quilter's "Blossom on the Plum."

"The Cuckoo Clock" (Grant-Schaefer) was sung in such an effective way that it was redemanded and thoroughly enjoyed.

Miss Lychenheim was all that could be desired as the chorus accompanist.

Mrs. Wing may well feel proud of the Girls' Club from every standpoint, and it is safe to say there are more good things in store.

Mr. Holmquist has a voice of splendid compass and quality, a pleasing stage presence and personality that is very ingratiating.

He sang songs of a wide variety with a style that only the artist can use.

The Handel numbers were sung with great poise and a variety of tonal color that was delightful.

His rendition of Schubert, Brahms, Beethoven gave fresh evidences of his artistry and control of his vocal resources.

The Wagner and Leoncavallo were given with a splendid breadth of style.

A group of English songs by Squire, Wade, Lidgey and Grant-Schaefer were sung as a closing group in such a delightful manner that he was compelled to give an encore, which he graciously granted. Mr. Nyvall played accompaniments that were sympathetic and musicianly, adding much to the pleasure of the program.

H. J. P.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

A students' recital was given at the Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, last Monday evening under the direction of Ralph Reiche of the violin department. The following students gave the program; Genevieve Godfrey, Vernon Welge, Oscar Hollenback, Richard DeBusk, William Learn, Francis McMaster, Maude Johnstone, Erna Opalla, John Riley, Daniel Caldwell, Ralph Repke, Carl Wagner, Helen Rusch, Adolph Kraus, Helen Golding, Ti Cable.

Another program will be given next Monday evening, March 29, by the following: Emma Maxted, Edith Creighton, Hester Hoskins, Ruth Couffer, Edna Williams, Helen Larkin, Wilfred Roberts, Isabel Barenz, Clarence Jensen, Ethel Ell, Gladys Hughes, Jessie Donaldson, Emil Stumm, Hilda Miller, Mabel Peterson.

The next recital will be given under the direction of Edna Reiner Marshall of the dramatic department on Tuesday evening, April 6.

Little Theater—Mme. Borgny Hammer will begin a season at the Little Theater on March 4, playing Ibsen's "Rosmersholm."

ST. PETER'S CHOIR

Herbert E. Hyde, organist and director of the choir at St. Peter's Church, has been offering a feast of good music during the past month.

Sunday evening, March 21, the choir under his direction, presented Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary," setting forth some of the incidents in the last days of the Saviour's life on earth. The cantata is written for two solo voices, tenor and bass, chorus, and hymns to be sung by the congregation.

HERBERT E. HYDE

Mr. Hyde, as always, did his share toward making things go smoothly, by furnishing splendid support at the organ.

The opening chorus, "On the Way to Jerusalem," is a splendid chorus number, and the chorus sang it in a manner that made it very effective.

So much has been said of the chorus at St. Peter's that the only thing left to say is that they acquitted themselves in the usual splendid manner.

The many chorals and hymns were sung in a very effective manner that evidenced much good training.

The concluding choruses, "The March to Calvary" and "Rock of Ages," were especially effective. H. J. P.

Burns—The M. Rose Burns School gave an evening of music at the church at 2555 N. Sawyer avenue on March 12, attracting a splendid audience which was more than pleased with the entertainment offered and endorsed the work of the school thoroughly. The program consisted of a lecture on "Music and Its Interpretation" by Mrs. Burns, illustrated with piano numbers by ten pupils of the school.

Oak Park—At the First Congregational Church of Oak Park the morning offertory solo will be sung by Grant Kimbell and the evening by Nicholas Douthy. On Good Friday evening Gaul's "Passion Music" will be sung, the soloists being Marjorie Dodge Warner, Permelia Gale, M. J. Brines and Frank Dunford.

Emil Liebling Musical Club—A complimentary Musicales will be given by the members of the Emil Liebling Musical Club at Kimball Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 28, at 3, under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Stumpf and Miss Aimee C. Stumpf.

PHILHARMONIC STRING QUARTET

The Philharmonic String Quartet gave their second concert at the Myrtle Masonic Temple Friday evening, March 19. Rose Lutiger-Gannon, contralto; Arne Oldberg, pianist, and Edna Winifred Cookingham, accompanist.

The program opened with the first movement of the Haydn "Quartet in B Flat." "Allegro Con Spirito" was played with great beauty of tone, excellence of ensemble and a spirit that was very convincing. The Beethoven "Theme and Variations" was so effectively done that an encore was demanded and graciously granted. The Boccherini "Minuet," ever a great favorite, was a joy to hear as they gave it.

The Bach-Gounod "Meditation" was redemanded, and played in a manner that merited much praise.

Mrs. Gannon, always a great favorite wherever she appears, sang as her first number the aria from "Orpheus" with great poise and a breadth of style that made a deep impression. In her second group of songs by Kellie, Ross and Foerster, she also proved her ability to make the lighter songs effective as well as the more dramatic.

Woodman's "An Open Secret," given as an encore, was sung in a manner seldom heard. "My Ain Folk" was sung as only an artist can sing it.

Miss Cookingham played delightful and artistic accompaniments.

The Dvorak quintet for piano and strings was played by the quartet and Mr. Oldberg in a manner that deserves nothing but the highest praise.

Their ensemble work was a joy to hear, for they played as one expects to hear artists in ensemble work play. The people of Irving Park have heard a feast of good things and it is plain to be seen that they want and are ready to hear more when the opportunity is offered. H. J. P.

Wagner—Thursday, March 18, Dorothy Wagner, soprano, gave a recital at the Thurber Recital Hall. Mrs. Wagner has a voice of good quality and she was heard to fine advantage in songs by Saint-Saens, Haydn, Gounod, Foerster, Bohm, Neidlinger, Speaks, Leoni, Woodman, Gordon-Terry, Braga.

Martin Hughes, violin, played excellent accompaniments throughout the program.

Cuyler M. E. Church—The choir of the Cuyler Avenue M. E. Church in Oak Park will render "The Crucifixion" next Sunday evening under the direction of H. H. Williams, choirmaster. Marie Edwards is the organist.

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone; Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, and Earl Prah, pianist, will give a program this week for Onargo College, Onargo, Ill., Friday evening, March 26.

CALUMET CHORAL SOCIETY

Wednesday evening, March 17, the Calumet Choral Society gave its first public concert in the Hippodrome Theater at 63rd and Cottage Grove avenue. The society was founded within the membership of the Calumet Council, Knights of Columbus, and numbers now nearly two hundred. Clemens A. Hutter, well known as a conductor of choirs, and the Chicago Choral Society, is the able director of the Calumet Society. The chorus did some excellent singing, the shading, attacks and releases might well be taken as an example by many.

The opening numbers of the chorus were Balfe's "Killarney" and "The Long Day Closes," Sullivan. The Sullivan was a high point in choral singing.

"The Kerry Dance," Malloy, met with great favor with the audience, for it was given with a swing that was very catching.

The quartet, Misses McLaughlin and McCullough, Messrs. Cox and Grace, were heard with much pleasure in a group of songs.

A comedy sketch was enjoyed greatly.

Miss Gladys M. Easter pleased greatly by her rendition of "The Last Rose of Summer."

As a closing number the chorus sang with splendid effect "Great and Glorious Are Thy Works," from "The Holy City."

Bessie Devlin McNeill played the club accompaniments in a very reliable and capable manner.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

Thursday evening, March 18, at the Auditorium Recital Hall, Mrs. W. S. Bracken and Miss Lucile Stevenson presented their pupils, William Linquist, baritone; Margaret Stevenson, soprano, in a song recital that reflected much credit upon them and their pupils.

Miss Stevenson and Mr. Linquist have voices of good quality and range, and they used them to good advantage in a representative list of songs. Their duets were especially well done.

Miss Stevenson, in her first group of Schumann and Brahms, sang in a manner that merited much praise. The second group, comprising numbers by Foote, Cole, Ward-Stephens were sung in a very effective manner, that won her much applause.

Mr. Linquist offered numbers by Scarlatti, Mozart and Handel in his first group. "Hear Me, Ye Winds and Waves" was sung in splendid style.

His second group of numbers by Loomis, Rubinstein and Allitsen were interpreted in a very effective manner.

The "Gypsy Love Song" (Korby) and Yon's "Fool of Thule" won him much merited applause.

Miss Bodholdt played accompaniments in a praiseworthy manner throughout the evening.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston, Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawdale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHARINE D'ORSAY
Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

ORGAN RECITALS AT THE FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The organ recitals, inaugurated at the new Fourth Church last summer have continued without break up to this time, and it is the intention to have them go on indefinitely, summer and winter.

About 150 people come to the church each Thursday afternoon at 4:30 and for one hour are given a musical treat of the most artistic description. Three times that many should attend, however, and pupils from out of town who are in Chicago, either for the regular school year at any of the colleges or who may come to the summer schools, ought to have it impressed upon their minds that at Delaware Place and Lincoln Parkway, which is only a little way from down-town, they may hear on Thursdays, without price, an organ recital of absolutely finest grade.

The organ at this church is absolutely impressive as to quantity and power of the effects it makes possible, and it also has such a multiplicity of dainty possibilities as well as an unlimited number of colorful and even bizarre effects that any sort of repertoire can be played with absolute adherence to the intention of the composers and with an ever-varying play of light and shade, as well as of tone and color.

Mr. Eric DeLamar, the regular organist of the church, was the recital giver of last Thursday, and at once proved himself a thorough technician as well as a concert artist of abundant style and with true poetic and dramatic instincts.

His technic, both on manual and pedals, is without flaw and his sense of proportion in registrations is thoroughly developed.

The program of Thursday opened with the chorale-prelude, "Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart," by Leo Sowerby, of Chicago.

This work is still in manuscript and it certainly gave the impression that besides being an extremely colorful writer—a fact proven often before—Mr. Sowerby is also a practical organist and knows full well how to write for the instrument in true concert style.

The opus opens with some short motifs from the hymn chosen as basis for writing and these, in various treatments, lead up to the presentation of the hymn itself, which is accomplished in sedate and solid harmonies and with very little of the abstruse or super-colorful in evidence.

Following this Mr. Sowerby has written a Free Fantasia on his theme which is more like Liszt than any writer for organ now in mind, although at times it out-distances Debussy and Busoni in the freedom with which form and color are handled. On the whole, however, the work sticks reasonably close to its text and the general effect has much of compactness to recommend it.

The general effect was thoroughly fascinating and so well liked was the work that Mr. DeLamar repeated it on the following Sunday, and it is safe to say that if the work goes into print it will be freely used by organists in their concert programs especially, that is, it will be used by organists who have transcendent technic and who are adept enough in interpretation to deal with a work of absolutely unique values.

"A Fantasy," by C. Edgar Ford, proved to be a toothsome bit of organ writing, and was played beautifully by Mr. DeLamar as was also the Lemare "Andantino," a genuine tid-bit, thoroughly liked by all audiences.

A "Toccata," by Felix Borowski, proved to be so fine on this particular organ that one might imagine it written especially for the occasion and the player. At any event, it was thoroughly toccata-like and absolutely effective under Mr. DeLamar's skillful hands.

The largest piece of the afternoon was a "Symphony for Organ," written by Augustin Barie, and played at this recital for the first time in Chicago, perhaps the first time in America.

Barie is a pupil of Vicrne in Paris, and his work is of gentle build, vague resolutions and rather doleful color. It has many spots of extreme beauty, however, and on the whole is well knit together and, filled with an agreeable amount of contrast. It is based upon a ground of Gregorian theme and is thoroughly interesting from the musician's standpoint. It was played with great virtuosity and style.

A glance over some of the late programs given on Thursdays discloses works by Rosseter Cole, Eric DeLamar, Wilhelm Middleschulte, Leo Sowerby and Felix Borowski, all of Chicago, as well as a wonderfully well chosen and contrasted list of pieces by master writers of the world.

On Thursday, April 1, at 4:30, Mr. DeLamar will play the following program:

Chorale-Prelude—Today Triumphs the Son of God..... Bach
Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique..... Guilmant
Symphonie Romaine..... Widor
(Based on a Gregorian Easter hymn, "Haec dies")
Moderato
Choral
Cantilene
Final
Scherzetto..... Rousseau
I a Nuit..... Karg-Elert
Recessional..... Eric De Lamar
On Easter Sunday three splendid musical services will be given by the double quartet and Mr. DeLamar, the hours being 11 a. m., 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. C. E. W.

MUSIC TO COME

March 26

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Bush Temple, 8:15; Eugene Musser, recital.

Armour Institute, 8:15; Glee Clubs.
Assembly Hall, Fine Arts, 8:15; Ludwig Becker pupils.

March 27

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

March 28

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Irish Choral Society, "The Messiah."

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Charles W. Clark, recital.

Auditorium, 3:00; Apollo Club, Bach Passion music.

Fullerton Hall, 8:00; Lecture Recital, "Der Freischuetz."

March 29

Little Theater, 8:15; Lois Adler pupils' recital.

MacBurney Studio, 8:15; Elsa Fern MacBurney, song recital.

Faulkner—Mr. Worth Faulkner, tenor, appeared in a recital at De Land, Fla., last week under direction of Dabney Carr.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Charles W. Clark, baritone, will be heard in song recital next Sunday afternoon, March 28, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. This is Mr. Clark's first public appearance in recital since his return from Paris. The program which Mr. Clark will sing is as follows:

Worship of God in Nature.....	Beethoven
The Almighty	Schubert
Vier Ernste gesange
Ecclesiastes 3
Ecclesiastes 4
Ecclesiastes 41
1 Corinthians 13	Brahms

Hosanna	Grenier
That Sweet Story of Old.....	West
The Palms	Faure

How's My Boy
Uncle Rome
Sheep and Lambs
Old Watt and the Rabbits	Homer
Farewell
Down the Vale
I Love Thee	Parelli
Nocturne
Green
Chanson de Paques

(Accompanied by the Composer)

Miss Maggie Teyte will make her only appearance in Chicago this season in song recital at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, April 4, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Vedrai Carino "Don Giovanni"	Mozart
Danza, Ganiculla	Durante
Se tro mami	de Flesche
Invocazione a Venere	Parelli
Serenata	Zandonia
Priere qu'un enfant ne meurt pas	Fevrier
Villanelle des petits canards	Chabrier

Vieille chanson espagnole	Louis Aubert
La lettre
La pie bavarde	Moussorgsky
Group of English songs to be announced later

La cheveluse, Chanson de Bilitis
Fantoches, Chanson Galantes
Il pleure dans mon coeur
L'Ombre des arbres
Green
C'est l'esclavage langoureux	Ariettes Oublies
	Debussy

Arthur Granquist, Chicago pianist, will be heard in a recital at the Fine Arts Theater Sunday afternoon, April 4. Mr. Granquist's program contains:

La Fleurie ou la tendre Nannette	Couperin
Prelude and Fugue in G Minor	Bach-Liszt
Sonata, Op. 57	Beethoven
Allegro Assai
Andante con moto
Allegro ma non troppo—Presto
Impromptu G Major	Schubert
Praeludium B Minor	Otterstroem
Serenade Russe	Rubinstein

Harbor of Saint-Nazaire
(From the suite "en Bretagne")
Return of the Pilgrimage from Landevennec
(From the suite "en Bretagne")
Summer Twilight on the Great
	Rhene-Baton

Prelude, Op. 45	Chopin
Ballade E Minor	Brune

Albert Spalding, violinist, comes to the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, April 11, for another recital under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Stead—Mrs. Blanche Morgan Allen, who has been a piano pupil for four years of Franklin Stead, director of the Peoria Musical College, received the second highest vote in the state contest of the Federation of Music Clubs, held in Peoria, March 9. Mrs. Allen is also a member of the faculty of the Peoria Musical College.

MUSIC IN THE THEATRES

Percy Hammond in the Chicago Tribune: "The managers seem disposed of late to fill that abhorrent vacuum, the orchestra pit, with more or less musicians to play between the acts. I believe it was a controversy over the trombone that caused this gloomy crypt for many months to be untenanted. The union held that the trombonist and his vibrant notes were an esthetic and economic necessity—that no theater band was complete without him and that he too was incomplete without a job. The managers thought otherwise, though it is said that one of them was willing to compromise upon the xylophone. A strike and banishment of the serenaders from many playhouses ensued.

"Their return, it seems, is welcomed; at least the audiences appear now to be happier between if not during the acts than they were when there was no music. It is not possible to say that the sounds made by the orchestras are always entirely satisfactory—most frequently they are insufficient for the class of selections played. But as an aid or as an impediment to entr'acte conversation they have their value. You may recall the music Mr. Timponi used to make at Powers'—bright, laey, soft, pretty music—as the advertisements say of Professor Herrick's essays, neither of high brow nor low, but medium. There, indeed, was the ideal conductor of a theater orchestra. His programs ever fitted the plays and they fitted, too, the number and the nature of the instruments involved. When Mr. Timponi led the band at Powers' he warranted the paraphrase:

"Some to the theater repair,
Not for the drama, but for the music there."
"Other employments now bereave the theater of Mr. Timponi's eloquent baton, and I shall always bear a feeling of resentment against the sinister arrangement of tubes and pistons which deprived us of him. Meantime, the managers are to be felicitated for their endeavor to provide something in the way of sweet sounds to ease the anguish of the wait between the acts."

JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON

Miss Johnson, contralto, has filled the following engagements lately:

February 15, Englewood Woman's Club.
March 14, Bethany Presbyterian Church.
March 15, Amateur Musical Club.
March 16, Woman's Association of Commerce banquet (Auditorium).
March 17, Irish Literary Club, Orchestra Hall.
March 20, Chicago Nature Study Club luncheon.
March 23, South Side Woman's Club.

GLENN DILLARD GUNN RECITAL

Mr. Gunn's program at the Fine Arts Theater Sunday afternoon at 3:30 reads as follows:

Two Choral Preludes.....	Bach-Busoni
Andante Favors	Beethoven
Scherzo in B Minor.....	Chopin
Bear Dance	Bella-Bartoc
Mennett	Schubert
Capriccio in B Minor	Brahms
Andante from "Celtic Sonata".....	MacDowell
Pagodes	Debussy
"Laufenburg" (Swiss waltz)	d'Indy
Sonata in B Minor	Liszt

Roney—Mr. Henry B. Roney will lecture at the Christian Catholic Church in Zion City on April 3.

FRANK
Van Dusen
PIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
+438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary
Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist
YOST
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam 1B. Carlton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL
COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

The Elderly Person

As the sea-dogs are wont to say, it was a scurvey trick to play upon a trusting elderly gentleman. And even if there must be made known some of the inner doings of an editor's office, it shall see the light. You see, it was somewhat like this:

Of course, every player and singer is desirous that the initials C. E. W. shall adhere to a review in which they have taken part. Small wonder that such is the case, but the man who owns them simply cannot be at more than three places at once. He manages, somehow, to cover more ground and give a better account of himself than is believable, and to keep it up incredibly. But there are certain crises when he sends a call over from the Macedonian heights for help. If he uses H. M. B. or H. W. P. they know their ground pretty well, and look up the connections and data for themselves and never get into trouble. There is a certain briskness to the telephone bell when the Elderly Person is told that "Music News" is on the wire. He usually finds the suave voice of the Editor floating westward and is informed that that personage is simply swamped, etcetra, and could the Elderly Person go hither or yon and relieve the pressure. At an affirmative reply there is breathed over the wire a sigh of relief that makes for vibration. Then follows minute instructions as to how and where to go and what to do and say. The instructions are always obeyed and then some, for the Elderly Person is apt to be met with very outspoken regrets that C. E. W. could not come himself. Then does the inwardly raging Elderly Person put on his most benign air, swell up a little and say sweetly, "But this is something that must be particularly well done, and whenever that is the case he always sends me!" It is a dreadful dose to be swallowed, but it is presented with so much of the oil of palaver that it is apt to go down. It is the only way so far discovered where one can get back at the Editor!

Perhaps the odor of a mild adventure is detected in this prelude. There is one. A dark and stormy adventure, for last Monday night was a dark and stormy night, spitting rain and trying to snow, and with a wind that said "No" every time an umbrella was raised. The Elderly Person, knowing well that Bailey was out in the Kansas Bad Lands, was quick to respond to the Editor's plea and had tucked "Once Aboard a Lugger" under his arm and had a good solid hour's worth of fun from it while the South Side "L" thumped and bumped itself clear to the end of its right-of-way. This was about four long blocks from Hamilton Park Field House. The Elderly Person, with his child-like confidence, had believed the statement that he would find a MacBurney recital in progress when he arrived there. He had accepted the assignment with keen pleasure, for he always enjoyed whatever Mr. MacBurney presented in the way of talented pupils and attractive programs. Unusually interesting are these latter from the standpoint of musical literature, so catholic and wide-ranged is Mr.

MacBurney's taste and knowledge. In addition, at this time, Miss Grace Grove was to play the accompaniments. What happened, as may be already guessed, was that all these anticipations went to smash, and the trusting heart of the Elderly Person lacerated beyond repair. For the recital was then in process at Fine Arts Building. In the midst of the music Mr. MacBurney answered the telephone and heard a voice at the other end ask him "Where was his old show, anyway?" Preserving his dignity as well as might be, he answered coolly that the recital doubtless referred to was then pursuing its musical course in his studio. Upon being informed of the marooned condition of the reviewer, he became apologetic and regretful, and confessed that someone—it is always safe to put it on "someone," you know—must have failed to notify the Editor of the change of plans. But how would he make up to the Elderly Person for his disappointment? (You see, it is always sweet to exaggerate one's grievances, if he is fortunate enough to get another to acknowledge any iota of shortcoming!) Well, how would another specially prepared recital

Leginska PIANIST

Has been engaged for FIVE appearances as soloist with the
NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Walter Damrosch, Orchestra
Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York City.

do, later on, to which the Elderly Person would be particularly requested to come to and review, instead of the much-desired C. E. W.? Nicely, thank you. Thus did peace spread her gentle wings over the mild adventure and ring off the connection.

But if the Editor and the concert giver together did do that slangy thing, and "put one over" the unsuspecting Elderly Person (a matter never to be fully cleared up), if they thought they had downed him, they made the biggest sort of a wrong guess. For long after the recital had folded up its tents and the studio was in darkness, the Elderly Person was still at the Field House, having what he likes to denominate "the time of his life," although he has so many of these that he can't keep tab on them. Almost on his entrance he met Mrs. Ada Fisher, who is interested in the civic music furtherance, and when she learned who he was, said so many happy things about "Music News" that the air was electrical. She also said some lovely things about the Elderly Person that would have made the Editor green with envy. And it was then discovered that the choral society fostered at this point was rehearsing that evening, and then in came Edward Collins, who directs it, and his sister, and before he knew it the inflated Elderly Person was being introduced all around and then allowed to sit by and hear the singers do Tchaikow-ski's "Legend" and a lively "Echo" song. Then the door opened and Frank Dunford fairly blew in. And he sang to and with the club.

But there was a lot else to be seen and heard and enjoyed. The gymnasium, so wonderfully equipped, with the lithe supple young fellows developing themselves—something to make a manly man's heart grow warm and glow and make him almost unwilling to leave. And there was a peep into the cosy reading room, the walls lined with accessible rows of books, and with inspiring pictures and statuary. Comfortable seats and tables were there and, best of all, under the good strong light were a lot of young people deep in the very best things in the world—good books. The Elderly Person found himself fascinated by the boys who were in an abandon of absorption, absolutely dead to all sensation but the world of imagination in which they were roaming. We enjoy and appreciate books in maturity, but there is no delight to equal what a healthy boy can bring to a book which appeals to him.

Then did Mr. Rainwater, the superintendent, take the Elderly Person under his wing and fit the climax to the evening. It was more than pleasurable to stand in the rotunda and see the people flock in, and thus to have a first-hand knowledge of what these park field houses stand for in the localities where they are placed. Off in one corner was a game under way for the championship of checkers, while nearby two veterans sedately planned their chess moves. Eager young men and women, boys and girls, and older people came in, and made a shifting group as each person sought the thing that appealed to him and had brought him thither. There was coming and going all the time, and the most luxurious sense of ownership that could be imagined. . . . Thrusting some packages into his pocket, Mr. Rainwater said "Come." The Elderly Person wanted to call him Mr. Winterburn for some unknown reasons, for the two names are absolutely opposite. Upstairs he went, opened a magical door, and lo the Elderly Person was in the midst of a group of dancers, and he likes that sort of thing about as well as anything. How happy they were, so responsive to the musical rhythm and the enjoyable sense aroused. They were doing all sorts of new steps. There were any number in the awkward squad, too; some who would never learn to dance because they were trying so hard to. Dancing is like kissing—it has to come naturally to be successful. The feet trained to the older dances drifted into the discarded two-step and waltz at times, in spite of the "trots" and "hesitations" and the like. Then the instructress formed the couples into long lines and "sets" and put them through the paces of a Morris Dance. How pretty it was, the quaint music, the little hop-skip steps, the clattering sticks which accented the measures, the waving line of young people surrendering completely just to the joy of living and the impulses of youth. How they did laugh and joke and tease! What little shrieks of girlish excitement came out! It was more vital with the elements of pleasure unconfined than the most elaborate function could induce.

There isn't time to tell how Mr. Rainwater took those packages out of his pockets and showed them to be films for the picture machine, nor how he reeled them off on the screen, nor how the young people made shadow pictures on that same screen, nor of the shouts and peals of laughter and the fun of the flying moments. . . . All of a sudden the Elderly Person remembered how far from home he was. When, after another session of forgetfulness in the "Lugger," he turned up the light in his room, he found it was way after midnight.

But he wouldn't have missed it for worlds! For lack of a more responsible person, he will call the party who tried to trip him up Circumstances. And he complacently inflates and looks rakish as he snaps a finger at the guilty one, and informs him that there will have to be put up a stronger combination than the one offered to knock out. THE ELDERLY PERSON.

"CRUCIFIXION" SUNG IN EVANSTON

Stainer's "Crucifixion" was sung by the choir of St. Mark's Church, Evanston, last Sunday afternoon, the special soloists being John R. Rankl, baritone, and Eugene F. Dresser, tenor.

The choir, composed of sixty voices, Robert Holmes, choirmaster, and Stanley A. Martin, organist, sang this beautiful composition in a manner that only strengthened the good impression made at the time of a previous hearing, as reviewed in last week's Music News.

John R. Rankl, whose reputation as an artistic singer is well established, sang the baritone solo parts with a spirit of sincerity and reverence and entire regard for the text that makes him an especially desirable interpreter of works of this nature. Excellent tone quality and intelligent phrasing marked his singing throughout.

Mr. Dresser possesses a voice of much beauty and his singing of the tenor solos was very satisfactory.

Mr. Martin's splendid work at the organ contributed in no small degree to the beauty and impressiveness of the service. C. J. B.

Hyde Park Presbyterian

The morning music service at the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church included numbers by Mendelssohn, Shelly, Chadwick and Gounod.

Mr. B. E. Ballard gave much pleasure in the organ numbers he chose, and led the choir and congregation in some enjoyable hymn singing. Mrs. C. C. Robbins, soprano; Mrs. E. N. Layfield, contralto; Robert Quait, tenor; G. W. Christopher, bass, are the regular members of the church quartet.

Mrs. Layfield was the soloist of the morning, giving as an offertory solo, Chadwick's "A Ballad of Trees and the Master," in a very effective manner. Her singing is marked by her sincere attitude and splendid style of presentation.

Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church—"The Messiah" under direction of Haydn Owens will be given at Park Avenue Methodist Church on Thursday, April 1. The soloists will be Margaret Owens, Lucy Hartman, Grant Kimbell and Edward Clarke.

AT THE THEATERS

At the Majestic

Mabel Riegelman, of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, is filling an engagement at the Majestic this week.

Little Theater

A production of the most astonishing effectiveness and so artistic that it is really an object lesson in how fine a polish may be put upon a stage production, is "Medea," the very old Greek play which is being presented at the Little Theater and in which Ellen Van Valkenberg-Browne has the name part—one by the way of astonishing power and beauty.

Dickens Readings

The University Lecture Association presents Mr. Frank Speight, of London, in his eighth series of Dickens recitals at the Fine Arts Theater on Tuesday afternoons at 4 o'clock, the dates being March 23, April 6 and April 13.

At the Auditorium

"Life," the big play put on by William Brady, will open at the Auditorium on April 3.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

The next regular concert of the Amateur Musical Club will be held in Assembly Room, Fine Arts Building, on Monday afternoon, March 29, at 2:30 o'clock.

The program, arranged by Mrs. Belle Forbes Cutter and Mrs. Marion Blanchard Wood, with Miss Ruth Klauber as accompanist, follows:

Concerto (first movement).....	Goldmark
Miss Gertrude C. Bates
Les Roses d'Hiver.....	Fontenailles
Infidélité.....	Hahn
O des Oiseaux.....	Hue
Le Mirior.....	Fenari
Miss Hazel Huntley
Bourrée.....	Bach
Ballade.....	Schnecker
Am Springbrunnen.....	Zubal
Miss Marie Ludwig
Per la Gloria.....	Buononcini
The Slighted Swain.....	Old English
The East Wind.....	Mary Turner Salter
The Little Damsel.....	Novello
Mrs. Susie Burr Whyland
Capriccio.....	Brahms
Widmung.....	Schumann-Liszt
Miss Esther Hirschberg

MISS ADLER PRESENTS PUPIL

Miss Lois Adler will present Marie Donner in the following program at the Little Theater next Monday evening:

Sonata, Op. 26.....	Beethoven
Scenes from Childhood.....	Schumann
Preludes, Nos. 10, 11, 23, 22
Etude, Op. 10, No. 3
Etude, Op. 25, No. 3
Chopin
Sonetto del Petrarca.....	Liszt
The Girl with the Flaxen Hair.....	Debussy
Serenade for the Doll (from Children's Corner).....	Debussy
Danse Negre.....	Cyril Scott
Polonaise.....	MacDowell

Rogers—Miss Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist, has fulfilled the following dates in March: 12, La Crosse; 13, Bagley; 14, Cochran; 15, Cambridge; 17, Randolph; 18, Wild Rose, Wis.; 19, West End Woman's Club, Chicago. On Easter Sunday Miss Rogers will play at the First Presbyterian Church at Aurora, Ill.

MARGARET KEYES
CONTRALTO

Some recent press comment follows:

The recital given by Margaret Keyes, the gifted contralto, quite fascinated Springfield people as will be seen by the following:

Convention Hall, Thursday night, was the scene of a great musical treat for the music lovers of Springfield. It is hard to decide where to begin and even harder where to end, when one attempts to write a report of the wonderful recital by Margaret Keyes, the world famous contralto.

I have heard hundreds of voices in my day, but never did I listen to a voice the equal in every respect of that of Miss Keyes. Her wonderful tones continue to haunt me, and ever will, for that matter.

As wonderful as was her voice, even more so was her art. She sang with intense passion and feeling and many in the audience were moved to tears by her singing of that beautiful old ballad, "Long, Long Ago."

It would be almost impossible to say which number was her best.

She opened her program with a fine Gluck Recit., and "Aria" that was probably new to most of those in the audience. This number she sang superbly. The next group contained two Italian numbers, followed by that little gem, "Long, Long Ago," and closing with Arne's famous number, "The Lass With the Delicate Air." It was the little gem by Bayly that literally took the house by storm. She sang it with an intense musical feeling that was telling in its effect. In response to hearty applause, she repeated this song.

The next group was the most classical of the entire program, containing four difficult Brahms numbers, also "Widmung" by Franz and "Schlagende Herzen" by Strauss. The last named was probably the most beautiful in the entire group, although they were all rendered with exceptionally fine feeling.

The two remaining groups were English songs and certainly appealed to a large majority of those present. Her three little numbers by Eleanor Smith were delightful. Ward Stephens' "Summertime" was remarkable in its display of the marvelous range possessed by Miss Keyes, together with her apparently unlimited power.

When the recital was ended, people remained in their seats for all were loath to leave. She was simply compelled to sing again. Many remained in their seats and continued their applause in the hope that she could still be persuaded to sing again. It was a long program, but at the end her voice showed no sign of fatigue. It was as clear, sweet and true as in the first number.

Springfield has had the pleasure of having some fine musical attractions, but the recital Thursday evening was an epoch in the history of the city, so far as music is concerned.

Never before have people been so entirely unanimous as in their praise of Margaret Keyes and her wonderful voice. The one sentence on the lips of everyone was, "We must have her here again." If she should return, I am quite sure there will not be a vacant seat in the auditorium. All who heard Miss Keyes Thursday night must have been impressed by the artistic work of Dean Rudolph Wertine in accompanying her, especially when one remembers that they had but one rehearsal of her songs, most of which were extremely difficult. "Springfield is fortunate in having a man of Dean Wertine's artistic ability," said Miss Keyes to me at the close of her program.—Mrs. W. F. Geiger in Springfield (Mo.) "Republican."

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—A piano teacher with south side pupils to join faculty of a music school; address Room 10, 6255 Kimbark av.; phone Hyde Park 2885.

WANTED—Studio time immediately. Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 regularly. Address C, Music News.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director
School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language
 Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
 PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
 300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
 2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS
 ORATORIO
 RECITALS

SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
 Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
 Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
 KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO

CONCERTS—ORATORIO
 294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
 1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER

Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
 612 Fine Arts Building Phone Garfield 5007

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
 4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
 6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-
 CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

People & Events

LILLIAN WHITE FREYN

Music News is very much pleased to show on its cover page today pictures of Lillian White Freyn in her Scotch and Irish costumes, as well as one of the lady in propria persona.

Mrs. Freyn is a singer of the most varied and extensive attainments and her presentation of the whole soprano repertoire is marked by great breadth and beauty of tone, as well as of an exceeding refinement.

She sings arias with all the sweep and brilliance necessary to them and she gives songs in various languages with definite enunciatory values in each and also, she sings ballads with great musical expressiveness.

Of late she has, however, developed several special programs and these she gives in proper costume, bringing also to her task the wealth of vocal art which has long been hers.

As a preamble it may be said that few singers have so admirably made up as Scotch lassie and Irish girl, while the costume used by Mrs. Freyn for her Old English program is also one of tremendous effectiveness, as well as great beauty.

She sings also a Spanish program and one of Old German songs (in German, of course,) as well as a Gypsy program, made up largely of Dvorak music, and a southern program, in which she appears in before-the-war crinolines.

All these have been received with great acclaim by clubs and the concert-going public generally.

During the current season Mrs. Freyn has given recitals (mostly in costume) for the Travel Class, the Open Door of the Chicago Woman's Club (three times), in La Grange, Ill., for the Infants' Welfare Association, and for the Indiana Association.

She has appeared in concert at the dedication of the new Masonic Temple at Guthrie, Okla.; at Armour Square (twice) at the People's Liberal Church, the West Side Training School, and at the Chicago Artists' Exhibit concert at Fullerton Hall, in Chicago.

Last season Mrs. Freyn made three appearances at the South Shore Country Club, as soloist with the Steindel Trio, and in two songs recitals. Twice she sang at the Amateur Musical Club concerts, and took part in four musicales at the Chicago Woman's Club, and at the concert in Music Hall, given under the auspices of the same club, to commemorate "Shakespeare Day." Two song recitals were given at the Chicago Athletic Club and one at the Chicago Woman's Athletic Club. Mrs. Freyn was also soloist at the reception and luncheon of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the annual convention held in the Gold Room of the Auditorium. She gave a song recital on New Year's Day at the Lake Forest Club and also sang at the New Year's Social of the Hamilton Club. Among the many receptions, musicales and "at homes" may be mentioned one at the Rogers Park Tea-cup Club, when in order to have the pleasure of another song recital from Mrs. Freyn, the club permitted exception to the rule that not more than one recital should be given by the same artist in the same series of any season. Another specially successful appearance was a song recital at Manchester, Ia.

Mrs. Freyn was treasurer of the Chicago Amateur Club for four years and has appeared in many of their concerts. She was also treasurer for a year of the Art and Literary Department of the Chicago Woman's Club, having appeared also at the reception they gave the president in 1913, twice in their Shakespeare Day programs and, last winter, singing their Christmas program.

At the South Shore Club, where Mrs. Freyn has appeared a great many times, she has been alternate artist on programs with both Bruno Steindel and Albert Spalding.

Early next November Mrs. Freyn will give a song recital at the Fine Arts Theater in the Fine Arts Building.

Mrs. Freyn is a long time pupil of Mrs. Charles L. Krum in the Fine Arts Building and to this excellent teacher she ascribes the successes she has had in her public career.

Mrs. Krum has a method of voice production which is absolutely endorsed by those who have studied with her—a goodly company of young artists—and it is equally well thought of by that larger army of music-lovers who have been charmed with the work of the Krum pupils.

Mrs. Krum not only has a method which is distinctly individual and thoroughly effective, but she is also a coach with few equals and her pupils are prepared for the concert stage or for the choir loft with equal facility, while grand opera and oratorio finds many recruits also from her studio—recruits who are trained in the broad and masterful way necessary to those fields of musical endeavor.

To have to her credit so admirable a young artist as Mrs. Freyn is a great deal, but this is only one incident in a long line of brilliant successes achieved by this teacher.

At a recent concert given for the Chicago Society of Artists at Fullerton Hall, both Mrs. Freyn and Mrs. Krum were heard in solo groups, and together they gave the audience a program of duets, a line of endeavor in which they have reached rare perfection and which they exercise frequently.

Among the most charming of the numbers given were the "Angel's Song," by Abt, and "My Heart's in the Highlands," by Gade, beautiful songs both and presented by these artists with a power and finish not often heard in duct singing. The voices blend exactly and the artistic impulse of each finds full sympathy and complement in the artistic impulse of the other.

Mrs. Freyn sang that most beautiful of the Homer songs, "Sheep and Lambs," and the brilliant "Chanson Provencale," of Del Acqua, in the one showing sustained legato and beautiful tonal quality and in the other giving an exposition of lightness and clear-cut brilliancy not often equaled.

Mrs. Krum presented in her group "At Dawning" (Cadman), "Fairy Pipers" (Brewer) and "The Year's at the Spring" (Beach) in such superb style and with such admirable control of all her well-trained faculties that the audience was more than enthusiastic in appreciation, and she was compelled to respond to many recalls and encores.

The accompanist was Mrs. Frederick Lewis, a pianist who has long served in this capacity at the Krum studios and who knows repertoire in abundance and has definite and voluminous technical and musical qualifications for her work. C. E. W.

PASQUALE TALLARICO IN LOWELL

Those who are spreading the propaganda that it is possible to acquire in this country a musical education that will amply fit one for the concert or recital platform will do well to take note of Pasquale Tallarico, the young pianist who appeared in recital at Colonial Hall last evening, for he is a proof of the soundness of their theory. Although of Italian parentage, it is understood that he has acquired all of his training in the United States. Of course he has the musical instinct of his race, the warm temperament, the keen sense of rhythm, much of which is doubtless a gift of the gods, but nevertheless the means to express his feeling he has attained here and already has developed it to a degree which has brought him recognition as among the most promising of the younger artists whom we may claim as peculiarly our own. It is possible that the present war in Europe may ere its close give opportunity to demonstrate that a thorough musical education may be obtained without going abroad for it.

The Chopin "Ballade" was worked up to an effective climax and the Debussy "Arabesque" was played with dainty grace. The pianist had manifestly caught its mood. His own "Fairy Burlesque," decidedly free in form, was quite in the modern style, its manner seemingly patterned after that of Debussy or Ravel, although it contained originalities that show that the pianist has possibilities as a creator as well as an exponent of music.

To the final group on the program Mr. Tallarico brought his best resources, giving the "Campanella" with bell-like tones and rhythmic movement, singing the little "Chant Polonaise" with a touch of the pathos it needs and dashing off the "Rhapsodie" with splendid spirit and brilliancy. All in all, Mr. Tallarico, with youth and skill in his favor, is a pianist from whom great things may be expected.—Lowell (Mass.) Courier-Citizen.—Advertisement.

AS GOOD AS A LESSON

This was the comment made after hearing Albert Borroff sing at a recent recital. Many times the criticism made of singers is in regard to tone production. All students and singers are working to improve their way of producing tones, because after all it is the perfection of tone which goes such a long way toward great effect. Mr. Borroff has always been a stickler for natural, easy tone emission. He knows that it is the only way whereby the voice can grow and be more useful as the singer grows in experience. Artistry makes a song more effective, but the first thing the listener asks is good tone. Next comes expression which includes rhythm and tone color. When these are found the chances are for hearing songs well sung. Albert Borroff sings with a natural, easy tone emission, his voice has become more useful as his experience has grown; he colors his tones to suit the text, his rhythm is impeccable, he speaks the words with distinctness, so it follows as a matter of course that to hear him sing is "as good as a lesson."

KATHERINE GOODSON AND JENNY DUFAN IN JOINT RECITAL AT COLUMBUS, OHIO

Two artists, Mme. Katherine Goodson, and Mlle. Jenny Dufau, vied for the favor of a large audience in Memorial Hall last evening and at the close of the program, both had established themselves in the good graces of those who had heard them. Mlle. Jenny Dufau was just as warmly received as the great pianist, and gave generously of her talents. Her art is a most pleasing blend of fresh soprano voice and attractive personality.

Mlle. Dufau opened her program in English, singing Handel's "Oh, Had I Jubal's Lyre," and Monro's "My Lovely Celia," and following these with Del Acqua's "Villanelle," which set off her coloratura to fine advantage. Again in the "Polonaise" from Thomas' "Mignon" she met the exacting vocal demands of the piece in a way to evoke enthusiasm. Right here mention should be made of the accompanying of Charles Lurvey, which was admirable all the way through the program, but noticeably brilliant in the "Polonaise." The delicate pianissimo tones at Mlle. Dufau's command, really one of the most enjoyable attributes of her voice, were revealed in a French folk-song, which she gave as an encore.

A miscellaneous group of songs closed the soprano's program. These were Humperdinck's "Wiegenlied," Dalcroze's "L'Oiseau Bleu," Delibes' "Les Filles de Cadiz," Lang's "Irish Love Song," Leoni's "The Leaves and the Wind," Hahn's "The Dancing Girl," and Hugo Wolf's "Elfenlied," which was substituted for Schubert's "Liebesbotschaft." "The Last Rose of Summer" was added as a final encore.—Lisle D. Bell, in the Ohio State Journal, Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday morning, March 10, 1915.—(Advertisement.)

Dellers—Mr. Walter Dellers gave a violin recital before the River Forest Women's Club on March 16, playing a fine program of works by Tartini, Nardini, Kreisler, Gluck, Gossec, Pergolesi, Mozart and Beethoven.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY

The spring term of Valparaiso University opened with an enrollment of over 500 students larger than the corresponding session a year ago. The summer term will open May 25, and the mid-summer term June 22.

It is interesting to note the strides this institution is making. The plans are now under way for three new buildings, and it is assured by the authorities that at the opening of the fall term this school will offer facilities which are unsurpassed. It is remarkable to conceive that in these hard times, when rent and food stuffs are exorbitantly high, that this institution will accept a student for $20 per quarter of twelve weeks and board and room for $1.80 to $3 per week.

Mr. H. B. Brown, the president, and Mr. Oliver P. Kinsey, the vice president, still remain at the head of the school, which is in its forty-third year.

GAYLORD YOST ACTIVE IN CONCERT

Gaylord Yost, composer-violinist, of Indianapolis, has been kept busy with concerts throughout the season. On February 11 he gave a recital in Shelbyville, Ind., and on February 19 appeared in joint recital with Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Friermood at New Harmony, Ind.; March 4 at Evansville, and March 5 soloist with the Indianapolis Maennerchor. Recitals are already booked for April, in Terre Haute, Bloomington, Crawfordsville, Pendleton and Indianapolis.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice
Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

PASSION MUSIC

by the

Apollo Musical Club

HARRISON M. WILD, Conductor

augmented to

1,000 SINGERS

Auditorium Theater, Sunday Afternoon, March 28

at 3 o'clock

SOLOISTS

FLORENCE HINKLE
ALMA BECK
NICHOLAS DOUTY

Soprano
Contralto
Tenor

G. MAGNUS SCHUTZ
BURTON THATCHER
EDGAR NELSON

Bass
Bass
Organist

Entire Symphony Orchestra

TICKETS, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00

BOXES, $15.00

At the Apollo Club Box Office, in Lyon & Healy's Wabash and Adams

CARL D. KINSEY, Business Manager

CHRISTINE MILLER

Contralto

The Handel and Haydn Society of Boston has engaged the distinguished American contralto, Christine Miller, as soloist for "Artists' Night," April 14, and for the performance of "Elijah" on the following night at the Centenary Festival of this society at Symphony Hall. Miss Miller will sing in the "Messiah" with the Irish Choral Society of Chicago on March 28, and in the "Elijah" performance at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., on May 19. The University Glee Club of Providence, R. I., has also booked this popular contralto for its concert of May 7, and the Indianapolis Maennerchor has engaged her for the eighth consecutive season for its concert of April 30. Miss Miller will give a recital in the Artists' Series of Erie, Pa., on March 24, her fourth consecutive appearance here.

In a recent program of "Made-in-America" songs, Miss Miller scored a distinct triumph in her home city, Pittsburgh. Hers is not a case of "prophet without honor in his own country" as the following excerpts from the Pittsburgh press bear witness:

Dispatch, Feb. 6, 1915—"Miss Christine Miller, her voice as rich and resonant, and her personality as gracious and affable as ever, was heard in Carnegie Music Hall last evening in a program of "Made-in-America" songs. That Christine Miller is still one of Pittsburgh's greatest favorites was proven once more by the ovation she received. Her singing was, as it always has been, a model of what good singing should be, and her hearers were quick to respond to her splendid art. The gem of her numbers was Carpenter's "When I Bring to You Colored Toys." She sang it with such exquisite delicacy and art that it permits of no criticism. Her singing of Homer's "How's My Boy?" also stands out as one of the memorable features of the evening. The splendid dramatic climax of this number was handled with perfect mastery. Into "I'm Wearin' Awa," by Foote, and "When My Laddie Turns Back Home," by Cadman, she gave such expression as almost to convert one to the belief that the songs were masterpieces."—C. J. E.

Chronicle Telegraph, Feb. 6, 1915.—ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD HEARS CHRISTINE MILLER—SINGER GIVEN GREAT RECEPTION. —Regardless of the heavy downpour of rain, a capacity house greeted Miss Christine Miller, contralto, at the benefit concert of the Columbia Hospital held at Carnegie Music Hall last night. Miss Miller was in excellent voice and made a profound impression, being showered with gifts of roses from admiring friends. One of her very best numbers was Sidney Homer's "How's My Boy?" which she sang with intense dramatic expression. Her lower tones were exceptionally good and her interpretation pleasing. Carpenter's "When I Bring Colored Toys" and "Dearest" by Sidney Homer, were numbers of exceptional merit, these giving her plenty of opportunity to display well modulated tones. Gertrude Ross's "Dawn in the Desert" and Ward-Stephens "The Nightingale" were sung with dramatic spirit. It was the first time in many months that Miss Miller has been heard in public concert in Pittsburgh and her home town reception was a triumph.

CECIL FANNING FILLS SEVENTH RETURN ENGAGEMENT IN HOUSTON, TEX.

On March 19 Cecil Fanning filled his seventh return engagement at Houston, on this occasion singing before an audience completely filling the Prince Theater, Mr. Fanning's singing causing the great enthusiasm he arouses everywhere. The six weeks' tour Mr. Fanning is making in the south is one continuous series of triumphs. On March 8 Mr. Fanning sang in Birmingham, Ala., with such success that the Music Study Club there immediately asked him to give them a return date during the same month. Space prevents printing the many splendid criticisms of Mr. Fanning's work, but herewith, below, are notices from Birmingham and Houston, which are two of the musical centers of the south:

Mr. Fanning has a rich, sympathetic voice of large range and distinct color, and his style is wonderfully versatile. He is at once a convincing interpreter of lyric and dramatic song literature and of the quaint folk song as well. He is especially happy in declamatory effects.

His Schubert songs were of moving appeal, but it was in Loewe's musical setting that Mr. Fanning revealed perhaps his finest artistry and brought into play his broadest intellectual faculty. Loewe was a contemporary of Schubert and was a philosopher and a distinguished man of letters as well as a composer.

Mr. Fanning had been requested to sing Schubert's "Erl King," but gave instead Loewe's, rightly supposing as he did that it would be new to most persons in the audience. Schubert's is more melodious, but Loewe's more dramatic. It was rapturously received.

Mr. Fanning's accompanist, H. B. Turpin, is a master artist and added greatly to the success of the entertainment.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The five numbers of the Cecil Fanning program comprised in all eighteen songs, and this number was increased by five extras that came because the audience manifested the warmest and most eager delight in the regularly programmed good things that were given. The Pagliacci prologue has been sung to Houston audiences by baritones good, bad, indifferent in the course of many seasons, and the fact that we all have through this practice become intimately familiar with every chord and phrase of it provides an ability to recognize and applaud any special points of excellence in a new performance of it. Cecil Fanning's art is of the utmost refinement, so his interpretations of even hackneyed selections are characterized by a certain distinction which makes them all over entirely. The opening group of four German songs carried each one its own special appeal. To me the Liszt setting of "Die Lorelei" was the most highly gratifying one among the four, chiefly on account of Mr. Turpin's wonderful picturings, through that exquisite piano accompaniment, of the physical atmosphere of the poetic story's setting.

Delightfully illuminating were the two Russian songs—I mean illuminative—as typing the tonal art of modern Muscovy. In the first one, "Mooning," the sympathetic union between the piano and the voice parts seemed even chemically close; and the Tolstoi poem set by Rachmaninoff was, in my estimation, the finest thing Mr. Fanning did throughout the whole evening.

The Fanning-Turpin presentation of that horrific old song, "Edward," with the Loewe music, has always been a tremendously great piece of tragic interpretation. Every time I hear them do it it gains by at least one degree in its terror-inspiring power—and with last night's rendition fresh in mind I have to report that it is still gaining. For instance, do you remember how vividly the utmost sense of terror was depicted in the suddenly sweeping portamento of that very last note?

The French and English folk songs were thoroughly delightful. Mr. Fanning's extreme finesse as an actor, along with the general charm of his physical personality, caused the old French songs to be completely captivating.

Mr. Fanning's recital of his own poem, "La Princesse Lointaine," was characterized by suggestions and refinements of idea too subtly delicate to be carried into every heart and mind.

Ferrari's "Lights in Fishing Boats at Sea" was certainly good to hear. And the old English love song (from Dowland's book) was a happy experience, too.

Along with the Art League, all Houston is indebted to Cecil Fanning and H. B. Turpin.—Willie Hutchinson, in the Houston Post. (Advertisement.)

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Some notices given to Mr. Bohnet during his residence abroad are as follows:

Cleveland Bohnet proved himself a thorough, well-schooled pianist, whose great technical equipment permits him to overcome the most formidable difficulties with ease. His interpretation of the Liszt "Rhapsodie" was a rare treat.—Steglitzer Anzeiger.

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Cleveland Bohnet played compositions by Liszt, Leschetitzky, Schumann and Rubinstein with deep feeling and technical mastery.—Deutscher Reichsanzeiger.

Cleveland Bohnet's playing of MacDowell's "Witches' Dance" and Chopin's "Octave Study" displayed a fine and fluent technic. His encore found great favor with the audience.—Die Tankunst.

The soloist of the evening, Cleveland Bohnet, of Berlin, presented Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasy" with the orchestra. His treatment of this brilliant work revealed the experienced artist, one possessing a splendid finger technic and healthy musical conception. The audience rewarded the artist with enthusiastic applause and compelled him to give an encore.—Neuen Niederschlesischen Zeitung.

The most important number on the program was Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasy," for piano and orchestra. The soloist, Cleveland Bohnet, from Berlin, played with brilliant technic and extraordinary temperament, without, however, allowing the latter to disturb the general line of his playing, even in the most exacting passages. The artist's splendid feeling of rhythm enabled him to grasp the peculiar character of the work—rhythmically so complicated—in every detail; and added to this was a well-balanced conception and interpretation of the work. The audience recognized the excellent quality of the artist's work and applauded in such warm fashion that an encore was finally granted.—Niederschlesischen Zeitung. (Advertisement.)

St. Andrews—The regular choir of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Washington boulevard and Robey street, Guy S. Webster, organist and choirmaster, assisted by the Cecilian Choir, Harriet Martin Snow, director, will give a rendition of Stainer's "Crucifixion" on Good Friday evening. Mr. Robert Benson, tenor, and Mr. Gage Christopher, baritone, will be the soloists.

Corder—Miss Leeta Corder will be the soloist at the Ballmann Orchestra Concert at Turner Hall on Sunday afternoon, singing "Shadow Song" from "Dinorah," and "The Spring Song" from "Natoma."

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
Steinway Piano Used

CLARENCE EDDY A GREAT ORGANIST

If we had our choice we would have set apart every noon hour and evening hour when an organ recital was scheduled at Festival Hall by Mr. Eddy, and spend an hour or more listening to the finest organ music anyone is able to hear in this country, or in any other for that matter. For some reason we have been unable to obtain all the programs Mr. Eddy presented during his engagement at the Exposition, but if there is anything missing on them that is enjoyable to the musical ear, it is not the fault of Mr. Eddy, but merely the necessarily restricted schedule of the number of recitals. The fact that three thousand people have attended these recitals several times speaks well for Mr. Eddy's musicianship. We must confess that personally we have not had much experience in listening to organ music, but as far as our musical judgment is concerned we find Mr. Eddy's interpretation in full harmony with our musical taste. He is surely as nimble with his feet as he is with his hands and some of his "footwork" is truly marvelous—at times we can hardly believe our eyes and ears. That velocity of tempo, that accuracy of technical brilliancy, that exquisite attendance to musical details which Mr. Eddy obtains by means of pedal extremities is something we can not quite understand.

But what surprised us more than anything else was Mr. Eddy's knack of infusing personality or individuality into the organ. It is hardly creditable that such a monster instrument could be handled in a way to reveal individualistic tendencies. And yet Mr. Eddy plays in a manner that proclaims his personality at once. He absolutely dominates the instrument and makes it do exactly as he wishes. This ability to make the instrument yield to his genius is accomplished by means of an intelligent, or let us say, unique use of the stops. What touch is to a pianist, "combinations" of stops is to an organist. Now, with an ordinary instrument it is not difficult to discover which combinations are most effective, but Mr. Eddy has hardly had an opportunity to study this huge organ, which he says is one of the greatest in the world, and yet he at once found out the most effective combinations and the best mode of investing the instrument with his personality. He is a past master of the pianissimo. What the bel canto or mezzo voce is to the singer, the piano or pianissimo is to the organist. While it may seem easy to one who does not know much about organ playing to attain these dainty effects; in reality it is the acme of organ virtuosity, and Mr. Eddy possesses this gift to a most remarkable, not to say wonderful degree. We have never been so stirred by an organ recital as we have been during those Eddy concerts we have attended. Evidently the Exposition authorities are of our opinion, for while Mr. Eddy was originally engaged to give only five recitals, these have already been more than doubled.

So far his recitals have attracted the most people to Festival Hall. And, if you consider that admission is paid, you will realize the drawing power of this great American organist. Mr. Eddy has also been engaged to play the organ at the Illinois building and is likely to return to us next summer for further recitals. We sincerely hope that he will be called upon to do so.—Pacific Coast Musical Review.—(Advertisement.)

St. Simon's—On Thursday, March 18, St. Simon's Episcopal Church choir sang Mercadante's "Seven Last Words," assisted by Mabel Allen, soprano; Adelaide Lewis, contralto; Carl E. Craven, tenor, and W. Cary Lewis, baritone. The quartet did very good work, voices blended nicely, the solo work by Mabel Allen, Carl E. Craven and W. Cary Lewis was very fine. The chorus work of the boys was very well done and the church was well filled. Mr. P. W. W. Fairman is choirmaster and G. Franklin Richards, organist.

GRAND OPERA ARTIST LOCATES IN LINCOLN, NEB.

Florian Varkony, who has been much praised by Chicago newspapers and musical magazines as an European baritone of prominence, has accepted a position in the Lincoln Musical College of Lincoln, Neb., and will develop the vocal art in Nebraska for the next few years.

Mr. Varkony gave a very successful recital on the evening of February 23 in Nebraska City, singing a varied program of American, German, Italian and Hungarian songs and operatic selections. The audience was a large one and received him so enthusiastically that many of the operatic numbers (which were given in costume) were repeated.

Mr. Varkony is one of the few singers having the pure Italian resonance and Bell-Canto style. It is so seldom an artist so capable of entertaining the public as Mr. Varkony will teach that it is a rare opportunity for vocal talent in the western states. It is learned that the Lincoln Musical College is one of the few musical institutions in this country giving a music lesson every day, in the place of the ordinary system of twice each week, and we are informed that this method has proven to be a very successful one for rapid advancement in all departments of music.

Mr. Varkony is to be congratulated on being with so progressive an institution.

LAKE GENEVA

The Lake Geneva annual reunion was held at the City Club on the evening of March 18. Mrs. Hildred Hanson Hostetter was the soloist, accompanied by Miss Grace Grove. She sang two groups of songs: "Daybreak," by Daniels; "Dearest," by Homer; "The Birthday," by Woodman. Also "Der Lenz," by Hildaeh; "Come Into the Garden, Love," by Salter; "Ecstasy," by Rummel. She responded to an enthusiastic encore with "Where Blossoms Grow," by Sans Souci. Mrs. Hostetter has a remarkable voice, developed under Herman DeVries and Charles Norman Granville of New York City—a voice of rare sweetness, power and flexibility. Oak Park is to be congratulated on having the addition of Mrs. Hostetter to her list of resident artists.

Madrigal Club—The Madrigal Club, under direction of D. A. Clippinger, will give a concert at Central Music Hall next Monday evening.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.
 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans
 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

A FINE EASTER SONG

In His Pity He Redeemed Us ^{3 Keys--G, F, Eb} Special price 25c
 (Fifty Cents)

THE FABLE---Piano solo for left hand alone. An excellent pedal piece, with beautiful melodies, outlined by a story (65c). Special price - - - 33c
 (At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.)

By ISABEL STEWART-NORTH PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
 Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director Phone Austin 4043

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Elsie Harthan Arendt
 2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
 1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
 2nd Alto--Haze Hunt
 Director-Accompanist TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
 NEW YORK CITY

DOES DRAMATIC TALENT AND A KEEN SENSE OF PRACTICAL DRAWINGROOM AND STAGE DEPARTMENT DISQUALIFY A SUCCESSFUL TEACHER OF SINGING?

Does a Thorough and Correct Knowledge of Tone Production and Breathing Disqualify a Successful Dramatic Teacher?

An unsigned statement appeared in a recent edition of a music journal, i. e.: "Don't study dramatic art with a singing teacher. Don't study singing with a dramatic teacher," and while the author refrains from showing his colors by appending his name, yet the subject in itself is a most worthy one, and deserves not a "curt" but a legitimate reply, dealing with the real subject matter, not with personalities, and I thank the author for opening the subject.

First, let us consider for a moment the "poor acting" of our average opera singers. Even those who sing well, are, most of them, greatly handicapped by lack of dramatic training; their gestures are awkward and their hands feel (to themselves) to be ten times their actual size. They have been told to raise the right hand when singing a certain word, the left, at another given point, and at the climax, to raise both hands high. These same gestures, repeated many times, are about all the audience ever see, except from real artists. The fine singer who learns to act well, and realizes that every move of the hand or body should be simply such as aids in the expression of certain emotions in the soul of the singer (spontaneous and not set for a particular word or phrase) will, when he develops the ability to live the part he is endeavoring to portray, allowing the action to fit the word, become at once a recognized artist.

Many opera singers have the necessary talent to act well, but were so unfortunate as to have studied with teachers who could not give them even the slightest idea of the true portrayal of a character, except perhaps, with the voice, and as all dramatic effects with voice must also come from the spirit and soul of the singer, the same as action and facial expression; a teacher who is able to secure good results in one will be able to do so in all, the same law of nature governing all.

Turn for a brief moment to the lyceum and concert field; out of the thousands of singers, how few are at ease on the platform, and appear at their best. While a small percentage of them near the line of perfection, the majority are at a great disadvantage, appearing both awkward and nervous, not always from lack of dramatic ability, as people imagine, but from a lack of knowledge of what is right; again the fault of the teacher. Many singers fail to secure engagements for this reason, yet they have studied for years with singing teachers of great reputation, but who know little or nothing of the dramatic side of their own profession.

Consider for a time the dramatic stage. Of those who act well and true to nature, how few speak with well trained, beautifully modulated voices, not because of defective vocal instruments, but again because of lack of knowledge of correct breathing, breath support, tone production, articulation and many other things that they should know in order to obtain the best effects possible with their voices. Booth and Mansfield were both particularly noted for their beautiful voices. Many actors have just as good vocal instruments, if they were properly trained in the use of them. Orators, statesmen, clergymen and lawyers are also handicapped by a lack of proper ideas regarding tone production. In singing and speaking, tone production is identical when both are correct.

Space here will not permit of the volumes that could well be said along these lines, but suffice it to add, that the arts of singing and legitimate dramatic expression cannot be successfully separated, as each is crippled without the other; even as a soldier on the battlefield having a wooden leg and only one arm.

Our well beloved David Bispham is a wonderful example of this great truth, for eliminate either his almost divine dramatic expression or his beautifully modulated and perfectly controlled voice, what would become of our renowned Bispham?

Every teacher of singing should understand at least the fundamental principles of platform and stage technic, and of the natural laws by which the great actors and actresses so skillfully portray various characters. Every teacher of dramatic art should be as thoroughly versed in voice production as the best singing teacher, as it means quite as much to the actor, orator, lawyer, preacher and other speakers, as it does to singers. Very few young people present themselves for vocal study who have not been encouraged by their friends to believe that they have more than ordinary vocal instruments.

Of the millions who study voice in various parts of the world, spending sufficient time and money to become at least good singers, ninety-three per cent fail to make any degree of success, and of these failures, at least seventy-five per cent are the result of incorrect and incomplete training; these conditions are appalling but true, and all conscientious teachers should work in harmony to relieve this very serious situation, each diligently seeking new light on the subject and freely aiding their fellows to improve the existing deplorable conditions with a view to the general good of the profession.

MARVIN HINSHAW.

—###—

New York—A Bach program was given at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York on March 21, under direction of Seth Bingham. The list of works included a violin and organ recital, the cantata "Behold We Journey Up to Jerusalem" and the tenor aria, "In My Trouble, Humble, Silent." —###—

Huelster School of Music—Previous to removal of the Huelster School of Music from that part of Kimball Hall which is to go into the hands of the wreckers on May 1 a series of concerts have been given as follows: On March 20 a program was given at the School Recital Hall, and on Tuesday evening Dr. A. G. Wipperfurth, well known throat specialist and lecturer, spoke before the pupils of the vocal department at the studios of the school. On Monday evening, March 15, a program was given by members of the Faculty of the School at the Irving Park Baptist Church, those appearing being Louise M. Hawley, Mae Waller, Louis Condy, Eleanor Sherwood, Herman Gruendler, Jacob Ellenboon, Marjorie Benton Cook.

MARVIN HINSHAW

As He Appeared Twenty Years Ago in Classical Drama, Since Which Time He Has Devoted His Entire Attention to Vocal Art

The Artist and His Art

(Copyright, 1915, by K. S. B.)

By KATHARINE S. BROWN

IX.—THE ARTIST HIMSELF

Four men stood before God at the end of the first week watching Him twirl His little globe. The first man said to Him, "Tell me how You did it!" The second man said, "Let me have it!" The third man said, "What is it for?" The fourth man said nothing but fell down and worshipped. Having worshipped, he arose and made a world himself. These four men have been known in history as the Scientist, the Man of Affairs, the Philosopher and the Artist."—Gerald Stanley Lee.

Probably few artists have ever lived who have not felt at some time the sorrow and bitterness of being misunderstood and therefore unappreciated. Keenly feeling the beauty and truth of his own work, the gall of discovering that as such it is utterly meaningless to most people, is unspeakably dreadful to the artist. It is a tragic thing for him to learn for the first time that those who know him best personally are quite possibly those who understand him least as an artist. The tremendously endowed geniuses of all time have no leisure to lament this fact. The impulsion of their gifts upon them, they speak their message of beauty and light knowing that the heart that needs it will find it.

Even of true artists there are two kinds. There is the kind of workman who sees a fixed goal worthily suited to his ambitions and his powers—a goal profitable of achievement to public and worker alike; a goal full of high honor in the attainment and a grateful monument to the workman's single-minded ardor and skilled labor. He is not uncommon—this man in the near view, his admirable goal ahead, toward which he steadily and painfully climbs. Then there is the workman who has within himself something deep and abiding—a continuously upspringing fountain of life to him wherewith he dwells, whereby he understands, whereof he drinks eternal freshness of being; and as an inevitable consequence of this fact he acts—he works his works in joy. His reason for working is not something in the end. It is something in the eternal beginning. He has not less substance in his goal than the other workman but a better hope. He has not less power but more patience. He has not less profit but greater happiness. The one acts under the compulsion of his own purpose, the other acts under the impulsion of his own powers.

Such an artist knows that of necessity he can not always be understood and appreciated. He knows that the circumstance of personal relationship has naught to do with the comprehension of that all-gift, his art, which is all men's as it is his. Therefore, he sees that the thing that makes him personally incomprehensible to his family, his friends and even at times to other artists is the individual gift of his art itself. Were it otherwise, were it possible that others could sympathetically comprehend and appreciate him, either he would be no artist or all others would be artists too.

It is a shame-faced thing to have to consider, the protest—"they do not understand me." An artist is not for the purpose of being understood. He is for the purpose of making others understand something high and utterly beautiful that they could not understand without him and might not even glimpse—

"To lift up men—this their aim!
Away with pomp and pride and fame
Through light and darkness, fire and flame,
To lift them up!"

If he is content to do this and to be this revelator he will be happy and that in spite of the most adverse contemporary criticism, not only of himself but of his work.

So much can be said on this point, but one great artist has said it completely—better than it ever can be said again, and so here is the sublime defense of Sidney Lanier for all artists everywhere in a letter to his father, May 8, 1876:

"What possible claim can contemporary criticism set up to respect—that criticism which crucified Jesus Christ, stoned Stephen, hooted Paul for a madman, tried Luther for a criminal, tortured Galileo, bound Columbus in chains, drove Dante into a hell of exile, made Shakespeare write the sonnet 'When in Disgrace with Fortune and Men's Eyes,' gave Milton five pounds for 'Paradise Lost,' kept Samuel Johnson cooling his heels on Lord Chesterfield's doorstep, reviled Shelley as an unclean dog, killed Keats, cracked jokes on Gluck, Schubert, Beethoven, Berlioz and Wagner and committed so many other impious follies and stupidities that a thousand letters like this could not suffice even to catalog them?"

So contemporary criticism of himself and even of his work may well be the very least of the considerations of the artist whose heart is true and whose hand is sure.

On the other hand, is the accusation of non-artists justly made sometimes, that the artist is the most self-centered, the most self-satisfied and the most selfish being in the human category.

Does the artist, being unappreciated, clothe himself in the sacrificial robes of martyrdom? Does he set himself up as the creator and god of his own little world? That others see not the beauty of his world and bow not down and worship himself as the god of it is the cause of his grief, and his grief is his just penalty for usurping the prerogatives of powers never granted him.

When the artist learns to fathom his own too great disregard for other artists he will be able to fathom non-artists' failure to understand himself. Himself, his own artwork, his own art-ends are too often the universe and its laws to the artist. That other artists and other arts are as necessary to himself and to the widening of the boundaries of his little world as his little world is to him is too often unthought of. He regards his own art subject not only as all-absorbing to himself but as the only one worth while and he ignores the fact and scorns the imputation that an appreciative study of other arts than that of his own art subject can be immensely contributive to him. And he does this in defiance of all art chronology, of all art psychology, of all present facts and past records of great artists everywhere. One artist says, "I abominate poetry and never read it!" Another, "I cannot tolerate program music!" "I think grand opera violates all the rules of musical art!" "Sculpture is cold—to me it means nothing!" "Painting is too material—acting mere trickery—no art is great but my art; none is worth while but mine!" and considering the fact that no art subject but has devotees making such repudiations of all other arts, the sum total is that each art is greatest to its own following. Must it not then follow that all the arts are at least sufficiently great to be important—vitaly important—to every artist worthy of the name?

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA
M. EMILE FOLLMER
HELEN WATSON POWERS
HELEN DESMOND

'Cello
Tenor
Soprano
Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO
MARGUERITE AUSTIN
HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp
Violin
Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.
Residence 5438 Harper Avenue Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL TEACHER Mrs. Herman Devries
STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR CHICAGO, ILL.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

MISS LEGINSKA PLAYS BEFORE A RECORD AUDIENCE

What an outpouring there was of humanity and fervid emotion upon the evening of March 19, when Ethel Leginska, with boyishly bobbed hair; somber soutane relieved by the perkiness of white dickies, made her bow, and marched to the piano with an admirable business-like air; diffusing the right atmosphere of energy and delight in the elaboration of the program planned unconventionally for the conventional as well as the unconventional.

Miss Leginska knows herself—her art proves it. She seeks for the right mode of expression and invariably finds it. She takes her art seriously, and regards it from the standpoint of the finely-equipped technician and the poet who unconsciously murmurs: per aspera ad astra.

The first part of her program was frankly an appeal to the connoisseur—the student and critic of music who enjoys it as a connoisseur of rare vintages enjoys the wine's aroma—its bouquet.

The "Cat's Fugue," by Scarlatti, presented a lace-like weaving of tones—its texture punctuated by delicious high lights—its many shades and tones unquestionably of distracting loveliness.

The second Scarlatti number was in the same category of exquisite attention to detail and nuance—to the finer contrasts which make for that quality we call subtlety.

Indeed the first group in its entirety made an effect of refinement and loveliness—the art of a master whose dalliance with the muse goes hand in hand with splendid scrutiny; the painter's ability to delineate the effects of light and shade.

The Borodine "Au Convent" was a bit of perfection—program music requiring neither program notes nor explanation—it so frankly explained itself with its colorful, crisp, clear, bass bell notes; each uttered with just the right emphasis.

To play this opus in this manner made clear the passionate attention of the young pianiste to those thousand and one details not to be learned without the sacrifice of hour after hour upon that treadmill of the artist leading to intelligent and masterful proficiency.

Leginska's interpretation of Rameau's "Gavotte and Variations in A Minor" felicitously illustrated the young artist's keen appreciation of multitudinous dynamic effects, and with the same composer's "Le Rappel des Oiseaux" showed the antithetic moods of the composer's mind. "Le Coucou," a characteristic bit by Dauquin, made a ravishing part of this choiring of wood notes and forest prattlings, happily succeeding upon the "Pastorale" of Scarlatti, bringing the simplicity and quaint beauty of nature to the imagination. The bird note was again sounded almost at the last of the ambitious program in the "Deux Alouettes," by the pianiste's adored teacher, Leschetizky. The soaring, singing larks penetrating to the deep blue of the empyrean, duetted their paean of joy in cascades of liquid silver.

But there were other things. The rare Schumann "Sonata in G Minor" called forth many of the artist's finest idiosyncracies. The exquisite touch—the faintest and fairest of varying shadings—(more esoteric than the transfusion of the diluted pink of the tea rose into saffron) of the dainty andantino; the swift onrush of the first movement; the entire work somewhat away from the tiresomeness of tradition, and newly read for listeners not averse to departures and novelty.

At the conclusion of the first part of the program, an encore was vouchsafed—a Chopin Etude—and at the end of the entertainment proper, the several encore numbers were again Chopin favorites.

The reading of MacDowell's not too greatly inspiring "Celtic Sonata" (somewhat Tchaikowskian), therefore Russian in inspiration, was richly satisfying. Strong and profound in the "Maestoso" movement, graceful and gracious in the second, and full of fire and splendid brilliancy in the final, which demands such interplay of pianistic traits.

A composition full of pitfalls and snares for the unwary—a treacherous, though sparkling and tantalizing opus with its constant preparations for its interspersed dance-themes—was the Schulz-Evler "Blue Danube" with its characterization "Arabesques." "Grotesques" one might wish to say; they are too inept in suitability to the wave-like measures of Strauss' unforgettable waltz.

Miss Leginska had no difficulty in getting this trying composition across to her audience. She triumphed easily in its exposition.

Flowers a plenty were offered the artist, and a huge wreath with the colors of Great Britain in a broad, banded sash, was laid at her feet.

h h h

A New Sonata

Mr. James A. Bliss, not unknown to the readers of Music News as a purveyor of

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

the musical happenings of Minnesota, its twin cities, and great orchestra, sends me a copy of his sonata—his second sonata, in C minor—with a modest request—that I look it over.

"Looking over" a composition of so much that is intensely interesting is impossible. It is almost as difficult as to "just look over" a volume of "The Philosophy of Nietzsche."

This composition gives evidence of much careful consideration and serious work.

The first movement is brilliant—complicated in its thematic development, it still fascinates the earnest student and encourages him to further study of its form and content, and the conquest of its difficulties. There is more than a suggestion of the elemental in the forcefulness and vigor of conception of this first movement.

The second movement, "Nocturne," and the succeeding "Scherzo" form the inevitable and appealing contrasts, and the "finale" boldly draughted, and with majestic contours, leads to a memorable climax.

It would be interesting to conjecture what results Mr. Bliss might not give a world in need of grandiose compositions for the organ, should he elect to enter the field in which Guilmant of the very moderns is so conspicuous.

h h h

The Zoellners Busy, Happy and Successful

Here follow a few lines from Antoinette Zoellner, the young, dainty and vivacious first violinist of the unique Zoellner ensemble, that perfectly democratic and accessible quartet, overflowing with life's simplicities and graces. Never bored, never blase, thus always upon the alert for novelties, and the good things which please their special audiences.

Miss Antoinette writes from Wichita, Kans., where a full house testified to the attractiveness of the ensemble, its members, its program and its musical virtuosity.

"Dear Mrs. Fridenberg: Greetings from the Zoellner Quartet. We are now slowly going towards California. Having a tremendous success; re-engagements wherever we play. All are well and are going to meet mother March 17. Hope you are in good health. We had a lovely time with Helen Keller, and lovely and interesting people have made our tour so far very pleasant.

Cordially yours,

ANTOINETTE ZOELLNER."

h h h

Arkady Bourstin

One of the youngest of the tribe of violinists of talent, merit, originality and parts is the very youthful Arkady Bourstin, who creates a deep impression wherever he is heard and who will have to be reckoned with in the future. I believe he is really the very youngest Russian of them all—Russian really and young truly. The matinee girl may doubt his Russian origin when she sees his peachy cheek laid lovingly upon the unresponsive frame of his violin—and the mellowest Stradivarius is immune to the caressing of the complexion of pulchritude—for he is blonde and fair, and he blushes like a budlet of a girl; though his eyes are truly mirrors of his soul, in which are enshrined the sentiment of the artist with perhaps a modicum of the sentimentality.

(Continued on page 35)

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

C LOATUFA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

SEASON
1914-15 in America

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

GERMAN LIEBE

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

IS
BE
L

HAUSER

PIANIST

Management

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present
The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

THE HUE
L

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK

Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE

Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA

For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION

Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE

303 KIMBALL HALL

Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

Music in America

LONG BEACH, CAL.

The Old Testament hero emphasized the dignity of influence when he exclaimed: "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades or loose the bands of Orion?" And we are frequently aroused in the midst of these busy, rustling times with the prevailing influence of our environment. Music News stands out in bold relief against the pessimistic foreboding of failure, and thereby is not only building a substantial superstructure upon a solid foundation for itself, but in broad philanthropy is liberally aiding in the development of the natural endowment of all who read its well-edited columns. And we find the same influence manifested in the works of demonstrative individuals whose endeavor is to accomplish the higher ideals. In this regard we believe there is no broader field than in our public schools. About a year ago the Long Beach High School organized a music study department, known as the Harmony Class, which, under the benign influence of Miss Edith M. Rhett, who studied in Chicago, has achieved enviable distinction along these lines. Last week she presented the class in a program made up entirely from their own compositions. The colors of the class being green and gold, Miss Ruth Phillips selected the combination for the name of the opening number and very elegantly wielded the baton to the successful playing of her own composition, the "Green and Gold March," by an orchestra of twenty pieces. Special mention could easily be made of each number on the program, and many of the good things said of artists might truthfully be written of these young students, who have demonstrated that they possess native ability, and with proper attention to the fundamentals they will meet the expectations of their most sanguine friends. Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman, who ranks with the best sopranos on the Pacific slope, enjoyed the privilege of singing with these energetic young people, enriching the new songs with her beautiful rendition and artistic finish. Mrs. Margaret S. Porterfield, who lately came from New York, is a valuable acquisition to the music circles of Long Beach. Her rich contralto voice, enhanced with careful study under the best instructors in this country and Europe, enabled her to make a very favorable impression upon the critical audience, that was measurably so upon this eventful occasion. More will be said regarding the personality of these Harmony Class students, as they progress in the art. The program rendered:

The Green and Gold March.....Ruth Phillips
High School Orchestra
Serenade.....Dorothy Hess
Jack in the Pulpit.....Dorothy Hess
Mrs. Margaret S. Porterfield
Piano solo—Nocturne.....Everett Simpson
Madeline Lupher
Land of Counterpane.....Marion Rogers
My Shadow.....Marion Rogers
Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman
Slumber Song.....Doris Damon
(Words by Verne Haskins)
Misses Coombs, Matthews, Harshberger, Mid-dough, Damon, Miller, Murray, Batkin, Haskell
Violin Solos (dedicated to Miss Dorothy Hess)—
Romanze.....Madeline Lupher

Tambourin.....Madeline Lupher
Dorothy Hess
Indian Love Song (dedicated to Miss Edith Rhett).....Dorothy Hess
Indian Wedding Song (dedicated to Miss Edith Rhett).....Dorothy Hess
Albert Hoffman, baritone
Melodia a la espanola (dedicated to Miss Fanny Bixby).....Verne Haskins
George C. Moore, flutist; Dorothy Hess, violinist;
Verne Haskins, pianist
♫ ♫ ♫

The fourteenth annual convention of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs was held during three full days of last week. There were more than a thousand delegates and friends present. The reception of guests occupied the first evening and much could be written regarding the splendid program, closing with "Das Hexenlied," concerning which a Telegram reporter says: "Like the poetry of the dream remaining after the prosaic reality of the awakening, is the memory of the occasion—a memory in which perfumed censers swing from the hands of brown frocked and cowed monks; monastery bells toll the call to the benediction of the father confessor, and friars gray walk slowly on ecclesiastical thoughts intent through the cloister walls cool and dim, and threaded through the picture the haunting strains of "Das Hexenlied," merging into the appealing voice of the violin; the muffled notes of the ivory keys and the pleading of "Ave Maria" and "Sancta Maria." Mrs. Kitty Richards Foote, dramatic interpreter, at her best, told the story of Medardus and the maid accused of being a witch, of the cruel fires and the cruel custom of those days that burned her on the pyre while her song arose above the crackling of the flames and shouts of her torturers and sunk into the heart and brain of Medardus, to remain there for the fifty years of his expiation in having thrust aside the soul of his heart's desire, in the exorable demand of the priesthood and its stern laws." Mrs. Foote has committed the whole story to memory. Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, at the piano, gave the musical setting with the artistry that is with her every succeeding appearance, impressing itself more emphatically on her audience. Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman was the soloist, singing "Ave Maria" and "Sancta Maria" with unusual pathos and grandeur. Miss Madoline Bryant, with her violin, was especially fine in the prelude to "Ave Maria" and obligato.

Carrie Jacobs-Bond gave a delightful program one evening last week at the Virginia, to a large and appreciative audience. From her abundant supply of favorite old songs, she sang "I Love You Truly," "Des Hol' My Han' Tonight," "Just A-wearyin' for You" and "A Perfect Day," with many encores. Among her new songs were "God Remembers When the World Forgets," "Hush-bye" and "When I Bid the World Good Night." Mrs. Bond is a great favorite in Long Beach and always sings to a full house.

Charles Wakefield Cadman, favorably known to Music News readers for his unique presentation of Indian music, assisted by Princess Tsianina, gave a most interesting program in the high school assembly hall last Friday afternoon. The versatility of Mr. Cadman's procedure in presenting the Indian folk lore, tribal customs and weird, plaintive music, has in large measure overcome the sameness that has characterized these entertainments. The monotony is dissipated and a rare if not brilliant program ensues. With the valued assistance of Princess Tsianina, whose native genius, primeval simplicity and thorough culture of a naturally sweet mezzo-soprano voice, Mr. Cadman very happily emphasizes many of the peculiar habits and customs of the aboriginal American.

LOS ANGELES

The Music Teachers' Association, in their monthly meeting, had a general discussion of plans, adjustments and methods to be used for making local and state organizations more effective along educational lines and for professional progress. They heard a splendid performance of Sjorgren's violin "Sonata in E Minor" by Miss Louise Davison, lately from Detroit, Mich., with our own Miss Mary O'Donoghue at the piano. The composition is by a mentioned "successor" of Grieg. Miss Davison's playing is clear cut, with decision and a firm bow. The accompanist was, as always, up to all musical requirements.

Hans Linne's "Lyric Dances" by the Los Angeles girls known as the Mlle. Maryon Vadie & Co., in their engagement at the Orpheum, was most happily received. Mr. Linne conducted the orchestra. Since their organization here they have met with great success.

The Los Angeles City and County Band gave their second concert Sunday afternoon in the Exposition Park to a large audience in the open sunlight of a June day. Our symphony orchestra, Mr. Adolph Tandler, director, with Mr. Harley Hamilton as his able band master and Mr. C. W. Blanchard assistant band master, will give a concert weekly for the pleasure and benefit of our visiting guests and citizens during this year, for which a fund of many thousands of dollars was contributed by the city and county.

The Illinois monthly meeting gave a program of much interest, as the opening hour of the evening, Mr. S. W. Mountz singing and directing the popular state song, "Illinois," "Star Spangled Banner" and "America," in which there is hearty response by the large audiences. Two whistling solos by little Miss Georgia Williams were marvels of child accomplishments, musical art and intuition. A "skit" drama, entitled "The Other Woman," was effectively presented by Miss Laura A. Goodman and Miss Florencia De Vina, the presentation leaving a beautiful psychological effect. Mrs. Carlotta Gotwaldt sang Schubert's "Erl King," accompanied by Miss Nina M. Jenks. Great social features for the many tourists from the state, at a score or more regular monthly gatherings of the states, have been heard and attended with great pleasure, as on this occasion.

Mr. William Edson Strobbridge presided at the Trinity organ in the Vivaldi-Naches "Concerto for Violin," with Zimbalist at the Gluck-Zimbalist concert last week.

The Matinee Musical Club (ladies) have enlarged the possibilities of their influence by having an associate membership of gentlemen, increasing the number of programs per month.

The National Grand Opera Company, organized here and successful beyond expectations, came to financial grief in their season at San Francisco. So, again, with the Bevani Opera Company. It seems an uphill struggle to educate the people to grand opera. The past nine years have seen six good companies disband for lack of patronage and support.

The second concert of the tenth season of the Orpheus Club, under the baton of Mr. Joseph P. Dupuy, was greeted with a well-filled house. The chorus of sixty-five men show improvement at each appearance. Its special accomplishment is in giving the entire program from memory.

The program opened with Lovell's "Boy in Blue," a good sailor song by a jolly combination of jack tars. Their shorter selections were much enjoyed—"Singer's Harp," "Gray Days," "Birth of Morn" and "Haymaking." The more pretentious were Daniel Protheroe's "Dorntheim" (King Olaf's Christmas) and Gounod's "Babylon's Wave," both showing careful preparation. The first is a prize number for the contest at the Panama-Pacific Exposition this summer.

The soloists for this concert were Miss Lillian Amalee Smith, pianist, and Mr. Frederick A. Herrmann, organist. A male quartet appeared in Thayer's "Phantom Band"—Messrs. Earnest J. Tibbett, E. P.

Emerson, C. W. Hatch and Verner A. Campbell, a group of splendid voices, promising a good future as a male quartet.

The work of Miss Smith in Mendelssohn's "Hunting Song," "Nocturne," by Chopin, and Ole Olsen's "Butterflies" were of a virtuoso grade of delivery. The selections gave scope for bravura, romantic and the most delicate touches of technic.

Mr. Herrman, at the organ, in Rodger's "Prologue," Boellmann's "Priere a Notre Dame," and his "Toccata" demonstrated a good knowledge of the instrument and skill in manipulation. Some charming effects were gained and good climaxes of the capacity of the great instrument. He responded to the hearty applause with an encore number. Miss Smith later crowned herself with glory in the Gounod-Liszt "Faust Valse" and a sparkling encore.

Schumann-Heink is announced for March 18 at Trinity, with the Behymer course. Packed houses always greet this artist at her every appearance.

S. W. MOUNTZ.
1651 Sixth avenue.

EVAN WILLIAMS AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The Hartford "Courant" says of Evan Williams:

Of course Mr. Williams' art, as an exponent of Handel's music, was finely shown in "Where'er You Walk" the tragic "Total Eclipse"—the blind Samson's lament—and the stirring "Sound an Alarm" from "Judas Maccabaeus." These three numbers are finely culminated; the first is simple, old-fashioned and charming, the second breathes dramatic agony in music of a period that was not noted for realism, the third is a big, soul-stirring and voice-trying call. Mr. Williams sang each in its own manner very successfully and reached thrilling power in his high notes. In responding to the demand for another number he said he felt rather diffident about following Handel with the song "The Perfect Day," but, inasmuch as he had had several requests for that particular song, he "would take the chance." He sang it well.—(Advertisement.)

Donath—Kurt Donath and the pupils of his opera school are preparing the third act of "Faust."

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON
SOPRANO
520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
EILENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE OWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AT WORCESTER

Tuesday night, March 9, the last of this season's Ellis course concerts was given in Mechanics Hall, Worcester, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Karl Muck, conductor, and Mme. Marie Sundelius, soloist.

The Strube Variations on a chorale theme was given its first Worcester hearing. Mr. Strube is the associate conductor of the Musical Festivals, and his work received close attention. It seemed rather unusual at some points, and these passages did not always commend themselves, as music, to the writer, but one should not judge another by one's own standard, because a like vision may not be given each.

The orchestra played splendidly, as usual. Mme. Sundelius also added to her already excellent reputation.

The audience expressed its appreciation of the evening's program by frequent and sustained applause.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Karl Muck, conductor, will leave Boston by special train, May 9, for its engagement at the San Francisco Exposition, where it gives a series of concerts in Festival Hall. It returns in time for the annual season of "Pop" concerts in Symphony Hall.

S. Harrison Lovewell Lectures in Worcester

Thursday night, March 18, S. Harrison Lovewell, the well known music critic, writer and organist, gave his lecture, "Romanticism in the Classical Composers," to a small but very attentive audience, in the Day Building Hall, Worcester. The speaker traced, through text and musical illustration the Romantic influence, and type of music from the Odes of Pindar through the so-called classic writers.

He mentioned the lute, and called it the instrument of romance and claimed that composers used this as the medium for the expression of their emotions, because the piano, in its infancy in the 14th and 15th centuries was too imperfect to adequately do so.

The lecture is one of several of most interesting and educative character, given by Mr. Lovewell, and the sequel to the one mentioned, "The Fugue and Its Emotional Meaning," is scheduled for Worcester, April 20.

The Shakespeare Season Closes

After over 80 performances of the plays of Shakespeare, the Henry Jewett Players have ended their present engagement at the Boston Opera House, but Manager W. R. Macdonald, with Henry Jewett, will reorganize the company during the summer, and about the middle of September, the players will again be seen in a varied repertoire of Shakespeare and modern dramas.

A Unique Program

At a recent concert of chamber music before the Old Belfry Club, Lexington, Mass.,

the Quartet of Ancient Instruments, Alfred Gietzen, viole d'armour; Bruno Steinke, viole de gambe; F. Mueller, Hautbois d'amour; Henry Gideon, Harpsichord, played a program of music of the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries.

The harpsichord was made and loaned the quartet by the Chickering Piano Company.

The program follows:

Sonate a quatre.....J. B. Loeillet, 1653-1728
Allegretto
Allegro
Largo

The Quartet

Pieces in old style.....E. Schmidt (now living)
Sarabande
Menuet

Viole de gambe and harpsichord

Sonate.....J. M. Leclair, 1697-1764

Adagio
Allegro
Sarabande
Allegro

Viole d'amour, viole de gambe and harpsichord
La Chambor.....Caix d'Herveloix, 1750
Allemande
Double

Hautbois d'amour and harpsichord

Gavotte.....Martini, 1706-1784

The Cooekoo.....Daquin, 1694-1772

The Harpsichord

Pavane (Chanson Louis XIII.).....Couperin, 1668-1733

Menuet.....Milandre, 1770

La Precieuse.....L. Couperin, 1668-1733

Viole d'amour and harpsichord

Golden Sonata.....H. Purcell, 1658-1695

Adagio
Allegro
Grave
Allegro

The Quartet

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control. Freedom of vocal method, is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C."

MUSIC NEWS

With Composer and Player

George W. Chadwick's "Quartet" in D minor was performed in Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon, Monday, March 15, by the Kneisel Quartet before a large audience of the faculty and students of the New England Conservatory of Music. This compliment to the conservatory director and the school was tendered by Mr. Kneisel in recognition of the marked success which his organization has had with the piece in concerts throughout the country. The work was written some fifteen years ago and was originally produced by the Adamowskis. It has of late years been an important part of the Kneisel repertoire. The performance was received very enthusiastically.

A recital by Agnes D. Reid, singer, and Chester S. Cook, pianist, was given in Jordan Hall last evening, also complimentary to Conservatory students. Both performers are advanced pupils of the school, from which they were graduated last June. Miss Reid's vocal selections, from a wide range of composers, ended with two pieces in English: J. A. Loud's "If You Knew," and Chadwick's "Before the Dawn." Mr. Cook was heard in the Beethoven "Sonata" in D major, Op. 28; Liszt's "Etude" in D flat major; Revel's "Jeux d'eau" and the Chopin "Scherzo" in C sharp minor, Op. 39.

The first movement of the organ "Sonata" in E flat major, by Horatio Parker, professor of music at Yale University, proved a popular number as interpreted by Herbert S. Boardman, a Somerville student, at a concert by advanced pupils of the New England Conservatory of Music in Jordan Hall last evening, March 12. Another effective organ number was the Cesar Franck "Chorale" in A minor, performed on the great concert organ by Emmie W. McKie, of North Augusta, S. C.

Piano selections at this concert consisted of the Mozart "Fantasie" in C minor, Viva F. Richardson; Schumann's "Romanza" in F sharp major, and the Chopin "Fantastic Impromptu" in C sharp minor, Isabel Clark; a Gluck-Brahms "Gavotte," and Saint-Saens "Tocata," Helen L. Whiting; and Liszt's "Mephisto-Walzes," Lois Cook. John D. Murray gave the only violin number, Wieniawski's "Polonaise" in A major. Vocal works were songs from Franz and Schumann, Helen L. Eaton; Sibelius' "Black Roses" and selections from Arensky and LaForce, Elsbeth Jones.

Richard Stevens, pupil of Buonamici, of Florence, and Moskowski, Paris, and member of the New England Conservatory faculty, gave a pianoforte recital in Jordan Hall last evening, March 19. This was the 19th of the present season of Conservatory concerts. A number that appealed strongly to the audience was the Fantasie of Louis Aubert, the orchestral part of which was played on the organ by Wallace Goodrich, dean of the faculty. The program began with the Beethoven "Sonata" in E. flat major, Op. 81, sometimes called "Les Adieux," and was followed by selections from Chopin, Debussy, Rhene-Baton, Chopin-Liszt, and Paganini-Liszt.

"Kitty Clive," Frankfort Moore's sprightly one-act comedy, was presented in Recital Hall yesterday afternoon, March 19, by the following pupils of the New England Conservatory dramatic department: Mrs. Grace French, T. DeBruyn, Harold K. Estabrook. At the same recital Vivian Willing presented songs from several comic operas in costume, Roland Greene gave an original "Prologue" in English, and Patrice Hannigan's original one-act pantomime, "The Brotherhood of Man," had its first performance on any stage. On the evening of April 1 the dramatic department will offer a bill of original one-act plays written by students.

"The Visit," a one-act drama of English rural life, by Richard Pryce, which had its first presentation in Boston at Recital Hall of the New England Conservatory yesterday afternoon, Friday, March 12, is built around the story of a visiting woman who keeps from an infirm old couple the knowledge of their son's reported loss in a submarine accident until the newspaper casualty turns out to have been exaggerated and the youth sends word that he is on his way home. The roles were taken by M. A. McAllister, Rgeda Ward, T. DeBruyn, Ella Warren and Emily Matthews. Other numbers on the program included selections from "The Girl From Utah," given by Edna Koenig and Julia Lenen; a "Dance of the Butterflies," by Ervel Niven; "Shadows," an original pantomime of life among the Florida colored folk, written by Miss Warren and given its premiere by Patrice Hannigan, Lee Estabrook, Miss Matthews, Mrs. Grace French, William Goodrich and Joseph Skinner. The program was under the auspices of the New England Conservatory dramatic department.

Everett Glass, a pupil this season of the New England Conservatory dramatic department, has been taken into the company of the Toy Theater, Boston. Mr. Glass is a graduate of Amherst College, where he was prominent in theatricals.

Havrah Hubbard's Opera Talk

On Tuesday afternoon, March 16, Havrah Hubbard, last year with the Boston Opera Company, gave one of his opera talks before the Lexington Outlook Club. He strongly urged opera in English and said that if managers would insist upon their singers using English there would be no question of their doing so, also that with proper study the enunciation would permit a clear understanding of the words. To the objection that there are no good translations in English, he declared that there are some beautiful translations, and that even if there were none, these could be readily obtained if only demanded. Mr. Hubbard stated that in no other country is opera sung in any other than the vernacular, and America, which pays more than any other country for grand opera, could have wonderful performances in a language which the people could understand, if they would only drop the idea that anything which is not foreign is inartistic. Mr. Hubbard spoke of the splendid work of the Aborn English Opera Company and also mentioned the Henry Jewett Players in their excellent work in Shakespeare's plays, which have been given at the Boston Opera House this season.

After his talk Mr. Hubbard read the opera, "Monna Vanna" and Floyd Baxter, pianist, furnished the musical setting. Mr. Hubbard's audience was of good size and very appreciative.

Events to Come

Nicola Oulukanoff, the Russian baritone, who came from the Opera Comique, Paris, to the Boston Opera Company under a three years' contract, will appear in Tuckerman Hall, Worcester, April 12, with Mme. Ella-Kalova Ondricek, Russian violinist, and Miss Mabel Pierce, pianist, in a program of Russian, Italian, and operatic music, under the management of the writer.

Mr. Oulukanoff sings in Boston, Jordan Hall, Saturday, April 10.

The musical club of the Phillips Exeter Academy will give its fifth annual concert in Jordan Hall, Saturday, March 27. The club includes a glee club of 65 male voices, a mandolin club and orchestra, all students of the academy. There will be a concerted number written by F. V. Carey, coach of the glee club, entitled, "To Exeter."

The soloist is Franklin B. Christmas, bass. The program includes classical numbers and college songs.

Wilfrid Douthitt, English baritone, who sang for the first season in America, last year with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and is now at the Majestic Theater singing "Count Andre" role in "The Lilac Domino," has been engaged by Mr. Dipple for next season.

The Handel and Haydn Society is to have a musical festival beginning April 11 and including the 15th, at which Verdi's "Requiem," H. W. Parker's "Morven and the Grail," written for the occasion, and "Elijah," Mendelssohn, will be given.

Among the soloists to appear are Mme. Alma Gluck, Mme. Margarete Matzenauer, Mme. Anita Rio, Mmes. Caroline Hudson-Alexander, Florence Mulford, Christine Miller, and Messrs. Paul Alhouse, Arthur Middleton, Lambert, Murphy, Clarence Whitehill, Reed Miller and Earl Cartwright. Emil Mollenheuer is the conductor of the society.

A popular voting test instituted for the coming Aborn series of Grand Opera in English, which begins at the Boston Theater, the week of April 5, with "Aida" and "Madam Butterfly," four performances each, when fifty thousand cards were distributed

SEBURNETTI

LEADING BARITONE, MONTREAL and OTHER GRAND OPERA COMPANIES
Authority on VOICE

N Studio 505 Kimball Hall. Reception Hours 2 to 4

and 1,560 were received by the Aborn office at the Century, shows the 15 operas standing first in order of popularity to be "Madame Butterfly," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Il Trovatore," "Lohengrin," "The Tales of Hoffman," "Carmen," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "The Jewels of the Madonna," "La Boheme," "Faust," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Romeo and Juliet," "Samson and Delilah," "Pagliacci." And closely following in favor are "Rigoletto," "Thais," "William Tell," "Louise," "The Secret of Suzanne," "Martha," "Gioconda," and "Traviata."

The week of April 12, "Lohengrin" and "Il Trovatore," four performances each, with Tuesday, April 13, and Friday, April 16, matinees of "Hansel and Gretel," extra, will follow "Aida" and "Madame Butterfly" at the Boston Theater.

L. S. B.

HAROLD HENRY'S INTERPRETATION CLASS

Harold Henry continues to meet the members of his interpretation class every two weeks. While this class is open to all his pupils, it is attended more largely by those doing professional work. On March 15, Miss Lenore Wood played "Sonata," Op. 2, No. 1, Beethoven; "Hunting Song," Mendelssohn; "Dance Andalouse," MacDowell; Miss Clara Harsh played "Sonata," Op. 31, No. 2, Beethoven, and "Sonata Eroica," MacDowell, and Miss Georgianna Lay played MacDowell's "March Wind."

The playing of each number is criticised by the members of the class, as well as by Mr. Henry.

FRANCES INGRAM

CONTRALTO

Scores triumph with Chicago Apollo Club as soloist in Cowen's Cantata "The Veil"

For the first time in America Sir Frederick Hymen Cowen's oratorio, "The Veil," was interpreted at Orchestra Hall last evening. To be present at this interesting occasion there was gathered together an audience of extensive proportions, and one whose enthusiasm was considerably more exuberant than the enthusiasm of many audiences which, fastidiously inclined, take their pleasures in that temple of musical art.

Frances Ingram, the contralto of the performance, disclosed a voice of rich timber and understanding of the dramatic elements of her part.—Chicago Herald.

It was in this section that the sensation of the evening took place. The contralto, Frances Ingram, of Chicago, was the cause. To her was given the only really dramatic part in the composition. She impersonated the mother who is passionately desirous of something to remember her children by—if it be only a grave.

Miss Ingram sang the part with extraordinary fire. Her voice is of unusual richness (one is tempted to call it a dark voice) and she knew how to make it effective.—Chicago Tribune.

Miss Ingram had little to do, little more than the one contralto solo of the mother. By this she can be without difficulty remembered. It is the lament of a woman ravished of her two children by a power uncomprehended. It is made as much of terror as it is of piteous grief and despair. It is a declamation of enormous difficulty, calling as it does on every resource, vocal and intellectual, of the performer. Glancing over the entire list of American concert singers, it is possible to point out extremely few, even of the ablest, who could conceivably have sung the song so well as did this obscure young woman, who seems to need only fame to place her among the adored ones of the land.—Chicago Daily News.

More than a demonstration of vocalism appeared here, though Miss Ingram's voice is of a rarely beautiful type. It is a true contralto, of dark quality, strikingly sympathetic, of great range and power. With no more than this, the hearer might well remain cold. She has, in addition, an extraordinary personality, the ability to lift the auditor out of himself, and this is a gift of worth more than much fine gold. She is a remarkable artist, and there is plenty of room in the world of music for such a one.—Chicago Journal.

The kind of thing that is expected of soloists in these modern days would have caused the older generation of singers to throw up their hands in despair. Ceaseless change of key and rhythm, with almost never a bit of clear sailing, but always hidden rocks and shoals where the singer must be every moment on his guard. Yet all this so skillfully woven together that the general-ity had no sense of any special difficulty, but took it all as a matter of course. The audience of last night ought to understand that the artists had tasks set before them of the most taxing description, and while this, perhaps, should in a way be taken for granted, the honor in successful achievement is surely the greater in proportion to the difficulties overcome.

Frances Ingram gave a dramatic interpretation of her taxing role, singing with a voice full of color, rich and warm with tenderness, then with great outbursts of passion, and through it all a certainty that was most satisfying. The artist was applauded with enthusiasm by the audience.—Chicago Post.

Miss Ingram scored a decided hit with her dramatic solo, "Whither, O Spirit of the Lord." It was a long and difficult aria, which this young singer interpreted with rich vocal tone and with intensity of expression.—Chicago Examiner.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANIST
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Ph e Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

Music Abroad*LONDON LETTER

Sir Charles Santley and Mr. Edward Lloyd

It would be hard to imagine a concert more unique than the one given here in London Wednesday afternoon, February 3. On this one program Sir Charles Santley and Mr. Edward Lloyd sang.

Sir Charles is well past his eightieth year, and Mr. Lloyd is about ten years younger.

The concert was organized by the Lady Mayoress, and given at the Mansion House. The ball room of Mansion House will seat about five hundred, and it was filled.

Of the many concerts for the various war sufferers, this was the greatest success. Many others have had no small success either.

That Lady Johnston (the Mayoress) would head such a movement, would mean success at any time. But she was not satisfied with that kind of success. She wanted a triumph, and she had it. As a result, the Belgian sufferers will benefit by several hundred "pounds" for the hard work she has done.

h h h

The Sheriff as a Pianist

The opening number of the program was a piano duet played by Sheriff LaFontaine, Sheriff of London, and Mr. Stanley Hawley, and between them, they shared the accompaniments of the afternoon. They are both well schooled musicians, and filled their places more than adequately. The closing number was an eight-hand piano arrangement of one of the "Spanish Dances" of Moszkowski. Mr. Percy Pitt, director of Covent Garden Opera, and Mr. Hubert Bath joined Mr. "Sheriff" and Mr. Hawley in this. The effect was quite "orchestral" in nature. Each of the performers is a big, rugged, deep-voiced man, too. Music has not robbed them of any of their masculinity. It never does that.

Time will not permit giving each of them or any assisting artists due notice. I will hurry through them more as a list.

Robert Radford, a basso, sang the "Grenadiers." Miss Buckman was next. She is a good soprano. Miss Kathleen Parlow and her violin then came. You know how delightfully artistic she is. Then there was five minutes for applause. Mr. Lloyd had appeared. The audience gave full vent to their pent up feelings. They had been waiting for the chance, and they would not stop until they had behaved much as some of our men over there do at a political convention. Mr. Lloyd needs no further tribute to his popularity. They made you almost forget that he was there to sing after several years of retirement; but sing he did. We had plenty of time to scrutinize him. He has grown stout, and his ruddy glow left any but an impression that he has suffered any of the ravages of age. We all felt that he was going to sing. He did not disappoint us. Mr. Lloyd has always been a "dependable" singer. While not particularly dramatic—or even sentimental, as is the rule with many who are not—he has always been a polished singer. It was so even at this time. His voice is a high, inclined to be thin, tenor. But the tone is always easy. His song was the "Queen of Sheba" air "Lend Me Your Aid."

It is a most trying song, but we would never have guessed it from the ease with which he sang it. The low voice was not strong, but he did not try to make it so. A fatal mistake of many tenors. The words were always distinct, and yet not exaggerated. It was a "finished" performance. I don't know how many times he was recalled, but I remember that my own hands were much relieved when he consented to sing "Songs of Araby." It was sung with the same good taste. What Mr. Lloyd's voice was I do not know. This was the first time I had heard him, but he still is able to sing well. Why he has retired I cannot imagine.

Two songs by Mme. Kirby Lunn followed Mr. Lloyd. She always sings well. Miss Lena Ashwell recited three "Old Love Lyrics" with an accompaniment written by Stanley Hawley, with Mr. Hawley at the piano. They are very good for those who like reading to accompaniment. Mr. Basil Sapellnikoff, the Russian pianist, played two Chopin numbers, and the Weber "Waltz" in a clean, scholarly way. Miss Mignon Nevada, daughters of the famous Emma, sang an opera air with a bright, flexible soprano, and a duet later with Sir Charles. Miss Phillis Lett, the charming contralto I spoke of in the note about "The Music Club," and Mr. John Harrison, tenor, gave two numbers after the solo number by Sir Charles.

During the ovation given Mr. Lloyd I heard such remarks as "wait until Old Santley comes out." (The "Old" is a mark of respect in England). There was a breathless moment just before he appeared. It was the unexpected that happened when he came out. As he stepped onto the platform a suppressed murmur ran through the audience. There was that "something" about that gaunt, storm-swept figure that forbid all rowdy applause. It began by a few quiet hand-claps and increased as a symphony orchestra builds up a climax. It remained hand-clapping most entirely. The feet were still, and but few called out as they do when excited here.

Santley has not always had the best of health; and while not decrepit as you might think at past eighty, the severe lines of the old form and face showed a man that has worked hard and long for the establishment of an ideal, and then seen the trivialities of fashion—perhaps fad—influence public mind, lure it to the sensational, even the sensual. Who has seen mere physical force applauded to the echo while the art of singing was ignored. Who has given the public more clean, straightforward, honest singing than any other man that has ever lived; who had done his work well and retired.

But Santley was back. His old heart would not allow his desires to rule when people were suffering for something to eat. The one word "charity" had been the means of bringing him out. What it cost him we can only imagine.

Sincerity will win, though. Santley got an ovation, too; one that affected him more than visibly. It was not he who sang that one first song. It was a song he himself had written. It is about England, and has a good movement. They like it, and used to always force him to sing it. The "public" is not so bad though; it understood this time. The recalling went on until he came out with Mr. Hawley, the accompanist. The encore was our old friend, "Simon the Celarer." Who does not know it? I am sure that I can write it down from memory, words and music, too. My imagination started with the first bars of the accompaniment, which announced the song. I was wondering what he would find in it that I had not known. The lines of the old face had changed. I could see, and feel too, that Santley was there this time. What a delicious bit of singing he did. Yes, he sang it, with all of its vocal possibilities, and still he acted it as I had never thought to see it acted. You did not need to follow him. He took possession of you, and fairly carried you along on the lift of it. No declamatory outbursts, no reciting, no buffoonery. Just the most contagious of humor. Comedy such as I had never heard before, yes, heard, you did see it. I caught myself laughing aloud when the rest of the audience saw fit to be still. It was something I had not heard in the work at the studio; it was the old fire. The old soul had reached us. It was the great artist; it was Santley.

Then there was the duet with Mignon Nevada. It was that lovable old thing of Mozart's, "La Ci Darem." You could have closed your eyes, and have imagined a man of thirty singing the old love-making thing. He was as tender and charming to her as any man could have been. At its close he put his arm about her, and they tripped off the stage as lightly as you please, not a trace of the stern measured old tread about it. It was only more of Santley. The audience wanted more of him, too. He did not sing again, however.

What a singing lesson it was to me. There it was; what I have contended should be; vocal youth, where age is telling its tale in the body. He has the secret of it.

The best analysis of Santley's singing is that he sings. There is none of the boom and bombast we hear in the extremist on "head-resonance," though the tone is always ringing. It is always clean, transparent. There is a silveryness about it that I feel is not merely the individuality of the voice. He seems to string his consonants on an ever-flowing stream of tone, that changes into all of the vowel forms, and into all shades of coloring without losing its singing value. It is always singing tone, whatever phase of emotional demands he is making on it. A point of technic worth nothing is that he does not open the mouth extremely in any case. The use of the mouth is the same as in speech. The tone is always with the word, whether singing loud or soft. Every syllable you hear, though the consonants are spoken with lightning-like rapidity. But enough of analysis. I must stop.

Mr. Santley confessed to me after the concert to being nervous. He did it with such boyish frankness that it was a delight. It shows how sensitive he really is. When I held my program up invitingly, he caught the wish before I could think of the right words. He took it and signed it.

You may all see it when I get home again.

I shall be thankful for the rest of my life that I have heard Santley; and still more so because I will not have to think of him as he was, but that I may remember him as he is.

Mme. Patti was announced to sing on the same program. I did not learn why she did not.

ALBERT A. WHITE.

Chicago Piano College—The Chicago Piano College will give a concert at Kimball Hall on Thursday evening, March 30, presenting the following pupils: Nellie Fisk, Lavinia Kent, Awnes Peterson, Florence E. Watson, Mildred Gipe, Alma Street, Ada Marie McCarty, Helen Brown, Donna Clough, Elizabeth Leitch, Agnes Davidson, Julia Perry, Freida Friedman, Irene Greider and Mary E. Emery.

Zoller—Mr. Ellmer Zoller will be the accompanist for Mme. Gabrilowitsch's recital in New London, Conn., and for Arkady Bourstin in Newark, N. J., and New York City.

MARIE EDWARDS

Marie Edwards gave an organ recital at the Norwood Park Methodist church last Tuesday evening. She was assisted by Mrs. Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano. Following is a notice in connection with the pipe organ recital work done by Miss Edwards last week.

"In the group of organ numbers with which the program opened, Miss Marie Edwards proved herself a technically well-equipped and sympathetic musician. She is nicely discriminating and under her hands the organ is an instrument of apparently limitless possibilities, which she makes use of with never-failing musical effect. The Dubois-Rogers "Petit March" with its swinging rhythms was a well chosen initial number, well played. The graceful Boccherini "Minuet" was given with a daintiness that intensified its intrinsic charm, and the Guilman "Nuptial March" moved with dignity through stately and triumphant progressions."—Oak Leaves, Oak Park, Ill. —Advertisement.

Snite—Mrs. Florence Butler-Snite sang last Sunday at the People's Liberal Church as substitute. Mrs. Snite formerly held this position and is a great favorite with the congregation.

Why Not Use The Best ?

A few words to the Progressive Piano Teacher relative to Fillmore's Modern Graded Course for the Pianoforte in Eight Grades.

THE remarkable success this course has attained in the short time of its publication testifies to its intrinsic merits.

It has now proven by actual experience to be a Course which meets successfully the needs of both teacher and pupil, and this work has gained so good a foothold for itself as to justify its wider expansion. It is carefully graded and comprises the best teaching material from the time of Bach to the present era. Miniature copies of Grade I will be sent gratis upon request. Hundreds of Music Schools, too numerous to mention, are ordering regularly and we know that you will do the same when you become acquainted with our Course. We therefore offer for the next 30 days the 8 grades at the very special price of 30c, each grade, postpaid. Regular price of which is $1.00 each grade.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO. Milwaukee, Wis.

P. S.—When ordering please mention the name of this magazine.

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers

Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.
67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

Le Trio Rameau

ALFRED BARTHEL, Oboe Soloist } Chicago Sym-
T. Du MOULIN, Violoncello } phony Orchestra
MME. BARTHEL, Piano.

AVAILABLE FOR CONCERTS

FOR DATES, TERMS AND SPECIMEN PROGRAMS
Address S. F. NEWHALL, GLENCOE, ILL.

THE EMINENT PIANISTE NEUHAUS

WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, ST. LOUIS

Lambert Murphy

Available Entire Season 1913-14

Wolfsbach Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Recital
Oratorio
Opera

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

Sunday, March 7, Seventeenth Popular Concert by the Symphony Orchestra with Alma Beck, contralto, for soloist, presented a varied program with the Caesar Franck "D Minor Symphony" as its special feature. Franck whom we think of as a great organist, has used many of the beauties of organ effects in coloring his themes. The symphony radiates the happiness and hope of life.

Two beautifully poetic melodies by Grieg, "Heartwounds" and "Spring," had for contrast the sprightly rhythmic "Polonaise" from Glazounow's "Scenes de Ballet" and the charmingly delicate waltz from Guiraud's ballet, "Gretna Green," the program closing with Scheinplug's merry "Overture to a Comedy of Shakespeare."

Miss Beck sang "O My Immortal Lyre" from Gounod's "Sapho" and "O My Son" from "The Prophete" (Meyerbeer), with excellent style, and her voice is a large, full contralto, vigorous and with splendid breadth of tone. Her shading was very good, especially in her encore, "The Silver Ring" (Chaminade), accompanied by Mr. Williams at the harp.

Thursday morning, March 11, the Associate Section of the Thursday Musical presented a delightful program in the ball room of the Leamington Hotel. Dr. Caryl B. Storrs, musical and dramatic critic of the Minneapolis Tribune, gave a short lecture on "The Relation of Music to the Other Arts." Contrary to most experiences of writers being poor speakers, one was agreeably surprised in the simple, direct way in which Dr. Storrs presented his short but most interesting little talk.

Mrs. Porteous, contralto, gave Mary Salter Turner's song cycle, "A Night in Naishapur," and it was a perfect prelude to Mrs. Marie Gjertsen Fischer's readings. She had been suffering with severe throat trouble for a week but her artistic work covered up any inconveniences she was laboring under. Mrs. Fischer stands quite alone in her interpretative readings. She has the ideal personality which next to a voice is a reader's best asset and when one hears her vibrant voice which happens also to be natural, one realizes the gods have been most gracious to this charming woman. The group was made up entirely of poems by Tagore, preceded by a short biographical sketch of the poet. The musical settings, all by Arthur Koerner, and marvellously beautiful accompaniments, were played by Miss Bertha Marron.

The Thursday Musical is to be congratulated on its Associate Section. It would be hard to find a better program in the most active of Active Sections anywhere in the country and the large attendance was ample proof of the general interest taken in every section of this club for morning programs are not usually so well attended.

Thursday afternoon, March 11, the Vocal Section of the Thursday Musical, assisted by the Apollo Male Quartet of St. Paul, gave their last program of the season. One of the most interesting songs by the quartet was "Night and Thee," composed by Mr. George H. Fairclough of St. Paul. It was written for the quartet and was given a splendid rendition. The club chorus of mixed voices were wonderfully pleasing in "My Love Dwelt in a Northern Land" (Elgar), and the beautiful "Spring Chorus" from "Samson and Delilah" had to be repeated.

The sixth and final Young People's Concert by the Symphony Orchestra was given Friday, March 12, and the absolute proof that good music is really loved is found in the unique experience of watching these healthy normal school children, some accompanied by parents but more of them alone. This is the fourth season and that the concerts are a positive success no one could doubt. One or two children are occasionally found who can be persuaded to the grown up idea of what is good for them but in crowds such as attend these concerts even the most skeptical must believe it is the children's own natural love of beauty that keeps their interest alive and their rapt attention might serve as a model to many grown up audiences. Mr. Oberhoffer's direct little talks on the programs are followed attentively and no doubt have much influence on the children's minds. The following program of spring music was beautiful and the large basket of spring flowers at the directors' stand added to the illusion of spring:

Overture—In Springtime.....Carl Goldmark
Spring Symphony No. 1, in B flat major.....Schumann
Spring Song (for strings and harp).....Mendelssohn
Rustle of Spring.....Christian Sinding
The Last Spring (for string orchestra).....Grieg
Good Friday, Spell from Parsifal.....R. Wagner

The above program embraced every mood of spring and Mr. Oberhoffer's conscien-

WARREN
PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

tious musicianship is exactly as noticeable in his efforts to interest and educate these little ones as it is in the big Symphony programs to satisfy the more exacting tastes of the older folks. How perfectly glorious has been his success is easily understood by being present at such a concert as last Friday.

The Chamber Music Society presented Mrs. Louise Albee, pianist, Paulo Gruppe, cellist, and George Klass, violinist, in the following program of chamber music at the First Unitarian Church Monday, March 15:

Trio, C minor, Op. 1, No. 3.....Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Andante con variazioni ni
Menuetto—quasi allegro
Finale—Prestissimo
Sonata for Violoncello and Pianoforte, Op. 55.....Emmanuel Moor

Allegro moderato
Scherzo—Adagio
Adagio
Finale—allegro con brio
Trio, D minor, Op. 32.....Arensky
Allegro moderato
Scherzo—Allegro molto
Elegia—Adagio
Finale—Allegro non troppo

The Beethoven "Trio," beautiful and welcome always, was well done individually. The ensemble was not good at all times, a fault that one realizes would readily be overcome in a short time as this was the first appearance of these three artists together and it was a big order to work up in a limited time. The Moor "Sonata" is interesting and most pleasing. At least the technical difficulties are not as obtrusive as in many new compositions and there are no soul rending dissonances. Mr. Gruppe played with an ease that is delightful from the spectator's point of view. The large, full tone he extracts with apparently little effort is marvelous and his work at all times is of the very highest order. Mrs. Albee also gave a most excellent performance in the "Sonata," in fact, it was the finished performance of these two artists that impressed one more than the work itself. The Arensky "Trio," with its beautiful themes, abounding in entrancing melody and swinging rhythm, was very favorably received. The ensemble in this was also weak, noticeably in the violin. Mr. Klass has splendid technique but lacks the bigness of tone most necessary in this class of music, and his tempo dragged considerably at times. However, the program was very enjoyable as a whole, and the few deficiencies were of the sort easily overcome in another appearance.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

MILLIE RYAN PUPILS IN OMAHA CONCERT

The Boyd Theater management last night eclipsed any of its efforts heretofore in the matter of "society night" special features by presenting Mrs. Millie Ryan's grand opera pupils and chorus for the entertainment of a large and fashionable audience. The work of the artists brought forth insistent applause and was of a high order of merit.

The program was as follows:

FAUST

Mrs. W. E. Shafer, leader
 Story of the Opera—Mrs. M. Fish.
 Overture—Paul Reese.
 "Even Bravest Heart May Swell" (Valentine)—Harry Watts.
 "Song of the Golden Calf" (Mephistophiles)—W. E. Shafer.
 "Flower Song" (Sieble)—Lillie Rabin.
 "All Hail Thou Dwelling Pure" (Faust)—Carl Sibbert.
 "Jewel Song" (Marguerita)—Ethel Solomon.
 "The Hour Is Late" (Marguerita and Faust)—Ethel Solomon, Earl Strickler.
 "Soldiers' Chorus"—Wyckoff, Sibbert, Strickler, Jerroll, Hubbard, Didrickson, Shanahan, Isitt, Ferris, Shafer, Watts, Yocum, Rush, Irwin, Knettle, Peterson.
 Trio, "Holy Angels in Heaven Blessed"—(Marguerita) Ethel Solomon, (Faust) Carl Sibbert, (Mephistophiles) W. E. Shafer.

Warner—Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, will sing in Gaul's "Passion" music at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on Good Friday evening, on April 11 in the "Bohemian Girl" at Fullerton Hall; 13, "Elijah" with the Handel Society of Austin; and 18, in Verdi's "Requiem" with the Irish Choral Society.

St. Paul's—At St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Drexel street and Fiftyeth street, on next Sunday afternoon at 4:30, Mr. John Allen Richardson will present Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary," preceded by a short organ recital by Mr. Louis Phelps Hoyt.

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

ality of young—very young—manhood. But you shall see as well as hear him. He was somewhat of a matinee idol at the several concerts of the New York Symphony Society when he officiated as soloist, and we can pretty well gauge the coming by what has gone before.

I'm going to tell you more about him in the near future.

A Pupils' Recital

Some of the extremely talented pupils of that earnest and gifted pianist and pedagogue, Gustav L. Becker, were heard in an ambitious recital on the afternoon of March 19, in the auditorium of Lord & Taylor's.

Among those who acquitted themselves with especial distinction were Miss Charlotte Jaeckle, who has made immense strides in her playing since being under the guidance of her distinguished teacher; Misses Celia V. Gridley, Ruth D. Sexton, Gertrude Silverman and Lena Masem.

SANDOR RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE
 Room 404, 59 East Van Buren St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Miss Ethel Leginska was the soloist at the concert of the Rubenstein Club at the Waldorf-Astoria on the afternoon of March 20. She had a great success.

Mr. Thuel Burnham played before a very large audience in Summit, N. J., on the evening of March 18. A review of his work will appear later.

Mme. Germaine Schnitzer will be soloist at the concert of the Harlem Philharmonic Society on April 15.

Mrs. Celeste D. Heekschel is spending a fortnight in Atlantic City.

Miss Eva Mylott, the Australian contralto, was one of the soloists whose work was greatly appreciated at a concert recently given in Flushing, at which Mme. Marie Narelle was the soprano.

Mme. Marie Narelle has been concertizing in Canada with great success.

Nevin Trio—A new organization in Chicago is the Nevin Ladies' Trio, the personnel being Mrs. Molina Whittlesey-Smith, Mrs. Myrtle Friel-Tucker and Mrs. Myrtle Andrews-Weart. These voices are all of exceptional beauty and the ensemble is a fine one. The repertoire already prepared is extensive and includes a liberal list of works by Ethelbert Nevin. The business management is in the hands of Myrtle Friel-Tucker, 82 the Auditorium building.

IN BRIEFER FORM

Kober—Miss Georgia Kober presented, with much success, Helen Philleo, Marion Rinn, Ruth Thompson, Elsa Barwig, Gladys Smith and Lyle Comstock in piano numbers at Thurber Hall last Wednesday evening.

University Settlement—At the University of Chicago Settlement a concert was given on February 7 by Elsa F. Holinger, soprano, and Clara J. Rubey, pianist, and on March 21 the artists were Miss Holinger, Miss Rubey, Joseph A. Schwiekerath, baritone, and Gertrude Steinkraus, violinist.

Speck—Miss Austa Belle Speck, member of the faculty of Mt. Union Conservatory (Ohio), was soprano soloist at a dedicatory recital at the First Methodist Episcopal church of Uhricksville, Ohio, on March 14, the organ recital being given by Edward Young Mason.

Stults—Reid Hillyard, basso, a pupil of Walter Allen Stults, in the Northwestern University School of Music, sang at the Music Hall of the school last Thursday evening with much success, his numbers including works of Mozart, Schubert, Schumann, Peel, Puccini, Speaks and Cowen.

Philharmonic String Quartet—The Philharmonic String Quartet, composed of George Daseh, Hjalmar Rabe, Otto Roehrborn and Carl Brueckner, gave a program at Bell Opera House in Benton Harbor, Mich., on Monday, March 22, being assisted by Mrs. W. S. Braeken, contralto.

Joyce—At the Clara Joyce Studio at 2104 Washington boulevard, a pupils' concert was given Sunday, March 21, by William Polger, Mary Motter, Loretto Nash, Marion Ohlenroth, Margaret Roberts, Joseph Murphy, Rose Murphy, Dorothy Whittingham, Theresa Coyne, Lillian Strasburg, Olevia Graham.

Patterson—The subject of the studio talk on musical history by Grace Dickinson Patterson for March was the "Development of the Oratorio," given in 420 Fine Arts Building. Students having a place on the program were: Miss Helen McNiven, Miss Isabel Monat, Mr. Frank Millershen, Margaret Harvey, Helen Emmons and Harold Ham.

Edwards—Marie Edwards gave an organ recital at the Norwood Park M. E. Church on Tuesday evening, March 16. She was assisted by Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano. Two songs, a "Japanese Lullaby" and "Three Little Pussies," will be sung next Thursday evening at the Illinois Composers' recital by Emma Sollitt-Sherman with the composer, Miss Marie Edwards, at the piano.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

FRANCES

I N G R A M

Steinway Pianos Used
 OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
 5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils--Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals

4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINEVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

At the last concert of the Erie Symphony Orchestra the playing of this splendid body of men reached the highest level it has ever attained and the tonal beauty and fine expression in the interpretation of Schubert's sublime "Unfinished Symphony" were a joy to the large audience gathered to hear the third concert of the season. Mrs. W. K. Bayer, soprano, was soloist, and she was heard with pleasure in the "Vissi di art," from "Tosca" and a group of Protheroe songs. The remaining numbers on the program were Massenet's "Phedre" overture; Tchaikowsky's "Nutcracker" suite; Strauss' "Blue Danube" Waltzes; Massenet's "Unter Den Linden" and the inspiring "Folkunger" march. The next and final concert of the year will be given on Easter Sunday.

The Erie Choral Society has offered a prize of $25.00 for the best song or choral composition; $15.00 for the second best, and $15.00 for the best instrumental composition. The composer must be a resident of Erie and the judges are to be Victor Herbert, Harry Rowe Shelley and George Fischer. Great interest is being shown by local composers in the contest.

Marie Hertenstein, pianist, provided a delightful program for the second number of Mrs. McCoy's Artist Series, completely captivating her hearers with fine interpretations of numbers by Schubert, Debussy, Brahms, Korngold and Liszt. The next number on Mrs. McCoy's course will be a song-recital by that ever welcome artist, Christine Miller. This is Miss Miller's fourth consecutive year in Mrs. McCoy's series and a packed house will undoubtedly greet her on her re-appearance March 24.

For his March program of organ recitals devoted to the works of living American composers, Albert H. Dowling, Jr., organist of the First Unitarian church, played the following compositions of A. Walter Kramer: "Concert Prelude in D Minor," "At Evening," "Chant Negre," "Chanson Matinale" and "A Night Song." Mr. Kramer, although still a very young man, has made a great impression on musicians in all departments; some of the biggest artists feature his charming songs on their programs. The same note of sincerity and originality that is felt in his compositions for the voice is evidenced in his organ pieces, and the Kramer program of Mr. Dowling's series proved one of the most interesting of the year.

Alice Nielsen will appear as soloist with the Apollo Club when they give their last concert this season in the Park Opera House, April 13.

The choir of the First Methodist Church, under the direction of Harry Waithe Manville, recently gave a performance of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Prodigal Son," in which Clyde Miller, baritone, Bruce Morrison, tenor, and Mrs. Blanchard-Allan, soprano, were the soloists. A. H. D.

Pekin—At Pekin, Ill., on March 11 a splendid concert was given by Franklin Stead, Mabel Riggs Stead, Sol Cohen and William Preston Phillips, members of the faculty of the Peoria Musical College.

DETROIT, MICH.

On Tuesday evening, February 23, Guy Bevier Williams, pianist, was heard in recital before a large and warmly appreciative audience. His program was full of numbers requiring light, sure and rapid technique, and Mr. Williams more than met them. He excels in such works as "Polichinelle," by Rachmaninoff; "Etude Staccato Caprice," by Rubinstein, and his "Screenade," by Borodin, was delightful.

A series of morning musicals has been given through Lent, under the sponsorship of Charles Frederick Morse, and most satisfying have they been. Mr. Albert Lindquest, tenor, on February 24, made a success. The following week Mr. Edward Kriner, violinist, tested his audience and found them appreciative of a program given over wholly to technic. More than equal to all its demands, this quiet, serious musician seemed to win friends because of what he could do, and not by what he could make them feel, but he surely won them.

On March 10 Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, was the attraction.

Florence Hinkle, soprano, is to close the series Wednesday, March 17. For all these artists Mr. Morse furnished accompaniments, and in each case they were a large part of the program, in that they were always just right. A busy musician is this man, for also during Lent is he offering weekly organ recitals, the programs of which contain many attractions.

David and Clara Manners furnished the Tuesday evening program for the Chamber Music Society. All that is musicianly and exquisite in ensemble playing one gets in listening to these two. For the coming week we are promised Julia Culp, the New York Symphony Orchestra, Joseph Stransky, conductor, and Arthur Shattuck, soloist. The fifth concert of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Weston Gales, conductor, and the Toronto String Quartet, presented by the Tuesday Musical Society. M. L. M.

EASTER-TIME ENGAGEMENTS FOR EDWARD WALKER

Re-engagement:

Song Recital—Howe (Ind.) Military School, March 28.

Passion Music—Howe (Ind.) Military School, March 29.

"Holy City," Gaul—Arkadelphia (College), Ark., April 1.

Song recital—Arkadelphia (College), Ark., April 2.
Seventh annual Easter concert—St. Paul's Universalist Church, Chicago, April 4.

Re-engagement:

"Creation," Haydn—Haydn Choral Society, Orchestra Hall, Chicago, April 9.

Re-engagement:

"Martha," Flotow—Ward-Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn, April 16.

American Conservatory—Miss Mary Kryl, pianist, will appear in recital Saturday afternoon, March 27, at Kimball Hall, assisted by Mr. Sol Heller, baritone. Miss Kryl is one of the most accomplished young pianists in this country. Although but sixteen years of age, she plays the greater number of the standard concertos and the masterpieces of piano literature.

Harris—Advanced pupils of Milon R. Harris will give a concert at the Union Church, Oglesby, Ill., on Monday night, March 29. Miss Helen Gallup of Chicago will be the accompanist.

80.5
Will N. Stack
NEW YORK LETTER PAGE 26

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

Valparaíso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.50 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management

HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.
Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.

64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, APRIL 2, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect
Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, April 2, 1915

No. 14

Editorial

"TINKERING" THE CLASSICS

(Contributed.)

Again an example of the temerity of a modern orchestra conductor who thinks he can improve on such a writer as Robert Schumann—presenting his arrangement (it ought to be called a derangement) without a word of comment or explanation!

Imagine this conductor's great predecessor thus tinkering with an almost monumental work, without acknowledging his hand in the arrangement!

Imagine a painter of today touching up a matchless canvas of Murillo, Titian or Van Dyck and infusing to the smallest degree his individuality in place of the master's!

Or a doggerel rhymester meddling with Dante! These are "all of a piece" with the arrangement of Schumann so praised by the would-be "dean of the critics" in a morning paper of March 27; and it is praise like this which has contributed to the undoubted megalomania of the conductor above referred to, until he "rushes in where angels fear to tread." VIEUX TEMPS.

PASSING COMMENT

That England is true to its favorite artists has been proven many times and the story of men and women appearing on the concert stage long after their musical prime is a familiar one. The London Letter in Music News last week contained a fresh example of this fealty to old timers and probably every reader of the paper felt a thrill of pleasure in reading of the great successes attained recently in the English metropolis by Santley and Lloyd, two singers of the last generation, who are still much loved there.

§ § §

It seems astonishing that a composer who could write so beautiful a musical gem as the "Boat Song," should also be capable of such a musical absurdity as "Song of the Sea," for piano, which was played in Chicago last week.

When Miss Harriet Ware, the writer of this piece, played it in Chicago, the critics laughed at her—and deservedly. Miss Pierik, who played it here last week, has much better technic than has Miss Ware, but the piece still remained, under her hands, an absurdity. "Mid-Victorian," we

WE CANNOT, in estimating the character of an individual, leave out of our consideration his conduct in the most important of all human relations; and if in that relation we find him to have been selfish, cruel and deceitful, we shall take the liberty to call him a bad man, in spite of all his temperance at table, and all his regularity at chapel.

—LORD MACAULAY.

believe it was called by Mr. Borowski, when played by Miss Ware.

§ § §

Once more we wish to tell our New York readers that Music News is always on sale at Brentano's, at Fifth avenue and Twenty-seventh street, in that city. Extra copies can invariably be obtained there.

§ § §

The publicity given to the salaries of the opera singers through the bankruptcy of the Chicago Grand Opera Company has afforded much food for comment of various kinds. At the same time the figures show many interesting things and prove several statements.

Unquestionably Tetrzzini, Ruffo and Garden were paid too much, and just as surely some of the hard working young singers were paid too little.

A very satisfactory average seems to have been reached in the case of Minnie Saltzman-Stevens, who received $250.00 a performance—a sum not to be despised by any means, and yet, on the other hand, one fully warranted by the excellence of her work.

To set absolute figures as a suitable standard is an extremely difficult thing, but it is very easy to see that if Saltzman-Stevens can be engaged to do her splendid interpretations at $250.00 a performance, $1,600.00 for Garden, or two thousand for Ruffo or Tetrzzini is entirely too much.

A few astonishing things were developed by the publication of the figures. For instance, it is certainly disgraceful that so good a singer as Minnie Egner should be paid only thirty dollars a week, especially in view of the fact that she had a small part in nearly every performance.

Also, it is interesting to know that George Hamlin actually received $200.00 a performance—for, judging from some printed comment it might be imagined that he received as much as Bassi or Dalmores, but, as a matter of fact, both these tenors received $800.00 a performance—each having a guarantee of many performances—in the case of Dalmores this guarantee numbering fifty.

§ § §

The performance of "Creation" by the Haydn Choral Society at Orchestra Hall on next Friday evening really marks the advent into the music center of a new force—and one which is destined to play considerable of a part unless all known signs fail.

Mr. H. W. Owens, the director of this society, has made a splendid reputation throughout the country as a choral conductor, and has, in Chicago, made equal suc-

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton Scho
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Living 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR
SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR
ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Re'mon' 1570

GEORGE RALF KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium RM

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

cess in the two big choirs with which he has been connected. He has also built up the Haydn Choral Society from absolutely nothing to the place where it is able to make so pretentious an appearance as that of April 9, when the Symphony Orchestra will serve as accompanying body and when the soloists are of absolutely first rank. It will be strange if Mr. Owens and his progressive society does not go far toward the very top in affairs musical in Chicago. The concerts given in smaller halls have been proof enough to those who have heard them that Orchestra Hall is the proper place for this organization.

Each time that Music News attends a Saturday night concert of the Orchestra at Orchestra Hall the frightfully inadequate system of ventilation is freshly noted and is as often the cause of distress to everyone in that part of the house. During the first half of the program the atmosphere invariably becomes turgid and relief is absolutely necessary. Instead, however, of providing this in some sane and healthful manner, an icy blast is turned into this part of the house which nearly blows people out of their seats and is so extremely disagreeable that the sight of men, as well as women, tightly buttoned up in overcoats and with their hats on their heads is nothing uncommon.

Here is a mystery! The Apollo Club announced on its program last Sunday "The Entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra" at the Auditorium and the Irish Choral Society announced, at Orchestra Hall "Fifty members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra." Perhaps fifty of the men have "doubles," but it is more likely that most of the good "floating" orchestra players in Chicago last Sunday found profitable engagement either at the Auditorium or Orchestra Hall.

A study in nationalities was the stage at Orchestra Hall on last Sunday afternoon, for the Irish Choral Society, under the direction of Daniel Protheroe, a Welshman, gave the "Messiah," with a quartet composed of one Welshman and one Swedish singer, as well as one of Scotch extraction, while the orchestra was made up of Germans and Frenchmen, with a few Americans by way of contrast.

HELEN AXE BROWN

Miss Helen Axe Brown, soprano, has the following engagements in April and May, with several others pending. April 4, "Creation," La Fayette, Ind.; 6 and 12, Valparaiso; 20, Osowosso, "Joan of Arc;" 21 soloist with the Choral Society at Muskegon, Mich.; May 4, Massenet's "Eve," Owensboro, Ky.; 5, 6 and 7, Bowling Green (Ky.) May Festival; 14, song recital with Carl Morris of New York at Elmwood, Ind.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The American Conservatory drew the usual capacity house on Saturday afternoon, when at Kimball Hall, Mary Kryl, pianist, and Sol Heller, baritone, gave a very attractive program, Miss Mabel Stapleton playing good accompaniments and a violin obligato also being furnished for one of the songs.

Miss Kryl's reading of the Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 31, No. 3, and a group of German lieder, by Mr. Heller, were not heard by this writer.

Miss Kryl in a Chopin group disclosed the same attractive features which have always made her so popular and she proved also that she has advanced materially, inasmuch as the "Polonaise" especially disclosed a remarkable amount of thoughtful shading and there was always a poise and surety in the playing which sometimes, in the past, Miss Kryl has lacked.

In her last group, she was crystalline clear in the difficult "Gavotte" (D' Albert) and the "Capriccio" (Moszkowski) was marvelous in speed and the incisive quality of its phrasing. A "Romance," by Heniot Levy, teacher of Miss Kryl, proved to be a thoughtful little gem which was very much liked by the audience and the scintillant list and playing closed with an "Etude" of Poldini and the super-brilliant "Mephisto Waltz," by Liszt.

Mr. Heller has a good baritone voice and good concert style. His enunciation is fine and his musical feeling unflinching good.

He was heard in the solid "Pilgrim's Song," by Tschaiakowsky, a very neat little song by Adolph Weidig, entitled "Good Night," and the famous "Drinking Song," from Thomas' "Hamlet." C. E. W.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Street

Music in Chicago

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA PROGRAM

With vacant seats in great numbers on the first floor it would seem reasonable to expect that even late comers in the balcony on Saturday evenings would be able to get programs, but last Saturday, quite as usual this season, this writer could not induce his usher to furnish one of the necessary booklets either by "please" or "you must." It is only fair, however, to further state that many programs were noticed at the box office on leaving the Hall, the scarcity in the balcony resulting probably from the laziness of the usher and the bad management which does not trouble to investigate such conditions.

The daily press on Saturday, almost without exception, pronounced the concert of last Friday very dull. It was not found so on Saturday night.

True, it was an introspective, rather lazily flowing program, and it lacked the inspiration of a visiting artist, a lack which was probably accountable for the many empty seats, but nevertheless the real values offered were great and the entire performance was given with commendable musical impulse and intelligence of interpretation.

Bruno Steindel was the soloist and offered the Molique "Concerto" for violoncello, while the "Symphony No. 2," by Schumann, provided the solid part of the musical feast and the "Overture Fantasia" (Hamlet), by Tchaikowsky, stood for the condiments or the dessert—just as one chose to regard it.

At all events, it was thoroughly interesting and very colorful and just as surely the Schumann provided a truly strong and wonderfully effective example of what purely musical orchestra writing may be.

The most interesting as well as the most novel number of the program, however, was the Bach "Chaconne," transcribed from the violin solo form to an orchestral arrangement by Wilhelm Middelschulte, in which the splendid organist himself took a prominent part in the playing. In fact, so insistent and so beautiful is the organ score and so remarkably well was it played that the number might very safely have been called an organ solo, with splendid orchestral support.

In the original form (for violin) this number is deadly dull to every one except those violinists who, having worked out its intricacies themselves, are interested to hear how well or how badly a colleague may do with it in public performance.

We do not believe that any layman ever yet enjoyed a performance of it. Mr. Middelschulte, however, has siezed upon every vital point in the work and, with his wonderful Bach sympathy, has developed it into a conglomerate whole which is wonderful, indeed, from the constructive standpoint, and is equally fine from the poetic and imaginative. Few pieces played by the orchestra this year have impressed as so exceedingly worth while and so beautiful and Mr. Middelschulte was, on Saturday evening, applauded in a way which would make most of the soloists who appear, envious, indeed.

C. E. W.

MRS. SCOFIELD'S PUPILS IN SONG PROGRAM

Mrs. W. C. Scofield presented her pupils in a program of songs at Kimball Hall on Wednesday evening, there being present a capacity audience and much hearty endorsement of the work of this popular teacher and her talented pupils.

It was possible to remain through only the first half of the program, which opened with "Benedictus" (Monestral), well sung by Miss Jeanette Ratto and Mrs. Fred Buck. Bartlett's "A Dream" followed, proving that A. L. Kirkbach (singing for the first time) has good voice and considerable style.

Miss Emily Englethaler disclosed a pretty voice in an aria from "La Boheme" and Mrs. J. H. Westervelt gave a good account of herself in D'Hardelot's "Sans Toi." Mrs. Fred Buck proved that she is constantly improving by her good work in two songs, and the "Tales of Hoffman" duet again showed that in Miss Lillian Malatesta and Miss Julia Flaville, Mrs. Scofield possesses two pupils of much promise—in both cases the degree of artistry attained already being very considerable.

Other singers scheduled were Mr. Louis Kluge, Miss Gertrude Owens and Mr. Jamison Hardy, the list of songs appointed to each being thoroughly interesting.

Mrs. Scofield's pupils never sing with forced tone and always there is in evidence good style and thoughtful interpretation. Her concerts are always greeted with full houses and it is very easy to see in the work of the pupils steady improvement from one concert until the next.

C. E. W.

JOSEPH CHAPEK PUPILS

Joseph E. Chapek, violinist, son of Joseph H. Chapek, and assistant to him in the Chapek Music School in Chicago, is at present touring the South, and has played recently in the principal cities of Texas with great success.

At Laredo he gave a musicale at the home of Mrs. August C. Richter and also appeared before the Music and Literary Club with great success.

Milan Lusk, another Chapek pupil, who is remembered well in Chicago for his excellent violin playing, is now in Vienna studying at the Meisterschule with Sevcik and is making remarkable progress. He was awarded at the Royal Academy a "stipendium," a distinction rarely conferred upon an American. He appeared recently as soloist with the Ton-Kuenstler Symphony Orchestra, playing the difficult "Concerto" by J. B. Foerster with great success, the composer, who was present, being particularly delighted with the work of the young violinist.

Hughes—Violet Marten Hughes, pianist and accompanist, appeared at the Culture Club Wednesday, March 22, Arche Club, March 26, and March 16 furnished the accompaniments for the Cecilian quartet. Thursday, March 18, accompanist for Dorothy Wagner's song recital at Thurber Hall.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST---Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8162

ANNA AGNES BAILEY

Soprano
HERBERT M. Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHR

CONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST Mezzo-Soprano
1403 E. 68th STREET PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Charles W. Clark

The Distinguished American Baritone, who appeared in Recital at The Illinois Theater on March 28, writes—of the—

Mason & Hamlin

Cable Piano Company, October 4, 1914
Wabash and Jackson,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:

I am pleased to tell you that I shall use the Mason & Hamlin Piano again during the coming season, and it is a pleasure to tell you of the satisfaction that it has given during my previous concert tours.

The Mason & Hamlin Piano completely satisfies every demand of both the singer and the pianist, supplying a wealth of tone of superlative beauty, and placing it at the absolute command of the performer.

Sincerely,

CHARLES W. CLARK

Mason & Hamlin Pianos are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

MARIE WHITE CLARK AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

Mrs. Marie White Clark, who has been a pupil of Herman Devries, Mrs. O. L. Fox and Mr. C. F. Champlin, and whose work in concert recently has been very successful, sang last Friday evening for the Evanston Country Club and delighted the large audience present at that time. She showed unusual taste in the choice of her program, the numbers displaying her voice to best advantage.

She has a clarity of tone which gives the impression of great power, and this, combined with sympathetic quality and attractive stage presence makes Mrs. Clark one of the most charming artists heard in Evanston this season. Mrs. Clark sang a varied list of numbers by Andrews, Rogers, Cadman, Barnard, Clough-Leigher, Cole-ridge-Taylor and Dell'Acqua. The assisting artist was Alberto Salvi, harpist, who also scored a big success.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

A recital will be given by advanced piano pupils of Silvio Scionti and voice pupils of Karleton Hackett and O. E. Robinson Saturday afternoon, April 3, at Kimball Hall.

The Misses May Doelling and Edna Cookingham will present a number of their advanced students in recital Tuesday evening, April 6, at Kimball Hall.

Clarke—Edward Clarke will be heard this week in the bass role of the "Messiah" at the Park Avenue Methodist Church.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Miss May Hayes, soprano, pupil of Grant Schaefer, gave her graduating recital at Northwestern University School of Music last Tuesday evening. The young singer gave her various groups of songs in a very finished manner, reflecting great credit upon her teacher and school. The following was the program presented:

Waldeszauber (Franz X. Seidl).....	Herman
Regen (Joh. Schlaf).....	Paul Juon
Mondnacht (Eichendorff).....	Schumann
Er Ist's (Morike).....	Schumann
Rose ne croyez pas! (Paul Webre).....	Emile Nerini
Serenade (Bouchor).....	Andre Gedalge
Chanson d'amour (Grandmougin).....	Hollman
Cello obligato, Mr. Defty
Scherzo (by request).....	Van Goens
Hungarian Rhapsodie.....	Popper
Mr. Defty
Blackbird's Song (Watson).....	Cyril Scott
Lullaby (Rossetti).....	Cyril Scott
Firefly (from "Songs of India").....	Bantock

CHILDREN'S SONGS

Das Kletterbublein (The Little Climber).....	Julius Hey
Rettig und Rube (The Radish and the Turnip).....	Julius Hey
Rolle, Rolle, Wagen (Roll, Roll, Little Wagon).....	Julius Hey
Groping (from "Feristah's Fancies"—Browning).....	Bantock
Pierrot (Teasdale).....	Dagmar de C. Rubner
Spring (Felix Dahn).....	Eugen Hildach

Miss Hayes was assisted by Mr. Dwight Defty, 'cellist, who contributed two well played numbers by Van Goens and Popper.

CARDON BURNHAM IN RECITAL

Cardon V. Burnham, baritone, assisted by William Lester, accompanist, will give the fourth of the series of programs by artist pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits, Thursday evening, April 8, at 516 Fine Arts Building. The detailed program will be as follows:

Arm, Arm, Ye Brave (Judas Maccabaeus).....	Handel
Her Picture	{ Schubert
It Was a Stormy Morning
Eine Schwan	{ Grieg
Minstrel Song
My Mind Is Like a Peak Snow-crowned	{ Strauss
Thy Wonderful Eyes.....
Pilgrim's Song.....	Tschaikowsky
Vision Fugitive (Herodiade).....	Massenet
Over the Forest Rain Clouds	{ Hungarian Folk Songs
Lower
Good Wine
Mariska
Had a Horse	{ Bantock
Jester Song.....
Wee Bit of Heather.....	Lemon
A Ballad	{ William Lester
Dirge
Peter and the Pierrot

"MESSIAH" THIRD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sunday, April 4, the choir of the Third Presbyterian Church, Daniel Protheroe, conductor, will sing Handel's "Messiah," with the following solo artists: Helen Protheroe, soprano; Edna Swanson-Ver Haar, contralto; Ernest J. Davis, tenor; Charles La Berge, baritone.

Oak Park—MacFarlane's "Message of the Cross" was excellently sung at Grace Church on last Sunday under direction of Arthur Randolph Fraser, and on this (Good Friday) evening Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be given, with J. Parnell Egan in the tenor solos and George Clark in the bass numbers.

LIEBLING MUSICAL CLUB

Sunday afternoon, March 28, the members of the Liebling Club, pupils of Mrs. L. J. Stumpf and Miss Aimee Stumpf, assisted by Miss Irma Sundmacher, soprano, gave a musicale in Kimball Hall to a capacity house. Only a small portion of the program could be heard, but if one may judge by the quality represented by those heard, it is safe to say they have received much splendid training.

Miss Dorothy Heywood was heard to good advantage in the Schulz-Evler "Arabesques on Motifs of Strauss," and she gave it a splendid reading. The Nicode "Scherzo Fantastique," played by Miss Heywood and Miss Aimee Stumpf in a very musicianly manner, won them much merited praise and applause, as also the accompaniments played by Miss Stumpf for Miss Sundmacher. Miss Sundmacher, a very talented soprano and pupil of Mr. Lash, gave a good account of herself in numbers by Tosti, Spross, San Souci. Her voice is of a very appealing quality and she used it to a fine advantage. "Will o' the Wisp" and "When Song Is Sweet" were especially well done.

The following pupils were not heard, but they did their share toward making the program a complete success: Richard Odenwald, Eugene Odenwald, Arnold Egberg, Margaret Learned, Hattie Luedtke, Theodore Peterson, Bernice Levi, Margaret Nimtz, Harold Heidke, Esther Aberdeen, Stanley Johnson, Mildred Campbell, Dorothy Swanson, Margaret Pattullo, Leona Patterson, Ruby Bullerman, Elmer Schmidt, Lucy Shaw, Mary Hearn, Ella Heidke.

TURNER HALL

The last concert of the season's series of twenty given with great success by the Ballmann Orchestra, assisted by a goodly number of solo artists, was given Sunday, March 21.

The soloists were Ethel E. Hoffmann, pianist; G. A. Hoffmann, 'cello, and Victor Tufigno, violinist.

The program was a varied one and included some exceedingly interesting orchestra numbers directed with great skill and artistry by Mr. Martin Ballmann. A special feature of the concert was the good piano playing of Mrs. Ethel Evelyn Hoffmann, who gave the MacDowell "Concerto in A Minor" (with orchestra) in excellent style. Notably good was the "Mendelssohn Trio," Op. 49, as played by Mrs. Hoffmann, piano; V. Tufigno, violin, and Mr. Hoffmann, 'cello.

Mr. Hoffmann is a composer of much worth, a 'cellist of good tone and much musical ability. His "Three Pieces for Orchestra," played for the first time, brought him much favorable comment.

Mrs. Hoffmann, besides playing the piano extremely well, sang Ronald's song cycle, "Summertime," disclosing a soprano voice of good quality, and her rendition of the "cycle" merits much praise.

Victor Tufigno is a violinist of much musical ability. He draws a tone of good quality from his instrument, and he possesses much musical temperament. His rendition of Corelli's "La Folio" is worthy of sincere commendation, and won him much applause.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

CONCERT AT LA GRANGE

Friday evening, March 26, at the First Methodist Church, LaGrange, H. Wilhelm Nordin, baritone, Mrs. H. Wilhelm Nordin, violinist and accompanist, gave a recital that was very enjoyable and interesting. Mr. Frederic Soderberg, cornetist, and Mrs. Soderberg, accompanist, assisted.

Mr. Nordin's voice is rich and full and of excellent quality and wide range. Added to this is a winning stage presence and pleasing personality that mean much to a concert singer. Mr. Nordin opened the program with numbers by Haydn, Wagner, Hatten, Gounod, singing them with a fine style and a good display of vocal art. The Haydn and Gounod numbers were especially well done.

In his second group, Mr. Nordin showed much versatility in songs by Willeby, Grant-Schaefer, Homer and Haynes, giving them in such effective manner that he was compelled to grant an encore, singing a delightful little song by Lohr and winning more sincere applause for his efforts.

The last group comprised numbers by

EDWARD WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
TENOR 1325 E. 64th St.

Bohm, MacDermid, Schneider, Ware and Speaks. His interpretations of this last group were especially effective and musicianly, and it is well to say he is a singer who will be watched with much interest.

Mr. Soderberg played several cornet solos that were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Soderberg was his able accompanist.

Mrs. Nordin is a violinist of much musical ability, and she added much to the pleasure of the program by her playing. Her ability as an accompanist cannot be doubted, for she acquitted herself with credit at the piano for Mr. Nordin. H. W. P.

—###—

FULLERTON HALL

The opera at Fullerton Hall Sunday evening was Weber's "Der Freischuetz."

"Der Freischuetz" legend lends itself well to the lecture form of presentation, and the music of the score is delightful. Miss Weber always tells the story in an intelligent and effective manner that means so much in making the evening of music complete. "Der Freischuetz" score is rich with beautiful melodies for the orchestra, and the quartet, Miss Weber and Messrs. Itte, Hillmann and Klammssteiner, did their full shares in the most enjoyable manner. Miss Lucille Stevenson sang her two solos with great artistry, and a fine display of vocal beauty that was very effective.

Mr. Arthur Kraft sang the one solo for tenor in a very capable manner that merits commendation.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, LA GRANGE

A very pretty church is this and one where every visitor is welcomed most cordially.

The organ is small, but it has good accompanying possibilities and the organist lives in hope of a new, fine organ, some day.

Mrs. Jennie Taylor has long served the church as organist, and on last Sunday morning she proved her great worth as an accompanist to a nicety, and for her opening, closing and offertory numbers played with skill and understanding an "Offertory" (Read), "Prayer from Othello" (Verdi) and a part of the Mendelssohn "C Minor Symphony."

Recently the music has been placed under the direction of Carl E. Craven, and he has succeeded in building up a good choir, even in the short time he has had for the work.

The first quartet is composed of Mrs. G. H. Avery, Mrs. Karl Shumaker, Mr. Carl Craven and Mr. R. B. Hayward, and they were heard on Sunday in Faure's "Palm Branches" to splendid effect.

The arrangement used began with a tenor solo, in which Mr. Craven's fine voice was heard to advantage, and it included also a soprano solo bit, excellently sung, and duets for the soprano and alto and bass and tenor, as well as some solidly harmonized portions, which showed the quartet ensemble to be a thoroughly good one.

To this quartet was added four other voices for the "Jubilate" of Schubert, those being Miss Blanche Fletcher, Mrs. Fred Clark, Mr. J. H. Jones and Mr. Hal Thompson.

This "Jubilate" is a particularly fine one, and it was sung with much beauty of vocalism and much musical finish.

Mr. Craven had an incidental solo bit, as had also Mrs. Avery, whose voice is a very clear and sweet one.

The offertory solo was sung by Mrs. Ada McGregor, who used as her number Schubert's splendid "The Almighty."

Mrs. McGregor is a thoroughly trained singer and delivered her work with poise, surety and finish. Her voice in its middle range is full, sure and expressive, and the way she manipulates her higher tones is an artistic joy.

So good was the ensemble between Mrs. Taylor, the organist, and Mrs. McGregor, that it is easy to surmise that they work together often and with splendid intelligence on the part of each. C. E. W.

—###—

WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL

The Walter Spry Music School will celebrate its tenth season by a series of programs given over to the former graduates. These will take place during April, in Mr. Spry's Interpretation Class, which has proven to be one of the most attractive features of the school.

A MODERN PROGRAM

Mr. Leo Sowerby, of Chicago, gave a lecture-recital before the Tuesday Morning Musicales of Grand Haven, Mich., last Tuesday, playing the following strictly modern program:

PART ONE

Tableaux de Voyage, Op. 33	} Vincent d'Indy
Le Glas
Fete de Village
Reve
Cloches a travers les feuilles	} Claude Debussy
Arabesque, No. 2, G Major
Sarabande
Brouillards
Oiseaux Tristes	} Maurice Ravel
Mennet sur le nom d'Haydn
Prelude
Valses Nobles et Sentimentales, No. 1

PART TWO

Aus Meinem Tagebuch, Op. 82	} Max Reger
A Major
A Minor
E Major
Episoden, Op. 115	} Arnold Schoenberg
E Major
B Minor
Drei Klavierstucke, Op. 11
No. 1, 3	} Arnold Schoenberg
Sechs Kleine Klavierstucke, Op. 19

—###—

MUSICALE AT THE AUDITORIUM

A very successful and thoroughly attractive musicale was given in the South Parlor of the Auditorium Hotel on last Wednesday evening by Miss Emma Sage, dramatic reader.

She was assisted by William L. Dale, and Annette Pangbourne, vocalists, with Genevieve A. Taylor and Margaret MacArthur as accompanists.

Particularly fine was the singing of two groups of songs by Mr. Dale—his voice showing to splendid advantage in works of Hahn, Verdi, Homer and Carrie Jacobs-Bond.

Miss Pangbourne, soprano, was also a favorite and her voice proved to be a thoroughly pleasing one.

Piano numbers were given by Margaret McNab.

—###—

DEVRIES PUPILS TO APPEAR IN RECITAL

Pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Devries will be heard in recital Wednesday, April 14, at 8:15 p. m., in Thurber Hall, in the Fine Arts Building.

The following students will appear: Mrs. Ferdinand Shervill, Helen Ryerson, Isabel McBirney, Dorothy Cannon, Lina Owsky Bartlett, Rosalita Perigo, Berenice Shane Cohan, Mrs. James Small, Helen Gray, Maude Roberts, Maud Churchill, Margaret Gaffey, Lillian Gottlieb, Mrs. J. Cafarelli, Anna Poleschek, De Voe Keine, Laetitia Hubbs, Mae Panoach, Catherine Teheny, Rachel Swartz, Mrs. W. Bentlich, Messrs. Huntington B. Henry, Raymond Gifford and Gabriel Martin.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave.

Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory

Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST

Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgcomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
53rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

MR. EIDAM PRESENTS A PUPIL

Clarence Eidam, of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, presented Miss Elizabeth Layman in piano recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on last Tuesday evening, there being present a goodly audience and much appreciation for the well selected and well presented program.

Miss Layman played Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Gliere and Liszt in well contrasted numbers and with good discriminatory powers.

This writer missed "the three B's," but found Mendelssohn in his "G Major Song Without Words" very pleasant, while Gliere, represented by a "Prelude," and some lighter works of Chopin received from Miss Layman intelligent and musical readings.

Her best work, however, was in an "Etude" and a "Rhapsodie," by Liszt, and to this list could have been added the Chopin "Scherzo" in C Sharp Minor had it not been so blurred by slips of memory.

Miss Layman has a very sweet tone in the more delicate work and she knows how to shade deftly and at the same time how to hold undivided attention to a melody line when she wishes, but, after all, her best work is in bravura and for this reason the Liszt pieces were particularly interesting.

Very evidently she has a good natural talent and much true musical feeling, besides which her training has been along lines which have made her work clean and clear as well as musical.

If she but perseveres in the well chosen paths she is now pursuing she will eventually into thoroughly artistic pianism in due time and she may, even now, assure herself that she has gone a long way on the road and that her present performance holds much that is pleasing. C. E. W.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY

At the fifth program given by artist pupils of Miss Carrie Scott in the Mendelssohn Conservatory on last Tuesday evening, Miss Anna Swansen was the player and her work was well chosen and given with many touches of style and finish, though marred also by faulty memory frequently.

A Beethoven "Sonata" and a "Prelude and Fugue" by Bach proved that Miss Swansen is spending much time with the classics and that her style is being formed along correct lines.

A Liszt "Rhapsodie" proved that she has much facility and that her technic, in many respects, is a well developed factor.

Mozart, Seeboeck, Chopin and Dohnanyi completed the well chosen list of her offerings and the splendid audience present found so much to admire in her work that she was most enthusiastically endorsed after each group of numbers.

Her assistant was Miss Jennie Andersen, a coloratura soprano with a voice of most engaging qualities and with a manner at once ingratiating and full of repose.

She was heard only in the Del'Acqua "Chanson Provençiale," but this was sufficient to prove that her voice is very unusual and that she has already attained great proficiency in using it. C. E. W.

Trio Program—The Fredericksen-Hess Trio announces a chamber music concert in Central Music Hall, Sunday afternoon, April 11, at 3:15 o'clock.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Maggie Teyte, soprano, will make her only appearance in Chicago this season next Sunday afternoon, April 4, at 3:30, in a song recital at the Illinois Theater under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The complete program is as follows:

"Priere qu'un enfant ne meurt pas"	Fevrier
Villanelle des petits canards	Chabrier
Vieille chanson espagnole	Louis Aubert
La lettre
La pie bavarde	Moussorgsky
Vedrai Carino "Don Giovanni"	Mozart
Danza Fanciulla	Durante
Se tu m'ami	de Fesche
Serenata	Zandonai
Invocazione a Venere	Parelli
C'est l'extase langoureuse
Il pleure dans mon coeur
L'Ombre des arbres, dans la riviere
Green	C. Debussy
(Ariettes Oublies)
La chevelure, Chansons de Bilitis
Fantoches, Fetes Galantes
The Player Queen (First time)	J. A. Carpenter
To Daisies	R. Quilter
The Wanderer's Night Song	L. Waller
Lullaby	C. Scott
The Star	J. Rogers

Arthur Granquist, pianist, will be heard in recital next Sunday afternoon, April 4, at 3:30 at the Fine Arts Theater. The program is as follows:

La Fleurie ou la tendre Nannette	Couperin
Prelude and Fugue in G minor	Buck-Liszt
Sonata Op. 57	Beethoven
Allegro Assai
Andante con moto
Allegro ma non troppo—Presto
Impromptu G major	Schubert
Praeludium B minor	Otterstroem
Serenade Russe	Rubinstein
Summer Twilight on the Great
Harbor of Saint-Nazaire (From the suite "en Bretagne")
Return of the Pilgrimage from Landevenner (From the suite "en Bretagne")	Rhene-Baton
Prelude, Op. 45	Chopin
Ballade E minor	Brune

Mr. Albert Spalding, violinist, will be heard for the last time this season in recital, Sunday afternoon, April 11, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

SIXTH PRESBYTERIAN

On Sunday morning, March 28, the choir of the Sixth Presbyterian sang Stainer's "ProceSSIONal to Calvary" and "God So Loved the World" in a manner that merits much praise, and a pleasure to hear as sung by the double quartet choir, Mrs. Roe and Mrs. Brunelle, sopranos; Miss Newbury and Miss Cusic, contraltos; Messrs. Porter and Anderson, tenors, and Messrs. Brunelle and Sonnenschein, basses.

Mr. Sonnenschein sang "The Palms" (Faure) with splendid church style, that made his rendition very effective. He has an excellent voice and should be heard more often in music circles.

Miss Frances Anne Cook, organist, gave splendid renditions of the "Allegro Maestoso" (fifth sonata), by Rheinberger, and the "Grand March," by Verdi. She furnished excellent support for the solo and choir numbers.

Krum—Miss Klea Orschel, pupil of Mrs. Charles L. Krum, took part in the benefit given at the Central Music Hall.

DAN S. DENTON TENOR

OPERA—CONCERT—RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

ISABEL RICHARDSON AND ARTUR PLATZ IN SONG PROGRAM

Miss Isabel Richardson, soprano, and Mr. Artur Platz, tenor, appeared in recital under the auspices of Sandor Radanovits at the Recital Hall on the fifth floor of Fine Arts Building on last Thursday evening and scored a very great success with the audience present, being assisted by William Lester, who played superb accompaniments to all numbers except the three songs by Jeanne Boyd, which were sung by Mr. Platz and in which he had the sympathetic ciation and few indeed can so manipulate, shade and color the tone.

—Photo by Root

ISABEL RICHARDSON

ARTUR F. PLATZ

It was these qualities which made her "Will o' the Wisp" (Spross) so remarkable, for remarkable indeed it was, and the audience found it so altogether charming that a perfect ovation followed and Miss Richardson should certainly have repeated it.

MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," not quite so effective in a song arrangement as for piano alone, was, however, done with great purity and beauty of tone, and Becker's hilarious "Springtide" was made to tell its story of youth, love and the vernal season with precision and spirit as well as with a vocal expression entirely in keeping.

Altogether Miss Richardson quite captured her audience and by her gracious appearance and manners as well as by the lovely qualities of her musical art made many new friends.

Mr. Platz, whose work has been recently reviewed in Music News, especially in connection with the Boyd songs, was heard again with much pleasure, for he not only has a good voice, sweet in quality always and often reaching to thrilling climax, but he has also a varied interpretative ability and is able to properly characterize each text he presents, as well as to infuse the music with telling temperamental qualities.

German text songs of Strauss, Jensen, Abt and Grieg were exceedingly well done, the Jensen "Murmuring Zephyrs" being perhaps the most delightful of the group.

Woodman's "I Am Thy Harp," a song with a potent love thought, was well conceived and beautifully executed, while a new song by Guedy, "When Soft Winds Blow," also proved attractive in the Platz handling.

"Wind from the South," "Tarantella" and "In Italy," the three best known songs of Jeanne Boyd, again found in Mr. Platz a sympathetic and skillful interpreter, and so well were they all sung and so attractive did they prove that one is still at a loss to decide as to which has the most merit. It is entirely superfluous, however, to consider this point, for all are fine and together they constitute a group which would grace any program.

Mr. Platz, like Miss Richardson, is very attractive when before an audience. He has poise and style and seems, also like her, to have such a sincere attitude toward his work that a program in which he participates, and especially when the alternate artist is Miss Richardson, cannot fail to bring delight.

C. E. W.

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
Phone Austin 10273 5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

ONCERTS 82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING and very skillful assistance of the composer.

The program opened with a group of German text duets by Hildach and Berger and closed with the very charming "The Day Is Done," by Lohr, in which fine ensemble values were maintained and the great artistic powers of each were shown in good detail.

Miss Richardson opened her program with German classics, giving authentic and colorful interpretation to works by Schumann, Brahms, Schubert and Hermann.

Her second group opened with "Elysium" (Speaks), a song in which suavity of style is necessary and in which also deep sentiment must be expressed. These qualities were amply met by Miss Richardson, whose voice is not only sweet, clear and strong, but which also has a most ingratiating quality.

Added to this, she has technical control of most unusual excellence, her attack is absolutely sure and clean always, she ends her phrases definitely and rounds them out with skill and effectiveness.

Few singers have so clear-cut an enun-

Easter Music at the Churches

First Congregational, Oak Park

Morning service, 10:30 o'clock:

Organ Prelude—
I Know that My Redeemer Liveth.....F. Handel
Resurrection Morn.....Edward Johnston
Mr. Kinsey

Anthem—Break Forth Into Joy.....J. Barnby Ending with the hymn "Worgan" (No. 125), in which the congregation is asked to join—rising when the hymn begins.

Anthem—Christ the Lord Is Risen.....Dudley Buck
Anthem—The Magdalene.....Mark Warren
Response to Prayer

Carols—
Let the Merry Church Bells Ring.....
F. Flaxington Harker

Miss Kaufman and Children
Hail with Gladness.....Charles Bochan
Mrs. Gale and Children

Easter Bells.....F. Flaxington Harker
Miss Kaufman and Children

At Easter Time.....Alfred Wooler
Mrs. Gale and Children

Children's Recessional

Offertory
Solo—Easter-Tide.....Samuel Liddle

Mrs. Gale
Anthem—When the Sabbath Was Past.....J. C. Bartlett
Organ Postlude—Hallelujah Chorus.....F. Handel

Organ recital, 7:15 o'clock.

Evening service, 7:30 o'clock:

Organ Prelude—
Alleluia.....F. Dubois
Piat Lux.....F. Dubois

Mr. Kinsey
Anthem—Lift Your Glad Voices.....W. Berwald
Anthem—Death Is Swallowed Up in Victory.....
Alfred Hollins

Solo—The Resurrection.....H. R. Shelley
Mr. Dunford

Carol—Easter Dawn.....E. W. Hanscom
Anthem—Ring Out, Glad Bells of Easter-tide.....
J. C. Bartlett

Offertory (organ)—In Moonlight.....Ralph Kinder
Mr. Kinsey

Solo—The Easter Morn.....S. Coleridge Taylor
Miss Kaufman

Anthem—God Hath Appointed a Day.....Tours
Organ Postlude—March on Easter Themes.....
Mark Andrews

§ § §

Presbyterian Church, LaGrange

The following music will be sung in the morning:

God Hath Appointed a Day.....Tours
Hosanna.....Granier

Double Quartet
Obligato by Mr. Craven

List the Cherubic Host ("Holy City").....Gaul
Ladies' Quartet and Baritone Obligato

The Majesty of Divine Humiliation ("Crucifixion").....
Stainer

Mr. Craven

Carl E. Craven, director.

§ § §

West End Sunday Evening Club

At the West End Sunday Evening Club (Third Presbyterian Church), on Easter evening, "The Messiah" will be given, under the direction of Daniel Protheroe, with chorus numbers by the Irish Choral Society and accompaniments by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The soloists will be Miss Helen Protheroe, Mrs. Edna Swanson Ver Haar, Ernest J. Davis and Charles La Berge.

St. Paul's Universalist Church

Prairie avenue and Thirtieth street. Morning service 10:45 o'clock.

PROGRAM

Organ—Meditation.....Guilmant
Quartet—Open to Me the Gates.....Foster
Quartet—As It Began to Dawn.....Miller
Trio—Our Lord Is Risen.....Saint-Saens
Postlude—Christus Resurrexit.....Ravanello

SACRED CONCERT 8 O'CLOCK

Organ—Suite Gothique.....Boellmann
Quartets from "The Requiem".....Mozart
Tuba Mirum
Benedictus

Tenor Solo—Hosanna.....Granier
Quartet—Blessed.....Cesar Franck
Soprano Solo—Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee.....
Schumann

Quartet—Holy, Holy, Holy.....Rossini
Alto Solo—Easter Tide.....Liddle

Bass Solo—The Trumpet Shall Sound.....Handel
Quartet—Where Hast Thou Laid Him.....
Clough-Leigher

Mrs. Mary Highsmith Lyding, soprano.
Miss Barbara Wait, alto.

Mr. Edward Walker, tenor.

Mr. William Beard, bass.

Mrs. W. Meddelschulte, organist and director.

§ § §

Trinity Episcopal Church

The full choir of men and boys will sing at 7:45 a. m. and 11 a. m. No tickets are required for any services at Trinity, although an early arrival is advised if a good seat is required.

Following is the program:

Holy Communion (Choral)—7:45 a. m.

Holy Communion (Choral)—11 a. m.

Processional—Hymn 112. Jesus Christ Is Risen
Today.....Worgan

Introit Anthem—Christ Our Passover.....Max Vogrich
Communion Service—In E flat.....Alfred Eyre

Hymn No. 121—The Strife Is O'er.....Palestrina
Ascription Gloria—In E major.....Max Vogrich

Offertorium—As It began to Dawn.....George Martin
Communion Hymn—No. 225—Bread of the World.....
J. S. B. Hodges

Recessional—Hymn 114—Christ the Lord is Risen
Again.....E. German

§ § §

First Baptist Church

Quartet choir, assisted by Alexander Zukowsky, violinist, concertmeister Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Miss Emma Os-good, harpist, under direction of C. A. Havens, organist.

PROGRAM, 11 A. M.

Organ—Scherzo, Sonata No. 5.....Guilmant
Cantata—The Risen King.....Schnecker

Trio—Allegretto Grazioso.....Zelinsky
Violin, Harp and Organ

As It Began to Dawn.....Martin
Easter Day.....Havens

Attractive program, 8 p. m.

§ § §

Rogers Park Baptist Church

The quartet choir at this church, Helen Headington, soprano; Mrs. George Dewey, contralto; Samuel B. Garton, tenor and director; Maurice Mattison, bass, will give the following musical numbers Easter Sunday:

In the End of the Sabbath.....Will MacFarlane
The Easter Dawn.....Dressler

Ladies' Trio—Hail to the Risen Lord.....Gaul
Baritone Solo—From Gloom to Glory.....Adam Geibel

A Legend.....Tschaiakowsky
How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me.....Pfluger

The Magdalene.....Warren
Awake ye Saints.....Schnecker

California Avenue Congregational Church

The vocal numbers for Easter will be as follows:

Jesus Lives.....MacFarlane
Choir

Resurrection.....Shelley
Earl F. Houghton

Christ, Our Passover.....Schilling
Hosanna.....Jules Granier

Unfold, Ye Portals.....Gounod
Choir

George F. Kortzenborn, director.

Organ numbers will be:

A. M.
Paschal Offertory.....Batiste
Easter Morning.....Malling

Spring Song.....Lemare
Resurrection Morn.....Johnson

P. M.
March on Easter Themes.....Andrews
Hosanna.....Wochs

Enchanted Bells.....Haberbier
Toccata from Fifth Symphony.....Widor

Myrtle E. Mattison, organist.

§ § §

First Baptist Church of Austin

A. M.

Prelude—Easter Morning.....Baumgartner
Cantata—"From Death to Life".....J. C. Bartlett

Sung by Quartet
Offertory—Adoration ("Holy City").....Gaul

Postlude—Hallelujah Chorus.....Handel
P. M.

Prelude—An Old Easter Melody.....J. E. West
Chorus—"Christ Our Passover".....Bartlett

Quartet—The Magdalene.....Warren
Offertory—Reverie.....Saint-Saens

Soprano Solo and Chorus—My Hope Is in the Everlasting.....Stainer

Bass Solo—Hosanna.....Granier
Mr. Severinghaus

Postlude—Easter Postlude in F.....Malling
Soprano—Miss Lillian MacLeish.

Contralto—Miss Kathryn Hanna.
Tenor—Dr. Clarence W. Jackman.

Bass—Mr. Milton Severinghaus.
Organist—Miss Florence E. Boydston.

Director of Chorus—Miss Ida Belle Freeman.

§ § §

Christ Church

Music at the 11 o'clock service, Easter Day, Christ Church, Sixty-fifth and Wood-lawn avenue:

Processional Hymn—Come, Ye Faithful
Introit (anthem)—As It Began to Dawn.....Vincent

Kyrie Eleison (dedicated to Christ Church choir)
John West

Credo (from the Messe Solonelle).....Gounod
Offertory (anthem)—Hallelujah Chorus.....Handel

Sanctus
Benedictus.....(from the Messe Solonelle) Gounod

Agnes Dei
Gloria in Excelsis.....Old Chant

Recessional Hymn—Jesus Christ Is Risen Today
Nunc Dimittis, in D.....Marks

Mason Slade, organist and choirmaster

§ § §

Garfield Boulevard M. E. Church

MORNING PRELUDE

Prelude—Resurrection Morn.....Johnston
Anthem—Christ Our Passover.....Schilling

He Is Risen.....Schilling
Anthem—Shout, Ye High Heavens.....Chadwick

Postlude—Hosanna.....Dubois

EVENING SERVICE

Prelude—Laudate Dominum.....Sheldon
Anthem—The Day of Resurrection.....Hosmer

Solo—Behold the Risen King.....Dressler
Grace Donnelly

Duet—Easter Time.....Apt
Mr. Edwards, Mr. Schmidt

Anthem—Darkness and Dawn.....Peace
Solo—The King of Glory.....Harris

Lillian De Vere Norris
Quartet—Hosanna.....Granier

Solo—As Sleep Takes Flight.....Shelley
Mrs. Wilbur McClellan

Duet—Lift Your Glad Voices.....Schnecker
Mrs. Kleyenstuber, Mr. Grauth

Anthem—Christ Being Raised from the Dead.....Lansing
Postlude—Hallelujah.....Handel

Mabel Howard McDuffee, organist and director.

MRS. JOHN FREMONT
MURPHY DRAMATIC
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

St. James' Church

Cass and Huron Streets. Services Easter Day, 6, 7:30, 9:30, 10:45 and 4 in the afternoon. Festal celebration at 10:45.

Prelude—
The Resurrection Shelley
I Know that My Redeemer Liveth.....Handel
Processional—Jesus Christ Is Risen Today.....Worgan
Christ Our Passover (new).....Parker
Festival Te Deum, in B flat (from the mass).....Schubert
Jubilate (from Mass in B flat).....Schubert
Ascription Gloria in A.....Foster
Offertory anthem—Awake, Thou that Sleepest.....Stainer
Sanctus (Cherubic Hymn No. 2).....Tschaiakowsky
Gloria in Excelsis, in E flat.....Schilling
Recessional—Onward Christian Soldiers.....Fuller
Postlude—Easter Morning Malling
Soloists—Earl E. Abramson, soprano; William M. Walter, basso.

Choral evensong at 4 (service attended by St. Bernard Commandery No. 35, K. T.):

Processional—Jesus Christ Is Risen Today.....Worgan
Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, in E flat.....West
Hymn 110—Come, Ye Faithful.....Sullivan
Offertory (anthem)—But Now Is Christ Risen.....Lester
Sevenfold Amen Stainer
Recessional—The Day of Resurrection.....Tours
Soloist—Earl E. Abramson, soprano. John W. Norton, organist and choirmaster.

On the afternoon of the third Sunday in April, the 18th, the choir of St. James' will render William Lester's new Easter cantata, "The Triumph of the Greater Love," assisted by a solo quartet and an orchestra of musicians from the Symphony Orchestra. This cantata is dedicated to John W. Norton and the choir of St. James', and will have its first performance on this occasion. Admission will be by ticket only, as the demand for seats far exceeds the seating capacity of the church. Palmer Christian will be at the organ and John W. Norton will conduct.

§ § §

St. Chrysostom's Church

HOLY COMMUNION 11 A. M.

Processional—Hymn 112 Worgan
Introit—Hymn 121 Palestrina
Kyrie }
Gloria tibi } In B flat.....Hyde
Gratia tibi }
Hymn 118 Elvey
Offertorium—They Have Taken Away My Lord.....Stainer
Sanctus in F Wesley
Hymn 219
Gloria in Excelsis—Chant 204
Nunc Dimittis in A.....Foster
Recessional—Hymn 110 Sullivan

EVENSONG, 4:30 P. M.

Prelude—
Andantino Lemare
St. Cecilia Offertory.....Batiste
Spring Song Hollins
Processional—Hymn 112 Worgan
Proper Psalms, 113, 114 and 118.
Nunc Dimittis in A.....Foster
Hymn 121 Palestrina
Offertorium—They Have Taken Away My Lord.....Stainer
Orison Hymn 23 Parker
Recessional—Hymn 110 Sullivan
Emory L. Gallup, Organist and Choirmaster.

First Presbyterian

The choir of the First Presbyterian will be assisted on Easter morning by four soloists from the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the program will include:

Prelude—Romanze Saint-Saens
Oboe, 'Cello, Harp, Organ
Anthem— Handel
Harp Solo—Meditation Godefrid
Anthem—Surely He Hath Borne our Griefs.....Bach
Violoncello Solo—Arie Pergolesi
Anthem—List the Cherubic Hosts.....Gaul
Hallelujah Chorus (Messiah).....Handel

First Presbyterian Church, Lakeview

Broadway and Addison street.

Mrs. Harriet Hertz Seyl.....Soprano
Miss Helen E. Peterson.....Contralto
Mrs. Ernest D. Dewey.....Contralto
Mr. Ernest Peacock.....Tenor
Mr. Ernest D. Dewey.....Basso
Miss Stella Roden.....Organist
Mr. Dewey is also director of the chorus of forty voices.

MORNING SERVICES

Organ Prelude—Resurrection Morn.....Shelley
Anthem—Easter Anthem Schilling
Quartette and Chorus
Anthem—Lo, the Tomb is Empty.....Browne
Quintette
Solo—Angels Roll the Rock Away.....Hawley
Miss Peterson
Anthem—The Magdalene Warren
Quartette
Anthem—Victory Shelley
Trio and Chorus
Organ Postlude—Hosanna Wachs

FIVE O'CLOCK SERVICES

Organ Prelude—Variation on an Easter Melody.....West
Anthem—Christ is Eternal.....Protheroe
Quartette and Chorus
Solo—Easter Shelley
Mr. Peacock
Anthem—The Trumpet Shall Sound.....Hall
Quartette
Solo—Ice and Snow Hadley
Mrs. Seyl

INTERMISSION

Cantata
The Resurrection Manney

§ § §

Woodlawn Baptist Church

University avenue and Sixty-second street.
Harold B. Maryott, director of music.
Mrs. Anne Pearson Maryott, organist.

MORNING AT ELEVEN

Organ Prelude—Easter Morning Malling
Anthem—But Lo! The Dawn Matthews
Response—O Risen Christ.....H. B. Maryott
Offertory Anthem—As It Began to Dawn.....Ambrose
Organ Postlude—Hosanna Dubois

EVENING AT SEVEN-THIRTY

Organ Recital
Chant Pastoral
Alleluia } Dubois
In Paradisum }
Anthem—As It Began to Dawn.....Vincent
Response—O Risen Christ.....H. B. Maryott
Offertory Anthem—Christ, the Lord, Is Risen.....Mrs. H. B. Maryott Organ Postlude—Hallelujah Chorus.....Handel

§ § §

Garfield Park Baptist Church

MORNING SERVICES

The Sanctus Gounod
Mr. Glenn Sherwood and Choir
The Resurrection Sheldon
Miss Bessie Sheridan
Be Comforted Ye that Mourn.....Arms-Fisher
David R. Pershing

At the evening service the choir, under the direction of Estelle L. Russell, will sing "Christ is Risen," by Schneckner. The cantata will be preceded by the following miscellaneous program:

Arise, Shine MacDermid
Mr. Glenn Sherwood
Christ Is Risen.....Minshall-Nevin
Male Quartet—Messrs. Sherwood, Hubbard, Narramore, Pershing
Miss Bernice Austin, accompanist.

§ § §

New First Congregational

Special Easter services at 10:30 a. m. and 7:45 p. m., by the united choirs under direction of H. Augustine Smith.

The quartet is composed of Lucia May Smith, Lucy Hartman Leon Jones and Roscoe King. Albert Cotsworth is organist and Mrs. King, pianist.

Kenwood Evangelical

Kenwood Evangelical Church, Greenwood avenue and Forty-sixth street, April 4, 10:30 a. m.:

Prelude—Variations on "O Filii et Filiae" (O Sons and Daughters).....Guilmant
Anthems—
When the Sabbath Was Past.....Bartlett
Give Thanks to God.....Manny
Easter Dickinson
Solo—The First Easter Morn.....Coleridge-Taylor
Mr. Hall

Responses—
May the Peace of God.....Christian
Sevenfold Amen Stainer
Postlude—Phantasy on "We Praise Thee, O Lord".....Huber

The choir consists of Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano; Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto; William Clare Hall, tenor; Dr. Carver Williams, bass, and Palmer Christian, organist and director, assisted by Claribel Rice, soprano; Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, contralto; Mr. Elton Calkin, tenor, and Joseph Marshall, bass.

§ § §

New England Church

Hugo Goodwin, organist and choir director; Easter Sunday, April 4.

10:45 A. M.

Easter Offertory Deshayes
Light's Glittering Morn.....Parker
Break Forth into Joy.....Barnby
Easter Day Clement-Loret

7:30 P. M.

Hosannah Hartman
Pastoral Symphony Handel
Easter Dawn Clausmann
In Springtime Kinder
Rhapsody in D (on Breton melodies).....Saint-Saens
Scherzo (from Sonata in E).....Rogers
Paysage (Pastoral), Op. 10, No. 9.....Bonnet
Anthem—Gloria (from Twelfth Mass).....Mozart
Anthem—Jesus Christ Is Risen.....Goodwin
Postlude—Easter Alleluia Ottenwalder

§ § §

St. Alban's Church

HOLY COMMUNION

Processional—Hymn 112 Worgan
Kyrie
Gloria tibi } in G.....Agutter
Gratia tibi }
Hymn 118 Elvey
Offertory Anthem—They Have Taken Away My Lord.....Stainer
Sanctus
Benedictus } In G.....Agutter
Agnus Dei }

Gloria in Excelsis—Chant 204
Recessional—Hymn 110 Sullivan

CHORAL EVENSONG, 7:30 P. M.

Processional—Hymn 112 Worgan
Proper Psalms, 113, 114 and 118.
Magnificat
Nunc Dimittis } In A flat.....Harrison
Hymn 125 Dykes
Offertory Anthem—Hallelujah! Now Is Christ Risen.....Simper
Recessional—Hymn 110 Sullivan
Emory L. Gallup, Organist and Choirmaster.

§ § §

St. Paul's Universalist

A sacred concert will be given by the quartet choir of St. Paul's Universalist Church, under direction of Mrs. Wilhelm Middelschulte, on Easter evening. The personnel is Mary Highsmith-Lyding, Barbara Wait, Edward Walker and William Beard.

§ § §

First Presbyterian, Austin

Special services at 10:30 a. m. and 4:45 p. m., under direction of Ida Belle Freeman, with Jessie Adams, organist. The quartet is Irene Briggs, Ida Belle Freeman, A. C. Henning and Murray Eldredge.

CEDRIC W. LEMONTPIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485Isabel RichardsonMUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.EDNA DUNHAMSoprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New YorkJ. NOEL FOREST, TenorVOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981Allen W. BogenCONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGOHARRY S. AUSTINBASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758ALTA MILLERRECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COXTEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865Mrs. Charles L. KrumSOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986Vivian ScottTeacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY

800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-HarterContra- to
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-RTHE IRISH CHORAL SOCIETY IN "THE MESSIAH"

In spite of the fact of far too many concerts on last Sunday afternoon, the Irish Choral Society, under direction of Mr. Daniel Protheroe, drew a very good audience to Orchestra Hall, and this audience was well repaid for its loyalty to the Irish singers, inasmuch as the performance was one of unusual merit.

Mr. Protheroe held all his forces to good musical values and an intelligent reading of the expressive Handel score, and was ably seconded by Allen W. Bogan, who gave remarkably good support at the organ, and a body of fifty men from the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, who also played well.

Owing to the great press of concerts for the afternoon, only one division of the oratorio was heard, but this included each soloist in one or two numbers, as well as the chorus, in "And the Glory," "O Thou That Tellest," "For unto Us," "Glory to God" and "His Yoke Is Easy"—numbers of sufficient diversification to show many phases of the choral excellence of the Irish Choral Society under the Protheroe baton.

CHRISTINE MILLER

These excellencies included concise attack, clear enunciation of text, a rounded out musical excellence and a sincerely devotional attitude toward the inspired text.

The soloists were interesting, but of somewhat unequal value.

Miss Helen Protheroe, a young soprano, pupil of Mr. Daniel Protheroe, made a favorable debut, proving anew that the good opinions held of her work in various local functions has been well founded.

She has simplicity of style and sincerity of purpose, and her voice proved to be thoroughly adequate both to the imposed task and to fill the place in which she sang.

The beautiful recitative falling to the lot of the soprano were sung with nice discrimination and much purity of tone, while "Rejoice Greatly" was done with considerable facility and "Come unto Him" showed poise and sincerity.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

Miss Christine Miller has long since won her position in Chicago as being fine in any oratorio, and in "The Messiah" she is absolutely ideal. Her singing of "O Thou that Tellest" was flawless from every technical and musical standpoint, and the presentation of "He Shall Feed His Flock" was at such a point of temperamental and interpretative excellence that it might well serve as a model for any young singer who was so fortunate as to hear it. There was much good music in Chicago last Sunday afternoon, and a multitude of artists gave samples of their possibilities, but in all that was offered, either from soloist or ensemble, no one item surpassed the singing by Miss Miller in "He Shall Feed His Flock."

Mr. Dan Beddoe long since won his place in oratorio and he has a certain large and definite following. Since this following still finds in his work so much to admire and applaud, it is perhaps superfluous for any reviewer to point out the respects in which it has deteriorated.

Mr. Gustaf Holmquist was the basso of the performance, and proved beyond any question that it is not necessary, at any time, to go outside Chicago to find a superb singer of "The Messiah" or, for that matter, for any other oratorio requiring a powerful and artistic bass singer.

Mr. Holmquist has musical feeling of the proper sort and great intelligence in the use of his superb voice. C. E. W.

— # # # —

Sowerby—Leo Sowerby, piano, and Hermann Felber, Jr., violin, will give a "Sonata Recital" in Central Music Hall on Tuesday evening, April 20.

THE APOLLO CLUB IN THE BACH PASSION MUSIC

The Apollo Club sang Bach's Passion Music (according to St. Matthew) at the Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, thus exalting their own prowess to the superlative degree and at the same time placing a crown of glory on the musical season of 1914-15.

Bach is imperishable and no greater proof of his everlasting fame could be found than that afforded at this time, when a capacity audience listened for three hours to the unfolding of his master choral work—and listened with reverence and a full meed of respect.

Mr. Wild, at the conductor's desk, was fully master of all the multiple forces of the afternoon. Edgar Nelson, at the organ, was indispensable in the skill and the surety with which he backed up all the recitative passages especially, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra proved anew its worth and its artistry.

The Apollo Club sang all the descriptive text most beautifully. There was every element present which in the composite works for choral perfection and there was in evidence also an all-pervading impression of musical sincerity and an adherence to text values wholly exceptional.

For the chorales a supplementary chorus had been added, making a total of one thousand voices, and the ensemble thus afforded was sure and fine and at the same time reasonably sonorous.

The soloists were of superb caliber. Florence Hinkle negotiated the soprano solos with her customary skill and effect and Alma Beck, in the important alto solos, proved to be a revelation.

This fine young artist has appeared in Evanston and Oak Park, but Sunday marked her real debut in Chicago, one, too, which will not soon be forgotten and which undoubtedly paved the way for many future engagements.

Miss Beck has a lovely voice and a thoroughly ingratiating personality, to which assets she adds musical feeling of superior sort and intelligence of reading entirely beyond cavi.

Mr. Nicholas Douty sang the immense amount of music assigned the "Evangelist," and sang it well.

The tenor, according to his own confession, is only a local voice teacher in an eastern city, but he has certainly, somewhere, learned to pronounce Bach text remarkably well and he is, with reasonable regularity, called upon to exercise his attainment in various music centers.

Mr. Burton Thatcher had the very difficult music of "Jesus" to sing, and he did it with musicianly skill and poetic beauty.

Mr. G. Magnus Schutz, another Chicago basso, had a very elaborate score to sing and did it not only with ample display of vocal art but also with such seriousness of purpose and such true poetical feeling as to prove himself well worthy the title of artist. Mr. Schutz, like Miss Beck, is a comparative newcomer and he too scored heavily on his first appearance. C. E. W.

G. MAGNUS SCHUTZ

GRACE GROVE

Grace Grove, accompanist, has filled the following recent engagements:

March 1—Grace Brune Marcussen and John Rankl; Hamilton Park.
March 15—Alma Leslie; Fine Arts Building.
March 18—Hildred Hanson Hostetter; City Club.
March 21—Chicago Artists' Quartet; Fine Arts Theater.

Miss Grove is organist at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church and accompanist for the Chicago Singverein, of which William Boeppler is the director. She will be the accompanist for Gustav Holmquist in his forthcoming recital at Galva.

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

51 O.E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8688

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Hubbard 4569

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO

Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO LONG RECITAL PUPILS

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy Recital Oratorio Opera

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno BARI-TONE

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARI-TONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERT MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARI-TONE Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM Baritone NORDIN

44 6th Avenue La Grange, Ill. RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner Dir. School of Music Milwaukee State Normal

COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Bittman Kelley and Alexander Helmemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

Recitals PIANO AND VOICE Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

A splendid program was offered by the Amateur Musical Club at Assembly Hall on Monday afternoon, it being possible, however, to hear only two numbers.

Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto, appeared in a group of French text songs by Fontenailles, Hahn, Hue and Ferrari, and again was her excellence of enunciation of this language in evidence as well as the fact that her voice is in splendid condition.

She sang with great freedom and much artistry and the audience applauded her work to the echo and wanted much more of it than the program provided.

Miss Marie Ludwig played a group of harp solos and demonstrated the possession of transcendent technic for the instrument as well as of a musical temperament sufficient to evoke the very best of its possibilities and an interpretative intelligence that made each one of her numbers tell its own distinctive and musical story.

The Bach "Bourree" was a model of classical simplicity and earnestness, the Schaecker "Ballade" disclosed unusual technical proficiencies and the "Am Springbrunnen" was gay, facile and thoroughly pleasing.

Miss Ludwig is one of the very best harp players and her work is heard with joy always.

Others on the program were Miss Gertrude Consuelo Bates in a violin number, Mrs. Susie Burr Whyland in songs and Miss Esther Hirschberg in piano numbers.

C. E. W.

ORGAN RECITAL

Thursday evening at the Emmanuel Methodist Church in Evanston, Lilly Wadhams Moline was heard in an organ recital.

Much has been said regarding the condition of church organs in some of the Chicago churches, and it is well to say the one heard in Evanston doesn't prove to be an exception. Mrs. Moline is a very capable organist, giving numbers by Archer, Hollins, Beethoven, Lemmons, Moline, Martin, Faulkes, Sturges, Shelley.

The "Minuet" (Beethoven) and "Fanfare" (Lemmons) were greatly enjoyed, and played with a good display of technic and pedal dexterity. Two compositions by Mrs. Moline were of unusual interest. The "Improvisation" and "Lamentation" were the numbers played, proving her to be a very capable composer as well as an organist and musician of resource.

Mrs. Moline has a very reliable technic and her reading of Faulkes' "Festival Prelude" was very musicianly. Sturges' "Meditation" was given with a fine variety of color effects.

The "Fanfare d'Orgne" was splendidly done and met with great favor.

American Conservatory—The annual public recital by members of Adolf Weidig's composition class will take place at Kimball Hall, Saturday afternoon, April 10, at 3:15. Compositions by Phyllis Fargus, Catherine McFarland, Adelaide Heron, Edith Lobdell, Helen Sears, Gladys Parvis, Marjorie Lane, William Buchbinder, Herbert Hyde, Clara Ruby and Nellie Poorman will be performed.

BALLMANN'S SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The farewell concert of the season was given March 28 before a capacity house, every seat being filled fifteen minutes before the scheduled opening of the concert, and the management was obliged to turn hundreds of people away.

Mr. Ballmann may feel proud of the success he has scored, both artistically and financially.

The program opened with the "Entrance of the Gods into Walhalla," Wagner, followed by the "Love Death and Finale," from "Tristan und Isolde," Wagner, after which Mr. Ballmann was presented with a beautiful floral offering in the shape of a lyre.

Gustave Adolph Hoffmann played the "Concerto in D Minor" for violoncello, by Lalo, with great brilliancy and beauty of tone, winning an enthusiastic encore.

Ferne Gramling, soprano, sang "Elsa's

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield
Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

Dream," from Lohengrin, and "Stille wie die Nacht," Bohm.

The orchestra played three request numbers: (a) "Invitation to the Dance" (Weber), (b) "Grossmutterchen," duet for violins, (Lange), and (c) "Love's Trifle" (Von Blon), all of which were greatly enjoyed, especially the violin duet, which was beautifully played by Mr. Lipschultz and Mr. Tuffino.

Mr. Carl Baier played two zither solos, accompanied by the orchestra, proving himself an expert manipulator of this seldom heard instrument.

Lecta Corder, lyric soprano, made her initial appearance with the orchestra, singing the "Shadow Song" from Meyerbeer's opera, "Dinorah." She has a voice of great range, beautiful quality and always absolutely true to pitch. Her breath control is excellent and her singing of "The Shadow Song" revealed her as a coloratura singer, while "Spring Song" from "Natoma," proved her worth as a dramatic soprano. She was enthusiastically recalled twice and graciously responded with "The Star," by Rogers.

In addition to being one of the leading singers of the city, Miss Corder possesses a personality and stage presence that immediately makes the audience her friends. She is an artist of unusual merit.

Three of Mr. Ballmann's orchestra compositions were played. They are dedicated to the German, Austrian and United States armies. They were played with a swing and dash that assured success, and when the familiar strains of some of the well known melodies were deftly woven into the compositions, they were greeted by tremendous cheers.

Mr. Ballmann showed his sympathy for the fatherland by dedicating the first two marches to General Von Hindenburg and Emperor Josef, but signified his neutrality and love of the United States by being the first composer to recognize and honor the United States army by dedicating to it a composition of such sterling worth.

P. T. V.

CONCERT AT ARMOUR INSTITUTE

The Glee and Mandolin Clubs of Armour Institute of Technology gave their fourteenth annual home concert at the institute on Friday evening, March 26.

William Griswold Smith is the musical director of the Glee Club and the complimentary things which might be truthfully said regarding the organization's singing certainly reflect credit upon its director. It is no small task to hold twenty-five thoroughly awake college boys down to the arduous rehearsals necessary to bring out the finer points of a musical composition. In too many cases they are content with simply memorizing the words and melody.

There was in this instance, however, excellent tone quality, phrasing and shading, good balance of parts and plenty of spirit.

The Mandolin Club, under the efficient direction of C. D. Smith, did some very good work.

The complete program is as follows:

PART ONE

Wake To the Hunting.....	Smart
Glee Club
Egyptian Patrol.....	Stauffer
Mandolin Club
Mammy's LIP Pigeon.....	Fearis
I Dunno.....	Fearis
Glee Club
First Love Waltzes.....
Mandolin Club
Quartet—Can't yo' heah me callin', Caroline?.....	Roma
Come Back to Erin.....	Claribel
Messrs. Smith, LeVally, Mann, Fritze
Waltz Song—"Love's Own Sweet Song" (Sari).....
Kalman
Combined Glee and Mandolin Clubs

PART TWO

The Whip.....	Holzmann
Mandolin Club
A Footlight Fancy.....	Dore
A. N. Dryden and the Glee Club
Violin Solo—Cavatina.....	Raff
F. P. Strauch
Bert Williams Himself
H. G. Ingraham
Mandolin Quartet—University Glee Club March
Messrs. Bolte, Simpson, Dern, Dougherty
The Latest Dances
M. Davison and R. Watt
Grand Opera Up-To-Date.....	Gounod-Flotow-Rossini
Mrs. Tyler.....	Mr. Olson
Mr. Tyler.....	Mr. Anderson
Janitor.....	Mr. Strauch
One Man Band.....	Mr. Byanskas
Neighbors, Servants, etc.....	Glee Club
C. J. B.

Clarke-Wanieck—Edward Clarke and Kurt Wanieck presented several pupils in recital at the American Conservatory of Music Thursday evening, March 25. The program rendered was an interesting one and was not too long as most recitals of the kind are. The piano pupils were Miss Chown, Miss Kerber and Miss Tenold, and the voice pupils were Mrs. Frensdén, Miss Pearl Mayne, Miss Helen Ward and Mr. John Wilson.

JOHN LORING COOK

Saturday evening, March 27, at the Press Club of Chicago, an evening of music was given, under the direction of John Loring Cook.

The Lyric Club, a ladies' chorus, opened the program with a group of songs by Gaul, Thomas, Cadman and Fanning, acquitting themselves with credit. "Mammy's Song" and "Indian Mountain Stream" found them at their best.

Daniel Jones, pianist, played numbers by Mendelssohn and Liszt. Mr. Jones made a good impression and he will be heard again with pleasure. The "Legende" (Liszt) was especially well done.

Edith Langdon Kresin, a pupil of John Loring Cook, has a voice of good quality, and she was heard to good advantage in Salter's "Sky of Roses" and Bond's "Little Pink Rose."

Emelinda Makeel, a pupil of Mr. Cook, sang MacDermid's "Sacrament" and Lohr's "Little Grey Home in the West." Her voice is of good quality and she was heard to good advantage.

Other pupils of Mr. Cook who acquitted themselves with credit were Irene Sage, as "San Luzza," and Luella Smith, as "Lola," in "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Ralph Reiche, violinist, has much talent, and his renditions of numbers by Schubert, Kreisler and Randegger were very enjoyable, as was the "Intermezzo."

The program closed with a performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana," in concert form. The solo parts were taken by Irene Sage, as "San Luzza"; Emelinda Makeel, as "Lucia"; Luella Smith, as "Lola"; Alfred Kanberg, as "Turiddn," and George W. Fraley, as "Alfo."

The solos and duets were well taken as a whole, each doing their best to make everything go smoothly and successfully, and they were rewarded with much applause for their efforts.

The chorus did its share, and sang the parts allotted in a praiseworthy and commendable manner.

Mr. Cook deserves much praise and credit for the very pleasant evening of music that was so successfully carried out under his direction.

Mrs. George Shaw was an able accompanist throughout the evening, and she did her task well. H. W. P.

FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

An organ recital will be given by Palmer Christian on Thursday afternoon, April 8, at 4:30, with the following program:

Sonata, No. 6.....	Guilmant
Allegro con fuoco
Meditation
Fugue
Adagio
Canzone.....	Max Reger
Capriccio.....	Faulkes
Cathedral Prelude and Fugue.....	Bach
Dithyramb (Rhapsodie Hymn).....	Basil Harwood
Prelude.....	Saint-Saens
Intermezzo.....	Bonnet
Spring Song (from the South).....	Lemare
Caprice (The Brook).....	Dethier

Muenstermann—Miss Esther Muenstermann will sing the contralto solos in "Elijah" with the Handel Choral Society in Austin on April 13. On Thursday of this week she appeared at the Bismarck celebration for the benefit of the German Red Cross at the First German Baptist Church.

"GALLIA" AT TRINITY CHURCH

Mr. Irving Hancock's forces were in the finest sort of fettle on last Sunday afternoon and they faced a congregation which nearly filled the beautiful old church. One felt like congratulating Mr. McGann and Mr. Hancock on their joint endeavors, so successfully worked out to restore this center to its former sphere of ministry.

The canticles were by J. C. Marks, effective and useful, with particularly good points in the glorias, and the vigorous singing of the choirs in them whetted their musical appetites for the Gounod music which took the place of offertory and sermon. Blessed be the wise rectors who use the indulgences now granted them and do not feel that they must recite every collect or other incident to lengthen a service.

STUART McCOMBS

The "Gallia" had been well thought out and was presented with many effective touches both in the solos and concerted portions. Notably good was the first plunge into the forte which comes after the preliminary ejaculations. And the pause before the final phrase was a new and interesting experience. Master Stuart McCombs sang the solos excellently with singular purity, and quite a lot of the exalted spirit demanded. Mr. Scott and Mr. Gifford had nice solo bits in the canticles and there was also a short quartet in one of them which went very well.

Mr. Hancock's preliminary recital included the stunning "Finlandia" of Sibelius, something simply gorgeous in its organ setting, after one has familiarized himself with it through the orchestra. Mr. Hancock did it with no end of style and his organ was as beautiful and satisfactory as ever.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

WILFORD MUSIC STUDIO

On Wednesday evening, March 24, the pupils of the Wilford Music Studio in Maywood gave a recital in the K. P. Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Wilford have a splendid following in Maywood, and the quality of the work heard was of a high order and proved beyond doubt that their training has been along excellent lines.

The piano pupils taking part in the program were Gladys Huffman, Edward Beech, Philip Sommer, in a trio by Strcabbog; Sophia Jarmulsky was heard in Sartorio's "Forget-Me-Nots," and Esther Gonder in the "Bagatelle" (Wilson). William Grabsch played the "Minuet" by Lack and Edith Riley Wach's "Reville of the Bathers."

Dorothy Stratton gave two numbers, Godard's "Second Valse" and "Iris," by Pfefferkorn. Florence Glosser played the "Serenade" (Liebling). Everest Johnson played the Seeboeck "Minuet" and Dupont's "Tocattelle." Leona Riley gave as a piano number Nolette's "Elegy" and as her vocal number she sang "Could I" (Tosti). Lucy Body played Bartlett's "Polk de Concert" and Evelyn Williams was heard in the Wieniawski "Valse." Nira Gray sang Hesselberg's "If I Were a Rose."

The pupils may well be proud of their work, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilford have every reason to feel that they have been very successful as their teachers. H. W. P.

GOOD FRIDAY AT TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Gaul's Passion Music will be sung at Trinity Episcopal Church on Good Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Masters Stuart McCombs and Eugene Farrell will do the soprano and mezzo-soprano work, Arthur Scott tenor, and Raymond Gifford baritone.

The service will be played by and under the direction of Irving C. Hancock, organist and choirmaster.

If a good seat is wanted, would advise an early arrival at this service, as hundreds were turned away at the performance of "The Crucifixion" in this church on March 7. The full choir of fifty men and boys will sing.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

Mrs. Striblen, whose studio for voice building is at 625 Fine Arts Building, has also recently established a class at Momenca, and there, two days out of each week, she has a fine list of pupils to take care of.

Mrs. Striblen is at Momenca on Tuesday and Wednesday of each week. In her Chicago studio she is assisted by Marie Louise Yoder and Mrs. Margery Wilcox.

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan, tenor, will sing in Dubois' "Seven Last Words of Christ" at the New First Congregational Church this (Good Friday) evening, and in "The Bohemian Girl" at Fullerton Hall on April 11.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago
Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Primity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144

CHARLES MITHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
Am-ri an Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
Piano INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CON RALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer Conservatory
Violinist WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHARINE D'ORSAY
Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium-Merrick Bldg.-Phone Englewood 9748

MISS LOUDON'S THIRD EVENING OF CHAMBER MUSIC

One must first express the hope that Miss M. Jennette Loudon felt fully repaid in all directions for the series of chamber music evenings which she has provided for our unqualified enjoyment. Musical life goes along in such a whirl that the rare moments when one can sit under the spell and restful charm of the quieter and more intricate music come like benedictory periods. At the same time these works cannot be given with the necessary abandon and spontaneity without endless rehearsals. There are so few musicians who can give this time, that Miss Loudon occupies a unique place in our musical life and earns a real gratitude from the many who have found her out and found lasting pleasure in what she presents.

The final concert took the form of a Sonata evening, in which Miss Loudon had the assistance of Mr. Harry Weisbach, violinist. The program began with Mozart, done deftly, sweetly and sanely, and closed with Beethoven, in unusually happy and swelling mood. Between these was a modern, Weismann by name, German by birth but cosmopolitan by expression. For he belongs to the rank of the melodists, and though he chooses the modern form of utterance he is brimful of a tunefulness that is vibrant with enthusiasm and fairly chokes for speech. Like so many of his kind, he overloads his pictures with more than their structure demands, and exhausts the auditor by the strain he claims when he asks you to follow his impulsive moods. In this sonata there is enough fruitful material for two works, and each would be the gainer by the elucidating process which we have learned to know fixes and enlarges musical ideas. But it was all intensely interesting and Miss Loudon and her comrade played it with eminent satisfaction. The piano part is unusually grateful and could be made angular in many places except in the hands of a skillful musician. Miss Loudon met its requirements in a sterling way and the work made an excellent impression.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

A LECTURE ON VOICE

The lecture given by Dr. A. C. Wipperfurth, the prominent throat specialist, for the pupils and friends of the Huelster School of Music on Tuesday evening, March 23, was not only of exceptional value from an educational standpoint but was also exceedingly interesting musically, as Dr. Wipperfurth is a musician of splendid ability and his piano and vocal numbers were greatly enjoyed.

In his lecture, with the use of specimens of the larynx, he showed the different functions and actions of the principal sets of muscles upon the vocal cords. The doctor also had a phantom larynx and after the lecture a number of those present were able to see vocal cords in the phantom through the use of the laryngoscope.

An interesting statement that the doctor made at the beginning of the lecture was that March 23 is the anniversary of the invention of the laryngoscope, and he gave great credit to Garcia, the vocal teacher who invented it.

POPULAR CONCERT IN EVANSTON

The Sunday evening concerts at the Evanston Hippodrome, under direction of Rachel Bussey Kinsolving, have been popular from the beginning and the seventh, given last Sunday, showed no diminution in popular favor. The theater is pretty and reasonably commodious and all the arrangements are carried out in thoroughly pleasing style.

The audiences, very evidently, are made up of people who are music hungry and who are attracted partly by the very reasonable prices of tickets and, as might easily be predicted, the attention is flattering to the performers and the endorsement is genuinely enthusiastic.

Mr. George Dasch has evolved a fine little orchestra of nine pieces, and if Sunday evening be a just criterion he has proven himself a master builder of programs.

Each instrument of the orchestra is fully able to sustain solo importance on occasion, and the all-together is marked by good style and finish. Mr. Dasch plays first violin and directs at the same time, being adept in both functions. He is a combination of grace and power on the conductor's stand and maintains a serious as well as a serene attitude toward his art always.

On Sunday night the program included opera extracts, vigorous dance rhythms and classic bits in close juxtaposition and dexterous admixture.

Many encores were granted and the program ended with a semi-virtuosic performance of the second "Rhapsody" of Liszt.

The soloist was Signor Raoul S. Bonanno, baritone, further programmed as the Duke of Misilmieri.

He is a gentleman of distinguished mien and manners and pleased the audience very much by his evidently sincere desire to win favor. His voice is full and flexible and his musicianship undoubtedly good. He sang the "Prologue" from "I Pagliacci," an aria from "Don Giovanni," Homer's "Requiem," the "Invictus" (Huhn), "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling Me" (Tate) and two encores. He was more successful in the Homer and Tate songs than in the "Prologue" and aria—probably because the accompaniments were beyond the abilities of the pianist and were not well played.

The Tate song is as good as "I Hear You Calling Me" and is done so well by Signor Bonanno that it should prove a great favorite in his concerts.

THE STEIN CONSERVATORY

Ruth Hellene Dahly, who has been specializing in the study of voice with Karl Buren Stein for a number of years, has an enviable reputation as a contralto soloist and concert singer. Last year she began work with Mrs. Stein and has been equally successful as a dramatic reader, filling numerous engagements in Chicago and vicinity. She gave a program of readings before the North Shore Woman's Club this week. She will be a member of the Artists' Trio of chautauqua entertainers on the Red-path Vawter circuit this summer, appearing both as soloist and reader.

Read—The music at Graham Memorial Chapel in St. Louis on last Sunday evening was devoted entirely to the compositions of Edward M. Read.

LUDWIG BECKER'S PUPILS IN
RECITAL

No finer violinist ever drew bow as resident artist in Chicago and no one has been, or is, a more finished and artistic musician than Ludwig Becker.

It might reasonably be supposed, therefore, that his pupils would measure up to a very high standard.

Such indeed is the case, and the concert of last Friday evening at Assembly Hall in the Fine Arts Building, given by his pupils in the Columbia School of Music, was distinctly that of a group of young artists.

Other engagements prevented the hearing of the entire program, but as the three who were heard may fairly be taken as typical of all, it was proved conclusively that the concert was an exceptionally fine one.

The three heard were Joseph Morones, a young Mexican; Norman Saxby, a youth from Austin, and Catherine Norfleet, the young violinist who played so well at the Blackstone Theater last Sunday.

Mr. Morones played the "Concert Roman-tique," by Godard; Mr. Saxby was heard in a movement from the Bruch "Concerto" and the "Thirteenth Caprice," by Paganini-Kreisler, while Miss Norfleet appeared as a substitute and her numbers were not announced.

All three of these young artists played with great poise, excellent tonal values and with such show of musicianship as to prove that their training has been along the most careful and the most scientific lines.

Other violinists scheduled for performance during the evening were Soli Nem-kowsky, Ernest Wiley and Malvina Neilson.

The assisting soloist was Miss Lillian Price, soprano, who sang Brahms, Sinding and Wolf for her first appearance and for the close gave a group of songs by the Americans. Walter Kramer, John Alden Carpenter, Lulu Jones Downing and Benjamin Whelpley.

C. E. W.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

Mrs. Hamilton presents her pupil Bessie Odel Denicke in the following program at her studio, 5057 Winthrop avenue, on Sunday afternoon, April 4, at 4:

Summer Time Ward-Stevens
Ich Liebe Dich Grieg
Widmung Schumann
Villanelle Del 'Acqua
The Captive Lark Ronald Shadow March Del Reigo
A Wind on the Wheat Montague Phillips
The Garden Wakes Montague Phillips

The following numbers by Mrs. Hamilton:
Air from Atalanta Handel
Matinata Leoncavallo
Thought Fancies Hebert Dale Jones
(By request)

April Irma Taylor Wilson
Love and Peace Claire Guedy
The White Blossoms off the Bog Fay Foster
The Rose Leans over the Pool Chadwick
Night and Dawn Frank Fairfield
Grace Keesler at the piano

###

Bingham—On Sunday, March 7, Mr. J. C. Sellmer, tenor soloist of the St. Stephens Church, Milwaukee, sang Helma Bingham's "Remember Now Thy Creator," the accompaniment being furnished by Mrs. Bertha Sampson Barber, director of the choir and organist. The solo received many compliments.

RECKZEH PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mr. Karl Reckzeh presented a group of his pupils in recital on Wednesday, March 24. He is unusually fortunate in the material falling under his hands. Nearly every pupil gave indications of a real interest in the work they were undertaking and several were the evident possessors of marked talent. I liked particularly the quiet confidence with which each player approached the task. There was a nice concentration of purpose, which gave meaning to what was done. And an especial compliment must be paid to the training which resulted in almost unflinching memory. Seldom is a pupils' recital heard where there was such sureness and freedom from the mishaps that come to young players from lapse of memory. The following young people gave a varied and interesting program, in a manner that was at all times enjoyable: Irvin Antes, Edith Deutsch, Mamie Thilo, Frances Fernschild, Hazel Nudelman, Eitel Brosseit, Margaret Wilson, Edith Randolph, Ebba Meissner and Julia Kryll.

The music used was of fine grade, running from Seeboeck's "Menuett L'Antico" to the bristling difficulties of the Liszt "Rigoletto." As a supplementary number, Mr. Adolph Brune joined with Mr. Reckzeh in the performance of Mr. Brune's "C Minor Concerto," done with remarkable fervor and vigor and calling for many moments of technical dexterity, as well as power and interpretative qualifications of a large sort.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

###

MRS. ARENDT AND MISS PIERIK AT
THURBER HALL

Miss Marie Pierik, pianist, and Mrs. Else Harthan Arendt, soprano, gave a program at Thurber Hall on Wednesday evening that was enjoyed by a goodly audience.

Miss Pierik played numbers by Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Grieg, Cyril Scott, Debussy, Liszt, Scriabine, Schutt and Harriet Ware. Unfortunately this writer was able to be present only a few moments and, still more unfortunately, those moments were occupied in playing the Ware "Song of the Sea," an opinion of which is expressed elsewhere in Music News and the playing of which warrants no further comment.

Mrs. Arendt was heard in a single group of songs and this was not only a splendidly chosen and contrasted group but it was also superbly sung and it had the further advantage of most beautiful and intelligent piano accompaniment from Miss Tina Mae Haines.

"The Convalescent's Song of Hope," by Wolf, opened the group and proved most ingratiating, though it is a song which could be done by no one but a consummate artist. Brahms' "Quiet Woods" also proved Mrs. Arendt a fine singer, one who can sense the meaning of even the most introspective of songs. Mrs. Beach's "The Year's at the Spring" was given so remarkably well, with such a flow of voluble gaiety and infectious charm, that the audience demanded its repetition.

C. E. W.

###

Platz—Arthur Platz, tenor, will be heard in recital in Central Music Hall the evening of April 27, under the concert direction of Harriet Martin Snow.

P
K
A
N
K
W

Van Dusen

PIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6403Mary
Hinman STEELETEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chic o

Harriet Case

SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSIC

Clarence Eidam

Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott CHICAGO
Fifth Floor McClurg Building

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 553 Highland Avenue

Gaylo
YOS

American Violinist

Add:
JIANC LIS
JSSRV ORV

Marie Sidenius Zandt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel

MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

STURKOW-RYDER

Soloist with the

NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

RUSSIAN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

WOODLAWN PARK M. E. CHURCH

Dubois' sacred cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Christ," was sung on last Sunday evening at Woodlawn Park Methodist Episcopal Church by the choir of thirty voices, assisted by Miss Zillah Barnett, soprano, and Mr. Elton Calkins, tenor. Mr. Charles E. Lutton, who has charge of the music at this church, sang the baritone solo parts, in addition to his work in directing the production. Mrs. J. P. Crane presided at the organ.

Mr. Lutton has not been the director of this choir very long, but long enough it seems to have gained remarkably good control of his singers. There is cleanness and intensity in their work that is refreshing. The parts are very well balanced for a volunteer choir, the attacks prompt, and the general body of tone excellent. Their enunciation is what it should be also.

This Dubois composition demands a great deal of careful pianissimo singing from the chorus, and in that respect Mr. Lutton's choir did some work that was exceptionally good. Their accompaniments to the solo voices were subdued and yet well sustained.

Miss Barnett sang the soprano solo parts with fine effect. She has a voice of good quality, range and power, and one gets the impression that she is a thorough and conscientious musician.

The tenor soloist of the evening, Mr. Calkins, has not been heard a great many times publicly hereabouts, but with a voice of such excellent quality he should soon make a place for himself in the local musical field. He sang with intelligence and poise, interpreting the music and text to splendid advantage.

Notwithstanding the double burden laid upon Mr. Lutton, he acquitted himself in every way creditable. His directing is authoritative and vigorous. His singing is musically. His voice is one of great richness and he uses it in a manner at once skillful and convincing.

Probably the best effects of the evening were gained in the duet for tenor and baritone, with chorus, "Verily Thou Shalt Be in Paradise, Today with Me," soloists, chorus and organist working together with absolute understanding.

Mrs. Crane is evidently an able organist, but the very bad arrangement with reference to the choir loft and the organ makes an ideal blending of chorus and instrument practically impossible. The organ tones reach the audience entirely separate from the singing of the choir.

It is to be hoped that something can and will be done to remedy this unfortunate condition, for it is certainly due the excellent musical forces of this church that they be given the most favorable conditions possible under which to work. C. J. B.

Artist Trio—The Chicago Artist Trio, Mr. Lester Alden, reader; Mrs. Ora Padgett Langer, contralto, and Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist, will give the program at the Rogers Park Woman's Club next Tuesday, April 6, at 2 o'clock.

BALATKA ACADEMY OF MUSICAL ART

The following program will be given at Auditorium Recital Hall, Wednesday evening, April 7:

Vocal—Greetings to Spring.....Strauss
Eleanor Capps Hostler, Jean Wilson, William Griswold Smith, Max Bing

Piano—
Prelude from First Modern Suite.....McDowell
Nadia Wachs
Sonata (first movement).....Grieg
Carl J. S. Weiss

Whistling Solos—
The Bobolink Bischoff
A Garden Dance.....Vargas
Helen Hazen Morgan

Vocal—
The Lord Is My Light.....Marsch
Aria—My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice (from Samson and Delilah).....Saint-Saens
Ella Bachmann

Cello—
Andante Religioso Goltermann
Tarantella, G major.....Popper
Heinrich Lippel

Vocal—Dio Posente (Faust).....Gounod
Max Bing

Piano—Concerto No. 3.....Litoff
Andante
Allegro
Vivace

Anna H. Balatka
String accompaniment arranged by Albert Green

Vocal—
April Morn Batten
Were My Song with Wings Provided.....Hahn
Ave Maria Mascheroni

Eleanor Capps Hostler
Violin obligato, Lanise Harber; harp, Edna Wheeler; organ, Carl Weiss

Cornet Solo—Song of the Nightingale from Tyrolean Zeller
Albert Cook

Harp Solo—
Gitana Hasselmann
Piccola Fantasia Salvi
Edna Anna Wheeler

Vocal—
Lungi dal Caro Bene.....Secchi
Lockruf Ruckaus
Sing to Me, Sing.....Homer
Jean Wilson

Recitation—A Pleasant Half Hour at the Beach
Anna Parker Saylor

Vocal—
A Lovely Maiden.....Branscomb
Ihr Bild Hans Balatka
Ah, Moon of My Delight (Persian Garden).....Lehmann
William Griswold Smith

Piano—
Spinning Song Liszt
Tarantella Moszkowski

Hannah Matteson
Vocal—Quartet from Rigoletto.....Verdi
Eleanore Capps Hostler, Jean Wilson, William Griswold Smith, Max Bing Anna Schneider and Carl Weiss, accompanists

— # # # —

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON

Robert Louis Barron, violinist, played on March 30 with Helen Tenney, pianist, in a recital at the Y. W. C. A.

He has been engaged for recitals with Clayton Lunham, tenor, and Catherine Reed Martin, pianist, as follows:

April 6—Lake Forest, Ill.

April 10—Deerfield, Ill.

April 16—Racine, Wis.

April—Libertyville, Ill.

Other dates are pending.

The program to be given in Racine includes, for Mr. Barron, the "D Minor Concerto" (Vieuxtemps) and a group of smaller works.

— # # # —

Mendelssohn Club—The Chicago Mendelssohn Club will give a concert on Sunday afternoon, April 4 at the Chicago Athletic Association, 12 South Michigan avenue.

AT THE MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

Having concluded a very successful series of pupils' recitals at Hamilton Park, extending throughout the winter, Mr. Thomas MacBurney has resumed the concerts at the Fine Arts Building and, according to announcements already made, these will continue throughout the spring and summer on Monday evenings.

ELSA FERN MAC BURNEY

On last Monday evening the program was given by Elsa Fern MacBurney, soprano, and Lon P. Payne, tenor, with John Doane at the piano.

Each soloist appeared in an aria and Mrs. MacBurney in a group of songs and together they gave a list of duets that was a constant delight and a musical joy.

Nicolaï's old-time "Adieu" was revived beautifully, a German folk song proved as charming as it was naive, Foote's "Were All the World Like You" was fine fare, and two songs by Lochr were as good as could be desired, "When Day Is Done," the better known of the two, creating a genuine sensation.

But more delightful than all these, probably because of their uniqueness and spontaneous musical impulse, was a group of duets by Hildach, the only one at all familiar being the "Passage Bird's Farewell," beloved by all singers who essay ensembles.

Both Mrs. MacBurney and Mr. Payne have fine voices, under splendid control, and reinforced with unusual interpretative intelligence, and the duet feature was therefore, as a matter of course, an unalloyed delight.

Mrs. MacBurney, in an aria from "Joan of Arc" (Bemberg), rose to a fine dramatic height, sustaining also excellent musical values. In her shorter songs she was delightful also, the "Rose Rhyme" of Mrs. Salter being especially in line with her musical gifts and her apt feeling for dainty text.

Mr. Payne showed great advance and much of the proper musical feeling for the wonderful "Onaway, Awake Beloved," by Coleridge-Taylor, an aria which taxes all the powers of any artist, but which he accomplished with thorough credit to himself.

The make-up of the entire program, which was printed in Music News last week, was exceptionally expert.

Mr. Doane provided support at the piano which was powerful, facile and buoyant by turns, just as the music and the texts demanded. Thoroughly fine was his work from every musical and interpretative standpoint. C. E. W.

— # # # —

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, sang at Evanston Sunday morning, at La Grange, in Gounod's "Gallia," in the afternoon, and at Berwyn, in "These Are They," from Gaul's "Holy City," in the evening. She will sing on Easter at the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church. During the following week she will sing at a concert and at a musicale in Atlantic, Ia., and at Ames, Ia.

— # # # —

MacBurney Studios—The next recital, to be given on Monday evening, April 5, will enlist the services of Zillah Burnett, soprano, and Clifford W. Johnston, tenor.

NELLIE DAMUTH MAC DONALD

Tuesday evening, March 23, Nellie Damuth MacDonald, soprano, assisted by Blanch Ray, reader, A. P. Selby, cornetist, and Edna L. Whitmore, accompanist, presented a program of American songs at the Fowler Methodist Church. Mrs. MacDonald's voice is a lyric soprano of good quality and excellent range. Her first group of MacDowell songs were sung in a very intelligent manner. "A Maid Sings Light" and "Lullaby" were especially effective.

Her second group, including numbers by Protheroe, Woodman, Bond and Cadman, were given very attractive interpretations.

"Idle Dreams" (Jordan), "Gypsy Maiden" (Parker), "Come to the Garden, Love" (Salter), "At Parting" (Rogers), "Love Me if I Live" (Foote), completed a very representative list of songs. Mrs. MacDonald gave them with a fine understanding of their musical values, and she deserves the highest praise and commendation for the excellent presentations she gave the varied list of songs.

Mr. Selby pleased with his solos and Miss Ray displayed much talent in her musical readings.

Miss Edna Whitmore furnished sympathetic and artistic accompaniments that added much to the pleasure of the program.

— # # # —

Weber-Larkin—Miss Henriette Weber and Miss Ann Irene Larkin will give their recital of melodramas before the Amateur Musical Club of Peoria, Illinois, April 2, 1915.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

CLARA BAUR, Foundress, 48th Year

Conducted according to the advanced methods of the most progressive European Conservatories.

A Faculty of International Reputation

Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

LITERATURE
EXPRESSIONMUSIC
LANGUAGE
DRAMATIC ART

Special Features:—Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates.

STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME

FOR CATALOGUE

Address MISS BERTHA BAUR, Directress,
HIGHLAND AVENUE AND OAK STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
26th Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Year Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

TO THE TRADE AND PROFESSION:

We are the sole Publishers of ISABEL STEWART-NORTH'S music.
All orders promptly filled.

The NORTH PUBLISHING COMPANY

Bradford, Pa.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

FOR SALE—Mason & Hamlin Grand Piano, Style BB. In splendid condition. An excellent bargain. Henriette Weber, 1900 Lincoln Avenue. Phone Diversey 3185.

WANTED—Studio time immediately. Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 regularly. Address C, Music News

TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of MUSIC Modern Expression Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address

PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
212 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
612 Fine Arts Building Phone Garfield 5007

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

The Elderly Person

Said the Organist:

"What's the matter with you, my antique retainer? We have learned to regard you as one of the earliest signs of spring and have even hesitated to cast aside our mufflers until your grave and serious utterance portended the time for the singing of birds to be at hand. When that first robin put in his expected appearance, according to schedule, at Mont Clare I figured that we would hear from you. Later on the simultaneous arrival of several robins in Oak Park should have stirred you to some sort of expression. Those few days of sunshine did wonders for the grassy slopes in the park and the bright green blades peeped out and caught the hoar frost which made them glisten in the early morning, even if they paid the penalty of blackened edges when day was further advanced. Not a bit discouraged, however, the grass believes in itself, and goes ahead and does its duty like those armies in Europe. Although one phalanx is destroyed, a new battalion stands right underneath and fills up the places of those who did what was asked of them, even to the death. Although the park spaces have had such episodes as cold rains, snow, biting winds and frosts that gripped and pinched and then left a brown singe on the fresh green, all through this lion-like March there has been no hesitation. The grass has flaunted itself and assured the most skeptical that it was time to beautify the earth with the only color one never tires of. Did you ever stop to think how trying any other color than green would be for the prevailing landscape? We grow tired of everything else, but the green herbage is always restful.

"Right along with the persistent green have been patches, again and again, of blue sky that suggested those July days when the white fleets of the fleecy clouds drift and sail on and on, endlessly peaceful. The sun is way up in the heavens at noon day, and I've been watching myself leaving my office in more and more daylight, until now I can walk my two-mile stunt in full daylight. The birds who migrate have not made themselves heard in my park, but the sparrows have discarded their rough winter coats. When the cold is severe they keep about, chirping restlessly, but they don't heed ruffled feathers amid the rough order of things. But now that the sun shines out, they peek up sturdily and are sleek as such sparrows should be. They are quite busy where the park workmen are digging about the beds. They find the turned over soil something fresher than the sidewalks. They looked askance when the men began to snip and clip at the bushes and trees. But finding that the men were not scared off by such incidents as inclement weather, they accepted the actions as fair assurance that the spring was near at hand and have been busy ever since overlooking all the preliminary detail which gardeners get out of the way before the serious work begins. I've watched the men pruning and trimming and shaping the things that had stood the winter, as well as rooting out the weaker ones which had succumbed. An unpracticed eye could not tell which from the other, but I notice a sort of busy congratulation among those shrubs which have been left, a sort of snuggling together of the clipped heads and passing of the word along that they are now in good shape for what is before them and must be ready to dash off as soon as the signal is given to send out buds and bloom. The bushes which have not been trimmed are a sort of brown mass, as if they held in their hidden core a precious kernel of life that they would let loose when the time was ripe. As a species of guardian for these furzy clumps stand the writhing shapes of those sumach shrubs which are never permitted to grow far upward, but send out long many-pronged limbs. They always make me think of a herd of antlered reindeer, alertly watching for something to startle them into a run. Underneath them is the undisturbed mulch which keeps the roots far away from frost. I expect every day to see the men pull this mulch away and begin to use the pronged forks that they turn over and crumble the earth with. But the head gardner evidently has some safety first rule which governs the removal of all protection. A belated blizzard along in April can do no end of damage. But I know that under certain coverings of mulch there is activity. At a sacred place where a spot of earth is overlaid with thick branches of evergreen, I pulled these apart, a few days ago, and down underneath were the moist, pale green leaves of the sheltered pansy plants and they looked up at me so cheerfully and sweetly, as if to say there was abounding life under all the covering thereabout, and in that life all sorts of glorious bloom and fruition when our eyes were ready to see it.

"When I leave the park thus vibrantly waiting, I come across your friends, the lilac bushes, but they were caught so cruelly last fall when some sort of false information led them to believe there would be no real winter, that they are buttoned up tight and fast. Not so the old-fashioned 'flags,' which flourish in neglected quarters that were once good neighborhoods. I like to call them flags, although it is more proper to call them iris. They are popping their sharp spears up fearlessly. Plenty of the heads have been nipped and blackened, but the powers below do not admit of any setback. Strong and invigorating sap is sent up from the bulbs that seem to know that they can be exterminated but not killed. Next to the lilacs these flags seem to carry their own vitality with them and not to care very much what the earth supplies. Though they have none of the fragility of the air plants, they really seem to thrive on air and light. . . . Although maple sugar is in the shop windows, there is no free running of sap in the trees. But an occasional tree with a fresh bruise upon it has been shedding little trickles of moisture down its sides, and by that token I know that the roots are impatient to be relieved of their garnered store which they have spent the winter in harboring and increasing. There are no willows in these city walks, but I have a hunch of pussies that came to me from the way-off Pacific. That's a new and blessed mission of the parcels post, for the catkins came as sung and warm and sleek as if I had gotten them from the shores of my lake, where I feel sure they are peeping out now to see if the ice-locked water is yet freed. Do you remember that song of Jean Ingelow's that Gabriel set to music along in the despised Victorian period, where she sings of the dawn in the far far north, where a scarlet sun doth rise? I always think of that when I look at my lake, fast held in the arms of her winter lover.

"When I get down town I see the flower shops advertising seeds and bulbs and the mail comes laden with catalogs to entice and enthuse. Even Ringling Brothers have their posters up—but in the face of these overwhelming signs there has been no word from thee. Like 'Kathleen Mavourneen,' I have to ask you 'Why art thou silent, thou voice of my heart?'"

"Why, I've been waiting to have you tell me all about it," replied the Elderly Person, happily. "You've done it first rate, and I'm very much pleased at your progress. If I had said my usual say, you would not have taken the notes you have."

One thing, however, you could not think of and so note, since it peculiarly belongs to those who have had some spans of life. But it is noticeable how the columns of the papers which tell of the passing on of men and women are crowded with the names of old people. Nearly always the early spring time is their period of going to their long home. They are house bound for much of the winter, feel its severity keenly and are easily affected by the changes of temperature. These little illnesses which count as incidents in the life of a young, vigorous person draw on the vitality of the elders, and almost any indisposition, trifling in itself, finds the weak spot contained in every system and fastens itself firmly and what we call fatally upon the veteran. In many, many cases they shut their eyes to this world just when it is ready to burst into its most beautiful period. I wondered at this for a long time. The autumn, with the death of all the growing things, seems the fitting time for fully lived lives to give up their hold. But I know now that we should not so interpret it. Easter and its message of resurrection and new and abounding life comes in the spring. And these well matured lives, full to the brim with the sap and strength of faith and experience, are ripe for something better, and the spring is the time for them to cast off their earthly shell and began to grow in a larger sphere. I love to think of the old Handel praying that he might pass away on Good Friday so that he might awaken on Easter in more glorious likeness amid the sweet fields beyond the swelling floods. We haven't any way of knowing what these are like nor where they are, but I have a fancy, my lad, that your enjoyment of the coming of the spring here will help you enjoy to the fullest the dawn of the golden glowing morning of the endless years when you shall be ready for it and them. I quite like the long life here and the preacher's thought about old people walking for a long time after God, like Enoch. Suddenly they see that He is walking a little slower to let them take a few faster steps and catch up—and then they are walking with God and it is always Easter with them.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

DEATH OF MILTON B. GRIFFITH

Chicago musicians were shocked on Wednesday of last week to learn of the death of Milton B. Griffith of South Bend, which occurred, suddenly, on the morning of that day, for, although South Bend was Mr. Griffith's home, he was almost equally well known in this city, as he has taught and been choir director here often.

He was also very well known in Duluth and in St. Louis, in both of which cities he has lived and taught.

For ten years he has been the director of the South Bend Conservatory of Music and director of music in various churches in the Indiana city, besides which he has been an impressario on a very large scale and has presented countless artists in concert and recital and for a number of years has managed a very important May festival. Mrs. Griffith, who is a sister of Frank Webster of Chicago, and her two little daughters have the sympathy of all who knew Mr. Griffith.

George—The Chicago Piano College presented Louis Linker, a little pupil of Miss Louise George, in piano recital last Saturday afternoon at Kimball Hall. He played "Loure" (Bach), "Two Etudes" (Heller), "April" and "Humoresque" (Tschaiowsky), and "Valcik," by Mokrejs.

ROY DAVID BROWN

Following is a letter given by the late Emil Liebling to his pupil, Roy David Brown:

Roy David Brown has studied music and the art of piano-playing under my direction and has also taken my special teachers' course with excellent results. He is a pianist of artistic merit, and I take pleasure in giving him my cordial endorsement, as he is fully qualified to advance piano students to a high degree of proficiency according to the best modern methods of instruction. Mr. Brown has assisted me with my own pupils and I am confident that his work as a concert pianist and teacher will be highly appreciated and successful wherever he locates.

I think highly of him as a musician as well as a thorough gentleman.

(Signed) EMIL LIEBLING.

Some press comment on Mr. Brown's work reads as follows:

The recital given in College Hall by Roy David Brown of Chicago was one of the richest treats ever enjoyed by the music lovers of Lexington. The program was a difficult one and each number was well given and heartily applauded. Mr. Brown shows rare talent as a musician and his execution on the piano promises to give him rank with performers who have won renown. Being scheduled to appear at the University of Jackson the following evening, he could spend but one day here, much to the regret of the many who desired the recital repeated.—Lexington (Tenn.) Progress.

Roy David Brown is a former Jacksonian and needs no introduction to a Jackson audience. His proficiency in music and brilliant execution on the piano were well known here before he left for Chicago to continue his studies under Emil Liebling, the distinguished pianist.—Jackson (Tenn.) Sun.

Roy David Brown, the gifted Chicago pianist, is a musician of the first order, who has a great future before him.—Sioux City (Ia.) Courier.—(Advertisement.)

The Brewer Teachers' Agency The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department
SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director. She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans
AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director Phone Austin 4043
STUDIOS 530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto—Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Haze Hunt
Director—Accompanist TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

People & Events

MRS. GROFF-BRYANT ALWAYS ACCOMPLISHES THAT WHICH SHE SETS OUT TO DO

It has become a matter of course that every little while Anna Groff-Bryant undertakes the things to do which have never been undertaken by anyone else, either of the present or the past time. It is nearly twenty-five years ago since she took her first step outside of the beaten path and struck out on a new field of research work with "vocal material" never suspected of containing any possibilities. Material such as abnormal voices, absolutely "worthless" and "hopelessly unmusical voices," and defective, limited and deceased conditions.

For years Mrs. Groff-Bryant divided her time between "experimental and research work," and practical teaching, the former work being commonly confused with practical teaching, evoking much criticism and misunderstanding down to the present day.

The first startling event after the ten years of experimental work was the founding of a vocal institute with a collegiate course for singers and a normal course for teachers. When the first institute booklet was issued, at the time of the opening of the Vocal Institute, in 1903-04, a prominent vocal teacher remarked to Mrs. Groff-Bryant, "What are you trying to do to us with your collegiate courses for singers and teachers. You will surely drive us all out of the business."

The farsightedness of Mrs. Groff-Bryant in establishing a collegiate course for singers and vocal teachers is now proving true ten years later. Standardization of vocal education is the problem of the hour.

The enlargement over the original course in 1903-04 grew with each year, until all possibility of continuing such a course in a private institution without a college equipment became impossible. A remarkable opportunity presented itself, and the call came from Lombard College of Galesburg, Ill. Mrs. Groff-Bryant again startled her friends and the musical profession by moving her vocal art institute to Lombard College and into a new unique vocal art studio personally designed by her and erected by Lombard College for Mrs. Groff-Bryant's exclusive use. The distinguished guests, David Bispham and Jane Osborn-Hannah, when they visited the studio this winter exclaimed, "How charmingly artistic and unique." Lombard College allows Mrs. Groff-Bryant three years to accomplish what she has already exceeded in less than half the time.

The extraordinary feat accomplished the past season by Mrs. Groff-Bryant was the bringing of six of the world's most famous artists, in a series of six monthly recitals, including Alma Gluck, David Bispham, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Jane Osborn-Hannah, John McCormack, and the sixth artist to appear is Clarence Whitehill, who will give his recital Thursday evening, April 8. His recital will close the first season of the World-famous Artists Recitals in the city of Galesburg. John McCormack stated to a Republican-Register representative: "Mrs. Groff-Bryant has put Galesburg on the musical map, and Galesburg should erect a monument to her, and I would be willing to contribute to the fund."

LIELA BREED STUDIO

Saturday afternoon Miss Breed presented five of her voice pupils in recital.

Miss Breed has some splendid voices in her studio, and judging from the work heard, it is safe to say she is a very serious teacher and her studio should be heard from often.

Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, has a splendid voice of good quality, and she uses it in a very intelligent manner. She gave a delightful rendition of an Irish song by Harty, and the Grieg number was sung very artistically.

Ronald Adams has a fine bass voice and he gave a good account of himself in num-

"Did beautiful work."—Chicago Tribune.

Grant Kimbell TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

730 Fine Arts Building
309 E. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

"Sang tenor aria well."
—Chicago Evening Post.

bers by Handel and Homer.

Mary L. Hesselgren's splendid soprano was heard to a fine advantage in "L'amo d'amor dolcissimo," Salaman. Later Miss Hesselgren gave numbers by Bemberg and Bononcini in a manner that merited much praise.

Patti Lindner, soprano, sang the "Wind Song" and "Autumn," Rogers, "Flower Fetters," Willeby, and Elizabeth Anderson, soprano, gave Cherubini's "Ave Maria," "Lockruf," Ruckauf; "Mermaid's Song," Haydn; "To a Messenger," LaForge. Both singers have good voices, and judging from all reports they acquitted themselves with credit. Miss Lonise Lindner was the able accompanist.

Butler—Mrs. Hanna Butler will be soloist for the Drama Circle Luncheon at the La Salle Hotel on April 8, and for the New England Club luncheon at the Blackstone on the tenth. She will give a French program for the Mary Wood Chase School at the Caxton Club on the 17th.

Pettinger—Florence Pettinger, soprano, will be the special soloist at St. Mary's (Paulist Fathers) Church on Easter Sunday, at the 9 o'clock service.

Benedict—Mrs. Ethel Geistweit Benedict will sing in Stainer's "Crucifixion" at the Second Congregational Church this (Good Friday) evening.

SUMMER SCHOOL OF SINGING IN NEW YORK

Mr. Yeatman Griffith, who has had such pronounced success in New York since his return from Europe, has announced that he will hold a Summer School of Music in that city and that he has already bookings of pupils from all parts of the country.

Mr. Griffith has to his credit some of the most successful young singers of the country. Mr. Hardy Williamson, who was a member of the Century Opera Company both in New York and Chicago, and who is now a pupil of Mr. Griffith, has just been engaged as soloist for the St. Nicholas Collegiate Church in New York, this being one of the finest positions in the city.

HARDY WILLIAMSON

A HOME MUSICALE

Frank W. Van Dusen presented Idorna Newmark, Marmaduke Ade Larson and Grant Nolan, three artist pupils, in a musicale at his residence, 6205 Langley avenue, on Friday evening, March 26. Miss Florence Hedstrum, soprano, assisted with a group of songs, "On the Sea," "The Lark in Its Nest" and "One Heart's Enough for Me," with the composer, Mr. Larson, at the piano, and chose for another group "Vissi D'Arte," from "Tosca" (Puccini), "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal" (Quilter), and "An Open Secret" (Woodman), with Mr. Van Dusen as accompanist.

Miss Newmark played "Sonata, Op. 31, No. 2" (Beethoven), "Eleventh Rhapsodie" (Liszt), "Caprice Espagnole" (Moszkowski) and "Inspirations and Etude de Concert" (MacDowell). Mr. Nolan played "Rondo Capriccioso" (Mendelssohn) and "Two Etudes" (Chopin).

The musicale was a successful and pleasant occasion, and among the guests was Mme. Ragna Linne, who made the evening one of special delight by singing a group of Norwegian songs with Mrs. O. B. Meyer as accompanist.

Good Friday—This (Friday) evening, the Choral Society of the First Presbyterian Church will present Stainer's "Crucifixion" with Francis Moore as director, and Edgar Nelson at the organ.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

STECKELBERG ORCHESTRA, LINCOLN, NEB.

CARL FREDERIC STECKELBERG AS ORCHESTRAL CONDUCTOR

An excellent representation of Lincoln music lovers were charmed and enthused by the offerings of the Steckelberg Orchestra, in its concert in the Temple Theater, Monday evening, March 15. To say that the work of this organization, consisting mainly of students of the University School of Music, was a revelation is putting it fairly and justly. Mr. Steckelberg has had considerable experience in leading student orchestras and for a number of years he directed the Temple Orchestra. It is well known what difficulties confront the routined conductor of a well-organized orchestra of professionals. Infinitely more difficult and perplexing is it to attain artistic results with amateurs. Mr. Steckelberg's artistry being well known throughout the middle west, it is not surprising that he succeeded eminently on this occasion in impressing his intentions upon his charges. The following program, in itself, was sufficiently pretentious to enable the music lover to expect more than ordinary results:

New World Symphony.....Dvorak
 Adagio—Allegro molto
 Largo
 Scherzo
 Allegro con fuoco
 Overture to Marriage of Figaro.....Mozart
 Blue Danube Waltz.....Strauss
 Prelude and Siciliana from Cavalleria Rusticana...Mascagni
 Marche Slave.....Tschaikowsky

Commenting upon this noteworthy event, the Lincoln Daily Star said, in part, as follows:

The numbers were admirably arranged and held the interest of the audience throughout. If anyone went to criticize, they turned their comments into praise, for no one seemed to be disappointed. On the other hand, there was genuine surprise at the beauty and artistic finish of the performance. In fact, the praise mounted into high realms of enthusiasm, and the people for the first time seemed to realize the great amount of work Mr. Steckelberg has been doing. The result of his labors surpassed anticipation. At the close of the program he was showered with praise, but with extreme modesty divided honors with the faithful musicians who have worked under his direction to carry out his ambition to give the people of Lincoln a concert of such artistic merit that they would not be disappointed. Applause greeted the players throughout the evening. The splendid work done in the Dvorak "Symphony" was not lessened at any time, but each player worked with sincerity and earnestness during each number. Director Steckelberg had his players under perfect control at all times. He added to his honors already won as conductor, and at the same time demonstrated his ability to build a worthy program, which reflects the highest musicianship.

The Nebraska State Journal said, in part, as follows:

What Mr. Steckelberg succeeded in doing with his players of all grades of ability was to so imbue them with the spirit of their program so well that musical people heard it with enjoyment and felt that it had given them inspiration and refreshment. They could hardly praise Mr. Steckelberg enough for the patience and skill he had employed in producing such results.

The chief work on the program was the famous "New World, Symphony," Dvorak's No. 5, in E minor, a strong test of the ability of the orchestra and the conductor. It was made both interesting and satisfying. The audience followed it closely and broke into spontaneous applause after every movement.

After doing so well with the symphony, the performers had a clear road before them in giving Mozart's overture to "Marriage of Figaro"; the Strauss "Blue Danube Waltz," which is not easy to perform, even if it is familiar; Mascagni's "Prelude and Siciliana," from "Cavalleria Rusticana," and finally Tschaikowsky's huge and barbaric "Marche Slave." Mr. Steckelberg, who conducted with sureness and self-possession all the way through, was repeatedly called out, but granted no encores. He was warmly complimented by his admirers on the quality of the performance and the evidence of sound musicianship in his department. (Advertisement.)

Swanson-Ver Haar—Edna Swanson-Ver Haar, contralto, will sing the "Messiah" with the choir of the Third Presbyterian Church Sunday evening, April 4.

Dale—Monday evening, April 5, William Dale, baritone, will appear on a program given at Bessemer Park. Mr. Dale is a pupil of E. N. Kuss.

MARGUERITE MANIERRE BROWN

Mrs. Brown, a pupil of Mrs. Stacey Williams, appeared in concert at Rockford last week with much success, as the following notices from the local press will indicate:

Mrs. Brown opened the program with a beautiful group of songs, two Schubert numbers and "Night, and the Curtain Drawn," of Ferrata, showing to advantage her beautiful voice, its rich and sympathetic quality. Other songs were equally as beautifully interpreted and gave distinct pleasure.—Rockford Press.

Mrs. Brown opened the program with two Schubert inspirations, "Hark, Hark, the Lark" and "Faith in Spring," which were filled with the season's message. In the other number of the first group, her interpretation of Ferrata's "Night, and the Curtain Drawn" was dreamy and full of subdued passion, which formed a delightfully poetic conception of the number. Her second group gave a distinct pleasure in the presentation of three much loved melodies of which the "Woodland Croon Song" (Chutson) and "Requiem" (Homer) were singularly appealing and possessed an added charm through the singer's personality.

In the closing group Mrs. Brown gave the old Scotch melody, "I'm Wearin' Awa' Jean," followed with Landon's beautiful song "Down in the Forest" and closing with "Anathema" (Von Fielitz), which was quite the climax of her songs and awakened prolonged applause of appreciation. An added number was given in recognition.

Mrs. Brown is possessed of a mezzo-soprano voice of distinct beauty, which she uses quite at will, and maintains a sincere attitude toward her numbers, that with her splendid tonal quality delighted at every song.—Rockford Morning Star. (Advertisement.)

Peterson—Miss Helen Edith Peterson, contralto, was soloist at the dedication services of the Ravenswood Presbyterian Church on last Sunday afternoon. She will sing the offertory solo Easter morning at the Lake View Presbyterian Church.

Benefit Concert—A recital of chamber music will be given on Wednesday, April 7 (evening), for Archer Road Day Nursery by the Johannes Brahms Trio, assisted by Mrs. Hanna Butler and Mr. John Alden Carpenter.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER IN PHILADELPHIA

Some extracts from the remarkable press comment given to the appearance of Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra here follow:

The shining talents and growing personal witchery of Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler, the pianiste, saved the day from the accusation of dullness and heaviness.

Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra have had many fine soloists this season (and only two poor ones), but they are not free of debt to Mme. Bloomfield Zeisler. She was the inspiring element in the concert.

"Secondary intentions," or the implication of emotion beneath the surface of an interpretation—in these the pianiste excels. Combining the most exquisite taste, refinement and restraint with vigor and distinction, when needed, she captivates the listener with melody and the suggestion of melody, her faintest echo of tone being as audible to the sensitive ear as a fortissimo blast from a full brass choir.

Mme. Bloomfield Zeisler gave first the Mozart concerto in C Minor. After a little choppiness in the allegro, when the theme is enunciated in the bass, she recovered herself, and played the other movements with entrancing daintiness and nice technical judgment. Liszt's fantasy on Hungarian folk tunes was her second contribution, in which she created even more applause.—Philadelphia North American.

With them the assisting artist was Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler. Her problem has been for many years to eliminate the excellence of her own playing from consideration, and to establish an uninterrupted connection between her material and its expression. She has succeeded in a peculiar way, for with her the labor is always apparent, the study never forgotten, even the mechanics of runs and trills and pedals almost painfully noticeable. And yet, in the end, one forgets much of these things. One is seduced into forgetting everything but the clear, clean beauty of the music she plays. She has a sense of rhythm which is extraordinarily sensitive; she has, at the same time, a delicacy of touch and a fluidity of expression which resemble the characteristic virtues of Leonard Borwick. In the Liszt fantasy the artist indicated new powers, of stirring utterance, of sharply sounded chords, of a voice more authoritative. But it was the Mozart that remained, with its serious beauty and its mannered grace, in the golden and exquisite tone which Mrs. Zeisler could give to it.—Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

Mme. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler was the assisting artist and she played Mozart's concerto for the piano-forte in C Minor and afterwards a fantasia on Hungarian folk songs by Liszt, with that technical ability, intellectual apprehension and emotional fervor for which she has achieved such a distinguished reputation. Probably there were many in the audience who would have preferred one of the beautiful concertos written for the modern instrument, especially as we had a Mozart concerto only a short time ago, but no fault can be found with the way in which the music was interpreted.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

Yesterday's concert was, in many respects, the most brilliant of the season. The program was varied and Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler created a sensation by her playing of the Liszt "Fantasies on Hungarian Folk-Melodies." No pianist this season thrilled the audience as did the soloist in the masterly way she handled this wonderfully constructed piece of music writing.

Zeisler's big number was Mozart's "Concerto in C Minor." It showed her great depth and exactness of interpretation, but it has not the element to stir and thrill as does the Liszt number, and in the many years in which Mme. Zeisler has appeared before the public in this city, she has never played with such an overpowering command of every character of technic as is covered in this, one of the most brilliant of concert numbers. Of all pianists she has the most power in forcing her trills and scale passages above the other instruments, and making them stand out distinct, with never an iota of variance to be detected. The audience was breathlessly entranced, and when she had finished she was recalled a number of times in recognition of its appreciation.—Philadelphia Press.

Mme. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler was the soloist—one might almost say two soloists, for it was as though a dual personality was given to the Mozart Concerto and to the diametrically different Liszt Fantasy. Who else, with the interval of a few minutes, could have so magnificently set forth two works at the opposite poles in the qualities demanded of the executant? The Mozart music was played as the composer undoubtedly meant and wanted—with crystalline clearness and unaffected simplicity of phrasing, with repetitions of caressing lightness, perfectly even passages that never were hectic or spasmodic, a fine cadenza that fitted the context like a glove and no purpose in mind except to deliver every note for all that every note was worth in terms of liquid and singing and far-carrying tonal values.

Then when the Liszt music came—presto, change! An electrifying communicative force wrought upon the spirit of the player and, through her, prevailed upon the audience. She gave apparently every bit of the impassioned intensity of her being to the keyboard, fairly flinging herself upon the notes in staccato, feline pounces, bringing her hands away again with a swift rhythmic sweep, soaring and delving through breath-taking runs and hovering in mid-air upon trills that seemed the last word of the mastery of the keys. It was sheer witchcraft, a modern miracle and the presence of authentic genius, only to be felt and not to be recaptured by cold print the morning after.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The return to Philadelphia, after a lapse of several seasons, of Madame Bloomfield-Zeisler was an event of importance to the many admirers here who have regarded her absence as a calamity in local musical life. Madame Zeisler is always given a tremendous ovation in Philadelphia, and there seems little excuse for her not remembering the city's necessities oftener. After several seasons of anxiously scanning the announced list of soloists and consequent disappointment, this great pianist, at once the ambition and despair of all women pianists, returned. Her power and versatility seemed more potent than ever yesterday in the widely diversified C Minor Concerto of Mozart and the Liszt Fantasy on Hungarian folk melodies, each demanding of the soloist a style distinctive and difficult. Mme. Zeisler is recognized as a pianist of adaptability, but she performed an extraordinary feat yesterday in her wonderful interpretation of the Mozart work, with its call for fleetness, grace and style, followed by an overwhelming exhibition of technical skill and temperamental variety in the Liszt Fantasy. Mme. Zeisler has not only tremendous speed in her fingers, but she possesses what so few women pianists ever acquire—a big masculine tone, tempered with all the suavity and expressiveness of an intense nature.—Philadelphia Record.

Her treatment of the Mozart concerto was eminently satisfactory. It was brilliant but solid work. Her technic is such as to enable her to make any sort of display which her taste will permit, but she employs it only the better to express what she is doing and keeps mere virtuosity entirely in the background. This results, of course, in a finer, more finished, and much more appealing interpretation of the work under discussion, and in a dignified and elevated performance. The refinements and beauties of the Larghetto and the tripping variations on the theme in the Allegretto were handled with a grace and charm which were delightful.

It was in the final number, however, the "Fantasy on Hungarian Folk-melodies," that the pianiste came into her own. There she exhibited a mastery over her instrument such as is given to few. Whether in fortissimo passages, where she exhibited the strength, the volume and the dynamics of a man, or in the most delicate of pianissimos, where rippled zephyr-like the faintest of purring runs or trills, she was simply superb. Thirds and fifths had no terrors for her and some of her runs and trills, her crescendos and diminuendos, seemed superhuman. Precision, tone, phrasing—all were done as only an absolute mistress of her art could do them and this difficult composition, with its constantly changing tempo, its instant transitions from fortissimo to pianissimo, was executed with a dash, a vigor and a certainty that aroused the audience to exceptional enthusiasm.—Philadelphia Evening Star.

Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler's unquestioned position as one of the most remarkable exponents of piano technic was again manifested at yesterday's concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra at the Academy. To no living pianist does she yield in sheer brilliancy of technical achievement. Her feats at the piano may savor at times of bravura, but so gallantly does she dash them off, with such mastery of dynamics, such sheer dazzling sped, such chashing fortissimos, such rippling dissolving runs, each note as clear and distinct as solitaire diamond, that there is no thought to question the intrinsic merit of her performance—remains only to wonder at its excellence.

Her first number was the Mozart "Concerto in C Minor," to which she applied the delicacy and restraint that are needed for much of it, though in her interpretation the allegro spoke in no uncertain voice and the allegretto rang out distinct and full. It was her second selection (and the concluding number of the program) that showed her special mastery of the pianist's craft. Liszt's "Fantasy on Hungarian Folk-melodies," under her touch, broke forth in a very riot of tone color and brilliancy. Though she has an almost academic precision of rendering, it throbbed with the busy life of a people. It danced, it sang—softly and plaintively, then loudly and defiantly, and again with hushed voice, but always with the same glowing, compelling warmth of tone. It is this faculty of combining technical achievement with vivid apperception of the content of what she plays that makes Mme. Bloomfield-Zeisler what she is, one of the greatest pianists of the world.—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

The piano playing of Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler is of the sort that sways an audience and literally holds it spellbound. Spectacular it may be, emotional to the extent that she has been called "the Bernhardt of the piano," but, all in all, of a high artistic standard that few other women pianists of the present generation have been able to reach, and which none, it is quite safe to say, has excelled. That Mrs. Zeisler does not depend wholly upon her ability to produce thrilling effects was evidenced yesterday in her beautiful interpretation of Mozart's "Concerto in C Minor," in which she showed delicacy of touch as well as flawless facility of execution, the work being given with the true Mozartian spirit.

It was her second number, which closed the program, however, the "Fantasy on Hungarian Folk-melodies," by Liszt, that enabled her to carry all before her. This was, indeed, remarkable piano playing. "Flashy" the music may be, but as Mrs. Zeisler plays it its flashes are those of genius, and she rises above mere technic to the superiority of the virtuoso. In personality, with her slightly stooping form and serious countenance, she has something of weirdness. The piano, as she plays, seems to be a part of her, and there is wizardry in her triumphant passage through such brilliantly florid music as that of the Liszt rhapsody. "Mannerisms" she may have, but they seem a part of her and never obtrusive. After playing a rapid run or particularly brilliant phrase, for instance, she has a way of snatching her hands from the piano, as if the keys burned her fingers; but so dazzling is the effect she produces that the action does not seem inappropriate.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. (Advertisement.)

—* * *

BERWYN CHORAL SOCIETY

The Berwyn Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Phelps Cowan, organist of Immanuel Church, La Grange, Ill., gave Stainer's "Crucifixion" on Friday, last, with the assistance of Warren Proctor, tenor, and Mr. E. L. Cooper, bass.

The choral work was well done, but especially good was the unaccompanied work of the chorus, "God So Loved the World," in which Mr. Cowan showed greater evidence of his ability for control over the singers.

Mr. Cooper in the bass role sang with ease and assurance, making all his solos very effective.

As for Mr. Proctor, his work was up to his usual standard of perfection, notwithstanding the score was handed him for the first time but two hours before the performance. The tenor engaged for the part was taken suddenly ill and Mr. Cowan was forced to make a change. In the role, "King Ever Glorious," Mr. Proctor had a real test of his ability as a sight reader. He sang it with perfect intonation, bringing it to a fitting climax. The importance of reading at sight is a feature sometimes overlooked by voice students.

—* * *

Highsmith-Lyding — Mary Highsmith-Lyding sang recently for the Ladies Auxiliary of Zion Temple and also at the wedding of Miss Alida MacDermid to Mr. Lewis Bernays, British vice consul, at the Woodlawn Presbyterian Church. She has engagements to sing shortly at Peoria, Rochelle and Aurora.

—* * *

Drake School — Pupils of the Drake School of Music in the Auditorium building gave an attractive recital at Steinway Recital Hall last Friday evening.

A STORY OF RODENTS

Whether one approves of all that John Ruskin wrote or not he seems to be correct in his observation concerning mice and music. It will be recalled that Ruskin says: "Brutes can enjoy music; mice, in particular, are thrown into raptures by it." That mice love music was proven to a large Chicago audience recently. Josef Hofmann was giving a recital and in the midst of the program a mouse scampered across the stage and ran up one of the legs of the concert grand, perched on a niche and listened intently through the entire concerto. A discreet stage hand appeared after the number and relieved the feminine section of the audience, for said stage hand carried a large black cat.

Harold Henry, the distinguished Chicago pianist, had a similar experience while giving a recital in Dayton, Ohio, a few years ago. He was playing to a large and appreciative audience and had reached the middle of his last group. During his playing of Ravel's poetic "Valley of the Bells" the audience appeared to be almost breathless, and when he had finished it there was a perceptible pause before any applause was heard. As Mr. Henry was introducing this example of the modern French school to American audiences that season, he was particularly pleased at the apparently rapturous attitude of his hearers, and began the next number feeling that he was playing for people of great musical understanding. It was Alkan's realistic "Le Vent" that followed the Ravel number. He had hardly begun it when he realized that a shudder passed through the hall, but thinking that it was but a revulsion of feeling continued. Then he realized that there was a general movement in the audience, and after a few minutes stopped playing, only to discover that no one was paying any attention to him. Then he walked off the stage. In the wings he was told that whilst he was playing "The Valley of the Bells" a very large rat had appeared upon the stage and sat near the back leg of the piano, looking out over the audience room. As soon as the more vigorous Alkan study was begun, the rat evidently not enjoying it, jumped off the stage and ran among the audience. It is unnecessary to say that as soon as it had disappeared, Mr. Henry returned to his piano, and received a veritable ovation, and had the undivided attention of his audience during the remainder of his program.

LILLIAN J. ELLIS

Miss Lillian Ellis presented the operetta, "The Pennant," at the opera house in Elk-point, S. D., recently with very great success. There were forty people in this production, almost all of them voice pupils of Miss Ellis, and the entire affair was pronounced by the local press to be a splendid success.

Miss Ellis, who has a lovely soprano voice, was soloist at the Central Independent Church in Sioux City recently and there also made a fine success.

Munro Singers—The Munro Singers, consisting of various ensembles and many solo voices, will give a program for the Englewood Consistory at the Englewood Masonic Temple on the evening of April 12.

CECIL FANNING FILLS FOURTH RETURN ENGAGEMENT IN SAN ANTONIO

Tuesday evening, March 23, Cecil Fanning filled his fourth annual return engagement at San Antonio. The audience hall was filled with the many admirers Mr. Fanning and Mr. Turpin have gained during their previous visits to this Texan city. The following press notice will give some idea of the ovation Mr. Fanning received:

A singer who opens his concert with the famous prologue from Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," would appear to be imperiling the success of his program on the shoals of an anti-climax, for it would seem that nothing he might present later could balance the scales with this favorite offering.

Cecil Fanning, the famous young American baritone, so began his program at the Gunter Tuesday evening. Never for a moment did the interest and enjoyment of his large audience flag.

Mr. Fanning is more than ordinarily fortunate in having with him such an intelligent and thoroughly sympathetic accompanist as H. B. Turpin. Years of association and co-operation have made the two work together perfectly.

Under any circumstances, Mr. Fanning's concert would have been considered a great treat. In the place, his program had been selected with discretion, showing balance and taste in every division. There were no long waits between the song groups. And then, Mr. Fanning is a satisfying singer. In addition to his undoubted gifts as a vocalist he has great talents along interpretative lines.

In going over the program to select the high lights, it would be difficult to say just where Mr. Fanning pleased most. At a venture it might be said that the fourth group, consisting of old folk songs, evoked the most applause and pleased to the greatest degree. The old French songs, "Les Manieres," and "Le Cycle du Vin," sung, as Mr. Turpin announced, "with action," brought much laughter and applause.

Liszt's setting of Heine's famous "Lorelei," and Loewe's setting of Goethe's as famous "Erkling," gave Mr. Fanning an opportunity to display his versatility, as the two are contrasted in the extreme. "Der Erlkoenig," as Loewe conceived it, and as Mr. Fanning sang it, is a thrillingly dramatic piece of vocalism.

The final group consisted of five numbers of various styles, including Mr. Fanning's own poem, "La Princess Lontaine," which he read to the musical setting of Guy B. Williams. "The Sands of Dee," in Kingsley's familiar poem, set to music by Frederick Clay, afforded Mr. Fanning another opportunity to tense the heart-strings of his auditors. Carrie Jacob Bond's "A Perfect Day," added to the program, by request, gave a brighter tone to the concert's close. Mr. Fanning was accorded an ovation.—San Antonio Light.—(Advertisement.)

A BACH AUTHORITY

Wilhelm Middelschulte is a recognized authority on Bach in all phases of that composer's work.

He is in receipt of the following letter from Henri Marteau, the French violinist: My Honored Colleague:—It was with great pleasure that I read your arrangement of the Bach "Chaconne," and am convinced that the composition in this novel but at all events genuine "Bachian" conception will also make its customary and grandiose impression. It would mean "to carry owls to Athens" should I venture to speak of your art of counterpoint, and I simply desire to express to you today my admiration. With an affirmation of my unbounded admiration, I remain, sincerely yours. (Signed) HENRI MARTEAU.

Mr. Middelschulte appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in Milwaukee recently, playing the Bach "Chaconne" in its organ transcription made by himself, and has been engaged for the Bach recital to be given by the Pittsburgh Art Society in April.

Highsmith-Lyding—Pupils of Mary Highsmith-Lyding gave a very interesting studio recital on March 17, those appearing being Mrs. Catherine Lytle, Mrs. George Meyer, Miss Katherine Popham, Mrs. Virginia McIntosh, Miss Frankie Swaim and Miss Eleanor Meyer. Mrs. Lyding's class is increasing rapidly and she proposes to give this sort of recital monthly hereafter.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST
COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR
We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHO E CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - Violin
ALBERTI SALVI - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Louise George

Children's Harmony
Chicago Piano College

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

LAST PHILHARMONIC CONCERT OF THE THURSDAY EVENING SERIES

The "Divina Commedia," the chief d'oeuvre of the noble Italian poet Dante, inspired Franz Liszt to some of his best work as a composer, and his "Symphony," based upon the several Cantos of the poem, the "Inferno," "Purgatorio" and "Magnificat" shows him at his greatest and most eloquent.

Its performance was a happy finale to the series of Thursday night concerts given by the Philharmonic Orchestra in Carnegie Hall, this function occurring upon the evening of March 25, and its exposition by the conductor and his men left little to be desired in a carefully wrought scheme wherein each instrument lent itself with joy to the rounded consummation.

Sooner or later this glorious composition, whose content shows its influence upon the works of Richard Wagner (there are so many hints—more than fugitive suggestions—of what was to come after in the grander works of Liszt's famous son-in-law), should become as popular with the music and melody-loving public as those symphonic magnets, Dvorak's "New World Symphony," the "Pathétique" of Tschai-kowsky, or the "Fifth Symphony" of Beethoven. The repetition will prove the truth of this prediction.

To some of us it appears that Liszt has not yet quite come into his own. That his works deserve more frequent performances; this "Symphony" in particular. There are exaltation and breadth in the composition. A thrilling and uplifting effect precluding the boredom of musical material with neither appeal to the intelligence or the sentiments.

Others may sigh for some of the interminable "Symphonies" of Bruckner—those deadly musical efforts driving one to despair or inducing the slumber of a mind wearied in the pursuit of a musical idea—but the majority it is safe to assert, given its choice, will show its preference by flocking to such musical functions as offer morsels of more appetizing flavor.

The concert opened with a "Symphony" in C minor by that ever-youthful composer, yclept "Papa Haydn;" its four movements constituting a stream of the most optimistically-conceived melodies that one might well imagine. Not a moment of Brucknerian dullness. A delightful and beneficial tonic. An aperitif for the Spohr "Concerto" very finely played by Zimbalist, whose fiddling takes on a more poetic color; and the resplendent Symphony.

Mr. Josef Stransky directed with aplomb, verve and authority, and his men were at one with him.

h h h

Concert of the Oratorio Society

Wolf-Ferrari and Bach. Admirable yet strange combination of composers, the one appealing perhaps a shade more than the other as tastes and inclinations vary, yet affording a striking educational as well as religious contrast.

Carnegie Hall was well filled on the evening of March 24—the parterre showing not too many empty seats—the stage overflowing with an augmented chorus, and an orchestra picked from the best of the New York Symphony's forces.

A quartet of soloists focussing the eye well to the front of the stage and consisting of Marie Sundelius, soprano; Rose Bryant, contralto; Alfred Shaw, tenor, and Clarence Whitehill, baritone.

The "Vita Nuova," by Wolf-Ferrari, has its place in the repertory of the New York Oratorio Society, and the patrons of that venerable institution have heard it before. Mr. Koemmenich and the forces working with him were in close touch with the beauties—more ethereal than earthly—of the interesting score, introducing harps and the piano—the latter an incongruous element rather abating from the general effect of celestial aloofness, which otherwise characterizes this opus.

The harps have a theme of transcendent loveliness; the accompaniment or association of the piano here mars the effect of light and dainty beauty which would better have been accomplished by the merging with a quartet of strings whose kinship with the harp might intensify the sense of exquisiteness destroyed by the obtrusive metallic of the piano.

The very simplicity of this clever device of the harps as harmonic symbols called forth the utmost enthusiasm of the audience, and made a repetition imperative.

The baritone, Mr. Clarence Whitehill, was entrusted with the task of interpreting the salient feature of the "Oratorio." He acquitted himself of his difficult task with ease and intelligence, giving a sympathetic rendition of his part, and one full of a fine restraint and elevated sentiment.

Mr. Whitehill is a pleasant figure upon the concert platform, as well as in opera. He carries himself with grace and nobility, and without that stilted woodenness too much in evidence among our American vocalists.

Bach's "Magnificat" is by no means spoon meat for even the seasoned and experienced concert-attendant, and his problem has not

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

yet been solved even at this date of a modernity which declares it has exhausted all forms of strictly melodic expression.

It behooves the exponent of Bach to take his composer not too lightly. To regard him not merely as a maker of mathematical-musical problems. There is much poetry of the most dignified in the imaginings of the old master.

It was a delight to make or rather renew acquaintance with a composition of such power and dignity, and one attended to the progress of the music with devotion.

Mme. Sundelius, looking the impersonation of "Spring" in her diaphanous white gown with here and there a rosebud, was the soprano of the occasion, and though she had comparatively little to do, she made evident the possession of a sympathetic voice of mellow quality.

It is to be hoped that the soprano will be heard again soon in this auditorium, and with fuller opportunity for the display of her excellent vocal gifts.

h h h

Friday Morning Musicales at the Biltmore

The Biltmore Musicales has become an institution. There is no question about it, and the audiences assembled—fashionable, exclusive and appreciative—leave little doubt of the sincerity of their applause, and their appetite for good music.

Friday morning, March 20, beheld the ballroom of the Biltmore crowded to the limit of the walls, and enthusiasm ran riot, especially when Wm. W. Hinshaw, the tall and handsome baritone, gave them John McCormack's "Ballymure Ballad" as an encore. The audience simply could not contain itself, and this after a second encore.

Mr. Hinshaw was in excellent voice and rollicking spirit. He sang Figaro's "Aria" from the "Rossini" opera with the greatest gusto—sang it as if he were really enjoying himself; and when the audience split its gloves applauding, he gave "Danny Deever" in fine style, infusing the very air of tragedy into his declamation.

Mr. Hinshaw was heard also in a group of songs:

Non piu andrai.....	Mozart
Warnung	Mozart
Der Knabe mit dem Wunderhorn.....	Schumann
Drei Wanderer	Hermann

all sung in fashion appropriate to the genre, with encores to follow.

Mr. Andre Turret, the French violinist, was greatly applauded for his two groups.

His first group was the Bach "Grave" and Leclair "Tambourin," and he happily differentiated his treatment of each opus to prove how intimately he is able to discriminate in their styles, and distinguish in their handling.

His tone is clean and pure. His intonation true; his bowing betrays the elegance and finish of a master combined with something of the abandon of the idealist.

He was warmly applauded for these two beautiful numbers, and rewarded his audience with a third opus, also played with care and finish, and that attention to nuance and detail which is so characteristic of all his playing.

Mr. Turret's second group was composed of the dashing Brahms "Dance" and a delicious lullaby, "Berceuse Ecossaise," by Schab.

Here again the refinements of the violin-

(Continued on page 35)

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Hoermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Malters Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE
403 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue CHICAGO

Music in America

SYRACUSE, NEW YORK

The past three or four weeks have brought an unusually large number of concerts of the highest order. Orchestral concerts by the leading orchestras are still a rare occurrence in Syracuse and when the Philharmonic Society is announced for two concerts with Harold Bauer and Elena Gerhardt as soloists, enthusiasm runs high. At the afternoon concert the orchestra gave Weber's overture to "Oberon"; Beethoven's overture to "Leonore, No. 3"; Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 4." Strinsky seems to have his men well in hand and his interpretations are always clear and definite. There is none of the seeking after new effects simply for the sake of newness and yet his readings of the well known works are extremely interesting. Those who looked for something unusual in Bauer's reading of the Schumann "Concerto in A," were disappointed. His playing of the concerto was such as we have heard many a time by men and women of far less renown. It was a number that was of especial interest to many students who have become acquainted with it through "personal touch," and to all such it was an especially interesting number.

At the evening performance the orchestra gave Dvorak's "The New World Symphony," Liszt's symphonic poem, "Tasso," and the "Tannhauser" overture. Mme. Gerhardt was the soloist. This singer certainly possesses a tremendously powerful voice. This came out to its fullest and best advantage in the last of a group of three Beethoven songs, "Die Himmel Ruchmen des Ewigen Ehre." Her rich tones stood out above the full orchestra like the diapasons of an organ.

The Kneisel Quartet is perhaps the most perfect exponent of chamber music in its highest form. It was presented at the Onondaga, thanks to the morning musicales, and a large audience took advantage of an opportunity not often presented. The program contained numbers by Beethoven, Smetana, Glazounow, Kodaly and Grainer. Music for its own sake reaches its sublimest heights in the string quartet and is most elevating in its influence when given such a rendition as the Kneisel Quartet gives.

The Women's Glee Club of Syracuse University presented its annual program before the largest audience that has ever been present at any of its concerts. The following program was rendered:

The Central New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists held a meeting in this city in March, at the close of which, in the evening, Mr. J. Warren Andrews gave a recital on the new organ in the First Baptist Church. The auditorium was packed and the audience expressed its appreciation in generous applause.

Under the auspices of the Salon Musical Club, two "Moments Musicales" were presented at the Empire by Miss Eloise Holden. Miss Holden's artistic worth is too well known to need any comment. On this occasion she appeared in four dance numbers and two songs. Associated with Miss Holden was Miss Frances Pelton Jones, who is said to be the only American artist who has achieved fame as a harpsichordist. To many who have never heard a harpsichord such a performance is a revelation. The charm of it is beyond description. We seldom reflect sufficiently to realize how comparatively recent is the perfection of the pianoforte as we have it at present, and do not fully appreciate the work of the great masters who wrote for the harpsichord when we place them side by side with the modern composer. Jacques Kasner, the violinist, contributed to the success of the program, and Mr. G. A. Russell was at the piano.

The fourth number in the Arts Club Series was given by Miss Maude Klotz, soprano, and Mr. Horatio Connell, baritone. Mr. Connell possesses a very rich voice, under perfect control, and a keen insight into each number. His interpretation of numbers by Mozart, Handel and Franz were equally interesting and effective. He was no less successful in modern songs. His singing was such as makes one wish that there was a great deal more of it and one is loath to leave when the last number has been given. Miss Klotz possesses a well trained voice and in some respects did splendid work. On the whole, however, she seems to lack that something which we sometimes call "sympathy."

The Syracuse University Chorus, under the direction of Professor Howard Lyman, gave a most successful rendition of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" on March 4. The John Crouse College auditorium was crowded and standing room taken. The chorus is a youthful organization, having attempted oratorio on a large scale for the first time. The enthusiasm was fine and it seems that at last Syracuse University will take its place among other big institutions which support a large and efficient choral organization. The soloists on this occasion were Miss Van Kuren, soprano; Miss Drew, alto; Professor Butler, bass; all of the Fine Arts College faculty, and Mr. William Wheeler, of New York, tenor.

The monthly recital by the music students of the Fine Arts College was one of unusual merit.

March 23 Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung by the choir in the First Baptist Church, Professor Howard Lyman, conductor.

Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson is one of the soloists engaged for the May Festival. The other soloists are: Mme. Frances Alda, Pasquale Amato, Katherine Goodson, Arthur Middleton, George Dostal, Mrs. Rose Gannon, Mme. Grace Fjorde and Mme. Anita Rio. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra has been engaged. The sale of seats has been unusually large and the prospects are that the season tickets will be sold out long before the Festival.

Gladys Hawkins in Recital

A young pianist from Chicago gave a recital in Apollo Hall last Thursday evening. She had been heralded as an artist of unusual ability. Those who heard her on Thursday night were not disappointed. Miss Hawkins has a pleasing and strong personality, consequently her playing carried with it an individual impress not generally found in young artists recently from under the tutelage of a great master.

The opening number, "Toccato and Fugue" (Bach-Tausig), was not only a test as to technic, which she fully met, but also in tone color and balance of parts. The singing tone was well brought out in the Chopin numbers and for bravura effects she well met the demands of the Liszt "Rhapsodie No. 10."

Miss Hawkins' staccato playing has that crispness so sought after; her scale passages are always clear and her octaves seemed to be her special delight.

ZENO NAGEL.

WICHITA, KANSAS

The Zoellner String Quartet, March 11, was an innovation on the Wichita Chorus series as the Wichita public knows little or nothing about chamber music, thanks to an overworked "Star" system and lack of local talent for a local organization of merit. A small but quickly responsive house must have surprised the Zoellners by demands for encores. Their work was excellent and the ensemble simply extraordinary. This quartet will receive a larger show of appreciation on a return date. The Beethoven "Quartet, Op. 18, No. 2" was the opening quartet. Two movements from the Iwanow "Quartet," Opus 13, were exquisite. This number on the course was likewise a treat of real music.

Several changes were made during the season on this course, and to date Alma Gluck, March 22, and Lucy Marsh, April 16, are expected to fill contracts. Next season's offerings have already been announced. The list is as follows: Anna Case, lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Tina Lerner, the famous Russian pianist; Ronald Werrenrath, baritone; and Hugo Kortschalk, violinist, in joint program; the university quartet, and the fifth number announced as the best concert band procurable.

Last Sunday closed the season's series of the Symphony Orchestra, with Katherine Goodson, pianist, as soloist. Miss Goodson disappointed the audience, particularly the pianistic clientele, in not giving the Grieg "Concerto" with orchestra as announced. Theodore Lindberg, who directs, announced the change owing to the difference in pitch between the piano and the orchestra, which seemed preposterous inasmuch as Miss Goodson had just finished contracts with the Chicago, Kansas City and Minneapolis orchestras all international pitch undoubtedly.

This society announces their soloists for next season as follows: Charles W. Harrison, tenor; Mme. Marie Sundelius, soprano; Manhattan Ladies' Quartet, and Margaret Dunlap, contralto. Madam Louise Le Baron, contralto, and Walter Wheatley, tenor, were the soloists February 14 with the orchestra, and were well received, merited absolutely by excellent voices, finely handled, good stage presence, and graciousness.

The announcement for next season's soloists was somewhat previous for symphony concerts as the management is now busy getting subscription guarantees, but its success is to be expected and sincerely hoped for as the concerts, generally somewhat amateur, so far as the orchestra is concerned, maintained good standards in programs, good soloists, and with Iris Pendleton's efficient management should improve as time rolls on.

The May Festival and contest is progressing and a full account of plans will be given in next letter.

The Musicians' Club meeting for February was held on the 22nd and Miss Jessie Clark gave an able paper on "Folk Songs." Miss Clark is the efficient supervisor of music in our public schools, and her paper bore the marks of a well posted musician. Her paper was illustrated finely by Mrs. Jetta Campbell Stanley, soprano; Miss Randall, contralto, and Mr. Ades, tenor.

The piano class of Florence Younger Brokaw, assisted by the violin pupils of Ralph Brokaw, gave a good program March 16 at the Power-Meyer conservatory.

Nina Holliday, pianist, of the Power-Meyer Conservatory, gave the program for the Wichita Musical Club March 6. Her program included the "Allegro" from the Opus 57, Beethoven's "Sonata," Chopin's "Polonaise in C Sharp" and the "Waltz" in A flat; Brahms' "Intermezzo," Op. 17, No. 1, "Die Lorelei" and "Polonaise" No. 2, by Liszt.

Sousa's Band is announced for May 11 at the Forum.

Ralph Brokaw, violinist, and Florence Young Brokaw, pianist, give a recital at Conway Springs March 26.

Miss Mildred Vaughn, pianist, of the Metropolitan School of Music, gave a program last week at the recital hall of the school.

Myron L. Hull, director of the Metropolitan School, and Miss May Elliot were married March 12. Mr. Hull directs the Wichita Girls' Band and they entertained the couple fittingly on their return to the school.

The Wichita Girls' Band of 40 pieces gave a program at the Forum this month, also one at Newton. They plan to go to the Panama Exposition this summer.

Fairmount Boys' Glee Club returned this week from their annual tour of the western part of the state. Charles Davis Carter directed the tour and the club.

SANTA BARBARA

Alma Gluck appeared in recital Friday evening, March 5, at the Potter theater, this being the second event in the Philharmonic course under the management of Mrs. E. F. Herbert. The enthusiastic reception which she received from the large audience has probably never been surpassed in similar recitals here. It was an enthusiasm which grew with each succeeding number on the program. This, in spite of the fact that her voice was far from being at its best. In the earlier numbers, she seemed to be laboring with an affection of the throat and gave the impression that her tones were being produced with difficulty. In the last group, there was a noticeable sagging from pitch and evident weariness. But so strong and charming and magnetic is her personality that most of those present ceased to think of her voice and thought only of the sentiment, the spirit, the meaning and the dramatic intensity which she brought to them. She is temperamental to the highest degree and there was not a moment when this failed to be in evidence.

Cadman's "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" is a universal favorite, a repetition being demanded. Most admirable accompaniments were furnished by Samuel Chotzinoff.

A. B. BARNETT.

Proctor—Warren Proctor, tenor, has been engaged to give a recital in Cedar Falls, Iowa, Tuesday of this week. Mr. Proctor is a graduate of the college located there and also was for two years a member of the faculty, teaching voice, public school music and harmony. He taught sight reading and conducted a choral class for the year at Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President
Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE.
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A. SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGAR. T. TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

THE CENTENARY OF THE HANDEL AND HAYDN SOCIETY

April 11, the festival of the Handel and Haydn Society to celebrate its one hundredth anniversary, will begin.

When it was fifty years of age, although marked by appropriate ceremonies, deferred by the tragedy of President Lincoln's death, it was left until its 75th birthday for a far more extensive and important recognition of the day. The singers at this occasion were Edward Lloyd, English tenor; and Mme. Lilli Lehmann-Kalisch.

Since the exercises commemorating the death of two Presidents of the United States, July 4, 1826, programs observing important public events have been given by this society, the old Music Hall, with its organ were for many years closely associated with the doings of this organization.

When Benjamin B. Davis had been a member of the society fifty years, in 1866, the speaker told how he developed a passion for music while living in England for 20 years, and when he took ship for Boston he gave his small musical library to friends, never expecting to hear an anthem or oratorio again. How that during a walk one Sunday evening across Essex street, then called "Rowe's Pastures," he heard the theme from Handel's "And He Shall Purify the Sons of Levi," and going to the place, by earnest entreaty, gained admittance to a rehearsal of the Handel and Haydn Society, which was held in "Athenaeum Hall," "Pond Street."

George Cushing, a flutist, cashier of the old Columbian Bank, was a member of the Philharmonic Society, which paid chief attention to instrumental music, and he discussed with other music enthusiasts the "low state of church music." The outcome was a conference in Gottlieb Graupner's Music Hall, and this resulted in the formation of the Handel and Haydn Society.

Mr. Graupner, Augustus Peabody, lawyer, Matthew S. Parker, cashier Suffolk Bank, John Dodd and Mr. Cushing were present at the formation of the society.

The first recorded meeting was held in Mr. Graupner's Hall, March 24, 1815, or rather six days later, which was attended by members of several choirs, 16 persons in all, and a constitution was adopted April 13.

The first secretary, Matthew S. Parker, in his notices for the fourth meeting a week later, used the name "Handel and Haydn Society" for the first time.

Forty-four persons signed the constitution April 26, and temporary officers were chosen. President, Thomas L. Webb; Vice-president, Amasa Winchester; treasurer, Nathaniel Tucker; secretary, Mr. Parker, and nine trustees.

Some $53 was subscribed. May 30 it was decided not to admit members only by unanimous vote, and a necessary qualification was the possession of a good voice. September 4 the annual election was held and the temporary officers were elected for a full year.

The first concert of the society was given Christmas night, 1815. The chorus numbered about 100, with possibly 10 women. An orchestra of less than a dozen and an organ furnished the instrumental music. The place was King's Chapel, the performance began at 6 o'clock, and selections from the "Creation" and "Messiah" were the principal works performed.

Following Carl Berghmann, Carl Zerrahn was chosen conductor September 5, 1854, and this position was retained, with the exception of two years when B. J. Lang, more widely known as teacher and organist, conducted, 43 years.

In 1898 Reinhold L. Herman was chosen conductor, and he was succeeded in 1899 by Emil Nollenhauer, who holds the position at the present time.

Following Mr. Webb as president have been Benjamin Holt, Amasa Winchester, Lowell Mason (1827), Francis Chickering, Thomas Chickering, Dr. J. Baxter Upham, Charles C. Perkins, George H. Chickering, A. Parker Browne, Eugene P. Hagar, Edward P. Boynton, George F. Daniels, William F. Bradbury, and the present incumbent, Eugene D. Russell.

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control—freedom of vocal method, is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C."

MUSIC NEWS

The policy of the society has always been to give local singers an opportunity for a hearing under suitable conditions, and many successful artists have owed much to the society for such a favor.

The society now numbers 400, and all are working hard upon Verdi's "Requiem," which is the work chosen to open the festival April 11; Tuesday, April 13, Horatio W. Parker's "Orven and the Grail" (composed for the occasion) and Thursday night, April 15, Mendelssohn's "Elijah" will be given. April 14 will be "Artist Night."

At the Conservatory

A concert by advanced students of the New England Conservatory of Music, accompanied by the Conservatory orchestra, was given in Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon, March 23. It was conducted by George W. Chadwick, director, and Arthur Shepherd, formerly of the Salt Lake City Symphony Orchestra, and now of the New England Conservatory faculty. A popular number was the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Pianoforte Concerto" in C sharp minor, with Ver-nita C. Corbett of Melrose Highland as soloist. In the first movement of the Beethoven "Pianoforte Concerto" in C minor Frances A. McWeeney, of Providence, was heard, the second and third movements being taken up by Harry E. Mueller (Louisville, Ky.). The aria, "It is Enough," from "Elijah" was rendered by C. Roland Greene (Boston), and the "deh vieni" from "Le Nezze di Figare" by Ida C. Merriek (Sioux City, Ia.). Ruth Bullard (Decatur, Ill.) presented two movements of Godard's "Concerto Romantique," for a violin, and there were two Saint-Saens "Concertos;" that in C minor for the pianoforte, Alvara Gustafson (Florence), and that in B minor for violin, Samuel Rosen (Roxbury).

"The Craze," an original pantomime, written by Mrs. Grace French; a group of "Mammy Songs," by Florence Atwood, and some light opera songs by Zilla Naylor, assisted by a chorus, comprises the program of next Friday's recital of the New England Conservatory pantomime and rehearsal class.

At the annual meeting of the New England Conservatory Beneficent Society on Monday afternoon reports were read on the condition and disposition of the society's funds available for loans to needy and deserving music students and officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Charles H. Bond; vice-presidents, Mrs. Richard H. Dana and Mrs. Eben D. Jordan; honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. Josef Adamowski, Mrs. Timothee Adamowski, Mrs. Rufus S. Frost, Mrs. Frederick G. Hall, Mrs. Francis W. Lawrence, Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, Mrs. E. B. Phinney, Mrs. John C. Whitin and Mrs. Henry M. Whitney; directors, Mrs. Frederick S. Blodgett, Miss Myra B. Child, Mrs. Ralph Flinders, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Henry S. Hooper, Mrs. Henry S. Howe, Mrs. Francis W. Lawrence, Mrs. Thatcher Loring, Mrs. Silas Pierce, Mrs. Henry H. Proctor, Mrs. Sullivan A. Sargent, Mrs. Joseph Southwick; secretary, Mrs. Chauncey B. Allen; treasurer, Mrs. Henry M. Dunham; auditor, Miss Martha Perkins.

AGNES E. NERING

Mme. Agnes Nering, Chicago soprano, has just returned to this city, after a very successful tour of the south.

At a concert given at the Jefferson Theater in St. Augustine, Fla., on February 25, Mme. Nering was assisted by Miss Amory St. Amory, Miss Dorothy Mitchell, Professor Frederic Hardy de L'Isle and Professor T. Merley Harvey in a splendid program, in which she herself sang the "Voci de Primavera" (Strauss) and in numbers by Cadman, Aylwood and Parker, as well as appearing in duets and trios with others of the singers on the program.

The St. Augustine Evening Record devotes much space to a review of this concert, in which the work of Mme. Nering is praised very highly.

Borroff—Albert Borroff has arranged a unique program for his annual song recital at the Illinois Theater next month. Miss Marie Bergersen will play two interesting groups. Definite announcement will appear later.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

HINSHAW TO CREATE ROLE IN PRIZE OPERA

A signal honor has been conferred upon William Wade Hinshaw, the great American baritone, who has been chosen to create the leading baritone role of "Corvain" in Horatio Parker's $10,000 prize opera, "Fairyland," to be given in Los Angeles in July. Mr. Hinshaw was the unanimous choice of Mr. Parker, the composer; Mr. Hooker, the librettist, and the opera committee. He will sing in all ten performances of "Fairyland," to be given from July 1 to 10, inclusive, with Alfred Hertz conducting.

WILLIAM WADE HINSHAW

In consideration of the honor paid Mr. Hinshaw, the management of Chautauqua, N. Y., where Mr. Hinshaw is to have charge of the vocal department during the summer, has courteously extended the time for his arrival there to July 15, when he will take up his duties as formerly announced.

Middelschulte-Busoni—Mr. Ferruccio Busoni was present at the concert of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra last Saturday evening especially to hear the Middelschulte transcription of the Bach "Chaconne." He expressed himself as having had great pleasure in the performance and that he considers the work of Mr. Middelschulte very fine.

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan will sing in a classical music act at the Wilson Theater beginning on Easter Monday, and will later tour as far as the Pacific coast.

Farrar—The Directors of the Chicago Grand Opera Company have announced the engagement of Geraldine Farrar, now of the Metropolitan Opera House for ten performances with the Chicago Company next season.

LOIS ADLER PRESENTS PUPIL

On Monday evening, March 29, Miss Lois Adler presented Miss Marie Donner in a piano recital at the Little Theater.

Miss Donner has a splendid technic and her musical feeling is also very fine.

The Beethoven "Sonata, Op. 26" was her first offering, played in a very musicianly and intelligent manner.

The "Andante" and "Marcia Funebre" were especially well done.

The second number was indeed a happy choice, for Miss Donner played Schumann's "Scenes from Childhood" in a thoroughly finished and artistic style and with splendid interpretative thought. Miss Donner also showed herself to be a very excellent player of Chopin preludes and etudes, Op. 10 and Op. 25, No. 3.

Her reading of the Liszt "Sonetto del Petrarca" was very musicianly. Two Debussy numbers and MacDowell's "Polon-

BORROFF

BASSO

"Magnificent—Almost Matchless."

"Encore after encore, yet at the end the audience to a man kept his seat and called loudly for more."

"Fairly Tetrizzini like."

"One of the most satisfactory singers on the American stage."

Comments of critics, East, West, North and South.

Borroff averages over 80 per cent return engagements.

504 Kimball Hall - Chicago

aise" met with great favor. Cyril Scott's "Danse Negre" was redemanded and it lost nothing by repetition, for she played it in a very captivating manner.

Miss Adler may feel justly proud of Miss Donner as her pupil. H. W. P.

North—One of the most handsome booklets that ever came into Music News office is that promoting the concert work of Mme. Dorothea North, soprano. This booklet contains two pictures of Mme. North that are works of art and also a quantity of press comment on her work, including items from Berlin, London, New York, Chicago and scores of other cities.

Chicago Piano College—The Chicago Piano College will present a program of the compositions of Harmon H. Watt at the College Lecture Rooms in Kimball Hall on Saturday, April 3, at 2:30.

Butler—Miss Louise Drybrough, a pupil of Mrs. Hanna Butler, sang in "Snow White" at the Orchestra Hall last Friday evening.

Pillsbury—Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury will present a pupils' recital at her studio in the Fine Arts building on Saturday afternoon.

ROY DAVID BROWN

Mr. Roy David Brown, long time pupil of Emil Liebling and for some years a teacher in Kimball Hall but now connected with the Walter Spry Music School, will hold a summer normal term at the Spry School, to begin on June 28.

Mr. Brown has outlined a normal course similar to the lines followed by Mr. Liebling, and in addition to private lessons will give a series of lecture-recitals on Teaching Material, Technic and various pedagogic subjects useful to teachers.

ROY DAVID BROWN

Previous to the beginning of this summer term, Mr. Brown will make a short concert trip to the south, playing at points in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi. His program will be as follows:

Sonata, No. 7, F major	Mozart
Intermezzo, Op. 119, No. 1	Brahms
Rhapsody, Op. 79, No. 2	Brahms
California Suite	Friml
An Old Monastery
Mountain Cascade
Orange Blossoms
Spanish Dance
Etude in C Major (new)	Carl Beutel
Albumblatt	Emil Liebling
Florence Waltz	Emil Liebling
Nocturne, Op. 37, No. 2	Chopin
Waltz, Op. 34, No. 1	Chopin
Prelude, Op. 10
Hexentanz	MacDowell
Concert Etude, Op. 36

Easter Music—Music News carries today a great many Easter programs and these will be interesting reading to a wide circle of musicians. Many other programs were received too late for publication. Tuesday is the last day on which programs can be accepted any week, but many of them came in this week on Wednesday and some even on Thursday, after the bulk of the paper was printed.

St. Paul's—At St. Paul's Episcopal Church this evening. Good Friday will be commemorated in the singing of Stainer's "Crucifixion" by the choir, under direction of John Allen Richardson.

Hartman—Lucy J. Hartman, contralto, sang the "Messiah" at the Park Avenue Methodist Church Thursday evening, April 1.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE • PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, ChicagoNelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANIST
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Ph e Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

Professor Albert A. Stanley, Director of the University Musical Society of the University of Michigan, has just announced the complete programs for the twenty-second Annual May Festival, to be held in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, Mich., May 19, 20, 21 and 22.

The University Musical Society was organized about forty years ago, and twenty-five years ago, coincident with Professor Stanley's election to the Chair of Music in the University of Michigan, reorganized, and since that time twenty-two Annual May Festivals have been given, in addition to many miscellaneous pre-festival concerts. Altogether about three hundred concerts by artists and organizations of national reputation have been given.

The board of directors is composed of the following members: F. W. Kelsey, L. L. D., head of the Latin Department of the University of Michigan, president; Harry B. Hutchins, L. L. D., president of the University of Michigan, vice president; Levi D. Wines, C. E., treasurer; Albert A. Stanley, A. M., musical director; G. Frank Allmendinger, C. E., manager of the Michigan Milling Company; James B. Angel, L. L. D., president-emeritus of the University of Michigan; Honorable H. S. Dean; Honorable Ottmar Eberbach; Shirley W. Smith, A. M., secretary of the University of Michigan; Major W. C. Stevens, A. B.; V. C. Vaughn, Sc. D., M. D., dean of the Department of Medicine of the University of Michigan; James H. Wade, ex-secretary of the University of Michigan; D. W. Springer, B. S., secretary of the National Educational Association, is secretary of the board of directors; Charles A. Sink, A. B., is business manager.

The May Festival will consist of four evening concerts and two matinees. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under Frederick Stock, will take part in all of the concerts but one, which will be devoted to a program of organ music. Choral work will be done under the direction of Professor Stanley by the University Choral Union, a supplementary chorus of school children, and a special chorus of boys.

The complete programs are as follows:
FIRST FESTIVAL CONCERT, WEDNESDAY
EVENING, MAY 18, 8 O'CLOCK

Soloists—Margaret Ober, contralto; Clarence Whitehill, bass; the University Choral Union; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Albert A. Stanley and Frederick Stock, conductors.

America
Chorus and Orchestra
Overture to Oberon.....Weber
Aria from Thais (Alexandria).....Massenet
Mr. Whitehill
Symphonic Poem—The Sirens.....Gliere
Aria of Fides Prophet.....Meyerbeer
Miss Ober
Overture—Fantasia, Hamlet, Op. 67.....Tchaikowsky
Aria of Katharine, The Taming of the Shrew.....Goetz
Miss Ober
Siegfried in the Forest (Siegfried).....Wagner
Wotan's Farewell and Magic Fire Scene (Die Walkure).....Wagner
Mr. Whitehill

SECOND FESTIVAL CONCERT, THURSDAY
EVENING, MAY 20, 8 O'CLOCK

Soloists—Olive Kline, soprano; Theodore Harrison, baritone; the University Choral Union; Special Boys' Chorus; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Albert A. Stanley, conductor.

The New Life.....Wolf-Ferrari
Intermission
Prologue and Finale from Paradise Lost.....Bossi

THIRD FESTIVAL CONCERT, FRIDAY AFTER-NOON, MAY 21, 2:30 O'CLOCK

Soloists—Margaret Keyes, contralto; Harold Bauer, pianist; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor.
Overture—Leonore, Op. 72, No. 3.....Beethoven
Aria—Penelope Weaving a Garment (Odysseus)....Bruch

Miss Keyes
Concerto for Pianoforte, A minor, Op. 57.....Schumann
Allegro affettuoso
Intermezzo
Allegro vivace

Intermission
Symphony No. 1, C minor, Op. 68.....Brahms
Un poco sostenuto-allegro
Andante sostenuto
Un poco allegretto e grazioso
Adagio-piu andante
Allegro non troppo ma con brio

FOURTH FESTIVAL CONCERT, FRIDAY
EVENING, MAY 21, 8 O'CLOCK

Soloists—John McCormack, tenor; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor.
Overture—In Spring Time, Op. 36.....Goldmark
Recitative and Aria—Deeper and Deeper Still Waft the Angels through the Skies (Jephthah).....Handel
Mr. McCormack

Largo from Symphony No. 5, E minor, Op. 95
(New World).....Dvorak
Recitative and Aria from Faust (Salut Deneure)
Gounod

Mr. McCormack
Life's Dance.....Delius
Intermission

Suite—Piemontesi.....Singaglia
Rustic Dance
Carnival
Songs (to be announced)
Mr. McCormack

Rhapsody—Italia.....Casella
FIFTH FESTIVAL CONCERT, SATURDAY
AFTERNOON, MAY 22, 2:30 O'CLOCK

Soloists—Margaret Keyes, contralto; Theodore Harrison, baritone; Leewellyn L. Renwick, organist.
Praeludium.....Erwin Lendvai
Fuga Cromatica.....A. Liadow
Evening Song.....E. C. Baird
Pavane.....Bernard Johnson
Aria—Agnus Dei.....Bizet

Miss Keyes
Sonata, No. 6.....Filippo Capocci
Allegro moderato
Andantino espressivo
Theme and variations
Songs (to be announced)
Mr. Harrison

Arcadian Idyll.....Edwin Lemare
Serenade
Musette
Solitude
Scherzo.....W. C. Macfarlane
Evening Bells and Cradle Song.....W. C. Macfarlane
Toccata.....Faulkes

SIXTH FESTIVAL CONCERT, SATURDAY
EVENING, MAY 22, 8 O'CLOCK

Soloists—Leonora Allen, soprano; Ada Grace Johnson, soprano; Olive Kline, soprano; Lambert Murphy, tenor; Clarence Whitehill, bass; the University Choral Union; Special Children's Chorus; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Albert A. Stanley, conductor.

The Children's Crusade.....Pierne
C. A. S.

SOCIETY OF MUSIC TEACHERS OF IOWA

The twentieth annual meeting of the Society of Music Teachers of Iowa will be held at Waterloo, Ia., in May. Mrs. Frederick Heizer (Sioux City) is President, James P. Moorhead (Fairfield) Vice President, Hilda M. Matthey (Davenport) Secretary-Treasurer, Charles F. Grade (Muscatine) and C. A. Fullerton (Cedar Falls) comprise the Executive Committee.

Rouse—Mr. Charles Rouse sang the baritone parts in Maunders' "Olvet to Calvary" at St. Paul's Church on March 28, and will sing this (Good Friday) evening in "Crucifixion" at the same church.

OMAHA

Monday afternoon at the Brandeis Theater at 4 o'clock, George Hamlin, tenor, and Frances Nash, pianist, of Omaha, gave a joint recital under the auspices of the ladies of the Presbyterian Church, drawing a capacity audience. Hamlin, as usual, was thoroughly satisfactory, while Miss Nash more than sustained the standard set when she appeared with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and delighted her hearers.

The Cathedral Choir gave a very satisfactory concert at the Auditorium on March 9 before an unusually large audience.

At the close of the coming week the Boyd Theater Stock Company will alter its policy, and will give a series of musical comedies, light operas, etc. The policy was tried some years ago quite successfully and it is thought that the business will be materially increased thereby as Omaha people are partial to musical attractions of that nature.

This is the time of small Lenten musicals. Almost every day some function of this nature takes place, several being scheduled for the coming week.

A quartet from Millie Ryan's Studio, assisted by the Fontanelle Glee Club, was the attraction at the Boyd Theater for "society night" last week. Cox's Violin Choir will be the attraction the coming Tuesday and Gustaf Holmquist from Chicago is announced for March 30.

Omaha musicians are greatly delighted over the announcement that both the New York and Boston Symphony Orchestras are to visit Omaha. We feel that we are very fortunate, having had the Minneapolis Orchestra with Frances Nash in February, and the Chicago Orchestra are to come to us in connection with the Mendelssohn Choir with a fine corps of soloists the latter part of April. Then on May 7 the New York Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, and an Omaha girl as piano soloist, will be here, and great interest is manifest, for most of Omaha is on the qui vive to hear Miss Corinne Paulson, who has been for a number of years in Berlin, but the announcement that a fund had been subscribed to bring the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in connection with a number of international stars, to Omaha next season has more than delighted the Omaha music loving populace. Verily, it looks as if Omaha were in line to establish an orchestra of its own, which would be so very welcome.

Announcement is made of the opening of studios in our city by Louise Le Baron and Walter Wheatley for voice production and operatic coaching. They will be gladly welcomed to the musical circles of Omaha.

The Elks Glee Club, Alexander Eamsley, director, will give a concert at the Brandeis Theater April 9. The club is said to sing exceptionally well. They will go to Los Angeles in July to represent the Omaha lodge at the Grand lodge.

The Y. M. C. A. Glee Club, Lee G. Crats, director, gave a recital at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday last and they sang at the Auditorium March 23 and at the Dietz Memorial Church March 8.

Recitals will be given the coming week by the pupils of the following local teachers: Frank Mack, violin; Henry Cox, orchestral instruments; Louise Zabriskie, violin; Walter Graham, voice; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Berglum, piano; Goodwal Dickerman, voice.

Mme. Johanna Galski will give a recital in the ballroom of the Fontanelle Hotel April 6.

Mme. Jomelli is announced for one week at the Orpheum Theater beginning March 28. Many of the operatic stars seem to be finding their way into vaudeville, much to the delight of the vaudeville patrons.

Wednesday, March 31, the choir of the First Methodist Episcopal Church will sing "The Creation" under the direction of Edward Carnell. The choir will be augmented by fifteen outside singers, making a chorus of forty voices. GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

— # # # —

American Conservatory—Advanced piano pupils of Silvio Scionti and voice pupils of Karleton Hackett and O. E. Robinson will give a Concert at Kimball Hall Saturday afternoon, March 3, at 3:30, and advanced piano pupils of May Doelling and Edna Cookingham will play at the same place Tuesday evening, April 6.

HAYDN CHORAL SOCIETY IN "CREATION"

On Friday evening, April 9, the Haydn Choral Society, under direction of H. W. Owens, will give Haydn's "Creation" at Orchestra Hall, assisted by thirty members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The soloists will be Miss Lucille Stevenson, Mr. Edward Walker and Mr. Charles W. Clark.

Edward C. Moore, writing in the Chicago Journal, said of this society recently:

Chicagoans should be proud of the Haydn Choral Society. Three times in recent years have they won for this city international honors in choral contests. It is their intention to compete in the international contest to be held in San Francisco in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and the good wishes of every Chicago music lover should go with them. They will give "The Creation" in Orchestra Hall, April 9, and we may all be assured that Haydn's famous oratorio will be excellently rendered.

— # # # —

Silber—Mr. Sidney Silber lectured on "Music as a Cultural Force" before the Lecture Circle of Lincoln, Nebr., at the home of Mrs. H. K. Burkett last week.

SPECIAL OFFER

Hugo Kaun

Melodious Etudes, Op. 23

Highly endorsed by leading teachers in Europe and America

Price $1.00, Special Offer 45c

Postpaid

Fillmore's Modern Graded Course

For the Pianoforte in Eight Grades

Embodies every feature in line with MODERN PEDAGOGY

Price Each Grade . $1.00
Special Offer . 30c

Postpaid

ELEANOR EVERETT FREER

Lyric Studies, Op. 3

These Studies of unusual value for Teaching or Concert work

Price $1.25, Special Offer 75c

Postpaid

Bernhard Ziehn—Theoretical Works

Manual of Harmony, . . . Price $2.50
Five and Six Part Harmonies, " 1.75 Canonical Studies, . . . " 3.50

Postpaid

THEODORE THOMAS—"Ziehn is the greatest living Authority."

OTTO LESSMAN (Berlin, Germany)—"Ziehn's Manual of Harmony is the work of a genius."

HANS von BUELOW—"Ziehn is the greatest theorist of music in the world."

PROFESSOR RIEMANN—"I recommend these books of Ziehn for every teacher or pupil, every master or disciple of music."

Wm. A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN

Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

Residence 5433 Harper Av.

Associate Vocal Instructor
Tel. Midway 8963

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

ELISABETH HARTING
Who Gave a Recital at Assembly Hall last Sunday

ELISABETH HARTING

Miss Elisabeth Harting is a young violinist of great ability. She has a winning personality and a fine concert poise.

She is a pupil of Hugo Kortshak and under his guidance she has attained a fine degree of finish.

Miss Harting has good musicianship and much musical temperament.

Her attractive stage presence and ingratiating manner is a great asset.

She proved her ability to cope with violin literature of wide content, playing as her first group, the Dvorak "Sonata for Violin and Piano, Op. 100." Miss Harting has power and also a splendid sense of rhythm. Her pianissimo work is very fine and her tone work throughout of good quality. In her second group, including numbers by Leclair and Nardini, she showed great versatility in musical interpretation. The "Andante" from the Mendelssohn concerto, Randegger's "Pierrot Serenade" and the Brahms-Joachim "Hungarian Dance" were the numbers of the second group, played in a most effective manner. The "Andante" and "Pierrot Serenade" were delightful in every respect.

Miss Harting closed the most delightful program with the Wieniawski "Russian Airs," which were so well liked that an encore was demanded and graciously given.

Mr. Isaac Van Grove played accompaniments that were artistic and musicianly in every respect, adding much to the pleasure of the program.

— # # # —

Mixer—Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist, will play solos and ensemble with harp and organ at the Easter morning service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Kenwood. He will also appear Easter evening as soloist at the Englewood Sunday Evening Club.

— # # # —

Schuman—Miss Edith Schuman, contralto, appeared at the Illinois Club last Sunday afternoon, singing "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice" (Saint-Saens), "Inter Nos" (MacFayden), "Elegie" (Massenet) and "Good Bye" (Tosti), with several encores, which were eagerly demanded.

— # # # —

Garton—Samuel B. Garton sang at a musical at the home of Dr. Burdick in Rogers Park Monday evening, using "Spring Song," McKenzie; "Spring," Hildach, and "Sunbeams," Ronald. Mrs. R. G. Stronach accompanied the singer.

CELEBRATED GRAND OPERA STAR PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO MISS E. LOUISE KRAUSE, PUPIL OF MARVIN HINSHAW

Since the close of the opera season in Chicago, Miss Jennie Dufau, the celebrated grand opera prima donna, has been devoting much time to hearing, advising and aiding professional singers and graduate students from various schools and teachers who have operatic aspirations.

It is certainly a great benefit to any singer to receive criticism and helpful ideas from one so eminently qualified to give them as Miss Dufau. While Mr. Hinshaw has never had the pleasure of Miss Dufau's personal acquaintance, he realizes fully what it means to any young singer to have the opportunity of a hearing and criticism from a great artist.

Miss E. Louise Krause is a young lady of a prominent family in Forest Park, and came to Mr. Hinshaw for her first study two years ago in January and, while she had many serious difficulties to overcome, her rise in the musical world has been remarkable. At the end of her first year's study she was singing public concerts with much success; at the expiration of eighteen months' study she gave up a prominent business position to accept an engagement to sing the prima donna role in the opera "Bohemian Girl" over the Britt Lyceum

WARRREN
PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

and Chautauqua Circuit, in which she won the plaudits of both press and public during the ten weeks' engagements.

Upon her return to the city she resumed her studies with Mr. Hinshaw, at the same time teaching as one of his assistants, in which capacity she has proven a splendid success.

Miss Krause recently sang the soprano role in "The Messiah" with the Orpheus Choral Society and members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and was accorded the highest honors of the evening by the audience, musical critics and the director personally. Her singing is in constant demand by the fashionable clubs of the city.

A short time ago Mr. Hinshaw sent Miss Krause to sing for Miss Dufau, who was enthusiastic in her praise of the young artist and afterward mailed the following letter to Mr. Hinshaw, of which he is duly appreciative:

"My dear Mr. Hinshaw: Miss Krause has been here and I am glad to say that she has a very lovely voice and—quite a wonder!—with good training and not spoiled! It is the very first voice that comes to me without having been spoiled in one way or another. Sincere compliments to her teacher!

"With kindest regards, truly yours,
JENNY DUFAU."

— # # # —

Tomlinson—Miss Anna Tomlinson is now at studio 612 Fine Arts Building, and announces that she will there give a recital by the children and intermediate pupils of her class on Friday evening, April 9. Tickets may be had on application to her.

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

ist's style and method made a deep impression upon his auditors.

His reading of the Bach opus was distinguished by a deep sympathy, an astonishing depth of reverential feeling—indeed his eventuation of the solo was masterly in every respect, and could not possibly fail of enchainning the interest of those who heard him.

Different from this was the sweetness and poetry floating through the charming little "Berceuse," while the Slav intensity of enjoyment, the dash, the swing, the brilliance of the Brahms "Dance" constituted an extreme of sweeping joyousness to the calm softness of the lullaby.

Here again Mr. Tourret was forced to give again of his so exquisitely refined art.

Mme. Destinn was heard in groups of songs and Riccardo Martin provided an "Aria" and three ballads.

It goes without saying that the high points of interest lay in the performances of Messrs. Hinshaw and Tourret.

h h h

Mme. Narelle Wins a Great Success in Montreal

From Canada comes news of the successful appearance of Marie Narelle in Montreal where she swept all before her, and won an overwhelming triumph.

Excerpt from a letter received on the morning of the 24th of March from an English woman allied with more than one noble family, and which reads as follows:

"You had given me the assurance of a great treat in store; and doubting Thomas that I always am, I made ready to suffer the usual disappointments waiting upon too high hopes. But I feel that I ought to offer an apology of some kind for doubting your opinion for an instant; for your soprano is truly a singer of many talents; not the least of these her great charm of manner and person. She is a woman who seems to smile sincerely as well as sweetly, and she captured her audience before she uttered a note.

"Her breath control seemed marvelous after the heaving of shoulders and the little gasps one has to listen to from other singers while one watches their actions.

"Her enunciation is perfect, and the French people in the audience were really wild about her fine diction and the love she seemed to show for their language. I shall always remember how wonderfully she sang Gluck's "Divinite du Styx," that frightfully difficult aria; which seems to demand such ability to express one's self. Well, she sang it through, and showed she had all the qualities of a grand operatic star. And the cute little "Printemps" just made me shut my eyes and revel.

"And the Irish songs. Well, my dear, she just walked away with them, and not an Irishman but swore there wasn't a Singer in the world who could sing the Irish Songs with her. Which I suppose she knows full well, having the trick of them all at her fingers' ends.

"But you will never believe that she won over all with her Scotch Songs, and the people, especially the soldiers, fairly howled when she struck up the "March of the Cameron Men," they fairly whooped and stamped their feet. It was like a little cyclone.

"I'm told we are to have her next season again. A re-engagement on the spot, 'tis said, etc., etc."

h h h

Miss Purdy Sings

A delightful program was offered at the Musicales Tea at the Majestic Hotel on the afternoon of March 27th, in which Miss Constance Purdy, contralto, and Mr. George Harris participated. Though burdened with a heavy bronchial cold, Miss Purdy went through her program, and even gave encores without flinching. She bravely and one might say blithely took up her task, and delivered her message with rare artistry and taste. If her beautiful voice was somewhat clouded it still gave much delight to her audience, which seemed entirely en rapport with her mood.

She was heard in duets in which Mr. Harris, a favorite young tenor, co-operated with her, and in groups of songs by modern American composers.

A "Duet" by Marion Bauer went so well that it was redemanded. It seemed well

S. AND O. RADANOVITS
VOICE CULTURE
Room 404, 59 East Van Buren St., CHICAGO, ILL.

suited to the Singers' voices, as did a duet with a charming melody and swing, by Gena Branscombe.

Miss Mabel Hammond supplied a discreet and at all times reliable and well subordinated accompaniment at the piano, proving herself a delightful accompanist, and one who realized the importance of the complementary position in the ensemble.

After a siege of foreign accompanists and some indigenuous growth presiding at the piano with the all-conquering air the up to date accompanist deems it necessary to assume, Miss Hammond's modesty, simplicity and tact were refreshing.

Mr. Harris was heard in several groups, and won the attention and applause of the audience.

There was a pleasant half hour's interlude in which tea, cakes and the daintiest of sandwiches were offered.

The musical program follows:

The Night Sea.....	Mrs. H. H. A. Beach
	Miss Purdy and Mr. Harris
We Two Together.....
A Serenade at the Villa.....	Marshall Kernochan
Lilacs.....
Folk Song.....	Mr. Harris
Orpheus with His Lute.....	Charles F. Manney
The Lady Picking Mulberries.....	E. Stillman-Kelley
Twilight.....	Walter Morse Rummel
	Miss Purdy
Laughter Wears a Lilled Gown.....	Gena Branscombe
	Miss Purdy and Mr. Harris
The Lily and the River.....	Marion Bauer
	(First time)
	Miss Purdy and Mr. Harris

To You, Dear Heart.....	F. Morris Glass
Song of the Nile.....	Courtlandt Palmer
The Pipes of Gordon's Men.....	Hammond
	Mr. Harris

The Rose's Cup.....	Ward Stephens
The White Blossoms Off the Bog.....	Fay Foster
An April Violet.....	William Arms Fisher
Youth Comes Dancing O'er the Meadows.....	Marion Bauer
	Miss Purdy

Venice.....	Victor Harris
	Miss Purdy and Mr. Harris
	Miss Mabel Hammond and Walter H. Golde at the piano

The half hour with refreshments and the opportunity of chatting with acquaintances and the artists is a happy innovation which might be followed with profit at other similar functions. The impressario is to be congratulated upon his foresight and originality.

h h h

Reception to David Bispham

Mme. Cecile M. Behrens, the charming and well known pianist, threw open her Suite and Music Room to a large number of guests on March 28. The occasion was a reception in honor of David Bispham, baritone, and all round charming artist and gentleman.

Mr. Bispham was of course the center of attraction, and well he might be; he was so very good to look at with his fine, fresh color, and sparkling eye defying his white hair; the buoyancy of his demeanor; his almost jaunty carriage, tokens of the eternal youth belonging to men of his kind. I felt myself humming "O ruddier than the cherry," that Handelian "Aria" Mr. Bispham has made almost his own.

An attractive musical program was offered in which the hostess shone as the bright particular star, attired in a white and pale pink costume, with point lace and glittering embroideries.

She played more than well Liszt's Rhapsody No. 2, and Mason's "Spring Dawn."

Many notable men and women were present, and elaborate refreshments were offered.

—###—

Northwestern—The string quartet of the Northwestern University School of Music will give a concert at Music Hall in Evanston next Tuesday evening.

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

MONICA GRAHAM
Columbia School of Music

STULTS WALTER ALLEN
SOPRANO BASS
303 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANISTE NEUHAUS

WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - - ST. LOUIS

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing

81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST

Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE

Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F.

TENOR

PLATZ

Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST

Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE

Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO

27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE

PIANISTE

KING

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Miss Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals

4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler

CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS
410 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO

LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

ALFRED GOLDMAN

CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS

Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Music Abroad

DRESDEN

Fritz Reiner, the young leader of the Royal Orchestra, successor to our incomparable Ernst von Schuch, is rapidly gaining ground as a musician of high distinction. Not only his operatic efforts have been crowned with marked success, also his presentations of orchestral concert numbers have been unanimously recognized by the entire press. The other day his direction of Bruckner's seventh symphony (in E) should be stamped as a genuine musical feast. Reiner is a man of great magnetism, energy and sincere feeling who, in his own artistic enthusiasm has the power to enthrall his hearers. Considering his youth (only 27 years of age), he looks forward to a great future. So far as we know his gifts for the present, he is a model interpreter of Mozart, Bizet, Beethoven, Bruckner, "Tales of Hoffmann" (Offenbach), and many others. His Wagner and Verdi ("Traviata") readings will in future meet with even greater perfection than for the present, at least as far as tonal charm, aetherial shadings, pianissimo effects and visionary mood are concerned, such as for instance displayed by Schuch, in the "Lohengrin Vorspiel." Fritz Reiner is altogether the "new man" in Dresden, a musician of high idealistic aims, to whom we look up as to the one who will carry out idealistic tendencies into practical results. Reiner has also been heard here as a pianist from the concert stage. Indeed, he is a versatile musician, such as one but rarely meets with.

The fourth philharmonic concert introduced Heinrich Hensel, the famous Wagner singer, to the Dresden audience. The singer meanwhile was so hoarse, suffering with a serious cold, that a judgment of his presentations was out of place. The sisters Satz assisted with Mozart and Brahms interpretations on two pianos.

Teresa Carreno, in her recital, played gloriously. Never have we witnessed such model readings of Brahms Handel variations and Schumann's symphonic studies. The pianist's individual conceptions, her temperament and deep poetic sentiment carried everything before her.

A prominent pianist of great things in future is Edwin Fischer, who went through a very ambitious program, comprising, among other items, Beethoven's Op. 111, Bach's chromatic fugue, etc.

At a charming musicale in the American colony, a young singer, Miss Effie Volkman, made a successful debut. She gave some Schubert songs and, as a novelty here, August Sieberg's (the American composer) concert waltz, "In Sylvan Shade," a very effective coloratura number, which concert singers should do well to take up. It is both original and brilliant, revealing the composer's well-known musical traits. Publishers are the White-Smith Publishing Company of Boston.

Jean Louis Nicode conducted in person his great "Gloria Symphony," which was down for a performance on Ash Wednesday, in the Opera House. Nicode's life's work is no more new, the symphony having long ago achieved its critical judgment by both press and public outside Dresden. It is modeled entirely after Richard Strauss, both as to its spiritual content and regarding orchestration and technical construction. The composer, having for so long been waiting to have his work performed by the glorious Dresden Royal Orchestra, had every reason to be pleased. He certainly looked so while appearing before the footlights to accept the public's ovations.

At the two first examination concerts of the Royal Conservatory, pupils of Laura Rappoldi Kahrer achieved great recognition. Frhn. Huebler played the Brahms concerto, Holbe the Brahms sonata, Op. 38, also the "Concerto in G Minor" by Joseph Wieniawski. Franz Jung, a child prodigy, did some astounding work in Bach interpretations. Scholars of other teachers such as Vetter Lange-Frahberg, Professor Emil Feigert Urbach, Willie, as well as by the ladies Ogalja Orgein, Braunroth, Gasteyer and others did their masters credit in every way. Space forbids details.

Two Dresden artists, the pianist Natalie von Ziegler and the singer Mrs. Pepper-Schorling, gave a joint recital in benefit of the war sufferers. Miss Ziegler introduced some novelty compositions of her own. She also gave good support to the Royal concertmaster, Rudolph Bartick, who assisted with some soli and Grieg's "G Minor Sonata," Op. 13. The violin aroused great interest with Heinrich G. Noren's "Albumblatt." Mrs. Pepper's well-known qualities as a singer, also those of the pianist, won due comment by press and audience. The singer's beautiful alto is full of sonority. She has been heard on several occasions recently.

A. INGMAN.

Dresden, Germany, March, 1915.

— — — — —

Protheroe—The following is a partial list of the engagements of Miss Helen Protheroe, soprano pupil of Daniel Protheroe, December 31 to January 1 recitals at Utica, N. Y.: "Messiah," Milwaukee, Wisconsin, with Ryan Music Club; "Hymn of Praise," Mendelssohn, in Cleveland, Ohio, February 4; Sunday March 28, "Messiah," Irish Choral Society, Chicago. Daniel Protheroe, conductor; Sunday, April 4, "Messiah," at the Third Presbyterian, Chicago. Daniel Protheroe Conductor. Miss Protheroe and Mr. Protheroe will give a recital in Cambridge, Wisconsin.

— — — — —

Bush Temple—The Bush Temple Conservatory presented Mr. Eugene Musser in piano recital at the Conservatory Hall on last Friday evening, his program comprising numbers from Brahms, Stavenhagen, Cyril Scott, and MacDowell in solo form and the Mendelssohn G minor "Concerto" in which the second piano part was played by his teacher, Miss Grace Potter. Songs were given by Miss Alice Lucile Calvert.

— — — — —

Davis—Ernest J. Davis will sing the tenor role in the "Messiah" at the Third Presbyterian Church Sunday, April 4.

80.5 Jack
MUN
"THE MESSIAH" ISSUE

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

CHICAGO, AMERICA

APRIL 9, 1915

Charles La Berge
BARITONE

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.

64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

'An exquisite little song.'—D. A. Clippinger.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries. Phone Harrison 1784

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST & ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 322 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, APRIL 9, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrass 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence

400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, April 9, 1915

No. 15

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Time was when "The Messiah" belonged exclusively to Christmas, but of late years many societies have been giving it at Easter time as well and in Chicago, during the last ten days, it has had no fewer than three important presentations, as may be noted in our review columns.

At Lindsborg, Kan., the great "Messiah" festival is just finished and as Music News today carries a complete review of that impressive event it is but meet to call the current issue of this paper "The Messiah" issue.

§ § §

Overheard on the Lake Street Elevated: First Passenger—"Do you know that the Chicago and Oak Park "L" is mentioned in the Bible?" "No," said Passenger No. 2. "Where?" "In Genesis," said No. 1. "It says that the Lord created all creeping things"

§ § §

Just as Music News predicted—the Eastern newspapers, and especially the music papers, are having much concern because of the fact that Geraldine Farrar has been engaged for the next Chicago Grand Opera season. This favorite soprano is not yet announced even tentatively for New York, but is under contract for at least ten appearances in Chicago.

Melba and Schumann-Heink have also accepted contracts and with many other fine singers under consideration it begins to seem that our next opera season will be the best we have yet had.

§ § §

The Musical Advance quotes Lilli Lehmann as saying in her recently published book that it "nauseates" her to have praise for her work in a paper which also contains praise of "mediocrities."

A moment's reflection will show how illogical is this stand. Mme. Lilli was herself, at one time a beginner and as such she was a "mediocrity" of course. Now, supposing that no one or no paper had held out a helping hand to her, would she ever have arrived anywhere? It is very easy for a woman who is long past the time when she remembers her early days of struggle to talk disparagingly of beginners and mediocrities, but it would be more in

Who keeps one end in view makes all things serve.

—Browning.

keeping for her to remember that she herself came through the same mill.

Everything in music is comparative; every one is a "beginner" or a "mediocrity" as compared to some one else unless we are dealing with the half dozen at the very top and even these would each one agree quite heartily that some of the others (even of six) were hardly worthy of attention.

It is therefore no part of the business of any paper to discriminate absolutely or to condemn utterly. The best that can be said about any one young or old, mediocrity or artist, will not hurt any paper in the saying nor will it hurt the artists who have arrived somewhere to remember that those who are not so far along today may perhaps surpass them tomorrow.

§ § §

The diction of the Musical Courier is usually above reproach; in fact a chaste elegance surrounds most of the articles in that paper.

However, even Homer nodded at times, and in the last issue of the Courier the Chicago correspondent of that paper is guilty of a misuse of words which, though common, should find no place in so dignified a journal as the Courier.

We quote from the Chicago letter the following:

Due to other duties only one of the soloists could be heard by this writer, Anne Sullivan, mezzo-soprano and pupil of Louise St. John Westervelt, who disclosed a voice of large compass, well trained and most agreeable to the ear in the aria of Salome from Massenet's "Herodiade." Miss Sullivan is a credit to her teacher, as well as to the Columbia School, and she showed great possibilities in the difficult aria, which was sung exceptionally well in the vernacular, and though Miss Sullivan has never been abroad, her French was excellent and her diction, as well as her style, were potent factors in making her success most decisive and deserved.

Now, French is "in the vernacular" when one is in the country which is the home of Massenet, but in Chicago, at the Blackstone Theater, English is "vernacular," as may be proven by any unabridged dictionary.

§ § §

A good Easter hymn sung very seldom is "Hermes," composed by Havergal, in 1872. Try it next year.

§ § §

Does the driving of an auto cause loss of those finer feelings which go to make up the niceties of life? It would seem that almost anyone would refrain from unnecessary tooting of the auto horn when passing a church in which a Good Friday evening service is being held but, unfortunately, such does not prove to be the case, and many services in the boulevard churches were rudely interrupted many times last Friday evening.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton Scho
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Living 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR
SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR
ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE KURTZ
RALF Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

CHICAGO MADRIGAL CLUB

Mr. D. A. Clippinger and his associates did a good thing for the community when they organized the Madrigal Club. With the healthiest sort of growth and progress the compact little club has built for itself an unique and enjoyable niche, and occupies it smilingly and cheerfully and to the entire satisfaction of a loyal group of supporters, who fill the seats at the concerts.

The Madrigals have succeeded because they have been true to their tenets. We do not look to them for the turgid and dramatic, but for the graceful and pleasant and humorous phases of life as illustrated in music. They refresh us by what they present, by doing everything with a finely human touch and with no straining after the intense utterance. There are no climaxes of thundering portent at their concerts. When they sing Palestrina they unravel his counterpoint with hearty willingness and sturdiness, and then they turn to the contrasting solemnity of the Russian Liturgy and sing Gretchaninoff's "Cherubini Song" with rounded dignity. They take the old French "Lovely Groves" of Tessier and sing it with a jolly swing, and then do the "Ladies of Lyon," with the daintiness of its Watteau sort of text and make it appear like a bit of fine china. When they touch Bantock's "On Himalay" they use a lovely velvet tone of sweetness and mellowness that is so irresistible that the number must be repeated. They sing Edward C. Moore's (he of "The Journal") "Take Those Lips Away" with the mock heroics of the verses and a good sense of the capital setting. The Kimball prize composition for the year is from the indefatigable Will C. MacFarlane and is quite dancy and full of the "Fa-la-las" that are properly associated with Madrigal literature. Later on the program shows that Adolf Weidig has done an excellent job in turning some Irish airs into four-part form, and the humor of "Kitty of Coleraine" and the sentiment of "Molly Bawn" and passion of the "Tender Apple Blossom" all live anew in grateful strophes. Only in the "Oft in the Silly Night" are the fingers not quite up to their expected form, just missing the tender yearning which Tom Moore put into the words so many years ago. But the ladies of the club do all of this and more when they take hold of Goring-Thomas' "Willow," an exquisite cameo of sound. And the men are irresistible in Margaret Lang's "Limericks" and have to repeat them. They still find no new madrigals that can out class the old ones, and so they do Richardson's "Mary" with most delicious unction. For a rousing close they choose Daniel Protheroe's well made "When Comes My Love" and sing it for all it is worth.

All this pleasure was in evidence when the club gave its second concert of the season on Monday evening (March 29) to a fine audience at the new Central Music Hall, and in one sense at least rededicated the auditorium to new usefulness. Mrs. Snow received congratulations all around for the auspicious opening.

ALBERT COTSWORTHIL

Bryant-Buckingham—Adah Bryant-Buckingham, contralto, was the soloist at Unity Temple, Oak Park, Sunday, April 4.

ADAH BRYANT BUCKINGHAM

Adah Bryant Buckingham, who recently has been elected chairman of the musical program committee of the Arche Club, possesses a contralto voice of wide range and beautiful, rich quality. She sings with much dramatic fervor and moving pathos which, combined with her fine enunciation, pleasing personality and commanding stage presence, always win her success.

Mrs. Buckingham has held some of the highest salaried church positions in the country and has appeared with many of the large musical societies, such as "The Choral Symphony," St. Louis, and "The Apollo Club" and "Thomas Orchestra," Chicago. During her residence in Chicago she has sung for the following women's clubs: "The Arche," "The Bryn Mawr," "The Englewood" and "The Woodlawn." Mrs. Buckingham finds that one engagement almost invariably brings another or a re-engagement.

Mrs. Buckingham's vocal instruction was obtained from the best masters of singing in New York City and Berlin, Germany. Her broad education, splendid method and keen intelligence have made her a most excellent teacher as well as singer. She will now become thoroughly a part of the musical life of Chicago and will devote herself to teaching the art of singing and will also be available for song recital, concert, oratorio, club or social engagements.

Fischel—Mr. and Mrs. Max Fischel are being congratulated on the arrival of a baby daughter. The name of the newcomer is Maxine.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD
Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

Music in Chicago

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

The Chicago Piano College presented advanced pupils in a program of piano music at Kimball Hall last Tuesday evening and once more demonstrated to a large audience that it is most fortunate in its pupils, the latter in turn proving that the school is one which knows how to produce definite and valuable results.

Of the numbers heard by this writer, Mildred Gipe was clear and convincing in the Chopin "Scherzo," Op. 31; Alma Street showed musical qualities in a Tchaikowsky "Romance"; Ada Marie McCarty produced pure tone and held to good rhythm in the "Gondoliera," Liszt, though it was taken at a very slow rate of speed; Miss Donna Clough did some very creditable bravura work in the Rubinstein "Valse Caprice," and Helen Browne proved herself to be in the young artist class by her temperamental and technically advanced rendition of "Scenes from an Imaginary Ballet," by Coleridge-Taylor.

This is a new work, evidently, or at least it is very far from being hackneyed and it is one well worth the attention of teachers and advanced pupils.

Other solo numbers were by Nellie Fisk, Lavinia Kent, Agnes Peterson, Florence Watson, Agnes Davidson, Julia Perry, Frieda Friedman and Irene Greider, the total of numbers forming a thoroughly attractive program and the total of pianism displayed being very good.

Elizabeth Leitch played the Saint-Saens "Concerto," Op. 22, and Mary E. Emery the "Concertstueck" of Chaminade, the first having the advantage of second piano accompaniment from Harmon H. Watt and the second of Miss Eleanor F. Godfrey.

Both the players were thoroughly admirable in the poise and authority with which they invested their work. C. E. W.

BUSH CONSERVATORY NOTES

Friday evening, April 9, a recital will be given by Mr. Earl Victor Prahl, pianist, and Mr. Rowland E. Leach, violinist. Mr. Edgar A. Nelson will be the accompanist.

Friday evening, April 16, a benefit recital will be given for Mary Thomas, the wonderful child violinist, who will be assisted by Violet Borne, the wonderful child pianist. Mary Thomas is a pupil of Mr. Guy Herbert Woodard, and Violet Bourne is a pupil of Mme. Julie Rive-King.

Friday evening, April 23, a recital will be given by Mr. Robert Yale Smith, pianist, and Mme. Justine Wegener, soprano.

Friday evening, April 30, a recital will be given by Mr. Guy Herbert Woodard, violinist, and Mr. David Baxter, Scotch basso.

Those desiring programs of the above recitals will receive same by sending their names and addresses to Mr. Edward H. Schwenker, secretary of the Bush Conservatory.

MacBurney—The MacBurney Club entertained Mrs. Frank King Clark and Miss Helen Stanley at a banquet on last Wednesday evening.

WALTER ALLEN STULTS' PUPIL IN RECITAL

Great enthusiasm prevailed in the Music Hall of the Northwestern School of Music out at Evanston on Thursday evening when Mr. Walter Allen Stults presented his professional pupil, Harold Dale Saurer, in recital. In the exit one admirer gave vent to his feelings thus: "Well, he certainly did put those things over in great shape." The comment was pretty well endorsed by the audience.

Mr. Saurer is equipped with the valuable natural gifts of youth, talent, voice, temperament and personality—a rather formidable array with which to battle down the walls of industry, application and drudgery which surround success. So far he certainly has used them well and he sings not only with enthusiasm, spontaneity and abandon, but with a thorough submission to the evidently good training he has received. Not least of the things which win him friends is a freedom from self-consciousness. It has been a long time since the reviewer has heard a young person sing who so fitted into the text of the old song, "I Sing Because I Love to Sing."

His program embraced the usual contrasting styles and failed in variety in only one instance. With a voice of such youth and freshness, an intense, passionate love song was really to be expected. The voice in quality is a high baritone and preserved its quality to the full range. In no number was this range, flexibility, resonance and responsiveness better evidenced than in the Handel "Honor and Arms," which opened the list. His German group had warmth and strong feeling both for music and thought. The operatic excerpt, the "Di Possente" from Gounod's "Faust," was the least satisfactory offering. He differentiated capably a group of old and new ballads, being notably interesting in Carpenter's "Don't Cease," and not quite hitting the mark in Lohr's "Ringers." His last group included Grant-Schaefer's "Wind Speaks," a simply gorgeous song, and Mr. Lewis N. Dodge's new song, "The Call of the Sea," and a "Korean Song," by Miss Eberhardt, of unusual form and quality, and worthy wide hearing. Mr. Dodge's song had the additional charm of his own accompaniment. He has done something along fine lines and while he has been modern, in his way of continuous melody, he has made himself lucid and at all times strong and virile, and given something distinctively good to song literature.

Miss Frances Stults must have praise for well thought out and well played accompaniments.

With reverent use of his great natural gifts, Mr. Saurer should go far in the profession he has chosen. And Mr. Stults is to be congratulated as well.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Homer—Mr. Sidney Homer and his wife, Mme. Louise Homer, announce the birth of a baby girl at their home in Rye, N. Y., last week.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

BAILEY

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Miss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling

Pianist Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST Mezzo-Soprano
1403 E. 68th STREET PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2423 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Great Pianists Demand Great Pianos

That is why so many have turned enthusiastically—
finally—to the

Mason & Hamlin

musically the most beautiful
piano the world has ever known

On exhibition and sale only
at the Music Rooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago
Write today for Art Catalogue and Price List

MRS. JOHN FREEMONT MURPHY, SOLOIST AT THE COLONY CLUB

The soloists for the Georgia Colony and Pottawatamie Village of the Illinois Colony Club at their meeting in the Auditorium Tuesday, March 30, were Mrs. John Freemont Murphy, soprano; Ruth Watson, contralto; Jean Durell, entertainer, and Isaac Van Grove, accompanist. Mrs. Murphy has made many friends wherever she has chosen to appear as the soloist.

She gave a group of songs that were highly enjoyable and sung in a very artistic manner, displaying a voice of splendid range and power. Mrs. Murphy has a pleasing stage presence and she sings with much surity and poise. Ronald's "Down In the Forest" and "Love, I Have Won You" were given splendid interpretations and sung with fine breadth of style.

"Mammy's Lullaby," by Ware, was also made very effective, as sung by Mrs. Murphy, as was Johnson's "Since She Went Away."

Jean Durell, entertainer, gave a mirth provoking sketch on grand opera that was very enjoyable, and Mrs. Watson pleased with her singing of song by Cadman and Riego. Mr. Van Grove was as usual a good accompanist.

— # # # —

Loomis—Clarence Loomis and Walton Pyre gave a program of piano numbers and readings at St. John's Military Academy at Delafield, Wis., on last Friday evening. The program, of course, was of a Lenten character.

MRS. DERDIGER'S CONCERT

On last Wednesday evening Mrs. Ella Jane Derdiger presented her voice and piano pupils in a concert at Kimball Hall, the attendance being good and the program proving to be so diversified and so attractive that much applause and many recalls (with flowers) greeted each one of the players and singers.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

Mrs. Alexia Moran and Mrs. Derdiger played several piano duets with good tone and clear rhythmic values, and Miss Ethel G. Abrams gave the Sinding "Rustle of Spring" for piano, thus providing a pleasant break in the program, which otherwise was all devoted to voice. Mrs. Marion Johnson, who was also scheduled for piano solo, being unable to be present.

Mr. Charles Barber sang a De Koven number, "Armorer's Song," and one by Robinson, and Miss Ella V. Cross was heard to advantage in Bohm's "Calm As the Night" (in German), and "My Dreams," by Tosti.

Carl Peterson was another vocal soloist having a well contrasted group in the "Bandolero" (Stuart) and the "Song of Hebrides the Cretan," numbers also in which he won much applause from the audience. Besides this solo work he was heard in a duet from "Don Giovanni" (Mozart) with Mrs. Agnes MacMeekin, which made a cheerful ending for the program, one in which there were many musical virtues.

Mrs. MacMeekin also sang a duet with Mrs. Derdiger ("Maying," by Smith), and was heard in a solo group which was perhaps the best of the evening.

The opening number in her group was a humorous song from one of the Herbert operas and, to show her great versatility and range, her teacher chose for her second number the florid "Ah fors e lui," from Verdi's "Traviata," which she sang with such display of vocal powers as to prove that she has had good training and that she may eventuate into almost any sort of public work if she but persevere in her efforts.

Her voice is of sweet quality and she speaks the Italian text fluently.

Miss Bessie E. Shefmire, a contralto with rich, full tones, sang "The Spirit Song" (Haydn), "Till Death" (Mascheroni), and "At Dawn," by Allitsen, with good style. The Allitsen song is one of peculiar charm and suits her range admirably.

Miss Mabel Thompson not only sang the Musetta "Waltz," from "Boheme," and "Summer" (Chaminade) as programmed numbers, but also substituted for Miss Johnson, who was ill, appearing in Woodman's "A Birthday."

The Chaminade number was her best effort and suited her fresh, young style and voice excellently.

Mrs. Derdiger's pupils do not force their tones and besides choosing for them good repertoire she always gives them the advantage of her personal accompaniment.

Much improvement was noted on Wednesday in the work of those pupils who had been heard under the same auspices a year ago. C. E. W.

— # # # —

MAC BURNEY STUDIOS CLUB

Thursday evening, April 1, the regular meeting of the MacBurney Studios Club was held at Kuntz-Remmler's, with nearly a hundred guests and friends present. This club was organized over a year ago, and the meetings, which are held every month, are looked forward to with the keenest enjoyment. The meeting on Thursday evening was especially enjoyable, in that Mme. Frank King-Clark and Miss Helen Stanley were the guests of honor. Following the dinner and a social half hour, the following program was given:

Aria de Lia—L'enfant Prodiges.....	Debussy
Miss Stanley
Amor dor Miglione	Strozzi
Der Nussbaum	Schumann
Beim Tanz.....	Hermann
Willow, Willow.....	Grainger
My Lovely Celia (Old English).....
Mme. King-Clark
Dupuis le jour—"Louise".....	Charpentier
Miss Stanley
Paysage	Hahn
Pendant le bal.....	Tschaikowsky
Au bords du Don.....	Moussorgsky
Trieste est le steppe.....	Gretcheninow
Mme. King-Clark
A Spirit Flower.....	Campbell-Tipton
Apple Blossoms.....	Lester
A Place of Dreams.....	Smith
Call Me No More.....	Cadman
Miss Stanley

While Miss Stanley's work was very well known here through her connection with the opera company, it was the first opportunity most of those present had of hearing her in concert. Her magnetic personality, beautiful voice and colorful interpretations aroused the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. Mme. Clark's singing was known only through the glowing accounts that have come from her recitals in the east, and these reports were more than justified. "Perfect" is the word that most nearly describes her art—a mezza voce of exquisite quality, diction so clear that every syllable was distinctly understood, breath control almost marvelous in its completeness—all these contributed to her immediate success with her audience, which was insistent in its demand for encores.

The evening was one of unalloyed pleasure, and a source of great inspiration to the students present. The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. MacBurney.

— # # # —

Search—Music News is in receipt of greeting from Frederick Search, dated San Francisco March 31.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church }
Walter Spry School } Chicago
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

WEST SIDE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB IN "MESSIAH"

Just as the downtown Sunday Evening Club has grown to great proportions and also, just as the South Side Sunday Evening Club is advancing rapidly in popular favor, so also the West Side Sunday Night Club has grown by leaps and bounds this season, and although it was only started last fall at the big Third Presbyterian

EDNA SWANSON VER HAAR

Church, it has already grown to such proportions that the immense auditorium is filled every Sunday evening and the fine programs have evoked the greatest delight from the multitudes.

These programs have involved an unusually good chorus under the baton of Mr. Daniel Protheroe, a quartet composed of Helen Protheroe, Edna Swanson ver Haar, Ernest J. Davis and Charles La Berge, as well as the splendid work of Allen W. Bogen at the famous old Third Church organ, an instrument of noble size and capabilities.

For Easter night, Mr. Protheroe augmented all these forces and presented "The Messiah" to the delight of an audience which taxed the full seating capacity of the church, many in fact being turned away.

The Irish Choral Society answered the call of Mr. Protheroe almost en masse and filled the platform to overflowing while their voices rose in splendid rendition of the famous chorus numbers of the never-dying Handel work.

The expressiveness of their singing as well as the power with which they invest the heavier numbers was dilated upon last week in the review of the Orchestra Hall Palm Sunday performance and again, on Sunday, under Mr. Protheroe's authoritative baton, they rose to musical heights. Especially solid and full of thoughtfulness was "Behold the Lamb of God" and "For Unto Us a Son Is Born" was again scintillant.

An orchestra composed of thirty or more men from the Chicago Symphony ranks, played accompaniments, aided most discreetly and musically by Allen W. Bogen, an organist of splendid attainments.

The soloists were those who sing regularly at the Sunday Evening Club and they proved entirely satisfactory.

Miss Helen Protheroe, who also sang at the Orchestra Hall performance, again proved herself worthy of all the successes attained at that time and gave evidence aplenty that she will rise high in local oratorio circles.

She has personality and voice as well as good musicianship and she gave all the numbers assigned to her with dignity and style.

Mrs. ver Haar has a contralto voice of splendid power and vibrant with true musical feeling. She has great sincerity of purpose as well as ample technical equipment and she therefore is able to read "The Messiah" solos with surety as well as abundant effect.

"O Thou that Tellest" was clarion-like in its projection, while "He Was Despised" was truly pathetic as well as thoroughly intense in thought and musical expression.

ERNEST J. DAVIS

Mr. Ernest J. Davis is a young tenor who, at this performance, sang "The Messiah" for the first time but who, a month or two ago, made pronounced success singing with the orchestra in one of the Columbia School concerts at the Blackstone Theater. Mr. Davis has a voice which at once impresses as wholly equal to great demands. It is clear, ringing and expressive. His presence is good and his poise unshakable.

Enunciation of text seems to have been a special study with him and he told the story of his solos in a convincing as well as a thoroughly musical manner.

"Every Valley," a solo which taxes the resources of the most experienced tenor, was sung with ease and much vocal beauty, while the delivery of the expressive recitative, "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart," was good from every standpoint, and the following aria, "Behold and See," was vibrant with musical feeling.

Mr. Charles La Berge, who sang the bass solos, has also made an exceptional study of enunciation and was able therefore to pronounce the two arias of the first part with such distinction that they rose to unusual interest, especially as they were also alive with musical charm and beauty. In "Why Do the Nations," Mr. La Berge proved that he not only possesses vocal technique in abundance, but also that he has an undoubted dramatic ability which helped him to visualize to the audience a picture at once impressive and appealing.

"Thou Shalt Break Them," the tenor aria, which immediately follows this powerful bass solo, was drawn by Mr. Davis along similarly broad and forceful lines and the two together made a glowing picture which, capped by the brilliant "Hallelujah" immediately following, closed the evening in a whirlwind of musical pleasure. C. E. W.

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

FULLERTON HALL

"Parsifal" was the opera presented at Fullerton Hall by Miss Weber and her orchestra. Lucille Stevenson, soprano, and Dr. William Carver Williams, basso, were the soloists.

Wagner's "Parsifal" is for operatic stage a tremendous task, and for the lecture recital more difficult still, but Miss Weber has long since proven her worth as a musician and lecturer.

The story of the opera is of great length, but so thoroughly and briefly did Miss Weber present it that it became of vital interest to all. The orchestra, Miss Weber, piano; Mr. Klammssteiner, 'cello; Mr. Itte, violin, and Mr. Hillmann, viola, assisted by Robert MacDonald, organ, and E. Wagner, bells, gave very effective presentations of the music of the "Prelude," "The Holy Grail," "The Flower Maidens," "Good Friday Spell" and "The Redemption." Miss Stevenson sang the role of Kundry with a fine display of vocal art and musicianship, making one wish they might hear her in opera.

Dr. William Carver Williams, with his magnificent bass voice, sang the role of Amfortas with great dramatic power and musicianly understanding that was very effective. H. W. P.

Epiphany — Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" was sung at Epiphany on last Wednesday evening, the soloists being Laura O'Sullivan, George W. Pither and Reginald Ford.

CEDRIC W. LEMONTPIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6195Isabel RichardsonMUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. ChicagoEDNA DUNHAMSoprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New YorkJ. NOEL FOREST, TenorVOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981Allen W. BogenCONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGOHARRY S. AUSTINBASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758ALTA MILLERRECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COXTEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865Mrs. Charles L. KrumSOPRANO
Stooie, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986Vivian ScottTeacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZVOICE PIANO HARMONY
800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-HarterCon-
tralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave. Oak Park, Ill. Phone O P. 3619-RA FINE EASTER PROGRAM

Carl D. Kinsey may be depended upon, always, to furnish excellent special programs at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park, where he is director of music, but this Eastertide he rather outdid even his own previous efforts.

On Good Friday night Gaul's "Passion" was impressively sung, the quartet ensemble being Marjorie Dodge Warner, Permelia Gale, M. J. Brines and Frank Dunford, while the various programs of Easter Day were absolute models of beauty and appropriateness.

Mr. Kinsey chose for his organ numbers many works which enabled him to display the splendid instrument under his care to the greatest possible advantage. Especially deft has Mr. Kinsey grown in the manipulation of the beautiful chimes, and on Easter he held his audiences breathless more than once by his skill and artistic thought.

PERMELIA NEWBY GALE

The anthems of the day were many and varied—Barnby, Buck, Bartlett, Berwald, Shelley and Tours being called upon for their most beautifully characteristic numbers, as may be noted by referring to the complete program as printed in Music News last week.

The work of the quartet was at a high water mark of excellence and it gave the impression not only of four beautiful voices and sincere personalities, but also of an ensemble which, through persistent and painstaking effort, has been brought well nigh to perfection.

Miss Kaufman is a distinct joy in every phase of her work, Mrs. Gale is a veritable tower of strength, Mr. Kimbell is wholly and effectively artistic, and Mr. Dunford is the personification of reliability as well as of musical power.

At the evening service this splendid bass sang Shelley's "The Resurrection" with great beauty of tone and precision of musicianship, and Miss Kaufman was all things that a superb soprano should be in the Coleridge-Taylor "Easter Morn."

Mrs. Gale was heard in the morning service in Samuel Liddle's "Easter-Tide" and gave such pleasure as is possible but seldom in a church solo. The composition begins with a gloom and repression wholly typical of the early Easter dawn, wholly difficult also to project, but which, at this time, was given with telling effectiveness.

This phase is followed by an exaltation and a musical delight which have been reached but seldom in Easter compositions and which were admirably suited to Mrs. Gale and given by her with remarkable feeling and power.

Only parts of the anthems were heard, but in "The Magdalene" Mr. Dunford gave an exposition of gentlest pianissimo, quite wonderful when one knows his full possibilities and which was remarkably delightful.

In the response after prayer, Mr. Kimbell had one solo bit to offer, or rather a moment when the tenor score rose to solo importance, and the skill with which he managed this, as well as the beauty of his voice, were notable.

Four carols were heard, these being by Flaxington-Harker, Bochan and Wooler, and sung by the children of the church, assisted in two instances by Miss Kaufman and in the other two by Mrs. Gale.

The effort was charming and the sincerity and artistry of the two soloists gave still further proof of their great worth, for a singer who is capable of works of the greatest difficulty and yet can sing a simple carol with telling effect is truly an artist, and such both Mrs. Gale and Miss Kaufman proved themselves to be.

FRANK M. DUNFORD

C. E. W.

MR. NEUMANN'S CONCERTS

Albert Spalding, violinist, comes to the Illinois Theater next Sunday afternoon, April 11, at 3:30, for his second and last recital this season, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Mr. Spalding will play an entirely new program, which is as follows:

Sonata in G.....	Niccolo Porpora
Chaconne (for violin alone).....	Bach
Romance, A minor.....	Schumann
Romance, A major.....	Schumann
Rondo Brilliant, Op. 10 (for piano and violin).....	Schubert
Alabama (Negro melody and dance).....	Spalding
Adagietto.....	Bizet
Polonaise in A.....	Wieniawsky

Rudolph Ganz, pianist, will give a recital at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, April 18, under direction of F. Wight Neumann.

A PASSION CANTATA

On last Sunday and on Good Friday evenings, Dubois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ" was presented at the New First Congregational Church, the occasion being marked by rare musical beauty and also by an appropriate presentment and feeling very seldom encountered anywhere.

Mr. H. Augustine Smith has accomplished absolute wonders with his various choirs at this church, and at this time the

This chorus has power and depth also, and even, on demand, it has the harshness or the brilliancy demanded by certain dramatic passages of the Dubois work, for instance, the word "vah," uttered in derision of the Crucified, was on each utterance pregnant with hate and malice, and it also had sufficient variety to make each one of its many repetitions quite different from every other.

With such a background of choral tone scored a very great success. His tone was beautiful at all times, his enunciation of text was thoroughly fine, and his musicianship so keen that every ensemble in which he was involved was as fine as each solo bit. On Friday night Mr. Charles E. Lutton was assigned the same score, and he delivered it also with splendid thoughtfulness and sincere musical feeling. His dramatic instinct is always fully alive, and his pronunciation of any text always assumes perfection of the finest sort.

Miss Lucia May Smith sang the soprano parts both nights and Mr. Thomas McGranahan was heard in the expressive tenor score.

Miss Smith, a comparative newcomer to the First Quartet, has already established herself as a great favorite and her work in the "Seven Words" truly proved her to be the possessor of unusual equipment and splendid authority in its use.

Mr. McGranahan, always well liked wherever he sings, and particularly well versed in music of religious aspect through his long association with the Paulist Choristers, was ideal in the tenor solos and he made an impression at this church so great that he will be most gladly welcomed when he appears here again.

The soprano work in the "Introduction" was of exalted beauty, and the tenor solo of the Sixth Word was of unusual significance and finish in the treatment accorded by Mr. McGranahan, while both Mr. Collins and Mr. Lutton excelled themselves in the splendid solo of the Fourth Word, which is saying much, in view of the fact that the baritone score throughout is a wonderful one, and on both Sunday and Friday it was sung with full power and understanding.

C. E. W.

LUCIA MAY SMITH

entire ensemble was in evidence and the work as given was of surpassing significance and beauty.

To secure correct musical values and reasonable interpretation from a mass chorus containing voices of all ages is something of a feat, but Mr. Smith has done much more than that.

Through continual giving of cantatas and oratorios, these choirs have gained a technic for the work which has seldom been equaled by any amateur body, and through incessant rehearsal and the most intelligent of directorship Mr. Smith has secured other results that are not equaled by many societies composed of professionals exclusively.

For instance, a pianissimo has been evolved which is a perfect delight. It is solid to the point of perfection, and consciously involves each voice of the entire ensemble and yet as a whole it is as light as a zephyr and, when the baton so indicates, melts like the thin and almost impalpable blending of light smoke in the air or the gentle cessation of a ripple caused by the settling on quiet water of an insect.

as this to play upon and with such a superb organ accompaniment as that provided by Mr. Albert Cotsworth, the work could not fail to be wonderfully impressive.

This accompaniment deserves much more than the usual word of praise, for it was so utterly a part of the harmonious whole and so definitely and distinctly religious in its tone as to stand out as an exceptional achievement. There were also some exceptionally good piano bits, played by Mrs. Roscoe King.

The soloists were also wholly in the picture and of a caliber both technically and in interpretation to be able to deal with the Dubois score intelligently and with entirely proper Lenten feeling.

On Sunday night Mr. Frank Collins had the wonderful baritone score to sing and

CAVE THOMPSON

Mr. Thompson will play the following program in piano recital at the Avondale M. E. Church on April 9:

Prelude and Fugue, E minor, Op. 35.....	Mendelssohn
Arabesque, E major.....	Debussy
Es War Einmal.....	Grieg
Prelude, E major, Op. 30.....	Gliere
Scherzo, C sharp minor.....	Gliere
To the Sea.....	MacDowell
Gavotte, F sharp major.....	Anton Rubinstein
Sonata Tragica (Complete in four parts)....	MacDowell
Etude, D flat.....	Liszt
Eclogue.....	Liszt
Rhapsodie, No. 12.....	Liszt
Prelude—The Nocturne.....	Mendelssohn
String Quartet
Anthem—Christ the Lord Is Risen.....	Buck
Anthem—Who Shall Roll the Stone Away?....	Tarrance
Anthem—Awake, Thou That Sleepest.....	Manney
Offertory—Spring of Souls.....	Mary R. Holt
Mrs. Edna Swanson ver Haar, Contralto
Postlude.....	Mendelssohn
String Quartet

Little Theater—There will be an exhibition of pictures of the Fuller Sisters at the Little Theater on April 3 and April 10.

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

STEIN CONSERVATORY

Mr. Stephen A. Erst, director of the piano department of the Stein Conservatory, and his pupils will give this program at Association Auditorium April 14:

HAZEL PALMER

Andante	Mozart
Second Movement of A Major Concerto	Miss Adelle Vraz
Presto	Mozart
Third Movement of A Major Concerto	Miss Mildred Montresor
Larghetto	Mozart
Second Movement of D Major Concerto	Miss Tania Vojan
Symphonic Poem (First time)	S. A. Erst
"Faun and Nymph"	Chicago Symphony Orchestra
Allegro	Mozart
Third Movement of B Flat Major Concerto	Miss Gertrude Bongard

ANNA WESKE

Allegro	Mozart
First Movement of A Major Concerto	Miss Camille Kosar
Rhapsody (First time)	S. A. Erst
	Mr. Stephen A. Erst
Rondo	Beethoven
Third Movement of C Major Concerto	Miss Marion Falkenbach
Allegro	Mozart
First Movement of B Flat Major Concerto	Miss Anna Svikhart
Molto Allegro	Mendelssohn
Third Movement of G Minor Concerto	Miss Marion Ledgerwood

Lullabye	Smetana
From the Opera, "The Kiss"
Miss Catherine Walsh
Serenade and Allegro Gioioso	Mendelssohn
Miss Lillian Cervenka
Rondo Brilliant	Mendelssohn
Miss Hazel C. Palmer
Introduction et Allegro	Godard
Miss Anna Weske
Bohemian Bachanal (First time)	S. A. Erst
Chicago Symphony Orchestra

MISS AGNES HOPE PILLSBURY PRESENTS A PUPIL

Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury presented her pupil, Miss Vini Fravel, in piano recital at the Anna Morgan Studios on last Saturday afternoon and proved that in this young lady she has a very talented and interesting pupil.

On the other hand, the work done by Miss Fravel was of a character to prove just as clearly that Miss Pillsbury is a thoroughly artistic and painstaking teacher and that the young artist could not receive her introduction under better auspices.

Miss Fravel has a goodly amount of power in reserve, a fine presence and much musical feeling back of all her readings.

Technically she is well advanced and in musical thought she is both individual and artistic.

The program prepared for her by Miss Pillsbury was a model of what such a one

Leginska
PIANIST

Has been engaged for FIVE appearances as soloist with the
NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Walter Damrosch, Orchestra
Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York City.

should be, and comprised first a Beethoven "Concerto" and, at the close the brilliant one by Grieg, between there being a group of Schumann, Chopin and Moszkowski, well chosen and wholly appropriate to the gifts and acquired abilities of Miss Fravel.

Not all of this admirable program was heard, but enough of it came under observation to prove the fact that Miss Fravel has all the virtues noted above and also that she has a style and an individuality which will warrant the supposition that she will in future climb to a place in the front rank of young pianists of this city—perhaps much further than that.

C. E. W.

She will be heard again with pleasure.

KENWOOD EVANGELICAL CHURCH

An organ recital will be given Sunday afternoon, April 11, at 4 o'clock, by Palmer Christian, assisted by Rubee Wilson DeLamar, soprano.

PROGRAM

First Organ Suite—
Prelude	Felix Borowski
Meditation—Elegie
Scherzo—Caprice	Bernard
Improvisation	Karg-Elert
Ostinato e Fughetta
Alleluia	Mozart
My Soul Thirsteth for God (42d Psalm)	Mendelssohn
The Lord Is My Shepherd	Dvorak
I Will Sing New Songs of Gladness	Dvorak
Mrs. DeLamar
Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C	Bach
Cantabile	Cesar Franck
Spring Song from the South	Lemare
Finale (1st symphony)	Vierne

SWIFT MEMORIAL ORGAN AT ST. JAMES' METHODIST CHURCH DEDICATED

The public services at St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church on Easter included the dedication of a twenty-eight thousand dollar pipe organ, the gift of the Swift family.

It is truly a magnificent instrument, in reality six organs combined in one, and Miss Tina Mae Haines, the organist and choir director, must feel gratified in having so complete an instrument at which to preside. She certainly is to be commended for the proficient manner in which she handled it in last Sunday's services. This church is now ideally equipped musically. A thoroughly competent organist-director, solo quartet, fine chorus of about thirty voices, and an organ of practically unlimited resources, make almost anything in choral music possible of production.

The soloists are: Miss Naomi Nator, soprano; Mrs. Annabelle MacIntyre Dickey, contralto; Mr. James Hamilton, tenor; Mr. G. Magnus Schutz, bass—and an excellent quartet they constitute.

In the evening service, which was the one heard by Music News reviewer, the most of the incidental solo work fell to Mr. Schutz and right well he did it.

The ladies of the quartet were heard to splendid advantage in several duet parts. Their rich voices blend ideally.

Mr. Hamilton, the tenor, sang the limited parts assigned him in an artistic manner.

The quartet's singing of "The Magdalene" was worth going far to hear.

The chorus is made up of good voices and their singing was thoroughly enjoyable and inspiring.

The following were the special musical numbers:

Organ Prelude—
Spring Song	Bonnet
To Spring	H. A. Matthews
Evocation a la Chappelle Sixtine	Liszt
Anthems—
But Lo, the Dawn	J. S. Matthews
When the Sabbath Was Past	Clough-Leigher
The Magdalene	Warren
Ring Out, Glad Bells	Bartlett
Organ—
A Legend	Federlein
On the Holy Mount	Dvorak
Organ Postlude—March on Easter Themes	Andrews
	C. J. B.

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The program for this week reads as follows, Fritz Kreisler being the soloist:

Overture to "Oberon"	Weber
Symphony No. 2, B minor	Borodin
Allegro
Prestissimo
Andante
Allegro
Life's Dance	Delius
Concerto for Violin, D major, Opus 61	Beethoven
Allegro ma non Troppo
Larghetto
Rondo

TRIBUTE PAID TO SANDOR S. RADONOVITS BY ISABELLE RICHARDSON AND ARTUR PLATZ

We wish to take this opportunity of acknowledging publicly our deep appreciation of Mr. Radonovits and his wonderful teaching. We have both received through his understanding and method that which we have sought for years and which has proved invaluable to us in our work.

(Signed) ISABELLE RICHARDSON,
ARTUR PLATZ.

THE MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

The song program given on Monday night by Zillah Elliot Barnett, soprano, and Clifford W. Johnston, tenor, with John Doane playing the accompaniments, was one of rare interest and charm.

The plan of duet singing at intervals on such a program, with each of the voices in solo groups intervening is a delightful one, and when the ensemble proves so agreeable as in the case of Miss Barnett and Mr. Johnston it becomes doubly so.

Miss Barnett has a voice of sweet quality and she has brought it up to a fine stage of technical accuracy and brilliance, while Mr. Johnston not only has a naturally expressive and pleasing voice, but also, back of it, there is an intelligence which makes for thoroughly good interpretations.

A Hildach duet opened the list attractively and one by Kahn from "Erwin and Elmire" made a diverting intermezzo, while Lohr's "Rose of My Heart" and Tosti's "Serenade" closed the evening with vocal delight.

The Lohr piece is unusually attractive and the well known Tosti song in its clever duet arrangement by Randegger is a gem.

Miss Barnett sang the old "Have You Seen But a Whyte Lily Grow" with potent charm and made Johnston's "Over the Slopes of the Dune" seem entirely worth while.

"My Rose," by William Lester, proved again to be an intensely poetical text and a wonderfully impressive musical score, while his "Apple Blossoms" not only has a vocal line which was well handled by Miss Barnett, but its wonderful piano accompaniment was made to glitter under the experienced fingers of Mr. Doane.

"Will o' the Wisp" also belonged to him by right of his wonderful playing of its tricky piano part, Miss Barnett, however, being piquant and secure in her part of the ensemble.

"Call Me No More," by Cadman, is a song of great breadth and was sung with telling power, while Branscombe's "Autumn Winds So Wilful" lost nothing of its properly somber color at her hands, nor did "Hayfields and Butterflies" (Del Riego) lack anything in exuberance of spirit.

Mr. Johnston's best group was the Salter "Love's Epitome," which he held to splendid values throughout and invested also with variety and much color, albeit the necessary tints were subdued though intense. C. E. W.

FULLERTON HALL

The opera for next Sunday evening, April 11, at Fullerton Hall will be "The Bohemian Girl," Balfe. Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, and Thomas McGranahan, tenor, will be the soloists.

La Grange—At the First Methodist Episcopal Church on Easter a splendid program was given under direction of H. Wilhelm Nordin, who sang two solos both morning and evening. The services were so arranged that the scripture readings were really a part of the anthems, having direct bearing and connection, and the services throughout were of wonderful coherency. Miss Gertrude M. Nordin, a pupil of Mr. Nordin, sang a solo also at the evening service.

C. W. Best Artists' Series

Season 1915-1916

The C. W. Best Artists' Series of the week of evenings at Chautaugua, New York, in August, has been enthusiastically received in the leading cities and countries of the world.

Antonio Sala, Spanish violoncellist to his Majesty King Alphonso, through whom he is exempt from military service, has been declared by competent authorities in Paris to be one of the finest 'cellists in the world, one well known critic not hesitating to declare him the peer of Casals.

He gave his first concert at the age of eight, played for the court at eleven, toured Spain at twelve. At thirteen he won first prize at the Barcelona Conservatory, of which he is a graduate. In 1911 he was soloist at the Coronation concert. He spent five years in Paris and in touring France, and was in South America on a five months' concert tour before coming to the United States, where he is to begin his second successful season.

Miss Mignonne Meeker, American coloratura soprano, is able, with purity of tone and power, through her splendid range of voice, to sing with perfect ease two and one-half tones above high C. Her range is four octaves.

Gifted with a glorious voice, for her special preparation in diction, repertoire and coaching, she acknowledges her indebtedness to the eminent teacher, J. Courtland Cooper of Chicago, teacher of the royal families in Berlin, as well as of George Hamlin, Francis MacLennan, and others.

Miss Lois Brown, the young American pianist, has just returned from five years spent in Berlin. For two seasons she toured Germany, where she appeared with the principal orchestras. At the beginning of the present season Miss Brown was booked to appear with the Symphony Orchestras of Berlin, Frankfurt-on-Main, and many other European cities.

Miss Brown has a tremendous technic and a splendid touch, and this combined with a thorough understanding and sympathetic spirit makes it a pleasure to listen to her.

Mrs. Fenetta Sargent Haskell, dramatic reader, who has been asked to give George Middleton's play, "Nowadays," at the National Speech Arts Association in San Francisco in June, and to give a

She has appeared in recital in New York, Washington, New Orleans, Chicago, City of Mexico, in England, Scotland, Cuba and in nearly every city of any size, from Maine to California, and from Florida to Canada.

Her magnetic personality, her rich, resonant voice, her ability to respond to every shade of feeling in the many characters she interprets and impersonates, always meet with instant appreciation. Her repertoire includes more than twenty diversified programs.

Signor Alberto Salvi, Venetian harpist, was educated in the Naples Conservatory, where he completed an eight years' course in five years, winning first prize.

His harp playing is a revelation. Artists, critics and musicians generally are amazed at the power, brilliancy, tone quality, finesse and artistic temperament displayed. This is his second successful season in the United States, he having been heard on a Pacific coast tour last year.

Miss Marguerite Austin, English violinist, begins her fifth successful season with the C. W. Best Artists' Series, and is presented without reserve, as one of the leading woman violinists of today. Her early years were spent in South Africa, she returning to England, where she took the L. R. A. M. diploma from the Royal Academy in London. Afterwards she was with Caesar Thomson in Brussels for three years, and has returned to Europe every summer for concert work in Belgium, Holland and England.

Her playing is mature, forceful, authoritative; her personality appealing and sympathetic.

Miss Florence Hedstrum, American dramatic soprano, has risen to her position in the concert field through the wonderful power of her beautiful voice, and her fine musical equipment. For her thorough training she gives much credit to the distinguished Chicago tenor, William Claire Hall, himself a pupil of Jean de Reszke and Oscar Seagle. Miss Hedstrum's technical finish is faultless, and her interpretations beautiful and inspiring; she possesses those indefinable qualities of the true artist which endow her singing with an irresistible power over her audiences.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English

407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST

Carmel by the Sea, Calif

On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist

4820 Kimball Ave.

Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS SOPRANO PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory

Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST

Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Aze

ORATORIO Concert Recital SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE

M. ROSE BURNS, President
63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

NEW PIECES BY EDYTHE PRUYN-HALL

Clayton F. Summy Co., Chicago, has just published a most interesting set of one-page compositions (Grade 1) in the Summy Edition of Edythe Pruyne-Hall entitled "First Piano Pieces" (Five Easy Pieces for Little Hands that Cannot Stretch Far). "Five-Finger March," "With Fife and Drum," "Jack and Gill," "The First Waltz," "Birdie's Good-Night." Teachers will welcome this little collection as a useful addition to their teaching material.

Among other writings for the piano by Mrs. Hall in the Summy Edition are "The Children's Holiday" (Grade 1), which consists of "Tag, You're It," "Dolly's Music Lesson," "A Pleasant Jaunt," "The Little Robin," "Playing Leap Frog," "Evening Song."

"Six Easy Characteristic Sketches" (Grade 1): "The Dancing Lesson," "Little Boy Blue," "In the Swing," "Ding, Dong Bell," "Dolly's Dream," "Brownie's March."

"Six Easy Recreations" (Grade 2): "The Little Bobolink," "In Dancing School," "The Gypsy Camp," "The 'Cello," "Dewdrops and Flowers," "Hunting Song."

"Doll Suite." Six little pieces which were written for the third volume of "Music for the Child World," compiled by Mari Ruef Hofer.

"Nine Characteristic and Instructive Pieces," published singly: "The Water Mill," "In the Blacksmith Shop," "Fairies' Music Box," "The Juggler," "Sleep Song" (pedal study), "Twilight," "In the Swamp," "Fireflies and Frogs," "The Merry-Go-Round," "Arbutus."

"Easy Recreations," for violin and piano: "Allegretto Gracioso," "Berceuse," "Mazurka."

G. Schirmer, New York

"Improvisation," for organ, dedicated to Harrison M. Wild.

White-Smith Publishing Co., Boston
"Festal Prelude" on Sullivan's "Onward, Christian Soldiers," for organ; dedicated to Mr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, which has just been published and has been played by Mr. Kraft in his recent recitals.

Mrs. Hall's gift of melody is clearly shown in all her writings. Her training for piano was with the late W. C. E. Seeboeck, organ study with Harrison Wild, and in theory and composition with Adolf Weidig.

Several organ pieces and a number of songs are still in manuscript.

CANTATA BY RAVENSWOOD COMPOSER TO BE SUNG BY A RAVENSWOOD CHOIR

"The Gospel of Easter," a new cantata, by J. S. Fearis, will be sung at Berry Memorial M. E. Church, corner Leavitt and Giddings streets, on Sunday evening, April 11. Mr. Fearis will conduct, and Miss Electa Austin will preside at the organ. An excellent quartet of soloists, consisting of Miss Lulu McNeley, soprano; Miss Clara Jones, contralto; Mr. Alfred A. Carlson, tenor, and Mr. Carl S. Taggart, baritone, will assist. The cantata was to have been given on Easter, but owing to a series of meetings in progress at the church, was postponed.

GAUL'S PASSION MUSIC AT TRINITY

People living in the vicinity of Trinity Episcopal Church, Twenty-sixth street and Michigan boulevard, evidently know where good music is to be heard, so when special music is advertised to be sung by the choir of that church one must go early to get a good seat. In fact, on last Friday night, when the Gaul Passion service was sung those coming after 8 o'clock had difficulty getting any seats at all.

Mr. Irving Hancock, organist and choir director, and his large choir, placed another fine achievement to their credit in the presentation of this beautiful work. The balance of parts was ideal, the attacks prompt, the body of tone substantial, and the whole service was sung with absolute confidence. The dramatic possibilities and the sublime pathos were beautifully brought out.

The solo parts were sung with good tone and great expression, the soloists being Master Stuart McCombs, soprano; Master Eugene Farrell, mezzo soprano; Master Eddie Verner, alto; Mr. Arthur Scott, tenor; Mr. William Cox, tenor; Mr. Raymond Gifford, baritone; Mr. Charles Coffin, baritone.

Special commendation is due for the manner in which the trio, "Thou Hidest Thy Face, O Lord," and quartet, "Blessed Are the Departed," were sung.

That Mr. Hancock played the organ and that he lead his singers with masterly style goes without saying. It is habitual with him.

C. J. B.

LITTLE THEATER

Music News is in receipt of the following announcement from the Little Theater:

We take very great pleasure in informing you that the Woman's Peace Party has requested the Chicago Little Theater to send the "Trojan Woman" of Euripides, in Gilbert Murray's translation, on tour throughout America in the interests of peace. We feel that the selection of the Chicago Little Theater from among all the dramatic organizations of the country to undertake this work is a signal honor, not merely to the association, but to Chicago, and that its undertaking is our duty. The tour will begin on April 12. Further details will be announced later.

The Little Theater will, except during the week of April 4, remain open as in previous years until the close of the regular season. Arrangements have already been completed for an exceptionally interesting series of plays and other attractions to be presented there during April and May, and announcements of them will be made periodically.

THIRD PRESBYTERIAN

A fine program of Easter music was arranged by Mrs. Edna Swanson Verhaar, and given at the morning service of the Third Presbyterian Church.

The church quartet is Helen Protheroe, soprano, Edna Swanson Verhaar, contralto; Ernest J. Davis, tenor; Charles La Berge, baritone; Miss Caroline E. Marshall, organist. The string quartet assisted.

MacDermid—Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid sang on April 3 at the Flower Fete given for charity at the Chicago Beach Hotel.

JESSIE NICHOLS BALDWIN IN BRAHMS RECITAL

Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin, pupil of Mr. D. A. Clippinger, gave a song recital at the Clippinger Studios in Kimball Hall last Saturday afternoon when the program was devoted to Brahms entirely. Mrs. Charles Orchard was the excellent accompanist and Mr. Clippinger gave a splendid example of how much a recital may be aided by a deft word spoken now and then as well as in the providing of a thoughtful good place and the selecting of an absolutely characteristic program.

The Clippinger Studios are ideal for an intimate recital of the kind given by Mrs. Baldwin and Mr. Clippinger, out of his great experience and his splendid knowledge had not only selected a program of superb worth, but he also knew just how to present it to the representative audience and just how to hold the attention at the highest point throughout the allotted hour.

The program was as follows:

The Little Sandman.
My Mother Loves Me Not (Swabian Folk Song).
A Maiden Rose at Early Dawn (German Folk Song).
Arise Beloved Vision.
Faithful Love.
May Night.
To the Nightingale.
Cradle Song.
My Heart is in Bloom.
Love Song.
The Disappointed Serenader.
In Summer Fields.
A Thought Like Music.
Lighter Far is Now My Slumber.
Sapphic Ode.
Serenade.

Mr. Clippinger began with a brief estimate of Brahms and his work, and throughout the program told various interesting things about the individual numbers.

The difficulty of some of the accompaniments was pointed out, the cunning counterpoint displayed in others and the absolute charm of such as that written for the "Serenade."

The "Cradle Song" was named as the one item of Brahms which first gained vogue in Germany, even when the other works were scarcely known by name and the "Sapphic Ode" was stated to be now the most popular, with all singers, of the entire Brahms list.

Mrs. Baldwin has a thoroughly good soprano voice, well placed, well controlled and absolutely at her disposal in the expression of the sentiments involved in so intricate and so varied a list as that sung on Saturday.

She has perfect legato at command and yet she is able to manipulate phases of singing which require many other items of the vocalist's equipment, rising even to intensely dramatic moments when the text so demands.

Altogether the afternoon was one well calculated to display the work of a sincere and thoroughly pleasing singer in a most favorable light and at the same time it was an exposition of Brahms' repertoire and Brahms' possibilities which could not be other to the many Clippinger students than a very valuable object lesson. C. E. W.

JESSIE NICHOLS BALDWIN

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON

Tuesday evening, March 30, Robert Louis Barron, violinist, appeared in a recital given at the Y. W. C. A. Auditorium by Helen Tenney, pianist, and Rose Lyon, accompanist. Mr. Barron has broadened greatly in a musical way since he was last heard by this writer.

His first offering was Corelli's "Folies d'Espagne," played with a fine quality of tone and a good understanding of its musical values.

Mr. Barron has a keen musical sense and a good interpretative gift that is a great asset.

Mr. Barron's second group, comprising Branscombe's "A Memora," Cui's "Orientale," Borowski's "Mazurka," were played with a fine style and much finish.

The "Orientale" and "A Memora" were especially well done and much enjoyed by the audience.

Miss Lyon played reliable accompaniments.

To those who heard Miss Tenney play Bach, Brahms, D'Indy, Debussy, Liszt, it need not be said that she displayed much talent, and a well developed technic. Her rendition of the Chopin group met with genuine approval, and in her closing group of numbers by Liszt, Debussy, D'Indy, she left nothing to be desired.

Perfield—The Effa Ellis Perfield Music School has appointed Mr. Oscar Deis, pianist and teacher, as director of its piano department.

Van Dusen

PIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Steele

Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall - - - - - CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case

SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSIC

Clarence Eidam

Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST

American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam T.B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel

MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

A New Operetta

for Ladies' Voices

THE WILD ROSE

In Two Acts. Book by
EDITH M. BURROWS

Music by

W. Rhys-Herbert

75c Net

Vocal score can be obtained "on approval"
Address the Publishers

J. Fischer & Bro. New York
7, 8, 10 and 11 BIBLE HOUSE (Astor Place)

"MESSIAH" AT PARK AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

Those who were at Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church on last Thursday evening witnessed the debut of a young conductor who is destined to make a name for himself in Chicago musical circles, with the possibility that it may reach much further.

MARGARET OWENS

Young Mr. Haydn Owens directs the choir at this church and he has already had much experience in conducting small ensembles and works of various aspect, but on Thursday he directed "Messiah" for the first time and had both a larger chorus and a better quartet to work with than in previous experiences, and he also had a very large audience to listen to him and to applaud his efforts.

His work is nothing short of remarkable.

HAYDN OWENS

GRANT KIMBELL

He knows the "Messiah" intimately and he has such excellent control over himself and his musical knowledge (which is already great) that he was able to carry the work to resounding success and to make the evening one of red letter importance.

Not all of the program was heard, but the solos, and she sang them with great distinction for one so young.

Her voice is true and clear and her musicianship is unquestioned. She therefore was able to render "Rejoice Greatly" with an ease and facility which might well have been envied by many much older singers, and as she also possesses musical feeling in abundance and her church experience has been extensive she sang "Come Unto Him" with a beauty of quality and a surety of purpose which made it stand out as a very exact example of true oratorio singing.

Miss Lucy J. Hartman, a contralto who has become known all over Chicago (and much further) for her excellent rendition of "The Messiah" solos, was in unusually good voice and at this time presented the immortal music assigned to contralto by Handel in a way to accent all its beauty and to impress anew the delight of her voice and personality.

Mr. Grant Kimbell was heard in but one of the tenor arias, i. e., "Every Valley," but this was sung with utter refinement along the purely technical and musical lines, while its interpretation was a very marvel of finish and spontaneous beauty. The preceding recitative was fine from every enunciatory and musical standpoint also, but the aria will remain in the minds of all the audience of last Thursday as an exact model of what Handel intended in his inspired writing.

The fourth soloist was Edward Clarke, a basso with splendid presence, style, poise and voice. His tone is very large when he so wishes it and at the same time it is so well within his control that he made the two arias of great musical worth as well as technical perfection.

"But Who May Abide" was temperamental as well as powerful and "The People That Walked" was a true exposition of governed virtuosity. The recitatives were notable for the purity with which the texts were pronounced. C. E. W.

— # # # —

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

On Saturday afternoon last the American Conservatory presented an interesting recital, including Drusella L. Shaw, Ethel J. Calkins, Myra Mills and T. A. Remington, in well selected songs. Only Miss Mills and Mr. Remington were heard, the first having a clear soprano voice under excellent control and the second a bass voice of unusual range and power.

Margaret Walsh, Alphonse Kaepfel, Florence Swanson, Jessie St. Clair, Helen Weiner and Sophia Ginsberg, advanced piano pupils of Silvio Scionti, played a well selected list of piano numbers.

Only two were heard. Miss Weiner and Miss Ginsberg, the first showing clear rhythm and good style in a Godowsky "Gigue," and the latter playing a Liszt Rhapsody with considerable virtuosity, both of them proving that their teaching has been along good musical lines. C. E. W.

— # # # —

FREDERICKSEN-HESS TRIO

Sunday afternoon, April 11, at 3:15, the Fredericksen-Hess trio will give a chamber music concert in Central Music Hall. The trio will play Tschaikowsky's Trio and the C Minor Trio, Beethoven. The assisting artist is Mr. Fred Farrar, baritone.

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield
 Teaching System and how to teach Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
 The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
 Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
 SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.
 218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
 Chicago, Ill.

work in "And the Glory" and "Glory to God" was of exceptional power and brilliance, while "For Unto Us a Child Is Born" was distinctive and temperamental as well as thoroughly and satisfyingly musical.

Mr. Palmer Christian was at the organ and that is quite the same thing as saying that the accompaniments were all that could have been asked or provided short of an orchestra.

Mr. Christian knows "The Messiah" as but few players have ever learned it; he is a remarkably facile organist and he is also gifted with a keen sense of religious thought. Not only does he bulwark and underlay with solid foundation each chorus effort, but also he supplants every solo endeavor in the most beautiful and also the most cunningly helpful way it would be possible to imagine.

Miss Margaret Owens, a young Chicago soprano, who has appeared in many church, oratorio and school functions especially and who has just returned from an all-winter concert trip, was entrusted with the soprano

ARTHUR GRANQUIST IN PIANO RECITAL

The very great popularity of Mr. Arthur Granquist was shown on last Sunday afternoon, first in the capacity audience which greeted him at the Fine Arts Theater and, second, in the extraordinary amount of applause with which his piano recital was greeted and the persistence with which every number was endorsed.

The first part of the program contained splendid examples of the art of Couperin, Bach and Beethoven, but was not heard by this writer.

The second part had for its recommendation extreme novelty and considerable though not an extreme amount of musical beauty in the compositions presented.

The Schubert "Impromptu" in G Major is typical of the genus and was played with great suavity, the "Praeludium" in B Minor (Otterstrom) proved to be as mildly interesting as others of the Otterstrom works—no more, while the "Serenade Russe" (Rubinstein), a work of introspective beauty and extreme difficulty from the pianistic standpoint, was done with superb aplomb, and the "Prelude," Op. 45, by Chopin, proved to be a high light in the program scheme, so beautifully pianistic is it and so admirable was the playing.

The "Summer Twilight" and "Return of the Pilgrimage from Landevennee," from the Rhene-Baton Suite "en Bretagne," hardly lived up to the promise of earlier-heard works of this modern Frenchman. Perhaps a note explanatory of the intended "program" would have helped considerably.

The "Ballade," by Brune, is a big work and it was presented in masterly style. Many hearings would be necessary to fathom its full intent, but a single one was sufficient to prove that in this piece Mr. Granquist has found something which suits his metier very well indeed and which will prove an excellent "last piece" for many recitals.

Mr. Granquist is a serious young artist; he has transcendent technic and thoroughly artistic tonal qualities; he plays also with splendid intelligence and each reading is true to its intention and absolutely differentiated from all others of his list.

He is already a great favorite and ought to grow to a still higher plane in public appreciation. C. E. W.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

A concert given by the Conservatory Orchestra of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music at the Emery Auditorium last Monday night had this program:

- Overture—The Sicilian Vespers.....Verdi
Conservatory Orchestra
Aria—He is Kind, He is Good (Herodiade)...Massenet
Mrs. William A. Evans and Orchestra
Kamarisikaja (Fantasia on a Russian dance)...Glinka
Conservatory Orchestra
Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso.....Saint-Saens
(For Violin and Orchestra)
Mr. Robert Schenk
Interlude Tirindelli
Conservatory Orchestra
Concerto, C minor (for piano and orchestra).....
Saint-Saens
Allegro Moderato
Allegro Vivace
Andante—Allegro
Miss Inez Gill
Symphony, No. 5, E minor.....Tchaikowsky
Andante Cantabile
Andante Maestoso
Allegro Vivace

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The program of last Saturday evening was divided into two parts and in their dissimilarity it might just as well have been two programs.

The "Parsifal" excerpts, which comprised the first part, were thoroughly familiar, but were played, as ever, with extremely fascinating perfection and great intelligence, both as regards the directing baton and in the individual factors which go to make up the ensemble.

The second half might have been called a Busoni program for it introduced the Italian pianist in the Saint-Saens "Concerto," Op. 102, and his own "Indian Fantasy," the two being separated only by two nocturnes, "Clouds," and "Festivals," by Debussy, these latter being repetitions, were not quite so outre in sound as on a first hearing.

Debussy, always elusive and sometimes absurd, is yet much more logical in orchestral scores than in those written for piano and therefore these two "Nocturnes" especially may grow to be favorite numbers with the orchestra audiences.

The Saint-Saens work was played by Busoni with superb finish. This pianist has, in recital, a very hard style; his touch sounds just like the name of the piano he plays.

But in "Concerto," when he is somewhat modified by environment and his tone is more or less softened by contrast, he displays qualities and attainments which are the despair of all young artists who hear him. His scales and arpeggios are merely incidents to him, never picked out note by note as is the case with less advanced players and his trills, staccati, glissandi and chromatic passages are the merest filligree—never for a moment obtruding into anything else.

The "Fantasy" was, of course, extremely interesting and with the aid of copious program notes it was possible to trace some real Indian music and some real Indian thought in the work as well as to discover a "western" atmosphere which, at times was exhilarating. On the whole, however, a first hearing predisposes to nothing more than mild ennui for the "Indian" features are much swallowed up in the Debussy-like vagueness of many passages and the whole effect is made incongruous very often by the introduction of piano passages which are so distinctly Lisztian in character as to prove at once that Busoni, in writing his "Fantasy" was unable to get away from the fact that he has long been noted as a Liszt player and that he is undoubtedly saturated with the Liszt idiom.

The audience listened politely and applauded vigorously for Busoni the man, not for the composition by any means, and it proved to be a great delight therefore when, as final encore (in violation of the rules of the house) Mr. Busoni played the Liszt "La Campanella" giving an example of his speed, wonderful clarity and great ability in tone coloring. C. E. W.

SCHOOLFIELD-BELLAIRE JOINT RECITAL

The following program will be given by Mrs. Mabel Nevin Schoolfield, soprano, and Miss Cecelia Bellaire, pianist, with Mrs. Frederick C. Lewis as accompanist the Thurber Hall on Sunday, April 11, at 3:30:

- Faschingschwank aus Wien ("Carnival Pranks from Vienna") Schumann
Allegro
Romance
Scherzino
L'insana Parole (from "Aida").....Verdi
Nocturne in F sharp major.....Chopin
Two Preludes, C. major and B flat major.....Chopin
Romance Gliere
On the Mountains Grieg
When the Kye Come Home.....Nevin
Summertime Ward-Stephens
Sheep and Lambs Homer
Apple Blossoms Kellie
Polichinelle Rachmaninoff
Scotch Poem MacDowell
Shadow Dance MacDowell
Waltz—Roses from the South.....Strauss-Schuetz

Levy—Advanced pupils of Henriot Levy will appear in recital Saturday afternoon, April 17, at Kimball Hall.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY of MUSIC

CLARA BAUR, Foundress, 48th Year

Conducted according to the advanced methods of the most progressive European Conservatories.

A Faculty of International Reputation

Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

LITERATURE
EXPRESSION

MUSIC LANGUAGE
DRAMATIC ART

Special Features:—Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates.

STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME

For Catalogue

Address MISS BERTHA BAUR, Directress
HIGHLAND AVENUE AND OAK STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

"Messiah" Festival at Lindsborg, Kas.

REVIEWED BY HERBERT M. BAILEY

BETHANY COLLEGE AND LIBRARY

"Lindsborg, Kansas, the home of Bethany College, an annual eight-day Messiah Festival and a musical populace unequalled anywhere in America passed through its thirty-fourth yearly week of music from Palm Sunday, March 28, to Easter Sunday, April 4. "The Messiah at Lindsborg" has for years been a household phrase throughout the middle west, especially so in Kansas, and its fame has even spread to every musical home in the country. This has come about through the determined, faithful and devoted efforts of practically every person living in Lindsborg and the large body of students enrolled at Bethany College.

ARTHUR E. UHE

Since 1881, when a chorus composed of fifty voices, made its first appearance on the plains of Kansas, the little city of Lindsborg has each year held a festival of some style at Easter time with one or more renditions of Handel's immortal "Messiah" as the outstanding feature. The current year heard the 91st, 92nd and 93rd performances of this oratorio and with these came a week brim full of music. In all there were eighteen concerts and recitals during the festival with the following organizations and soloists taking part: Bethany Oratorio Society of over 500 voices, Bethany Symphony Orchestra, Bethany Band, Musical Art Society, Bethany Male Chorus, Children's Chorus of 350 voices, Mme. Johanna Gadske, Mme. Irene Jonani, Miss Ethyl Coover, Miss Irma Lewis, sopranos; Mme. Julia Claussen, Mme. Ida Gardner, contraltos; Enrico Arsoni, Arvid Wallin, tenors; Thure Jaderborg, Eugen Haesener, Uly Woodside, basses; Oscar Lofgren, Oscar Thorsen, Arvid Wallin, pianists; Miss Ellen Strom, organist; Arthur Uhe, Miss Alma Rosengren, violinists; Miss Annic Swensson, reader, an array of musical talent, by the way, such as is seldom assembled and which was capable of not only swaying the whole musical community for a period of eight days, but the whole country for hundreds of miles around, this latter statement being proven by the fact that several excursion trains as well as hundreds of automobiles were run into the city, bringing visitors by the thousands. Many of these visitors are friends and alumni of Bethany College and come to stay throughout the festival. Lindsborg may well and safely lay claim to the honor of having more musicians and musical instruments to the square foot than any city of the same size in America, and these forces combine in a labor of love to make the festivals a success.

Claussen Opens Festival

Dry and sunny Kansas has apparently become a thing of the past. For weeks the enviable auto roads of the state have been practically impassable and with continuing damp and dismal weather the attendance for the opening day was somewhat smaller than usual, in spite of the fact that Palm Sunday was blessed with glorious weather. Many knights of the wheel were brave enough to try the roads, thus swarming the town with cars and by three o'clock in the afternoon an audience of large size was assembled in Bethany's 3,500 capacity auditorium to hear Mme. Claussen in recital with Mr. Arthur Uhe, violinist, assisting, and Oscar Thorsen and Arvid Wallin playing accompaniments.

The program was a magnificent one to hear, and Mme. Claussen was in fine voice and most gracious mood. It was her first appearance in Lindsborg and judging from the unusual enthusiasm aroused by this recital it will not be her last. No artist, and there are none greater, who has appeared there ever offered more beautiful singing and genuine art than was heard on this occasion. She sang songs by Ponchielli, Schumann, Schubert, Sjogren, Grieg, Berger, Carpenter, MacFayden, MacDermid, Hugo Kann and many encores, and her voice was as pure and refined at the finish as when she first appeared. Her Scandinavian songs pleased this audience especially, but not as much as MacDermid's "Sacrament." This had to be repeated.

Mr. Uhe, the violinist, who has come to the front at a rapid rate in the past two years, well deserves the honor placed upon him by appearing on the program with the great contralto. He easily shared the honors of the afternoon by his brilliant playing of a "Caprice," Paganini; an "Air" from a Goldmark concerto and the "Prelude and Allegro" by Paganini-Kreisler. The first number was unaccompanied as was his encore, which was eagerly demanded. Mr. Uhe is most startling at times with his great display of technic. No passages seem difficult to him. He made a deep impression on this occasion as did Mr. Wallin, who so capably played the accompaniments.

JULIA CLAUSSEN

For Mme. Claussen, Mr. Thorsen was at the piano and it is hardly possible that she ever received better support. From the first tone to the last Mr. Thorsen played in perfect sympathy with the great art which the singer was offering. It was indeed a great afternoon.

The Messiah Performance

The great attraction of the week came at 7:30 Sunday evening when Mr. Hagbard Brase raised his baton to conduct the chorus, Symphony Orchestra, soloists and organist through a rendition of "The Messiah." Miss Coover, soprano; Miss Gardner, alto; Mr. Wallin, tenor, and Mr. Jaderborg were the soloists, and Miss Strom was at the organ.

The chorus, dressed in white and black and massed at the east side of the auditorium, formed a magnificent and beautiful picture, and they sang as they appeared. No applause is indulged in during a "Messiah" performance at Lindsborg. The occasion is made into a devotional concert and therein lies a large part of the secret for the fame and enviable success of the singing of "The Messiah" by this chorus. There is a sublime and deep reverence felt by both the singers and audience and an inspiring and glorious amount of deep musical expression comes forth because each member apparently sings for the pure love of the work and to keep up or even raise the standard set up in the years gone by.

DR. ERNST F. PIHLBLAD

Mr. Brase made his initial appearance as conductor of "The Messiah" this year amid great acclaim. He has been a valued member of Bethany's Conservatory faculty for years, teaching pipe organ and theory with great success. His many compositions have been highly praised and are proof of his efficiency as a musician. In former years he has presided at the organ during "The Messiah" performances. As a director, Mr. Brase is elegant. His baton moves intelligently, convincingly and inspiringly. He is one of the few directors who believe in dropping the movements necessary for rehearsal when he and his singers appear before an audience, a point to be commended and very restful to the average concertgoer.

Mr. Brase held his forces well in hand throughout the evening, the orchestra playing splendidly the "Overture" and "Pastoral Symphony" and accompanying the chorus with great contrast and well balanced effects. The orchestra, however, was not heard to such good advantage in supporting the soloists. This was not wholly the fault of the orchestra. A part of the blame goes to the soloists and another part to insufficient rehearsal. And now, while speaking of accompaniments, Miss Strom proved to be a tower of strength at the large four manual pipe organ which stands back of the chorus. Her masterful, finished, well balanced and musicianly playing of the difficult "Messiah" score on this instrument had much to do with making the performance a success. No mistake was made when Miss Strom was chosen to fill the position formerly occupied by Mr. Brase.

The chorus, which is so wonderfully trained after years of preparation, brings a real thrill and uplift to those who hear it sing the master choruses of this oratorio. "And the Glory of the Lord," "For Unto Us," "Glory to God," "Behold the Lamb of God," "All We Like Sheep," "Lift Up Your Heads," the "Hallelujah Chorus," "Worthy Is the Lamb" and the "Amen Chorus" were the principal offerings from this large body of singers and Mr. Brase succeeded in bringing out their much admired qualities with grand effect.

Mr. Wallin, as tenor soloist, repeated the success he attained one year ago when he performed in the same capacity. He is a highly gifted musician and his voice, while not of the big dramatic type, is of that pure, smooth tenor quality so necessary for the proper rendition of the solos allotted this voice in "The Messiah." "Comfort Ye," "Every Valley" and "Behold and See" were excellent examples of sincere and unaffected singing and as for musical values they were perfect. For these points Mr. Wallin deserves much commendation.

ENRICO ARENSONI

Miss Coover sang the soprano solos for "The Messiah" for the first time at Bethany on Sunday evening and well deserves the praise which was showered upon her following the performance. Being a member of the Bethany Conservatory faculty, she is well known to Lindsborg audiences. Her voice is of good quality and carrying power, and there is a true ring of sincerity in her efforts. Her interpretations were quite convincing and her enunciation very distinct, a point well worthy of mention. While her voice is naturally best suited to the style of music such as "Rejoice Greatly," it remained for the big aria, "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth," to display her resources to best advantage. "Come Unto Him" was also very well sung as were the several brilliant recitatives allotted the soprano.

Miss Gardner, formerly of the Imperial Opera at Vienna and now of New York, was a notable addition to not only "The Messiah" performance, but to the list of soloists engaged for the festival as well. She remained in Lindsborg throughout the week, singing in three "Messiah" renditions and giving one recital. Her singing of the contralto solos on Sunday night was a bright portion of the performance. She knew her score extremely well, her voice proved to be especially well suited to her share of the music, and she delivered "O Thou that Tellest," "He Shall Feed His Flock" and "He Was Despised," with a fine flow of tone and her interpretation of the text denoted intelligence of a high artistic nature. Added to these assets is a charming personality and stage presence which went far in making her one of the successes of the evening.

Another member of the Conservatory faculty and a staunch supporter of Bethany College is Mr. Jaderborg, who has been connected with the work at this school for fifteen years or more. He sang the bass solos of "The Messiah" in Lindsborg for the first time on Sunday night and his numberless friends rejoiced in the fact that he was given the honor of taking a prominent part in "The Messiah" performances, which heretofore had been filled by other singers. Mr. Jaderborg is one of the leading voice teachers of the school and has spared neither time nor money to equip himself for that position. He has just recently returned from three years' study in New York, and his singing of the well known bass solos at this time showed to fine advantage the improvement he has made since last heard. His voice is of the deep cantante type and of splendid carrying power throughout its entire range. His musicianship is excellent, as is his enunciation, and his offerings glowed through these adornments. His sympathy and sincerity for the great work that is being done at Lindsborg is a strong factor in making his work of strong appeal.

THURE JADERBORG

When the excursion trains had left the little city at 10:30 one thought of that charming song by Carrie Jacobs Bond, "A Perfect Day." On Good Friday and Easter Sunday nights "The Messiah" was repeated by the same forces as above mentioned.

An Expression Recital

On Monday afternoon the College Chapel held a large and appreciative audience when Miss Annie Theodora Swensson, head of the Bethany College expression department, gave a masterful reading of that popular and thrilling drama, "Within the Law," by Dana-Veiller. Miss Swensson, who, by the way, is a daughter of the founder of Bethany College, is admired by all who have met her or heard her in one of her numerous recitals. She is gifted most highly as to personality and her efficiency as a reader or impersonator is seldom if ever equaled. Her stage presence is most gracious and she put her audience very much at ease and all attention by the confident and convincing manner with which she enters into the work at hand. The four scenes wherein is laid the story of "Within the Law," with its dozen or more characters, was brought forth in a very realistic measure by Miss Swensson and the audience was aroused to great heights of enthusiasm long before the recital closed. Bethany can well congratulate herself for being fortunate enough to have on its faculty a teacher and public performer of the ability of Miss Swensson.

OSCAR LOFGREN

A Concert by Bethany Band

Monday evening the concertgoing populace gathered in the auditorium to hear Bethany Band give one of its much admired concerts. This organization, which is made up with about thirty-five musicians, is recognized as one of the leading bands of the state. It has taken several concert tours and played at many state functions. Its conductor, Mr. Hjalmar Wetterstrom, is one of the best cornetists in the country and is a valued teacher of theory and cello at Bethany. His ability as a conductor is par excellence. While the band this year is perhaps not wholly up to the standard reached in some former years it nevertheless was capable of playing a high class program in a manner which pleased the large audience immensely.

Miss Ethyl Coover, soprano, and Mr. Walter Perry, cornetist, assisted. Mr. Perry's offering was a very difficult solo which he played in a style that brought a demand for more from his hearers, to which he responded most graciously.

Miss Coover gave a splendid account of herself in a group of songs made up with "Cradle Song," MacFayden; "The Fairy Pipers," Brewer; "Where My Caravan Has Rested," Lohr, and "The Year's at the Spring," Beach, each of which proved very grateful to the voice and fancy of this soprano. Her clear ringing tones, which were free and full, are especially worthy of praise, and she entered into the spirit of the different songs with unusual abandon. So well did she sing the Beach number that its repetition was necessary to quiet the audience. Her part of the program had much to do with making the evening an artistic success. The singing of Miss Coover was much enhanced by the sympathetic and musicianly accompaniments played by Miss Mildred Rosberg.

Pupils' Recitals

On Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the following pupils' recital was heard in the college chapel, the public performance of each number denoting much ability, talent and study on the part of each student and excellent training on the part of the teacher represented. The program is well worthy of publication.

Piano—From Sonata, Op. 81 A	Beethoven
Andante espressivo
Vivacissimamente
Mr. Walter C. Neve
Vocal—
Who is Sylvia	Schubert
The Cry of Rachel	Salter
Miss Blanche Harvey
Organ—
Berceuse in A flat	Guilmant
Tone Picture "Bethlehem"	Malling
Miss Florence Danielson
Violin—Ballade and Polonaise	Vieuxtemps
Mr. Terence Pihlblad
Piano—
Impromptu, Op. 29	Chopin
Ballade, Op. 47	Chopin
Miss Grace Kinnamon
Vocal—
Thy Beaming Eyes	MacDowell
Ave Maria (with violin obligato)	Gounod
Miss Hilma Spongberg

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

Reading—The King's Pardon
Miss Lenora Abercrombie
Vocal—Prologue from "Pagliacci".....Leoncavallo
Mr. Uly Woodside
Piano—Allegro moderato from Concerto, Op. 16.... Grieg
Mr. Ernest Fisher

On Thursday morning at the same hour, another group of pupils gave a recital which was every bit as successful and as worthy of praise as the one of Tuesday morning. This program was given:

Piano—
Etude, Op. 25, No. 1.....Chopin
Dance Negre.....Scott
Intermezzo en octaves.....Leschetizsky
Miss Etta Turner

Vocal—
Silently Blending, from "Figaro".....Mozart
To Be Sung on the Waters.....Schubert
Miss Mina V. Carl

Violin—Zigeuner Weisen.....Sarasate
Miss Lois Wilson

Piano—Variations serieuses.....Mendelssohn
Mr. Roy Underwood

Vocal—
Traume.....Wagner
How Much I Love Thee.....LaForge
Miss Hazel Engle

Organ—Introduction to 3rd act and Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin".....Wagner
Miss Etta Turner

Reading—The Winning of Katherine.....McCarthy
Miss Mercedes Chapman

Vocal—
Page Song from "Les Huguenots".....Meyerbeer
My Lover He Come on the Skee.....Clough-Leighter
Miss Floy Carpentier

ELLEN STROM

Piano—
Chromatic Fantasia.....Bach-Busoni
Berceuse.....Chopin
La Campanella.....Paganini-Liszt
Mr. Philip Boughner
h h h

The Lofgren-Wetterstrom Recital

Mr. Oscar Lofgren, pianist, and Mr. Hjalmar Wetterstrom, violoncellist, appeared in recital at the college chapel on Tuesday afternoon and were greeted by a very appreciative audience. For years both have been on the teaching force at Bethany and are widely known and much admired for their abilities as instructors and recitalists.

Mr. Lofgren, whose training in America and abroad, has been most thorough, is much sought after as a teacher and he has concertized quite extensively. He made three appearances on this particular program, opening with the "Variations" in C minor and "Rondo Capriccioso," Op. 129, both by Beethoven. His second appearance brought forth the "Intermezzo" in E flat minor and "Scherzo," Op. 4, both by Brahms. He closed the program with two Liszt compositions, namely "Sonetto de Petrarca," in A flat major, and "Mazeppa." His playing is marked for its strict rhythm, masterful technic and musical phrasing. He does not display any showy mood, but uses his piano as a means to bring to his hearers the message he receives from playing and studying the piano classics. That Mr. Lofgren is an accompanist of no small ability was proven by his playing of the piano score for Mr. Wetterstrom's 'cello solos in a most grateful manner.

By his appearance on this program Mr. Wetterstrom receives the honor and distinction of being the first member of Bethany's musical faculty to appear before the public as a 'cello soloist. He exceeded the expectations of his most ardent admirers on this occasion. His numbers included "Kol Nidrei," Bruch; "Scherzo," Goens; "Dedication," Popper, and "Arlequin," Popper, divided into two equal groups. Mr. Wetterstrom's splendid musicianship always stands out, clean cut, in all his musical endeavors, especially so in his 'cello playing. He draws a beautiful smooth tone from his instrument and that his technic is well developed was shown to fine advantage in his playing of these numbers. Especially good was the staccato work in the "Scherzo" and the smooth legato tone in his last number.

ETHYL COOVER

Miss Gardner Pleases Large Audience

Tuesday evening at the Auditorium a large and enthusiastic audience was given a genuine musical treat when Miss Ida Gardner gave her recital. Her program was varied, interesting and enjoyable from beginning to end. She sang in German, Italian, English and French, and apparently was perfectly at home with each. If Miss

Gardner is successful in opera she is just as successful in concert. She sang herself into the hearts of her audience on this occasion at least. A captivating and charming personality, combined with a rich, resonant voice such as Miss Gardner possesses, and a fine list of songs to hear, one receives all one can expect from a pure song recital. Her opening group was made up with "Wie Melodien Zieht es mir," Brahms; "Immer leiser wird mein Schlummer," by the same composer; "Nur wer die Sehnsucht kennt," Tchaikowsky, and "Im Kahne," Grieg, each given with utmost

BURTON TENOR
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow. 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago
Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
CONCERT BARITONE
Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Studio time immediately. Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 regularly. Address C, Music News
TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS
ORATORIO
RECITALS

SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO

CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER

Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
612 Fine Arts Building Phone Garfield 5007

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stoy Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-
CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

MARGARET OWENS

CONCERT
PUPILS Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

artistic finish and intelligent interpretation. "Lungi dal caro bene," Secchi, and "Matti-nata," Leoncavallo, formed the next group, which were so splendidly sung that the audience demanded an encore. Homer's "Banjo Song" was the response and was sung in excellent style.

The English group, composed of "Down in the Forest," Ronald; "My Laddie," Thayer; "I'm Not as Other Lassies Are," Wolf; "Life and Death," Coleridge-Taylor; "Bendemeer's Stream," Gatty, and "My Lover He Comes on a Skee," Clough-

ANNIE THEODORA SWENSSON

Leighter, pleased the audience most. The Wolf number had to be repeated and an encore added to the list. "L'esclave," Lalo, and "Le Baiser," A. Goring Thomas, were beautifully sung and the "Habanera" and "Seguidilla" from "Carmen," which closed the program, furnished ample proof of Miss Gardner's ability as an opera singer.

Mr. Arvid Wallin was at the piano throughout the evening, which also added to the success of the recital. He is one of the most satisfactory accompanists heard anywhere, and he supported the singer in a manner which merits much praise.

The recital was one of the bright spots in the week's activities.

A Piano and Song Recital

Mr. Oscar Thorsen, pianist, and Mr. E. A. Haesener, baritone, presented an excellent program at their recital in the college chapel on Wednesday afternoon. This was Bethany talent appearing again and as usual a large audience assembled.

Mr. Thorsen is a wonderful pianist and an artist from tip to toe. His training has been extensive, both in this country and Europe, and he has succeeded while teaching a very large class of pupils in keeping in splendid playing condition. He was in unusually good form on this occasion and one feels safe in saying he is one of the best pianists in America today. Bethany is fortunate in keeping him in Lindsborg.

His playing of the Schubert "Sonata" in B flat major brought to the audience a beautiful composition, rendered with absolute control over rhythms and a riot of glowing tones over which he had full command as to shading and phrasing.

His technic seems unlimited and the strength displayed at times is wonderful, as is his originality of style and interpretation. The "Fantasie," Op. 49, Chopin, and a "Ballade" in form of variations on a Norwegian melody, by Grieg, which closed the program, were played with great breadth and abandon and gave further proof of his high attainments.

Mr. Haesener's opening group was a most taxing one, made up as it was with "Sonder Woods," Lully; "Death and the Maiden," Schubert; "Erl-King," Schubert; "Der Schwan," Grieg, and "Der Nock," Loewe. His voice is of a sturdy character and apparently stood the test in fine shape. His second group contained songs by Branscombe, Chadwick, Van Eyken and Grant-Schaeffer. Mr. Haesener has splendid concert style, and he sings with considerable assurance, which is a satisfying and commendable asset. His tones are of good carrying power and he gained some excellent effects in the softer passages of the various songs.

Many were heard to remark after the recital that both Mr. Haesener and Mr. Thorsen were never heard to better advantage.

Mr. Thorsen played accompaniments which greatly enhanced the singing of Mr. Haesener.

§ § §

An Orchestra Concert

A valuable asset to the success of these festivals from year to year has been the

HAGBARD BRASE

Bethany Symphony Orchestra, an organization of forty musicians such as can be found in the larger cities only. Thus does Lindsborg not have to rely on some orchestra from the outside. The concert of Wednesday night found this orchestra under the conductorship of Mr. Arthur Uhe, playing Beethoven's "First Symphony" in a most finished and enjoyable manner. Also the overture "Fingal's Cave," by Mendelssohn, and the "Introduction to Third Act" and "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin." The latter received a brilliant and praiseworthy reading.

Miss Alma Rosengren, violinist, was heard in the "Adagio" from a Bruch "Concerto" and "Legende," by Mr. Uhe, a number, by the way, which should make a great appeal to all violinists. Miss Rosengren at least led one to think that by her splendid playing. She draws a full, clear tone from her instrument, her phrasing is clear and distinct, and fine musicianship adorned her offerings. She should be heard from in the future. Her accompaniments were played by Mr. Roy Underwood, a pupil of Oscar Thorsen, and who was heard with much pleasure at several different times during the festival.

The Bethany Male Chorus, Mr. Brase, director, of thirty voices, sang a group of songs at this concert and closed the program by singing that stirring and well-known chorus for men's voices, "Land-sighting," by Grieg, with Mr. Thure Jadenborg taking the solo and the orchestra and Miss Ellen Strom, organist, furnishing the accompaniment.

□ □ □

Children Give Concert

For years a children's chorus of some three hundred and fifty voices has been maintained, thereby developing the future "Messiah" chorus, and their turn for a concert came on Thursday afternoon, and the attraction of this chorus brought out the largest audience so far during the festival.

The children have the same conductor, Mr. Brase, as the grown ups, and they sing with just as much life and feeling also. They are well trained and sang numerous interesting and well-known songs, accompanied at times by organ and at others by Bethany Band, which also played a group of numbers. The children's concert is an important part of the festival, but that importance will be most noted in years to come, when these young singers will take "The Messiah" chorus into their own hands.

□ □ □

Aresoni Sings

Enrico Aresoni, tenor of the Chicago and Philadelphia Opera Company, gave a recital on Thursday night in the Auditorium, assisted by Miss Mildred Rosberg, pianist. He won the audience at once by his genial personality and unaffected stage presence. His brilliant, clear voice was a source of great enjoyment from first to last, and he succeeded in creating more enthusiasm and comment than had been heard any time during the week. He sang in wholly charming style "At Dawning," Cadman; "My Heart Is a Lute," Woodman, and Campbell-Tipton's "Hymn to the Night" as his opening group.

An aria from "Tosca," Puccini; a "Serenade" by Lalo, and "Vous aurez beau faire" were three short numbers which proved very grateful to the resources of Mr. Aresoni, and "I Know a Lovely Garden," D'Hardelot; an aria from "The Girl of the Golden West," and "Devotion," Strauss, gave further evidence of why he has already sung over half a hundred engagements this season. His voice is of remarkable range and power and his ideas of interpretation are unique in many respects and wholly satisfying. Especially was this shown in "Canio's Lament," from "Il Pagliacci," which closed the program. This was given a great rendition and with realistic feeling, giving further proof of his success as an operatic artist. Mr. Aresoni only offered one encore, the beautiful "Elegy," by Massenet, in spite of the resounding applause which followed each song. The tenor's portion of the program was short, which leads one to believe that he would rather leave his audience wishing for more than saying, "I wish he was through."

Miss Rosberg not only accompanied Mr.

Aresoni in an artistic manner, but played two movements from a Grieg "Sonata" and a D'Albert "Scherzo" with such flawless technic and musical expression that the praise which she received at the conclusion of the concert was well merited.

□ □ □

Concert by Musical Art Society

As the week progressed the audiences grew in point of numbers, and on Friday afternoon the Auditorium was well filled, when the Musical Art Society gave a concert consisting of a group of miscellaneous numbers and excerpts from Gounod's "Faust." This organization is under the direction of Eugen Haesener, is composed of fifty picked voices, and is now in its third season. Their singing of "The Night," Rheinberger; "Now the Evening Bells,"

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCallough
1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto--Haze Hunt

Director-Accompanist

TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

THU
ES
L

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

Management M. H. HANSON

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

HAVE YOU SEEN

Our New Catalogue of Educational Sheet Music?

Brunette Dansante

Embracing Piano (grades one to ten) vocal and violin and piano compositions by present-day composers.

Pierrot

Words by SARA TEASDALE

Music by
E. R. KROEGER, Op. 55, No. 1

Copyright, 1914, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge

Why not ask the clerk the next time you're in a music store to show you the H. N. & E. Sheet Music Catalogue, —or let us send you a thematic catalogue.

HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE
PUBLISHERS

30 Irving Place New York City

Kreutzer; "The Rosary," Nevin, and Brewer's arrangement of the "Star Spangled Banner," which formed the first part of the concert, was excellent throughout and was a great credit to all who took part and to Bethany. The selections from "Faust" enlisted the services of Miss Irma Lewis, as Margarita; Miss Ida Gardner, as Siebel; Enrico Aresoni, as Faust and Uly Woodside, as Mephistopheles, and the Bethany Symphony Orchestra. The chorus numbers for the most part were sung very well indeed, denoting very faithful rehearsing. Miss Lewis possesses a very pleasing soprano voice, which she uses with good intelligence. Her solo, "Song of the King of Thule," was wholly enjoyable.

IDA GARDNER

Miss Gardner had only one solo, that being "Gentle Flowers in the Dew," but this was sung in excellent style and helped very materially in making the last portion of the concert an artistic success. Mr. Aresoni sang "All Hail Brightest of Days," with chorus, with much authority and brilliancy of tone, but it was in the more popular and always welcome aria "All Hail Thou Dwelling" which found him at his best during the afternoon.

Mr. Woodside sang with fine voice and splendid regard as to musical values the well-known "Calf of God" aria. Owing to lack of rehearsal, a duet between Margarita and Faust should not have been given. The afternoon would have been more enjoyable for both artists and audience without it.

The Uhe-Wallin Recital

Mr. Arthur E. Uhe, violinist, and Mr. Arvid Wallin, pianist, completed the week's schedule of faculty recitals on Saturday afternoon, when they offered an attractive and very enjoyable program in the college chapel. They are artists of the first rank, and have had much to do with the life of the festival this year, and so deserve all the more credit and commendation for this excellent recital after so busy a week. They can count their admirers by the hundreds, and these were out in full force on this occasion and showed their appreciation with resounding applause.

Mr. Wallin opened the program by playing the "Sonata," Op. 58, by Chopin, the four movements being played with rare musical thought, great technical surety and the finish found only in those who have spent years in developing their art. It was in a group made up with "Perpetual Motion," Weber; "Gavotte," in D major, Glazounow, and Liszt's "Rhapsody," No. 13, which pleased the audience most, however. He was compelled to return to the platform repeatedly at the completion of these numbers, so insistent was the applause.

Mr. Uhe played a "Melody" by Bull, an "Air" by Bach, "Aase's Death," by Grieg, and a "Minuet" by Handel at his first appearance and the four movements of that difficult "Suite" (unaccompanied) by Le Clair, the last work finding the violinist at his best. With a technic which is seldom equaled, he dashed off the taxing passages with startling abandon and remarkable control. There are very few which can play the same work so well. The accompaniments were played very satisfactorily by Mr. Wallin.

ARVID WALLIN

The Closing Concerts

Saturday night Irene Jonani, soprano, assisted by Oscar Lofgren, pianist, were heard in a long and varied program at the auditorium.

Miss Jonani was another of the outside artists brought in for the festival, and succeeded in attracting a large audience which gave her a royal welcome. Her numbers included arias from several operas, many of the older classical songs, and several from modern composers. Mr. Lofgren, who made a splendid impression in his recital earlier in the week, was heard to fine advantage on this occasion through his playing

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer.
 Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

of the "Etude," Op. 25, No. 7, Chopin, and the "Hungarian Dance," No. 6, by Brahms.

Easter Sunday afternoon found the great prima donna Mme. Johanna Gadski giving a concert at the Auditorium, and the crowd was immense. Mme. Gadski has sung in Lindsborg several times before, so was a great drawing card for the festival. Several excursion trains arrived in the little city just before her recital. The program was typical of the great soprano and was greatly enjoyed throughout.

OSCAR THORSEN

Fine weather brought out a great audience to hear "The Messiah" rendered in the evening, thus closing a musical festival of national importance.

h h h

Bethany College and Its President

In the early eighties, when a large colony of Swedish citizens settled in and about the present city of Lindsborg, Dr. Carl Swenson, a courageous and God-fearing educator, founded Bethany College, which has struggled and grown through these years and now stands as one of the best colleges in the middle west. Following the death of the founder in 1905, Dr. Ernst F. Pihlblad was chosen president and is still at the helm, guiding with daring and broad-mindedness the various departments of the college to higher achievements and greater efficiency. Though Dr. Pihlblad has every department wholly at heart, it is the conservatory and festival with which these columns are dealing at this time and accounts for his being placed in close connection with this review. He takes a leading part in the life of the festival, and by his advice and ever faithful labor is the present standard of the affair maintained.

The faculty of Bethany's Conservatory, which includes about twenty-five specialists, has the unstinted support of the president at all times, and together have they made this department known far and wide and succeeded in drawing a large and talented body of music students to the school. However, due credit should be given the other men and factors which have made this school a success.

CHARLES LA BERGE

Some recent press comment:

Charles La Berge, baritone, sang two groups of songs with appreciation, a full, sustained tone, well controlled, especially effective in legato music.—Chicago Evening Post.

Mr. La Berge is the possessor of a voice of much sympathy—the middle and lower registers are employed with admirable precision as to method and the resulting tone is rich and colorful. He has musical taste and feeling in abundance and convinced his listeners with a particularly quiet and sustained delivery of a love song by Secchi and a rousing pronouncement of Gilbert's "Pirate Song."—Chicago Daily Tribune.

Mr. La Berge is an exceptionally gifted baritone, ranking with the best singers of his type ever heard from the platform of the University Chapel.—Tiffin (Ohio) Independent.

Charles La Berge, baritone, representing the character of Elijah, was brought forward again and again in solos which were well adapted to his powers of impersonation and brought to light the great volume of his excellent voice.—Fayette (Iowa) Reporter.

Worthy companion pictures in the vocal art were provided by Charles La Berge, baritone. These ranged over a wide field, and were alike creditable to the singer. He met the great demands of Brahms' "Verrath" and Mendelssohn's "It Is Enough," from "Elijah"; revealed the melodiousness of Schubert in "Frühlingssglaube," and gave simple charms to two examples of the beautiful old English music, "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes" and Handel's "Where E'er You Walk," from "Semele," and some dainty trifles sung with an engaging spirit of humor.—Joliet Daily News.

Mr. La Berge has a deep baritone, which shows good training. The "Love Me or Not," by Secchi, exhibited Mr. La Berge's capabilities at their best.—Chicago Examiner. (Advertisement.)

Huelster—Miss Ada T. Huelster sang Granier's "Hosanna" at the Easter service in the First Congregational Church of Ash-tabula with great success. She is a pupil of A. O. Huelster of Chicago.

Wynne—Bessie Wynne, a charming singer, is a popular feature of the bill at the Majestic this week.

Michaelis—Ralph Michaelis will give a violin recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Tuesday evening, April 13.

Donath—Mr. Kurt Donath will present the Glee Club of Culver Military Academy in concert at Culver, Ind., on April 10.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

On Tuesday evening the advanced piano pupils of May Doelling and Edna Cookingham gave the following program very successfully:

Concert Etude, in D Flat.....Liszt
 Miss Ern Ehrhardt
 Valse in E Major.....Moszkowski
 Miss Dorothy Lutz
 To a Butterfly.....MacDowell
 Autumn.....MacDowell
 Impromptu, Op. 90.....Schubert
 Miss Dorothy Berman
 Reverie.....Debussy
 Perpetuo Moto.....MacDowell
 Miss Beatrice Mesirov
 Ballade in G Minor.....Chopin
 Miss Lydia Bornhoeft
 Concert Etude.....MacDowell
 Miss Thyra Hagstrom

Prelude
 Nocturnette
 Caprice
 From "Carnival Mignon".....Schuett
 Miss Mabel Davis

Concerto, G Minor.....Saint-Saens
 Second and Third Movements
 Miss Nora Funkenstein with Miss Doelling
 Capriccio Brillante.....Mendelssohn
 Miss Mary Lussan with Miss Cookingham
 Spanish Rhapsody.....Liszt-Busoni
 Miss Marie Clettenberg with Miss Doelling

Tomlinson—Miss Anna Tomlinson presents her pupils in piano numbers at her studio in Fine Arts Building this (Friday) evening.

Cole—Miss Viola Cole presents Bess Clair Murray in piano recital at the Little Theater this (Friday) evening. Gertrude Cole, soprano, will assist.

Brown—Marguerite Manierre Brown will sing at the Central Eleanor Club on the afternoon of April 11, Mrs. Frank Smith being the accompanist.

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
 5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK

CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
 1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
 61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

FOR SALE

Mason & Hamlin
 GRAND PIANO
 Style BB. In splendid condition. An excellent bargain. HENRIETTE WEBER, 1900 LINCOLN AVENUE.
 Phone Diversey 3185

THE EMINENT PIANISTE NEUBAUER

WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - - ST. LOUIS

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
 OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
 ALINE B. STORY
 5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART
606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOEBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius
TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen
TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamar
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN
VOICE
43 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue CHICAGO

People & Events

CHARLES LA BERGE

Music News prints today, on its cover page, a likeness of Charles La Berge, solo baritone at the West Side Sunday Night Club, where he made a big success last Sunday night in "The Messiah."

Mr. La Berge is a teacher of voice in the American Conservatory and has there a splendid list of pupils.

He is an accomplished singer, endowed with a naturally good voice, powerful, yet melodious, and possessing unusual powers of interpretation.

Among recent engagements have been "Hiawatha," Hope College, Michigan; "Creation," Heidelberg University, Ohio; "Elijah," Uppertown University, Iowa, and recitals at Peoria, Ill.; Duluth, Minn., and Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Mr. La Berge is equally successful in oratorio and in recital, having many engagements in both fields.

WILLIAM BEARD

As proof of the statement that his pupils occupy prominent positions throughout the country, the following list shows where former and present pupils of William Beard were singing on Easter Sunday just past:

Harriet Jane MacConnell, First Presbyterian Church, Oak Park.

William Preston Phillips, Bloomington, Ill.

Lora Withers Biggs, First Congregational Church, Evanston.

Oscar Gordon Erickson, Sunday Evening Club, Chicago.

G. Edwin Knapp, Science Church, Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Lucile Dunton, First Presbyterian Church, Austin, Ill.

Charlotte Johnson, Sacramento Boulevard M. E. Church, Chicago.

Eva M. Leslie, North Shore Congregational Church, Chicago.

Frank J. McNellis, Holy Angels' Church, Chicago.

H. Z. Malo, St. Cyril's Church, Chicago.

Roy B. Wisman, First M. E. Church, Pontiac, Ill.

Mrs. Mayme Burris, Arizona School of Music, Phoenix, Ariz.

Elsie Sievert, Montclare Congregational Church, Montclare, Ill.

A. James Haupt, Wicker Park Congregational Church, Chicago.

Norman G. Rose, Congregational Church, Austin.

Eta Hungerford, Manhattan, Kansas.

Edith Madison, San Antonio, Texas.

Harold Rossiter, Sacramento Boulevard M. E. Church, Chicago.

Walter Barndt, a young baritone, was chosen from among a long list of applicants to sing a leading role in an operetta to be given at the Hyde Park High School in the near future.

Frank McNellis, baritone, will sing at one of the concerts to be given by the Society of American Musicians in Fullerton Hall in May and also at the graduating exercises of the Normal School in Fullerton Hall this month.

Mr. Beard himself is the bass in the quartet at St. Paul's Universalist Church. This church has only one service on Sunday and he frequently sings elsewhere in the evening.

LEONORA ALLEN

Recent press comment:

Miss Leonora Allen sang beautifully, with a tone always pure in quality, ample in volume, sure of herself and of what she was doing, and with fine perception of the meaning of the poem.—Post, February 23, 1915. Apollo Club, Chicago.

Miss Allen sang the soprano music of "The Veil" and the solo in Florent Schmitt's remarkable setting of the Forty-seventh Psalm. Her voice is of admirable quality and she used it with highly pleasurable results in her music. It is not a voice of great power, but it carries well and its freshness is attractive to the ear. Miss Allen should be heard again.—Herald, February 23, 1915.

Miss Leonora Allen is well fitted for oratorio singing. She displayed the beauties and refinements of a well trained and naturally lovely voice. Miss Allen, with true inspiration and (what is more) perfect accuracy achieved the strong intervals of the solo "From God Alone Cometh My Salvation."—News, February 23, 1915.

Leonora Allen, soprano, exhibited the same winning, flexible, expressive voice which she has displayed to Chicago audiences on past occasions, and a very adroit, certain knowledge of the tricky music which fell to her lot. It was singing of a high order.—Journal, February 23, 1915. Minneapolis Orchestral Concert, January 31, 1915.

Miss Leonora Allen is a genuine soprano who narrowly escapes the inartistic adjective "coloratura" and yet who meets the description half way by the possession of a sweet and flexible voice containing the inimitable qualities of freshness, spontaneity and warmth that youth, and nothing but youth, can impart. Her upper tones are ravishingly beautiful.—Caryl B. Storrs, Journal.

Miss Leonora Allen, a popular soprano soloist, immediately charmed the Racine audience. There is a pleasing freshness in her voice, which has a pure soprano quality, round in tone form. She sings freely and confidently, in fact, such beauty of tone and flexibility of technic is attained by few singers of the day.—Racine, Wis., February 24, 1915. (Advertisement.)

OGLESBY, ILLINOIS

The following comment is taken from the LaSalle (Ill.) Daily Post:

The recital given last evening at Oglesby Union Church by the pupils of Mr. Milton R. Harris of Chicago not only reflected great credit on the vocal training which had been received, but proved a thoroughly enjoyable musical treat to the large audience which filled the church to its full capacity. Every number on the program won close attention and enthusiastic applause.

Viewing their work as a whole, the points which marked the performance of Mr. Harris' pupils were, ease and good quality of tone production, clearness of enunciation and sympathetic shading of expression in the phrasing. Undoubtedly these qualities were rendered more noticeable by the admirable judgment shown in the selections, which in every case were wonderfully adapted to the voices and powers of the individual singers.

In this connection one must not fail to mention the excellent accompanying of Miss Helen Gallup, not only has she perfect control and mastery of piano technique, but is an ideal accompanist, making her playing blend and harmonize with the voices of the singers in a way to bring out the full value of every note produced by the latter.

Certainly Mr. Harris has done much to establish the foundations of musical culture in Oglesby on a firm and substantial basis, and it is hoped that another season may bring under his leadership and instruction a much larger number than ever before.

Blood—Miss Blanche Blood conducted the string orchestra of the Drake School of Music at Wheaton, Tuesday evening last, at the recital of Miss Beulah Houston, accompanying eleven vocal numbers, besides presenting her two piano soloists, the Misses Anderson and Allevato, two young ladies of ability.

IN BRIEFER FORM

Dellers—The Sunday School Orchestra of the First Congregational Church in Oak Park gave a program at the Church on Easter Afternoon under direction of Walter Dellers.

Prahl—Mr. Earl Victor Prahl, pianist at Bush Temple, and Rowland E. Leach, violinist, will give a program at Bush Temple this (Friday) evening. Edgar Nelson will be the accompanist.

Robinson—Miss Carol Robinson will give piano recitals as follows: April 5, Vandalia, Ill.; 6, Centralia, Ill.; 7, Altmont, Ill., and on April 15, will represent the pianists in the first annual concert of the Federated Clubs of Chicago at the Congress Hotel.

Henry—Harold Henry, an American pianist of sterling worth, is adding to his repertory a new work which has been written for and dedicated to him by Rossiter G. Cole, the brilliant composer of the music of "King Robert of Sicily."

Leginska—Leginska, the English pianist, will play recital engagements in Saratoga and Poughkeepsie, along with seven private appearances in Greater New York during the first half of April. Miss Leginska has also been engaged as soloist for the Pater-son May Festival.

Englewood Baptist Church—At the Englewood Baptist Church this (Friday) evening a concert will be given under direction of H. W. Fairbank, the numbers to be presented by Minnie Cedargreen, violinist, Marian Chase Schaeffer, soprano, and choir of the church.

South Dakota State Normal—"Fair Ellen" and "The Rose Maiden" were given under the direction of Garnett Hedge on March 26 and on the 28th a chamber music program was given by the Carl Christensen String Quartet, assisted by Laura Ferguson, soprano.

Rogers Park—A splendid Easter program of music was given at the Rogers Park Presbyterian Church on Sunday under the baton of Milton R. Harris, the new director. The Anthems were by Granier, Warren, Buck, Woodman, Chapple, Foster and Hanscom and included also Gounod's "Unfold ye Portals," sung both at the morning and evening service.

Bourstin—Since Arkady Bourstin, the Russian violinist, recently announced that he intended purchasing another violin no less than sixty "Near Strads" have been offered to him at figures ranging from $500 to $30,000. One violin collector on hearing Bourstin play offered him the use of a Stradivarius bearing the date of 1724 which the young Russian may accept unless he can actually purchase the instrument.

Wanieck—Mr. Kurt Wanieck and Mr. Edward Clarke, who give a joint recital at Thurber Hall, Fine Arts building, Thursday, April 15, are beginning to wonder if they made a mistake in not choosing a bigger hall. The idea of the recital in the first place was to give these artists an opportunity to do "Enoch Arden" with Strauss music. The interest has been so general that they think they may have to repeat it.

Porter—Mr. H. Lakin Porter presented his choir at the Auburn Park Methodist Episcopal Church in Protheroe's "Christ Eternal" on Easter morning, and in the Manney cantata, "The Resurrection," in the evening. The choir was assisted by the Junior Chorus of fifty voices. The soloists were Mrs. E. H. Fleming, Miss Ruth Aspenwell, Mr. Masson and Mr. Porter, and the organist was Mrs. Harriette Pettit.

Dobyns—Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns was incorrectly reported in Music News of last week as being engaged to sing with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, the notice should have read Milwaukee. The date was March 29 and Mrs. Dobyns scored a complete success, according to the Milwaukee News: "Singing her way into great favor with the audience." Her number was a recitative and aria from Wagner's "Rienzi" and for encore she gave Mrs. Beach's "Years at the Spring."

Clarke—Edward Clarke will give a recital for the Conservatory of Music, Findlay, Ohio, Tuesday, April 5, under management of Harry Culbertson: Mr. Edward Clarke sang the bass role in the "Messiah" at the Park Avenue Methodist Church, Thursday, April 1. Unlike many singers, Mr. Clarke does not need to worry about the condition of his voice. On this day he taught from 10 in the morning until 5:30 and then sang the solos in the "Messiah" without a rehearsal, including the "trumpet solo." This singer is fortunate in having a well placed voice and is blessed with an unusual amount of good health.

Myrle Tyler Irons—Mildred Lazarus, a ten year old pupil of Mrs. Irons, was the star of an entertainment at the Church of the Transfiguration on March 23, playing with great style and finish "The Fountain" (Bohm) and "Hungary" (Kocling).

Rankl—John Rankl sang excerpts from Stainer's "Crucifixion" at a special three hour service at Christ Church, Winnetka, on Good Friday. He also sang at the Auditorium Hotel, Thursday, April 1, at the banquet for William Hale Thompson, given by Hamilton Club ladies.

Independent Religious Society—The "Awakening of Spring" was celebrated at the Majestic Theater by this society on Sunday morning last, the music being from Haydn's "Seasons." It was given by Mrs. Minnie Fish-Griffin, Mrs. Clarence Eddy, William Wegener and Hyde W. Perce, with James Whittaker at the piano.

Chicago Teachers' Chorus—The Chicago Teachers' Chorus, under direction of O. E. Robinson, will give a concert at Orchestra Hall on April 20, the soloists to be Luella Chilson Ohrman and Edward Clarke, with Kathleen Grant as accompanist. Twenty-two members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra also assisting.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST
COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR
We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - Violin
ALBERTI SALVI - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract. (26th Year)

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago, Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

MURPHY DRAMATIC
JOHN FREMONT SOPRANO

ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

MONICA GRAHAM SOPRANO
Columbia School of Music

STULTS BASS
WALTER ALLEN --
303 KIMBALL HALL

ILLINOIS WOMAN'S PRESS ASSOCIATION

Thursday evening, April 1, the members and friends of the Illinois Woman's Press Association assembled at the Eleanor Club rooms to hear the program of music given by Chicago composers and artists. There was great sincerity of purpose shown by each one who took part in the program, and it is safe to say this club has and will do much for Chicago composers.

Mr. Sowerby opened the program with Eric De Lamar's composition, "My Lady Danes," proving himself to be a very good player of modern music, and the number proved to be very original and effectively written.

Mr. Hess and Mr. Eidam gave the Beethoven "Sonata in F Major" and the first movement of the Grieg "Sonata in A Minor," for 'cello and piano, in a very artistic manner.

Artur Platz sang the Boyd songs that have become so popular, with the composer at the piano, and he sang them well indeed. Miss Boyd's songs met with great success. Frances Carey-Libbe, contralto, was heard to good advantage in a very attractive group of songs by August Halter.

Alfred Goldman played numbers by Mozart-Auer, Schubert-Wilhelmj and Randegger with a fine style and a composition of his own that proved to be another interesting number for violin.

Two groups of songs by Charlotte Thearle Sulcer were sung very effectively by Mr. Sulcer and Mrs. Thearle Sulcer. The songs had many points of interest and should be heard often. Both groups are very interesting in musical content. Emma Sollitt-Sherman sang "Summer," by Ronald, and two songs by Marie Edwards that seemed to be glad with life and a good flow of melody, and Mrs. Sherman did them well indeed.

Miss Edwards played her group of solos in a very artistic manner, that won her merited applause.

Franklin E. Hathaway sang three very interesting songs of his own, that have many points of interest, and he sang them well. He also sang two songs by Carol Kelley Brooke that are very original and have much contrast.

The accompanists and composer-accompanists did splendid work at the piano for the soloists, that merits commendation.

Sonata, F major, for 'cello and piano.....Beethoven
Adagio sostenuto
Allegro

Hans Hess and Clarence Eidam
My Lady Danes.....Eric DeLamar
Joyously
Languidly
Capriciously

Leo Sowerby, pianist
Autumn on the Prairies.....August Halter
Warum ich so einsam bleibe (from Meerlieder).....August Halter

Kitty of Colerain.....August Halter
Tears, Idle Tears (The Princess, Tennyson).....
Frances Carey-Libbe, contralto
The composer at the piano

Wind from the South
La Tarantella
In Italy

Artur F. Platz, tenor
The composer at the piano
Ave Maria.....Schubert-Wilhelmj
Gavotte.....Mozart-Auer
Berceuse.....Alfred Goldman
A Bohemian Dance.....Randegger

Alfred Goldman, violinist
A. L. Shynman at the piano
Love Songs of the Open Road.....

Charlotte Thearle Sulcer
Morning
Noon
Night

Henry Sulcer, baritone
Songs from Child's Garden of Verse.....Charlotte T. Sulcer
Charlotte Thearle Sulcer

Lenore Folk Harris, accompanist
A Japanese Lullaby.....Marie Edwards
Three Little Pussies.....Marie Edwards
Summer.....Ronald

Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano
Composer at the piano

Toccata.....Leschetizky
Arabesque.....Leschetizky
Kermesse Carrillonnante.....Widor

Marie Edwards, pianist
A Minor Sonata for 'Cello and Piano.....Grieg
Andante

Hans Hess and Clarence Eidam

Their Lullaby
Absent
Love's Rainbow

Franklin E. Hathaway

Adymae Parsons, obligato
Hopi Love Song.....Carol Kelley Brooke
San'man from San'lan.....Carol Kelley Brooke

Franklin E. Hathaway
Composer at the piano H. W. P.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The vesper service at the First Presbyterian Church in Oak Park is as it should be, a very solemn and impressive service.

Edgar Nelson is the very capable organist, and his playing throughout the service was elegant along every line. "Easter Music," by Mascagni, and Gounod's "March from Redemption" were his solo offering, splendidly rendered. The quartet was heard in "The Soul's Rejoicing, by Joseph, and a goodly number of hymns, sung with a fine spirit, and a good quality of tone that was a joy to hear. Miss MacConnell was the soloist, and she proved herself to be a singer with a good church style Homer's "Sheep and Lambs" was her offering. The quartet on this occasion was Mable Corlew-Smith, soprano; Harriet MacConnell, contralto; Edward Atehison, tenor; James Goddard, bass.

###

Kimbell—Grant Kimbell will be the offertory soloist at the First Congregational Church of Oak Park Sunday morning. He also has several spring festival engagements, among them being two performances of "The Messiah," one of "Elijah" and the "Swan and Skylark."

###

Creation—This evening, Friday, April 9, at Orchestra Hall, Haydn's "Creation" will be sung by the Hadyn Choral Society under the baton of Mr. H. W. Owens. The soloists will be Lucille Stevenson, Edward Walker and Charles W. Clark.

EVENSONG AT ST. JAMES EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Beautiful and impressive was the even-song at St. James Episcopal Church on Easter. The service was attended by St. Bernard Commandery, No. 35, Knights Templar, one of the most famous commanderies in the country.

The great auditorium of the church was lavishly decorated with Easter flowers, and the rich uniforms of the knights added to the beauty of the scene. The commandery filed into the church to the martial strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and after they had taken their places in the section reserved for them, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today, Alleluia!" came, faintly at first, then louder, as the splendid choir began the processional.

John W. Norton, organist and choirmaster at St. James, has a well established reputation for competency in the matter of organ playing and choir management and in the public services he carries choir and audience through with authority and intelligence.

The music of the service on Easter afternoon was sung excellently.

The processions were spirited, the responses smooth and well modulated, and the magnificat and the anthem delivered in a manner productive of fine effects.

The magnificat was West's in E flat. The anthem was taken from William Lester's new Easter cantata, "The Triumph of the Greater Love," which is to be given complete in St. James Church.

The part used as an anthem last Sunday afternoon showed skillful work on the part of the composer and was artistically sung by the choir.

The rendering of the seven-fold amen following the benediction was a delight in itself and a fitting finale to an inspiring service. C. J. B.

— # # —

American Conservatory—For the month of April the American Conservatory has scheduled an unusual number of interesting recitals, as follows: April 3 (afternoon), advanced pupils of Messrs. Scionti, Hackett and Robinson; April 6 (evening), advanced piano pupils, the Misses May Doelling and Edna Cookingham; April 10 (afternoon), annual recital of compositions by Adolf Weidig's class; April 17 (afternoon), advanced pupils of Heniot Levy; April 22 (evening), concerto recital by pupils of Kurt Wanieck, assisted by advanced voice pupils of Jennie Johnson; April 22 (afternoon), children's recital, under the direction of Louise Robyn; April 27 (evening), concerto recital by advanced pupils of Victor Garwood, Silvio Scionti and Allen Spencer.

— # # —

Houston—The Wheaton Illinoian of April 1 devotes nearly a column to a review of the concert given by the vocal pupils of Miss Beulah Houston at the Presbyterian Church in that city on Thursday. The work of the pupils is commended very highly. Those mentioned specifically are Geraldine Scott, Mr. Mizuki, Mrs. Warner, Margaret Fisher, Mrs. Margaret McRoy Hewitt and Austin Angell. Assistance was given also by a string orchestra, under direction of Blanche Blood and Harold Ayers in violin solos.

GRACE CHURCH, OAK PARK

At Grace Church in Oak Park the Easter services under the direction of Arthur Randolph Fraser were models of churchly thought and musical beauty. The chorus was supported by an orchestra of ten pieces and the organ, as played by Mr. Fraser, was also a source of great inspiration.

Only a part of the morning service was heard, but this was enough to show that Mr. Fraser has already attained to splendid results in his direction of this choir and the hearty co-operation of the boys and men under his care must be a great delight to him.

The offertory consisted of "He Is Risen," a solidly built anthem which was invested with surety of tone and a very considerable amount of musical shading.

This was followed by the "Hallelujah" chorus from "The Messiah," which, difficult as it is, was yet quite within the grasp of this choir and which was delivered with much brilliancy.

Preceding the communion, the "Sanctus" from the Gounod "St. Cecilia Mass" was sung impressively, the tenor solo being well done by F. W. Maynard, while the "Benedictus" and the "Agnus Dei" respectively introduced Masters John McEwen and Paul Gervaise.

Earlier in the day a quartet composed of Masters Rexford Daube and Walter Lyklema and Messrs. F. W. Maynard and B. C. Coombs had been heard and at various points of the service solos were also sung by Masters Charles Hughes and Arthur Cox and Mr. Richard C. Lyklema, all of them winning much commendation.

C. E. W.

— # # —

Stevenson—Louise Wottring, a pupil of Lucille Stevenson, and the possessor of a remarkable voice, made great success last Saturday afternoon in a recital at the Cosmopolitan School of Music.

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management: Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

EQUALIZING EXERCISES FOR ALL SCALES

A Scale and Arpeggio Book for Piano Study

By GEORGE BAILHE

(Summy Edition No. 63)

Each phase of technique embodied in scale playing is generally accomplished by separate sets of exercises. You have never been able to give one set of studies embracing all this training—that is what we offer you in Mr. Bailhe's book. Each exercise applies immediately and effectively to the scale, for each one is indeed, a part of the scale itself.

Make each minute of your pupil's practice time count, by having him use these exercises.

Strongly endorsed by Moritz Moszkowski, Joseph Lhevinne, Isidor Philipp and others.

Price, $1.50

CLAYTON F. SUMMY CO.

PUBLISHERS

64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SOLOS and QUARTETS

FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By

HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)

BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)

LIFE (Medium)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)

BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE

CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers

Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.

67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

DAN S. DENTON TENOR

OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

Music in America

LOS ANGELES

Mr. Behymer's presentation of Maggie Teyte in his philharmonic course was truly a treat.

h h h

The second concert of the Lyric Club was an unusually pleasing event, always looked forward to with happy anticipation. The "Indian Bride," by Fletcher, an oriental scene, in its strange form, melody and harmony, was full of interest, sung so effectively by the 100 ladies' voices in the prevailing minor mode, even to the vocalizing "ah" in the refrain chorus.

Edwin Markham's poem, "The Cross," with a musical setting by Ware-Rogers, with organ and piano accompaniment, was a gem poetically and musically. The Moszkowski-Richards "The Dance," for brightness and lilting melodies, displayed the tone quality to a nicety. The succeeding wierd, minor sad shade, by contrast, was a good point in program order. It was Borodin's "Polovetian Maidens." Mrs. Goodfellow sang the soprano solo in clearness and pathetic, tender, tones.

Marzo's "Mariquita" was also a gem. Vincent D'Indy's "St. Mary Magdalene," with Miss Marguerite Goodwin in the soprano solo part, which was somewhat lengthy but relieved by the chorus interludes, and with the splendid organ effects furnished by Mrs. Ada Marsh Chick, produced a marked spiritual service effect by contrast with the more striking choral selections.

Mr. M. Meier gave two violin solos, Wilhelmj's "E Major Romance" and Sinigaglia's "Danze Piemontesi," and responded with an encore that was highly appreciated, ably accompanied by Mrs. Meier.

Thomas' "Summer Night" was given by Miss Mary Louise Creyts, in a pleasing contralto voice.

The "Cycle of Six Swedish Folk Songs," by Louis Victor Saar, and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach's "The Year's at the Spring," arranged for ladies' chorus, were fitting closing values in harmony effort.

Mr. J. B. Poulin, director, and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson, accompanist, were accountable in a large measure for the great musical treat and artistic success. Every seat was occupied in the large Trinity Auditorium.

h h h

In the same auditorium an eight-day chautauqua course has taken place, representing the renowned lecturers Dr. Charles E. Locke, Dr. J. W. Brougher, Bishop William M. Bell, Dr. Matt. S. Hughes and his brother, Bishop Hughes, Miss Eleanor Miller, Helen Keller and others.

The musical attractions were the Los Angeles Oratorio Society, the Woman's Symphony Orchestra and the Tuskegee Singers.

The Woman's Symphony had two appearances in a week, under their director, Mr. Henry Schoenfeld, with a complete change of program, first in the chautauqua course and the second in a series of five concerts of popular programs on Sunday afternoons of March and April. In the Trinity course, Miss Lucy Fahrner, 'cellist, was soloist in Goltermann's "Andante." Miss Grace Helen Adams, as cornet soloist, in Levi's "Russian Fantasy." The Chopin "Polonaise Militaire" closed a very satisfactory list of selections, commendably performed, Mr. Arthur W. Blakely being a valuable assistant as organist.

The Sunday program presented Miss Alice Redewell of Phoenix, Ariz., who, as a pupil of Godowsky, in Berlin, gave a good account of herself as a student and musician. With the orchestra she gave a splendid performance of Grieg's "Piano Concerto in A Minor." She graciously responded with an encore. She is worthy of more frequent hearings.

The Zampa "Overture," Tschaiakowsky's "Song Without Words," "Mignon Gavotte," Schoenfeld's "Berceuse" and "Serenade," for strings, "Danube Waltz" and Kretschmar's "Coronation," with Arthur Blakeley at the organ and Paul H. Carson at the piano, comprised a strong instrumental concert.

The vocal soloist was Mrs. Grace Wood Jess, a mezzo-soprano with a fine gift of vocal possibilities. She sang an aria from "Tosca," Grieg's "Ich liebe dich," and Woodman's "An Open Secret."

If we are lovers of good music and artistic renditions, such programs, given at popular prices, merit a crowded house.

h h h

Miss Mary Olive Gray, in her pupils' recital, demonstrated much talent. By special request, at the close of the unusually long program, she gave a fine rendition of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata." Her vocal assistant was Miss Ruth Hutchinson, a soprano of much promise, who has been coaching under Mrs. Emma Porter Mackinson. While all did well, as students, Mrs. Chester Smith, in Friml's "Drifting" and Chopin's "Polonaise in C Sharp Minor," was very much enjoyed.

h h h

A very suitable program for Eastertide or Christmas season was given by Mrs. L. J. Selby, contralto, under the general head of "The Star of Bethlehem." The bible headings are "God and His Creation," "God's Covenant with Man," "Prophecy and Birth of Jesus," "The Teachings of Jesus" and "The Crucifixion and Resurrection." A well-chosen group of three or more songs under each head were given in darkened room, with starlight effects. Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson was an able accompanist. No applause was permitted. The effect is impressive. Even the piano seemed offending. The use of an organ is indispensable and verbal introductions would enhance the effect. Mrs. Selby has a vital contralto voice and showed little weariness at the close of seventeen rather long solos, or an hour and forty minutes' singing.

h h h

The newly organized chorus, now about 200 enrollment, gave their premier appearance in the Mendelssohn "Athalia" oratorio. The overture with four hands at grand piano and the organ. The director, Frederick Brueschweiler, and piano accompanist;

Miss Lorna Gregg, at the piano, and Arthur Blakeley at the organ. The reader, who was par excellence, was Mrs. Pearle Meade Barry. The soprano soloists were Miss Louise Sexton, a very sweet-toned lyric quality timber, and Mrs. Grace Wood Jess, a stronger mezzo-soprano, both doing their respective parts with care and adaptability. The title role was taken by Miss Molly Byerly Wilson, a contralto of fine attainments, who preceded the first part with a short song recital of eight solos, with Mr. Will Garroway as accompanist. In these she demonstrated her breadth of style and scope of delivery, and in the oratorio work which followed the power of endurance. The chorus was under the baton of the director, who gave evidence of his musicianship and skill as a drillmaster. The unity of action in organ, piano, chorus and solo efforts gave a presentation of a good degree of merit. The second performance within a year or two. It would stand a large chorus with orchestra to be more lifting in the high points of dramatic content. The "War March of the Priests" and "Heaven and Earth Display" are stupendous in climaxes.

The fifth symphony orchestra was like the former—all that might be desired. Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony in B minor"; "Afternoon of a Faun," by Debussy, and the prelude to "The Meistersinger" were the request numbers from a great list already heard. The special number was the Beethoven "Concerto for Piano, Cello, Violin and Orchestra." The soloists were Mrs. Thilo Becker (Otie Chew), violin; Mr. Axel Simonsen, cello, and Mr. Thilo Becker, piano. The well-known reputation of these artists gave promise of fine results, and the stupendous difficulties were handled with such dispatch and skill that few scratches were in evidence, which could easily have happened under less skillful artists. Much interest is growing in the "Ninth Symphony" of Beethoven, for April 30 and May 1, with the combined Lyric and Ellis Clubs, 200 to sing the last movement, Schiller's "Ode to Joy."

Schumann-Heink has come and gone. She sang to a capacity house; was called and recalled, and happily responded. Upon this occasion she chose for her accompanist our own towns lady musician, Miss Gertrude Ross, who met all demands in the piano requisites, the Mme. Heink honoring her by singing her charming song, "Dawn in the Desert," which she makes immensely effective. She is listed to be her accompanist in San Francisco at an early date.

A musical and social event of much pleasure was the joint piano recital by Misses Channell and Flint at the Ebell Club house. Miss Frances L. Flint, daughter of Mrs. Henry Putnam Flint, president of the Lyric Club of 100 ladies and much interested in musical education. Miss Mabel G. Channell and Miss Flint have been abroad for some time, studying with Ganz and Rummell, in Berlin and Paris. Their playing was very well received throughout a heavy and a good grade of classic selections. Miss Flint opened with "Partite," in B flat major, by Bach. Miss Channell, in Liszt's "Etude de Concert" and Schumann's "Nov-clette," gave a good impression, and also in Ganz's "Fileuse" and "Etude Caprice."

A strong group by Miss Flint was Liszt's "Liebestraum" and Chopin's "Impromptu." The wealth in floral offerings indicated the appreciation and the friendly recognition of the home-coming of the student ladies. Social, refreshments and reception abounded in full expression.

Miss Julia Culp will appear on April 8 and 10 with Conrad V. Bos, as accompanist.

Mr. James W. Overton's violin recital, April 12.

Barrere ensemble on April 20.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

1651 Sixth avenue.

Sturkow-Ryder—Two pupils of Mme. Sturkow-Ryder were heard at the Junior Club of the Chicago Artists' Association March 27, which was held at the Art Institute. Miss Ernau Smith played the "F Major Etude, Op. 10," by Chopin, and Miss Mildred Mathews played the "March Grotesque," by Sinding.

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Some recent press comment on the work of Hazel Dell Neff, soprano.

Miss Hazel Dell Neff, soprano, won instant favor. Her voice is lovely, a high lyric soprano with a rich and sweet quality that is very appealing. She sings with a finish and ease that is unusual, and there is a spiritual quality in her work without which no music is complete. A charming feature of her part of the program was her singing of Russian folk songs in picturesque peasant costume, and of other Russian songs in Russian court dress.—Neenah (Wis.) Daily News.

Miss Neff, a winsome personality, possesses a sweet, strong soprano voice, under a superb control, received her musical instruction in American conservatories under celebrated masters. Her voice is flexible and might well be defined as bird-like in the sweetness of its trills, and yet is astonishing in its strength and endurance.—Belvidere, Ill. (Advertisement.)

Bengel—On March 27 Helen Bright Bengel was soloist with the Chicago Ensemble; on Easter, soloist at Pilgrim Congregational Church; Easter afternoon, soloist Grand Masonic service; April 11, Sunday Evening Club; 20, recital, Hammond Country Club; Paxton, Ill., date to be announced later.

SPECIAL OFFER

Through the Year in Melody

Twelve Easy Instructive Pieces for the Pianoforte

By CARL MILLEGRAM

THIS set of teaching pieces will be found exceedingly valuable for first grade work. It is unique and characteristic; the pieces are carefully fingered and phrased and will strengthen and develop the feeling of musical rhythm, so essential in training of beginners.

Complete set in one volume 45c, regular price $1.00.

Separate Numbers 10c each, postpaid.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

HERMAN

DEVRIES

MRS. HERMAN

Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

Residence 5433 Harper Av.

Associate

Vocal Instructor

Tel. Midway 8963

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

DOROTHY WAGNER

A fine song recital was given recently by Mrs. Dorothy Wagner, soprano; Violet Martens Hughes, accompanist, and Peter Angula, 'cellist. Mrs. Wagner has a splendid voice and a most ingratiating personality.

The first group comprised songs by Haydn, Saint-Saens and Gounod.

"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" ("Samson and Delilah") was sung with such a breadth of style and good display of vocal art that it is remembered as one of the most artistic moments of the splendid program.

DOROTHY WAGNER

In her second group of numbers, by Forster, Bohm, Neidlinger and Speaks, Mrs. Wagner showed much versatility in musical and interpretative thought. "To You" and "Where Did You Come From, Baby Dear?" were especially beautiful as she sang them. "Birth of Morn," by Leoni; "An Open Secret," by Woodman, and "Butterfly's Wooing," by Terry, were also made very attractive, being sung with great beauty of voice and with many contrasts in color and shading. "The Angels' Serenade," by Braga, sung with piano and 'cello accompaniment, was thoroughly enjoyable and splendidly sung.

Mrs. Wagner should meet with continued successes in the concert field.

Mrs. Hughes was at the piano throughout the program, and furnished accompaniments that were sympathetic and artistic.

Burton—Miss Louise Burton has been very busy teaching all season and her pupils are appearing variously. Amanda Vau-fel, soprano, was soloist in March for the Progressive Study Club of Elgin. Maude Beyler, soprano, sang at Naponee, Ind., April 5. Miss Vau-fel and Lillian Molter, contralto, gave the Easter program at the First Evangelical Church of Freeport, Ill. Miss Burton gave a pupils' recital at Napersville in March.

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

Thursday, April 1, the monthly concert of the Chicago Woman's Musical Club was given at the Congress Hotel by Anna H. Balatka, pianist; Ella O'Neal Corrigan, soprano; Veronica Condon-Krebs, contralto; Leta Murdock, violinist; Leona Marie Hayes, harpist; Thomas Lewis, baritone, and Nora Murdock, Lillian Grant Haeffner, Isaac Van Grove, A. L. Shynman, Carl Weiss, accompanists.

Miss Murdock, a young violinist with a good tone, acquitted herself with credit, as did Miss Hayes in her harp solos.

Miss Balatka, pianist, played the Litoff "Concerto Symphonico," No. 3, in a manner that young musicians might well take as an example. Miss Balatka has a good musicianship, a very reliable technic, and she proved herself to be fully equal to almost any task that she undertook. Her reading of the concerto was very artistic, both musically and interpretatively.

Mrs. Corrigan has a voice of excellent quality and range, and she used it in a very intelligent manner. Her personality is very ingratiating and her stage presence attractive. Her artistry is fine and she won many new friends and admirers. Mrs. Corrigan gave numbers by Bishop, Lehmann, Delibes, singing them with great beauty of voice. Seldom does one hear the "Ou Va

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control—freedom of vocal method, is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C."

MUSIC NEWS

La Jenne Indouc," from "Lakme," sung as well as the rendition heard on this occasion.

Mrs. Krebs' fine contralto voice was heard to advantage in Tchaikowsky's "Lebt Wohl, Ihr Berge," Rogers' "Wind Song," and Mascheroni's "Ave Maria," sung with violin, piano and harp accompaniment. Mrs. Krebs uses a fine style and her renditions were very artistic.

Mr. Lewis has a fine voice and his renditions of numbers by Leoncavallo, Jensen, Fox and Ware were artistic and he was accorded his share of the merited applause. The accompanists did their share toward making the program a success, for they did very commendatory work. H. W. P.

HARMON H. WATT COMPOSITIONS

The Chicago Piano College presented a program on last Saturday afternoon to a capacity house when the works of Harmon H. Watt, exclusively, were played.

Mr. Watt himself presented "A Dream," "Reminiscence" and "Romance in F" (unpublished), while Ella Malone, Lillian Sowka, Christine Miller, Gertrude Barbour, Irene Greidler and Nellie Fisk played respectively "A Night Song," "At Spring-tide," "Ariel," Rhodora," "Moods" and "Perdita."

Miss Annette Pangbourne made a big success with the MS. song "Lullabye" and Miss Emma Ellersdorfer displayed fine technic as well as great musical intelligence in the first piano part of the "Variations" on a German "Chorale," Mr. Watt playing the second piano part.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY

Miss Carrie Scott presented Miss Othelia Stenersen in the sixth program of the artist pupils' series at the Mendelssohn Conservatory, Tuesday evening, March 30. W. Harold Simons, violinist, assisted. Mrs. W. H. Simons was the accompanist.

Only a portion of the carefully chosen program of classics could be heard by this writer, but Miss Stenersen gave evidence of having received her training along good lines, evidenced by the work of the pupils heard previously.

Miss Stenersen played the "Rondo" from Sonata, Op. 53, Beethoven, with much surity and understanding. Kowalski's "Salut a Pesth" was played in a manner that met with great approval by the audience, and in the Liszt Rhapsodie No. 13 she displayed a well developed technic and ease of execution.

Miss Scott may well feel proud of Miss Stenersen, as her artist pupil, and of the others who did their share in making the past evenings successful.

Miss Stenersen's program (not heard) included Liszt's Rhapsodies No. 2 and No. 6, a group of Grieg, and the Mendelssohn Concerto in G Minor.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The choir of the First Baptist Church in Oak Park gave a short program of music at the morning service, Sunday, April 4. Helen Worswick Ross is a young musician with a serious attitude toward her art, and she acquitted herself well in organ numbers by Stainer and Guilman, and in the quartet accompaniments she gave good support to the singers. Ella Corrigan, soprano, Mabel Corlew, contralto, A. W. Weary, tenor, H. B. Saunders, bass, sang Rogers' "As It Began to Dawn," Fisher's "O Risen Lord," and "A Legend," by Tchaikowsky.

"As It Began to Dawn" was especially well done and effective. Mrs. Corrigan's splendid soprano was heard to a good advantage in the solo parts of the anthems. Her singing of "Blessed Is He That Cometh," by Gounod, was very commendable.

Miss Corlew, contralto, sang the "Resurrection," by Shelley, in a manner that proved her to be a singer with a fine church style. Her voice is rich and of good quality and she sings with a fine regard for the text.

Dr. B. D. Barber played for the offertory a 'cello solo that was very satisfying.

Cosmopolitan School—Mr. William Owen, Director of the Dramatic Department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, will leave on April 12 for a limited engagement with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau in "The Servant in the House." Mr. Owen will use his own company, comprised of students in his department. Mr. Donald Robertson, the well-known actor and teacher, will be in charge of the Dramatic Department during Mr. Owen's absence.

Shipman—Vera Brady Shipman gave musical readings at the First Methodist Church, Van Buren, Ark., Thursday, March 11, and her next date is with Central Methodist Church in Fort Smith, Friday, April 9. Mrs. Shipman appeared with T. Carl Whitmer in Fort Smith in a group of musical readings by Whitmer with the composer at the piano, March 29.

EASTER AT FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

I had my first glimpse of that impressive pile of stone and cement called the Fourth Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon. It is something superb in its design and working out, and I could use up all my space descanting on the fascinating features. Without doubt the impression received is influenced by what one takes with him, but those fine lines and arches, the echoing tiles and floors, the severe, almost rigid sternness of pillar and column, the exquisite carving of stone and wood, the faultless coloring of the high windows and even the chill that will make itself felt from a stone surface, all suggest the purest ecclesiastic architecture and simply enthrall the observant eye. And the organ, the organist and his music fit perfectly into the environment. The average music used in Presbyterian churches would be a bit jarring, for the classic in form is almost compelling here. Mr. Delamarter had outlined his musical service with an astute judgment for the fitness of things. In that reproduction of ancient architecture, the formal and almost the ascetic seems the expected adjunct.

Unfortunately for my enthusiasm, the Persians were given a right of way at the afternoon service, and there was a series of addresses provided instead of a lot of music. I was interested in the Persians, but I was sorry they had not secured another date, because I had only the one afternoon to give up to my first impression of what I am sure is to be one of the institutions of Chicago.

SANDOR RADANOVITS
VOICE CULTURE
Room 404, 59 East Van Buren St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. Delamarter played Dubois' "Fiat Lux" for prelude and the playing and the organ gave me satisfaction. Then followed a short cantata for the choir by G. J. Bennett, written in strict form, but capable of endless illumination. Somehow Mr. Delamarter's accompanying made me think of the work of the olden time monks, who took their plain missals and breviaries and illuminated them with wondrous coloring. I don't believe I could pay him a higher compliment. The choir consists of a solo quartet, I understand, consisting of Mrs. Cora Libberton, Miss Louise Stretch, Mr. S. B. Orwig and Mr. Lemuel Kilby, and a chorus of thirty voices. But the assignment of the afternoon gave me no opportunity to hear the quartet alone. The two solos in the cantata were sung by Mrs. Rubee W. Delamarter and Mr. Orwig and done very well indeed. Mrs. Delamarter's solo had an accompanying chorus of women's voices and the total effect was very beautiful in that cold, aloof way that the music asks to be heard. And I could have gone on listening to it indefinitely. It is all so foreign to our present love for the sensuous, the ingratiating, the tender and sometimes the sentimental. This is engrossingly intense in its import, rapt in its devotional quality, but almost sacrificial in its austerity.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

ENGLEWOOD EVENING CLUB

Friday evening, April 2, the Englewood Sunday Evening Club Choir gave Gaul's "Passion Music." Glenwood Preble is the director and George R. Kurtz, organist. The choir was assisted by Ruby Campbell Ledward, soprano, Mable Corlew, contralto, Worthe Faulkner, tenor, and Alexander P. Gray, bass.

The choir has given several special evenings of music during the past few months and have acquitted themselves with credit.

The chorale numbers were sung in a very impressive manner and with a good body and quality of tone. The shading attacks and releases are good.

The most spirited and effective choral singing of the evening was done in the final chorus and hymn.

Mrs. Ledward sang her two short solos with much surety and completed a very effective ensemble in the trio and quartet numbers.

Miss Corlew is gaining a fine place for herself in musical circles, and on this occasion she again proved herself to be a very reliable singer. There is little written for the contralto, in the "Passion Music," but that little was sung in a very refined and artistic manner.

Mr. Faulkner, who recently returned from a successful concert tour, has appeared often as a special soloist with the Englewood Evening Club and is a great favorite there, sang the tenor solos in a very convincing manner and with a good display of vocal resource and artistry.

Mr. Gray had the greater portion of the solo work and he acquitted himself with credit. His voice is of good quality and he should go far in his chosen work. The work of the soloist in the trio and quartet numbers was very satisfying.

Mr. Kurtz presided at the organ throughout the evening, furnishing excellent support for the chorus and soloists, and his work at all times was what it should be, and merits much praise.

Mr. Preble, as the director, deserves special mention. H. W. P.

MORE RE-ENGAGEMENTS FOR EDWARD WALKER

Last week Mr. Walker sang a song recital for the Howe Indiana (Military) School and the next evening the tenor role in "The Seven Last Words of Christ," by Dubois, and was immediately re-engaged for their May Music Festival, May 13.

Also last week, Thursday, Mr. Walker sang in Arkadelphia (Ark.) College the tenor role in Gaul's "Holy City" and Friday evening sang an entire evening of song recital, and was immediately re-engaged for another two performances for next season.

Northwestern—The University String Quartet gave a program at Music Hall on Tuesday evening, including the Quartet, Op. 15, by Dohnanyi, and the Trio, Op. 63, by Schumann, the piano score of the latter being played by Carl M. Beecher.

Sigma Alpha Iota—The annual convention of the Sigma Alpha Iota National Musical Sorority is being held this week in Chicago (Wednesday, Thursday, Friday) with headquarters at the American Conservatory.

Lucy J. Hartman Contralto

Some comment on 1914-15 "Messiah" appearances:

Topeka Musical Arts Society, Topeka, Kan.:

"Miss Hartman proved herself one of the most promising oratorio contraltos. She sang 'He Was Despised' with a dramatic interpretation that was realistic."—Musical America.

"The soloists had to acknowledge again and again the applause of the people. Miss Hartman's rendition of the contralto solos was beautiful. She was well liked."—Topeka Daily State Journal.

Handel Choral Society, Chicago:

"There was a fine dignity and the spirit of prophecy in 'Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind' as sung by Miss Hartman. In 'He Shall Feed His Flock' she gave evidence of real musicianship, but her rich, well cultured voice was heard to best advantage in 'He Was Despised,' which was sung with sustained breadth and authority."—The Austinite.

"Miss Lucy J. Hartman very quickly disclosed her entire fitness for 'The Messiah' contralto solos and her beautiful voice lent itself to each number with almost equal charm, though, if choice were to be made, it would fall upon 'He Shall Feed His Flock,' perhaps, as this number was especially refined and musical. 'He Was Despised' carried much sincerity as well as beauty, and 'Oh, Thou That Tellest' was given with exhilarating swing."—Music News, Chicago.

Church of the Covenant, Chicago:

"There was no uncertain place in which to place the efforts of Miss Hartman. She is far on the road which leads to notable things. Miss Hartman's voice is a rich, luscious one and her sincerity is evident in every note and action. She does the familiar solos with a beautiful poise and authority, the tone always musical, pure and adequate and the text utterance clear and effective."—The Elderly Person, Chicago.

Park Ridge, Ill.:

"The contralto solos were most effectively sung by Miss Lucy J. Hartman, whose voice has much of that full rich coloring in the lower range so eagerly sought by singers. She used its deep, sympathetic tones to great advantage in 'He Shall Feed His Flock,' and the manner in which she gave 'He Was Despised' displayed enviable knowledge of shading and phrasing."—Hamilton, Park Ridge.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO Recitals Concerts
Oratorio Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO Recitals Concerts
Teacher of Singing. 5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone. Sunnyside 7127
610 Lakeside PlacePearle Williford

VOICE • PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE Pupils
Oratorio Concerts Recitals
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, ChicagoNelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO Recital
Oratorio Concerts Costume
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Ph e Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

On Tuesday afternoon, March 16, the fifth concert of the Beethoven Cycle, with Leonard Borwick, the English pianist, presented the following program:

Overture to "Cariolanus," Op. 62.....Beethoven
Symphony No. 6, in F major (Pastoral), Op. 68.....Beethoven
Allegro ma non troppo
Andante molto mosso
Allegro
Allegretto
Concerto for Piano, No. 4, G major, Op. 58.....Beethoven
Allegro moderato
Andante con moto
Rondo vivace

The mighty "Corolanus" overture was interpreted with tremendous recognition of its value, and the beautiful "Pastoral Symphony" was also a reading that left nothing to be desired. Mr. Oberhoffer shows unbounded intelligence in his Beethoven interpretations and he brings out all the delicate tenderness to the tiniest detail.

When the slender scholarly-looking man, past middle age, came before us in the person of Leonard Borwick, there was a question in the mind as to whether he would fulfill the demands of the big concerto. Leonard Borwick will always find a welcome back among us.

On March 17 the Minneapolis Trio, consisting of Giuseppe Fabbrini, Karl Scheurer and Cornelius Van Vliet, assisted by Pierre Perrier, clarinetist, gave the program below:

Clarinet Trio, Op. 11.....Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Adagio
Allegretto con variazioni
Sonata, Op. 36, for 'cello and piano.....Grieg
Allegro agitato
Andante molto tranquillo
Allegro
Eine Bergnovelle Trio, Op. 120.....Hans Huber
(First time in America)
Adagio—Allegro con fuoco
Andante molto moderato
Allegretto grazioso
Allegro con fuoco

The Beethoven Trio was the best received, and probably the novelty of the clarinet had much to do with it. The ensemble work was excellent and Mr. Perrier is a splendid artist. The Grieg "Sonata" is not altogether grateful. Parts are very pleasing, and it was given a very good performance from a technical point.

The new Huber trio was interesting, the second and third movements entirely pleasing and Mr. Scheurer's violin giving prominence to some very beautiful passages.

The concerts by the trio have been thoroughly enjoyable and much gratitude is due Mr. Van Vliet for the labor he puts in. Certainly "higher education" in music can be obtained in no more delightful manner than by attending these chamber musicals, and Minneapolis has been fortunate this winter in having this trio, as well as the Chamber Music Society.

The Thursday musical fortnightly program was given March 18, at the First Baptist Church. Owing to sickness, several changes were made in the program. Two violin, organ and piano trios formed an interesting part of the program, performed by Miss Ebba Sundstrom, Mrs. Harry Crandall and Mrs. J. C. Landry.

Miss Gertrude Cleophas, the well-known artist and pianist, gave two Chopin numbers in a most delightful manner, and Mrs.

Crandall gave two movements from Rogers' "Suite for Organ." A dainty little miss of fourteen summers, Lillian Briggs, gave a marvelous display of coloratura soprano work in the "Shadow Song," from "Dinorah," and a group among which was "Chanson Provencale" (Dell'Acqua). While it was thoroughly enjoyable, being done exceedingly well for even twice the number of years, it leaves a very open question in the mind as to the advisability of training even so precocious a child at this tender age. However, little Miss Briggs was so sweet that one and all who heard her will surely hope for her future.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

DENVER

The closing of the musical season in Denver is proving part of the most interesting of the year. With a clorus of selected voices Henry Housely sang portions of the Elijah, with some of the solos, and the organ augmented by an orchestra. Mr. Whipp was at the organ and Mr. Housely directed. Tickets of admission were sold for the Cathedral, wisely abandoning the free program idea. This same chorus has been appearing at a local picture house as an added attraction, in splendid musical numbers.

Alma Gluck was the visiting artist with the Philharmonic in their closing concert. As the epitome of that little word "tact," this singer is a shining example. Cordially greeting Director Tureman, insisting upon due appreciation of the players of obligatos, and a most gracious compliance with insistent demands for recalls, she esconced herself more thoroughly than ever in the hearts of Denver people.

The orchestra played with more warmth and breadth than ever before under the baton of Mr. Horace Tureman. Opening with the "Dream Pantomime" from Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," then the "Grainger Suite" of "Old English Dances," which had to be repeated in part, closing with the overture to the "Meistersinger," they played the best program of the season.

The accompaniments to the Gluck "Arias" were also admirably played and the seasonings works of the past season have shown marked effect in the general ensemble. It is to be hoped that the same forces may be held for next year.

In Pueblo, Gluck's accompaniments were played by a band of ladies who organized themselves in Denver for art's sake, and who traveled down here under the same impetus. Mrs. Worrell was at the piano and her "Song of the Chimes" was one of Gluck's program numbers.

This loyal band of players are giving a series of Lenten programs of chamber music on Friday nights which are proving interesting. The personnel of the quintet is Miss Eleanor Young, Miss Della Hoover, Mrs. Pierpont Fuller, Miss Mary Joslin and Lola Carrier Worrell at the piano.

R. J. H.

Marcusson—Grace Brune Marcusson will sing as follows: April 15, Irving Park Country Club; 19, recital, Pocatello, Idaho; 26, Twin Falls, Idaho; 28, Nampa, Idaho; May 1, Lewistown, Mont.; 10, Portland, Ore.; 22, Reno, Nev.; 24, Yerington, Nev. After these engagements she will visit San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego, giving private musicales in the two latter cities.

ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

There are few artists who could equal the feat that Christine Miller has accomplished in Erie, that is, appearing four years in succession on Mrs. McCoy's Artist Series, and each time bringing out a larger audience and each time leaving a more favorable impression than the time before. On Wednesday evening, March 24, Masonic Hall was packed to the doors—yes, for there were people in the lobby anxious to hear the greatest favorite who has ever sung on the local concert stage.

From Miss Miller's opening number, "Come, My Beloved," from Handel's "Atlanta," to the last number on the program, Charles Gilbert Spross' dramatic, "My Star," this wonderful woman thrilled her audience with the most beautiful singing and sincere interpretations that have been heard here in many a day, in fact, since Miss Miller's last appearance here one year ago. All of Miss Miller's programs have been of more than ordinary interest, but in this last one, she eclipsed all of her previous efforts in effective program-building, for each number was a gem of the purest kind. There could scarcely be a favorite, for every song was applauded to the echo. To the mind of the writer her voice sounded the greatest depths in her big number, the well known "Il est doux" from Massenet's "Herodiade." A graceful compliment was paid to Erie by Miss Miller's including on her program a song by a local musician, Albert Dowling. Mr. Carl Bernthal's accompaniments were up to the usual fine standard we have come to expect from so able an artist and were more than a small part of the pleasure of the program. Yes, Miss Miller, you may come back as often as you please, for Erie likes you.

Mrs. Gertrude Colby, the prominent piano teacher, presented a few of her students in an All-American program recently, in which compositions by Nevin, Lynes, Woodman, Cadman, Barbour, Liebling, La Forge, Dowling, Herbert, Homer, Rogers, MacDowell and Klein were given very fine interpretations. Mrs. Colby's piano pupils were assisted by two vocal pupils of Dr. Charles Woolsey. While all of the participants acquitted themselves creditably, especial mention should be made of the exceptional work done by Miss Frances Hall, one of Mrs. Colby's younger pupils, who played admirably, MacDowell's "To the Sea," "Hexentanz," Herbert's "Badinage" and two piano sketches by Albert Dowling, "At the Fireside" and "Anemone." Master Fran Van Natta, a very young boy, played with fine musical insight, astonishing for one of his age, a Cadman number, "Wah-wah-taysee" and "Wood Nymphs," by Florence Newell Barbour. Little Louise Schabacker, a tiny miss, played very cleverly two MacDowell "Woodland Sketches," "To a Wild Rose" and "Uncle Remus."

Alice Nielsen, who will appear with the Apollo Club in their next concert April 15, is a great local favorite, and her appearance is being heralded with much joy.

A. H. D., JR.

Easter Greeting—Music News is in receipt of a charming Easter card, with an original song by Henry B. Roney.

DETROIT, MICH

Simplicity and wonderful art were the rewards of the big audience which greeted Mme. Julia Culp Monday evening, March 15. An evening devoid of extremes, yet so full and rich in its gift of song that it will not soon be forgotten. When a singer can open to you a new world in a song which has been heard and heard again, then indeed is there real art in the singing, and this Mme. Culp more than accomplished in Schubert's "Standchen" and "Ave Maria." And the wonderful interpretation and lavish tone she gave to Rogers' "The Star" showed her full appreciation of Made-in-America songs. It is to be hoped that the rare privilege of a recital by Mme. Culp and her accompanist, Coenraad V. Bos, will be offered by Mr. DeVoe, the coming season.

h h h

New York Philharmonics

Tuesday evening, March 16, brought to the Armory the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Joseph Stransky, conductor, and Arthur Shattuck, soloist. Keenly responsive to the demands of beauty and contrast in Dvorak's "New World Symphony," Stransky and his men gave it a reading than which few better have been heard. Their playing leaves little wanting.

Florence Hinkle

For the second time this season we have had the joy of listening to this singer, who if return engagements mean aught, is a favorite in Detroit, as she is scheduled to sing again in April in the "Creation." Her recital closed a series of wholly satisfying Lenten musicales offered by Mr. Morse, whose work as accompanist for each has left nothing to be desired.

h h h

Detroit Symphony Orchestra

Loyalty, enthusiasm and hard work are fast bringing this organization to a point where it must needs stand comparison with those bodies of players brought from older music centers by the Orchestra Association of Detroit. It is like a phenomenal child. One can scarcely believe the reports of its accomplishments and yet the program given March 18 by Weston Gales and his orchestra is deserving of unstinted praise.

They have profited by kindly criticism and have grown so in their ability to answer fully Mr. Gale's baton, that the Wagner numbers offered Thursday were wholly big and fine and well colored. M. L. M.

— h h h —

Bourbon—Paul Saurer, baritone, and G. Davis Brillhart, pianist, gave a program on March 29 at the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Bourbon, Ind.

TWENTIETH YEAR CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Earnest students developed and carried through a most comprehensive course of study, leading to a degree

HARMON H. WATT, ELEANOR F. GODFREY, Directors
304 South Wabash Avenue, Kimball Hall Chicago, Illinois

TO THE TRADE AND PROFESSION:

We are the sole Publishers of ISABEL STEWART-NORTH'S music. All orders promptly filled.

The NORTH PUBLISHING COMPANY

Bradford, Pa.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER

PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGAR-T TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
2932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET Supra
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
151 OE. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

EISA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Frs. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO

Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Appeared Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Racul S. Bonanno

Baritone
Cerebral Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Familiar LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ALIA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Her Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Oratorio Pupils
411 Calmet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

NORDIN

CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

TENOR RECITAL
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Blüthman Kelley and Alexander Holmstrom, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

THE LASH STUDIO

Miss Irma Sundmacher, soprano, Mrs. Edith Blades Wheeler, contralto, Mr. Sig. A. Awsumb, tenor, and Mr. Paul Roberg, bass, pupils of Mr. Lash, will sing the solos in "The Holy City," by Alfred R. Gaul, at the Buena Memorial Presbyterian Church, point of Sheridan road and Broadway, Friday, April 9, 1915, at 8:15 p. m.

The chorus of the church, Mr. Lash conducting, will give the cantata. No admission fee will be charged, but an offering will be taken for the choir fund. The public is cordially invited.

Miss Zerelda Belle Cook, soprano, and Mr. Arthur Sellstrom, tenor, will give a joint recital, under the auspices of the Glee Club of the Weaver Memorial U. B. Church, corner Dickens and Kedzie avenues, Tuesday, April 13, 1915, at 8:15 p. m. They are both advanced pupils of Mr. Lash.

The combined choirs of the Buena Memorial Presbyterian Church will give the "Holy City," by Gaul, at the Auditorium, Glen Ellyn, Monday, April 12, 1915, 8:15 p. m. The soloist will be the same and Mr. Lash will conduct.

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON

The Davenport Democrat had the following to say regarding Mrs. Gannon's recital on April 1, 1915:

Rose Lutiger Gannon of Chicago, won many new admirers in Davenport by her charming voice and splendid recital. St. John's M. E. Church was filled.

Her's was an exquisite rendition of the Massenet "Serenade du Passant," which was given with fine diction and finesse. She exhibited splendid dramatic ability in her Gluck aria.

But, perhaps, Mrs. Gannon was most satisfying in her gay abandon of MacFayden's "Love Is the Wind," giving a magnificent climax to her English group.

In her German group the deep rich tones of her voice were beautifully brought forth in Hildach's "In Meiner Heimath" and Brahms's "Der Schmied," (Advertisement.)

Sturkow-Ryder—The last concert of the Illinois Athletic Club was given on Easter Sunday, April 4. Mme. Sturkow-Ryder was the pianist, and played a group of Russian compositions by Arensky, Glinka, Balakirew, Rebikoff and Rachmaninoff, and a French group by Rhene-Baton and Saint-Saens. Miss Migonne Meeker sang "I Thought of You," Mme. Sturkow-Ryder's latest song, and two groups, beginning with an aria from "Aida," and Miss Wally Heymar, violinist, played compositions by Hubay, Wagner, Wilhelmj and Rehfeld. She was accompanied by Miss Ernau Smith.

Durno—Miss Cecilia Bellaire, a gifted young pianist, will give a joint recital with Mrs. Mabel Nevin Schoolfield, soprano, in Thurber Hall, Fine Arts building, next Sunday afternoon at 3:30. Miss Bellaire has received her musical education entirely in America, for the last three years with Jeanette Durno, and exhibits to a marked degree, the poise, finish and style characteristics of the Durno pupils.

Loos-Tooker—Mme. Carola Loos-Tooker will teach at Decatur, Ill., during the month of June and will spend July and August in Michigan as usual, re-opening her Chicago studio in the fall. Miss Angela Loos-Tooker of Decatur spent Easter in Chicago.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

The last concert of the Amateur Musical Club season will be held in the Illinois Theater Monday afternoon, April 12, at 2:30. The assisting artist will be Mr. Lorenz Sansoni, French horn; accompanist, Miss Mae Doelling.

Two Preludes—D flat major and E flat major.....Bach
Scherzo in C sharp minor, Op. 39.....Chopin
Miss Edna Gunnar Peterson
Che Fare Senza Euridice (Orpheus).....Gluck
Magdalen at Michael's Gate.....Schumann
Life and Death.....Coleridge-Taylor

Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade
Trio in E flat major Brahms
Andante
Adagio mesto
Allegro
Allegro con brio

Piano, Violin, French Horn
Miss Eleanor Scheib, Mrs. Rachel Steinman Clarke, Mr. Sansoni

Recitative—O Welcome Now.....Haydn
Aria—O What Comfort (from the "Seasons").....Haydn
Das Lied im Grunen.....Schubert
Du.....Hugo Kaun

Mrs. Minnie Fish Griffin
Romance in A flat major.....Arthur Hinton
Ungarisch.....MacDowell
Concert Study in D Minor.....Rubinstein
Miss Carolyn Louise Willard

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

Marie Sidenius Zendt was soloist with the Chicago Mendelssohn Club, Easter Sunday afternoon, at the Chicago Athletic Club. A few coming engagements: April 7, concert, La Salle Hotel; April 11, musicale, Elgin, Ill.; April 13, recital, Nahoo, Neb.; April 16, Sioux City, Ia.; April 25, 29, 30, "Creation," at New First Congregational Church.

PROCTOR

CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

ALBERT SPALDING HIS OWN MANAGER

Mr. Albert Spalding, who has completed a very successful tour of the United States under the Antonia Sawyer management and who has also in this country had very successful tours under the R. E. Johnston management, announces that, following a plan tried with success in Europe by himself, he will during the coming season be under no management except his own, being represented only by his personal secretary, Mr. Andre Benoist.

Mr. Spalding's address is now 1439 Aeolian Hall, New York City.

Illinois College of Music—The recital given at the Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, last Tuesday evening was in charge of Edna Reiner Marshall of the dramatic department. The following students from that department took part: Hazel Hollison, Frances Steinberger, Ada Markson, Raymond Simonson, Marie Martin Stephens, Jeannette Rissman, Beulah Middleton, Lillian Fram, Irma Dechman. Piano numbers were given by Mary Jones, Adolph Kraus, Bernice Heilman, Beatrice Dorian, Genevieve Godfrey, and violin numbers by Willard Groom, Leah Rubin.

Tollefsen—A violin recital was given by the pupils of Carl H. Tollefsen at Memorial Hall in Brooklyn, N. Y., last Wednesday evening.

IN BRIEFER FORM

Pettinger—Florence Pettinger, soprano, sang a group of songs at the Health Exhibit at the University of Chicago Settlement on April 14.

h h h

Paine—Sarah E. Paine and Myra A. Paine gave flute and violin numbers on the program of the Englewood Woman's Club last Monday.

h h h

Hanson-Hostetter—Sunday, April 4, Hil-dred Hanson-Hostetter, soprano, was the assisting artist at the First Presbyterian Church in Oak Park.

h h h

Radanovits Studio—Cardon V. Burnham, baritone, pupil of Sandor S. Radanovits, gave a recital at the Fine Arts Building, Thursday evening, April 8.

h h h

Mackay—Francis Mackay presented his splendid choir at the Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal) in very excellent programs on Easter Sunday.

h h h

Columbia School—The pupils of Gertrude H. Murdough will be presented by the Columbia School of Music at their Recital Hall this (Friday) evening.

h h h

Huelster School of Music—Members of the faculty of the Huelster School of Music gave a successful concert at the Albany Park Presbyterian Church on April 1.

h h h

American Conservatory—On Thursday evening, April 22, advanced piano pupils of Kurt Wanieck and voice pupils of Jennie F. W. Johnson will present a program at Kimball Hall.

h h h

Hemington—The Easter service at Epiphany Church in the evening was opened with an Organ Fantasia on Easter Themes by the organist of the church, Dr. Francis Hemington.

h h h

Christgau—Mrs. Elsa O. Christgau was soloist at the Easter service at the Redeemer English Evangelical Lutheran Church, at Princeton avenue and Sixtieth place, on Easter.

h h h

Congress Hotel—A ladies' chorus under direction of William Tomlins will appear at the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel on April 15, the soloists to be Mable Corlew Smidt and Esther Plumb.

h h h

Epiphany—Dr. Francis Hemington will resume his season of organ recitals at the Church of the Epiphany on Monday, April 19. These recitals are given from October until May, except during Lent.

h h h

St. Paul's—At St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, Hirsch street near Washtenaw avenue, on Sunday evening, April 11, special Easter music will be sung under the direction of Ralph S. Hinman.

Borroff—Mr. A. M. Dow, a pupil of Albert Borroff, sang at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Rogers Park at the service last Wednesday night, the tenor solos in Stainer's "Crucifixion."

h h h

Mixer—Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist, with Mrs. Ora Padgett Langer, contralto, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, will give a program before the Chicago Heights Woman's Club on April 14.

h h h

La Berge—Out of the four young vocalists chosen as winners in the Federated Clubs contest two were pupils of Charles La Berge. These were Miss Sadie Vander Bosch and Mr. Edward Hahn.

h h h

Weidig—Members of the Composition Class of Adolph Weidig in the American Conservatory will give a program of original compositions at Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon at 3:30.

BORROFF

BASSO

"Magnificent—Almost Matchless."

"Encore after encore, yet at the end the audience to a man kept his seat and called loudly for more."

"Fairly Tetrizzini like."

"One of the most satisfactory singers on the American stage."

Comments of critics, East, West, North and South.

Borroff averages over 80 per cent return engagements.

504 Kimball Hall - Chicago

Earnest—Miss Laura Earnest presented the choir of Calvary Presbyterian Church in "The Lord of Light and Love" (Edwards) on Easter evening. The morning solo was by Miss Earnest, her number being "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

h h h

Edwards—An informal musicale was given last Saturday morning in the studio of Miss Marie Edwards, 612 Fine Arts Building, by Ruth Anderson, Frances Darnall, May D'Arcy, and Mary Jones. They were assisted by Franklin Paul, violinist, and Emma Sollit-Sherman, soprano.

h h h

Eddy—Clarence Eddy is playing a dedicatory program on the fine new organ at the First Presbyterian Church in Madison, Wis., this evening. He will be in Chicago a few days and will then return to San Francisco to resume the extremely successful series of organ recitals at the Exposition.

CLARKE-WANIECK JOINT RECITAL

The following program is to be given at Thurber Recital Hall on Thursday evening, April 15, by Edward Clarke, baritone, and Kurt Wanieck, pianist:

Songs—

Dream in the Twilight

Ah! Woe Is Me Unhappy Man

Homeward

The Lovers' Pledge

Richard Strauss

Piano—

Scherzo from Sonata Op. 22.....Schumann

Andantino

Etude D Flat major Liszt

Toccata Op. 111 Saint-Saens

Enoch Arden—

Poem by.....Lord Alfred Tennyson

Music by.....Richard Strauss

The Village; Annie Lee; Philip Ray; Enoch Ar-

den; Childhood; Enoch's Marriage; His Voyage;

The Death of Annie's Babe; Phillip's Courtship and Marriage.

Enoch's Shipwreck; Life on the Isle; Rescue; Return; Miriam's Tale; Enoch's Later Life and His Death.

— # # # —

IRVING PARK ORCHESTRAL SERIES

The concert of Friday evening, April 16, under direction of George Dasch, and with Walfried Singer, harpist, as soloist, will be as follows:

March—Tannhauser Wagner

Overture—Mignon Thomas

Largo from the New World Symphony.....Dvorak

Harp Solo—Marche Triumphale.....Godefrid

Waltzes—Thousand and One Nights.....Strauss

Tarantella, flute and clarinet.....Saint-Saens

Serenade Moszkowsky

Ball Scene Hellmesberger

Festival Overture Lassen

— # # # —

THE HANDEL ORATORIO SOCIETY

The Handel Oratorio Society, Ida Belle Freeman, director, will give the "Elijah" at the First Baptist Church of Austin Tuesday evening, April 13. The soloists are Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano; Esther Muenstermann, contralto; Moses J. Brines, tenor; Burton Thatcher, bass. John Doane will be the organist, and Lillian Grant Haeffner the pianist.

— # # # —

Shakespeare Revivals—An announcement of unusual interest is that of Robert Mantell, who is appearing at the Garrick Theater for two weeks beginning last Monday. His repertoire includes "King John," "Macbeth," "Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet," "Richelieu," "Othello," "Richard Third," "Louis Eleventh," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Merchant of Venice."

— # # # —

Marie White-Clark—Marie White-Clark, soprano, will sing at the concert at the Covenant Methodist Church, Friday evening, April 9, and on Sunday, April 11, she will be the soloist at the Sunday evening orchestra concert.

— # # # —

Central Music Hall—Harriet Martin Snow presents Wa-Tah-Wa-So in a program of Penobscot tribal Indian songs at Central Music Hall, April 14, at 2:15 p. m.

— # # # —

Allen—Miss Leonora Allen will be special soloist at the First Congregational Church of Oak Park on Sunday evening.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Books and Music

A PRIMARY COURSE IN EAR TRAINING AND MELODY WRITING

By Bessie Williams Sherman. Price 35 cents. (Chicago: Clayton F. Summy Co.)

The child's attention is first drawn to sound in general, "the rumble of a wagon or car, the blowing of a whistle or the chirp of a bird." Comparison is then made to sounds of different pitch from the piano and thus step by step is the ear cultivated. The simplest melodies are taught by association with easy sentences indicating rising or falling or rest, such as "Down in the Well" and "Swinging so High," and later musical games are introduced. There are many features in this small book which make the task of teaching the little ones appear both easy and pleasant by its use.

H. J. W.

Lessons in Appreciation of Musical Form

By Jeannie R. Smeltzer. Price $1.25. (Chicago: Clayton S. Summy Co.)

A collector of typical old and modern dance forms, with an admixture of various character pieces should be valuable to a very large class of pianists both for entertainment and reference. Each piece has some descriptive notes as to the origin or special characteristics thereof (but few with regard to the form). The edition is a good one, well printed and durably bound.

H. J. W.

Folk Songs

From Mexico and South America, by Eleanor Hague and Edward Kilenzi. Price $1.00. (New York: The H. W. Gray Company.)

Carefully compiled from original sources (with the exception of a few which are reprinted from the Journal of American Folk-Lore) these traditional melodies of the temperamental southern races are of value both as to their origin and for their musical appeal. The characteristic Spanish or Mexican rhythms are largely in evidence and the twelve songs (all love-songs) of the collection have both the original text and an English translation.

H. J. W.

Negro Dances

By Henry F. Gilbert. Price $1.00. (New York: The H. W. Gray Company.)

Of very piquant flavor and with characteristic rhythms and harmonies are the five piano pieces included under the above title. There is plenty of life about them, they are not difficult to play and are decidedly interesting.

H. J. W.

Love Triumphant

A Lenten cantata by P. Marinus Paulsen. Price $1.00. (New York: The H. W. Gray Company.)

Presenting a very erudite appearance at first sight, with its page after page of eight-part chorus in the finest kind of engraving, this work is really not an elaborate composition. The harmonies are strictly orthodox and even somewhat limited as to variety; and the eight-part writing proves to be orchestral "doubling" of the ordinary four-part harmony, with an almost entire absence of contrapuntal treatment. There are some antiphonal passages, and occasional rhythmical interest in the thematic exploitation of melodic figures in the accompaniment, but the music is persistently in a lugubrious minor, which is perhaps thought necessary for the Lenten theme. The concluding chorus, "Christ is Risen," breaks away from the minor, but adheres to the straightforward and natural style of harmonization mentioned. This chorus possesses one dramatic feature, reminding us slightly of the finale of Gounod's "Faust," that of repetition in a key a half-step higher, thereby adding brilliance and an effect of climax.

The work belongs by no means to the "cheap" class of commercial choral works we frequently meet with, and should be welcomed by choirs with ambition but not great technical ability, although the soprano soloist will require to have high B's and C's at her command.

H. J. W.

IMPERIAL QUARTET

List of engagements filled by the Imperial Quartet during the month of March, 1915:

- March 1—Afternoon, Pleiades Lodge.
- March 1—Evening, 8 o'clock engagement.
- March 1—Evening, 9 o'clock Lincoln Council, N. U.
- March 2—Afternoon, Woodlawn Park Lodge.
- March 4—Concert, Dolton, Ill.
- March 5—Garden City Council, R. A.
- March 6—Afternoon engagement, Chicago.
- March 6—Evening, banquet Chicago Athletic Club.
- March 7—Afternoon, Pleiades Lodge.
- March 8—Morning and afternoon, Joliet Teachers' Institute.
- March 9—Morning and afternoon, Joliet Teachers' Institute.
- March 9—Evening, Insurance Exchange Hall.
- March 10—Morning, Joliet Teachers' Institute.
- March 11—Morning and afternoon, Joliet Teachers' Institute.
- March 12—Morning and afternoon, Joliet Teachers' Institute.
- March 13—Afternoon engagement, Chicago.
- March 13—Evening, Constellation Lodge.
- March 15—Lincoln Council, N. U.
- March 16—Garden City Lodge.
- March 19—Garden City Council, R. A.
- March 20—Afternoon, Pleiades Lodge.
- March 20—Evening, Auditorium Banquet Hall.
- March 21—Afternoon, 2 o'clock Triluminer Lodge.
- March 21—Afternoon, 3 o'clock engagement, Chicago.
- March 22—Afternoon, Elks Lodge.
- March 23—Lake View Lodge.
- March 24—Afternoon engagement, Blue Island, Ill.
- March 25—Afternoon engagement, Chicago.
- March 26—Evening, Wiley M. Egan Chapter, R. A. M.
- March 29—Afternoon, engagement, Chicago.
- March 29—Evening, Englewood Lodge.
- March 30—Ashlar Lodge.
- March 31—North Shore Lodge.

Snow—Harriet Martin Snow announces a joint recital by Prudence Neff, pianiste, and Robert Dolejsi, violinist, in Central Music Hall, Sunday afternoon, April 18, at 3:30.

Huntley—Miss Hazel Huntley announces that hereafter she will teach in Evanston on Tuesday and Friday mornings. For information phone Evanston 5099.

180.3 Stack
MUN

PROGRAM OF THE NATIONAL FEDERATION OF MUSICAL CLUBS

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

ANTONIO SALA

MIGNONNE MEEKER

LOIS BROWN

FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL

ALBERTO SALVI

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

FLORENCE HEDSTRUM

ARTISTS COMPRISING THE THREE COMPANIES OF THE C. W. BEST
ARTISTS' SERIES—SEASON 1915-1916

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.50 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

— # # # —

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

— # # # —

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management

HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.
Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATON: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST

HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO

5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, APRIL 16, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth Avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodde
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence

400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect
Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, April 16, 1915

No. 16

Editorial

A PROTEST AND A CHALLENGE

MUSIC NEWS has met the fate of all those who are outspoken in attempted reform and is being accused of hostility to the National Federation of Musical Clubs because forsooth, we were bold enough to tell the truth as it appeared to us in connection with the "Contests" which are to culminate in some concerts at the Los Angeles Meeting of the Federation in June---it being supposed further that the young artists who appear in the concerts are actually on observation before Committees from various Federated Clubs from all parts of the country who will engage them for the American Day Programs of next year in the various cities.

Now---instead of being antagonistic to the Federation, Music News is, and always has been, friendly to the last possible extreme.

We have printed every scrap of information about the Federation which has come in our way and we have invariably been in the attitude of desiring to help along the splendid work of this body.

Today's issue of Music News carries the Los Angeles program and we have printed and shall in the future print reviews and comments on all the work of the Federation.

We particularly invite the Secretary or the President of the Federation to send us press matter frequently and we guarantee to print it invariably.

But---we did not believe when we first saw the plan of "Contests" that it was a good one, nor do we believe now that it will work out in any other way than that predicted by us some weeks ago. In stating this we have no animosity to the Federated Clubs, we are merely carrying out our well-known policy of championing the cause of Young American Artists.

In our whole experience we have found that Clubs and Societies do not engage young artists and pay them well after having had the privilege of hearing them once for nothing.

Also---the Clubs throughout the country have shown again and again a tendency to mass nearly all their available money for each season in one check, which almost invariably goes to a foreigner and they pay, just as invariably, a small price to the young Americans whom they engage.

We contend if Young American Artists are to "compete" for place at Los Angeles they should have some guarantee that they will stand a fair chance there of securing really worth-while engagements, but we do not believe that they will.

We therefore, in defense of our position and to further show our appreciation of the Young American artist make this challenge:

We will give a Full Page Advertisement (valued at $50.00) to each Young American Artist who secures through the "Contests" and at Los Angeles an appearance next season at a fee of $100.00 or more.

We mean by this that we will give a Full Page Advertisement with each such engagement. If, for instance, any artist should secure any number of engagements he will be given a Full Page Advertisement with each one, the only proof we shall require is a letter from the artist enclosing a copy of his contract or that part of it referring to his fee.

The advertisement may be an announcement of the specific concert under consideration or it may be any other sort of advertisement the artist desires. It must, however, be used within the year.

We presume to set the price of the engagements not in the spirit that $100.00 is all that any of these young artists is worth but because we know so well that Clubs throughout the country very rarely reach this figure when dealing with Young Americans, whereas they very often make it two, three and four times as much when engaging a foreigner.

PASSING COMMENT

Here is an example of patriotism (?) gone to seed. We quote from the Chicago Tribune:

Dr. Muck's programs for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's twelve concerts at the Panama-Pacific Exposition show thirty-one compositions by men classed as German and twenty-one compositions by musicians of all other nations. Two works by Americans (MacDowell and Chadwick) will be played.

h h h

The eulogies of Milton B. Griffith, printed in the South Bend daily papers were of remarkable caliber and showed the unusual popularity of this energetic musician in his home city. A concert by Charles Wakefield Cadman, which had been arranged by Mr. Griffith shortly before his death, was changed to a benefit testimonial and was given with splendid success last week.

h h h

Nearly all the daily papers characterized West's "Sweet Story of Old" as "trash" when it was sung by Charles W. Clark in his recital and the Daily News, in reviewing the Maggie Teyte recital, speaks of J. H. Rogers' "unpardonable" "The Star." These items bring up, unavoidably, the query as to just why these songs are "trash" and "unpardonable." As a matter of fact both are very beautiful and both make instantaneous appeal to every audience that hears them. Careful study of them fails also to show any inherent inaccuracies of construction. Why then must they be condemned? Is it wholly and simply because they are as simple in form as they are beautiful in content? And if all songs are to be judged on this basis what will become of pure beauty in music eventually? It has long been supposed that this asset, when coupled with expression in correct musical forms, was the acme of art, regardless of whether the composition played was a "big" one or a "little" one, but it seems now that we are approaching or are actually in an era when difficulty and abstruseness are necessary to save a composition from being tagged "unpardonable trash." As a matter of real interest Music News would like to ask in all seriousness, do the critics of the daily press in Chicago consider "Home, Sweet Home," "Annie Laurie" and other of the very old favorites as "trash" also?—and if not, wherein lies the difference between them and Rogers' "The Star" and West's "Sweet Story of Old"?

— # # # —

NEXT SEASON'S POPULAR CONCERTS

It is gratifying to note, by a paragraph in the program of last week's final popular concert, that the long-continued efforts of Music News are bearing fruit, and that, from the tentative three concerts of last year (increased to seven this year) we shall, in all probability, have next season no less than ten such concerts.

The attendance at every one of these concerts is sufficient evidence of the widespread demand by the masses for good music at prices within their reach. It sustains, too, our contention that CHICAGO has the first claim upon the time and ministrations of the great orchestra, with its million-dollar "plant," made possible by the subscriptions of nearly 8,000 Chicago music-lovers—the culmination and fruition of Theodore Thomas' thirty years of effort and of hope.

Orchestra Hall was built for music, and music should have "first call" in the disposal of its "dates."

HERE is a pleasure in poetic pains, which only poets know.

—Cowper.

THE BRAHMS TRIO

A recital was given by the Johannes Brahms Trio at Fine Arts Theater last Wednesday evening to a goodly audience, the proceeds being devoted to charity.

Mrs. Bert Leston Taylor and Mr. Leon Marx played the "Sonata," Op. 78, for piano and violin, with much skill and were joined by Mr. Hans Hess ('cello) in a magnificent rendition of the Trio, Op. 87, by the same composer (Brahms).

As an intermezzo between these two wonderful numbers, Mrs. Hanna Butler, soprano, sang a group of John Alden Carpenter songs to the expert and sympathetic accompaniment of the composer and the great delight of the audience, which endorsed the singer and each song very heartily.

"Le Ceil" and "Dansons la Gigue," pieces very rarely sung, suited Mrs. Butler admirably and disclosed fine tonal qualities.

"When I Bring You Colored Toys" and "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes" are better known, but Mrs. Butler brought to them new and unusual charm and the endorsement of the audience was emphatic.

"Light, My Light," proved so very attractive in Mrs. Butler's singing that an encore had to be added, and for this she chose the favorite "Louise" aria (Charpentier), which she sang with a vocal finish and a graciousness of style which captivated the audience.

C. E. W.

Wood—Miss Leonore Wood played piano solos at the Girls' Service Club at 7047 Eggleston avenue last Friday evening.

CARDON V. BURNHAM IN RECITAL

On Thursday evening, last, in the large studio, 516 Fine Arts Building, Mr. Sandor S. Radanovits presented Mr. Burnham in a varied and thoroughly attractive program of baritone songs.

The young singer has gone a long way toward artistic excellence and gave the audience an exposition of technical ability and interpretative powers at once pleasing and convincing.

Mr. Burnham's voice is thoroughly beautiful, he has style and finish in gratifying quantities and he is therefore able to imbue each song with interest and meaning.

The program in entirety was printed last week in Music News.

Handel, Schubert and Strauss were presented with much authority and the Grieg numbers with unusual sympathy and effect.

Tschaikowsky's "Pilgrim's Song" was broadly dramatic, while the Massenet "Vision Fugitive" disclosed very beautiful tonal qualities and musical graces.

Three "Hungarian Folk Songs" in the Korhay arrangement proved to be wonderful, and were sung with great technical skill and truly impassioned dramatic power. Bantock's "Jester Song" also proved an advanced ability on the part of the singer along the line of tragic story telling, while "A Wee Bit of Heather," by Lemon, was a sentimental trifle, admirably negotiated.

"A Ballad," "Dirge" and "Peter and Pierrot," manuscript songs by William Lester, proved to be additional reasons for acclaiming this young composer as a coming master.

The first of the three is abstruse and difficult, but full of meaning. The second is broadly tragic in mood and the third is wholly unique. All three were excellently sung and not only these but all the other accompaniments were superbly played by Mr. Lester.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

ROBERT STEVENS AT THE EXPOSITION

Mr. Robert Stevens, organist, of Chicago, has just returned from a very successful trip to the west during which he played three times at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He made a splendid success in these programs, assisted by a male chorus:

Second Organ Concerto (Andante Allegro).....	Handel
Anthem Concerto—Sing Alleluia Forth.....	Buck
Melody in E Flat for Organ.....	Pratt-Eddy
The Chapel.....	Kreutzer
As Torrents in Summer.....	Elgar
(Words by Longfellow)
Andante Cantabile.....	Tschaikowsky
(Transcribed for the organ by Robt. W. Stevens)
The Palms.....	Faure
George M. Cannon and Choir
Sous les Tilleuls (Unter den Linden).....	Massenet
If God so Clothe the Grass (bass solo).....	Bischoff
F. W. Hamilton
Abendlied.....	Schumann
Oh Fair, Oh Sweet and Holy.....	Cantor
On the Sea.....	Buck
Finale from Fifth Sonata in D.....	Mendelssohn
Prelude and Fugue in C Minor.....	Bach
Sonata in G Minor, Op. 22.....	Piutti
Allegro Moderato
Allegro Pesante
Maestoso Energico
Allegro Moderato e Pastorale.....	Guilmant
Le Cygne (The Swan).....	Saint-Saens
Concert Overture, C Major.....	Hollins
Vorspiel to Lohengrin.....	Wagner
Les Preludes.....	Liszt
(Transcription for the organ by R. W. Stevens)

Music in Chicago

ELLA O'NEAL CORRIGAN

Ella O'Neal Corrigan, Chicago soprano, whose picture is shown herewith, has been engaged for major parts with the Chicago

ELLA O'NEAL CORRIGAN

Grand Opera Company for next season.

She has been heard in many musical functions to the greatest advantage and on a recent appearance in "Traviata" at the Blackstone Theater proved her special powers in grand opera in a most convincing way.

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

Miss Prudence Neff, pianiste, and Mr. Robert Dolejsi, violinist, will give a joint recital in Central Music Hall, Sunday afternoon, April 18, under the concert direction of Harriet Martin Snow.

h h h

Harriet Martin Snow announces a recital to be given by Artur F. Platz, tenor, in Central Music Hall, Tuesday evening, April 27.

Bartholomew—Miss Grace La Rococo, contralto, and Mr. Lawrence B. Reeder, tenor, pupils of H. B. Bartholomew, will sing at the last meeting of the Music Study Club of Evanston, April 26.

BERGEY PUPILS' RECITAL

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bergey opened their pleasant studio for another of their Sunday afternoon recitals last week. A fine audience present was treated to a charming program, and after the music there was tea and cheer and cordiality.

Mrs. Bergey was represented on the program by Miss Martha Meier, a young pianist of many excellent parts, but whose chief charm lay in a lively imagination which took hold of the numbers and invested them with meaning and fancy. It was a pleasure to hear her do Edgar Sherwood's "Minuet"—it is something delicate and appealing and possesses fantasy for those who choose to seek it out as Miss Meier did. A "Shadow Dance" and "Autumn" of MacDowell naturally appealed to her powers, and she made them glow with the thoughts which the titles suggested and the music invited. The "Concert Etude" of Chaminade was more obvious and not so happily in the player's vein.

Mr. Hal Burr, the possessor of a baritone voice of vibrant quality, with musical feeling and warmth as valuable adjuncts, gave the Homer "Requiem" with brave spirit, the "Into My Heart" with a big, brilliant impulse, and Schubert's "Doppelgänger" with good interpretative intent and unusually good delivery of the text.

Mr. George Simons, a manly, likable young fellow, was the other participant. He has a tenor voice that is neither mellowly lyrical, nor robustly dramatic, but it has a pure, direct clarity and a timbre that colors readily, and in such things as the Brahms "Minnelied" gives such an impression of youth and passion as to supplant, for the moment, any need for the depth of maturer thought. It is one of those fresh, beautiful voices alive with fervor and youth and warm with enthusiasm. His other numbers were the "Am Meer" and "Frühlingslaube" of Schubert and Schumann's "Schöne Wiege" and "Widmung," as well as a deft little English song sung capably for encore.

Mrs. Bergey was a tower of strength at the piano—assisting and supplementing as well as decorating the score she played.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Pablo Casals, violoncellist, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, at its regular concerts to be given Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. The program will be as follows:

Overture to a play, Op. 4.....Korngold
Rhapsody, "June".....Oldberg
Concerto for violoncello, A Minor, Op. 129. Schumann
Symphony, D Minor.....Franck
"Kol Nedrei," for violoncello and orchestra.....Bruch

Mount Pleasant—On last Sunday evening Gounod's "The Redemption" was given at the Central State Normal School in Mount Pleasant, Mich., under direction of G. E. Knapp, with the Normal Orchestra and Hazel Everingham, pianist, and a long list of soloists.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method

815 WILSON AVENUE

TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

BAILEY

ANNA AGNES

Soprano

HERBERT M.

Baritone

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO

522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER

Just returned from abroad

Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET MULFORD

LAWSON

CONCERT

CONTRALTO

PUPILS

871 FERRY PARK AVENUE

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO

STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG.

Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO

CONCERT

RECITAL

3958 Drexel Boulevard

Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST

Concerts Recitals Receptions

Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater

Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

OPERA

CONTRALTO

849 LAKESIDE PLACE

TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts

Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE

509 S. WABASH AVENUE

Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Ninth Floor Auditorium Building

Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of

MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST

1403 E. 68th STREET

Mezzo-Soprano

PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church

2422 S. LAWDALE AVENUE

Great Pianists Demand Great Pianos

That is why so many have turned enthusiastically—
finally—to the

Mason & Hamlin

musically the most beautiful
piano the world has ever known

On exhibition and sale only
at the Music Rooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago
Write today for Art Catalogue and Price List

LE TRIO RAMEAU

In another column we present a most satisfactory picture of this new ensemble of well-known artists, namely Mr. Alfred Barthel, oboe soloist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra; Mr. Theodore Du Moulin, violoncello of the same orchestra, and Mme. Barthel, piano.

The ensemble was organized too late in the season to secure dates before autumn, but several appearances are already arranged for, beginning about the time of the regular orchestra season, and will be announced about September 1 next.

The Trio Rameau will cater to the requirements of organizations whose members know good music and well-selected programs, such as amateur musical clubs. One of their programs, already arranged for the leading woman's club of a north shore suburb, offers the following choice numbers: Trio, "Les Niais de Sologne," Rameau; solo for 'cello, "Elegie," Massenet; solos for oboe, "Bourree," "Couvre-feu," "Scherzo," A. Barthe; trio, "Gavotte," F. Gossic; solo for 'cello, "Mazurka," D. Popper; solos for oboe, "Andante," "Orientale" (dedicated to Mr. Barthel), E. Lacroix; solo for piano, "Nocturne," Chopin; trio, "Gavotte," Mme. de Grandval.

— # # # —
Bush Temple—Mary Thomas, child violinist, and Violet Bourne, child pianist, will give a joint program at Bush Temple this (Friday) evening, assisted by Earl Victor Prah, accompanist. Miss Thomas is a pupil of Guy Woodard and Miss Bourne of Mme. Julie Rive-King.

BESS CLAIR MURRAY

VIOLA COLE PRESENTS TALENTED PUPIL

Miss Viola Cole frequently presents very talented young pianists—she seems to be a special magnet in drawing them to her studio, but never has she presented a more remarkable program than that of last Friday evening when the youthful Bess Clair Murray delighted a capacity audience at the Little Theater with her remarkable technical virtuosity and distinctive style.

Miss Murray undoubtedly has a very remarkable talent—her sense of rhythm is accurate and her musical perception is fine. She has also poetry and distinctive interpretative abilities in great abundance and these gifts, coupled with a winning personality and an unshakable poise will carry her to great heights if she but perseveres in her careful study, for, after all, when such a child makes a successful appearance the teacher is really the one most deserving of praise and in this case too much could scarcely be said of the skill and ability of Miss Cole.

The program opened with an "Andante and Rondo," by Rosenhain, played with precision and good musical values. A Bach "Invention" was remarkable in its clarity, a "Pastorale," by Mozart, was of great musical value and the Handel "Harmonious Blacksmith" was played in a way which many mature artists could not excel.

The Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 27, No. 1, was given with an astonishing breadth and a variety of musical expression which made it intensely interesting and served to emphasize, as nothing else could, the remarkable talent of the young pianist.

Several encores were played and the program ended with three brilliant works by Pieczonka, not heard by this writer. Many flowers were presented, and the audience was most cordial in its endorsement of the work of the young artist. C. E. W.

EPIPHANY ORGAN RECITALS

Dr. Francis Hemington will resume his season of organ recitals at the Church of the Epiphany, Ashland boulevard and Adams street, next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The assisting artists are: Miss Esther Muenstermann, contralto; Miss Lorna Mae Jones, violin. The program will include Felix Borowski's Sonata in A Minor for the organ, besides compositions by Foote, Kinder, Noble, etc. The electric action of the organ at Epiphany has been entirely repaired, and the beautiful voicing of the instrument is now heard to the best advantage.

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

Marie Sidenius Zendt sang the following program at the Universalist Church vesper musicale at Elgin, Ill., April 11:

With Verdue Clad	Haydn
Her Love Song	Salter
A Spirit Flower	Tipton
The Swallows	Cowen
O, Grant Me in the Dust to Fall	Dvorak
The Nile	Leroux
A Memory	Fairchild
A Song of Sunshine	Gorin-Thomas
On Mighty Pens (Creation)	Haydn

Mrs. Zendt will be soloist with Chicago Concert Ensemble at Fullerton Hall, Art Institute, Sunday afternoon, April 18.

— # # # —
Cosmopolitan—The Cosmopolitan School of Music announces a concert by Maude Lewis, soprano, and Agnes Bodholdt, pianist, at the Branch School, 1339 East Forty-seventh street, Friday evening, April 16, at 8:15.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }

Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

ENGLEWOOD BAPTIST CHURCH FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

An extremely interesting center of musical activities is that maintained at the Englewood Baptist Church, where Mr. H. W. Fairbank has reigned so long in the choir loft that the mind of the average active Chicagoan runneth not to the contrary. Before one says a word about the music, however, he wants to applaud the lighting of the auditorium. Certainly those Baptists are sure of themselves and their purposes, for they hide no corner of their place in shadow. This works for immense cheerfulness, and the delightful quality pervaded everything last Friday night, when a festival was given before an audience which nearly filled the spacious building.

Mr. Fairbank's working forces on this occasion were his choir of about fifty voices, which he directed and for whom Mrs. W. A. Huyck furnished organ accompaniment of good quality and attentive support. The choral body is fairly well balanced, the alto section noticeably good as to richness and fullness.

The choir is vigorous and reliable, singing with a notable sonority, firmness and confidence and yet with obedience to the conductor's baton. These traits stood out as the forceful ones because they were the ones demanded by the compositions used. The further essentials of a good mezzo tone and lightness of touch are no doubt in reserve when they shall be required. Mr. Fairbank evidently believes in American music, for the two numbers heard were by W. J. Baltzell, the editor of The Musician, and by Mr. Fairbank himself. The latter, "In Praise of May," has the madrigal-like cheerfulness the title suggests and is lyrical and singable in its smooth, flowing rhythms, and the choir gave it with sterling spirit and the audience liked it so well that it urged a repetition. The Baltzell "Gypsy Heart" is in larger form, but simple and direct, both in construction and development. There was some good straight harmony that came out from the choral body in big pulsating tone, and the working out demands were adequately met and the rousing finale made the best sort of an impression as to Mr. Fairbank's industry and care in rounding out and finishing whatever he stood sponsor for.

Miss Minnie Cedargreen was an assisting artist, contributing three portions of the program. She plays the violin with a real effectiveness and completeness, using many varieties of color and touching the gentler phrases with a nice sense of taste and fitness and being fully equal to those technical moments which call for speed and brilliancy. She used Wieniawski's elaborate paraphrase of the old Russian air, "The Scarlet Sarafan," two fine examples of Tor Aulin's excellent literature, the Schubert-Wilhelmj "Ave Maria," and the brilliant "Liebesfreud" of Kreisler, all done in sincere style. For an encore she made a great deal out of Schubert's "Cradle Song." Mr. David Nyvall gave her well-modulated accompaniments.

Regretfully, one cannot endorse the offerings of Mrs. Marian Chase Schaeffer, the reader of the occasion. She contributed two simple songs, which were well done, for she has a nice voice and knows how to sing. And her sketches were as satisfactory as such things can be, but it will always be doubtful taste to use the pulpit of a church to reproduce humorous, and in many cases exaggerated instances which shallow writers devise that speak lightly of sacred things and sacred places. With the audience, however, the offerings found unquestioned favor.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MU PHI EPSILON SORORITY

The annual guest program of the Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority was given at the Ziegfeld Theater Saturday morning, April 10.

Members of the sorority, Rose Lutiger Gannon, Marian Hobbs, Ruth Tharp, Louise Harrison Slade, Frederica Gerhardt Downing, Marie Annen, Florence Stephenson, Zetta Gay Whitson, Mae Doelling, Francis

WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

Naomi Nator, Marian Chase Schaeffer, Mabel Sharp-Herdiem, Harriet Smulski, Daisy Heist Jones and Beulah Lee Taylor, accompanists, took part in a varied and interesting musical morning.

The first part of the program was not heard by this writer, who arrived in time to hear the charming singer and artist, Mrs. Gannon, give a beautiful rendition of "Ode to Night" (Harris). Miss Whitson in the "Ascension Sonata," Burleigh, had the assistance of Miss Doelling, who many times has proved herself to be a fine musician and an artistic pianist.

Miss Nazor's splendid soprano voice is always heard with great pleasure, and her rendition of Cadman's "Call Me No More" was very artistic and praise-meriting.

Miss Taylor played the accompaniment in a finished and artistic manner.

Mrs. Schaeffer's clever readings were very enjoyable, as was the trio from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss, winning much merited applause.

H. W. P.

Durno—Miss Thyra Ruhland, a pupil of Jeannette Durno, gave a piano recital before the Morning Musical Club of Fort Wayne on April 9. Miss Ruhland will give a recital at Hamilton Park on April 20, and at Thurber Hall on April 25. Mrs. Dorothy Marcon Murray will play for the Hamilton Park Woman's Club on April 13. Mrs. Murray is also a Durno pupil.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' CHORUS

The Chicago Teachers' Chorus, consisting of one hundred women singers, under the direction of Mr. O. E. Robinson, will give their second annual concert in Orchestra Hall, Tuesday evening, April 20.

The chorus will have the assistance of Mrs. Luella Chilson-Ohrman, soprano; Mr. Edward Clarke, baritone; Miss Kathleen Grant, accompanist; Mr. William Underhill, organist, and twenty-two members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The proceeds are to go for the benefit of charity. All the boxes have been sold and there is a long list of patrons including Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, and other persons of prominence.

PROGRAM

Overture—Il Guarany Gomez
Orchestra

Part Songs—
Sic Vita Walter Damrosch
To Daffodils Foote
Nymphs and Fauns Bemberg
Chorus

Songs—
Invictus Huhn
Duna Josephine McGill
Morning Speaks
Mr. Clarke

Part Songs—
Ave Maria (Lorely) Mendelssohn
Obligato solo by Miss Laure D. Earnist
The Lord Is My Shepherd Schubert
A June Rose Bloomed Coleridge-Taylor
'Tis Spring Weidig
Polonaise, from Mignon Thomas
Mrs. Ohrman
Intermission

Prelude Rachmaninoff
Liebesfreud Kreisler
Orchestra

Part Songs—
Beauteous Morn German
The Little Brown Bee Mrs. H. H. A. Beach
The Criss-Cross Baby Lynes
Chorus

Chorus—
List the Cherubic (Holy City) Gaul
Miss Mary Farrell, Mr. Clarke and Chorus
Italian Serenade Stevenson
Mr. Clarke and Chorus
The Dance from Neapolitan Scenes Massenet
Orchestra

Cantata—Death of Joan of Arc Bemberg
Mrs. Ohrman and Chorus
Accompanied by Orchestra and Organ

###

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON

Mrs. Gannon has had a remarkably busy season and has still many engagements to fulfill. On April 16 she is soloist at the Art Institute concert and appears at Orchestra Hall with the Irish Choral Society in the Verdi "Requiem," this month.

She is soloist with the Sunday Evening Club on April 22, and April 25 appears in the Beethoven "Mass" in Milwaukee.

###

Mendelssohn Club—Mr. Harrison M. Wild was operated on last Saturday at the Hahnemann Hospital for appendicitis. Late reports say that he is getting along nicely, and we all hope for his speedy recovery. In the meantime, Mr. D. A. Clippinger has kindly consented to conduct the remaining rehearsals of the Mendelssohn Club and the concert on April 29.

CEDRIC W. LEMONTPIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485Isabel RichardsonMUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.EDNA DUNHAMSoprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New YorkJ. NOEL FOREST, TenorVOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981Allen W. BogenCONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGOHARRY S. AUSTINBASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758ALTA MILLERRECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COXTEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865Mrs. Charles L. KrumSOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986Vivian ScottTeacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY

800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-HarterConcerts Oratorios Recitals
Wendbire Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-RCARRIE SCOTT ANNA SWANSEN HAZEL REID
CLARA ANDERSEN OTHELIA STENERSEN MARGARET ANDERSENARTIST PUPILS OF MISS CARRIE SCOTT

A series of piano recitals by artist pupils of Miss Carrie Scott has just been concluded—the last one taking place on last Tuesday night at the rooms of the Mendelssohn Conservatory at the McClurg Building.

The recitals began on February 23 with a program by Clara Andersen in which she played two "Hungarian Rhapsodies" (Liszt), and very attractive small pieces assisted by her sister, Miss Jennie Andersen, who sang numbers by Dell' Acqua and Woodman.

The succeeding evening introduced Miss Margaret Andersen, assisted by the Mendelssohn Conservatory Ladies' Quartet. She played the Liszt "Ballade" and many other fine works of Chopin, MacDowell and other standard composers. Next came Othelia Stenersen, who played two "Rhapsodies" (Liszt), and works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn and other classics, being assisted by W. Harold Simons, a fine young violinist, member of the faculty of the Mendelssohn Conservatory.

The fourth concert was given by Hazel Reid with the assistance of Andrew MacCallum, a thoroughly pleasing young tenor. She began her recital with the Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 14, and included a fine list of classic and salon pieces. The last recital of the course introduced Miss Anna Swensen, who began with the "Moonlight Sonata," by Beethoven, and proceeded through a fine list of serious piano works, interspersed by some songs by Mrs. W. H. Marsden, soprano.

All these pupils displayed good teaching as well as fine natural abilities and the series as a whole reflected much credit on Miss Scott and on the Mendelssohn Conservatory.

———*—
Sowerby—Leo Sowerby, pianist, and Herman Felber, Jr., violinist, will give a sonata recital at Central Music Hall on Tuesday evening, April 20. They will play Sonata, No. 2, A Major, Bach; Sonata, Op. 59, C Major; D'Indy and Sonata, Op. 105, Schumann.

BESSIE WYNNE AT THE MAJESTIC

Once a year, at the Majestic, Bessie Wynne, styled "The Lady Dainty," charms her numerous following, and at each reappearance she more and more displays her versatility and proves the fact that her vocal art is of fine and enduring quality.

Last week she was a chief feature of the bill, and each night charmed her audience thoroughly.

Since last year she has changed her repertoire of songs entirely and is to be congratulated on the fine and attractive list of songs she is now offering.

In some "heart songs," as well as one built upon the pathetic side of war, she excelled herself. In these bits her voice was of appealing sweetness and her manner was thoroughly ingratiating.

An ingenious story about a mushroom and a toad was also well told and some scintillant bits of vocalism added to the conviction that Bessie Wynne not only has a remarkable voice, but also that it has been trained in a thoroughly exceptional way.

The final item of her appearance was the singing of "One Fine Day" ("Mme. Butterfly") in costume, in such a remarkably effective way as to prove conclusively that she has both the voice and the histrionic ability to carry the work to resounding success should she essay it on the grand opera stage.

The Majestic management had provided a thoroughly beautiful stage setting and Miss Wynne dressed the part admirably.

She gave a reading of the score, which was vitally different from any ever witnessed by this writer, and yet so characteristic as to be fine beyond precedent.

She sang also with great beauty and freedom, and proved herself very much in her element in this genre of song.

C. E. W.

———*—
Cedar Falls—The Minneapolis Orchestra will give a festival day at Cedar Falls, Iowa, on April 20. The soloists will be Alma Beck, Albert Lindquist, Harry J. Williams, Marie Sundelius, Marion Green and Cornelius Van Vliet.

ADOLF WEIDIG'S COMPOSITION CLASS

Mr. Adolf Weidig, one of the faculty of the American Conservatory of Music, has an interesting custom of presenting each year certain pupils of his who are far enough advanced in composition to stand public inspection. The occasion is usually a gala affair, and Kimball Hall was crowded last Saturday to enjoy the event of this season.

To give first place one easily names the masterly group of songs by Mr. Herbert E. Hyde and sung with the finest artistry by Madame Else Harthan-Arendt. There were four songs in the well contrasted set, but in no one was there a more complete maturity of thought and certainty of touch, than in the atmospheric "Long Ago," something choice in its use of the line of continuous melody and adaptability to the voice and yet fascinating by the freedom and artful weaving of the instrumental part. It was so beautifully done in every detail as to leave a haunting charm. It suited Mrs. Arendt perfectly. The "Irish Song" has its own folk like mood of simplicity and the "Spring Song" is elaborate and dashing to a degree—but its most grateful touch is in a little moment of interlude and recitative, which is a real inspiration.

Some capital songs by Catherine McFarland were sung by Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt in the happiest and most spontaneous manner. The songs are quite individual and reveal a decided gift of utterance, that is spontaneous, fluent and always musical—a bit guarded and obvious perhaps—but with the real charm of freshness and vitality. Mrs. Zendt sang also the songs of Edith Lobdell and gave to them the touches of individuality they called for. For Miss Lobdell seeks to express herself unusually and not always simply.

Marjorie Lane's muse finds expression in the elusive manner affected by the best French writers. She evidently uses such as models, and is successful in many ways, but not always fully convincing. Mrs. Gertrude Kastholm-Darsie sang them with felicity, insight and sympathy. Her voice was full of a rich beauty in the "Lullaby" and the "Goldfish," with its clever little final note, was deft and sure in its projection. Mrs. Darsie has natural and acquired gifts of the first order, and her progress upward is pleasant to note.

Among the piano compositions the "Variations" by Helen Sears received great applause and were largely valuable because of their elaborate and sure technical construction. Miss Bergersen interpreted the "Melodious Sketches" of Adelaide Heron with a keen sense of their pastel like qualities, and she did the same illuminating task for Miss Lobdell's "Impromptus." Miss Clara Rubey played her own "Allegro" and "Scherzo." They are built on sturdy lines, and are alive with vigor and power. They created much enthusiasm. A number that had more than usual merit was a suite for piano, violin and 'cello by Phyllis Fergus, brimful of talent and feeling and fully arrived in certain phases.

Other contributions to the program were Mrs. Gladys Parvis, Miss Robyn, Miss Cooper, Miss Nellie Poorman and William Buchbinder, but not all heard by the reviewer.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MISS LOOFBOURROW'S SCHOOL

Miss Loofbourrow and Miss Humphrey, of Oak Park, invited their friends, very modestly, to a program given by their pupils at the Colonial Club, Oak Park, Saturday afternoon, April 10.

A vast throng accepted the invitation most eagerly and the "program" proved to be a very elaborate and charming presentation of two fairy plays, "The Sun Goddess," a Japanese myth, and "Gift of the Queen," a fairy story.

Scores of little girls and boys appeared in the most dainty, airy fairy costumes and danced and frolicked through the happiest and most wholesome succession of events in the pretty plays. The larger boys, in a sword dance, gave a praiseworthy demonstration of their training in the physical class.

Miss Loofbourrow has made a tremendous success with her school in Oak Park, where she finds many mothers of fine calibre, who appreciate her high standards for their children.

M. K. W.

DUFU AND DEVRIES

The second of May a concert will be given at the Blackstone Theater by Jenny Dufau, the eminent prima donna of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and Herman Devries, for the benefit of the French wounded and sufferers of the war.

Miss Dufau will be heard in some opera arias and in groups of French songs; Glenn Dillard Gunn, pianist, will play some Debussy, Alkan and Ravel numbers; Beecher Burton, tenor, will sing the aria of Massenet's "Herodiade," and Hamilton Hopkins, baritone, will make his Chicago debut in the prologue of "Pagliacci." Both Beecher Burton and Hamilton Hopkins are coaching with Mr. Devries.

The first act of "Lakme" will be given by special request, with the following cast, all Herman Devries' students:

Lakme.....	Mrs. Thomas Prindiville
Mallika.....	Marie Yahr
Ellen.....	Dorothy Cannon
Rose.....	Isabelle McBirney
Mrs. Benson.....	Margaret Gaffey
Gerald.....	Huntington B. Henry
Nilakantha.....	Raymond Gifford
Frederick.....	Lemuel Kilby
Hadji.....	Gabriel Martin

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto--Haze Haut

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

Director-Accompanist

TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, EvanstonTENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

ONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CECILIA BELLAIRE AND MABEL NEVIN SCHOOLFIELD IN JOINT RECITAL

Cecilia Bellaire, pianist, pupil of Jeannette Durno, and Mrs. Mabel Nevin Schoolfield, soprano, pupil of Mrs. Charles Krum, gave a joint recital on Sunday afternoon at Thurber Hall and delighted a fine audience, receiving also unqualified endorsement for their efforts.

Miss Bellaire is a pianist whose outstanding virtue is positiveness and power. She is of slight build and yet her depth of touch and the brilliance with which she negotiates bravura passages are notable.

Not that she exhibits these qualities unduly, for, on the contrary, she has remarkable versatility and also the unusual ability to make her tone fit the desired mood very definitely and in such a work as the MacDowell "Shadow Dance," for instance, she is piquancy and lightness personified, while in such another as Grieg's "On the Mountains," she is massive in tone to a degree which cannot be equaled by many young women pianists.

She played the Schumann "Faschingsschwank" with great intelligence also, bringing out the inner voices and the introspective meanings very deftly.

The Chopin "Nocturne" was very well done and the two "Preludes" were attractive, the second one being played too rapidly, however. The Gliere "Romance" proved to be as attractive as it is novel, and the "Roses from the South" (Strauss-Schuett) made a thoroughly brilliant closing piece.

Rachmaninoff's "Polichinelle" was played with a wonderful amount of sparkle and the "Scotch Poem" by MacDowell, always very acceptable, was doubly so at the hands of Miss Bellaire. Distinctly a very talented girl is Miss Bellaire and one who has great enthusiasm for her work. She will evidently go far.

Mrs. Schoolfield, the possessor of a good soprano voice, has, under the instruction of Mrs. Krum developed her resources in the best possible way. She sings with ease and with a fine display of musicianship, while at the same time she evidently considers well each song on its interpretative side and, as her enunciation is very good, she is able to make each number thoroughly alive.

The Verdi aria (Aida) was sung with breadth of style and good interpretation, Nevins, "When the Kye Come Home" was given with piquancy, while Ward-Stevens' "Summertime" and Kellie's "Apple Blossoms" were sung with much grace and delicate finish.

Homer's "Sheep and Lambs" was presented with good tonal qualities and in good movement, lacking a little, however, in sincerity of meaning.

C. E. W.

CECILIA BELLAIRE

SUNDAY MUSIC IN EVANSTON

The ninth of the orchestra concerts at the Evanston Hippodrome, given last Sunday evening, found Mr. George Dasch absent, the baton being in the hands of Mr. Woollett who, although very intelligent and thoroughly musical in his work, is not the equal of Mr. Dasch, who has already become a great local favorite because of his graceful and yet very authoritative direction, and his extremely suave manner.

The outstanding number by the orchestra was the "Ballet Music" from "Faust" (Gounod) which is seldom heard, but is nevertheless very beautiful music and was at this time exceptionally well played.

The overture to "Poet and Peasant" (Suppe) was much applauded and the "Chanson Joyeuse" of Ravina was also much liked, other numbers being well chosen and well played pieces by Nesvadba, Tschaiakowsky and Herbert.

Mrs. Marie White Clark, soprano, was the soloist and made as definite a success as has been developed in the whole series.

She has a lyric soprano voice of sweet quality and even scale, particularly admirable being the purity of her upper tones and the ease with which she manipulates them. Unusual facility is hers also, indeed, to such a marked degree that she manipulates coloratura effects with perfect ease. This was amply demonstrated in Dell'Acqua's "Villanelle" in which the staccati were crystal clear, the chromatics perfect and the trills of unusual brilliance and evenness.

Coloratura display does not exhaust her possibilities, however, and in other songs she showed poetic feeling and great musical fervor.

Especially notable was "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," which, although sung with great simplicity, was yet full of true intensity of meaning.

Other numbers were by Landon Ronald, Rogers and Clough-Leighter—Rogers' "The Star" being particularly well done. Good accompaniments were played by Mrs. John G. Houston.

C. E. W.

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY

Miss Christine Druel, soprano, and Maurice Fisher, tenor, pupils of Karl Buren Stein, who were engaged as soloists for the special Easter music at the Evangelical Immanuel Church, have been re-engaged for the annual convention of the South Side Evangelical Sunday School Association to be held at the same church. Ruth Dahly, contralto, and George W. Loach, baritone, pupils of Mr. Stein, were also engaged to complete the quartet.

Murphy—Mrs. John Fremont Murphy sang at a reception tendered Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mantell by the Lois Dunning Arts Club at the Congress Hotel on Thursday noon. She made a fine success in "The Star" (Rogers), a vocal arrangement of the Boccherini "Minuet" and "Spring's Awakening" (Sanderson).

Holmes—Mr. A. Alfred Holmes will present Miss Ruth Franzen in piano recital at Kimball Hall Tuesday evening, April 20. She will be assisted by Alice Geer Ferguson, pupil of Agnes Leist Beebe.

RUTH RAY Violin Recital

With Edward Collins at the Piano

AT

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64 East Van Buren Street

Wednesday Evening,

April 21st, 1915

Tickets 50c, 75c and $1.00

ALBERT SPALDING

ALBERT SPALDING IN RECITAL

The second recital for this season by Albert Spalding was given at the Illinois Theater on last Sunday afternoon, the program being one of distinctly pleasing character.

In his earlier program, Mr. Spalding had given some violin numbers which, while of immense educational value were more or less unfamiliar to the audience, but in the case of the later program everything was either so well known as to be immediately recognizable as an old friend or so directly appealing as to be listed at once as a new one.

Such an one was Mr. Spalding's own "Alabama," which caught the fancy of his hearers at once and made a sensational success.

Its truly correct negro swing and lilt proved so captivating and its music dress so altogether agreeable that a repetition was demanded and its second playing brought even greater expression of delight.

At no other point of the program did Mr. Spalding allow any repetitions or encores until the very end, but here, after being recalled again and again, he most graciously added three numbers and as one of them was the lovely "Nocturne" in E Flat (Chopin), which is closely associated with his name, he succeeded in still further endearing himself to an audience which had already voted him a splendid success.

The Porpora "Sonata," which opened the program, was played with such poise and precision as well as such musical alertness as to make it glow again with quaint beauty.

The Bach "Chaconne" proved to be a tremendous display of impeccable technic, broad tone and fine musicianship, while Schumann and Schubert in two "Romances" and "Rondo Brilliant," respectively, afforded the opportunities which allowed a free play of poetical fancy and the disclosure of musical tone which was of invariably beautiful quality.

An "Adagietto" (Bizet) disclosed the fact that Mr. Spalding has the power to make a pure melody absolutely melting in quality and power, while the familiar "Polonaise," by Wieniawsky, was, as always with Mr.

Spalding, a piece of glittering technical perfection.

The recent announcements that Mr. Spalding will be his own manager hereafter and the additional fact that he is already booked variously for Chicago for next season are sources of gratification, for Albert Spalding has been accepted unreservedly in Chicago as one of the very greatest of violinists and it is not possible to have too much of his polished art.

C. E. W.

"Did beautiful work."—Chicago Tribune.

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

730 Fine Arts Building
309 E. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

"Sang tenor aria well."
—Chicago Evening Post.

MRS. SNOW'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

On next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Harriet Martin Snow will present Prudence Neff, pianiste, and Robert Dolejsi, violinist, in a joint recital in Central Music Hall. Following is the program:

PROGRAM

Sonata, E Major	Haendel
Adagio
Allegro
Largo
Allegro
Sonata Appassionata	Beethoven
Assai Allegro
Andante con moto
Allegro ma non troppo
Concerto B Minor	D'Ambrosio
Grandioso, moderato e sostenuto
Andante
Finale—Allegro
Impromptu F Sharp Major	Chopin
Episode from Lenau's Faust	Liszt-Busoni
The Dance in the Village Tavern
Waltzes of Mephistopheles
Arabesque	Debussy
Andante Sostenuto	Goldmark
Holka Modrooka	Sevcik

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mr. Rudolph Ganz will give a piano recital next Sunday afternoon, April 18, at 3:30, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program is as follows:

Chaconne	Bach-Busoni
Sonata, D major	Haydn
Sonata, B minor	Chopin
Au jardin du vieux Sergil, from op. 18	Blanchet
Serenade, Op. 15	Blanchet
Etude Caprice, Op. 14	Ganz
Marche fantastique, Op. 10	Ganz
Country Dance	McPayden
Mignon's Lied	Liszt
Rakoczy March	Liszt

h h h

A recital of interest will be the one given by Miss Zetta Gay Whitson, violinist, and Edwin D. Martin, baritone, at the Illinois Theater, Sunday afternoon, April 25, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program is as follows:

Eri to che macchiavi "Un Ballo in Maschera"....Verdi

Mr. Martin

The Ascension Sonata (first time in Chicago).....

Cecil Burleigh

Tranquillo—For unto us a child is born, and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called wonderful. Isaiah IX: 6.

Con Impeto—And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him. John VII: 12.

Con somma esaltazione—And it came to pass while he blessed them, he was parted from them and carried up into heaven. Luke XXIV: 51.

Miss Whitson and Mr. Doering

Air d'Azael "L'Enfant Prodigue".....Debussy

Liebes hymnus.....Strauss

Die Nacht.....Strauss

Unter Sternen.....Weingartner

Post im Walde.....Weingartner

Mr. Martin

Fantasiestueck (first time in Chicago).....Hugo Kaun

Miss Whitson

Les Silhouettes.....Carpenter

The Player Queen.....Carpenter

Floods of Spring.....Rachmaninoff

Thy Voice Is Heard.....Homer

Uncle Rome.....Homer

Mr. Martin

Andante from Symphonie Espagnole.....Edouard Lalo

Tambourin Chinois.....Fritz Kreisler

Miss Whitson

###

RADANOVITS STUDIO

The fifth program in the series of recitals given by artist pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits will be presented by Mina Katherine Hager, contralto, and Wa-Tah-Wa-So, mezzo-soprano, assisted by William Lester, accompanist, Thursday evening, April 22, at 516 Fine Arts Building. The program will be as follows:

Im Wunderschönen Monat Mai
Aus meinem Thranen Spriessen
Die Rose, die Lilie
Wenn ich in deinen Augen seh
Ich grolle nicht

Schumann

(From the Dichterliebe)

Mina Katherine Hager

The Moon Drops Low.....Cadman

The Weaver

A-oo-ah

A Crow Maiden's Prayer Song

Wa-Tah-Wa-So

The Song of the Shirt.....Homer

Mina Katherine Hager

Her Blanket.....Lieurance

The Manitou Curse Thee.....Bergen

Gay As a Bird.....Bergen

Moodess, Moodess (Indian cradle song)

Wa-Tah-Wa-So

When I Bring to You Colored Toys.....Carpenter

The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes.....Carpenter

Compensation.....Lester

Remembrance.....Lester

The Star.....Rogers

Mina Katherine Hager

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
1820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

LE TRIO RAMEAU

A SPECIMEN PROGRAM OF LE TRIO RAMEAU

Trio—			Cello and Piano—Aria	Bach
Romance	Mme. de Grandval		Oboe and Piano—
Gavotte	Mme. de Grandval		Lamento	C. Nielsen
Cello and Piano—			Humoresque	C. Nielsen
Andante	Mozart		Solo for Piano—
Song Without Words	Mendelssohn		Andante	Beethoven
Three Pieces, Oboe and Piano	Schumann		Rondo	Beethoven
			Trio—Two Pieces	Schumann

FREDERICKSEN-HESS TRIO

The irresistible number on the program given at Central Music Hall on Sunday afternoon by this good trio of players was that memorial of Tschaiikowsky to his friend, Nicholas Rubinstein, the Opus 50. It is one of the grateful works in chamber music literature by reason of its melodiousness and its adherence to the legitimate methods of themes and their development. If there is an often sounded note of sorrow it has no poignancy in it—but serves to remind those who were a part of the merriment, also recalled in the phrases, that there is a comrade missing and that he is not to be forgotten.

The work received a notably good presentation, an excellent ensemble being preserved throughout. In the various moments when the 'cello part was lifted into prominence, it was grateful to the ear to hear the smooth roundness and richness of the tone Mr. Hans Hess has at his command and to observe the fluency and grace of his phrasing.

One group of the songs offered by Mr. Frederick A. Farrar was heard. He is a throaty baritone, and used Grieg's "Farewell," Schubert's "Greeting to Spring" and Mrs. Salter's "Contentment," substituting the latter for Huhn's "Invictus," scheduled on the program. They were embellished by accompaniments played by the talented Miss Phyllis Fergus.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Asbury Park—At Asbury Park, N. J., four Lenten recitals were given under the direction of Mrs. Bruce S. Keator, organist of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The soloists were, March 12, Arthur Scott Brook, organist; Wilda Bennett, soprano; Isabel Brylawski, violinist; March 19, Walter N. Waters, organist; Mildred Graham Reardon, soprano; Arthur Parker, violinist. March 26, Francis Cuyler Van Dyck, organist; May Furbeck Proskey, contralto. April 2, chorus and band, under direction of Tali Esen Morgan, Mrs. Bruce S. Keator at the organ and Mrs. Joseph Savage at the piano.

Cook—Dwight Edrus Cook, formerly of Chicago, but now director of the Boise Conservatory of Music, presented his choir at the First Methodist Church in that city in "The Crucifixion" on Good Friday, and in the new cantata by Gailbraith, "Alleluiah, Hail With Gladness," on Easter, this being the seventh cantata given since Mr. Cook assumed charge of this choir. The success was marked. Mr. Cook gave a song recital at Nampa, Idaho, on April 9.

MRS. WING IN MAYWOOD

A thoroughly pleasant evening was that fostered by the Twentieth Century Club of Maywood on the 7th inst., when Mrs. Eloise Hilton Wing, aided by Miss Marian Lychenheim, presented a program of music by American composers.

Mrs. Wing has personality, a good voice, good musicianship, finish of interpretative thought and a neat deft manner of speech in elucidating the comment she makes on the numbers presented. Her informal little talk about American music and musicians had just enough information in its body, and stimulant in its suggestion, as well as freedom of views and an always saving sense of humor, to lubricate the grooves of instruction capably.

Very naturally she gave MacDowell precedence and much place, following him with excerpts from Nevin and Mrs. Beach. For individual attention was heard Seeboeck's "Minuet a L'Antico," Arthur Whiting's "Prelude," Adolph Weidig's lovely spring song, "Let Her In," bubbling with freshness and spirit, Carpenter's wonderfully illusive "Colored Toys," which is destined for permanence unless all signs fail, a "Lullaby" by Alice B. Wing and two of Gena Branscombe's masterly songs—these latter being in some measure a compliment to Maywood in that the composers were at times resident in the suburb.

The songs were well sung, with well rounded moods and meanings and thorough attention to the importance of being in earnest and of making the text lucid and a vital matter. The audience was enthusiastic and would willingly have lengthened the program by repetitions and encores.

Miss Lychenheim gave excellent support in the accompaniments and evidenced unusual poise in her piano numbers. The instrument provided, however, was of such a nature as really to handicap all sincere endeavor. The sound came out with such a roar that one knew that the instrument was unsteady and the reviewer is quite ready to believe that it stood upon three casters instead of four. Is it at all fair to ask people to play under such circumstances?

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

RUTH RAY IN RECITAL

Miss Ruth Ray will give the following program at Central Music Hall on Wednesday evening, April 21, at 8:15. Edward Collins will accompany.

Sonata, A Major	Haendel
Prelude, E Major	Bach-Kreisler
Concert	Tschaikowsky
Allegro moderato
Canzonetta
Allegro vivacissimo
Nocturne, E Minor, Op. 72	Chopin-Auer
Vogel als Prophet	Schumann-Auer
Am Springbrunnen	Schumann
Scherzo Tarantelle	Wieniawski

Spearin—Mrs. Jane Polson Spearin, who has made great success in her vocal teaching in Gary, Ind., has removed to 2501 Culom avenue, Chicago, but will, each week, return to Gary for a day to teach her class in that city.

Wadhams-Moline—Miss Ruby Lyons sang with fine success "The Psalm of Praise," by Lily Wadhams-Moline, at the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian Church, April 7.

SIGMA ALPHA IOTA

The Sigma Alpha Iota, a national musical sorority, the president of which is Charlotte Webber of Chicago, held its ninth annual convention in Chicago, April 7, 8 and 9, guests of Gamma Chapter, with headquarters at the American Conservatory.

The mornings were given to business, with luncheon parties each noon and social affairs afternoons and evenings.

The entertainments of the three afternoons were a trip through Marshall Field & Co.'s wonderful store on Wednesday; Thursday afternoon an organ recital by Katherine Howard Ward, assisted by Monica Graham Stults, soprano, and an auto ride; Friday afternoon the symphony concert.

Wednesday evening a delightful reception and artist concert, the following very fine program being given by Mr. Henriot Levy, pianist; Mr. Adolf Weidig, violinist, and Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano:

Sonata for Piano and Violin, G Major	Brahms
Mr. Levy and Mr. Weidig
Care Selve (from Opera Alanta)	Handel
Zueignung (Devotion)	Strauss

Mrs. Zendt
Mrs. Katherine Howard Ward at the piano
Sonata, Op. 35	Chopin
Mr. Levy

Her Love Song	Salter
Love's Rhapsody	Herbert Butler
As a Bird	Herbert Hyde

Mrs. Zendt
Sonata for Piano and Violin, A Minor	Schumann
Mr. Levy and Mr. Weidig

Thursday evening Beta Chapter of the Northwestern University School of Music entertained the guests at a dinner, which was followed by a model initiation, when Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt was initiated. This chapter recently initiated Miss Christine Miller.

Friday evening a banquet was held at the La Salle Hotel. This was a great success, as might safely have been predicted, for Miss Mabel Woodworth, who is president of the Gamma Chapter was toastmistress. The various toasts were responded to by delegates from the chapters, delegates also furnishing the music for the evening.

This final and very interesting program we append:

"Spirit of Our Sorority"—Delta Chapter; Miss Nita Meyer, Detroit.
"Mozart and Schoenberg"—Alpha Chapter; Miss Helen Malcolmson, Ann Arbor.
Songs—Eta Chapter; Miss Diekmeier, Cincinnati.
"Cabbages and Kings"—Beta Chapter; Miss Cor-kill, Evanston.
Violin—Zeta Chapter; Miss Olive Kiler, Indianapolis.
"Woman in Music"—Theta Chapter; Miss Em-J. Hardy, Topeka.
Songs—Iota Chapter; Miss Mastin, Cincinnati.
"One Hundred Years from Now"—Kappa Chapter; (no delegate), Lincoln, Neb.
Reading—Epsilon Chapter; Miss Maud Young, Ithica, N. Y.
Violin—Gamma Chapter; Miss Mabel Woodworth, Chicago.

The convention was pronounced a great success. M. K. W.

Sage—In the Music News review of the performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana," under direction of Mr. John Loring Cook, at the Press Club recently, we inadvertently misspelled the name of the part taken by Miss Irene Sage. It should, of course, have been "Santuzza." Miss Sage is a pupil of Mr. Cook and has a beautiful voice which she used at this time in a way to prove herself a sterling young artist.

FRANK W

Van Dusen

PIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANOEdna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR ChicagoHarriet Case
SOPRANO COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland AvenueGaylord American Violinist
YOST
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYMarie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam T.B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd FloorSilas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel
MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

"THE CREATION" AT ORCHESTRA HALL

The performance of "The Creation" (Haydn) at Orchestra Hall on last Friday evening by the Haydn Choral Society under direction of H. W. Owens marked the advent of a new society into the down-town field, and, just as predicted in Music News, this was fraught with intense interest and crowned with splendid success.

LUCILLE STEVENSON

Mr. Owens has built this society up from nothing and whatever of achievement has been made and such finish as has been added are due to his painstaking and persistent endeavor.

The choral excellence as shown on Friday was notable. There was an absolute certainty of attack, a unanimity in climax building, a brilliance of accent and a surety in the pronouncement of text which are seen but seldom.

Also there was a complete feeling of authority in the interpretation, and the impression given was that each individual singer was not only imbued with a sincere desire to do his best, but also that a very perfect model had been placed before him at rehearsals.

"The Creation" is a wonderfully vital work, years of use and all sorts of presentations seem never to dim its charm, and the audience at Orchestra Hall found it again delightful as a whole and thoroughly interesting in the opportunities it afforded

EDWARD WALKER

Mr. Owens and his singers, as well as in the solo endeavor.

Mr. Owens is a very forceful and a very alert director. He watches his singers with the greatest attention and he is ever ready to give the helping admonition and he invariably gives it in such way as to bring splendid results.

The Symphony Orchestra has played so well for but few "outside" conductors, and the soloists of the evening also seemed unusually quick to adapt themselves to the environment and very sympathetic with the work outlined by Mr. Owens.

H. W. OWENS

To say that the chorus sensed the complete meaning of each number and that they not only brought power and finesse in required portions, but that they also were quick to make all the finer nuances indicated by the Owens baton, is true, and in saying it the necessity is obviated of specifying the various numbers.

Miss Lucille Stevenson, in the wonderful score assigned by Haydn to the soprano voice, was very much at home and sang with superb intelligence as well as never failing charm of interpretation.

This singer has been a tower of strength wherever she appeared this season and her work with the Haydn Society especially will be long remembered by all who heard it.

Mr. Edward Walker appeared also to splendid advantage. His voice covers "The Creation" requirements to a nicety and his oratorio style has been so thoroughly and so systematically developed that in each detail of the work he stands as a very great success. His "Native Worth" aria was a piece of vocal work with many fine points to commend it and in interpretative thought it was a model of excellence. In all the ensembles also, and there are many in "The Creation," he proved his musicianship and his entire authority in work of this caliber.

Mr. Charles W. Clark sang the elaborate bass score and sang it with his usual skill and the beauty of voice which has long been known as one of his chief assets. The enunciation of this text is a feature which requires constant care and infinite skill and in this respect especially Mr. Clark could not be excelled.

C. E. W.

OPERA AT FULLERTON HALL

The opera at Fullerton Hall, Sunday evening, April 11, was Balfe's "Bohemian Girl." Miss Henriette Weber is covering a wide field in opera literature, and doing it in such an interesting way that she is holding the interest of all those who attend, which means that Miss Weber and her assisting artists enjoy sold out houses for a great number of the concerts.

Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano; Thomas McGranahan, tenor, were the soloists. Miss Weber, Carl Heckner, violin, and Carl Klammssteiner, 'cello, gave most excellent renditions of the orchestra numbers, including the overture and some of the waltzes and marches that are loved and enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Warner was a delightful "Arline," and she sang the aria, "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," with great beauty of voice and fine display of artistry. A repetition was demanded and graciously granted.

Mr. McGranahan left nothing to be desired, for he sang the two solos with consummate artistry, and also in the duet with Mrs. Warner, their beautiful voices were heard with splendid effects.

The opera next Sunday will be the "Mikado." The soloists are Louise Harrison Slade, contralto, and Dr. William Carver Williams, basso.

H. W. P.

— — — — —

American Conservatory—Mr. E. Warren K. Howe, the well-known vocal artist, teacher and conductor, has been engaged by the American Conservatory as teacher of the voice for the coming season.

— — — — —

Iredale—Bertha Smart Iredale will present her pupils in concert at Ogden Park Assembly Hall on Friday evening, April 23.

LAKE VIEW MUSICAL SOCIETY

The concert given by active members of the Lake View Musical Society, assisted by Cecil Fanning and H. B. Turpin, visiting artists, was one of the most charming of the entire season.

The afternoon opened with the Schytte piano "Concerto," played with much vigor by Mrs. Gertrude B. Bartlett, accompanied on a second piano by Mrs. Clare Osborne-Reed.

Mrs. Bartlett has musicianship and style and the number was given with much effect.

Following this Miss Amy Emerson Niell played the Ernst "Hungarian Airs" for violin very well and Miss Helen Edith Peterson delighted the audience with her splendid singing.

Miss Peterson has a contralto voice of exceptional range and quality, and was remarkably successful in all her songs, excelling particularly in "Night and Dawn," by Liddle.

The second part of the program was given over entirely to Mr. Fanning and the treat thus afforded was an exceptional one. Mr. Fanning has been a superb artist for a long time, but since heard here last has grown and broadened in several ways. His voice is richer and fuller than ever and his interpretative art has expanded still more.

Schubert, Schumann, Liszt and Loewe was the magnificent quartet of composers represented in the first group and right royally did Mr. Fanning interpret them. "Die Lorelei" (Liszt) has seldom been read with more authority or so much of vocal beauty and Lowe's "Erlkoenig" was an absolute revelation. In its interpretation Mr. Fanning was the superb artist in every possible meaning of that phrase. Preceding this, Mr. Turpin gave so beautiful an explanatory preamble that he was rewarded with a salvo of applause and throughout the program, both for his fine explanations and his masterly accompaniment, he was acclaimed equally with Mr. Fanning as a star of the first magnitude.

In the second group Mr. Fanning created a sensation with some old French songs, with action, proving himself a skillful and graceful actor as well as a charming singer, adding also Irish songs in inimitable style and old English comiques which completed the capture of every auditor.

An encore at this point was "Mammy's Song" (Ware) and later Mr. Fanning gave the old "Kerry Dance," both of these being done in inimitable style.

The third group opened with a new musical setting of Shelley's "Love's Philosophy," composed by Miss Henriette Weber, who at this time assisted at the piano.

Miss Weber has evolved a vocal line at once suave and jubilant and this she has surrounded with an accompaniment which is characteristic and at the same time wholly claviermassig.

The new song met with great success and Miss Weber and Mr. Fanning had to respond to enthusiastic recalls.

"The Sands of Dee" (Clay) and "Lights in Fishing Boats at Sea" (Gustave Ferrari) showed serious phases of Mr. Fanning's art, but just as convincing as the gentler, gayer or more humorous ones, and the program ended with a distinctly brilliant reading of Walthew's "May Day." C. E. W.

RUSSELL SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND DRAMATIC ART

On Monday night, April 5, the faculty of the Russell School, located at Seventy-fifth street and Vincennes road, gave a concert at Auburn Park Methodist Episcopal Church and again proved, if proof were needed, that the Russell School has a strong faculty and one that stands for the best things in the musical world. Mr. L. Douglas Russell, president and director of the school, is to be congratulated that he has chosen such able associates and, as has been stated before in these columns, he is reaping his reward by "these scenes of much activity." That the school has recently incorporated must mean that the school promises to be a permanent success. Our best wishes that this may prove true. Numerous student recitals in the past have attested the high grade of teaching done at the school, and on Monday night the teachers who participated again demonstrated their added ability to perform in a pleasing and highly artistic manner. The splendid audiences that come out to hear these recitals speak volumes for the esteem in which the school is held and incidentally reflect credit upon the community for its discrimination in matters musical.

Mr. Irving O. Wyckoff, organist, opened and closed the program, as well as appearing in a middle group, and proved by his work that he is an organist to demand consideration. This is the first time he has had an organ to enable him to appear on a program since his affiliation with the school. He played with an air of authority, displaying poise, thorough technic and a broad view musically in his interpretations. His numbers embraced such a wide scope, from full organ to echo, that the writer was not surprised to hear from a known piano teacher, "I never knew that piano pieces could be played like that on an organ." By his well-balanced registrations he proved himself to be artistic, and by his technic he proved himself to be an artist. "Jubilate Deo" (Silver), "En bateau" (Debussy) and "Pastorale, Sonata I" (Guilmant) comprised the first group. For his second appearance he chose "Scherzo," sonata in E flat (Buck), "Spring Song," from the south (Lemare) and "Will o' the Wisp" (Nevin). The program closed with his playing of Lemare's "March Heroique."

Perhaps from its character, the second group pleased the audience best, Buck's "Scherzo" and "Will o' the Wisp" of Nevin being especially appealing. Mr. Wyckoff also teaches piano at the Russell School and has a class in keyboard harmony and theory.

Of the other teachers who appeared, Miss Louise Cozad and Miss Mary Hester Cleary are both well known and have appeared so often and with such uniform credit to themselves and to the school that to merely mention their names implies artistry.

In each of her numbers Miss Cleary displayed great talent and won enthusiastic applause.

Miss Cozad played two "Etudes," Op. 25, No. 1, and Op. 19, No. 5, by Chopin; "Hungarian Dance No. 5" and "Intermezzo," Op. 117, No. 2, Brahms; also "Prelude," A Minor, and "Golly Wog's Cake Walk," by Debussy. To this writer's mind the Debussy numbers were particularly interesting and especially well done.

No small amount of disappointment was manifested by the audience because Mr. Russell was not on the program. This is the first one of the concerts where his rich voice has not been heard, and although he doubtless found the program was too long to permit him to appear, he will not leave himself off future programs if he cares to please the public. Of course, it quite takes up an evening to give four or five such artists an adequate hearing. Auburn Park and vicinity should feel proud of such an institution as the Russell School of Music and Dramatic Art. H. C. B.

FRANK OLIN THOMPSON

Mr. Frank Olin Thompson, pianist, will give the following program at the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, in Milwaukee, on April 16:

Chaconne Bach-Busoni
Sonata B Minor (without pause)..... Liszt
Lento assai—Allegro energico
Andante Sostenuto—Quasi adagio
Allegro energico—Presto
Andante Sostenuto—Allegro moderato—Lento assai
Waltzes Brahms
Zigeunerweisen (Gypsy Airs)..... Tausig

Levy—The advanced pupils of Mr. Henriot Levy will give a recital on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in Kimball Hall.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT

1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30

The School for Serious Students

SPALDING

People & Events

MRS. HEIZER TELLS OF PLANS TO STANDARDIZE MUSIC OF IOWA

Mrs. Frederick Heizer of Sioux City has the honor to be the very first woman president of the Society of Music Teachers of Iowa. A few minutes' talk with Mrs. Heizer will be most convincing proof of her ability to fulfill this high executive office. Years of faithful service as a teacher and as a promoter of the best in music in Iowa have made Mrs. Heizer most proficient in her profession, a profession which has her whole heart and soul.

Mrs. Heizer is spending a brief time in Des Moines, coming in the interests of the Society of Music Teachers, which will hold its twentieth annual meeting at Waterloo on May 26, 27 and 28.

It was a very progressive and enthusiastic little lady one met at the Hotel Chamberlain yesterday, now outlining some of her plans and telling of her hopes for music in Iowa and now giving interesting bits of Iowa's musical history.

To standardize the music of Iowa—that is one of the things toward which Mrs. Heizer is bending a strong effort, and to that end there will be ample time at the meeting of the association at Waterloo for round table discussions on this subject.

This gives the keynote of the whole meeting as it will be under the guidance of Mrs. Heizer—dignified, free from the sensational or spectacular, but tending toward the educational, toward the development of music in her own state.

Now the twentieth annual gathering of the music teachers of Iowa will be also somewhat of a reunion and all the past presidents, who are living, will be in attendance at the meeting to take part in the discussion on standardizing music in Iowa and the methods to follow in bringing this about. This is the first attempt to standardize music in Iowa and should this convention bring it about much of Iowa's future progress in music will date from the Waterloo convention.

There will be many interesting programs and features of the meeting of the music teachers beside the round table discussions and the important matter of deciding upon the standards for music. A big feature will be the lecture recital by Mrs. Edward MacDowell, widow of America's best known composer.

Another feature of this gathering will be the composite chorus of choir singers from all over the state. It is expected there will be several hundred in the chorus and they will give Gaul's "Holy City."

A permanent membership of 1,000 is the goal toward which Mrs. Heizer is working. The officers feel that with ninety-nine counties to draw from it is not too much to expect a membership of at least ten from each county.

Among the interesting communications that Mrs. Heizer has received from the past presidents who are planning to attend the meeting at Waterloo is one from Dr. A. Rommel, who is and has been for so many years at the head of the music department of Iowa Wesleyan College at Mount Pleasant.

Dr. Rommel tells of the first gathering of Iowa teachers to form an organization. This gathering was held at Cedar Rapids in 1885 and in May of 1886 the meeting was called at Des Moines, but, sad to relate, there had been little or nothing done for the meeting other than engaging the hall and absolutely no publicity given to it, so that only a bare handful was present. Dr. Rommel tells in his letter of those who were interested in the movement calling at the Register office and soliciting their support. By special articles and in many ways the paper awoke and really created the sentiment favoring such an association.

Mrs. Heizer herself has been a member of the leading musical organizations for some time. Since 1900 she has been a member of the National Music Association and in February she attended the sessions of the association and was elected president, she being the only woman member of the body. At home Mrs. Heizer is active as a teacher in the Heizer School of Music which is under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Heizer. Their son Frederick Heizer, Jr., well known among younger violinists, has appeared in Des Moines in concert work.

The officers of the state association besides Mrs. Heizer are James P. Moorhead of Fairfield, vice president; Mrs. Hilda M. Matthey of Davenport, secretary-treasurer. The executive committee includes Charles F. Grade of Muscatine and C. A. Fullerton of Cedar Falls. The nominating committee includes Charles Neff of Fayette, A. C. Keline of Dubuque and Ernest A. Leo of Cedar Rapids.—Des Moines Register.

A LETTER FROM MR. DE LAMARTER

Dear Mr. Watt: As there seems to be some misapprehension concerning the solo members of Fourth Presbyterian Church choir, will you kindly state that we do not feature quartet work more than trio, quintet and sextet? The principals of this season have been Cora Zimmerling Libberton and Rubee Wilson De Lamarter, sopranos; Emily Louise Stretch, contralto; Sherman B. Orwig, tenor; Lemuel Kilby, baritone, and J. Herbert Libberton, deep-sea-going bass.

Yours cordially,

ERIC DE LAMARTER,
Organist and Director of Music.

ILLNESS OF HARRISON WILD

The illness of Harrison Wild, who was stricken with appendicitis late last week, was the cause of great concern to all Chicago musicians but, after a successful operation, Mr. Wild is reported to be progressing very favorably toward health. He has the sympathy of all Chicago musicians, as well as their ardent good wishes.

Wynekoop—Mrs. Gilbert H. Wynekoop, contralto, will be soloist at the annual dinner dance, given by the Chicago Delta Upsilon Club, on Friday evening, April 16, in the Florentine Room of the Congress Hotel, and will also act as one of the patronesses for the occasion. Violet Martens Hughes will act as accompanist for Mrs. Wynekoop.

WARREN PROCTOR, TENOR, AT CEDAR FALLS, IOWA

Some press comment:

The enthusiastic manner in which Warren Proctor was received by the audience at the Presbyterian Church spoke well of his artistry.

His many friends among the music loving public of Cedar Falls were glad for another chance to hear him and their presence and numerous encores were certainly a splendid tribute to the musical ability of their fellow townsman. His fine tenor voice which has been heard often in this city has been improved wonderfully as a result of his past few years of study and training and now has a smoothness and flexibility that is unusually pleasing.

Mr. Proctor opened the program with a recitative and aria from the oratorio "Elijah," "If With All You Hearts." This number brought out the range and tonal qualities of his voice in splendid shape and showed that he possesses a nicely modulated voice over which he has splendid control.

Among the group of songs in the German, which formed the second number on the program, the numbers "Wohin" and "Unge duld," by Schubert, and "Lehn' deine Wang' und meine Wang'" were the best received. The first was sung in a lighter vein and was enthusiastically applauded. "When the Golden Sun Sinks in the West," sung as an encore after this group, was one of the most pleasing numbers of the entire program.

"La Tarentella," an Italian song, appeared to be the best received number of the group of songs composing the fourth number of the program. "My Rose," by Lester, "Mary Jane," by Clark, and "Possession," by Clough-Leigher, were also very well received.

Among the closing group of songs, "Matinata," by Leoncavallo, and "In Italy," by Boyd, were the best received by the audience.

Although the program was lengthy the artist was given the best attention and at its close all seemed loath to leave. Mr. Proctor's last number, "In Italy," was so pleasing that he was recalled and repeated it.

Mr. George Samson, Jr., accompanied Mr. Proctor, which added greatly to the enjoyment of the program.—Cedar Falls Record.

The recital given by Mr. Warren Proctor, Tuesday evening, was an event of personal as well as musical interest to the community in that it marked the return of one who had been a prime favorite in college and town, not only because of his vocal gift, but quite as much by reason of his frank kindness and big heartedness, which won for him an unusually large circle of friends.

Since leaving college Mr. Proctor has been following musical lines entirely and this present season has brought him gratifying recognition in Chicago. The writer had the pleasure of hearing him in his initial appearance with the Apollo Club of Chicago, in Cowan's "The Veil" on February 22; on that occasion Mr. Proctor made a splendid appearance, singing with a dignity and poise and tonal beauty that won the approbation of both laymen and critics.

Mr. Proctor's voice is a pure tenor of a remarkably appealing quality, a type of voice that stirs the heart and at once finds popular favor. The masses will "like to hear" Mr. Proctor sing without knowing just why. It is gratifying to feel that with this rare native gift, the singer realizes the necessity of perfecting every side of his art and is working sincerely toward that end. Therefore he has reason to hope to earn for himself the right to the much abused title, "artist."

Mr. Proctor's third group was decidedly lighter. He chose a rather difficult number for opening—Mendelssohn's "If With All You Hearts You Truly Seek Me."

Mr. Proctor's second offering, a German group, was excellently chosen and beautifully sung. The two Schubert numbers, "Wohin" and "Unge duld," deserve especial mention. They were sung with excellent diction and fine style.

Mr. Proctor's third group was decidedly lighter in vein, and presented entirely offerings of Chicago composers, with the exception of the Clough-Leigher song. The manuscript song, Boyd's "La Tarentella," seemed to give the greatest pleasure to the audience.

Mr. Proctor gave fine account of himself in his operatic offering—the beautiful tenor aria from Paggiacci—which brought out all the best color of the voice and was given with fine dramatic feeling. The last group was composed of four attractive songs. Cadman's "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," was one of the most satisfying moments of the evening and Boyd's "In Italy" was repeated. Other encores were "I Hear You Calling Me" and MacDermid's "If I Knew You and You Knew Me."—II. Case in The College Eye, Cedar Falls, Ia.—(Advertisement.)

LOUISE LE BARON

Some recent comment on the work of Miss Louise LeBaron, contralto, who has been singing in the west with great success:

Miss LeBaron sang several operatic selections, in which she showed to excellent advantage the fine qualities of a rich contralto voice and artistic training. Her long experience in grand opera gives her renditions an authoritative ring and are delivered with great dramatic ability. She possesses also a wide range of voice, which permitted her to sing with ease the Venusberg scene from "Tannhauser," with Mr. Wheatley. Miss LeBaron also sang a group of lighter numbers, which gave a wide scope of interpretation. The "Paysage," by Hahn, was sympathetic, and delivered with artistic finish. "In the Harem," by Bantock, there was dramatic feeling and "Love Is the Wind," by MacFayden, brought a brilliant climax to the group.—Omaha World-Herald.

In the two arias, "Voce di Donna" (Ponchielli) and "Voi Lo Sapete" (Mascagni), Miss LeBaron found opportunity in their pretentiousness to display the great range and smoothness of her beautiful contralto voice. Granting a popular request, the ever pleasing Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman" was substituted for the Venusberg scene from Wagner's opera, "Tannhauser." The applause which followed made the change well justified. The Puccini aria, "Che Gelida Manina," Mr. Wheatley showed his hearers great flexibility of voice and purity of intonation. Miss LeBaron was at her best in the aria from "Le Prophete" (Meyerbeer) and gave the number with abandon and freedom from restraint that was very satisfying.—Des Moines Register and Leader.

On the third of last December Miss Louise LeBaron and Mr. Walter Wheatley appeared at the Temple Theater in a joint operatic recital. The impression they made on audience made up largely of musicians was profound. Last night the same singers appeared to give by request a repetition of their former recital. The fame of that program filled the house with a more fashionable audience than the Temple often holds. The success of the first recital was more than repeated. In order to give greater variety the program was considerably changed, only the Strauss serenade, the Venusberg scene from "Tannhauser," the prison scene from "Le Prophete" and the scene from "Aida" being repeated. As before, Mr. Wheatley's lyric tenor gave great pleasure, while Miss LeBaron's presence and her rich, dramatic and abundant mezzo contralto left nothing to be desired. As the recital progressed the enthusiasm of the audience grew until recalls and encores became the rule after every song.—Nebraska State Journal.

Miss LeBaron has a charming stage presence and is endowed both vocally and temperamentally for operatic work. "Habenera" from "Carmen" was given in such fascinating style it made one long for costumes and scenery to make the setting more effective. A double recall followed this number. Mr. Wheatley added to his laurels already won and demonstrated that a tenor singer has a strong hold upon an audience. His conceptions are highly artistic and always marked with sincerity.—Lincoln Daily Star.

Miss LeBaron has appeared in Des Moines twice before in opera and will be remembered by her many admirers. She is personally very attractive and her rich contralto with its splendid range and her fine sense of dramatic value make her one of the most popular of our young contraltos.

Miss LeBaron's most pretentious number was the aria, "Voce di Donna" from "La Gioconda." Her voice filled the Auditorium which seemed too small to encircle its power and beauty. "In the Harem," by Bantock, was a lovely number in her English group.—Des Moines Capital. (Advertisement.)

EDWARD EHRHARDT

Some recent press comment:

As his first number, Mr. Ehrhardt played a Chopin "Nocturne" which he interpreted beautifully. Two MacDowell number compositions were played with brilliancy. His last group included Schumann's "Nachstueck," the "Marche Mignon," by Poldini, and the "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 6," by Liszt. Mr. Ehrhardt also gave Signor Aresoni good support by his accompaniments.—Quincy Whig.

Mr. Ehrhardt played a varied suite of piano solos also, ranging from Schumann's wondrously sweet "Nachstueck" to a Liszt "Hungarian Rhapsody." He showed the greatest versatility and went through the entire gamut of emotions as expressed in piano music with an equal understanding of every mood apparently. He made good music out of a Chopin "Nocturne," and one who can do that is a piano player worth while.—Quincy Daily Journal. (Advertisement.)

C. W. Best Artists' Series

Season 1915-1916

The C. W. Best Artists' Series of the season 1915-16 is composed of three companies, made up of the following artists:

Antonio Sala, Spanish violoncellist to his Majesty King Alphonso, through whom he is exempt from military service, has been declared by competent authorities in Paris to be one of the finest cellists in the world, one well known critic not hesitating to declare him the peer of Casals.

He gave his first concert at the age of eight, played for the court at eleven, toured Spain at twelve. At thirteen he won first prize at the Barcelona Conservatory, of which he is a graduate. In 1911 he was soloist at the Coronation concert. He spent five years in Paris and in touring France, and was in South America on a five months' concert tour before coming to the United States, where he is to begin his second successful season.

Miss Mignonne Meeker, American coloratura soprano, is able, with purity of tone and power, through her splendid range of voice, to sing with perfect ease two and one-half tones above high C. Her range is four octaves.

Gifted with a glorious voice, for her special preparation in diction, repertoire and coaching, she acknowledges her indebtedness to the eminent teacher, J. Courtland Cooper of Chicago, teacher of the royal families in Berlin, as well as of George Hamlin, Francis MacLennan, and others.

Miss Lois Brown, the young American pianist, has just returned from five years spent in Berlin. For two seasons she toured Germany, where she appeared with the principal orchestras. At the beginning of the present season Miss Brown was booked to appear with the Symphony Orchestras of Berlin, Frankfurt-on-Main, and many other European cities.

Miss Brown has a tremendous technic and a splendid touch, and this combined with a thorough understanding and sympathetic spirit makes it a pleasure to listen to her.

Mrs. Fenetta Sargent Haskell, dramatic reader, who has been asked to give George Middleton's play, "Nowadays," at the National Speech Arts Association in San Francisco in June, and to give a week of evenings at Chautauqua, New York, in August, has been enthusiastically received in the leading cities and countries of the world.

She has appeared in recital in New York, Washington, New Orleans, Chicago, City of Mexico, in England, Scotland, Cuba and in nearly every city of any size, from Maine to California, and from Florida to Canada.

Her magnetic personality, her rich, resonant voice, her ability to respond to every shade of feeling in the many characters she interprets and impersonates, always meet with instant appreciation. Her repertoire includes more than twenty diversified programs.

Signor Alberto Salvi, Venetian harpist, was educated in the Naples Conservatory, where he completed an eight years' course in five years, winning first prize.

His harp playing is a revelation. Artists, critics and musicians generally are amazed at the power, brilliancy, tone quality, finesse and artistic temperament displayed. This is his second successful season in the United States, he having been heard on a Pacific coast tour last year.

Miss Marguerite Austin, English violinist, begins her fifth successful season with the C. W. Best Artists' Series, and is presented without reserve, as one of the leading woman violinists of today. Her early years were spent in South Africa, she returning to England, where she received the L. R. A. M. diploma from the Royal Academy in London. Afterwards she was with Caesar Thomson in Brussels for three years, and has returned to Europe every summer for concert work in Belgium, Holland and England.

Her playing is mature, forceful, authoritative; her personality appealing and sympathetic.

Miss Florence Hedstrum, American dramatic soprano, has risen to her position in the concert field through the wonderful power of her beautiful voice, and her fine musical equipment. For her thorough training she gives much credit to the distinguished Chicago tenor, William Claire Hall, himself a pupil of Jean de Reszke and Oscar Seagle. Miss Hedstrum's technical finish is faultless, and her interpretations beautiful and inspiring; she possesses those indefinable qualities of the true artist which endow her singing with an irresistible power over her audiences.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK IN SAN FRANCISCO

Mme. Schumann-Heink has been singing with even more than usual success in California, an especially notable occasion being her appearance at Festival Hall at the Exposition, on March 27, when she gave the following characteristic program:

ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK

PART I

Die Allmacht Franz Schubert
Die Forelle Franz Schubert
Wiegenlied Johannes Brahms
Spinnerliedchen (From Reimann Collection, 17th Century)
Frühlingszeit Reinhold Becker

PART II

Two Violin Solos
Miss Charlotte Buisseret

PART III

Irish Folk Song Arthur Foote
Down in the Forest London Ronald
A Child's Prayer T. Harold
Agnus Dei G. Bizet
Mme. Schumann-Heink Miss Buisseret
Mrs. Ross Mr. Sabin

MARGARET MULFORD SINGS IN DETROIT

Miss Margaret Mulford, contralto, scored a fine success with the following program at the Twentieth Century Club in Detroit on last Tuesday evening:

Ah! rendimi (Mitrane—1689) Rossi
Pur dicesti (1667-1740) Lotti
La charmante Marguerite Old French
All thro the Night Old Welsh
Aufenthalt Schubert
Was ist Sylvia Schubert
O mochtest du einmal noch singen Tschaikowsky
Wiegenlied Tschaikowsky
Mit ein Wasserlilie Grieg
O Wounded Bird Saar
Hindu Slumber Song Ware
The Sweet o' the Year Salter
Contentment Salter
Thou Art to Me Chadwick

Miss Mulford sang also at the Port Huron Baptist Church on Easter, her numbers being "The Cross" (Ware) and "The Lord Is Risen," from Sullivan's "Light of the World."

Heizer—Mr. Otto Meyer, violinist, and Marie Ten Broeck, pianist, gave a recital at the Heizer School of Music in Sioux City, Iowa, on March 1.

Bartholomew—Mr. H. B. Bartholomew, teacher of piano, is now located at 622 Fine Arts Building.

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA TOUR

Following are some of the touring dates of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra:

April 16—Rochester, Minn.
April 17—La Crosse, Wis.
April 18—Chicago, Ill.
April 19—La Crosse, Wis.
April 20—Cedar Falls, Iowa.
April 21—Des Moines, Iowa.
April 22—Des Moines, Iowa.
April 23—Kirkville, Mo.
April 24—Brookfield, Mo.
April 25—Fall City, Neb.
April 26—Topeka, Kan.
April 27—Topeka, Kan.
April 28—Muskogee, Okla.
April 29—Emporia, Kan.
April 30—Newton, Kan.
May 1—Hutchison, Kan.
May 2—Edmond, Okla.
May 3—Fort Scott, Kan.
May 4—Chanute, Kan.
May 5—Lawrence, Kan.
May 6—Sedalia, Mo.
May 7—Centralia, Ill.
May 8—Decatur, Ill.
May 9—Urbana, Ill.
May 11—Kalamazoo, Mich.
May 12—Mt. Pleasant, Mich.
May 13—Grand Rapids, Mich.
May 14—Benton Harbor, Mich.
May 15—Madison, Wis.
May 17—South Bend, Ind.
May 18—Anderson, Ind.
May 19—LaFayette, Ind.
May 20—Charleston, Ill. (matinee).
May 20—Terre Haute, Ind. (evening).
May 21—Jacksonville, Ill.
May 22—Rock Island, Ill.
May 24—Dubuque, Iowa.
May 25—Clinton, Iowa.
May 26—Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
May 27—Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
May 28—Webster City, Iowa.
May 28—Fort Dodge, Iowa (evening).
May 30—Aberdeen, S. Dak.
May 31—Aberdeen, S. Dak.

ZOELLNER QUARTET GIVES FINE RECITAL

The Zoellner String Quartet, which appeared last night at Assembly Hall under the local management of Fred C. Graham, gave a recital of chamber music that was appreciated by the thousands of persons present. The gifted artists are not strangers to the city and it is worthy of note that their appearance on this occasion brought more who understood and applauded than upon the visit of the quartet last year.

None but the most captious could pick flaws in the work of the players, comprising father, daughter and two sons. Antoinette Zoellner is a splendid first violin, her brother, Amandus, plays second violin, the father, Joseph Zoellner, Sr., the viola, and his son, Joseph, the 'cello.

With excellent interpretation the opening number, the Beethoven quartet, was given, the artistic taste and execution being particularly emphasized in the third movement. The Rubinstein "Music of the Spheres" was a favorite and the big Glazounow suite, which was the finale of the set program, called forth much applause.—Salt Lake City Tribune.—(Advertisement.)

Roney—Henry B. Roney recently lectured at Zion City, his topic in the afternoon (to children) being "The Great Composers," and in the evening, "Boys; From Cradle to Men." He was assisted by his talented contralto pupil, Master Milton Campbell, who sang "The Two Grenadiers" (Schumann), "Invictus" (Huhn), "Fear Not Ye" (Buck), "Hear My Cry" (Wooler), and the "Bedouin Love Song" (Pinsutti).

WALTER DIEDERICH

Mr. Walter Diederich is now director of the Temple Choral Society in Logansport, the Choral Society in Kentland, and the Monticello (Ind.) Choral Society, besides teaching in both Chicago and Logansport.

The Monticello Society will present "Rose Maiden" at the end of this month, with Mr. Diederich directing and singing the tenor solos. Miss Hazel Huntley will sing the alto solos and Mr. John Rankl those assigned to bass.

Some recent press comment follows:

Mr. Diederich captured his audience with his rich tenor voice. The favorites of the classics being "Nymphs and Shepherds," Purcell, and "Hark! Hark! the Lark," Schubert.

Mr. Diederich in his finale group was particularly good in his selections, "The Wind Speaks," Grant-Schaffer, and "The Nightingale," Ward-Stephens, the latter being the gem of vocal numbers of the evening. In this number the perfect tone of Mr. Diederich's voice was shown unmistakably.—Logansport (Ind.) Pharos-Reporter.

WALTER DIEDERICH

Mr. Diederich has a voice of unusual beauty. His tones are rich and musical, his solos were thoroughly enjoyed.—Brook (Ind.) Reporter.

Mr. Diederich has a splendid tenor voice. His numbers were well received.—Newton County Enterprise, Kentland, Ind.

Mr. Diederich's rich tenor voice is a delight to the music lover. His selections were admirably adapted to the quality of his voice. A notable feature in his singing was his ease and naturalness. His full tenor voice was beautifully produced and excellent were the effects gained in Handel's "Where'er You Walk."—Journal-Tribune, Logansport, Ind. (Advertisement.)

Collins J. Brock—Mr. Collins J. Brock returned Monday of this week from a business and pleasure trip to Delaware and Columbus, Ohio.

Hartman—Miss Lucy J. Hartman has been engaged to sing "The Messiah" at the spring festival to be given at Angola, Ind., on May 12.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

WILLIAM JOHN HALL

William John Hall presented his students in the following program at the Musical Art Building in St. Louis last week, assisted by Ava Yeargain, pianist:

April Morn	Misses Doorley and Fabian	Batten
Thoughts	Stickles
Lorraine	Clutsam
Caro Mio Ben	Miss Culling
At Dawning	Cadman
La Donna e Mobile	Verdi
Mr. Sperandeo
Thou Blue Eyed Violet	Junker
Sadness	D'Hardelot
Miss Hazeltine
A Question	Hawley
Thy Remembrance	Ruifrok
A Request	Woodforde-Finden
Miss Maus
A Song of Spring	Neidlinger
If I Were a Rose	M. Messelberg
Miss Garvey
Second Arabesque	Debussy
Prelude	Chopin
Miss Yeargain
The Night Has a Thousand Eyes	Townsend
Rose Immortal	Saar
Out of the Mist	Sanderson
Miss Mehr
The Secret	Scott
Mr. Sale
Waltz Song	Arditi
Miss O'Connell
Cavatina, "Gli Ugonotti"	Meyerbeer
Miss Junker
Japanese Love Song	Kroeger
My Garden	Seiler
Spring Song	Whelpley
Miss Fabian
O'er the Hills	Bauer
For You	Geehl
Mr. Moir
Dawn O'er the Hills	Rhode
Waltz Song	Batten
Miss Doorley

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Miss Myra Reed, a pupil of Marceian Thalberg, played the following piano program at the Cincinnati Conservatory on April 8:

Fantaisie Chromatique et Fugue	Bach
Sonata, A. Major	Scarlatti
Sonata, Op. 110	Beethoven
Moderato cantabile molto espressivo
Molto allegro
Adagio ma non troppo
Fuga

Six Etudes, Nos. 13, 16, 17, 19, 21, 24	Chopin
Gnomenreigen	Liszt
Campanella	Liszt

The Annual Holy Week Recital of Church Music by the choir of the Sacred Heart Church, Camp Washington, under the direction of Harold Becket Gibbs, was given at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music on March 31, the program being as follows:

Confitebor tibi Domine (Psalm) (Tone VIII)
The Lord Is My Shepherd (Psalm) (Tone II)
Tantum ergo (hymn) (Mode III)
O Merciful Creator, Hear (hymn) (Mode I)
Preface and Sanctus (Mode X)
Mr. Pancras Shields
Ave Maria (Mode VIII)
Inviolata (Mode VI)
Master John Mangold

Missa Nona	Rev. Michael Haller, 1854
O Sacrum Convivium	Farrant, 1530-1580
Adoremus	Gibbons, 1583-1625
Perfice gressus meus	Attwood, 1765-1838
Missa "Lauda Sion"	Palestrina, 1514-1594
O Saviour Sweet	Bach, 1685-1750
Ave verum	Hoyte, 1844

Tomlinson—Miss Anna M. Tomlinson, who makes a specialty of Normal training for piano teachers, has just issued a book entitled "Forty Lessons on How to Develop the Hand." Miss Tomlinson teaches at the Fine Arts Building, Chicago, and in Berwyn, Ill.

CARL FREDERIC STECKELBERG AS SOLOIST

Mr. Carl Frederic Steckelberg of Lincoln, Neb., contributed one-half of the program on Monday, April 5, of the Matinee Musicale Club, presenting the following numbers:

Sonata	Cesar Franck
Allegro ben moderato
Allegro
Recitative—Fantasia
Allegretto poco mosso
Chanson et Pavane	Couperin-Kreisler
Valse bluette	Auer
Caprice viennois	Kreisler

A full attendance of the club, which numbers some 500 members, was present and evinced its delight by the usual signs. Among other things the Daily Star said as follows:

"Those who had heard the Sonata expected a great deal and were not disappointed, for it was given with even greater artistry than when played by Mr. and Mrs. Steckelberg a short time ago. The sympathy between the violinist and pianist added to the harmonious presentation of the Sonata. Mr. and Mrs. Steckelberg received many congratulations upon their able presentation of this noted work. The other violin numbers were in a lighter vein and reflected the spirit of the spring time. They were given with exquisite charm and called forth generous applause." (Advertisement.)

ELLMER ZOLLER'S MANY APPEARANCES

Ellmer Zoller's appearances this season as pianist for Amy Grant's opera recitals have been and are to be as follows:

October 4—"Tristan and Isolde."
October 11—"Lohengrin."
October 18—"Rheingold."
October 25—"Walkure."
November 1—"Siegfried."
November 8—"Götterdämmerung."
November 15—"Tannhäuser."
November 22—"Parsifal."
November 29—"L'Amore dei Tre Re."
December 6—"Wilhelm Tell."
December 13—"Louise."
December 20—"Julien."
December 27—"Euryanthe."
January 17—"Salome."
January 24—"Nibelungen Ring."
February 7—"Nibelungen Ring."
February 28—"Tannhäuser."
March 14—"Jewels of the Madonna."
March 28—"Parsifal."
April 11—"Julien."
April 25—"Pelleas and Melisande."
May 9—Short poems with music.
May 23—Short poems with music.

"THE CREATION" AT THE NEW FIRST CHURCH

Mr. H. Augustine Smith will present "The Creation" at the New First Congregational Church on April 25, 29 and 30 with the following musical forces:

New First Church vested choirs of 200 singers: The Choral Union, the Treble Clef Choir, the Boy Choir, the Cecilian Choir, the Carol Choir and Marie Sidenius Zandt, soprano; Warren Proctor and Edward Walker, tenors; Gustaf Holmquist, William Carver Williams, Howard E. Preston, basses; Alice R. Deal, organist; H. Augustine Smith, director.

Mixer—Mr. Charles Mixer, violinist, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, will play for the Nicholas Senn High School entertainment Thursday evening, April 22, at 8.

BURTON TENOR

Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff

CLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch

Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER

CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT

DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE

DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard

Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon

CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw

Violinist Power-Meyer Conservatory WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn

Concert BARITONE
Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG

Baritone TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC

(Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA SMITH

CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker

CONTRALTO
59 E. Van Buren St. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS

Pupils Concert Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK

CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—In Haydn Choral Society for the California trip, few low alto and deep bass voices. Apply to H. W. Owens, 1516 Mallery Building.

TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

TIME TO RENT in fine Auditorium Studios; connection with good school if desired. Address S. Music News.

FOR SALE Mason & Hamlin
GRAND PIANO
Style BB. In splendid condition. An excellent bargain. HENRIETTE WEBER, 1900 LINCOLN AVENUE.
Phone Diversey 3185

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language

Faculty of 28 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address

PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

SOPRANO CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE WARNER

SOPRANO
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
11 Lakeside Place

Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE - PIANO
Gurn Studios Fine Arts Building

DAN S. DENTON

TENOR
OPERA CONCERT—RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

The Elderly Person

"Yes," said the Credit Man, "I think there is a lot of truth in what you have been saying, but you will find it a dubious undertaking to put it into practice. I know you are not preaching it because you intend to practice it. You want some one else to do that, and that one and his followers must have a lot of imagination in stock. If some wealthy men who want to do something for the next generation would make some investments in men, it nearly goes without saying that they would have profitable results. But, like all other investments, this one needs a lot of watching. Just as you say, there are any number of promising young chaps at your right and left hand, who just need a good chance to make some big successes. If a man were to set aside a sum and use it and its accretions for the purpose of giving these boys their chance he might find it a money-making proposition. If he took a little time he could discover no end of men trying to get an independent foothold with a proposition, as we call it, that they are enthusiastic about, but which they cannot swing because of lack of capital. A good business man could tell whether the idea was feasible, and sometimes whether it was practical, but I would think that he had better leave out his judgment on that. Somehow that hard-headed fact puts a damper on a great deal of earnest undertaking and too often kills an ambition which cannot fully demonstrate its ideal. But if a man could see possibilities and then loan the chap a certain sum of money and tell him he expected it to be paid back with interest in due time, but that he would never regret or upbraid if he did not get it back at all, it could easily put a spur in a feasible idea and ride it to practical results."

"No," said the Elderly Person, "you don't quite get my point of view. There are plenty of men who are ready to help a man who has schemes and inventions, and who will back up some very visionary designs with hard cash. They will put money into patents on everything from needles to flying machines. And they do big, notable things, like arctic and African exploration expeditions. But these undertakings have a speculative value. If they turn out well there are mints of money in them and to make a big pile of money has been the goal of every business man for a long, long time. My idea is not speculative, except as all ideals are speculative in our desire that they turn out well. All about are young fellows of promise, many of them square pegs in round holes, but trying to do their duty in that state of life in which it has pleased God to call them, as the catechism says. They have a divine dissatisfaction with the restriction of their powers and while they do not disdain the present task as a stepping stone to higher things, they can't help seeing that there is a shorter way across lots if they had anything to work with. In a stock broker's office the other day, a gentleman came in and gave the manager a check and told him to play with it. By this he meant to use his tips and experience and buy or sell some shares of stock whenever there was a fair show of profit either way, and they would divide the winnings. But both men knew that if it was all lost by the queer turns of the stock market there would be no complaint. Right then I thought how much more might have been accomplished if the inventor had looked up one of these eager chaps and put him in the way of getting a start. He would have laughed at me if I had suggested his giving the lad a sum of money to play with, but I believe he would have had better security for a return in the long run. Another man came in and ordered the purchase of some stocks which were much depressed. These he told me he would put in his strong box and forget all about. There was so much possibility in them, he said, that he could take a chance, and if they didn't make good, he would not be a great loser. Now, I would have him buy an interest in some bright young chap in the same way, by putting up something he could afford to lose, and forgetting all about it while the scheme worked itself out for good or ill. This man told me he had a lot of securities in his box that made him wonder why they were there whenever he listed them. His mining investments, for example—"

"Ah!" interrupted the Lawyer, "there is where I come in. I really don't quite make out why you hang around the bulletin board of a stock broker's office and you need investigating yourself. But you touch a tender spot when you mention mining stock. If you could go through the safety deposit vaults, I am ready to bet that in nearly every box you would find some worthless certificates of hopeful deposits in a hole in the ground. I've heard it said that a great deal more money is put into the ground than is ever taken out of it. Men will turn down all sorts of hopeful inducements to touch outside things, by saying that they need all their ready money to swing their business. But let some spellbinder open up his box of dreams about striking a paying streak, and sooner or later the fascination has another new victim. I asked a client the other day how her mines were working. I had wanted her, some years before, to make a little real estate venture which she said would come about if the mines worked. She laughed and said that never a cent did

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

CLARA BAUR, Foundress, 48th Year

For Catalog, Address MISS BERTHA BAUR, Directress

HIGHLAND AV. and OAK ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO

Conducted according to the advanced methods of European Conservatories. A Faculty of International Location Ideal. Residence department with superior an oil well or a mine deliver up from their depths to her. There is something strange, too, about the way we put in our money—"

"So," said the Credit Man, "you've been dipping into the dizzy game. I thought that I was the only easy mark."

"Don't you ever flatter yourself that you have no company," replied the Lawyer. "There was a four-flusher who touched me heartily and I am able to speak from experience. And also from observation. What surprises me now is the kind of fellows who work out their confidence game, and how they get a following of the sort of men who believe in them. They are apt to be rough and bluff, to have a fine disregard for good language and the amenities of life. They talk glibly and entertainingly of their experiences and we sit back in our chairs at the club and flick off the ashes from our cigars as they spellbind us. We can always find time to go to lunch or a ball game with them, and feel the freshness and breeziness of the stirring life they describe. I can puncture all their yarns now, but they are most plausible while they are going on. A favorite form of dazing us is to relate graphically and with figures, which we blindly accept, how the particular mine is located just outside or on some lead that surely connects with a well known and successful mine. Before we know it we are speaking freely of the lodes and leads and streaks, and what Marcus Daly did when he made his successful finds. We soon know all about the tremendous tonnage and assayings, and then we are in it good and hard. And we beam with the hidden hopes that are in the gleams of that hidden metal. And we see ourselves complacently praising our astuteness as we have visions of the train loads of ingots and bars and ore from our splendid mine roll over the prairies. Then comes a rude shock. The mine strikes water, or does not have enough water. Then we must have smelters and crushers in order to compete successfully. We squirm, but we put up some more money, and try to make our wives understand that the returns are to be delayed a little, but will surely come and she shall be happy yet. Then inevitably comes the tale of mismanagement and we have weighty discussions as to a new superintendent and the reasons for strikes. A little discouraged, we finally have the nerve to go out to our wonderful possessions and have the glamour removed. Wise are we if the one sight of the site is enough. We have our experience and keep the stock certificates to remind us of the presence of gold bricks in the lives of many men."

"Speaking of gold bricks," said the Elderly Person, "I must tell you a good story I heard recently. Two gentlemen fell in with one another on a lengthy railroad trip and in that happy fashion which we have, had a thoroughly good time with one another. They found much in common as to their views on many matters political, religious and as to business. Then they grew nearer and exchanged views as to domestic life, and related incidents as to their children, and as to how other people's children should be brought up. Of course each brought out his wife's picture. Altogether they enjoyed one another. Then they talked of investments and one gentleman told of some of his fortunate ones. The other, who had enjoyed much prosperity, had also had some of the experiences we have been talking of. One souvenir of a gold mine which did not produce had been passed around among the different stockholders as a cynical reminder of what might have been. It was a little brick, plated with gold, and it so happened that our friend had it with him. Thinking to make his story of his unsuccessful venture the more interesting he drew the gold brick from his pocket at an emphatic moment. To his chagrin and horror, the other gentleman hastily excused himself, withdrew abruptly and curtly and would have no more of the narrative or narrator! He had felt himself to be in the presence of a confidence man! Fancy the other fellow's feelings!"

"Your story only goes to show," said the Lawyer, "that the gold bricks are still in the market, and the purveyors of them still active. There is something alluring about this idea of searching for something hidden and I do believe it strikes a chord somewhere in every man's make-up. There is the continual hope that that glittering something is just beyond and each fellow thinks he may be the one to find it and receive the acclaim so dear to every human ear. Only the other day, a good business man of my acquaintance came in to consult me as to an elaborate plan evolved by someone by which all the farms near to a bed of famous ore were to be bought up quietly and a corporation formed, and a plan worked out to develop them into equally good beds of precious ore. The promoters figured it out that if ore was found in one place, it must be equally plentiful on all the adjoining land and seemed to think their idea an absolutely new and novel one. They stated that the farmers owning this land were enthusiastic as to its practical side. Quite naturally, I explained to my client. They would get better prices for possible mining land than they were ever likely to obtain for plain farms. I had quite a time persuading my client to see that if the owners of the mine already in operation had any confidence in the extension of their working veins into the nearby premises they would long ago have gobbled up the property and annexed it. He left my office quite hurt and disappointed, and not altogether convinced of my disinterestedness. You know we always question people who do not share our sudden enthusiasms."

"Oh, yes," said the Credit Man, "we never get over being children when someone pricks our soap bubbles. When people come to you for advice, they always want you to advise them to do what they want to do."

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
612 Fine Arts Building Phone Garfield 5007

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
400 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANIST
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

LITERATURE EXPRESSION

MUSIC

LANGUAGE DRAMATIC ART

Special Features

Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.
All Departments Open Throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional Opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates. STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME.

st progressive Reputation.
ment.

HAVE YOU SEEN

Our New Catalogue of Educational Sheet Music?

Brunette Dansante

Embracing Piano (grades one to ten) vocal and violin and piano compositions by present-day composers.

Pierrot

Why not ask the clerk the next time you're in a music store to show you the H. N. & E. Sheet Music Catalogue, —or let us send you a thematic catalogue.

HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE
PUBLISHERS

30 Irving Place New York City

CLARENCE EDDY IN CALIFORNIA

Assuming that Festival Hall will seat 3,000 persons, there were about 3,500 music lovers who listened yesterday to the first of Clarence Eddy's recitals on the big organ installed in the exposition's fine pavilion.

Naturally we haven't passed through the "Star-Spangled Banner" period of expository existence, and so the program presented by the distinguished American organist was devoted to the exploitation of the orchestral and obvious rather than the purely organ literature for "the king of instruments." The program was popular and pleasing rather than proper to the scope and power of the instrument that thundered under the touch of Clarence Eddy.

There was no Bach, nor Widor, nor Guilmant, nor Dubois on the program, but in their stead there were arrangements and transcriptions and a generous devotion to the music of native writers for the pipe organ such as Ralph Kinder, organist of a Philadelphia church, and Rene L. Becker, organist and choir-master of St. Peter's Cathedral in Belleville, Ill.

Inspired doubtless by the same spirit that animated Wallace Sabin, the official organist, when he selected the "Hallelujah" chorus for the opening number of the organ last Saturday, Clarence Eddy began his series of five daily recitals with a Festival Prelude on the ancient hymn, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." In alternate phrases the organ thundered or whispered in contrasts of broad but effective dynamics. Kinder's contributions to the program were a little evening hymn and a "Jubilate Amen," the latter being a fugue treatment of a theme scarcely worth the ingenuity expended on it. Both numbers were disappointingly trivial. Then followed Dudley Buck's variations on "The Star-Spangled Banner." The announcement of the theme by the full organ drew the huge audience to its feet. There was some embarrassment as to the proper time to sit down and fail nothing of patriotic if not musical respect. The consensus of judgment, however, directed that as soon as the music fell into the minor key it was all right to resume our seats.

Schubert's wonder-song, "Am Meer," arranged for the organ by Eddy, was one of the most popular bits on the program, and in the sudden transitions from lightest to noblest tone, the organ was disclosed as most elastic and responsive. It cannot be said that Schubert's radiantly lovely song of the sea lends itself to the size of a pipe organ's treatment. It is a cameo of a song, with poetic suggestiveness of intimate quality which Robert Franz also found in his sea song, but it does not yield to the processes of infinite enlargement. In which statement I find myself in uncomfortable opposition to Eddy's analytical notes on the program, which asserts that the song does lend itself to pipe organ treatment. It might if one were less fond of the song.

The most popular number given yesterday was Eddy's arrangement of the mournful melody of a Russian boatman, the author of which is among the great unknown. This number had to be repeated, and was played with delicate shading and deep and melancholy charm.—Walter Anthony in San Francisco Chronicle. (Advertisement.)

JEANNE BOYD SONGS

Mr. Warren Proctor sang "In Italy" with great success at his recital in Cedar Falls, Iowa, March 30.

Mr. Artur F. Platz sang "Wind from the South," "La Tarantella" and "In Italy," on the program of the Chicago Artists' Association, given in the Francis I. Room, Congress Hotel, Tuesday afternoon, April 13, the composer at the piano.

Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, assisted by Jeanne M. Boyd, accompanist, will present a program of songs by American composers for the Austin Woman's Club, Monday evening, April 19. Her closing number will be "In Italy," by Jeanne M. Boyd.

At his recital at Central Music Hall, April 27, Mr. Artur F. Platz, tenor, will present, for his closing number, a group of songs by Jeanne M. Boyd, with the composer at the piano. Two new songs will appear in this group: "At Morning," from "A Trio of Spring Songs," and "Canzonetta," both of which are to text by Scharnel Iris. Following these will come "Wind from the South," "La Tarantella" and "In Italy."

CLIOSOPHIC CLUB

The Cliosophic Club enjoyed a feast of good music under the direction of Estelle L. Russell at its meeting Friday, April 11, in the Ivory Room at Mandels.

Miss Russell gave neat and instructive talks on the various composers' works which were very enjoyable.

Miss Bernice Austin gave piano numbers that were well played and she was accorded much applause for her efforts.

Charlotte Beck, Lucille Hayley, David R. Pershing and Glenn Sherwood were the pupils who did their share toward making the afternoon a success and they should be heard from often, for they have splendid voices and they use a fine style in the presentation and interpretation of their songs, reflecting much credit upon themselves and their teacher.

Miss Russell merits much praise for the excellent program arranged and given under her direction.

The program follows:

PART I—GERMAN MUSIC

Chromatic Fantasia	Bach
Miss Bernice Austin
Recitation—Comfort Ye, My People	Handel
Aria—Every Valley	Handel
Where'er You Walk	Handel
Mr. Glenn Sherwood
Who Is Sylvia	Schubert
Ave Maria	Schubert
Miss Charlotte Beck
Hear Me, Ye Winds and Waves	Handel
Two Grenadiers	Schumann
Mr. David R. Pershing
Erlkoenig	Schubert
Impatience	Schubert
Mrs. Lucille Hayley

PART 2—AMERICAN SONGS

Spirit Flower	Campbell-Tipton
At Dawning	Cadman
Glenn Sherwood
Serenade	Liebling
Miss Bernice Austin
The Land of the Sky-blue Water	Cadman
Pink Rose	Bond
Joy of the Morning	Ware
Charlotte Beck
Banjo Song	Homer
Jean	Burleigh
On the Shore	Neidlinger
David R. Pershing
In My Garden	Liddle
Will o' the Wisp	Spross
Birthday	Woodman
Lucille Hayley

BUSH TEMPLE

Friday evening, April 9, Earl Victor Prah, pianist; Rowland E. Leach, violinist, and Edgar Nelson, accompanist, appeared in recital at Bush Temple. The program opened with the Schumann "Sonata," Op. 105, played with much sincerity of purpose, a good understanding and a fine regard for tonal values. The allegretto and vivace found them at their best.

Mr. Prah was heard in the Grieg "Holberg Suite." Mr. Prah has won his place among the young artists before the public. He has a good technical equipment and much musicianship. His rendition of the Grieg number was very effective and musicianly, meriting much praise.

Mr. Nelson played excellent accompaniments for Mr. Leach.

Oak Park—At the First Congregational Church in Oak Park Miss Leonora Allen will sing "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" (Liddle) at the morning service, and in the evening Miss Marie Kaiser of New York will sing "Save Me, O God," by Randegger.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

CHOIR CONTEST

The annual choir contest instituted by the Baton Club of Chicago, five years ago, has become one of the recognized features of our spring activities. These contests are the cause of great and good natured rivalry among many of the chorus choirs in our city, and attract the best efforts of a number of our most successful choirmasters. Large numbers of our choir singers and others interested in this branch of musical endeavor go every year from all parts of the city to hear the various contestants. The good results of this competition are becoming evident with the decided advance in the quality of the singing from year to year. Although the membership in the competing choirs is restricted to amateur voices the standard of their singing has been so raised during the period of these contests that their work compares very favorably with that of our smaller choral societies.

The contest this year will be held at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, La Salle avenue and Locust street, next Monday evening, and is open to the public. The competing choirs and the selections to be sung are given herewith:

LARGE CHOIRS, THIRTY OR OVER

Grace Methodist Episcopal Church—Director, William A. Willett; organist, Miss Grace Grove.
 First Methodist Church of Englewood—Director, Charles W. Leigh; organist, Mrs. M. H. Dugger.
 Immanuel Baptist Church—Director, Dr. W. D. Holt; organist, Miss Carolyn G. Babcock.
 Normal Park Baptist Church—Director, William Griswold Smith; organist, Miss Beulah Lee Taylor.
 Washington Park Congregational Church—Director, Richard Proud; organist, Miss Nellie M. Orr.

CONTEST NUMBERS FOR LARGE GROUP

"Return, O Wanderer" (Berwald); to be sung unaccompanied.

"Grieve Not the Holy Spirit of God" (Stainer).

SMALL CHOIRS, TWENTY-FIVE OR UNDER

Auburn Park Baptist Church—Director, Charles R. Coe; organist, Mrs. Charles R. Coe.
 Auburn Park Methodist Episcopal Church—Director, J. Lakin Porter; organist, Mrs. Harriet Glover Petit.

First Methodist Church of Hammond, Ind.—Director, Clark Leaming; organist, Theodore Moore.

Woolley Memorial Methodist Episcopal—Director, L. Douglas Russell; organist, Miss Gertrude Elphick.

CONTEST NUMBERS FOR SMALL GROUP

"As Torrents in Summer" (Elgar); to be sung unaccompanied.

"Come, My Soul, Thou Must Be Waking" (Buck).

The officers of the Baton Club for this year are John Bissell Trowbridge, president; William Griswold Smith, chairman of program committee, and J. Westerdahl, secretary.

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone of the American Conservatory of Music, will teach in Chicago during July. Mr. Clarke has signed a contract with the Dunbar Chautauqua Bureau to appear in Chautauquas during the month of August, to be assisted by Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, and Earl Victor Prahl. Engagements for these artists have already been booked in Ohio, West Virginia, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri. Mr. Clarke and his party gave a concert at Freeport, Ill., last Wednesday evening, April 7.

CAVE THOMPSON

Cave Thompson, the well-known blind musician of this city, gave a recital of profound interest last Friday evening at the Avondale Methodist Episcopal Church. It was fully apparent from the outset that the artist was one of extraordinary attainments and the sincerity and seriousness of Mr. Thompson's attitude to his art was something that unmistakably told his listeners that he was ready to convince them that each selection had a particular message which he would be able to make clear to them in a most convincing manner rather than aim in a superficial way to dazzle them with his bravura and wonderful brilliance.

While the gigantic "Twelfth Rhapsodie" of Liszt and the most difficult of the MacDowell sonatas, the "Tragic," were superb samples of Mr. Thompson's dynamic and heroic style, in marked contrast to these tremendous works were Grieg's melodious "Es war einmal," the poetic "Prelude in E" by Gliere and the frolicksome shepherd's dance, "Eclogue," of Liszt, in which charming grace and exquisite imagination were profusely manifested.

The audience, determined to resist all antagonism on the part of the artist to give any encores, was finally successful in bringing Mr. Thompson out at the close of the program, on which occasion he favored his clamorous listeners with the bewitching and quaint little polka, "Rococo," by Schuett.

EDNA HIELD JOHNSTON

Mrs. Edna Hield Johnston, organist of the First Methodist Church of Irving Park played the following numbers Easter Sunday:

Resurrection Morn E. Johnston
 Andante from Fifth Symphony Tchaikowsky
 Concluding number from Bach's Passion Music
 Overture Rogers
 O Pardon Me, My God, from Bach's Passion Music
 Pomp and Circumstance Elgar

Spooner—Philip Spooner, the young concert tenor, looked very picturesque in the wedding scene of the pageant "A Night in Poland," given for the benefit of the Polish Relief Fund, held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore, New York, on Thursday night, April 8. Mme. Senbrich and Adamo Didur were the principal artists. Singing in the group with Mr. Spooner were two other well-known artists, Frank Polloch, tenor, and Francis Rogers, baritone, all of whom seemed to enjoy themselves immensely.

SIDNEY ARNO DIETCH

The Girls' Glee Club concert at the Highland Park High School last Saturday evening, under the direction of Sidney Arno Dietch, was the most successful in the history of the school. Miss Suzanna Bolan, pupil of Mr. Dietch, sustained the soprano solo part, and Mr. Harley Horan, tenor, sang an aria from "I Pagliacci" very successfully, receiving two encores. He is a young man with a wonderfully promising voice.

On Palm Sunday evening Mr. Dietch presented Rogers' cantata, "The Man of Nazareth," at Trinity Episcopal Church, Highland Park, the soloists being Edna McDewitt Ross, Louise Harrison Slade, Worth Faulkner and Charles Weeks.

The Highland Park Girls' Glee Club will give a concert for the Women's Club of Lake Forest Thursday evening, assisted by Harley Horan, a pupil of Mr. Dietch.

Mr. Horan sang a group of songs at the Trinity Church parish house on Tuesday evening, with Mr. Dietch at the piano, and on the same evening Miss Suzanna Bolan sang a program for the Lake Forest Club.

Mabel-Helen
ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
 Phone Midway 6536

MRS.
 JOHN
 FREMONT

MURPHY DRAMATIC
 SOPRANO

ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
 5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

MONICA
 GRAHAM
 Columbia School of Music

STULTS WALTER
 SOPRANO ALLEN --
 BASS 303 KIMBALL HALL

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
 61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUFHAUS
 WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - - ST. LOUIS

GIOVANNI

ZENATELLO

SEASON 1915-1916

Management of
 R. E. Johnston
 Commercial Trust
 Building
 Broadway and 41st
 Street, New York

GAY

M
 A
 R
 A

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART
606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Erasm
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Kernmann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements

Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE SLADE

Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE
43 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue CHICAGO

GLADYS HAWKINS

Miss Gladys Hawkins, pianist, has just returned from a recital trip to the east during which she appeared in recitals at Syracuse, Potsdam, Hamilton and at the St. George Hotel in Brooklyn, N. Y.

She was successful in each city visited and the following extracts will show that her endorsement by the press was of the best character:

Her interpretation and technic were splendid and her touch was firm and clear in tone. It would be difficult to select any one number which particularly excelled the others, but the "Andante" movement from the Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 28, and the Chopin "Etude," Op. 25, No. 7, were especially well received. Miss Hawkins responded to an encore at the end of the program.—Potsdam Courier and Freeman.

Miss Gladys Hawkins, an accomplished pianist, who completed her education with Leschetizky in Vienna, made her debut in Syracuse before a good sized audience. In the program she gave she displayed marked versatility as well as finesse in technic and interpretation. The opening number was the Bach-Tausig "Toccata and Fugue" in D Minor, which served as an effective beginning and it was with great brilliance that she concluded the recital with the Liszt "Hungarian Rhapsody," No. 10. The balance of the program was devoted to the writings of Gluck-Sgambati, Dubois, Beethoven, D'Albert and Chopin. She gave a masterly rendering of the Chopin works. She responded to an encore at the end of the program.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

One of the best piano recitals ever heard in Potsdam was that given by Miss Gladys Hawkins last Friday night. Especially in those numbers expressing great delicacy of feeling was Miss Hawkins excellent—she has much natural strength and energy, which mark her work in heavier passages, her octaves being especially good.

On Friday night she added all the requisites needed to make her work a harmonious whole.—Potsdam Herald-Recorder.

Before an audience that filled the entire ballroom of the St. George Hotel last night, Miss Gladys Hawkins gave a program of chamber music of splendid choice in such artistic and effective manner as to mark her for all time as one of America's foremost pianists.

Miss Hawkins is 22 years of age, a native of New York and is a girl of exceptionally interesting personality, a fact which promises to aid her exceedingly in her future career. Her early training was received in America, but for the last three years she has studied in Vienna, part of the time under Theodore Leschetizky, whose able guidance has made of this young girl a mature artist with a technic that in truth nears upon perfection.

Miss Hawkins revealed a deep, magnetic personality and a remarkable dexterity in her interpretation of the very difficult work, "Toccata and Fugue" (Bach-Tausig). Her Chopin "Etude in C Minor" was indescribably effective, and a "Hungarian Rhapsody" (Liszt) proved her brilliancy to be of height almost inconceivable. Her octaves were clear and distinct, her scale passages of perfect purity, her rhythm and interpretation, sound and sweet yet not without strength. Her tone, fully and roundly produced, blending now and then from a crescendo to a diminuendo in a way that bespoke true mastery. A very successful future may safely be predicted for our American pianist.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Two hundred persons enjoyed a musical treat last night in the ballroom of the Hotel St. George, where a young American pianist, Miss Gladys Hawkins, made her first Brooklyn appearance in a private concert under the patronage of a number of well-known women prominent in Brooklyn and elsewhere. With a varied program, containing numbers that would tax the most experienced musician, she acquitted herself in a masterly manner and was often greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Miss Hawkins combines a wonderful technic with a delicacy and perfection of expression which make her equally effective in the brilliant Liszt's "Rhapsodie" and the dreaminess of Chopin's "Nocturnes." One of her numbers was the "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," by Bach-Tausig, which Miss Hawkins played last winter at the American embassy in Vienna at a piano recital for Ambassador and Mrs. Penfield, and for which she won high praise. One of the charms of the pianist's work is her apparent unconsciousness of her audience. From the time she begins to play she loses herself in her music. Being large and strong, with a magnetic physique, Miss Hawkins is untiring, and after the long and difficult performance last night she responded to two encores.

In addition to the numbers mentioned above, Miss Hawkins played Beethoven's "Sonata," Op. 28; the "Melodie" of Gluck-Sgambati; "Eccossaises" (Scotch dances), by Beethoven-D'Albert, and "Les Abeilles," by Dubois, the latter being particularly brilliant and effective.

The second part of the program was devoted to Chopin and Liszt, the "Etude in C Minor" and "Ballade in G Minor" being given in addition to the "Nocturne in G Major" and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie," "Liebestraum" and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" were the encores. Miss Hawkins received many beautiful flowers, and a supper was given in her honor after the performance. She lives in Potsdam, N. Y., and she spent three years in Vienna studying under Leschetizky. She is passing through Brooklyn on her way to her studio in Chicago, after a concert tour in northern New York.—Brooklyn Press. (Advertisement.)

MABEL REITERMAN

Following is some press comment on the work of Miss Mabel Reiterman, accompanist:

It may be noted in connection herewith that Miss Mabel Reiterman, at practically a moment's notice, was accompanist for Mrs. Warner, and was most helpful in rendering all of her offerings so musically meritorious. Miss Reiterman also was accompanist for several other soloists on that program, and in all that she did most clearly evidenced her great ability.—Austinite.

Miss Mabel Reiterman at the piano played for the songs and dances and her accompaniments were beautiful and sympathetic.—Davenport Times.

Miss Mabel Reiterman, the pianist, contributed much to the success of the music by her sympathetically played accompaniments.—Quincy Herald. (Advertisement.)

Pillsbury—Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury presented her pupil, Miss Florence Helene, in studio recital last Friday evening with much success. Miss Helene played works by Beethoven, Mozart, Bach, Liszt, Schytte, Sinding, Olsen, Schutt and Sjogren.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Street

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

After a short season of "The Lilac Domino," in Boston the Andreas Dippel Opera Company went to Worcester, where it appeared at the Worcester Theater, Monday and Tuesday, April 5 and 6.

This opera company followed the Royal Grand Opera Company, which gave Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," Verdi's "Aida" and other standard and favorite operas to houses of fair proportion, everything being considered. Report speaks well of these productions, both histrionically and musically.

The Boston Symphony San Francisco Programs

Programs covering as nearly as possible the entire orchestra literature have been prepared by Dr. Muck, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, for the twelve subscription concerts which the orchestra will give at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition May 14 to May 26 inclusive.

An Interesting New Organ Work

At the fiftieth organ recital by Edwin Arthur Kraft, city organist of Atlanta, Ga., for the Atlanta Music Festival Association a short time ago, "The Persian Suite," by R. Spaulding Stoughton, a young New England organist and composer, was employed.

The note on the program speaks thus:

This interesting suite, which is played for the first time from manuscript, is from the pen of one of the most promising of the younger school of American composers. Mr. Stoughton resides in Worcester, Mass., where he holds an important position in one of the churches.

and the story is more fully told in the following brief sketch:

The "suite" is divided into (a) "The Courts of Jamshyd," (b) "The Garden of Iram," (c) "Saki." The first number is a "maestoso" and represents the pomp of the Persian court in the Sultan Jamshyd's time; the second number is a "Lento tranquillo" and portrays the quiet solitude and beauty of the Garden of Iram as seen in the light of the waning moon; the third number is a scherzo, representing, more or less, the frivolities of life. The first section of this number is light, followed by a second strain of a sad nature which develops into the first strain augmented, and ends in a burst of riot.

The work is dedicated to Mr. Kraft, who has played it in Kansas City, New Orleans and other southern cities.

Mr. Stoughton has written many well-known works for the church as well as a variety of other vocal and instrumental music.

"Old King Cole," in Barre, Mass.

"Old King Cole," a burlesque operetta in three acts, was recently given in the vestry of the Unitarian Church, Barre, Mass., under the direction of C. G. Adams. There were 33 people in the cast, and each one "acted well his part."

The promising young tenor, Stephen E.

Rich, made a "hit" as Tweedledee, the king's chamberlain.

Mr. Rich sang a few days later at a concert in the same town, several songs of the ballad type, in which he is also becoming very successful.

h h h

Last Concert of the Mechanics' Association, Worcester

The last of the season's course of lectures and concerts given by the Mechanics' Association, Worcester, took place recently in Mechanics' Hall, that city. The program givers were the Olympia Quartet of Boston, who sang the songs of the south, negro melodies and spirituals, with an understanding most interesting and instructive. Songs of other types were not given so happily. The audience was very attentive and rewarded the efforts of the quartet with frequent and prolonged applause.

h h h

Incidents

A very well attended recital of the pupils of Frank E. Morse, assisted by Walter L. Dole, flute; Mrs. Alice Siever Pulsifer and Miss Helen Brooks, accompanists, was given in Steinert Hall, Friday, March 26, at 8 p. m.

The usual program of solos, duets, trios and ensembles, was heard.

Alice Nielsen, soprano, with Rodolfo Fornari, baritone, and Emiliano Renaud, pianist, gave a concert of operatic numbers in Tremont Temple, April 8. Miss Nielson also sang "Love's Old Sweet Song," "The Low Backed Car," "The Fairy Pipers" and some French and modern English songs. She sang the duet from "Don Pasquale" with Mr. Fornari.

Leonard Borwick, English pianist, will give his only recital here Wednesday, April 14, at 3 o'clock, in Jordan Hall.

He plays the "Emperor" concerto of Beethoven at the Friday afternoon concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, April 9, and Saturday night, April 10, in Symphony Hall.

The feature of these concerts was the "Sinfonietta," by the young composer, Eric Korngold. The last number on the program was Sinigaglia's overture, "Le Baruffe Chiozzote."

— *** —

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan has been engaged to sing the tenor solos in "Elijah" at Goshen, Ind., on April 29, and at the Sunday evening concert at Evanston, Ill., on May 2.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE CONCERT ORGANIST COACH-ACCOMPANIST

POPULS---NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING---608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - 'Cello

MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano

LOIS BROWN - - - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - Violin

ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp

FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
New York City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913
Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA
From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST

ARKADY

Management
Haensel and Jones

ZENATELLO RETURNS

The king is dead! Long live the king! Caruso is in Monte Carlo or thereabouts, and in his stead Giovanni Zenatello will sing to us as, perhaps, he only can sing.

It does not often happen that R. E. Johnston is caught napping. He is an impresario, versatile as he is talented, and he owns a sort of sixth sense in his intuitions regarding the tastes and preferences of that sometimes mercurial element, the music-loving public.

He bobs up serenely now, and a vision rises to my eyes of R. E. Johnston in his best evening regalia, standing before a breathless public, arms outstretched; on one upturned palm Zenatello and his attractive wife, the fine contralto, Maria Gay—on the other, Mary Garden.

Mr. Johnston has a keen scent for novelties as well as winners, and his card reads not without reason: "Manager of Celebrities."

The Union will next season enjoy the singing of Giovanni Zenatello, and his delightful spouse, in concert, thanks to the fine diplomacy of Mr. Johnston, who knows how to cater to his public, and how to catch song-birds.

As I write, Zenatello and Maria Gay are on their way (with other distinguished artists, among them Titta Ruffo) to join the operative forces assembled in Havana to give a six weeks' season of opera in the capital city of Cuba. We shall learn more of their doings and successes, anon.

Celeste D. Heckscher's Activities

A correspondent of mine writes to me from Philadelphia as follows: "On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Heckscher played her violin suite, 'To the Forest,' with Mr. Van den Beemt, one of the violinists of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

"I have never heard it played so well, and Mrs. Heckscher really surpassed herself.

"It was given for the Wednesday Music Club, and was held in the ballroom of Mrs. Clifford Lewis' beautiful residence."

Much interest is being taken in the arrangement of the "Intermezzo" from the "Dances of the Pyrenees" for 'cello and piano. I expect Miss Lucile Orrell to add this fine opus to her extensive repertory

Thuel Burnham and Alice Verlet at the
"Tuesday Salon"

Thuel Burnham's third appearance here in concert was effected on Tuesday afternoon, April 6, in the ballroom of Sherry's.

The magnetic and handsome young pianist was in excellent form and showed again that splendid virility and exuberant enthusiasm which renders his pianistic virtuosity so transcendent.

His playing fairly glows in its vivid and changeful, prismatic colorings, and he infuses much of his own remarkable temperament into his interpretations. This was especially and conspicuously notable in his rendition of Liszt's famous "Liebestraum," an opus demanding far more than perfection of technic to make its appeal poetic and even sensuous; for it is tenderly romantic with an underlying passion demanding the richly passionate temperament and understanding of the flesh and blood poet in its demonstration.

He fairly sang the melody, holding the musical measures as a foil mystically sketched out against the compelling theme. One might almost fit words to the piano's song when the artist at the keyboard knows so well how to develop his idea and conception of the composer's ideas and themes.

This unusual talent enhances the values of the compositions he elects to perform, and shows itself in almost protean shapes in whatever he attempts.

Thus his group of Chopin numbers, which opened the program, were delicately, daintily poetic, without the sacrifice of the living fiber the well-trained technician must possess.

They delighted the audience by the clarity of their utterance; the ineffable distinction of their presentation—not twilight—not crepuscular in tinting—but warmed and mellowed by the passionate, generous insight of the performer.

Mr. Burnham was roundly applauded after each number, but declined to give encores.

Mme. Alice Verlet, looking her loveliest in gown of fleecy black, giving a cameo-like effect to her charmingly-posed head, with its fascinating chevelure, seemed to relish her vocalization in the giving, as much as it was enjoyed by the audience in the receiving.

She was in the freshest of voices, and trilled like a lark when she did not, in warbling, vie with the nightingale.

Her rendering of the celebrated aria of the soprano from "Rigoletto" was delightful in the ease of its bravura, and the certainty of its execution. 'Roulades, scales, arpeggios; dizziest flights, all seemed at one in their effect of effortless production.

In the "Romeo and Juliet" waltz song she again proved her triumphant conclusions

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

with Gounod's elaborate song for the sky-rocketing tessitura.

Also the prima donna astonished and charmed in a group of English songs and ballads, and in her added encores. She invested all she did with rare charm and grace; and a fetching insouciance.

Miss Beverly Sitgreaves, a favorite American actress, created a deep impression by her "Recollections," as she termed them, of Sarah Bernhardt. The golden-voiced Sarah seemed for the nonce materialized in this woman in her robes of deepest azure, who intoned and declaimed in the very voice of France's great histrion. Miss Sitgreaves has the aptitude for the tragic and the very deep of melodrama.

A tenor, Serge Baneo, contributed his quota of arias, and Mr. William Jausheik supplied delightful accompaniments.

All in all the entertainment was of an exhilarating kind, and Mrs. Bramhall is to be congratulated upon the success of her Easter musicale.

§ § §

Robert Maitland, Baritone and Artist

An accession of importance to the ranks of the Baritone voice in this country is to be found in Robert Maitland who promises to add new laurels to the wreath adorning his brow, and plucked in those countries across the pond now settling their differences with music of a more martial type than is either required or desired in the concert hall or upon the boards of the opera house; both fields of activity made more memorable in these last years by Mr. Maitland's identification with their highest forth putting.

Indeed, Maitland is equipped upon every side for the perfect achievement of his tasks. For one thing personality is his, and that is not the least of the artist's assets. Young personality at that. Tall in stature; commanding in presence; the face intellectual in repose; warm, eager and alive in conversation or in the deliverance of his vocal lines; bright of eye, his great advantages physically are immediately evident.

He sings with mellow, round, voluptuously-timbered voice, and he is at home in the range of Lieder familiar or recondite—the German, French, Italian or English sung with knowledge and an intimate acquaintanceship with the refinements of a pure diction, the diction of each language he essays.

His operatic repertory is full, and he is capable of singing either King Henry or Telramund, the tessitura of his voice permitting either. The Wagnerian characters are then his, and he has assumed them frequently during the period of his residence in Germany, where he has been the operatic hero quite as often as the Lieder-singer.

An Englishman, he has imbibed all the sacred traditions of oratorio, and his auditors will experience a new sensation when they hear him interpret, with forceful powers and the charm of a dignified artistry, the great airs of the basso in "The Messiah," or the somewhat different dramatic metier of the "Elijah."

Whether in Latin or English, the oratorio field is his with ease and assurance, and he is an insatiable student adding new gems to his repertory as he finds and seizes them.

The war has favored us in sending us a beloved son of Britain—Robert Maitland.

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

Management M. H. HANSON

437 Fifth Avenue New York

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Eridenborg 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkerud, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aetlian Hall, New York

The International Eisteddod of the Panama Exposition

By WILLIAM APMADOC

ARTICLE V

The Board of Directors of the Panama Exposition, and the Board of Directors of the International Eisteddod of the Kymric people, are more than grateful to the editor and publisher of Music News for the great privilege of having this article appear in its columns. President Charles E. Moore of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, and President E. D. Roberts of the International Eisteddod are among the most zealous workers for the success of the "Welsh Festival Week."

This Eisteddod will be held July 27, 28, 29 and 30, 1915, in the magnificent Festival Hall of the Panama Exposition at San Francisco, and every literary and musical contest is open to the essayists, poets, elocutionists and choirs of any other nationalities. In all probability it will be the most truly international competitive of all names for competition, and have paid the "entrance fees." Possibly, and probably, a couple of Indian choirs and a couple of Negro choirs will compete in the class of smaller choral test-pieces. In any case, the "international feature" will be amply exemplified in the singing contests. At the 1904 St. Louis Exposition Eisteddod "choral contests" only, real American choirs from Evanston and Ravenswood, Ill., from Debuque, Ill., from Denver, Colo., besides the Welsh-American Scranton (Pa.) choir, appeared and made a superb exhibition of choral excellence—that St. Louis week of choral display was engineered by the now chairman of the board of judges of the San Francisco musical contests of next July. It should be mentioned that a negro choir competed for the main prize at the 1906 Eisteddod of Denver, and was accorded a splendid ovation. At the Pittsburg Eisteddod during the 1913 week of Independence, the highest tide of choral display was reached in the annals of American Eisteddodan. It presented on its immense platform six choirs, numbering from one hundred to one hundred and fifty voices each, fifteen choirs of men; thirteen choirs of women, and twenty-seven choirs of children.

The secret of that choral success was due to the splendid way in which the publicity committee did its work. And now the same tide of Eisteddodic enthusiasm that made former great festivals famous, rising weekly higher and higher, will soon sweep along toward the Pacific coast from all directions—from east, north, south, and from the far-western colonies of Kymric people in Japan and China. All the enthusiasm that the patriotic bugle-call "See America First" has stirred in the hearts of the people at large will contribute to the success of the Panama Exposition and its "International Eisteddod."

To state that mixed choirs, choirs of men, choirs of women, bands and orchestras are already organized in many parts of the States and Canada, and are now rehearsing the test-pieces, is proof that the 1915, greatest of all Eisteddodans, will be one vast flood of musical success. We are indebted to the untiring general secretary, Mr. William Solomon Jones, for the following list of prospective choirs:

Pennsylvania—Scranton, Philadelphia, Johnstown and Pittsburgh.

Ohio—Cleveland, Canton, Columbus, Lima.

Illinois—Chicago (two), Granite City.

Iowa—Des Moines.

Utah—Salt Lake City, Ogden.

Montana—Butte.

Washington—Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane.

Oregon—Portland, Medford.

California—Los Angeles, San Diego, Sacramento, Oakland and Berkeley.

Canada—Saskatoon.

British Columbia—Victoria, Vancouver (two).

Since writing the foregoing, Secretary Jones informs us that ten more choirs and festivals of the kind. It is to be held under the auspices of the California National Kymrodorion Society, and is officially sanctioned by the president and board of directors of the exposition, who have and are extending every courtesy and assistance to the director of the Eisteddod.

DAVID DAVIS

During the last two years the general secretary, Mr. William Solomon Jones, and the executive committee have succeeded in making the national festival of 1915 known, not only to Kymric people on four continents, Great Britain, America, Australia and Africa, but among the lovers of music the world over. Already Welsh, American, German, French, Italian, Norwegian, Swedish and Irish choral societies have and are communicating with the Eisteddod committee, and a goodly number have entered their about twenty bands are negotiating as to the days of the choral and band contests. If all these choirs and bands will be "on deck" at the right time, it will be well if the directors will begin now to pray for the largest amount of patience and scientific skill to arrange the order of battle.

The following gentlemen constitute the Eisteddvdod Board of Directors:

President—E. D. Roberts (state treasurer of California), Sacramento.

Vice-president—Edwar Thomas, San Francisco.

General Secretary—W. Solomon Jones, Oakland.

Directors of Finance—W. R. Williams (state superintendent of banks), San Francisco.

Treasurer—Thomas A. Williams (state harbor commissioner), San Francisco.

Financial Secretary—Hugh J. Lloyd, San Francisco.

Director of Music—J. J. Morris, Palo Alto.

Attorney and Counselor—Rees P. Daniels.

The absorbing and crucial question with all the choirs has been "Who are the gentlemen selected as Board of Judges?" About a month ago the directors solved this ticklish and dangerous question in a very satisfactory way. Secretary Jones reports that he has been flooded with letters of congratulation for the directors because of their tact and wisdom in selecting judges to whom no sensible musician nor choral conductor could object. The five judges are musicians of high standing and of excellent reputation. Their names are set down as follows:

Ernest R. Kroeger, St. Louis, Mo., Chairman.

E. D. Lloyd (R. A. M., London), South Bend, Ind.

Henry Houseley, Denver, Colo.

David Davis, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Redfern Mason, San Francisco, Cal.

A brief word concerning each:

Ernest R. Kroeger was born at St. Louis and has constantly resided in that city. His instructors in piano playing were his father, Egmont Troehlich, Waldemar Malmene, W. Goldner and P. G. Anton. At twenty-three he entered upon his career as a musician; since then he has been prominently before the public as pianist, organist, conductor and composer. For his service as Master of Programs at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904, the French Government elected him an officer in the Academy.

E. D. Lloyd is a son of musical Wales, and only recently came to reside in the United States; his experience and success as organist, choirmaster, instructor in voice, piano, organ harmony, composition and as adjudicator at Eisteddvdodan, is well known in Great Britain. His reputation preceded him to the United States. In a short time after his arrival he was engaged as organist and choirmaster at the First M. E. Church, South Bend, Ind. It was a compliment well placed to appoint him one of the five judges at the International Eisteddvdod. Doubtless many such honors will be paid him in this, his adopted land.

David Davis, the Cincinnati tenor, instructor in voice, harmony and composition, and well known musical critic, is a native of a most charming spot in Cardiganshire,

South Wales, not far from another charming spot where the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones of Chicago was born. Cardiganshire has produced a very large number of prominent and learned preachers, poets, musicians, scientists and scholars in many special directions. Mr. Davis is a pupil who studied singing, harmony and composition under the late and lamented foremost musician of Wales, Dr. Joseph Parry, at the Aberystwyth University of Wales. He has appeared at some of the lead Eisteddvdodan in this country, where his critical remarks have always been characterized as being clear, convincing, uplifting, sympathetic and instructive—all in perfect keeping with his character as musician and gentleman.

Henry Houseley is a native of Ashford, Nottinghamshire, England. He came to America in 1888, has resided "exclusively in Denver ever since," and, who can estimate the worth of his artistic work in music as organist, pianist, and conductor from 1888 to the present time, not only in Denver but through the students who have come to him for instruction and inspiration. Mr. Houseley is a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists (F. R. C. O.). He is director of the Apollo Club of Denver, and organist of St. John's Cathedral, and Temple Emanuel. It was Mr. Houseley that trained and conducted the chorus of sixty selected voices in the "second grade" contest at St. Louis in 1904, which won the first prize of $3,000.

Redfern Mason is a musician who sat at the feet of the late musical Gabriel, Dr. George A. Macfarren, president of the Royal Academy of Music, London. He is a Cambridge man and the author of "The Song Lore of Ireland" and "Musical Camcos" and a lecturer on musical subjects. Articles from his pen have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly and other such magazines. Mr. Mason is the musical critic of the San Francisco Examiner.

Local pride is reason enough for calling special attention to the fact that Chicago's Haydn Choral Society, under the direction of H. W. Owens, Mus. Bac., have organized especially to enter the contest at the Exposition International Eisteddvdod, for the $10,000 first prize. The indomitable direc-

Why Not Use The Best ?

A few words to the Progressive Piano Teacher relative to Fillmore's Modern Graded Course for the Pianoforte in Eight Grades.

THE remarkable success this course has attained in the short time of its publication testifies to its intrinsic merits.

It has now proven by actual experience to be a Course which meets successfully the needs of both teacher and pupil, and this work has gained so good a foothold for itself as to justify its wider expansion. It is carefully graded and comprises the best teaching material from the time of Bach to the present era. Miniature copies of Grade I will be sent gratis upon request. Hundreds of Music Schools, too numerous to mention, are ordering regularly and we know that you will do the same when you become acquainted with our Course. We therefore offer for the next 30 days the 8 grades at the very special price of 30c, each grade, postpaid. Regular price of which is $1.00 each grade.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO. Milwaukee, Wis.

P. S.—When ordering please mention the name of this magazine.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly B. Brito-ne the Associate
METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY Vocal Instructor
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Tel. Midway 8963

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER
ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

tor has proven the high quality of his mettle several times in the leading choral contests in the United States by carrying away the first prizes and when his choir wins but the second choral prize, he proves himself a manly and honorable loser. It is but fair to state that he possesses the power of carrying along with him the members of his choir without any defections, and that he possesses, also, the gift of music interpretation to an uncommon degree. No preparatory training of his choir for the San Francisco Eisteddvod could be better, or wiser, than the performing in public of Sir Edward Elgar's "King Olaf" and Haydn's "Creation."

It is creditable to some of Chicago's prominent citizens that they are interesting themselves in this purpose and activity of the Haydn Choral Society, not only sociably, but financially. It goes without saying that by the end of next June, many more of our public spirited citizens will come forward and "lend a hand" to send the society on its way to the coast in the best of spirit and comfort.

A GREAT OPERA SEASON FOR CHICAGO

In a telegram received by the Tribune last night from Cleofonte Campanini, general director of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, the following statement was made: "I promise Chicago the greatest operatic season ever given."

Mr. Campanini announced that he had just signed a contract with "the world's greatest baritone," Titta Ruffo. He stated that engagements of other famous artists will be announced later.

For the first time Mr. Campanini gave out a list of artists he has signed contracts with and with whom he had been negotiating for several months. They are as follows: Frances Alda, Helen Stanley, Julia Claussen, Eleanora di Cisneros, Marcia van Dresser, Rachel Frees Green, Elizabeth van Endert, Frances Rose of the Berlin Royal Opera, John McCormack, Eduardo Ferrari Fontani, Giovanni Zenatello, George Hamlin, Francis Daddi and Enrico Aresoni.

Announcement already has been made of the engagement of Melba, Schumann-Heink and Farrar. The season will begin November 15.

Lester—The Dolly Varden Quartet, Ethel Connely Cutler, first soprano; Margaret Lester, second soprano; Clare Livingstone, first alto, and Agnes Hansel-Harter, second alto, with William Lester as accompanist, will give a program at the Memorial Church of Christ, Oakwood boulevard near Cottage Grove avenue, Tuesday evening, April 20. The quartet will appear with the Orpheus Club of Gary, Ind., Monday night, May 31.

Iredale—Miss Olive Michenfelder, pupil of Bertha Smart Iredale, sang April 11 at St. Raphael's, Josephine and Sixtieth streets. Miss Michenfelder was well received by the audience, and responded with a second number.

Little Theater—Mr. Padraic Colum, Irish dramatist and poet, gave a lecture on "The Younger Irish Writers in Prose and Verse," at the Little Theater last Saturday evening.

Columbia School—The pupils of Gertrude Murdough in the Columbia School of Music gave a piano program at the Columbia School Recital Hall on last Friday evening.

IDA GARDNER

CONTRALTO

Management WALTER ANDERSON

171 W. 57th St., New York

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

An Interesting Lecture

The National Opera Club, Mme. Katherine Evans Van Klenner, president, offered an unusually interesting program in the Waldorf-Astoria on the afternoon of April 8.

Of absorbing interest to the intelligent audience was a lecture with illustrations, preceded by a most illuminating talk. The lecturer was Mr. Havrah Hubbard, whose exposition of the motives and story of "Tannhauser," illustrated copiously at the piano by Floyd M. Baxter, found instant favor in the circle of his hearers, who applauded his dramatic reading of the shrewd allegory in mythology of the German "Saga" employed by Wagner in his cleverly-constructed music drama and the points of his talk.

Mr. Hubbard is a close observer who doubtless realizes why opera in English is taboo. His remarks were pithy and appropriate. If he spoke with discretion it was not because he has not cast an eye over the entire field. The philosopher is usually prudent, and prudence and optimism go hand in hand, and often with far-reaching results.

As an apostle of opera in English, Mr. Hubbard is in a position to render great service to a more than worthy cause. It will be a great pleasure to hear him again.

The president has a decided vein of the humorous in her make-up. She was a striking figure in her black habiliments, with a perhaps unconscious touch of the coquette which was rather fetching.

After the lecture a musical program was offered.

Mr. Gustav L. Becker's artist pupil, Miss Mabelle M. Sniffen, was heard in a piano recital on Friday, April 2, in Chickering Hall. Her program consisted of compositions taxing in character and difficult of perfect eventuation. Works by Bach, Liszt, Chopin were delightfully interpreted, other distinguished composers also figuring on the program.

On April 28 Mrs. Robert Goldbeck, another artist pupil, will be heard in recital at Mr. Becker's studio.

At the banquet of the New York State Music Teachers' Association at the Hotel McAlpin, Broadway and 34th street, on Tuesday evening, April 20, the speaker will be David Bispham and Franz X. Arens.

A. G. O.—A public service will be held in St. Peter's Church on Tuesday evening, April 20, at 8 o'clock. The University String Quartet, Harold E. Knapp, first violin; Charles Elander, second violin; Alfred G. Wathall, piano, and Day Williams, violoncello, will play the "String Quartet," Op. 15, by Dohnanyi. Mr. John Doane Jr. will play "En Bateau," by Debussy; "Lullaby," by E. H. Lemarc, and Rosseter G. Cole's "Fantasie Symphonique." "A Concerto for Two Violins," by Bach, will be played by the Misses Wally Heymar and Mabel Woodworth. St. Peter's choir will sing the service, which will be played by Herbert E. Hyde, organist and choirmaster of the church.

Lewis—In the recital to be given by Miss Maude Lewis, soprano, and Miss Agnes Bodholdt, pianist, at the Branch School of the Cosmopolitan, on Friday, April 16, Miss Lewis will sing an aria by Bach and fine numbers of Schubert, Schumann, Franz, Brahms and Strauss in German; numbers by Wekerlin and Debussy in French, and characteristic works in English by Lehmann, Homer, Reger and Cole-ridge-Taylor.

Van Sweringen—Howard Van Sweringen, tenor; Flora I. Lang, soprano, and Louise Lindner, pianist, will give a concert at Thurber Hall on Tuesday evening, April 20.

St. Peter's—The usual monthly festival service will be held at St. Peter's next Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m., at which time Mr. Hyde will play a sonata of his own composition.

ROBERT MAITLAND

BARITONE

Available Season 1915-16

Management Haensel and Jones Aeolian Hall, New York

ing figure in her black habiliments, with a perhaps unconscious touch of the coquette which was rather fetching.

After the lecture a musical program was offered.

Biltmore Friday Morning

Friday morning, April 9, found the ballroom—the Cascade ballroom—of the Biltmore filled to the doors with fashionables intent upon musical entertainment of the unusual order offered at these functions.

The program was designed to afford pleasure as well as instruction. Louis Siegel, violinist, and Rudolf Ganz, pianist, offered selections of interest, while Frieda Hempel, the Metropolitan Opera House's leading coloratura soprano, stood with Amato for the vocal end of the entertainment.

Miss Hempel wore a gray gown with a scarlet sash and white net sleeves, showing her fealty to Berlin's sartorial tastes to the tip of her gray and red toque. The soprano was down on the program for the aria from "Ernani"; but while she kindly consented to sing the first part of that scena and "Cavatina," which supplied Wagner with the theme for Siegmund's "Love Song," she, for reasons not explained, omitted to include the "Aria," famed for its brilliancy, and the opportunities it affords the finished coloratura singer to bewilder and stagger by the ease with which she overcomes its difficulties, especially if supplemented by in-

BALATKA FACULTY CONCERT

Wednesday evening, April 7, the following members of the faculty of the Balatka Academy of Musical Art appeared in recital at the Recital Hall: Anna H. Balatka, pianist; Helen H. Morgan, whistler; Eleanor Capps Hostler, soprano; Jean Wilson, contralto; Edna A. Wheeler, harpist; Hannah Matteson, pianist; Anna Parker Saylor, reader; Heinrich Lippel, cellist; Max Bing, baritone; William Griswold Smith, tenor; Carl J. Weiss, pianist; Albert Cook, cornetist; Lenise Barber, violinist, and Anna Schneider, accompanist.

Miss Balatka has every reason to feel that she has been very successful as the director of the school, for on this occasion the same enthusiasm and interest was manifested as on former occasions. Long before the concert began the Recital Hall was filled and many people were turned away. The quartet, Mrs. Hostler, Miss Wilson, Messrs. Smith and Bing, opened with numbers by Strauss and Verdi.

"Greetings to Spring" was very enjoyable and won them much applause.

Miss Wilson's splendid contralto voice was heard to fine advantage in a group of songs by Secchi, Rueckaus, Homer.

"Lungi Dai Caro Bene" and "Sing to Me, Sing" were very effectively sung and enjoyed. Miss Balatka played the Litolf Concerto No. 3 with a string accompaniment very well written by Albert Green, director of the violin department.

Miss Balatka's playing of the "Concerto" is remembered as one of the brightest moments of the concert, for it was well worth hearing.

A N RADANOVITS
VOICE CULTURE
R S. Room 404, 59 East Van Buren St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mrs. Hostler's fine soprano voice was heard with great pleasure in songs by Batten, Hahn and Mascheroni. Her personality is very pleasing and her singing artistic.

Anna Parker Saylor gave a thoroughly entertaining reading by Cook that won her much applause.

The accompaniments were well cared for by Miss Schneider and Mr. Weiss.

H. W. P.

Tomlinson—A successful recital was given at the Studios of Miss Anna Tomlinson in the Fine Arts Building on last Friday night, those appearing being Marion Eddy, Wendelyn Linden, Idamay Smith, Loraine Reynolds, Margaret Hessler, Beth Reynolds, Frances Hannett, Frances Grenley, Ellen Topping, Jeanette Braun, Buol Burke, and Margaret Braun.

Muenstermann—Miss Esther Muenstermann will sing at the organ recital by Dr. Francis Hemington at Epiphany Church next Monday evening. Her numbers will be "Abide with Me" (Liddle) and "My Redeemer and My Lord" (Buck).

Bartholomew—The pupils of Mr. H. B. Bartholomew will give a song recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Saturday afternoon, April 17, at 3:30.

BUENA MEMORIAL CHURCH CHOIR
IN GLEN ELLYN

Monday evening the choir of the Buena Memorial Church, DeWitt Durgin Lash, conductor, gave the "Holy City," Gaul, in Glen Ellyn under the auspices of the Woman's Club.

Irma Sundmacher, soprano; Edith Blades Wheeler, contralto; Arnfeldt Awsumb, tenor; Paul Roberg, bass, are all pupils of Mr. Lash, and they acquitted themselves in a manner that reflected great credit upon themselves and their teacher.

Margaret Hughes and Amy Kleinofen gave splendid support at the pianos.

Mr. Lash has a well trained choir under his direction. The shading, attacks and releases are well taken and the ensemble is fine.

The chorus numbers were all sung with a good quality of tone and a spirit that merits the highest praise. "No Shadows Yonder," "The Fining Pot Is for Silver," "Let the Heavens Rejoice" and the final chorus found them at their best.

Mr. Awsumb disclosed a pleasing tenor voice in his solos, and he used it to a good advantage. Mrs. Wheeler has much in her favor, for her voice is of good quality and she sings with much assurance. Her solo work was good, and in the duet with Miss Sundmacher they gave a fine rendition of the duet, "They Shall Hunger No More."

Miss Sundmacher's voice should carry her far if she continues along the same good lines. Her solo work was very commendable, as was the singing of the bass solos by Mr. Roberg, who has an exceptionally good baritone voice. The Girls' Sunshine Choir merits special mention.

Mr. Lash is a choir conductor who does things, and it is safe to say there are many good things in store for the people of Buena Memorial.

H. W. P.

ORGAN RECITAL

Sunday afternoon, April 11, Palmer Christian gave an organ recital at the Kenwood Evangelical Church. Rubee Wilson DeLamar, soprano, assisted.

Mr. Christian may well feel proud of his ability as an organist and musician, for it goes without saying that he has and holds the respect of his fellow musicians.

His playing is very refined and satisfying.

The Bernard "Scherzo-Caprice" and an "Improvisation," by Karg-Elert, were very beautiful in color and effects as he played them.

In his second group, comprising numbers by Bach, Franck, Lemare and Vierne, he gained some excellent effects in color and shade. In the "Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C," Mr. Christian excelled himself.

Mrs. DeLamar, soprano, gave a group of solos that were very artistically sung. Her voice is rich and she uses a fine church style that makes her singing very appealing and effective.

H. W. P.

Waldteufel—Emile Charles Waldteufel, French composer, known very especially for his waltzes, died on February 16 at Paris.

Kimbell—Grant Kimbell has been engaged to sing the tenor solos in "Elijah," to be given at La Fayette, Ind., May 18.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

The last concert of the Amateur Musical Club for this season was given at the Illinois Theater, Monday, April 12, by the following well known artists: Edna Gunnar Peterson, Louise Harrison Slade, Eleanor Scheib, Rachel Steinman Clark, Minnie Fish Griffin, Carolyn Louise Willard, Lorenz Sansone, Mae Doelling.

Miss Peterson, pianist, opened the program, proving herself to be a good player of Bach Preludes, and very brilliant and artistic in her presentations of Chopin.

Mrs. Slade, contralto, gave as the second group of the program songs by Gluck, Lehmann and Coleridge-Taylor in a thoroughly artistic manner, and good display of vocal resource. The "Trio," Op. 40, Brahms, played by Miss Scheib, piano, Mrs. Clark, violin, Mr. Sansone, French horn, added much to the program, for each member of the artistic trio did their best to complete the very effective ensemble. In the last three movements they did some very refined playing.

Mrs. Griffin, soprano, chose an aria by Haydn and songs by Schubert and Kaun. She is a fine artist and her interpretations were very satisfying and musicianly.

Miss Willard, pianist, closed the splendid program with a group of piano numbers by Hinton, MacDowell, Korngold, Rubinstein, played as only an artist can play them. Sympathetic and artistic accompaniments were played by Miss Doelling.

H. W. P.

CHRIST CHURCH

Sunday morning, April 11, the choir of Christ Church, Mason Slade, organist and director, repeated the Easter music. Mr. Slade has a men and boys' choir that is well worth hearing.

The tonal quality and their ensemble work is of high order. Their renditions of Vincent's "As it Began to Dawn" and John A. West's "Kyrie Eleison," dedicated to Christ Church choir, were very effective, as was the singing of the "Credo," "Sanctus," "Benedictus" and "Agnus Dei," from Gounod's "Messe Solenne." The "Hallelujah Chorus" (Handel) was given a beautiful rendition.

"Come Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain," sung unaccompanied, was a splendid example of choral singing that deserves much commendation. The solo parts were well taken by Roger Tuttle, bass; William Wallace and William Schaubel, tenors, and Montell Meeks, Ernest Hooper and Benjamin Bridge, sopranos.

Mr. Slade presided at the organ and furnished musicianly and sympathetic support to the choir.

H. W. P.

SALIDA, COLORADO

The Easter service in the Methodist Church was made specially enjoyable last Sunday evening by an augmented choir. Mr. R. C. Crouse, baritone, sang "The Twenty-fifth Psalm" as set to music by Helena Bingham. He gave a splendid rendition of this impressive solo, which received many comments.

Reckzeh—Pupils of Karl Reckzeh will give a program of piano music at the Chicago Musical College Recital Hall (fifth floor) on Wednesday evening, April 21.

A Letter from Kristiania, Norway

As my letters have been both few and far between I begin to think that I do not deserve the name, "Correspondent for Music News," and you would be justified in thinking that nothing of musical interest has taken place in our capital this season. This, however, is not the case, on the contrary, "Every cloud has its silver lining," and one small, but good, result from this dreadful war is that Norway has not as usual been invaded by foreign artists of all kinds and sizes, and therefore—like America—has found time to interest herself in her own artists, most of whom have been compelled to remain at home. It is far from me to say that we do not need the foreigners, that is to say the real great ones, to whom we extend the heartiest welcome from year to year; I have even been waiting for them to return in order to write you this letter, as I could not expect that local Norwegian talents and their doings would be of sufficient interest to your readers to justify a space in the columns of Music News.

MME. SIGNE LUND

At last the month of February brought some musical events and amongst these the reappearance of the famous conductor, Max Fiedler, who is equally well known in America and Europe. He is indeed a master of his art and a true example of what the conductor is to the orchestra. There are people who think that the musicians do all the work and that but small thanks are due to the man who "fights the air with his stick." Were this the ease an orchestra would play equally well under various conductors; but this is far from true, and a better and more convincing proof than the one offered by Max Fiedler, when conducting the Philharmonic Orchestra here last Saturday, can not be found. I am sorry to admit that—horribly spoiled as I am by the Chicago Orchestra and Frederick Stock—I found many faults with conductors as well as players on my return to my home city. But Fiedler seemed to electrify the men, inspiring them with some of his own fire, drawing forth without apparent effort all the qualities, which must have been slumbering and only needed to be awakened. I had to count the violins over in order to convince myself that the number was not increased, and on the other side the brasses, which so often give a shock to my nerves, seemed to have been provided with "sordins" without in the least muffling the sound. All due to the conductor who mastered his men and his baton, as the program, Mozart, Brahms and Wagner, gave him ample opportunities to prove. An overture by himself showed him to be a composer of—I should like to use the word—charm. This work was full of melody, life, beautiful effects and rhythmical novelties—but first of all it impressed me as being wholesomely free from philosophy. Even running the risk of being considered behind my time, I cannot help feeling and saying that the word music does not seem fitting any more when applied to the products of these philosophizing masters of theory, on which the world is getting steadily richer. We have been apt to think that this word implies something that is, at least to a certain degree, connected with beauty. But when music has gone as far as to be absolutely incomprehensible, even to people who for more than thirty years have worked in that line and with some right call themselves musicians, then I venture to say that something must be wrong somewhere. A fair example of this kind of "new art" was given me a short time ago, when the Norwegian composer, Hjalmar Borgstrom, presented a symphony to the public. I suffered,—that is all I can say. Some "modern" people will surely answer me: "But think of Wagner! How few people cared for his music in the beginning!" Surely; there are till this day people who do not understand, much less admire, his music; but I am now speaking—not of the masses—but of the many who, ever since he appeared, have kept in constant touch with the growth of music, and who, in spite of willingness to learn, can find nothing in the ultra modern music to satisfy their craving for beauty, harmony and melody. I hardly know whether to pity or to envy the one who boasts of understanding and admiring it.

Selim Palmgren, the Finnish pianist and composer, who in his home country is being compared to Sibelius, is another of the foreign artists who won many laurels at his concerts in Kristiania a short time ago. His piano concerto called "The River" proved extremely interesting, rich and varied in color, very beautiful at times; but I fail to understand why he uses the piano as the solo instrument when in fact it seems to be little more than an accompaniment to the orchestra in spite of the tremendous passages one could see but not hear the pianist performing.

Safonoff, Zadora, Mitnitzky, Telmanhye deserve all to be spoken of at length, but space being limited and having some one in particular in mind, I must content myself by merely mentioning the names of these visitors, who have delighted our city of late.

Before going any further you will, I trust, pardon me for telling you of a little incident taking place in New York shortly after my arrival in the United States in 1901. At an afternoon musicale, which I gave at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, this good lady had managed to induce Mrs. Morris Black, a great favorite with the New York public, to sing my songs. Thanks to her splendid rendering of these entirely new and foreign songs, the musicale proved a success and resulted in many others. After the program tea was served for the guests, of which a limited number remained for dinner, their names being no less than those of Fritz Kreisler, Harold Bauer, Henry Hadley, Mme. Gabrilowitch (the daughter of Mark Twain), and Mrs. Morris Black. A never-to-be-forgotten evening passed only too quickly, all these great artists contributing their share to the entertainment, if share it may be called when two world-famous men like Kreisler and Bauer play the Mendelssohn Concerto and Svendsen Romance, the violinist seated at the piano and the pianist handling the violin. At first I thought it a joke, when Kreisler handed his instrument to Bauer, but the very first measures convinced me that I was mistaken. These two are artists on both instruments and seemed to enjoy the exchange of roles to the fullest extent. Mrs. Black sang some wonderful songs by Henry Hadley, accompanied by the composer. Prompted by kindness, Mr. Kreisler asked me if I had written anything for violin, and by chance having my "Berceuse" in my music roll, I handed it to him. He at once read it and interpreted it as I had never heard it before, played it three times, and before the evening had passed it had been decided that I should give a composer's recital at the Astor Gallery with Mrs. Black and Mr. Kreisler as soloists. As my recital, which took place the following month, is of no interest to your readers, I shall not dwell upon it, the more so as my intentions were not to talk of myself. The following summer I went west to become a Chicagoan, and to my great regret I heard nothing more of Mrs. Black. I only knew that she had gone abroad and was giving very successful concerts, accompanied by Henry Hadley, in England. Many years passed, but during my frequent visits abroad I never forgot to look for the name of Mrs. Morris Black amongst the long lists of concert givers in the musical centers of the world. All in vain, however, and you shall soon see why. During a conversation with Harold Bauer in Paris in 1913, I asked him if by chance he should know what had become of our mutual friend, Mrs. Black, of New York. With great surprise in his voice, he answered: "But, my dear, she is Madame Charles Cahier, the great Cahier." Had I heard of her? Oh yes, many times; but never having had an opportunity to hear her and not dreaming that she was identical with my Mrs. Morris Black, her name had not created a great amount of interest in me.

You may judge of my joy, when some weeks ago, our papers announced her return to this city, where she is considered one of the best beloved of foreign stars. And that she also feels at home with us is best shown by her spending the greater part of her summer vacations for years and years at one of the beautiful islands not far from Kristiania. Needless to say that I secured a seat in the front row for her first concert; I wanted to see as well as hear. She was beautiful to look upon, charming and graceful in her manners, simply but exquisitely dressed in white, relieved only by the seven decorations which adorned her breast. These, however, were worn "in miniature"—a proof that she hates display.

She captivated her audience from the very first moment by the beautiful and warm quality of her voice, the remarkable power of interpretation, the astonishingly large range and that "je ne sais quoi" which distinguishes the born artist from the one whose success is largely due to the constant use of the three p's—practice, patience and perseverance. Add to this the true artist's making up of the program, a faultless pronunciation, great dramatic ability, perfection of intonation and phrasing,—in short, what more is to be desired? The enthusiasm of our very critical Kristiania public rose to such heights as to compel her—when the resources of the accompanist in regard to encores were exhausted—to sit down to the piano herself and thus she added still a few moments of great joy to the insistent crowd, who refused to leave until the lights were lowered. I ventured to follow the train of people who rushed to the artist's room. In passing by me she looked hesitatingly for a moment, then turned and came towards me with outstretched hands. She had recognized me after 14 years, and when I asked her if I might call on her, she answered: "Of course, come tomorrow at twelve, Grand Hotel." This call lasted five hours, including lunch, a short walk, a rehearsal and no end of conversation on all kinds of interesting topics. Her home has for the last ten years been in Munich, and she loves Germany for all it has given her in her art as well as in many other things. As an example of how well conducted everything is in that country, she said: "In spite of this dreadful and distracting war, not one of all my engagements in Germany has been cancelled this season, neither concert nor opera. It is more than can be said of the other countries." She is probably quite right in this statement, though I felt inclined to answer that the war is not on German soil as yet. Next year Mme. Cahier contemplates a tour of America, and I can only say: "Go and hear her, you will be amply rewarded. And then—how proud you must be! She is one of your own!"

I have been very happy—though not at all surprised—to read of the great success which Thuel Burnham and Albert Spalding have met with since their return to America. I have had the good fortune not only to hear, but to know these two artists personally. During my stay in Paris in 1913, I was a frequent guest at Mr. Burnham's hospitable home, where every Sunday a circle of his ardent admirers met in order to feast upon the gifts and charm of this inspiring artist. Mr. Spalding I was fortunate enough to hear in two of his concerts in Kristiania the same year, but being due in Holland at a certain date I had, to my great regret, to leave before his third and last concert, at which he honored me by playing one of my compositions. He is also one of the great favorites with our public and may be assured of a hearty welcome and a full house should he ever return here.

When I think of these three names, Cahier, Burnham and Spalding, each masters of their instrument, I feel inclined to agree with those who think that America is rich in herself and in her own talents.

As already mentioned, I did not intend to write about myself in this letter, but finding—in reading it over—that the little selfish "I" has crept in rather frequently in spite of myself and partly encouraged by your repeated request "to tell something about my own work," I shall, with your permission, and trusting to the patience of your readers, add a few lines. Some weeks ago I received a letter from a French soldier, who has been in the battlefields ever since the war broke out. This man is a poet and a musician, and the letter is so full of beauty, hope, courage, unselfishness, love for foe and friend, that I feel tempted to copy it all here. But I must not, so I shall only mention a part of the letter, which I think especially interesting to a musical paper. To use his own words: "Notwithstanding all the suffering and hardships we are enduring, le moral est admirable. Let me give you an example. We have here in my regiment quite a few who dearly love music, and in the short breathing spaces we try to organize some kind of performances on the only instrument we possess, the ocarina. It has a flutelike sound, with a register of but eleven tones. It is not very much to be sure, but in war-time one must not be too fastidious. Now, do you know what you could do in order to give my comrades and myself a great pleasure? Just write a few simple melodies, three voices, for this instrument, with as few sharps and transitions as possible. Do not wait; but send them as soon as you can and be assured that you, in doing so, will help to lighten the burden of the French soldiers and make them happy and forgetful for a brief moment."

I went to work the very same day, of course, and succeeded in making three small pieces, each about one page long, as there is not much room for ideas, when you have to limit yourself to eleven tones. I only pray that my friend, the soldier, may be still alive and playing his ocarina, when my small manuscripts will reach their destination.

As for more serious work, I am sorry to say that my health has prevented me from doing anything worth mentioning, the only possible exception being a rather voluminous song with string orchestra, called "The Hundred Violins." The poem is by Arneuf Sverland, a very talented young Norwegian, and this particular one is so full of music that but small thanks are due to the composer who succeeds in getting something out of such material. This, however, is yet to be proved, the test taking place April 12, when I am to give a recital of my own at the "Musical Society of Barum."

I am glad to get the Music News regularly again. Of course I understand now why it stopped coming. I had mentioned my possible return to Chicago sooner than expected and this, no doubt, led you to keep them for me. But as long as we have peace in Norway and food enough, I think this country is as good a place to live in during these uncertain times as anywhere else, if not better; our wonderful winter, with all kinds of healthy sports, should be the best doctor for all ailments, physical and mental.

With best wishes, sincerely yours,

Kristiana, March, 1915. SIGNE LUND.

Little Theater—The Chicago Little Theater Puppets will open their three weeks' repertory season on Tuesday evening, April 13. Performances will be given every evening at 8:30, and matinees on Thursdays and Saturdays at 2:30. The regular Saturday morning performances will be given as usual at 10:30.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE,
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Phone Drexel 8163

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

CLEVELAND BOHNETConcert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240LESTERMARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8868ELSA STAUD DENTONCONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASERChoirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5789Grace E. KeeslerSong Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569LEIST-BEEBESOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue
ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILSLambert MurphyRecital
Oratorio
Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfshin Bureau, 1 W. 34, New YorkRaoul S. BonannoBARI-TONE
Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts BuildingMARVIN HINSHAWCONCERT BARI-TONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKERCONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866LOUIS KREIDLERBARITONE
Concerts Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627H. WILHELM
Baritone44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.

RECITAL

NORDIN

CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover EllisConcert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., ChicagoJ. PARNELL EGANCONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
RECITAL 1351 Granville AvenueW. Otto MiessnerDir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.H. B. BARTHOLOMEWPIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SORECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463THE MUNRO SINGERS

Not many studios can boast a choral society made up wholly from its own students, but such is the happy case at the Munro Studios and Music News has frequently reported functions given by them in various parts of the city, the latest appearance being at the Masonic temple in Englewood on Monday evening.

This temple has a splendid auditorium, seating probably a thousand persons, and on Monday it was filled to the last seat and great enthusiasm greeted the work of Mr. Munro and his singers.

The drawback of the occasion was the use of a very bad upright piano which also was so far away from the singers that it afforded inadequate support and was the cause of some off-key singing.

Nevertheless the work as a whole showed remarkable talent among the singers and the training displayed was of a quality to reflect very much credit on the Munro Studios.

The program comprised Bendall's "Lady of Shalot," with solos by Helen Collins, and Dudley Buck's "Legend of Don Munio," the fine work of these singers in each having been noted before it is not necessary to detail the numbers here, but in all such matters as attack and release, shading and phrasing, much skill was again shown and many moments disclosed great musical beauty also.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Mr. Munro sang the part of "Don Munio" with authority and Winfield Dunlap made a fine success with the part of "Roderigo."

Clarence Hokinson again succeeded with the "Escobeda" solos and Lola Lee Love added vocal charm to the score of "Constanza."

The high light of the program was, as always, the lovely duet between Miss Love and Robert Grace, a tenor, who assumed the part of "Abadil" with success.

The part of "Donna Maria" was well sung by Florence Bierman. C. E. W.

Boroff—Mr. Albert Boroff sang with the Lyric Glee Club of Milwaukee on April 8.

MYRTLE MOSES IN SONG RECITAL

Monday evening, Miss Myrtle Moses, pupil of Mrs. Charles L. Krum, appeared in recital at the Fine Arts Theater. Hugo Kortschak, violinist, was the assisting artist, and Marx Oberndorfer, accompanist. Miss Moses has a rich soprano voice of excellent range and quality. Her musicianship is good and her personality very ingratiating.

The first group comprising songs by Sinding, Ansgore, Hermann and Brahms, were sung with a fine regard for their musical values, and a good display of vocal resource. A group of songs in French, by Lalo, Massenet, Delbruck and Lemaire, found her at her best, and they were sung in a very delightful manner, the Massenet "Crepuscule" being particularly well chosen and rendered. In her final group Miss Moses showed much versatility in interpretative thought, winning the enthusiastic approval of the audience, and receiving many beautiful floral tributes.

Mr. Hugo Kortschak was the assisting artist, and his renditions of the Paganinni "Rondo" and the Tartini "Sonata" merit only the highest praise for he played them as only an artist can.

Since giving this recital Miss Moses has been engaged as a member of the Chicago Grand Opera Company for next season, this being an endorsement of the Krum Studios which has been fairly and amply won. H. W. P.

PROCTORCONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615MRS. DOBYNS IN MILWAUKEE

Some comment on Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns' recent appearance in Milwaukee follows:

AUDITORIUM SYMPHONY CONCERT

In spite of the cold wind which blew yesterday afternoon, nearly 4,000 music enthusiasts were present.

A brilliant performance was Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns' singing of the aria "Gerechter Gott" from Wagner's "Rienzi." She has control over a wonderfully developed mezzo-soprano voice, which, particularly in the middle register, is of unusual sweetness. She could only quiet great applause of the audience by giving an encore.—Milwaukee Herald.

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns of Chicago sang her way into great favor with the audience with a recitative and aria from Wagner's "Rienzi."—Milwaukee News.

Mrs. Dobyns is of charming personality and was prettily gowned. Her singing was enjoyed, for the audience insisted on an encore and she came back with the ever delightful "At the Spring."—Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, mezzo-soprano, sang the "Gerechter Gott" aria from "Rienzi." Her singing was appreciated by the audience, which demanded encores.—Milwaukee Free Press. (Advertisement.)

###

Brown—The Leonard Wilson School of Music of Woodlawn has made a special arrangement with Katharine S. Brown for her to produce a standard light opera for them in the near future. This will be the beginning of a series of musical productions made by her for them to extend throughout next season. Miss Brown is well known as a professional producer and stage director and many singers of standing are entering the tryouts on Tuesday and Friday evenings for places in the production, and for the work under her direction.

FEDERATED CLUBS.

The program for the Los Angeles meeting reads as follows:

MONDAY, JUNE 21.

- 10:00 a. m. National Board of Management.
2:00 p. m. National Board of Management.

TUESDAY, JUNE 22.

- 10:00 a. m. National Board of Management.
2:00 p. m. National Board of Management.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23.

- 10:00 a. m. National and Auxiliary Boards.
2:00 p. m. National and Auxiliary Boards.
4:00 p. m. Meeting Credential Committee.

THURSDAY, JUNE 24.

- 9:30 a. m. Meeting Credential Committee.
10:00 a. m. Opening Session Ninth Biennial Festival.

Invocation.

Address of Welcome.

Response.

Followed by Business Session.

Reports of Officers.

Report Credential Committee.

Appointment of Committees.

- 1:00 p. m. Adjournment Morning Session.

- 2:30 p. m. American Music Committee, Mrs. Jason Walker, Chairman.

Congress for Encouragement of American Music, Mr. Charles Wakefield Cadman, Chairman.

- 4:00 p. m. Music-Congress Program.
8:30 p. m. Reception.

FRIDAY, JUNE 25.

- 9:30 a. m. Necessary Business.
10:30 a. m. Public School Music, Mrs. Francis E. Clark, Chairman.
2:30 p. m. Public School Music, Given by the pupils of the Los Angeles Schools; Director, Mrs. Gertrude Parsons.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26.

- 9:30 a. m. Business Session.
Revision of By-Laws.
12:00 m. Election Nominating Committee
1:30 p. m. Club Conference.
Discussions of Methods, Etc., Mrs. Emerson H. Brush, Presiding.
3:00 p. m. Concert by Representatives of Clubs.
8:15 p. m. Orchestral Concert.

PART I.

- Overture "Prince Hal".....David Stanley Smith
(Composer conducting)
Tone Poem for piano and orchestra, "The Mountain Vision".....Arthur Farwell
(Miss Ethel Leginska, pianist with composer conducting.)
Two movements from "Omar Suite".....Arthur Foote
(Composer absent; Mr. Tandler conducting.)
Comedy Overture on Negro themes.....Henry Gilbert
(Composer conducting.)

SUNDAY, JUNE 27.

- American Music in all church services—Sacred
3:00 p. m. Mass Meeting—Choral Works—Adresses.
Mr. George Andrews, Oberlin University, Chairman Sacred Music Dept.
Evening Organ recitals of American Music.

MONDAY, JUNE 28.

- 9:30 a. m. Reports of Special Committees.
Student Department Symposium, Mrs. Nellie Strong Stevenson, Chairman.
3:30 p. m. Students Contest Recital.
8:15 p. m. Choral Concert Los Angeles Musicians, Combined Concert Lyric, Ellis and Orpheus Clubs.

TUESDAY, JUNE 29

- 9:30 a. m.—Report of nominating committee; appointment of tellers. Educational Department Symposium, Mrs. Ella May Smith, chairman, followed by course of study round table.
2:30 p. m.—Address, "Establishment of National Schools of Music."
3:00 p. m.—"Congress" recital.
8:15 p. m.—Orchestral concert.

PART 1

- Rhapsody Arne Oldberg
(Composer conducting)
Symphonic poem "Aphrodite".....George W. Chadwick
(Composer conducting)

Concerto for piano and orchestra.....Felix Borowski
(Mr. Walter Spry, pianist, with Mr. Tandler conducting)

Part 2

Tone poem, "Hiawatha".....Carl Busch
(Composer conducting)

Group of piano numbers:

Variations on a Balkan Theme.....Mrs. Beach
Romance in C major.....Louis V. Saar
Overture (in Tarantelle style).....Eric Delamarter
(Mr. Tandler conducting)

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30

- 9:30 a. m.—Election of officers New business, followed by discussion of "Club Methods."
2:30 p. m.—Recitals.
8:15 p. m.—"Congress" Chamber Music.

THURSDAY, JULY 1

- 10:00 a. m.—Report of tellers. Unfinished business.
Report committee on resolutions. Premier production of prize opera, "Fairylend," by Horatio Parker and Brian Hooker.

FRIDAY, JULY 2

- 10:00 a. m. Board of management.
2:00 p. m. Board of management.
8:15 p. m. Opera "Fairylend."

SATURDAY, JULY 3

- 10:30 a. m. Board of management.
2:30 p. m. Matinee "Fairylend."
8:00 p. m. Electric display—pageant.

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield
Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

CLARENCE WHITEHILL IN GALESBURG

Anna Groff-Bryant presented Clarence Whitehill in her Galesburg grand opera artist recital series on April 8. The program follows:

Lord God of Abraham.....Mendelssohn
Gesang Weyla's.....Hugo Wolf
Standchen.....Brahms
Traum durch die Dämmerung.....Richard Strauss
Caecilie.....Strauss
Air de la Jolie fille de Perth.....Bizet

Intermission

Visione Invernale.....Zandonai
Le Chant de Touraine.....Massenet
May the Maiden.....Carpenter
Looking-glass River.....Carpenter
Trottin' to the Fair.....C. V. Stanford
A Ballynure Ballad.....Old Irish
Wotan's Farewell, from Die Walkure.....Wagner

###

Scott—Miss Vivian Scott will present her thirteen-year-old pupil, Fanchon Bennett, in a piano recital at the Branch School of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, at 1339 East Forty-seventh street, on April 23.

###

Miller—Miss Erma Haag, soprano, pupil of Miss Alta Miller, will give a song recital at Music Hall of Northwestern University in Evanston this (Friday) evening.

LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY

Saturday afternoon, April 7, the Lyceum Arts Conservatory presented the following pupils in recital: Pearl Brown, Rose Brown, Gertrude Symmonds and Bertha Seelye with Patricia Abernethy and Kathleen Lightford, accompanists.

Mr. Edgar Brazelton prefaced the recital with a brief talk regarding the various composers represented that was very instructive and well worth hearing.

Only the first two groups of numbers could be heard, but if one may judge from the quality of the work presented it is safe to say that the pupils' training has been along excellent lines.

###

WESLEY HOSPITAL CONCERT

A concert program was presented for the convalescents at Wesley Hospital last Saturday afternoon by pupils of the Hinshaw Conservatory. Those taking part were Mr. Elof Peterson, tenor; Mr. Matthew Kilpatrick, bass; Dr. Schwartz, baritone, and Misses Aura Smith and Irene Galvin, pianists. Miss Aura Smith also proved a proficient accompanist. The entire program was one of much merit and was appreciated by the audience. Miss Smith and Miss Galvin were both pupils of Mr. F. L. Denhard, who has accomplished a great deal with his large class of pupils during the present season.

###

Deal—On Sunday evening, April 18, at the Leavitt Street Congregational Church, Miss Alice Deal will play a postludial organ recital, including the "Fantasie and Fugue," in G Minor (Bach). "Will o' the Wisp" (Nevin), "Salut d'Amour" (Elgar) and "Caprice Heroique" (Bonnet).

###

Bartholomew—Mr. H. B. Bartholomew will give an illustrated lecture on "The Development of American Music" before the Batavia Woman's Club, April 19. Dr. Irwin W. Howard will illustrate the lecture.

###

Clippinger—Miss Emily Berger will give a recital of the songs of Edward Grieg on the Clippinger Studios in Kimball Hall on next Saturday afternoon, being assisted by Mrs. Charles Orchard, pianist.

###

Cotsworth—Mr. Albert Cotsworth will celebrate his ten years' service at the New First Congregational Church by a two months' vacation from the organ bench. Mr. Gordon Wedertz will substitute for him.

###

Church Concert—A concert was given at Unity Church on Tuesday evening of this week by Louise Harrison Slade, contralto; Marie Annen, pianist, and Mrs. John P. Annen, accompanist.

###

Walker—Mr. Edward Walker has been engaged to sing in the "Creation" at the New First Congregational Church on April 25, this being his sixth appearance with the choral forces at this church.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8446

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mac Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zelster
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA

The greatest musical event chronicled in Long Beach transpired since the last report, and has been most favorably commented upon. Seven years ago the foundation for a Lincoln G. A. R. monument was laid in Pacific Park, but procrastination, perhaps, had delayed the enterprise until the patriotic spirit of the artists whose names appear elsewhere was sufficiently aroused to stage an entertainment of more than ordinary merit, the proceeds of which will be used as a nucleus for a fund sufficient to complete the enterprise.

While the chorus was made up of local talent, Mr. A. B. MacGehan has been a member of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, and Mr. H. S. Austin hails from Chicago, where he sang with the Apollo Club. Other members of the chorus were Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman, Mrs. James P. Hight, sopranos; Mrs. T. G. Harriman, Mrs. Margaret S. Porterfield, altos; Dr. Thomas L. Rogers, tenor, and Mr. George W. Isaacs, bass. It was a very successful assembling of cultured voices and in tone harmony, as parts relate to parts or they to the whole, exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine in wealth of power and artistic finish.

Mrs. J. Paul Satterlee, violin, and Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., 'cello, who have studied abroad and are artists of exceptional ability, had just returned from a world tour, having successfully escaped the inconveniences and terrors of the European hostilities, by a cleverly executed itinerary that enabled them to visit many points of historic interest.

The musical critics of the city papers were generous with worthy praise and from whom we quote: "The unwritten law of the evening seemed to have been no encores, but enthusiasm broke its bonds in the case of the male quartet, quite the best ever heard in the city, and the whistlers who also responded to encores and then whistled together, before there was any evidence of satisfaction. The evening was all and more than it promised and the promise was of great things. Mrs. Luella Clark Emery again demonstrated her perfect mastery of all that pertains to artistry at the piano, and sympathetic understanding of the singers' moods and requirements. Her technical skill and artistic sense contributed largely to the success of the whole. It was a thoroughly patriotic program, as follows:

Overture—Light Cavalry Suppe
Municipal Band
Joy, Joy, Freedom Today (Gypsy's Warning)
Artists' Chorus
Cornet Solo—Columbia Rollinson
Mr. G. H. Tyler
Solo and Chorus—The Old Sword on the Wall.....
H. W. Fairbank
Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman, Soprano
Overture—Our National Airs Recker
Mrs. J. Paul Satterlee, violin
Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., 'cello
Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, piano
Whistling Solo—The Nightingale and the Rose.....
Thompson
Miss Elyn Klein
Tableau—Tenting Tonight
Detail from Company II, C. N. G.
Solos and Chorus—The Land Where Every Man's a King French
Mrs. T. J. Harriman, Contralto
Mr. George W. Isaacs, Baritone
War March—Athalia Mendelssohn
Violin, 'Cello, Piano
Hail, Flag of Freedom, Hail! ("Tannhauser").....
Wagner
Artists' Chorus

Whistling Solo—The Mocking Bird.....Alice Hawthorne
Miss Gertrude Willey
The Star-Spangled Banner Keyes
Artists' Chorus
The Flag Without a Stain.....White
Male Quartet
America
Artists' Chorus and Audience

The last of artists' concerts at the Poly High School for the season reached a veritable artistic climax in presenting the Zoellner String Quartet, with Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman, dramatic soprano, accompanied by Mrs. Luella Clark Emery.

Too much cannot be said regarding the superb playing of the Zoellner String Quartet. And too, they are not stingy with encores, but respond heartily and enthusiastically, much to the delight of a crowded house.

Mrs. Wiseman sang a group of favorite songs with pleasing effect. Her voice has warmth, fervor, sympathy and a brilliancy that is a pleasure to hear. The encore, "My Treasure," was most beautifully rendered, showing the sweet qualities of her pure tones and clear enunciation.

The steadily increasing number of tourists coming to the fairs and incidentally visiting the beach cities has filled our hotels, and the better class of vocalists and readers are in demand at the better hostleries. A dozen or more good people from Chicago have registered at the Hotel Virginia during the past month and have been greatly pleased with the high class of musical entertainments.

Quartet, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven
Allegro
Adagio Cantabile
Scherzo Allegro
Allegro Molto Quasi Presto
Quartet, Op. 13 Ippolitoff Iwanow
Humoresca
Intermezzo
Violin Solo—Canzonetta from Concerto, Op. 35.....
Tchaikowsky
Amandus Zoellner
Morning Speaks
The Wind Spross
The Star Rogers
I Am Thine..... Mehrkens
Mrs. Wiseman
Andante Cantabile, from Quartet, Op. 11.....
Tchaikowsky
Minuet Gliuka
Genius Loci Thern
Suite, Op. 35 Glazounow
Scherzo
Orientale

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., RE- QUIRED BY THE ACT OF

AUGUST 24, 1912,

of Music News, published weekly at Chicago, for April, 1915.

Editor, Charles E. Watt, Chicago, Ill.
Business manager, Herbert M. Bailey, Chicago, Ill.
Publisher, Charles E. Watt, Chicago, Ill.
Owner, Charles E. Watt.

Known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders, holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities, none.

CHARLES E. WATT,

Editor and Publisher.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 3d day of April, 1915.

NETTIE MELVIN,

[Seal] Notary Public.

(My commission expires October 16, 1917.)

Columbia School—A concert will be given at the Recital Hall of the Columbia School of Music on Thursday evening, April 15, by Anne Sullivan and George Gordon Beck, who will sing exclusively works by Miss Mabel Lee.

8D.5
MUN

LIBRARY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN
1 JUN 1915

NEW YORK LETTER PAGE 26

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

CHICAGO, AMERICA

APRIL 23, 1915

YEATMAN GRIFFITH
NOTED AMERICAN SINGER AND TEACHER

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPiral KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.
Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice
By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

"An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST

HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO

5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, APRIL 23, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspond-
ents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK

Abbie S. Fridenberg
110 Carnegie Hall
For sale at Bretano's
27th st. and 5th av.

BOSTON

Lester S. Butler
Steinert Hall
DETROIT, MICH
Margaret Mulford
871 Ferry Park Ave.

OMAHA

Goodwal Dickerman
Arlington Block
CINCINNATI
L. Drew Mosher
137 W. Fourth av.

On sale Geo. B. Jennings
105 Fourth av. W.

CLEVELAND

George Emerson
616 The Arcade
INDIANAPOLIS
Gaylord Yost
Indianapolis Cons.

KANSAS CITY

Mary H. Flag
311 Studio Bldg.

DENVER

R. Jefferson Hall,
St. Mark's Church
ST. PAUL, MINN.
Myrtle Weed
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.

WICHITA, KAN.

Ralph Brokaw
WORCESTER, MASS.
Lester S. Butler
441 Day Bldg.

COLUMBUS, OHIO

George G. Whitehead
Redpath Lyceum Bureau

MILWAUKEE

Iva Bigelow Weaver
Mack Block

PHILADELPHIA

Walter St. Clare Knodle
1523 Chestnut St.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Sidney Silber
Univ. School of Music
NASHVILLE, TENN.

C. J. Schubert

Schubert Cons. of Music
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

S. W. Mountz

1651 6th Ave.

ERIE, PA.

Albert H. Dowling Jr.
456 E. Seventh St.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

J. Henry Francis
St. John's Church

WASHINGTON

Horace D. Hitchcock
2224 F St., N. W.

MINNEAPOLIS

Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
109 Marlborough Hotel

St. Paul, Minn.

Anna Ingman
Franklinstrasse 20

Papers on sale

J. Ries' Music Store
Seestrass 21

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, April 23, 1915

No. 17

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Nothing could be more hopeful in the musical situation than the splendid success which has been attained throughout the current season by the Chicago pianists in their local concerts. Again and again have these young artists drawn capacity audiences to Fine Arts Theater, Central Music Hall, Thurber Hall and various other places.

The latest example occurred on last Saturday morning when Mr. Silvio Scionti drew a magnificent audience to hear a recital at Kimball Hall at 11 o'clock. Not only was every seat taken, but also the organ department of the W. W. Kimball Co., which adjoins the hall proper, was filled with people, and, for the first time in the history of the hall, the stage also was filled with chairs, and even with all this provision scores were turned away unable to find seats.

§ § §

The neglect of such a common courtesy as the sending of tickets to the newspapers and the music papers for a local event, especially when of a choral nature, is certainly very poor business policy. Young people spend their time and artists accept local engagements as soloists with these societies very largely on the supposition that the events are to receive attention by the local papers. And yet, the management of certain choral societies are again and again guilty of such gross carelessness as that of not sending out tickets. The concert of the Marshall Field Choral Society last week is a late example, though the same thing has happened in connection with other choral societies earlier in the season.

§ § §

Masons, Odd Fellows and other orders build their halls for their own purposes, of course, and not with the end in view of making them suitable for miscellaneous concert use, but it seems a pity that both ends could not be better served.

Within the week Music News has attended functions at the Englewood Masonic Temple, the fine new hall on North Robey street and the Myrtle Masonic Hall in Irving Park, all of which were found to be magnificent auditoriums, but in every case possessing so small and badly arranged Thank God for Work.

Thank God every morning when you get up you have something to do that must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to do your best you will breed in you a hundred virtues that the idle never know.

—CHARLES KINGSLEY.

stages that even a small chorus was hampered sadly in performance. These halls could be made great civic centers for music, as a fact they are so now in a limited way, but they should certainly provide good extension platforms for the use of chorus. When more of these halls are built the projectors should remember that they will be providing a great public utility if they will but provide halls and stages which are fully suitable for mass events in which a hundred or more people might be put upon the stage.

§ § §

In Chicago the directory columns of Music News are regarded as a very faithful and complete list of addresses and telephone numbers of professional musicians. It is a common answer here to the enquiry: "Where shall I find So and So?" "Why look in the Music News Directory Columns, of course." There is no such utility in New York, however, or at least there had been none prior to the publication of a cunning little booklet which is called The Key. This has just been placed on the market, and is published by The Key Publishing Company, 171 West Fifty-seventh street. It is certainly a model of its kind, for in its pages may be found the addresses and telephone numbers of practically all singers, violinists, cellists, harpists, accompanists, ensembles, managers, clubs, orchestras, organists, opera companies, theaters, concert halls and music critics.

§ § §

The selection of a number of young Chicago singers for solo places in the new Chicago Grand Opera Company is a thoroughly graceful act. It will react to the very great good of the coming season. All Chicagoans wish these young people great success and will watch their careers with interest.

§ § §

"Aren't you glad," said the doorman at Orchestra Hall to me last Saturday night, "that the concert season is about over?"

This reflects the idea of many people in their supposition that everything ends with the orchestra concerts and the recitals presented by visiting artists. The facts, however, do not carry out the assumption and as a matter of fact, the "season" is still very far from completed.

Chicago is second to no city in the world (at present) in the importance of its pedagogic endeavors and as a matter of fact between now and the end of June there will be no less than 300 or 400 faculty and student concerts (including commencements), these constituting the most important feature of the entire music season. Critics of the daily press do not agree with this statement, of course, but it is true,

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius
TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Lescheltzky
The Brooks-Evans Building
Minneapolis, Minn.
CORNELIA
For years with Heermann and Sevcik
CLEOPHAS
Have Returned from Europe and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen
TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT CONTRALTO
Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN VOICE
403 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

BIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue CHICAGO

nevertheless, for, in these concerts not only will an immense repertoire of music be presented but very much of it will be done admirably. Many students will appear, who, in the future, will become the great artists of the world.

If this be not true, of what avail is all the teaching?—and since it is (emphatically) true, it follows that the coming concerts are of vast importance.

Rudolph Ganz chose a peculiarly unattractive program for his Sunday recital in Chicago. All arrangements of the Bach "Chaconne" are bad enough, but that of Busoni is torture to sensitive ears. Haydn came as a benediction after that and Chopin in his "Sonata" is standard always. But some of the modern things played later, including those by the pianist himself, were not attractive and the Liszt "Rakoczy March," with which the program ended, is far from being a musical delight.

The "Elderly Person" of Music News has been a season subscriber to the concerts of the Symphony Orchestra ever since they began and, as he is a first-rate "mixer," he knows as well as any one person what the feeling is from year to year in the balcony at Orchestra Hall, in which part of the house he has always preferred to have his seats. His article today in Music News is therefore of much more than passing interest; it is an expression of opinion by one who knows whereof he writes.

Two weeks ago the Leader referred editorially to Omaha as possessing the "truly rural delights of a small town," and the next week, after a protest from Mr. Borglum of Omaha, declared the statement to have resulted from a printer's error.

In spite of this, however, the original statement was perilously near the truth.

A certain man who visits the West often, in conversation with me recently named Omaha as a "nonmusical and self-centered town."

True, Mrs. Millie Ryan lives there and she is a woman of ideas as well as so much power that even New York managers know her work and engage her pupils for important positions.

Also, Goodwal Dickerman, a vocal teacher with thoughts beyond the city limits, is there located, but most of the others know nothing of musical journalism, wide publicity or of what is really going on outside of Omaha.

Some weeks ago (and for several weeks) Musical America supported editorially the idea of an International School of Opera in Paris, which rich Americans were asked to help by subscribing five thousand dollar scholarships.

This in spite of the fact that the idea was diametrically opposed to the wonderful propaganda made by that paper for "American art" and "home study."

Music News pronounced the idea preposterous from the start and said that if American money was to support the venture, the school itself should be located in Chicago, New York or Boston.

Evidently other factors have taken the same view and it is announced now that the institution is actually to be located in New York.

Musical America has promptly had a change of heart and is now advocating the new plan as heartily as it did the original one.

"GAMALIEL," NOT "GABRIEL"!

Mr. Editor: Kindly allow me to pull the compositor down from heaven, who, in last week's issue of Music News, in the article on the Exposition Eisteddfod, and in the paragraph concerning Mr. Redfern Mason, page 29, inserted "Gabriel" instead of "Gamaliel." Doubtless, Mr. Mason would gladly sit at the feet of "Gabriel," had he a chance, and learn some of the "unutterable things" we have read of, but he did enjoy sitting at the feet of the most angelic musician that ever lived on earth, the late and beloved Dr. George A. Macfarren, president of the London Royal Academy of Music.

WILLIAM APMADOC.

A LETTER

Los Angeles, Cal., April 14, 1915.

Enclosed please find check for $2.00 for Music News the coming year. It is interesting from cover to cover, although I sometimes (?) skip the last three pages.

I most heartily commend the stand you take for opera in English, as well as distinct enunciation of all songs in the vernacular. Your comments along these lines will surely stimulate students as well as professional singers to greater efforts in this direction.

Cordially yours,
(MRS.) ELIZABETH WALLACE.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

A well chosen list of piano works was well given on last Saturday afternoon at the Chicago Piano College lecture rooms by Miss Berg, Miss Guido, Miss Nolan, Miss Willis, Miss Leitch, Miss Sowka and Miss Kent.

Next Saturday at 2:30 the following program will be played by Miss Irene Greider:
Prelude and Fugue B Flat Minor.....Bach
(Book I. Well Tempered Clavier)
Gopak.....Moussorgsky
Serenade to the Moon.....Pugno
March Wind.....MacDowell
Nocturne F Sharp Minor.....Chopin
Waldestrauchen.....Liszt
Concerto Opus 16 (first movement).....Grieg
(Mr. Watt at Second Piano)

Iowa Association—The Society of Music Teachers of Iowa will hold their meeting at Waterloo on May 19, 20 and 21.

Music in Chicago

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

Mrs. Ella La Forge Murphy is an eastern singer, who comes to our Chicago concert platform peculiarly well equipped for her chosen career, both musically and mentally; as in these days musical intelligence is valued equally with a voice.

Mrs. Murphy early displayed this coveted gift, and accompanying, as it did, a voice of unusual range and color, she was spared much of the drudgery and toil that go into the making of many a young artist.

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

Her work as a church and concert singer, in and near New York invariably afforded satisfaction and enjoyment, for she has that rare faculty of being able to project a very likable and agreeable personality out to her audiences, which always pleases. This charm, and her artistry have won unusual recognition from many noted musicians whom she now has the honor to count as friends.

When Felix Weingartner visited New York to conduct the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at its sixtieth anniversary, Mrs. Murphy sang under his baton, and she has appeared on the same program with Pasquale Amato, Marie Rappold, Madam Nordica, Schumann-Heink, and many other artists whom the world has delighted to honor. Madam Chaminade, Liza Lehmann, Saint-Saens, and Charles Gilbert Spross have accompanied her when she sang their compositions—a rare honor; and as an officer of the New York Rubinstein Club and chairman for many years of its Saturday afternoon musicales, she was recognized by the musical director, Mr. William R. Chapman, and its most gracious president, Mrs. Chapman, as a valued and distinguished person. Mrs. Murphy has an admirable stage presence—serene poise and dignity—and her style at times has been compared to the inimitable Schumann-Heink.

AT THE CLIPPINGER STUDIOS

The series of song recitals at the Clippinger Studios in Kimball Hall revolved around to a program of Grieg songs on Saturday afternoon with Miss Emily Berger, mezzo-soprano, as the interpreter and Mrs. Charles Orchard again at the piano. As is always the custom at these studio recitals, Mr. D. A. Clippinger brought added interest and pleasure to the program by his concise and intelligent preface to each number. That this part of the afternoon is always appreciated by the large audiences which assemble is proven by the applause which greets Mr. Clippinger at the close of his remarks.

In Miss Berger was found another of the many splendid singers who are taking work at these studios. She possesses a charming and gracious personality combined with one of those rich, luscious voices which always brings pleasure wherever heard. Then to have her sing a list of fifteen Grieg songs, which, by the way, cannot be surpassed by any other composer, and you have an hour of song which is a rare delight. No small part of this delight came through the colorful and sympathetic playing of the piano score by Mrs. Orchard.

The songs which Miss Berger offered were "Morning," "I Love Thee," "Ragnhild," "Margaret's Cradle Song," "Woodland Wandering," "Good Morning," "First Meeting," "The Princess," "Solvejgs Song," "A Swan," "The First Primrose," "A Vision," "On the Journey Home," "The Way of the World," and "In the Boat." These brought to the ear of all present every angle, characteristic and mood in which Grieg wrote and is known. However, these points would not have been so apparent had not Miss Berger known the songs exceptionally well and been blessed with the power to interpret them with assurance and in a convincing manner. The program was indeed an achievement and success for both singer and teacher.

Spry—At a series of Wednesday morning interpretation classes at the Walter Spry Music School the players have been Ida May Cook, Jesse V. Wing, Jessie M. Curtis, Marie Eberhardt, Maud McNeill, Mrs. Florence Parrish Ray, Mrs. Helen H. Snyder, Mrs. Agnes H. Peterson, Florence Allen and Ruth P. Wright. On next Wednesday, April 28, at 11:30, the closing program will be played by Clinton Fahrney.

Johnson—Frank Tatham Johnson, director, presented the choir of the South Congregational Church in concert last Friday evening. The soloists were Leo Sowerby, pianist; Edna Bruner, violinist; Mrs. Frank Tatham Johnson, vocal; Mr. Johnson, tenor, and Messrs. Maupin, Brelin, Hoyt and Huet, in ensembles.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES HERBERT M. BAILEY

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHR

CONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST Care of MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST Mezzo-Soprano
1403 E. 68th STREET PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2423 S. LAWNDAL E AVENUE

The Artist's Piano

THE most convincing demonstration of the superiority of the Mason & Hamlin Piano is found in its continued use by those whose judgment is authoritative. The supreme test lies in the fact that so many artists who have played all other leading pianos have finally turned to the Mason & Hamlin as the instrument best suited to their exacting requirements.

Mason & Hamlin

Pianos are for sale only at the warehouses of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

Write for beautiful illustrated catalog

NORMAL PARK BAPTIST

Sunday morning, April 18, the choir of the Normal Park Baptist Church was heard in a new anthem, the composer being William Griswold Smith, director of the choir.

"The Lord Is Thy Light" (Smith) has a good organ accompaniment and the voice parts are well written. It has a good melody and musically and in thought fits the text very well indeed. It offers two short solo opportunities that were well sung by Mr. Smith, and a member of the choir.

"The Lord Is Thy Light" should easily find a place in the repertoire of the many church choirs. The choir gave a good account of itself in Mr. Smith's composition, and Barnby's "Sweet Is Thy Mercy." Miss Beulah Lee Taylor gave excellent support to the choir throughout the service. Her rendition of Ralph Kinder's "Prelude" (Idyll) left nothing to be desired.

— — — — —

Little Theater—On Tuesday, May 4, Mme. Borgny Hammer, the celebrated Norwegian actress, will present at the Chicago Little Theater Ibsen's "Rosmersholm." Mme. Hammer's interpretation of "Hedda Gabler" at the Little Theater last year will be remembered as one of the unusual productions of the season.

— — — — —

Fullerton Hall—The opera to be discussed by Henriette Weber at Fullerton Hall next Sunday evening is "The Quarreling Lovers" by Parelli. The soloists will be Marjorie Dodge Warner, Louise Harrison Slade, Arthur Kraft and Dr. William Carver Williams.

THE MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

Mrs. Agnes Hansel Harter, announced to sing a charming list of songs at the MacBurney Studio on last Monday night in alternation with Mrs. Margaret Fishburn, a thoroughly pleasing soprano, found herself indisposed in the afternoon and, at the last moment, with scarcely any time whatever for preparation, Miss Hazel Huntley stepped into the breach and not only presented with Mrs. Fishburn the announced duets, but also sang a list of solos in such exceptional form and with such a wealth of vocal opulence that she simply carried the audience by storm.

Miss Huntley has a voice of most unusual compass and possibilities and she has also a thoroughly keen intelligence whereby she discerns the inherent differences in songs and knows how to present each one after its own most effective manner.

On Monday "Lilacs" and "Morning" by Tchaikowsky were examples of the very highest grade of singing, there being present a most keen perception of all the light and shade intended by the composer.

Coleridge-Taylor's "Death and Life" is a gorgeous song and Miss Huntley gave it for every iota of its value, Stevenson's "Salutation of the Dawn" being also broadly dramatic.

"Good Morrow" (Pette) was of different type, but it too was made to tell its true story, a story in this case of piquancy and charm.

Mrs. Fishburn has a clear, steady tone production and much grace and style in interpretation.

"It Was the Time of Roses" (Homer) was the very best thing she did, and it was delightful, indeed. A strange song by Van Nuys Vogel and another by Noble, as well as the wonderfully potent "Summer Time," by Ward-Stephens, served to still further emphasize her good points, while the big soprano aria from Massenet's "Le Cid" proved her both temperamental and dramatic.

The MacBurney pupils are certainly having a lot of duet training and at this concert again there was given some delightful examples of this kind of work.

Bohm's "Calm as the Night" was beautifully done by Mrs. Fishburn and Miss Huntley, while the Tchaikowsky "Morning Glow" was a poem of joy.

"Stille Gruesse" (Esser) had great intensity to commend it and "Die Boten der Liebe" (Brahms) proved to be a song of strength presented with full conviction of its meaning.

Salter's "Charm of Spring" made a happy and appropriate close to the program and was sung with great abandon.

Mr. Doane at the piano was in happy mood and played with great freedom and vitality, excelling in wonderful way in such pieces as that of Salter and Ward-Stephens.

C. E. W.

— — — — —

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone, appeared this week at Orchestra Hall, Chicago, with the Teachers' Chorus, under the direction of Mr. O. E. Robinson, Tuesday evening, April 30. On Wednesday evening Mr. Clarke was engaged to sing the baritone role in Gade's "Erlking's Daughter" at Terre Haute, Ind.

THE FEDERATED CLUB CONCERT

A concert was given by the Federated Music Clubs of Chicago and Suburbs at the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel on last Thursday evening for the benefit of various funds and purposes of the federation, and a distinguished audience came together to listen to one of the best programs given in Chicago this year.

An outstanding feature was a chorus assembled from the various clubs, and consisting of something less than a hundred voices, under the direction of William L. Tomlins.

This veteran conductor, once the supreme favorite in Chicago, proved at this time that he has lost none of his old time fire and power, and the chorus, under his baton, made fine work of a sacred song by Schubert and "The Death of Trenar" (Brahms).

Miss Mary Marshall, Miss Julia Marshall and Miss Edna MacDonald played trios for piano, violin and viola with rare skill, individually, and with extremely precise and artistic ensemble values, Miss Amy Emerson Neill making a success also in violin numbers.

Mrs. Mabel Corlew Smidt displayed her excellent style and musicianship and proved again that no sweeter voice is now in Chicago in a well chosen group of songs by Speaks, Bachlet, Beach and MacFayden, her success with the audience being instantaneous and emphatic.

Mr. William Beard disclosed the same sincere and powerful vocal attributes so recently heard and commented upon in a Fine Arts Theater concert, and proved himself master of his art and the group of songs chosen for the occasion, which included works by Handel, Hartmann, Carpenter and Branscombe.

Miss Esther May Plumb showed wonderful power and brilliance in the Debussy "Prodigal Son" aria and disclosed many of the finer vocal graces and much interpretative charm in a "Slumber Song" by Gretchaninow and "Love is the Wind" by MacFayden, rising to a splendid climax in the last named.

The three singers proved to be in excellent contrast, each to the other, and much variety was afforded by their various numbers, while each one of them was thoroughly appreciated and heartily acclaimed by the distinguished musical audience present.

A number of unusual interest was the group of piano works by Miss Carol Robinson, who chose to play a Liszt "Valse Impromptu" and two short pieces of MacDowell besides his scintillant "Concert Etude." This young artist is the peer of any young European who has ever appeared in Chicago, and she bids fair to rank with the best of the older ones as well. A remarkable gift is hers and it has been remarkably conserved and developed by her teacher, Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler.

The accompanists for the various numbers were Mrs. John R. Lindgren, Miss Vera Plummer, Miss Charlotte Johnson, Miss Mae Doelling and Mr. Robert MacDonald.

C. E. W.

— — — — —

Symphony Orchestra—The Chicago Symphony Orchestra gave the closing concert for the season at Mandel Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church }
Walter Spry School } Chicago

Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

STEPHEN ERST AGAIN OFFERS SURPRISE

A very astonishing young man is Mr. Stephen Erst, director of the piano department of the Stein Conservatory.

When he returned from a long stay in Europe some years ago he gave a piano recital at the Fine Arts Theater and at once proved that he is a virtuoso pianist of much worth.

A little later he invited the writer to visit his choir loft on the north side and there gave a convincing demonstration of the fact in a Sunday evening service, that he is a good organist and a fine choirmaster.

Later Mr. Erst began to teach piano down town, and soon was presenting pupils who did him immense credit as a pedagogue. Such a case was last spring when, at Association Hall he presented a large class in a program made up entirely of concertos.

This was not the only surprise of the evening, however, for a goodly contingent of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra was on the stage, and Mr. Erst appeared, for the first times, as a director, and not once in fifty concerts, has there been such unanimity of feeling between amateur pianists and professional orchestra, the results being, in short, remarkable.

This year, i. e., on last Wednesday evening at Association Hall, there was again a well trained class of young pianists playing a concerto program, and Mr. Erst again conducted with great success, but, quite in his usual style he had another surprise, for his audience in that three of his own compositions appeared on the program and these proved to be well written and full of characteristic and original ideas.

The symphonic poem, "Faun and Nymph," proved to be a gay piece, full of vitality and musical charm, and the "Bohemian Bachanal" was scintillant and characteristic to the last degree. Under the baton of Mr. Erst these were played by the orchestra with great precision and effect.

The third piece was a "Rhapsody" for pianoforte solo with orchestra, and in this Mr. Erst played the solo score with distinction, and the orchestra provided a good accompaniment, the whole effect being so brilliant that the composer-pianist was recalled many times to receive the plaudits of the very large audience present.

The concerto playing by the Erst pupils was of much excellence and included movements from works by Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Godard.

The pianists were Adele Vraz, Mildred Montessor, Tania Vojan, Gertrude Bongard, Camille Kosar, Marion Falkenbach, Anna Svikhart, Marion Ledgerwood, Lillian Cervenka, Hazel C. Palmer and Anna Weske.

Smetana's "Lullabye" was sung by Miss Catherine Walsh.

C. E. W.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, has given two students' recitals a week for the past two weeks, the first under the direction of Miss Maude Tollefson of the violin department, and was given mostly by children of the violin department who have had from six to fifteen lessons, assisted by students from the other departments. The program was excellent; the violin numbers were played in exact tune, even by the youngest performer, Emmet Vance, 6 years of age, who played, as did the rest, from memory. Those taking part were Olive McCullough, Leonard Smith, Helen Doud, George Razanka, Gordon Mills, Elmer Schweikle, Paul Currier, George Hahn, Sylvia Bennett, Emmet Vance, Ralph Seavcy, Frances Klassen, Edwin Thorsen, Arthur Moritz, Arthur Best, Ethel Ell, Miriam Jenkins, Allen Jenkins, Myrtle Rauschell, Rose Riley, Rumell Aubrey, Helen Golding.

On Friday evening, April 16, the program was under the direction of Eula M. Foote of the piano department and was given mostly by her pupils, assisted by stu-

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

dents of the other departments. The numbers were very well given. Those playing were Helen Larkin, John Riley, Bonnie Donaldson, Edna Williams, Ruth Couffer, Anna Wedemeyer, Bessie Markson, Ada Markson, Gladys Wagner, Beulah Berkowitz, Edith Conlon, Lucille Linneman, Adaline Millar, Ti Cable, Raymond Way, Ellsworth Waters, Cyril Burlingame, Richard DeBusk.

The next recital will be on Friday evening, April 23, given by Edna Gregory, Adolph Kraus, Mary Jones, Dorothy Bergman, Gertrude Maxwell, Lawrence Rubin, Leah Rubin, Roy McInd, E. Cramer, Ralph Merrick, Beulah Bassett and others.

------
Abernethy—Miss Patricia Abernethy has appeared recently with Watahwaso, the Indian princess, before the Dorothy Meadows Drama Circle, in recital at Rogers Park and in recital at Central Music Hall; with Artur Platz at Woman's Guild, St. Luke's Church, and will accompany him in his coming Central Music Hall concert.

------
Hughes—Violet Martens-Hughes, accompanist, will assist Mrs. Isabel Fraser on program at the Edgewater Drama Club Friday, April 16. She will also appear at a banquet at the Congress Hotel on Friday evening and at Hotel La Salle on Saturday afternoon.

BUSH TEMPLE

Violin—Canzonetta D'Ambrosio
Souvenir Drdla
Piano—Rhapsodie No. 12..... Liszt
Violin—Concerto Romantique Godard
Allegro-Moderato
Adagio
Allegretto
Piano—Blue Danube Waltz.....Strauss-Schulze-Elver
Violin—Les Farfadets Pente
Liebesfreud Kreisler

Such was the program given by Mary Thomas, violinist, aged twelve years, assisted by Violet Bourne, pianist, aged thirteen years, in Recital Hall, Bush Temple Conservatory, Friday evening, April 16. The event was a benefit for little Miss Thomas, and it was a financial success, judging by the size of the audience. It certainly was a musical success, there being nothing to mar the pleasure of the occasion, or that need be apologized for, notwithstanding the youth of the performers.

How is one to describe the playing of these little ladies anyway, or account for it? Training? Certainly they have had expert training. Mr. Guy Herbert Woodward is the teacher of Mary Thomas, and Mme. Julie Rive-King is responsible for Violet Bourne's piano training. Both these teachers have professional reputations of the first order, but even that fact does not tell the tale. "Inspired" is the word that occurred to the reviewer, while listening to the remarkable playing of these exceedingly young musicians.

Mary Thomas is a modest little body, who seems to forget the audience entirely, as she plays. Her instrument is much smaller than the ordinary-sized violin; but she brings unusually rich tones from it, and seems to completely abandon herself to the sheer joy of making not merely tones but music. In fact, she seems a part of the music.

Besides the numbers noted on the program, she played as an encore "The Bee," by Schubert, and it proved to be a gem of daintiness.

Violet Bourne plays with the skill and poise of a mature pianist. She has technic and temperament aplenty, and by her playing and manner, she impresses one with the feeling that she knows entirely what she is about.

Certainly these two little people form an unusual and remarkable combination. Mr. Earl Victor Prah, ably supported Mary Thomas by careful piano accompaniments.

C. J. B.

"CREATION" AT COVENANT CHURCH

Mr. John T. Trowbridge will present the Covenant Chorus in "Creation" at the church, North Halsted street and Belden avenue, on Monday evening, April 26.

The soloists will be Helen Axe Brown, M. J. Brines, and Charles E. Lutton. Mr. Trowbridge will conduct, Mr. George S. Schuler will be at the organ, and Mrs. Charles F. Davidson at the piano.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY
300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

IRISH CHORAL SOCIETY PRESENTS VERDI'S "REQUIEM"

The Irish Choral Society, with Daniel Protheroe conducting, performed Verdi's "Manzoni Requiem Mass" on Sunday afternoon, April 18, at Orchestra Hall. This marked the twenty-ninth appearance of the society in concert and a very successful afternoon it was indeed. With the chorus in its usual high form, Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; Albert Lindquest, tenor, and Marion Green, bass, assisted by fifty members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Allen W. Bogen, organist, Verdi's beautiful work received a magnificent performance.

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON

Mr. Protheroe conducted with a masterful hand throughout the afternoon, furnishing to both chorus and soloists through the medium of the orchestra the most satisfying and meritorious support. The chorus knew its work extremely well, gained many inspiring and beautiful effects in both softer and louder passages. Especially worthy of mention was the climax gained at the end of part four (Sanctus), which is a fugue for double chorus. The audience burst forth with vigorous applause at this point, which was only a repetition of what occurred after the powerful and almost startling effect gained with the "Dies Irae" portion of the work. The "Tuba Mirum," which also comes in the second part, became a magnificent trumpet chorus and the closing lines, which come in the form of a majestic fugue, were sung in excellent style.

Mrs. Warner, who has been filling numerous fine engagements this season, sang the long and taxing soprano part in a wholly praiseworthy manner. This solo part lies high and only the voice which is produced with extreme freedom and poise can stand the test. This soprano apparently accomplished the task with ease. Her voice rang out true and clear above orchestra and chorus when such a demand was made and there was at all times noted the poise of an artist and the intelligence of the deep and sincere musician.

The singing of Mrs. Gannon stands out as one of the extreme bright spots in the performance. The part which fell to the lot of this singer also reaches a very high point in the voice, in fact it is written for mezzo-soprano, but no better choice could have been made for Mrs. Gannon sang with a rare display of beautiful tone at all times and never a phrase did she offer but what contained the stamp of a great artist. The feeling and expressive shading which comes with her singing makes that portion of a performance convincing and memorable.

To Mrs. Gannon and Mrs. Warner fell the gem of the whole work. The "Agnus Dei," or fifth part. The duet consists throughout of unison phrases, the soprano being written one octave above the alto. It is simple in style which no doubt accounts for its beauty. At least these singers offered it so. They sang with delightfully blended tones and with a fervent expressive thought mingled therein.

Mr. Lindquest gave an unusually good account of himself, on this occasion singing with assurance, authority and brilliant vocal display, especially in the higher scale. Mr. Green was no less successful. His deep, rich voice and commendable interpretative powers stood him in good stead throughout the performance.

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

While there is not any great display for an organist in this work, there nevertheless must be a master at the instrument in order to give just the proper and effective support necessary to round out a complete and well balanced performance. Mr. Bogen accomplished and gained these points on the Orchestra Hall organ on Sunday afternoon.

H. M. B.

IRVING PARK ORCHESTRA SERIES

The tenth concert of the series at Myrtle Masonic Temple, being the last of the second season, was given on Friday evening to a capacity audience.

Music News has taken occasion to endorse these concerts frequently and this particular one served especially to emphasize their importance and their artistic value.

Undoubtedly these concerts have proven an immense artistic and educational gain and the projectors of the enterprise are worthy of great commendation.

Mr. George Dasch, the conductor, has proven himself the right man for the place most emphatically and has grown in popular favor from week to week.

The program of Friday was distinctly popular in make up and was received with great joy by the audience.

The Tannhauser March, "Mignon" Overture and Moszkowsky "Serenata," all old favorites, suited the twenty-three piece orchestra admirably and were played with much spirit.

The "Largo" from Dvorak's "New World Symphony" showed the finer qualities of both conductor and players, and the "Ball Scene," by Hellmesberger, created a sensation.

The "Festival Overture," by Lassen, is tawdry in effect and hardly worthy the powers of this body of players, but the Strauss Waltz, "Thousand and One Nights," is delightful and it was adorably played at this time. One wonders again that it is not oftener used.

The Saint-Sacns "Tarentelle" for flute and clarinet duct with a cunningly subdued orchestral accompaniment again proved its own intrinsic worth and showed Messrs. Quesnel and Meyer to be artists also, while Walfried Singer in a harp solo (and encores) proved a popular success.

C. E. W.

——

HENIOT LEVY PUPILS IN RECITAL

A program of special elegance as to make up was that presented by the Levy pupils at Kimball Hall, auspices of the American Conservatory, on last Saturday afternoon, and right royally was it presented.

Before the arrival of this writer, well selected numbers had been played by Margaret E. Badenoch, Theo Amsbury, Annie Windmiller, Ada Honderick and Gladys Williams.

The first numbers heard were three by Mendelssohn, which, standing in juxtaposition, made a fine group. These were "Rondo Capriccioso," "Caprice in A Minor" and "Scherzo and Capriccio," all of which were well played, the executants being Josephine Rosensweet, Pauline Mincer and Nell McCready.

A "Rhapsodie" (Brahms) disclosed the fact that Gustav Dunkelberger has power and surety, Catherine Cajorie was suave in a Chopin "Nocturne," the "Mephisto Waltzes" (Liszt) proved that Sophie Lobel has a superior technical equipment and the List-Busoni "Spanish Rhapsody" was played with great aplomb by Miss Alpers.

A specially well done number was the "Pocaccia Brillante," in which Alice Olsen showed splendid native ability and proved also that she has made good use of her study hours. She plays with a refreshingly clear and limpid touch and besides possessing absolute certainty and an unshakable poise, she has also such good taste in phrasing, in accent, rhythm and technical finish as well as in interpretative details that it is very easy to predict for her unusual success. She was accompanied by Mr. Levy at the second piano and the ensemble was an unusually good one.

C. E. W.

DEVRIES PUPILS IN RECITAL

That Mr. and Mrs. Herman Devries have many talented pupils everybody knows, and also the fact that besides being good accompanists both, they have exquisite taste in the selection, arrangement and presenting of a program.

No one was surprised, therefore, on last Wednesday evening to find Thurber Hall filled to the utmost with people anxious to hear their pupils' concert, nor at the fact that this audience early in the evening waxed very enthusiastic and that this enthusiasm endured without pause to the end of the very long program of songs.

The catholicity of taste of the Devries was shown in the splendid list of songs chosen. These ranged through old classics, operatic arias of all schools, German, French and Italian repertoire, both old and new, and many characteristic American compositions, including works by Dagmar Rubner, R. Cyril Graham, Nicholas Doty, Mrs. Beach and a very clever little piece by Herman Devries, entitled "Le Meilleur moment des amours," well sung by Maude Roberts.

A moment of the evening which rose to unusual interest was that when Raymond Gifford lent his fine voice to "Let Us Have Peace," by Ernest R. Ball. In this the composer has caught the exact spirit of the times in America and has worked it into a very attractive song. It ought to be sung in thousands of concerts and could not fail to have its marked effect on the situation.

It is impossible to detail all the work done at this concert or to list the entire program. Suffice it to say that every pupil appeared to advantage, some of them rose to positive eloquence, and the entire concert proved that excellent work is done continuously at the Devries studios. Those appearing on the program were Hazel Dawn Bentlich, Anna Gray, Maud Churchill, Rose Elita Perigo, Rachael Swartz, Mae Panoch, Lillian Goutlich, Catharine Teheny, Bernice Shane Cohan, Margaret Gaffey, Maude Roberts, Raymond Gifford, Celia Haskell Small, Dorothy Cannon, Maud de Voe Keine, Lina Owsley Bartlett, Huntington B. Henry, Anna Pollaschek, Mrs. Ferdinand Schevill and Mrs. Cafarelli.

C. E. W.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto--Haze Hunt

Director-Accompanist

TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

ONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

"THE MIKADO" AT FULLERTON HALL

The last but one of the opera evenings at Fullerton Hall brought to us a superb presentation of "The Mikado." Perhaps the inadequate professional productions of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas seen by the Chicago public the past seasons, accounts for the few vacant seats of Sunday evening, but for those few who may have said "I heard 'The Mikado' once," it is well to say they missed a rare treat.

The quartet, Henriette Weber, piano; Fritz Itte, violin; Carl Hillman, viola; Carl Klammssteiner, 'cello, as always, gave splendid support to the singers, and their rendition of the overture left nothing to be desired.

Miss Weber in a very neat and deft manner gave the story of the opera, replete in humor, without a single link missing to make the evening complete.

Louise Harrison Slade was a happy choice as "Katisha and Pitti Sing." She drew her interpretations along broad lines, and her singing of the allotted solos, was artistic and musicianly. "And Yet I Live" was so especially well done that it was redemanded.

Dr. William Carver Williams as the Mikado and Koko excelled himself. The music of the roles lies so well for his voice that a better choice would be difficult to make. He was in splendid trim, displaying great vocal resource and artistry in his interpretations. He sang the many songs in a thoroughly finished manner. Humor he has a plenty, used with telling effect in the felicitous "Gilbert" lines.

Mr. Williams' singing of "Mikado's Plan," "A True Philanthropist" and "Willow, Tit Willow" will long be remembered with unalloyed pleasure by the audience.

The opera for next Sunday (last program) is "The Quarreling Lovers" (Parelli). The soloists will be Marjorie Dodge Warner, Louise Harrison Slade, Arthur Kraft and Dr. William Carver Williams.

H. W. P.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

The School of Music of Northwestern University will hold its third summer session from June 21 to July 31, 1915. This session is especially planned to meet the needs of piano teachers who are too busily engaged during the regular teaching season to pay attention to their own improvement. A course of twelve class lessons per week will offer instruction in piano methods, harmony, musical form and analysis, and in history of music.

The classes in elementary piano methods will discuss various kindergarten systems, calling attention to the strong and weak points of each, and outlining a definite and systematic course of instruction whereby children may be thoroughly and successfully taught. A large repertory of teaching material will be examined, with directions as to how and when they may best be used.

The class for more advanced work will consider modern methods of pianoforte instruction, will review the available technical material, and will analyze many piano compositions both from the technical and the interpretative sides. Harmony will be presented in a most practical manner, and will include much work at the keyboard, while the classes in analysis will minutely consider classic works from the standpoint of the composer.

A number of courses will also be offered in the College of Liberal Arts and in the School of Oratory.

The natural attractions of Northwestern University campus on the lake shore, coupled with the advantages offered for study, will make a summer sojourn in Evanston most profitable.

—###—

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mr. H. B. Bartholomew presented a very interesting group of pupils in recital on last Saturday afternoon at Auditorium Recital Hall. A goodly number of auditors was present and applause was abundant and interest unfeigned. The work of the pupils varied in quality as the performers varied in years. Some were sure of themselves, others were nervous; some were gifted naturally, others had diligently acquired; but a noticeable and enjoyable feature was the frank willingness of each one to give the best they had with a simple di-

LEGINSKA, Pianist

Who appeared as soloist SEVEN times with the New York Symphony Orchestra this season, completely captivated the music-lovers of New York at her Carnegie Hall recital, Friday evening, March 19, as the following will attest:

"Leginska gave a convincing exhibition as a pianist in Carnegie Hall last evening. Her skill was of an exalted and unaffected character. She is a conscientious and sincere artist. It may safely be said that of the younger generation of pianists now before the public, Leginska ranks highest."—New York American, March 20th 1915.

Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

rectness which made for friendliness among those who listened.

Mr. Bartholomew occupies the unusual position of a teacher of vocal as well as piano music, and if one may judge by results is successful in both lines. The piano pupils presented were Dorothy Mallory, Melba Cromer, Alice Woods, Irene Milliken, Ethel Robrahn, Ernest Sorsen, Florence Vallette, Orrin Lilley, Paul Parce and Elsie Cromer. Very talented was the little Miss Melba Cromer, who did a Beethoven "Rondo" capitably; Ernest Sorsen, who had the Sibelius "Valse" well in hand, and Paul Parce, who is advanced enough to do the Moszkowski "Etincelles" brilliantly.

The voice pupils were Graee La Rococo, with a rich, natural voice in the early stages of training; Richard Hanson, Mildred Shaw, Madeline Dickinson, Louise Wagner and L. B. Reeder, who has a lovely tenor voice of fine timbre and a lot of style. In two numbers violin and 'cello obligatos were added, the players being Dwight Emigh and Clifford Briggs. Goring Thomas' beautiful "Times Garden" was made more so by the embellishment. Mr. Bartholomew played the accompaniments, and did them excellently.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

—###—

Cosmopolitan School—Miss Elsie Eidam will give a piano recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Tuesday evening, April 27. A pupils' concert will be given on Saturday afternoon, April 24, at 3 o'clock.

—###—

Harris—George Harris, Jr., tenor, gave a novelty song program at the Bandbox Theater in New York this week

"NORTHWESTERN" SCHOOL OF MUSIC

One can safely count on hearing something entirely enjoyable musically in Music Hall, Northwestern School of Music, when a recital is announced whether it occurs on the student faculty or artist series.

On Tuesday evening, April 13, two members of the senior class of the conservatory were heard in a strong program which reflected much credit upon themselves and upon their instructors.

Miss Bethena Strong, pianist, pupil of Carl M. Beecher, and Miss Mabel Marsh, soprano pupil of Walter Allen Stults, gave the program. Miss Strong played Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 10, No. 3, a group of compositions by Schubert, Sinding, Cyril Scott and Paul Juon. She also appeared with Mr. Beecher "March Militar" (Schubert-Tausig), for two pianos. Her good work in each number marked her as one having plenty of musical talent as well as first-class instruction.

The virtue of Mr. Stults' method of training voices appeared prominently in the singing of Miss Marsh. There was entire consistency as to placement of all tones, intelligent phrasing and excellent attack and coloring. Besides having a good natural voice, this young singer has a pleasing platform manner.

Schubert and Schumann contributed to the first number Miss Marsh gave. Her second number was an aria, "A Song of India" (from the legend "Saako") by Rimsky-Karsakow, and in closing the program she gave a well contrasted group by St. Niewiadomski, Singind, Rogers, A. Cyril Graham, Saar and Manney.

The name of the lady who played the accompaniments for Miss Marsh did not appear on the program, but her efforts were entirely satisfactory.

C. J. B.

—###—

Ehrhardt—Mr. Edward V. Ehrhardt will present his pupils in a long and well selected list of piano pieces at Kimball Hall on next Thursday evening. Those appearing will be Marian Kunze, Mindella Annenberg, Benedict Saxe, Walter Burger, Juliet Goldenberg, Lester Leserman, Rhoda Rice, Vivian Smith, Sybil Goodman, Emelie Voltz, Joe Piek, Lueille Frank Goldsmith, Sidney Adler, Herbert Louis, Alice Borchardt, Viola Burkhart, Robert Kunz, Rose Strauss, and Mildred Bergling, with second piano parts to the "Concertos" played by Mr. Ehrhardt.

—###—

Cosmopolitan School—During the spring and summer months Donald Robertson, director and star of the Drama Players, will conduct a class in dramatic art at the Cosmopolitan School. It was here under Mr. Robertson's direction that the well known players Milton Sills, Alice John, Marion Redlich, Louise Wolf and Olive Garnatt, first began to show their worth and climb the ladder of fame they now adorn.

—###—

Drake School—Tuesday evening, April 13, Ralph Michaelis, violinist, and pupil of Earl R. Drake, gave a very successful recital in the Auditorium Recital Hall. Marie Dupont, soprano, assisted. Beulah Lee Taylor and Margaret Worth Evans were the accompanists.

VIVIAN SCOTT PRESENTS A PUPIL

Miss Vivian Scott will present her thirteen-year-old pupil, Fanchon Bennett, in a piano recital at the Branch School of the

FANCHON BENNETT

Cosmopolitan School of Music, at 1339 East Forty-seventh street, on April 23, at 8:15. Program follows:

Gavotte	Bach
Sonata, D Major	Haydn
Fanchon Bennett
Pretty Young Miss Butterfly.....	Mary Turner Salter
Lady Moon	Mary Turner Salter
Miss Hunter
Esmeralda	Berens
Silhouette	Reinhold
Sicilian	Schumann
Etude	Ludvig Schytte
Souvenir	Bossi
Valse Chromatique	Godard
Fanchon Bennett
To a Messenger	Frank LaForge
Banjo Song	Homer
Miss Hunter
Barcarolle	Ludvig Schytte
Fanchon Bennett
Miss Scott at second piano

MENDELSSOHN CLUB

The concert of April 29 at Orchestra Hall will have this program:

On Gallant Company.....	V. E. Becker
The Autumn Woods.....	Samuel R. Gaines
Invictus	Bruno Huhn
Recit. et Air D'Azael	Debussy
Mandoline	Debussy
Wiegenlied	Brahms
Standchen	Strauss
Mr. John W. Nichols
Heartache	Dvorak
Idylle Mongolienne	Stevenson
Trelawny (Cornish Marching Song).....	A. W. Thayer
Lochinvar	Wm. G. Hammond
Incidental solo by Mr. Charles F. Champlin
Before the Dawn	W. F. Harling
Incidental solo by Mr. Nichols
Mammy's Lullaby.....	Arr. by Charles Gilbert Spross
In Vocal Combat.....	Dudley Buck
Floweret Blue	Dregert
The Stars Shine in Their Radiant Glory.....	E. R. Kroeger
The Banks of Allan Water	Horn
Spirit Flower	Campbell-Tipton
The Year's at the Spring.....	Beach
Mr. Nichols
Cradle Song	Saar
The Lost Chord	Sullivan-Brewer

SIXTH ANNUAL CHOIR CONTEST

The sixth annual choir contest was held at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church Monday evening, April 19, under the auspices of the Baton Club of Chicago.

The contestants comprised two groups of choirs; the first, choruses with memberships ranging from fifteen to twenty-five voices; the second, choruses with memberships ranging from twenty-six to sixty voices.

Cash prizes of forty and twenty-five dollars were awarded the winning choruses in each group, the choirs being judged on attack, enunciation, balance of parts, tone quality, intonation and interpretation.

The judges were Mr. Rossetter G. Cole, Mr. Grant Hadley and Mr. Hubbard Harris.

The group of smaller choirs sang first. They were:

Auburn Park M. E. Choir, J. Lakin Porter, director; Mrs. Harriet W. Pettit, organist.

Auburn Park Baptist Choir, Charles R. Coe, director; Mrs. Charles R. Coe, organist.

ALBERT BORROFF accepts pupils in all branches of singing. He shows the beginner how to use the voice properly, the amateur how to sing better, and the professional to add finish and style to interpretation.

Special Announcement

Mr. Borroff expects to be in Chicago during the summer and will accept pupils for the summer term.

Studio 504 Kimball Hall

HOURS 10 TO 3

Phones Wabash 8021, Kenwood 837

Woolley Memorial M. E. Choir, L. Douglas Russell, director; Miss Gertrude Elphich, organist.

Hammond (Ind.) M. E. Choir, Clark Leaming, director; Theodore Moor, organist.

Their contest numbers were: "Come, My Soul, Thou Must Be Waking" (Buck) and "As Torrents in Summer" (Elgar).

The second group, consisting of the larger choirs, sang: "Grieve Not the Holy Spirit of God" (Stainer) and "Return, O Wanderer" (Berwald). They were:

Normal Park Baptist Choir, William Griswold Smith, director; Miss Beulah Lee Taylor, organist. Immanuel Baptist Choir, W. D. Holt, director; Miss Carolyn G. Babcock, organist.

Grace M. E. Choir, William A. Willett, director; Miss Grace Grove, organist.

Washington Park Congregational Choir, Richard Proud, director; Miss Nellie M. Orr, organist.

Englewood M. E. Choir was to have been present and compete, but was prevented from doing so by a death in the family of Mr. Charles W. Leigh, the director.

For us to enter into a detailed consideration of each choir's work would hardly be expedient or profitable. The judges were there for that purpose, and their decision coincides with our opinion as to who fairly won the prizes.

Of the first group the Hammond Methodists were awarded first honors and Woolley Memorials second. In both organizations there was fine attack, good intonation and balance, and excellent interpretation.

Grace Methodist Choir took first prize in the group of large choirs, with Normal Park Baptists an exceedingly close second, according to this reviewer's judgment.

These two choirs were about evenly balanced as to numbers and grade of work; solidity of tone, fine contrasts and shading, prompt attacks and releases, all contributed to the excellence of their performances. Grace Choir probably made its lead in "points" with the judges by its unaccompanied singing. This choir has always maintained an enviable reputation for that sort of work.

Especially noticeable features in the singing of all the choirs competing were the unaccompanied efforts, and the interpretations, both being far beyond what might reasonably be expected of volunteer choruses.

Taking everything into consideration, each of the organizations may feel encouraged because of the good work accomplished.

While awaiting the judges' decision a number was given which was not printed on the program. This was a solo by the well known baritone, Charles E. Lutton. He sang "My Son's Not There" (Chausson) and "Old-Fashioned Town" (Squires), displaying his big rich tones and broad style in a manner highly pleasing to the audience. Mr. Lutton is a very satisfactory singer to listen to at all times. A. J. B.

C. A. HUTTER AND J. PARNELL EGAN

The fact that Mr. J. Parnell Egan secures return engagements at almost every one of his appearances speaks volumes for the skill of his teacher, Mr. C. A. Hutter of Kimball Hall.

Mr. Egan's April and May engagements, so far as decided upon, read as follows: April 2, Grace Church, Oak Park; 7, Austin, Wis.; 8, Kaukana, Wis.; 11, Delavan, Wis.; 12, Evanston, Ill.; 13, Delavan, Wis.; 14, Reedsburg, Wis.; 16, Davenport, Ia.; 17, Rock Island, Ill.; 20 Green Bay Wis.; 21, Marinette, Wis.; 22, Oconto, Wis.; 23, Oshkosh, Wis.; 27, Harley, Wis.; 28, Stevens Point, Wis.; 29, Grand Rapids, Wis.; May 8, Lake Shore Woman's Club, Chicago; 15, Longwood Academy, Chicago.

MARSHALL FIELD CHORAL SOCIETY

The Marshall Field Choral Society made an appearance at Orchestra Hall last week.

The soloists were Permelia Newby Gale, John B. Miller and James Goddard. No tickets were sent to Music News.

Detweiler—Mr. Harry Detweiler presented Miss Melitka Krieg in piano recital (assisted by Hazel Eden Mudge, soprano) at Aurora last week, her numbers including the Schutt "Concerto" and a beautifully selected list of classics and modern pieces for piano. Miss Krieg, a fine player for several years, although but sixteen now, has passed the stage of child pianist and at this concert proved herself a young artist of talent and imaginative powers as well as one extremely well fitted technically to cope with the best of the literature for the instrument.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS

'Cellist
American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
88 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

SILVIO SCIONTI IN RECITAL

Mr. Silvio Scionti drew a magnificent audience to Kimball Hall on last Saturday morning when he gave an unusually attractive piano recital especially for the benefit of the Sisters (courtesy of the W. W. Kimball Co.) and when an enthusiasm was engendered which is duplicated but few times in a season.

Mr. Scionti was in absolutely fine form and played with power, conviction and an amazing amount of finesse.

A Beethoven "Sonata" and numbers by Chopin and Liszt were well selected to show the musicianship and the definitely poetic and dramatic aspects of his work while a group of Cyril Scott and Debussy provided that element of novelty which was, in part, accountable for the unusual interest in the recital and which, it must be said also, evoked much expression of approval.

SILVIO SCIONTI

The individual impression of these numbers was that "Lotus Land," by Scott, which is a rather well known work, proved again to have unusual elements of attractiveness and that the "Passacaglia" from the "Pastoral Suite" by the same composer, was also characteristic and sane. It has a distinctly bucolic flavor.

The "Rondo" from Debussy's "La Boire a Joujou" is about as much like a rondo as it is like any other known musical form, but it has a certain ethereal quality which is charming to those people who understand it (of whom I am not one), while "L'isle Joieuse" is much more worth while, inasmuch at least as it presents a mood entirely in keeping with its name.

Mr. Scionti played these four novelties in superb manner and they elicited a goodly response from the audience.

Mr. Scionti throughout the program maintained a most exact and brilliant technical equipment and he disclosed continuously also the fact that he has grace and style both in his mental conceptions of pianoforte works and in his presenting of the same to his public.

C. E. W.

THE MISSES LEWIS AND BODHOLDT GIVE RECITAL

On Friday evening, April 16, the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art presented Miss Maude Lewis, soprano, and Miss Agnes Bodholdt, pianist, two young and very talented members of its faculty, in a recital at the Branch School, 1339 East Forty-seventh street. A large audience, much applause and many beautiful flowers greeted the musicians and furnished ample proof of the esteem in which they are held by friends of the school.

The program was an excellent one, interesting from beginning to end, varied and well arranged.

Miss Lewis was the first to appear, singing with unusual assurance as to rhythm and intonation the taxing yet beautiful aria by Bach, "Bleed and Break, Thou Loving Heart" and "Soldier, Rest! Thy Warfare O'er," by Schubert. "Auftrage" (Schumann), "Auf Geheimem Waldespfade" (Franz) and "Lerchengesang" (Brahms), three numbers sung in German, also came, in the opening group and presented the beautiful qualities of Miss Lewis' voice, as well as her interpretative powers, in a very pleasurable light.

At her second appearance the soprano offered a group of songs from the more modern composers, namely "Frühlingsgedränge" (Strauss), "The Children's Prayer" (Reger), "Non, je n'irai plus au bois" (Wekerlin), "L'Amour s'envole" (Wekerlin), "Beau Soir" (Debussy) and "Mandoline" (Debussy). In closing the program Miss Lewis sang "Magdalen at Michael's Gate" (Lehmann), "Babylon the Great" and "Sheep and Lambs" both by Homer, and "Life and Death" (Coleridge-Taylor). These songs proved especially grateful to the abilities of this singer and were therefore given with great abandon. Miss Lewis is graced with a charming personality. Her voice is light and sweet and is produced with unusual ease and freedom. She gave a splendid account of herself on this occasion and her teacher, Dr. Carver Williams, deserves a word of praise for her present attainments.

Miss Bodholdt easily shared the honors of the evening. She not only played accompaniments for the singer in a most finished, masterful and sympathetic style, but brought genuine pleasure to the audience by her excellent playing of "Reflections on the Water" (Debussy), an "Etude" by Sauer and the "Prelude" in C Sharp Minor by Rachmaninoff, which came at her first solo appearance. The "Rigoletto Fantasy" (Verdi-Liszt) found her at her best, and its excellent rendition brought a demand for more from the now enthusiastic audience, to which the pianist most graciously responded.

A more pleasing pianist as to stage presence is seldom seen than Miss Bodholdt, and her playing is wholly up to her appearance. Technical difficulties are apparently lost to her and her offerings glow from the sureness, shading and musical thought with which she plays. These two young artists should go far in their chosen work and will be heard again with pleasure.

H. M. B.

"CREATION" AT THE NEW FIRST CHURCH

Experience has taught H. Augustine Smith that the New First Church, immense as it is, will not accommodate the people who desire to come whenever he announces a gala performance by his choirs and soloists.

H. AUGUSTINE SMITH

He therefore, having learned by experience, announces that "The Creation" will be given three times during the coming week in order that all who wish may hear the performance.

These dates are April 25, April 29 and

DR. W. C. WILLIAMS

April 30, the announced soloists being Marie Sidenius Zendt, Warren E. Proctor, Dr. William Carver Williams, Gustaf Holmquist, Howard Preston and Edward Walker. H. Augustine Smith will conduct and Alice Deal will be at the organ.

MRS. BUTLER IN SATURDAY AFTERNOON CONCERT

Mrs. Hanna Butler was heard in two groups of songs at a concert given by the Mary Wood Chase School at Caxton Club rooms last Saturday afternoon.

With the exception of the piano works the entire program was French, Mrs. Butler being heard in "Ariette" (Vidal), "Chanson Indoue" (Karsakow), "Cher Nuit" (Brachelet), "Pastorale" (Bizet), "Le Ciel" (Carpenter) and "De Puis le Jour" (Charpentier). Mrs. Butler has an unusually pure French pronunciation and she is entirely in sympathy with the French thought and musical style.

Always, she gives these songs with distinction, but on Saturday afternoon she excelled herself, presenting her work with beautiful clarity, sufficient power and an absolute sweetness of quality; each song was made to stand for a distinct feeling and the arrangement and contrasts were exquisite.

Accompaniments were played by Mrs. Bert Leston Taylor.

Between the two groups by Mrs. Butler, piano numbers were heard from Miss Grace Curtis.

This young pianist chose very wisely to contrast a "prelude" of Chopin (Op. 45), with the Rubinstein "Etude" in C (false notes), and proved herself skillful and musical.

Readings were given by Madame Marie Lydia Standish.

C. E. W.

HAROLD HENRY PUPILS' CONCERT

The following program will be given by Henry pupils at Thurber Hall on Saturday afternoon, April 24, at 3:30:

Fantasy in G Minor.....	Bach-Liszt
Miss Agnes Lee Smith
Sonata, Op. 2, No. 1.....	Beethoven
Allegro
Adagio
Menuetto
Hunting Song.....	Mendelssohn
Miss Lenore Wood
Concerto in A Minor.....	Schumann
First Movement (allegro affettuoso)
Miss C. Bess Bennett
Sonata Eroica.....	MacDowell
First movement
Waldestrauchen.....	Liszt
Miss Clara Harsh
Concerto in E Minor.....	Chopin
Last Movement (vivace)
Mrs. C. E. Buckley

Wilkes-Barre—At the morning service at the First Presbyterian Church in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on last Sunday, Ad M. Foerster's "Exaltation" and "Epigram" were played.

Rankl—Mr. John Rankl will present his pupil, Herbert Crothers, in song recital at the MacBurney Studios on Thursday evening, April 29. Miss Grace Grove will be the accompanist.

Anderson—Walter Anderson, 171 West Fifty-seventh street, New York, announces a concert tour for Elizabeth Spencer, soprano.

FRANK W

Van DusenPIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANOEdna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR ChicagoHarriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland AvenueGaylord American Violinist
YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYMarie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd FloorSilas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel MUSICAL KIMBALL HALL COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL.

"THE TRIUMPH OF THE GREATER LOVE"

At St. James' Episcopal Church, on Sunday afternoon, an event of marked importance took place in the presence of a gathering which entirely filled the stately old building. Dr. Stone, the rector, voiced the sentiment which obtained when he referred to the occasion as of especial significance and expressed his gratification that his church had been favored by being chosen for the background. It was the older man's way of rejoicing in the development of higher things. If he has been active in past growth, he glories in the presence of the eager younger men who do not hesitate to pick up the torch and carry it farther on in the day of larger opportunities. The young men who sponsored the service Dr. Stone referred to—Mr. Lester, Mr. Norton and Mr. Christian, are men of quality and are selected to go far on the road in this community, so long as they shall hold their faces steadily towards the standards they have evidently set for themselves. The praise from the older men has in it not a whit of patronage, but rather the gladness of spirit which glories in the sight of men who see their opportunities and take hold of them.

MARGARET LESTER

The work presented was an Easter cantata, called by its composer, Mr. William Lester, "The Triumph of the Greater Love." It is in large form and in an imposing style—quite foreign to such works as have held place in the choir lofts for some time. For instance, it is quite a far cry from "Olivet to Calvary" and that is not disparaging the melodious Mr. Maunder, who has done real service in his day. Mr. Lester's work has three divisions, and each is compact and definite, while it is elaborate and at times involved. Almost every accepted form of structure is thrown aside and new methods substituted. To cite just one—the portions which might be called narrative in form are repeatedly given to the chorus, while the reflective portions are just as often given to solo voices. The solos much of the time are mere incidents—almost interjections in their brevity—and yet the impression is of completeness and symmetry. There are many effective combinations, such as the division of the sopranos and altos into harmony in the Sepulchre scene, and the beautiful obligato, which makes the culmination of the long tenor solo the most ambitious of the solo portions. There are many unaccompanied moments that are potent in being just where they are. The final chorus is opulent in color and power, preluded as it is by some well-planned sentences in divisions of the voices, a short solo and a lovely quartet which uses the old hymn "Love Divine" and is fitted with a peculiarly flowing accompaniment—all these serving as splendid foils for the stirring splendor that follows.

MRS. AUGUSTA MEEKER

It may be said as well that the work is a trifle long, and that the chorus "I Am the Resurrection" is not quite up to the pace set by the other numbers, that there are some trying text placements that interfere with the best results, and that one quartet portion is not convincing. The text by Frederick Martens is a vitally good factor.

The work was given a fine presentation. Rehearsals had been many and exacting, but productive of astonishing certainty for the intricate score. Mr. Lester doesn't hesitate to make whole tone progressions or to use intervallie dissonances. St. James' choir has never responded to its director's demands more loyally, and a long credit mark goes to them. A small orchestra augmented the forces, and Mr. Norton was well poised in enforcing his desires. A notable delivery of the Foster "Magnificat" was given. Master Earl Abramson did the Shelley "Resurrection" in a brilliant manner for offertory. Mrs. Margaret Lester sang the soprano solos in the cantata with appreciative sense of the text, and her voice was clear and sweet and ample in volume. Mrs. Augusta Meeker did the contralto solos with ease and confidence, and was a valuable factor in the concerted numbers. Mr. Cardon Burnham used his rich vibrant voice with freedom, and entered into the spirit of his one long solo so that it glowed with fervor. Mr. Warren Proctor was strong, virile, dramatic and appealing. He had the one great solo in the work, and he met its requirements in most brilliant manner. He is an acquisition of the first water to the ranks of tenors in Chicago. To Mr. Palmer Christian fell the big brunt of work, for not only did he play the organ score of the cantata something ornate and taxing, but he prefaced the service with two organ numbers, de Boeck's "Allegro" and the Sibelius "Romanza," which was simply stunning in its vividness, and added a movement from a Mailly "Sonata" for postlude that was masterly. These revealed Mr. Christian as a notably brilliant player, in addition to his other traits of quieter appeal.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

CUYLER AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

The choir of Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church of Oak Park, thirty-five voices, will give the following program at the monthly musical service to be given this Sunday evening, under direction of Marie Edwards, organist. Mr. Alfred Goldman, violinist, will be the assisting artist.

Prelude—Grand Chorus in D.....Deshayes
Anthem—Great and Marvelous.....Tiemer
Trío—Holy Redeemer.....Marchetti
Mrs. Hartrick, Mrs. Transom, Mrs. Crouse
Offertoire—Evensong.....Johnston
Anthem—Oh Light Eternal.....Miles
Remarks by Rev. Claude S. Moore
Quartet and Chorus—Soft Floating on the Evening Air
Violin Solos—
Ave Maria.....Schubert-Wilhelmj
Melody.....Rubinstein

Mr. Goldman
Anthem—The Lord Is My Light.....Protheroe
Postlude—Triumphale March.....Buck

Noer—Miss Ebba Noer will give a piano recital at the Little Theater on Monday evening, April 26.

SEASON 1915-16
ALBERT
1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist

Steinway
Piano

SPALDING

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

THE NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

ASHLAND AND WASHINGTON BOULEVARDS, CHICAGO

DR. BENJAMIN F. ALDRICH, MINISTER

The Creation

Oratorio by Joseph Haydn

PRESENTED BY THE

New First Church Vested Choirs of 200 Singers

The Choral Union

The Treble Clef Choir

The Boy Choir

The Cecilian Choir

The Carol Choir

and

Marie Sidenius Zendt, Soprano
Warren Proctor, }
Edward Walker, } Tenors
Alice R. Deal, Organist

Gustaf Holmquist,
William Carver Williams, } Basses
Howard E. Preston,
H. Augustine Smith, Director

Sunday Evening, April 25 at 7:45

(ADMISSION FREE)
NO TICKETS REQUIRED

Thursday Evening, April 29 at 8:15

(ADMISSION STRICTLY
BY FREE TICKET)

Friday Evening, April 30 at 8:15

(ADMISSION STRICTLY
BY FREE TICKET)

Free Tickets may be secured at

LYON & HEALY CO., (Apollo Club Office)

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO., 67 E. Van Buren St.

CENTRAL Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle St.

THE NEW FIRST CHURCH OFFICE, (Entrance on Washington Blvd.)

Self-Addressed, Stamped Envelope will bring tickets. Write at once. H. AUGUSTINE SMITH, 20 North Ashland Boulevard, Chicago

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE AND MARIE ANNEN RECITAL AT UNITY CHURCH

Louise Harrison Slade, contralto; Marie Annen, pianist, and Mrs. John P. Annen, accompanist, gave a recital at Unity church Tuesday evening, April 13.

Mrs. Slade is always given a cordial welcome wherever she chooses to appear, for her splendid voice and winning personality have won her a host of friends and admirers.

The first group heard comprised songs by Homer, Lehmann and Coleridge-Taylor, all sung with great beauty of voice and a good understanding of the text. "Sheep and Lambs," "Life and Death," were given with an especially fine breadth of style and finish. Mrs. Slade in her last group displayed much versatility in interpretative thought, presenting with great charm of manner and artistry, Kaun's "Love on Tip-toe," "Lindenlaub," Nurnberg, "The Lanthorn" (Cumberland dialect), Nicolai; "The Illigant Irish Boy," Nicolai, all being so well received that she was compelled to respond to numerous recalls.

Miss Marie Annen, pianist, is gaining a fine place for herself in musical circles that is well deserved. Miss Annen has splendid technical equipment, a surprising ease of execution, her musicianship is of a high order and she possesses much musical feeling. Her personality is very pleasing and her stage presence charming. She played as her opening number the first movement of the Rubinstein "Concerto in D Minor" with a good grasp of interpretative thought and a fine tonal quality throughout that made her rendition very effective.

In her second group numbers by Henselt, Liszt and Chopin were played with a fine conception of the musical values, much imagination, and with a broad sweep in clear rhythmic and technical treatment that won her the enthusiastic approval of the splendid audience. Mrs. John P. Annen furnished artistic and musicianly accompaniments for Mrs. Slade, and the orchestra parts for the concerto. H. W. P.

A. L. SHYNMAN

Mr. A. L. Shynman has gained a fine place for himself as a pianist-teacher and accompanist, having appeared in the capacity of soloist and accompanist on many of the musical programs, both in the city and out. Wednesday, April 14, he appeared on the program of the Baron Hirsch Society, playing Saint-Saens' "Romanze" and the Schubert-Liszt "March Hongroise."

Mr. Shynman has a splendid technical equipment, enabling him to employ a great variety of effects, in tonal color and shade. His musical feeling is also very fine, and his interpretations of a high order. He played his solo group with a splendid breadth of style and a good display of artistry.

Ella Swanson Engel, contralto, has a good natural voice and she gave much pleasure in her group of songs.

Mixer—Charles Mitchell Mixer played for the Kenwood Matinee Musical Club on Tuesday, April 20, at the home of Mrs. Charles Morse, Jr., 1132 East Forty-ninth street.

ORGAN RECITAL AT EPIPHANY

On Monday evening, April 19, Dr. Francis Hemington gave his two hundred and tenth organ recital at the Epiphany Church, assisted by Esther Muenstermann, contralto, and Lorno Mae Jones, violinist.

Dr. Hemington opened the program with Borowski's "Sonata in A Minor," playing it with a great variety of color effects. The andante movement is especially well written, and Dr. Hemington's reading of it left nothing to be desired. He was heard later in Rogers' "Overture in C Minor," with its flaming melodies, that were made to fairly glow with color and contrasts.

In the "Nocturne" by Foote and "Fiat Lux" by Dubois, Dr. Hemington displayed further his facile technic and dexterous pedaling, and gained some excellent effects in light and shade in the "Nocturne" and the Dubois number was brought to a wonderful climax under his masterful hand. The program included further organ numbers by Schubert, Thomas and Rossini.

Miss Esther Muenstermann is a welcome singer wherever she appears, for her lovely voice and charming personality have won her a host of friends. "My Redeemer and My Lord" (Buck) was given a beautiful rendition, and in Little's "Abide with Me" she displayed the excellent range and beauty of her voice to a splendid advantage. Her musicianship is good and also she sings with great sincerity of purpose, that makes her work very effective.

Tucker—Myrtle Friel Tucker, soprano, was special soloist at the Fowler Methodist Episcopal Church of Oak Park last Sunday morning, singing Rotoli's "Jesus Only."

ARTUR F. PLATZ TO GIVE RECITAL AT CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

Tuesday evening, April 27, Artur F. Platz, tenor, will give a recital of German and English songs at Central Music Hall. He will be assisted by Karl Schulte, violinist, and Petricia Abernethy, accompanist. The program follows:

Recitation—Tyrannic Love! I Feel Thy Cruel Dart
Aria—Ye Verdant Hills, Ye Balmy Vales (from Susanna)	Handel
Widmung	Schumann
Du bist wie eine Wilde Rose	Abt
Die Brucke	Abt
Murmelndes Luftchen	Jensen
Ein Traum	Grieg
Possession	Clough-Leigher
When Soft Winds Blow	Guedy
To Phillis	Lester
Rose Immortal (violin obligato)	Radanovitz
The Song (violin obligato)	Merten
Ruhe, Sussliebchen	Brahms
Minnelied	Brahms
Des Kindes Gebet	Reger
Zueignung	Strauss
Constancy
When We Are Parted	(Mss.) Boyd
Wind from the South
La Tarantella
In Italy

The composer at the piano

Heidelberg—Fannie E. Warren will present Lillian French Read, soprano; Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto; John T. Read, bass, and Grant Kimbell, tenor, as soloists in "The Messiah," given at the Spring Festival of Heidelberg University, Tiffin, Ohio, Tuesday, April 27, and the same artists in a song recital Wednesday evening, April 28, and Allen Spencer in a piano lecture recital Wednesday afternoon, April 28, at the same university.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

"ELIJAH" SUNG BY THE HANDEL ORATORIO SOCIETY OF AUSTIN

The Handel Oratorio Society of Austin, under the capable direction of Miss Ida Belle Freeman, gave a most praiseworthy performance of "Elijah," Tuesday evening, April 13.

Miss Freeman had the assistance of a group of artists of such caliber that one might be assured of a satisfying rendition, and it proved to be more than anticipated.

The First Baptist Church, the scene of performance, has a large seating capacity and all available space was occupied. Miss Freeman has a reputation for doing things in a fine way and then, no admission being charged, no one who wanted to hear the oratorio had any excuse for staying away.

The Handel Oratorio Society numbers about 70 voices and the chorus has been under Miss Freeman's direction so long that they respond to her bidding with gratifying alertness. She is inspiring in her enthusiasm, and guides her forces with fine intelligence. The work of the chorus in "Yet Doth the Lord" was commendable, and later they did fine work in "He Watching Over Israel" and "Behold, God the Lord Passed By."

The quartet was composed of Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano; Miss Esther Muenstermann, contralto; Mr. Moses J. Brines, tenor, and Mr. Burton Thatcher, bass. Mr. John Doane presided at the organ and for the choruses the accompaniment was also given on the piano by Mrs. Lillian Grant Haeffner.

Mrs. Warner is showing a liking for oratorio and a natural ability for it as well, for she sings in true oratorio style and with much authority. The soprano has not a large amount to do in "Elijah," but Mrs. Warner was most welcome in the part.

Miss Muenstermann's voice grows in breadth and volume, is warm and colorful. Her singing was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Brines, in the tenor role, sang with intelligence, and although the amount of work for tenor is not large, it is important and was satisfactory.

Mr. Thatcher won much praise for his good singing; he is well acquainted with the work and is most satisfying.

The trio, "Lift Thine Eyes," was sung by Mrs. Warner, Miss Freeman and Miss Muenstermann, and it is a pleasure to state that it was unusually well done.

The part of the "youth" was sung by Miss Emma Ewen, a member of the chorus. She should be commended for the good work done. Her voice is high and clear.

The work of Mr. Doane at the organ was most splendidly accomplished. It was very wise of Miss Freeman to have so dependable an artist to carry the burden of the accompanying. At no time was that part anything less than could be accomplished with the organ at his command.

The addition of the piano for the choruses was very good and Mrs. Haeffner did excellent work.

The choir loft is not all one could wish for so large a chorus, but the performance was a great success. M. K. W.

Osage—At Osage, Ia., the Glee Club of Cedar Valley Seminary gave a concert, under the direction of Mr. Frank Parker, last Tuesday evening.

SUMMER-NORMAL SESSION OF THE AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The annual summer normal session of the American Conservatory will be held for five weeks, from June 28 to July 31. A comprehensive course of lectures for the special needs of teachers has been arranged. It will include the following: Piano Instruction and Practical Teaching Material by John J. Hattstaedt, Musical History by Victor Garwood, Voice Culture by Frederick W. Root, Children's Work by Olga Kuechler. A special course in Public School Music has been arranged by O. E. Robinson. Five public recitals will be given at Kimball Hall by prominent members of the faculty.

Thursday evening, April 22, at Kimball Hall, advanced piano pupils of Kurt Wanieck will appear in recital, the program consisting mainly of concertos. Voice pupils of Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson will assist. The program will be as follows:

Ballade, G Minor	Chopin
Concerto, F Minor (First Movement)	Arensky
	Miss Maude Winfield
	Miss Viola Kerber

Songs—
Lullaby of an Infant Chief	Grant-Schaefer
Spring Is Here	Foerster
	Mrs. Charles B. Ayers

Hungarian Fantasia	Liszt
Concerto, G Minor (First Movement)	Mendelssohn
	Philip Warner

Songs—
Will o' the Wisp	Spross
An Open Secret	Woodman
	Miss Elsa Ahlgren

Concerto, D Minor (Second and Third Movements)	MacDowell
	Miss Aletta Tenold

Songs—
Death and the Maiden	Schubert
Spring	Hildach
	Miss Margery Smith

Concerto, Op. 59 (Second and Fourth Movements)	Moszkowski
	Miss Esther Kittilsby

Concerto, A Minor (Second and Third Movements)	Grieg
	Miss Harriet Shaffer

Orchestral parts played by Mr. Wanieck

The annual children's recital of the American Conservatory will take place Saturday afternoon, April 24, at Kimball Hall under the direction of Louise Robyn. Forty youthful piano and violin students will take part.

A concerto recital by piano pupils of Victor Garwood, Silvio Scionti and Kurt Wanieck will be given on Tuesday evening, April 27, at Kimball Hall. Advanced voice pupils will assist.

Henry B. Roney—The Christian Church of Englewood was crowded with people who came on Sunday evening to hear Henry B. Roney give his lecture-concert, "Boys, from Cradle to Manhood," with several standard sacred songs by his gifted boy contralto pupil, Master Milton Campbell, of Iowa, twelve years old. These included Buzzi-Peccia's "Gloria" and oratorio selections, every song being sung without notes. Mr. Roney was congratulated on every side for his vigorous and fearless presentation of the boy rearing question.

Dunford—Mr. Frank Dunford, basso, will appear with the Chicago Concert Quartet at Angola, Ind., in May and also in "The Messiah" at the same festival. He will be soloist with the Paulist Choiristers in their concert at Valparaiso, Ind., on May 7.

SONGS BY HELENA BINGHAM

Selections for

Memorial Day

Octavo form

Freedom's Empire

Mixed voices

Male voices

Hail! Starry Flag

Mixed voices

also suitable for

Solo—Soprano or Tenor

My Country 'Tis of Thee

Mixed Voices

Selections for Church

Sheet form

- SUNSET AND EVENING STAR . . . (2 keys)
 BE MERCIFUL TO ME (2 keys)
 REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR . . (High)
 THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM . . . (Low)
 THE BEATITUDES (Medium)
 LIFE (Medium)

Latest Prints

- MY BABY Story to Music
 JOY (2 keys)
 MARGARET SALLIE ANN . . . (3 keys)

Now in Press

- THE DOLL'S WOOING (Medium)
 THE RED PARASOL (Medium)
 MY LOVE SHE'S BUT A LASSIE YET (Soprano)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

RAVENSWOOD MEN'S CHORUS

The tenth anniversary of the Ravenswood Men's Chorus under the direction of J. S. Fearis was given at the new Constellation Auditorium at 3900 North Robey street on last Tuesday evening, the event being distinctly gala in aspect and importance.

This organization has taken a high place in local affairs musical and the extent of the work done is hinted at in the following note taken from the house program:

The Ravenswood Men's Chorus celebrates this season its tenth anniversary and is justly proud of the place it has attained in the musical life of Chicago.

The Chorus is composed of representative business men of Ravenswood and vicinity, who find enjoyment in the study and preparation of the highest grade part songs for men's voices.

The achievements of this organization are referred to with much satisfaction. The selection of this chorus to augment the chorus of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, at one of their performances during the season of 1911-12, was an acknowledgment of the merit of this organization. Since the beginning of the North Shore Festival this chorus has been one of the important factors of this great musical event and many high endorsements have been received from every section where the chorus has appeared.

CHARLES E. LUTTON

Mr. J. S. Fearis has been the musical director of the chorus since its inception and much credit is due him for having brought it to the high point of vocal efficiency.

Mr. Charles G. Frazier has been president through the entire period, and to his rare foresight and unselfish interest the chorus owes much of its success.

Miss Helen M. Browne has been the accompanist from the beginning and her able assistance has added to its success.

The stage at the Constellation Hall is very small, and very high, so that the piano, badly placed on the first floor, was not readily discernible to the singers, with the result that some off-key work was noted. However, this is merely a matter for some thought, and perhaps better adjustment. It is a pity that so fine and large a hall should have so thoroughly inadequate a stage and if any other choral body appears here it is strongly suggested that an extension platform is desirable.

The program of last Tuesday was a wonderfully well arranged one and was presented in such a style as to prove this body of singers among the most artistic in the local field.

Especially beautiful shading was displayed and a precision in all points of musicianship which spoke volumes for the skill and the great care exercised by Mr. Fearis in rehearsals.

Numbers by Bergen, Protheroe, Spicker, Fanning and Eichberg were admirably negotiated.

Clippinger's clever trifle, "The Tack," evoked gales of merriment and Fearis' own "By the Sea" proved so very good that it had to be repeated.

Herbert Hyde's "A Gypsy Song" disclosed itself as a work of clear form and masterly detail, while Protheroe's "De Sandman" again proved his talent and was also one of the most effective mediums used by the club for the display of its lighter graces.

Bullard's "Barney McGee," a character study, which always makes a fine impression, showed the club in unusually good light and the elaborate solo line afforded Mr. Charles E. Lutton, baritone, a splendid chance to display those particularly attractive qualities, which have made him such a favorite, these including clarity of enunciation and alertness of perception of humor as special points in his favor.

Mr. Lutton sang also a group of solos in such a way as to make him a very great favorite with the splendid audience present, his list including numbers by Channon, Davies, Squire and Trotere. Squire's "Old-Fashioned Town" and Trotere's "A Short Cut" provided opportunities aplenty for the "storytelling" abilities of Mr. Lutton—abilities which are not equaled by many singers before the public.

Mr. Lutton's voice is a fine one and his intelligence is away above par, so that, with so superb an accompaniment as that furnished him by Mr. Grant-Schaefer on Tuesday evening, his work stood out with great distinctness.

Mr. Grant-Schaefer also played for his pupil, Miss Clare P. Livingston, contralto, in her group of solos and for the duets by Miss Livingston and Mr. Lutton.

Miss Livingston has a fine voice and much piquancy of style, and her numbers were also well acclaimed.

The "Angelus," by Chaminade, afforded an opportunity to the two singers to show some extremely suave and effective ensemble work, while "Matilda, the Little Girl Who Told Lies" proved to be a comique which fairly shook the house in the clever reading given by the singers.

Miss Helen M. Browne played splendid accompaniments for the chorus and incidental solos were given by Mr. King and Mr. Tate of the club.

Altogether a truly gala event and one which sent the audience away hoping that this club will have a second ten years of existence (maybe a third or fourth) with no changes whatever in the personnel or directorate.

C. E. W.

J. S. FEARIS

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

Marie Sidenius Zendt sang with great success at the Swedish National Concert at Sioux City, Ia., last Friday evening. The Sioux City Journal has the following notice:

MARIE ZENDT, SOLOIST

Much interest was attached to the appearance of the soprano soloist, Marie Sidenius Zendt, who stands high in the musical world of Chicago. She revealed herself as an exceptionally pleasing singer with a fine range, an almost perfect scale and beautifully clear and well controlled head tones. Her pianissimos on high B were exquisite and her stage presence most gracious and unassuming.—(Advertisement.)

Durno—Miss Thyra Ruhland, the young pianist, who will play at Thurber Hall next Sunday afternoon in recital with Miss Klea Orschel, a pupil of Mrs. Krum, has been for the past three years a pupil of Jeanette Durno. On her recent appearance before the Morning Musical Club at Fort Wayne, Miss Ruhland received the most complimentary press comments. Other recent appearances have been for Downer College in Milwaukee, and at Hamilton Park on April 20. Her numbers for next Sunday include the Bach "Gavotte in B Minor," Mozart's "Sonata in A Major," four preludes, the "Berceuse" and two etudes by Chopin; Liszt's "Etude in D Flat," "Nocturne" for the left hand by Scriabine, "Serenade" by Rubinstein, and "Kermesse Carillonante" by Widor.

Heizer—The Heizer Music School gave a concert last Wednesday morning at the public library in Sioux City, Ia.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

A UNIQUE PROGRAM BY EDWARD CLARKE AND KURT WANIECK

A large and highly discriminative audience was vastly pleased on Thursday evening last with a program given by Edward

KURT WANIECK

Clarke, baritone, and Kurt Wanieck, pianist, at Thurber Hall.

Mr. Clarke opened the program with four songs by Richard Strauss (listed in Music News last week), sung excellently with English text.

EDWARD CLARKE

In these he had ample opportunity to display voice, technic, style and dramatic impulse as well as unusual finish.

All these items he carefully and triumphantly conserved and won the heartiest approval of his audience.

Mr. Wanieck followed with a group of piano numbers in which he disclosed again that advanced technic and those truthful powers of interpretation which have long made him a favorite in the concert field. The "Scherzo" and "Andantino" from a Schumann "Sonata" were played with skill and much musical feeling. A Liszt Etude was distinctly virtuosic under his fingers and the Saint-Saens "Toccato," Op. 111, proved to be a piece of piano work at once brilliant and airy, difficult indeed to negotiate technically and yet played with perfect abandon and sure effect.

The second part of the program was devoted to a reading of "Enoch Arden" by Mr. Clarke to the wonderfully impressive piano "illumination" written by Richard Strauss and played at this time with rare tact and full effect by Mr. Wanieck.

Mr. Clarke reads with great naturalness, never for a moment sacrificing a conversational tone to anything savoring of rant or staginess.

Nevertheless, he is most apt at characterization of the parts in a story such as this and is fully able also to realize all its poetic and dramatic moments. C. E. W.

###

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENT

Miss Zetta Gay Whitson, violiniste, and Edwin D. Martin, baritone, will be heard in a joint recital at the Illinois Theater next Sunday afternoon, April 25, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program contains two compositions, which have not been heard in Chicago before, the "Ascension Sonata," by Cecil Burleigh, and the "Fantasiestueck," by Hugo Kaun, for the violin. The program complete is as follows:

Eri tu che macchiavi "Un Ballo in Maschera"....Verdi

Mr. Martin

The Ascension Sonata (First time in Chicago).....

Cecil Burleigh

1. Tranquillo—For unto us a child is born, and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called wonderful. Isaiah IX:6.
2. Con Impeto—And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him. John VII:12.
3. Con somma esaltazione—and it came to pass while he blessed them, he was parted from them and carried up into heaven. Luke XXIV:51.

Miss Whitson and Mr. Doering

Air d'Azael "L'Enfant Prodiges".....Debussy
Liebesymnus Strauss
Die Nacht Strauss
Unter Sternen Weingartner
Post in Walde Weingartner

Mr. Martin

Fantasiestueck (First time in Chicago).....Hugo Kaun
Miss Whitson

Les Silhouettes Carpenter
The Player Queen Carpenter
Floods of Spring Rachmaninoff
Thy Voice Is Heard Homer
Uncle Rome Homer

Mr. Martin

Andante from Symphonie Espagnole.....Edouard Lalo
Tambourin Chinois Fritz Kreisler

Miss Whitson

###

MacDonald—Nelle Damuth MacDonald will give a song recital, assisted by Maude Langlois, reader; R. Clare MacDonald, tenor, and Edna L. Whitmore, pianist accompanist, at the church of Christ, Sheffield avenue and George street, on Thursday evening, April 29.

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 | Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
59 E. Van Buren St. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert Oratorio
Pupils
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—In Haydn Choral Society for the California trip, few low alto and deep bass voices. Apply to H. W. Owens, 1516 Mallers Building.

TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

TIME TO RENT in fine Auditorium Studios; connection with good school if desired. Address S. Music News.

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. P., Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

FOR SALE Mason & Hamlin
GRAND PIANO
Style BB. In splendid condition. An excellent bargain. HENRIETTE WEBER, 1900 LINCOLN AVENUE.
Phone Diversey 3185

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

SOPRANO CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

WARNER

Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE - PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

People & Events

YEATMAN GRIFFITH

An American singing master, whose fame was first gained in his own country, who later repeated his success in Europe, and who has now returned to his native land, is Yeatman Griffith, known widely, not only as a vocal teacher, but also as a leading American basso cantante.

Some years ago Yeatman Griffith left for Florence, Italy. With him went many of his students, and he set a new precedent in that country as a successful American teacher training American men and women in that land of vocal teachers, and incidentally annexing to his classes many foreigners. Also Mr. and Mrs. Yeatman Griffith repeated in Italy their recitals, and once more gained recognition such as they had already received in America, before their departure.

From Florence, Yeatman Griffith went to London and was followed by all his class.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffith were at once instantaneously successful in London and in the provinces in their joint song recitals, and many critics likened them to the famous Henschels.

During the last two years of his London residence Mr. Yeatman Griffith was so overwhelmed with teaching that these splendid recitals had to be abandoned.

Students From All Lands

The Yeatman Griffith studios in London became a musical stronghold and attracted students from all lands during the four years of its continuance, and this result was accomplished with no fanfare of trumpets, but by simple merit alone.

With the outbreak of the war Mr. Griffith decided to remove his studio to New York, and last summer his great class followed him to that city.

Successful Season

He has had a successful season in the American city, and through the request of a large number of artists, teachers and other students, he has decided to continue teaching there throughout the summer.

The substantial success which has been obtained by Florence Macbeth throughout her tour has brought many letters of inquiry to her teacher, Mr. Yeatman Griffith, and many of the writers will be especially pleased to know that the New York studio will remain open throughout the usual vacation time.

The fall term begins in September.

Coffey—The Coffey School of Music at 122 S. Waller avenue will give a concert this evening (Friday) at the studio, 454 North Parkside avenue, Austin.

THE ZOELLNER QUARTET AT STANFORD UNIVERSITY

The following is from the Daily Palo Alto:

The Zoellner Quartet, playing under the auspices of the Faculty Committee on Public Entertainment, presented a program of chamber music Friday evening in the Assembly Hall such as has not been heard here since the visit of the Flonzaleys last year. Their work is the perfect realization of ensemble music, marked by a deep sympathy and unity of purpose and execution.

The Beethoven quartet with which the Zoellners opened their program was given a sincere and dignified interpretation from the deep, sustained notes of the Adagio to the lighter touches and whimsical motif of the Scherzo Allegro.

A charming composition new to most of the audience was the Tzanow quartet, the second offering of the evening. In the first movement, the Humoresca, the artists triumphed in their spontaneous rendering of this vivid bit of music. In contrast, their playing imbued the second movement with the deep, warm calm of a summer night. As an encore the quartet gave a dainty Minuet, dating from the sixteenth century.

A violin solo, which was to have been played by Amandus Zoellner, was omitted. The "Andante Cantabile" from Tchaikowsky's Quartet, Op. 11, was understandingly given, breathing the peace of all outdoors. This was followed by the delightful "Minuet" by Glinks.

The final number on the evening's program comprised Thern's haunting "Genius Loci" and the novel Glazounow Suite, Op. 35, which has been introduced to American audiences by the Zoellners. The latter opens with a rippling Scherzo movement which is followed by the weird, exotic Orientale. This second movement is marked by a strangely wailing rhythm and introduces an effectively monotonous pizzicato accompaniment. In this number the composer has brought out the possibilities of the viola's hollow sweetness most interestingly, and Mr. Joseph Zoellner, Sr., made the most of this opportunity to display the qualities of his chosen instrument. (Advertisement.)

MR. CLEVELAND BOHNET AT STREATOR

The Independent-Times of Streator, Ill., speaks as follows of the work of Cleveland Bohnet:

One of the most enjoyable and artistic musical programs ever given at the local high school was the piano recital presented by Cleveland Bohnet this morning in Assembly Hall. The program was well varied in character and splendidly interpreted. Mr. Bohnet exhibited his singular individuality as an artist, his poetic conception and marvelous virtuosity.

The program opened with the MacDowell "Witches' Dance," which was delightfully contrasted with the Iljinsky "Lullaby" which followed. Grieg's "Puck" made an instantaneous appeal to the enthusiastic students. The program progressed to a fitting climax in the two brilliant Liszt numbers, "Eleventh Rhapsody" and "La Campanella." The applause which was awarded the artist proved the thorough appreciation of the audience—who manifest remarkable discrimination in these musical treats provided by Miss Landes. Mr. Bohnet was recalled several times and finally responded with an encore, a Mendelssohn "Scherzo."

At the close of the program the students gave some of the school songs with their accustomed zeal, and they ended with "Rah Rahs" for Mr. Bohnet, which were given with a vim that left no doubt in his mind as to their approval of him. (Advertisement.)

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

CLARA BAUR, Foundress, 48th Year

For Catalog, Address MISS BERTHA BAUR, Directress

HIGHLAND AV. and OAK ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO

Conducted according to the advanced method of European Conservatories. A Faculty of Location Ideal. Residence department with

PROGRAMS OF NORTH SHORE FESTIVAL First Concert

Elijah Mendelssohn
Monday, May 24, 1915, 8:15 p. m.
Conductor, Mr. Lutkin

Soloists—Florence Hinkle, soprano; Margaret Keyes, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor; Clarence Whitehill, baritone; boy soprano
The A Capella Choir, Festival Chorus of 600 Singers, augmented to 1,000 singers by students from the Evanston and New Trier High Schools, and the Evanston Academy. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Second Concert ARTISTS' NIGHT

Tuesday, May 25, 1915, 8:15 p. m.
Conductors, Mr. Stock and Mr. Oldberg
Soloist, Pasquale Amato, baritone
The Chicago Symphony Orchestra

PROGRAM

Overture to Rienzi Wagner
Aria—Die Frist is um, from The Flying Dutchman Wagner
Mr. Amato

Rhapsody—June Arne Oldberg
Aria from Le Roi de Lahore Massenet
Mr. Amato

Carnival Piemontesi Sinigaglia
Intermission
Wedding March and Variations Goldmark
Aria—Prayer from William Tell Rossini
Mr. Amato

A Swedish Rhapsody—Midsummer Wake Alfvén

Third Concert

The Dream of Gerontius Edward Elgar
Thursday, May 27, 1915, 8:15 p. m.
Conductors, Mr. Lutkin and Mr. Stock
Soloists—Mildred Potter, Contralto; Evan Williams, tenor; Henri Scott, bass
The A Capella Choir, Festival Chorus of 600 Singers, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

PROGRAM

Prelude to Parsifal Wagner
The Dream of Gerontius Edward Elgar

Fourth Concert

CHILDREN'S CONCERT

Saturday, May 29, 1915, 2:15 p. m.
Conductors, Mr. Stock and Mr. McConathy
Soloist, Sophie Braslau, contralto
Children's Chorus of 1,500 Voices

PROGRAM

Overture to The Secret of Suzanne Wolf-Ferrari
Patriotic Songs—
Sail On, O Ship of State Rossetter G. Cole
America, the Beautiful John S. Fearis
Hats Off! Elizabeth Poorman
Aria—O mio Fernando Donizetti
Miss Braslau

Cantata—Walrus and Carpenter Percy E. Fletcher
Intermission

Selections from music to Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream Mendelssohn

Overture
Chorus, You Spotted Snakes
Nocturne

Chorus, Through the House
Wedding March
Children's Songs—

The Grandmother's Song Mrs. H. H. Beach
Schlafliedchen Hans Hermann
The Child's Song Mana Zucca
Miss Braslau

America Carey

Fifth Concert

OPERATIC NIGHT

Saturday, May 29, 1915, 8:15 p. m.
Conductors, Mr. Stock and Mr. Lutkin
Soloist, Frieda Hempel, soprano
Festival Chorus of 600 Singers
Chicago Symphony Orchestra

PROGRAM

Overture Solemnelle Glazounow
Aria—Ernani Involami from Ernani Verdi
Miss Hempel

Suite—Adventures in a Perambulator Carpenter
Blue Danube Waltz Strauss
Miss Hempel

Ladies' Chorus—Come, Ye Maidens All (from Eugene O'Neill) Tchaikowsky

Chorus—Entr'acte and Waltz Song, Hail to the Dance (from Eugene O'Neill) Tchaikowsky

Intermission

Chorus—Introduction and Hymn to the Sun, from Iris Mascagni

Songs—
Der Nussbaum Schumann
Elfenlied Wolf
Wiegenlied Humperdinck

Miss Hempel
Chorus of Villagers, from Prince Igor Borodin
A Cappella Choir

Polovetzia Dance for Chorus, from Prince Igor Borodin

The Star-Spangled Banner
Chorus and audience
— # # # —

"WHEN THE KYE COME HAME"

One of the recent song issues of the Theodore Presser Co., Philadelphia, "When the Kye Come Hame," by George B. Nevin, has met with such an unusual reception that a word relative to its success may be of interest to singers looking for effective songs for recital and concert purposes.

The words, so charming in their simplicity, were written about 100 years ago, by James Hogg—"The Ettrick Shepherd"; have been set to music which the great baritone David Bispham says "has as charming a Scotch lilt as any song of recent years. If Bobby Burns himself were alive, I am sure he would be whistling it up and down the streets of his native town from early morn until 'the kye come hame.'"

The song has been sung this year about twenty times by the ever popular Christine Miller, who says it was received with the greatest enthusiasm; by Horatio Connell, the great Philadelphia baritone; Lillian Sharp Woehrl, Mabel N. Schoolfield, Mildred Potter, the eminent New York contralto, and Marie Stone Langston, who writes that it made a wonderful hit at the Vessella Italian band concert on the steel pier at Atlantic City, and who is singing it on a tour with the Delaware College Orchestra.

While it is a Scotch song, it is so simple and singable that any English speaking person can do it justice and, being so unlike the usual texture of the modern song, might almost be called a novelty.

Benefit Concert—On April 27, at the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel, a concert will be given for the benefit of the unemployed and the Beulah Home by the American Academy of Music and Art and the following array of artists: Mrs. Hanna Butler, soprano; Mr. Alexander Sebald, violinist; Mme. Lagertha Nielsen Traver, soprano; Oscar Deis, pianist; Antonio Sala, cellist; Mme. Josephine Hatlanck, dancer; Kirk Towns, baritone, and Emma H. Osgood, harpist.

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
Pone Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano

Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE

Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

MILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO

CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST

St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO

Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE

1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST

Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson. Fine Arts Bldg.

DAN S. DENTON

TENOR

OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER

and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

LITERATURE
EXPRESSION

MUSIC

LANGUAGE
DRAMATIC ART

Special Features

Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.
All Departments Open Throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional Opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates. STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE FACULTY CONCERT

On Thursday evening, April 15, the following members of the faculty of the Chicago Piano College appeared in recital, assisted by William A. Willett, baritone:

Mrs. Bessie M. McAllister opened the program with the Bach-Tausig "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor." She has her resources well in hand, and she gave it a powerful and authoritative rendition. Her musicianly and intelligent reading will long be remembered as an artistic joy.

Miss Louise George chose as her solo number the Chaminade "Automne," Op. 35, No. 2, delivering it in a masterly way, with splendid tonal qualities and interpretative thought that bespeak a thorough musician-ship.

Misses Elcanor F. Godfrey and Betsy M. Howland, in the "Duo Espana" (Chabrier), disclosed many fine points in duo playing that might well be taken as an example by many, for they played it with such unimpeachable feeling and fine understanding of the musical content that they left nothing to be desired.

Miss Ruth I. Budde has a well-developed technic, and her brilliant rendition of the Dohnanyi "Rhapsody," Op. 11, No. 2, was one of artistic merit, and she should go far in her chosen field. The duo "Nun Kommt der Heiden Heiland" variations on chorai, by Harmon H. Watt, is built along solid lines in composition and, although extremely difficult, it is well worth hearing and will be heard again with great pleasure, and can be counted as a distinct addition to the lists of piano literature. Miss Emma E. Ellersdorfer and Mr. Watt gave it a superb reading, in musical and interpretative thought.

Miss Betsy M. Howland, who in her recent recital proved herself a pianist to be reckoned with, played the last movement of the MacDowell "Sonata Eroica" with great brilliancy in technical dexterity and fluidity of musical thought and expression, that won the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

Mr. Elmer G. Johnson gave proof of his ability as a player of Liszt by the ease with which he gave the "Concerto in E Flat Major." His musicianship is very good, and his technical resources are at his command. His tone is colorful and at all times pleasant to hear. His playing was clear and distinct, and his interpretation highly artistic and finished. Mr. Watt, at the second piano, left nothing to be desired.

Mr. William A. Willett, baritone, director of the Willett School of Singing, was heard in a well-selected list of songs, sung as only a mature artist can sing them. His fine baritone voice is under excellent control at all times.

Notably fine were his interpretations of Tchaikowsky's "To a Forest," Schubert's "Du bist die Ruh" and Schumann's "Widmung." "When I Gaze upon the Lily" (Oudin) and the "Spring Song" (Maude White) Mr. Willett made particularly his own. The many touches of tonal color and musical thought with which he invests them is rarely heard.

Mrs. McAllister's accompaniments were all that artistically played accompaniments should be.

H. W. P.

IDA GARDNER IN THE EAST

Miss Ida Gardner, the New York contralto, who made a notable success at "The Messiah" festival in Lindsborg, Kans., recently, sings "Samson" (Handel) with the Boston Choral Union April 25, gives recitals in Pittsfield April 27, New York May 4 and Schenectady, N. Y., May 7.

Scott—Marie Evans will give a piano recital at the branch studio of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, 1339 East Forty-seventh street, on Friday evening, April 30. Miss Marie is twelve years of age and a pupil of Miss Vivian Scott. She will be assisted by Miss Lillian Wilhelm, contralto.

Mandy—Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Mandy present their violin and piano pupils in a program at their residence studio, 627 Lyman avenue, Oak Park, on Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Zendt—Mrs. Zendt will sing "Creation" April 25, 29, 30, at the New First Congregational Church; May 4 at Centralia, Ill., and May 5 at St. Louis, Mo.

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO IN RECITAL

Wa-Tah-Wa-So, a princess in the Penobscot tribe of Indians, is a charming girl and a very talented artist.

She is beautiful far beyond the lot of most maidens—Indian or otherwise—and she has been trained to exact values in music and in recitation.

Withal, she has studied deeply into the traditions and the musical forms of her own people, and in her public work she brings to her audiences a message which is at once unique, artistic and thoroughly convincing.

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

She attempts nothing but the pure Indian songs, folk tales, etc., and she dresses entirely according to the fashion of her ancestors.

On last Wednesday afternoon she presented a program at Central Music Hall which it was a delight to hear, and which filled every auditor with a new feeling for the Indian legends and created a keen desire to hear Wa-Tah-Wa-So again and again.

Everybody knows how charming and how true are the Indian melodies as arranged by Cadman, and this Indian singer made "The Moon Drops Low" and "The White Dawn is Stealing" glow with a new beauty and radiate an entirely unique charm.

Her voice is "low and sweet," her manner most ingratiating, and her musical instinct very strong.

This group was followed by one from the less known musical pen of Thurlow Lieurance who nevertheless speaks with great authority in his Indian writing and has also caught the Indian spirit most admirably.

A book of his songs, published by Presser, is entitled "Nine Indian Songs" with descriptive notes by Thurlow Lieurance, and the foreword to this is so entertaining and so true to Indian life that it would be a pleasure to publish it in full did space permit. Suffice now, however, to say that it is fascinating and shows exactly the spirit

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.
67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SOLOS and QUARTETS FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

which animated the songs and the poetic thought which makes them so irresistible.

From this selection Wa-Tah-Wa-So sang "The Crow Maiden's Prayer Song," "The Weaver," "Aoorah," "Her Blanket" and "Pa-pup-oooh"—songs of great variety and yet of universal charm and beauty.

Mr. Lieurance has not only caught the exact spirit which inspired the verses of these songs, but he has clothed them, simply and yet majestically, in a musical garment, which harmonizes and blends with their thought and which, in the rendition suited the princess also to perfection.

THURLOW LIEURANCE

The audience liked these songs immensely and they will become great favorites whether sung by an Indian princess or by any other sympathetic artist, for they are sane, exact and definite, and may be used by any good singer who has imagination and some skill.

After these works Miss Patricia Abernethy, who is Wah-Tah-Wa-So's accompanist (and right skillful, too), came upon the stage and played as piano solos "The Sadness of the Lodge" and "The Return of the Braves," thoroughly definite trifles prepared by Charles Wakefield Cadman, and which under her fingers took on life and abounding color.

The last part of the program was given over entirely to the telling of legends and the presenting of dances by Wa-Tah-Wa-So, and this half hour was so original and so altogether charming that it is almost impossible to do more than express great admiration and then advise all readers to hear the work as soon as possible.

Wa-Tah-Wa-So has a suave voice and a gentle style when she likes, but she can also flame up to the passion appropriate to a full grown Brave on the war path and so her storytelling was varied to the limit and always it was of absorbing interest.

 C. E. W.

MR. FEARIS' NEW CANTATA, "THE GOSPEL OF EASTER," AT BERRY MEMORIAL M. E. CHURCH

Sunday evening, April 11, the choir of the Berry Memorial M. E. Church, assisted by Miss Lulu McNelley, soprano; Miss Bessie Dagley, contralto; Mr. Albert A. Carlson, tenor, and Mr. Carl S. Taggart, baritone, presented to a crowded house "The Gospel of Easter," a sacred cantata composed by Mr. J. S. Fearis, the director of the choir.

The text of this work is in itself inspiring, and with Mr. Fearis' setting the Easter message was given in an earnest and convincing manner.

Mr. Fearis occupies a unique position among Chicago composers, this work being representative of his style. It is concise, artistic and strong in climaxes, with a satisfying musical quality pervading the whole. This cantata promises to become popular because of this happy combination of artistry and clearness of outline.

The chorus sang with its usual accuracy evincing the thorough training characteristic of the director.

Miss McNelley's voice is one of much sweetness and contributed much to the soprano solos.

Owing to the illness of Miss Clara Jones, who was engaged to sing the contralto solos, Miss Bessie Dagley gave these very commendably, especially considering the unfavorable circumstances. Mr. Carlson was heard at his best in the duet, "Lo, I Am with You Always." This number was undoubtedly the most effective one of the evening.

The baritone solos of this cantata give opportunity for a wealth of musical and dramatic expression. Mr. Taggart provided all one could desire. His work was distinctly musicianly.

Miss Electa Austin provided the organ accompaniment in her usual artistic and capable manner.
 H. B.

Oak Park—Oak Park is certainly becoming a musical center. On Sunday evening the Lewis Institute Chorus, under direction of George L. Tenney, gave Gaul's "Holy City" at the First Methodist Episcopal Church and in a service two hours later Myrtle Friel Tucker, soprano, was head in solos. There was special music in the evening at the Second Congregational Church and at the First, Marie Kaiser, a New York soprano, was a soloist. On Monday evening the Chicago Symphony Orchestra gave a concert to a capacity audience at the High School Auditorium.

THE KEY

This is a very clever little booklet giving a full list of all musicians in New York City, with their addresses and telephone numbers. It is published by the Key Company, 171 West Fifty-seventh street, New York.

Thompson—John Winter Thompson, on April 14, accompanied the Kewanee Choral Society in its production of "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" and "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." Mr. Thompson also contributed a group of organ solos, to which he was obliged to add an encore number.

Stevenson-Campbell—Miss Lucille Stevenson, soprano, and Mr. Gordon Campbell, pianist and coach, announce a summer course at the Cosmopolitan School of Music extending for June 28 to August 9. There will be four recitals by these two artists as a part of the course.

Eddy—Mr. Clarence Eddy will leave Chicago on April 27 to fulfill his second engagement at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. His address temporarily will be care of the Key Route Inn, Oakland, Cal.

Cole—Miss Viola Cole gives a musicale at her studio, 612 Fine Arts Building, Saturday afternoon at 4:30.

Woodworth—Miss Mabel Woodworth, violinist, appeared in Danville, Ill., Wednesday evening, April 21.

Do you want names and addresses of over 3,000 Professional Musicians? Will send five Musical Directories containing lists from nine different cities, postpaid, for $1.00.
 OTTO H. TIEDE, 3328 Tracy Av.
 Kansas City, Mo.

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY DRAMATIC SOPRANO
 ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
 5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

MONICA GRAHAM STULTS WALTER ALLEN
 Columbia School of Music SOPRANO BASS 303 KIMBALL HALL

KATHARINE D'ORSAY
 Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
 61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUBAUER
 WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - ST. LOUIS

PRUDENCE
NEFF
 PIANISTE

Address
 SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF MUSICAL ART
 BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ROBERT DOLEJSI
 VIOLINIST

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

THE CONCERT OF THE PEOPLE'S CHORAL UNION

The second of the season's concerts by the People's Choral Union, F. W. Wodell, conductor, will be given in Symphony Hall Sunday night, April 25, the work being Handel's "Samson."

The chorus will number 400, and these will be assisted by a capable corps of singers and an orchestra made up of symphony players. The tickets are placed at a low figure, so that the opportunity to hear a dramatic oratorio by many voices need not be lost because of the cost being too great.

h h h

For Red Cross Aid

Monday morning, April 12, the Liederheim Glee Club, director Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles, and the Kreisler Club, directed by Miss Edith Lynwood Winn, gave a joint recital in the Toy Theater for the benefit of the Red Cross war relief fund.

The program had a wide variety of selection, the feature being a composition by Mrs. Annie Andros Hawley. An aria from "Louise" was sung by Miss Fay Cord, soprano, beside three songs, "Dawn in the Desert," "Wing Song," and "To a Messenger."

Miss Alice Baker, vocalist; Miss Margaret Bishop, pianist; Dayton Henry, violinist, and Mrs. Margaret Gorham Glaser, pianist, were heard in duets.

h h h

First Annual Musicales at the Massachusetts Normal Art School

Thursday night, April 8, the first annual musicale of the Massachusetts Normal Art School was given under the direction of William Thomijan, a pupil of Nicola Oulskanoff, the well-known Russian baritone, formerly of the Boston Opera Company.

The Men's, the Women's and the Mandolin Clubs of the school all took part, and soloists, both vocal and instrumental, added to the program.

h h h

The 18th Annual Concert at Worcester

The Worcester Mandolin Orchestra and Ideal Banjo Club, Harry N. Davis, director, assisted by Miss Phyllis Hammond, harpist, and Mrs. Marguerite Bartlett Sherlock, reader, both of Boston, gave their 18th annual concert in Horticultural Hall Tuesday night, April 6, to an audience that forced the hall's capacity.

The clubs numbered about thirty players and Mrs. H. N. Davis was the pianist.

h h h

Of General Interest

Anne Hathaway Gulick, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Professor Charles Burton Gulick of Harvard University, played the Saint-Saens "Concerto" in C Minor with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at New Bedford April 6, scoring an unqualified success. Miss Gulick is a student at the Faeltien Pianoforte School.

A bill of original plays by members of the New England Conservatory dramatic department drew a large audience to Recital Hall of the Conservatory building last evening (Thursday, April 1). This was the first occasion on which Clayton D. Gilbert, head of the department, has made an invited affair of the dramatic practice work that is ordinarily given informally on Friday afternoons during the second session. Several well known theatrical people were in the audience.

Recent valuable gifts to the New England Conservatory library include a donation from Miss Olive Cutter of books and scores from the library of her father, the late Benjamin Cutter, of the Conservatory faculty, and the acquisition, through a gift of money made by Miss Grace Edwards, of a large collection of scores by modern composers. Director George W. Chadwick has turned over to the library as an indefinite loan a large number of standard works.

Brahms and Dvorak pianoforte "Trios," that in C Minor, Op. 101 of the former composer, and that in B Flat Major, Op. 21, of the latter, figured in a pupils' recital at the Conservatory Saturday afternoon. Solo numbers were presented by Helen Moses, Edith Potter, Lester Hinchcliffe, Dorothy Cuddy, Lillian Kandib and George Hathaway.

h h h

The New England Conservatory dramatic department announces an evening of original plays in Recital Hall Thursday evening, April 1, under the direction of Clayton D. Gilbert. These little pieces, all written by students of the department, are "Kiltern versus Kiltern," by Irving Dale; "The Test," John K. Snyder; "The Valentine," Fred Allen; "Released," Fritz Mahr. Three pupils of Mme. Muschissette will do a Polish dance at this recital.

h h h

A joint recital by Florence May Bishop, pianist, and Eva Egarter, soprano, was given in Steinert Hall Tuesday evening, March 30. Both musicians came from Wheeling, W. Va. Miss Bishop is a graduate of the 1913 class at the New England Conservatory of Music, where she has been a pupil of Dr. J. Albert Jefferey. Miss Egarter studied singing in Paris and had expected to be heard in opera this season had not the war intervened. Mrs. Charles A. White served as accompanist.

A feature of the recital was the first performance of a new "Danse Polonaise" by Dr. Jefferey, rendered by Miss Bishop as the concluding number of the program. The other piano selections included Saint-Saens' "Chansen Napolitaine," a group of "Symphonie Etudes" by Schumann and the Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 31, No. 3.

Miss Egarter made a very favorable impression through her interpretation of Rimsky-Korsakow's "Chansen Indene," Grieg's "Im Kahne" and selections from Massenet, Salter, Spross and Louis Victor Saar.

h h h

A Lecture at Worcester

S. Harrison Lovewell, A. G. O., will give the second of his musically illustrated lectures in Worcester, April 20, under the management of the Boston editor of Music News.

He gives a series of lectures sequential in interest beginning with "Romanticism in the Classical Composers," then "The Fugue and Its Emotional Meaning," "The Evolution of the Suite," and "The Sonata." His present appearance in Worcester will give those attending the lecture an opportunity to hear the second of the series just mentioned. Each lecture has a thirty-minute program of works illustrating the text.

The library of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, has received from Miss Olive Cutter a valuable collection of scores and books relating to musical history. These are from the private library of her father, the late Benjamin Cutter, of the Conservatory faculty. Miss Grace Edwards, of Boston, lately gave the school a sum of money for improvement of the library. This has been expended in purchase of a collection of scores by modern composers which came upon the market at a very moderate price. It is strong in works by Debussy, Schoenberg, Ravel, Cesar Franck and many others of the French school.

Zeta chapter of Alpha Chi Omega, gave its eleventh annual recital in Jordan Hall of the Conservatory building Monday evening, March 29. The performers were Joe Carr, Maude A. Beaudry, Josephine Durrell, Avernice Gay, Mima Montgomery, Mildred Ridley, Florence May Bishop.

New activities of the New England Conservatory dramatic department appear in the program of original plays arranged for presentation under the direction of Clayton D. Gilbert, Thursday evening, April 1. Mr. Gilbert's previous dramatic exhibitions have emphasized work by leading modern British and French dramatists, the original dramas and pantomimes of students being reserved for the informal Friday afternoon recitals. This year for the first time four one-act plays have been prepared by student playwrights which seemed strong enough to present on a special occasion. These pieces are "Kiltern versus Kiltern," a comedy, by Irving Dale; "The Test," a drama, John K. Snyder; "The Valentine," a dramatic incident, Fred Allen; "Released," a tragedy, Fritz Mahr.

h h h

Search—Frederick Preston Search has located permanently at San Francisco.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Recitals
Concerts
Wrightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing.
5057 Winthrop Av.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall
Recitals
Concerts
Tel. Ravenswood 125.

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
INDSBOROUGH
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

MARVIN HINSHAW REPLIES TO PERSONAL LETTER OF IN- QUIRY FROM W. M. GAMBLE

Chicago, March 26, 1915.

Mr. Marvin Hinshaw,
304 South Wabash avenue,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Hinshaw:

I was considerably interested in the clipping from The Music News, and while I agree with every one of your Thirty-nine Don'ts, I can't help but wonder how the average mind would receive them. If a voice pupil should have any of these cautions indelibly impressed on their memory to make them conscious, it might fill them with fear and prevent progress which otherwise might be rapid. I will not even attempt to criticize this as I believe that you know the progress that you are making with our pupils, but I do wonder if you have these don'ts confronting your pupils during your teaching. If you do, then I would conclude that you are prepared to bring about the right mental attitude, in order to get the results which could not be done by many teachers. I am always interested in the reports of your many pleased pupils.

Wishing you continued success, I am

Very sincerely yours,

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.,
W. M. Gamble.

Mr. W. M. Gamble,
President Gamble Music Co.,
67 East Van Buren street,
Chicago, Ill.

My Dear Mr. Gamble:

Your letter received and much appreciated.

In reply will say, the "Thirty-nine Don'ts" cover the most common faults which singers have to contend with, and they should serve as a guide to teachers and a warning to singers. The great majority of students, many of the younger professional singers and a few artists who have gained considerable renown are handicapped by one or two of the troubles mentioned in the "Thirty-nine Don'ts."

I have been unusually successful in diagnosing the difficulties of various singers and in making suggestions which aid them in overcoming their faults quickly. There are some of our very fine singers who succeed in spite of the contraction of certain muscles which handicap them; but if the shackles were removed, and the voice given perfect freedom, they would become artists instead of good singers.

In my teaching I use the old school—not the modern—Italian method, adding such personal ideas of my own as aid me in obtaining the best results for each individual pupil in the shortest possible time.

There are no two voices that can be trained exactly alike, for their faults are different, hence the success of a teacher depends largely upon his ability to determine the particular one or two of the many common stumbling blocks which prevent the progress of each individual student, and to prescribe a mental remedy which will bring speedy results.

I allow my pupils, when singing, to think of nothing but the story of their song, actually living the character they are portraying.

I contend that breath control, tonal attack (never continued pressure), the vocal chords, all muscles used in singing and articulation, tone color, expression, emotion, graceful action and, in short, all that is human and spiritual that is required to express a certain definite idea, responds in a unit—not separately—to one thought, after the master mind has gained perfect control of all concerned. There is a great deal of attention and hard work given by both teacher and ambitious pupil to the physical side of singing.

No fault can be overcome by physical exercises prescribed by any teacher, but the singer must be given a new thought governing the disobedient muscles or vocal chords.

Substitute mental determination—absolute confidence—for physical preparation.

By this means I am enabled to secure the finest results possible in all cases, depending upon the value of each individual vocal instrument, in a very reasonable time.

Any well prepared teacher should be able to do the same.

With best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

MARVIN HINSHAW.

###

Parker—Frank Parker gave a lecture-recital at the Cedar Valley (Ia.) Seminary last Tuesday, his subject being "Rabindranath Tagore."

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

Some recent press comment:

Mrs. Dobyns has long been known for her beauty and unusual voice.—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Dobyns possesses a mezzo-soprano voice of remarkable range and degree.—Chicago Examiner.

